

Chapter 153

Nathan was dumbfounded by William's words.

That tap!

William did touch the throat of the first patient earlier.

Then the patient threw up and fainted.

Was there anything special about that particular tap?

What the f*ck!

How was that possible?

Did William really think he was a divine doctor?

How could Nathan believe in something so absurd?

No one dared to believe it!

William smiled without saying anything.

That tap, indeed, did not serve any purpose.

However, the aftereffect that came with that tap provided crucial information to him.

Earlier, William had noticed that the faces of those patients were extremely pallid. As time passed, their faces lost even more color.

This was the sign that the poison of the Hexaleaf was on the verge of taking over the body systems.

Therefore, when William touched the throat of that patient who was already on the brink of death couldn't help but vomit straight away.

When the other patients saw the first patient vomiting, they followed suit and chucked up all the poison too.

His tap was merely a trigger for it to happen, a psychological trick.

William's real purpose was to get the patients to vomit.

From the color of the blood that the patients spat out, the residue of the Hexaleaf, and the yellowish-brown pus, William could easily guess the dosage of the Hexaleaf consumed by them.

Besides, the contents of the puke were exactly the same.

This basically indicated that Lincon had given them all the same dosage of Hexaleaf.

Therefore, William immediately told Henry how much antidote to administer.

When Henry heard William, he was lost in admiration for a couple of seconds!

William was able to analyze the dosage just by inspecting their blood!

It was as though he had the eyes of a microscope!

Sure enough, under the watchful eyes of the public, Henry opened the door.

People immediately gathered around and asked, "Divine Doctor He, how is my family?"

"Don't worry, everything is fine. They just need to be more careful in the future and have a lot of rest. They'll be alright," Henry reassured.

Everyone felt relieved upon hearing that.

But for Nathan, he immediately felt a sense of coldness in him!

He decided to flee!

The Zhao family would never be able to rebuild their reputation anymore!

If he stayed here any longer, his life would be at stake!

But there were too many people here, and Nathan was caught at once.

Now that everyone had already learned the truth, all of them vented their anger at Nathan!

"D*mn it. How dare you frame the Genuine Care Medical Center as well! You are really cruel!"

"Now only we know that it is the Genuine Care Medical Center that is benevolent and a miracle healer! How could you slander them! You don't deserve to be called a human at all! I'll beat you to death!"

The people at the scene began punching and kicking Nathan.

Nathan's face was swollen and blood could be seen coursing down his nostrils.

Anger rose in him like a tide when they continued to beat him up!

What the f*ck!

It was not like the Zhao family was the only who committed a crime!

Why did they only hit him?!

The Genuine Care Medical Center was equally wrong too!

The only difference was they had managed to clean their slate!

"Wait!" Nathan thought.

There was another person!

He could still pull one more person in this alongside him.

"Let's suffer together!"

He pushed the crowd away and yelled, "Why don't you all blame the Bai family then?! The Bai family is guilty too! You all should hit them up too!"

Some turned to look at the Bai family.

When the Bais saw the crowd's stare, they immediately shrunk their necks, and didn't dare to make a sound.

However, they were all cursing in their hearts, "Nathan, that b*stard!"

He should just endure this silently himself!

Why must he drag them along?

No, that was not right!

The Bai family had long been out of danger! They had told the public that they were not involved in this matter!

There was nothing to be afraid of!

Steven straightened his back at the thought of this and said righteously, "It's not our family's business. It's all Felicity's fault."

Everyone turned to look at Felicity.

Her body was still and there was apathy in her eyes.

"Yes, it's Felicity! She is guilty of all three crimes I've announced earlier! Shouldn't you all do the same to her too? Well, you should punish her as well! Otherwise, you're all cowards!" Nathan was afraid that everyone would only target him, hence he immediately shifted the crowd's attention to Felicity.

Those who were influenced by Nathan's words were in a dilemma.

They slowly walked towards Felicity.

But right at this moment, Felicity finally stood up.

The tense atmosphere reached a peak at once before everyone poured their wrath on Felicity.

When Nathan saw this, his heart was filled with joy!

"Felicity, since I can't get you, then I'll just have to let you fall along with me!"

He gnashed his teeth. "Either we climb to the throne of success together, or we die together!"

Haha!

Looking at how these people were getting closer to her, Felicity turned and looked at a man not far away from her.

He was the person whom she would willingly devote her whole heart and soul to.

William's eyes were calm; he didn't say a word.

Felicity couldn't understand what he meant by his expression.

Felicity had never understood what William's expression was saying since she was a child.

"William, what will you do?" Felicity asked William.

Everyone was taken aback.

This question was quite baffling.

But William's answer was equally puzzling. "If you were me and I were you, what would you do?"

Everyone was on the verge of losing their minds.

Who was what?

What the hell were they talking about?

Or were they speaking foreign languages?

Upon hearing his words, Felicity felt her heart stir with emotions.

"If I were you, and you were me..." she thought.

"If I were to see the crowds attacking you..."

She muttered, "And you were so helpless..."

"What would I do?" Felicity lowered her head.

What else could she do?

Well, it seemed that there was only one thing she could do!

A wife should stand with her husband!

Similarly, a husband should stand with his wife!

That was only logical!

Felicity was no longer looking at the crowd in front of her.

In her mind, she could only picture William being besieged by the crowd.

A chuckle escaped her lips.

Everyone was dumbfounded.

Felicity who was about to be engulfed by the public anger, actually laughed!

Had she gone mad?

Only Felicity knew that she was not crazy.

Only she knew what William actually meant.

No, that was not right.

What she thought earlier was too shallow.

"William, what you mean doesn't actually refer to the scene before us, does it?"

He was referring to another incident.

"William, help me..." The image of asking William for help appeared in Felicity's mind again.

"I'd asked William for help." Felicity's eyes were fixed on the ground.

"If I were William and he had begged me for the first time in his life..."

Then that plead of hers was not restricted to the current situation!

It would not only be applicable to this turmoil brought up by the Heption Herbs!

If Felicity were William, she would definitely cherish that line in her heart!

For the rest of her life!

Yes, for the rest of her life!

Therefore, that plead of hers... was for the rest of their lives!

In the future, regardless of what challenges lied ahead of them, be it thorn and thistles...

She would always risk her life to be with him and to provide help for him!

She understood William's heart and thoughts just like how he understood hers. They were now like a pair of entwined souls; no one would be able to separate them again!

"That was what I thought, I'm sure you are thinking the same too."

Felicity finally understood what William meant by that line.

She would leave everything to him without any worry!

Felicity looked at William and guffawed so hard that as though she could topple over at any time!

Everyone was befuddled at her laughter.

Nonetheless, her bright smile was something so mesmerizing that it could overthrow the city.

Her lips were rosy red and the beauty she possessed was beyond this shallow world had to offer.

"I am having a sore throat today. So, as the head of the Bai family and the director of the Bai Group, I will entrust this issue to William..."

She stretched out her arm to William as she added, "William, please explain it."

William, who was at a distance from Felicity, smiled when he heard those words.
