

Chapter 239

"Be quiet! Listen to me! Janet definitely doesn't know about the secret. Otherwise, she will definitely ask for more! Can't you just use your brain to think!" Yohan couldn't help but curse loudly.

They finally quieted down, recomposing themselves.

Yohan was right. If she knew, it would not be merely five hundred million.

"Then why would she ask for such a price?" someone asked again.

"She must've sensed something and knew that we are determined to get the copyrights of the movie. She is therefore fearless!" Yohan hissed grimly.

"What can we do then? It's five hundred million!" they grumbled bitterly.

Yohan was equally clueless and exasperated.

He thought they could buy the copyrights at the lowest investment so as to distract Janet's attention before they laid their hands on the unedited original file.

Things had been unexpectedly made difficult by that b*tch.

D*mn!

After further contemplation, Yohan spoke, "Well, we should look at the silver lining, guys."

"A good one! Yohan, I think you've gone mad too!" the men shouted at Yohan.

Yohan explained his analysis coldly, "Didn't you realize that Janet has shifted her attention to the copyrights of the movie? She thought we are buying over the copyrights, which is exactly not what we are after. Can't you see that this could serve as a perfect distraction?"

He paused for a while and added, "This is the most critical point. We have to be careful not to mention anything about the original copy. We will win this game if we are able to do this."

But those people were still very anxious!

"That's five hundred million! Add up to the previous loss of six hundred million, it is a total of 1.1 billion yuan!"

How could Yohan not know that? They had spent so much on those trash-like actors!

However, they did not have a choice.

"If we could still complete the task with 1.1 billion, the company will still reward us. Although it is not a great achievement to boost, at least we manage to get what they want," Yohan added.

"If we choose to give up, the company would have lost six hundred million. We would never be able to gain a footing in the company again. It's your choice." Yohan left them with the decision.

Each of them felt like they had been forced to join a revolt.

Janet on the other hand, started singing a ballad in her office.

Great!

It just felt so great!

If it was not for the direction provided by William, she would not dare to ask for such a price!

It was a hundredfold increase in price!

Janet could never have imagined making such negotiations in her lifetime!

How wonderful life was!

Yohan and the team must be struggling if they should compromise on her ridiculous proposition. Janet just felt so good at the thought of their aggrieved faces.

However, that brat...

Did he expect that she would somehow discover this?

Otherwise, how could he give her such an impossible task?

He really trusted her.

Janet felt helpless again at the thought of it.

It felt like that brat was not only good at strategizing, but he could also read others' minds accurately.

It included Martin, Yohan and his other opponents.

It also included her!

In fact, it included everyone!

Yohan and William didn't know each other.

But William was able to put himself in Yohan's perspective.

He could think of every move Yohan was going to make in advance.

How terrifying!

It was as if William was standing above in the clouds, looking down at all of them.

He could see their behaviors and actions clearly!

Janet tapped the table and finally smiled.

She had been following his instructions...

He must have already expected her to be able to discover the secret in this game.

Did he also find out how much she would discover?

Hmph...

Wait, she might already know the secret that was making Yohan and others crazy!

Did William discover it too?

With 20/20 hindsight, Janet found that William was such a mysterious person.

She suddenly had the bold thought of thwarting William.

She checked the time and headed toward the meeting room.

As the door was opened, she saw Yohan and the others' expressions were calm and collected.

"Have you made a decision?" Janet asked coldly while sitting down.

The shareholders rushed into the room, wanting to find out what would happen.

Martin was very anxious and nervous.

Five hundred million!

A hundredfold!

It was impossible for Yohan to agree to it!

Only morons would!

Martin's heart was drumming inside as he watched Yohan and his team remain in silence.

C'mon! They should turn down Janet immediately.

But they didn't.

It meant that they were hesitating...

Why were they still hesitating?

Yohan finally spoke.

He sighed as if he had made a great concession. "Four hundred million. We can sign the contract immediately if you agree to it."

The shareholders went into an uproar.

Yohan and the team must be crazy!

This was pure madness!

Were Yohan and his team the godsend fairies of fortune?

They had spent earlier six hundred million without even batting an eye, and now another four hundred million!

In the blink of an eye, Lunanica actually made 1 billion!

D*mn!

At that moment, the shareholders regretted their decision.

Would the company go bankrupt with 1 billion?

Of course, no!

They were earning more than expected!

Unfortunately, the earnings had nothing to do with them!

Suddenly, someone gave himself a slap, "Why did I f*cking sell the shares?!"

Everyone thought Janet would definitely agree to Yohan.

It was after all an exorbitant sum of money.

But Janet just sneered. "Mr. Chung, I have to remind you that I am asking you to make a decision. I'm not negotiating with you. Five hundred million, not a dime less."

The scene was strangely quiet.

Everyone was feeling dizzy.

The negotiation itself was way more exciting than the movie.

If this negotiation was made into a movie, it would definitely sell like hot cakes.

Yohan stared at Janet as if he had expected this outcome a long time ago.

Finally, he said solemnly, "Okay! I would get back what I have invested. I've brought along the contract."

In a blink of an eye, Lunanica Media made another one hundred million.

Another shareholder slapped his face.

They had lost so much money!

Some shareholders gave a hostile stare at Martin.

Martin was the one encouraging them to sell their shares.

Martin was consumed by horror, fearing that he would be torn into pieces.

The contract was ready and the two parties

signed it immediately.

Yohan showed an ineffable smile after signing the contract, stretched out his hand, and said, "I look forward to our future collaboration."

Janet did not reach out to shake his hand; she just nodded.

She was quite happy with the outcome; needless to say, Yohan's mood would be the opposite of hers now.

Yohan did not seem bothered with Janet's arrogance. He turned and left with his team.

Just when they walked out of the meeting room, he casually said, "I will have someone over to get the original copy so we can edit it and launch it on the internet."

It was a very casual and nonchalant statement.

No one sensed a problem in it.

To his surprise, Janet replied, "We are not going to provide the original copy. I look forward to more collaboration with you too."

Chapter 240

Janet said it so casually and naturally.

It seemed as if she had long expected that Yohan would make such requests.

She did not even hesitate!

Yohan and his team stopped their paces instantly!

They turned to look at her in disbelief!

What did they just hear?

Janet wasn't going to provide the original copy?

D*mn!

They put in so much effort to come here and endure all these humiliations!

Yohan even knelt down to her!

They had spent 1.1 billion!

Just for the original copy of this movie!

Now this little b*tch was telling everyone that the original copy was not provided?

Was she trying to dig her own grave!

D*mn it!

The original copy was not provided!

What use would that crappy movie to them?

Yohan's face turned cold instantly but almost immediately, he pulled himself together again. However, the people behind him couldn't hide their anger.

Janet spotted all of the expressions.

She had so much joy watching their reactions.

It was true!

Bingo!

The secret lay in the original copy!

Those few obvious contradicting clips and editing were where the golden secrets lay!

Janet was not entirely sure initially.

However, when the ten actors appeared that morning, they told her all about the humiliation they had gone through the previous day to get her sympathy.

Janet felt something amiss.

Yohan and his team asked them to write out their movie lines.

They were fired instantly after Yohan realized that they were unable to do so.

What did it mean?

That meant the movie's lines were what they were looking for!

They were here now to buy the copyrights.

This didn't tie up.

The crappy movie was as bad as a pile of poo.

Why would they buy this sh*tty movie?

Janet wouldn't ask for such a crazy price if it wasn't for William's reminder.

She followed William's instructions while she tried to probe the answers out of Yohan.

She was testing their bottom line.

Judging on the current reaction, Janet understood where to look for the secrets immediately.

She knew the key instantly, although Yohan tried to make it sound as nonchalant as possible.

Did the original copy have the lines of those actors?

So their real purpose was to obtain the original copy and not the copyrights.

How smart of them! They were distracting her using the copyrights, so she wouldn't think of the original copy, weren't they?

Yohan's acting skills were amazing.

He pretended to look exasperated before he made such a simple request in the most subtle manner possible.

Ordinary people would be fooled by him.

They bought the copyrights, and therefore the rights to edit the movie.

What a pity! "What are you, Yohan compared to William?" Janet sneered silently.

Yohan was nothing better than a clown!

"Miss Ching, what do you mean? We've spent hundreds of millions of yuans! Why can't we get the original copy to edit? How can we make money then?" Yohan bombarded a series of questions at Janet as he continued to put up an act.

Everyone including the shareholders felt that Janet was being unreasonable.

She had obviously made a whole lot of money from Yohan; yet, she was deliberately making things difficult.

That original copy was totally worthless. Why didn't she just give it to them?

Janet snickered and replied, "It is not stated in the contract that we should provide the original copy. Oh, you are the one who brought the contract, so you can't blame me!"

Janet's reply made Yohan's blood boil in anger at once!

D*mn!

It was Yohan who drafted the contract!

But they deliberately left out the original copy in fear of suspicions from Janet.

Everyone including Yohan had been convinced that Lunanica Media would definitely provide the original copy, for it was worthless.

They thought that Janet would have given it away since they had spent so much money.

What a dream!

This b*tch, Janet!

How shameless!

Just look at her arrogant attitude!

Yohan was so irate that he was wordless momentarily!

Yohan couldn't find words to refute Janet. He was so frustrated that he thought he would explode at any second!

He looked at Janet ferociously but suddenly there was a trace of doubt that flashed across his eyes.

Was this Janet Ching that he knew?

Yohan had known Janet for a long time. He knew her abilities very well.

However, the way she acted in the previous two days seemed like she was receiving help from a counselor.

Someone frighteningly skillful was offering her help!

Why would the ten actors go on vacation the time Yohan wanted to reach out to them? Why did the actors switch off their phones when Yohan attempted to hook them up in private?

Why did he only realize that none of the ten actors was able to write the lines after he bought them?

If it was not planned from the beginning, how could there be so many coincidences?

Was there an expert behind her?

It seemed that it was indeed the case!

Otherwise, he wouldn't have been fooled by Janet twice!

Something was wrong!

If there was an expert behind her back to lay out such a magical plan...

There was only one possibility!

That mysterious counsellor had been using the secret they had discovered as a weapon against them from the beginning!

And Yohan had completely fallen into his trap!

Yohan suddenly felt a chill down his spine as he recalled all that happened.

And exactly at that moment, Janet's words confirmed Yohan's terrifying speculation.

"Enough nonsense! Do you think I didn't know that you have come for the original copy of the movie?"

Janet's expression gradually turned cold.

These words made everyone turn ghastly pale.

They had plotted everything in such a meticulous manner. However, they now knew that their plot and intention had already been uncovered by Janet. It was an utterly intolerable humiliation to all of them!

Yohan's face turned hideous!

It was true!

Well, they had been fooled by Janet twice.

On top of that, they had lost 1.1 billion yuan!

"Janet! What do you want? You are playing with fire! Do you know what kind of organization is backing me!" Yohan exploded.

Wasn't Janet scared of the men supporting Yohan?

Didn't Yohan know that Janet also had Harper behind her back?

If the Medical Association and Harper were really getting into a battle, then both sides would end up losing eventually. They wouldn't get into a fight that would not yield any benefits.

Without Janet even realizing it, William's position in her heart had already surpassed Harper's.

William was the winner. She would do her best to serve him. There was nothing for her to be afraid of!

"I suggest if you want to talk about business, just sit down and talk. Don't play tricks on me. You will only suffer a great loss if you do," Janet said coldly.

Yohan's face froze.

Yohan thought that every step he made was perfect and flawless.

However, now he realized that the key to his awful loss was not Janet's fault but it was his!

If he had made an honest, sincere negotiation from the beginning, there might be a chance of him obtaining the secrets hidden in the movie.

1.1 billion yuan had been spent but they got nothing in return.

They were completely out of money now. They had lost this round.

"Do you want the original copy?" Janet took out a compact disc.

The eyes of those people suddenly turned bloodshot.

However, their eyes were sparkling with rage; they were unwilling to give up!

It seemed that Lunanica Media already knew the secret.

They would not be able to get the copy without spending another billion.

But... they were out of money.

To everyone's surprise, Janet suddenly handed the CD to the desperate Yohan.

"And I have decided to give it to you for free!"

11:08

Janet's words were shocking. Almost instantly, everyone's jaw dropped open!

@vamp20w0111

Chapter 241

The few people's expressions behind Yohan were clearly written with surprise!

What a twist!

They did not expect Janet to finally give them the original copy!

And it was for free!

Lucky for them!

It was definitely a roller coaster of emotions for them! From anger, sorrow, and exasperation to great joy!

Yohan's heart was beating fiercely.

He looked at Janet.

Janet's eyes were glistening with mockery.

He touched the CD.

The contents of the CD should be authentic.

Janet would not be so despicable as to alter the contents of the CD.

It was just...

Yohan suddenly gave a wry smile. Crack!

The disc was snapped in half instantly by Yohan.

Yohan's delighted team members froze.

They looked at Yohan in disbelief.

A person rushed up, grabbed Yohan by the collar, and cursed with red eyes, "Yohan! What are you doing! Do you know what you are holding in your hand? It was our future. The rest of our lives was in your hand! And you actually broke it!"

Yohan pushed the man's hand away.

He stared at Janet viciously, fury vibrating through his being.

"Future? Your lives? If it was so, would Miss Ching be so kind as to give this CD to us for free? How foolish of you!" Yohan said coldly.

As if paralyzed, those people squealed, "What! What do you mean?"

"I understand what's going on now. In this game, we've lost terribly! The original copy is in this CD but I swear that there is nothing we want in the original copy either." Yohan shook his head and gave a wry smile.

It was also Janet's last move that made him come to his senses.

They had fallen into the trap of that expert behind Lunanica Media from the beginning.

How could that mastermind hide the secret in the original copy?

Yohan reckoned the only way to identify the secret was to find out the head of that mastermind.

Janet chuckled again when she saw Yohan's grief-

stricken face.

She had thought of the same thing a while ago.

William had been so meticulous.

It was impossible of him to hide the secret in the original copy.

There was only one reason!

That would be because William did not have complete trust in Janet's wisdom yet.

In case Janet didn't realize and handed over the original copy after signing the contract, then William's painstaking efforts would be in vain.

The original copy was simply a gimmick created by William, to make this game all the more fun and interesting.

Hence, Janet did not even mind giving the CD to them.

After hearing what Yohan said, all of their faces went pale.

They finally knew that they had been completely defeated.

They lost 1.1 billion yuan, a loss that was enough to ruin their reputation. Never could they turn over a new leaf again!

What could they do?

Suddenly, they looked at Janet helplessly. They needed help from her!

"Miss Ching, this contract..." they muttered weakly.

"Don't embarrass yourselves here!" Yohan suddenly roared.

How shameless of them to give in to their opponent!

Yohan could be considered a somewhat arrogant person, and he had been thwarted twice by Janet!

Such humiliation was an unforgettable experience to him!

How could it be possible for him to ask for Janet's help and suffer more humiliation?

He could only leave in defeat. Even if he had been vanquished, he would not lose his dignity!

The shareholders of Lunanica Media, especially Martin, were consumed with envy.

1.1 billion yuan!

It would be enough for Lunanica Media to make a name for themselves!

If they were to convert this to the profit they made from the tickets, they would even have to distribute part of it to the theaters.

If they cooperated with Henderson Media, half of the copyrights would belong to Henderson Media.

Lunanica Media now had the sole copyright. They had made 1.1 billion for free without a dime spent!

Goodness! 1.1 billion yuan, for goodness' sake!

It could have been their dividends!

Yet, it no longer meant anything to them now!

Remorse was the only word that could describe their feelings now!

Who could have imagined that things would turn out like this?

Lunatica Media could actually make a comeback and be reborn!

Janet was really amazing!

Yohan and the team looked at Janet bitterly and strode outside.

Halfway through, Yohan suddenly turned and asked Janet inexplicably, "I want to know, who am I losing to?"

Janet naturally knew the meaning of Yohan's words. No way she would tell Yohan that he had lost to William who had planned for all these.

Janet asked, "Then I would like to know what the secret you are pursuing is."

Yohan was taken aback and stared at Janet.

This little girl really didn't know the secret.

However, with keen observation and reasoning, she managed to defeat them.

Yohan shook his head. "I'll let you ponder about it."

He was about to leave before several people appeared in front of him.

Yohan's brow wrinkled instantly when he saw these few people!

That was unbelievable!

Frاندick would actually appear at Lunanica Media in person!

Yohan and his team stopped in their tracks at once.

Frاندick and his men glanced at Yohan and his team contemptuously before they walked past Yohan and into the conference room of Lunanica Media.

When Janet saw Frاندick, she was also taken aback.

It seemed that this game had yet to come to an end.

That brat's plan was still ongoing.

Frاندick was the one in the front, his grey hair and wrinkled face spoke of his age. His mole in between his eyebrows was particularly eye-catching.

However, his complexion was not as good. It was as if he was seriously ill.

"Master Hoo, why are you here?" Janet bowed respectfully to Frاندick.

Frاندick was the chairman of the Qena City Pharmaceutical Association in Qena City and was about to retire.

He looked at Janet before a smile cracked across his face. He then glanced at the dumbfounded people at the entrance and asked, "Are you Janet Ching? I have been paying attention to your company these days. Good move! What a ploy! I am very surprised!"

"Lucky we don't have a cunning leader like the old b*stards of the Medical Association. Otherwise, we would be the ones losing money."

Janet made a slight bow again as she answered, "I will take that as a compliment. Who in Qena City doesn't know that you are of high esteem and noble? Of course, you will not employ those shady techniques that our beloved friends had used."

Frاندick nodded. "So, I'm here today in person to express my sincerity to you. Don't you want to know the secret? The one that the Medical Association and even Pharmaceutical Association have been hiding. I will tell you now."

Frاندick inhaled deeply. "The secret is about the ten ancient prescriptions in the hands of the ten freaks of the village in your movie!

He clasped his hands together and added, "They are treasures handed down for ages! They are practically priceless works of art in medicine!"

Chapter 242

Frاندick's words immediately caused an uproar.

"What kind of ancient prescription is that? A treasure that's being handed down for ages? What are they talking about?"

"Priceless works of art in medicine? Why didn't I notice anything unusual?" another person asked.

However, Janet seemed to have everything connected in that instant. Frاندick had enlightened her.

So this was it!

No wonder she felt more puzzled when she watched the conflicting edit of the movie.

The scene when the supporting actors were reciting the prescriptions were deleted. A scene would be cut off when the camera was aiming at the prescription paper.

No wonder Yohan and his team asked the ten people to write out their lines! He was asking them to write the prescriptions out!

They wanted the original copy because they wanted to see unedited lines and the shots on the prescription.

William, how thoughtful!

As a doctor and insider, he was playing around in Lunanica Media!

And with a businessman's wisdom, he knocked down all his opponents.

The truth was revealed.

Frandick added, "You have played a magnificent game of chess! If it was not your intention to personally invite me to your movie premiere, I suppose I would have missed out this rare treasure. Thank you for believing in me."

"Movie invitation?" Janet was taken aback.

Martin's face immediately changed upon hearing that.

God knew how exasperated he felt at this moment!

Movie Invitation!

He was the one who sent it out!

He was the one who invited Frandick to watch the movie!

He sent the invitations to both the experts in the Pharmaceutical Association and Medical Association!

It was originally intended to attack William and damage the reputation of Lunanica Media!

Never did he expect that the move would backfire!

If he didn't send the invitations, these people would never show up in Lunanica Media!

Besides earning the 1.1 billion yuan, Janet even had Frandick come to her personally!

D*mn!

It was him who had contributed to the new majestic and prestigious Lunanica Media!

He should be the one who should make a fortune!

Unfortunately, he sold off all the equities.

Martin was so depressed that he felt nauseous!

Frandick looked at Janet and said sincerely, "I will not lie to you. After all, I am afraid that I will end up like those people outside. Those ten ancient prescriptions are of great value to the medical research team of the Pharmaceutical Association. And for me personally, this is a prescription that can prolong my life. I'm here to discuss the purchase of ancient prescriptions with you."

The people were stunned again.

Someone was going to pour their money into Lunanica Media again!

And it was to buy actual things this time!

Janet's eyes shifted toward the shareholders around her.

She politely asked them to leave the conference room.

The shareholders, including Martin, were cursing but they had lost their decision-making power and hence, had to leave in disgrace.

But Janet did not ask Yohan and his team to leave.

By having them around, there might be something interesting which would happen.

The best way to negotiate was to keep the price up.

She might have the honor to witness the decades-long rivalry between the two associations.

"Master Hoo, please take your seat." Janet invited Frandick and others to their seats.

"Janet, let me be honest with you. These ten pieces of ancient prescription will have a great contribution to the whole cause of traditional medicine. You are a businesswoman. Therefore, I will not beat around the bush. How much will you sell it for?" Frandick was straightforward, unlike the scheming Yohan.

Janet appreciated Frandick's honesty.

However, she felt conflicted at the same time.

She didn't dare to play tricks on someone so respectable like Frandick.

What price should she give?

She was struggling and suddenly thought of William's tips!

Yes!

There was one last tip!

William must have foreseen this already...

That she would need one last tip from him!

Was he not the trickiest, the most invincibly scheming person in the universe?

Of course, Janet would not just spit out a number and offend Frandick!

She opened the last pouch.

As expected, she saw a line written on it.

"It was now my turn."

The words proved that William was finally going to reappear!

Janet suddenly relaxed.

She immediately took out her phone and called William.

Frandick, Yohan, and the others were at a loss. They didn't know what Janet meant by making a call.

The phone rang for a while before it was connected.

A relaxing voice could be heard over the call.

"Finally, is it the end? You have worked hard these past few days." William said nonchalantly.

Janet was initially shocked by William.

Upon hearing his voice, all the admiration she had for him was shattered.

Janet snapped, "Now I can finally take a rest. Talk to them yourself. On one side is the chairman of the Qena City Pharmaceutical Association, Frandick, and on the other is Yohan and his team from the Medical Association. Master Hoo is a good man."

Janet added the last sentence wisely, just to remind William euphemistically that all his tactics were used on Yohan and others the previous days.

But how could William not know?

Before the game, he had already looked at the situation and managed to grasp his plot.

Janet turned on the speaker and said to everyone, "Gentlemen, you can talk to my boss directly."

When Yohan heard this, a hint of ruthlessness flashed in his eyes!

As expected...

There was someone behind Janet!

He finally revealed himself!

Yohan actually wanted to see how great this brat who defeated him was.

However, it made him even more morose when he learned the truth.

Frandick smiled kindly. "It turns out that it is your boss who has laid out such an interesting plan. Anyway, my goal is to obtain the ancient prescriptions. I don't mind dealing with anyone."

"Hello everyone, I kind of know everything. Let's officially start the negotiation," William said lightly over the call.

This indifferent tone gave Yohan a strange feeling. It was like the person on the call had no empathy at all.

It was as though the previous shocking strategies of his were just a piece of cake and not worth mentioning to him.

"Let's start with the Pharmaceutical Association. You have already paid 1.1 billion, how much do you have? Four hundred million?" William asked suddenly.

Yohan was stunned as his team let out a soft scream.

"Oh? Did I guess it right? With only four hundred million, I can only tell you that you are out," William added.

Yohan's heart went completely cold. These idiots! Just how wise was the person on the call?

Chapter 243

William was clearly testing Yohan!

With that, William had successfully revealed all that the Medical Association had left!

"I suggest that you go back and think about how to explain to the people at the top. Find a more appropriate reason," William continued.

Yohan blushed with anger.

William was clearly looking down on the Medical Association!

Another four hundred million?!

D*mn!

If Lunanica Media were to cooperate with Frandick, the Medical Association would definitely make him atone for his mistake!

The Medical Association and the Pharmaceutical Association were at odds and had been competing with each other for decades.

The reason for the Medical Association to be so decisive and to invest so much money this time was so they could obtain the ten ancient prescriptions to suppress the Pharmaceutical Association.

But if the ancient prescriptions fell into the hands of the Pharmaceutical Association, what would be the consequences?

It would be unthinkable!

The Medical Association was an association for doctors.

As for the Pharmaceutical Association, it was not for doctors but for medical research.

The Pharmaceutical Association itself was specialized in researching various drugs and prescriptions.

They were more professional than the Medical Association and could harness the full potential of these ten ancient prescriptions.

Besides, there was a more dire consequence.

Frاندick said that one of the ten ancient prescriptions could extend his life.

The main reason he had retired was because of his deteriorating health.

If he could recover from his illness, given his reputation in the Pharmaceutical Association, he would never retire!

The Pharmaceutical Association would continue under the helm of Frاندick!

If that was the case, the Medical Association would be under the command of the Pharmaceutical Association forever!

Yohan would have to bear all these consequences should he fail to secure the prescriptions!

No way! The ten prescriptions must not fall into the hands of the Pharmaceutical Association!

Four hundred million!

If the four hundred million was not used to buy these prescriptions, what could it be used for?

Yohan was scratching his head frantically.

And after a while, he made a decision that might seem extremely ridiculous to others!

"Allow me to address you as Mr. Lunanica. You are right. We have only four hundred million left. But what do you say if I use these four hundred million yuan to make another deal with you?"

Yohan asked viciously.

Everyone in the room was taken aback.

Janet looked at Yohan as if he was a lunatic.

His teammates were even more horrified and quickly stopped him, "Yohan! Are you crazy? We have caused irreparable losses! Time to stop!"

Even Frandick was surprised at Yohan's confidence in continuing with the negotiation.

"Oh? Interesting. I'm all ears." William chuckled.

"I'll pay you four hundred million if you agree not to sell the ten prescriptions to anyone from the Pharmaceutical Association! As long as you agree to it, you will receive the money now!" Yohan exclaimed hysterically.

The room fell into silence in an instant.

Janet looked at Yohan with shock!

Good heavens!

He was really a cunning fox!

What a very smart move!

Yohan's proposition was destructive to both associations!

He didn't mind spending the four hundred million yuan just to stop Lunanica Media from cooperating with the Pharmaceutical Association.

Nonetheless, Yohan was really bold.

But after careful analysis, it was a hell of a move!

As long as Lunanica agreed to this condition, it would make four hundred million!

Since these ten ancient prescriptions were such a treasure, they had no worries about selling them.

Anyone who had enough money would come queueing up to buy the prescriptions.

Regardless, they were making a killer profit!

Frاندick's face sank on the spot. "Yohan! How dare you!"

Yohan guffawed loudly. "Haha! If I can vanquish you at this last moment, I might be able to save my own a*s! I'll take that bet!"

Over the call, William's voice remained calm. "Oh? How sure are you that I will agree with your proposition?"

Yohan simpered and answered, "I am! Because judging from your previous plots, you are a pure businessman. It is only natural for businessmen to go after profits. It's impossible to reject my offer since you do not even need to spend a penny."

Janet also nodded silently in agreement.

William was indeed a ruthless businessman.

There was only money in his eyes.

William chortled over the call. "Really? Then I am sorry that I will have to disappoint you. Mr. Chung, please go back."

"What!" Yohan could hardly believe what he heard.

William had actually rejected his offer!

Frandick felt as if he got a boost of energy and exclaimed excitedly, "Mr. Lunanica is indeed a wise man!"

William sighed and said, "I have heard about the dispute between the two associations. In my opinion, it is very ridiculous. There is only one reason for my refusal. This is because only the Pharmaceutical Association is able to maximize the magical effects of the ancient prescriptions to benefit the common people."

Yohan was in a daze listening to what William said!

William had been planning to sell the prescriptions to the Pharmaceutical Association from the beginning!

Yohan wasn't going to believe the nonsense reason William gave!

Magical effects of the ancient prescriptions? To benefit the common people?

What the f*ck!

Janet was doubtful too; she could not tell if William was being genuinely kind.

Frاندick praised, "Mr. Lunanica is indeed a great, empathetic man! Such a kind soul! I'm impressed."

Janet cursed secretly, if that brat had a kind soul, he should offer the prescriptions for free.

What a hypocrite!

Yohan and the team, seeing that William could no longer be persuaded, let out a sigh and left the building frustrated. Curses could be heard reverberating from the corridor as they left.

The negotiation continued.

Frاندick pondered for a moment and said to William, "Mr. Lunanica, I shouldn't lie to you as you are such a righteous man. These ten prescriptions are infinitely useful. If you appraise them, they are worth more than one billion yuan. I'd buy it in bulk for 1.2 billion yuan."

Janet jumped up in that instant!

D*mn!

1.2 billion?!

Things were getting more interesting!

If these prescriptions were sold off, Lunanica Media would have made a full 2.3 billion yuan!

Crazy!

This money came too easily!

William was really a genius doctor. How could he get such a rare prescription? Without him, they would never make so much money!

Just as Janet was still consumed by her own excitement, William dampened her spirit instantly when he replied, "1.2 billion is a bit too much. How about 1 billion? Let's round it off."

Janet was so incensed that she almost yelled at him!

D*mn! Why was he being so kind and generous at this f*cking moment?!

He had just given away two hundred million!

He probably had no idea about how much two hundred million yuan worth!

A family could live without worries for a lifetime!

Obviously, he didn't know how to cherish the money since it came too easily.

What a jerk!

D*mn!

Frandick was also confused, not knowing what William was thinking.

William's suggestion made him feel uneasy. After all, he had witnessed all William's previous plots.

He was afraid that he would fall into William's trap.

But William's subsequent statement made his eyes widen in surprise at once.

"I'd want to make another proposition with you using the remaining two hundred million yuan," William added.

Frandick asked instinctively, "What is it?"

@vamp20w0111

Chapter 244

Janet was on all ears.

Proposition?

What kind of proposition?

What tricks was this guy trying to play?

William smiled and said over the call, "Pick up the phone and I will tell you."

Frاندick picked Janet's phone up with a puzzled look.

He could hear William speaking on the other side.

He frowned upon hearing what William said.

Why did William make such a proposition?

Two hundred million was definitely overpriced for what he wanted.

It was a huge gain for the Pharmaceutical Association.

Janet meanwhile was cursing William inwardly.

B*stard!

What was it that she couldn't listen along too?

What tricks was he trying to play behind her back again?

Was there another plot?

D*mn!

For heaven's sake!

"Okay, I promise you. By the way, I still owe you a favor," Frandick said in a deep voice.

He then turned on the speaker mode.

Frandick took a peep at the phone, wanting to know the name of the person.

His face went black after he took a glance.

What kind of name was that?

Moron?

Janet actually saved this amazing man's contact under the name of moron?

If this person was a moron, then there would be nobody else on earth who dared to call themselves as human!

Frandick couldn't help but glance at Janet strangely.

Janet blushed, knowing that the name was really inappropriate.

But who could blame her?

The previous acts and moves demonstrated by William actually showed that he was indeed a moron.

Who could have imagined that the sloppy moves William took turned out to be so magical?

"I can sign the agreement on the spot and the money will be transferred in three days. How about that?" Frandick asked.

"No problem. However, it will be the annual meeting of the Pharmaceutical Association three days later, right?" William asked suddenly.

Frandick was taken aback and replied, "Yes."

He was alerted by William's words.

In the upcoming annual meeting, Frandick had to give up the position of chairman due to his progressively worsening health.

However, he had the ancient prescriptions that could extend his life. Would it not right for him to continue holding the position for another five years?

At the thought of it, Frandick was overjoyed.

It was not because he was obsessed with power.

But he was worried about Bernard!

Bernard was a man with poor conduct and evil thoughts.

Moreover, Frandick suspected that Bernard had already hooked up with people from the Medical Association.

If the position of Chairman fell into Bernard's hands, the Pharmaceutical Association would be doomed.

Therefore, Frandick intended to continue to lead the Pharmaceutical Association until someone whom he found he could relinquish his position appeared.

Frاندick came to his senses when he heard William speak.

"Well, if you trust me, I will keep the ancient prescriptions for the time being. I will personally attend your annual meeting three days later and deliver to you the ancient prescriptions."

Frاندick pondered for a while and nodded. "Okay, I am not afraid of you to flake out on your promise since you are such a virtuous man. I'll see you in three days."

As Frاندick was talking, Janet had already had her staff member bringing in an agreement.

As soon as the people left, Janet was overwhelmed by exhaustion.

She collapsed on the chair.

It finally ended.

It was finally over.

Janet felt like it had been a hellish experience for the past few days.

There was so much ups and downs; it was a hell of a roller-coaster ride.

She could breathe a sigh of relief, looking at things were finally over.

They won!

They won triumphantly!

Lunatica Media was not dead!

Lunatica Media had come back to life!

"Are you still there?" William's voice suddenly rang out from the phone, giving Janet a shock.

She glanced at the phone with morose. "Hey! I've taken care of everything for you. Are you satisfied now?"

"Well, it is acceptable." William gave her a compliment.

She was confused, feeling uncertain. "Acceptable? I have worked so hard that almost all my brain cells are dead. I deserve more than this!"

Janet was positively furious!

"If you are smart enough, you should've seen through the whole game since the beginning, instead of me reminding you through the tips," William said casually.

Janet slapped her palm on the table and roared, "You are a b*stard and a moron! Don't expect me to guess what a b*stard thinks!"

"Your irregular menstruations definitely need to be treated. Forget it, I will treat you some day. Please take a few minutes to rest, then call for a management meeting," William instructed indifferently.

Janet wanted to chuck her phone to the ground. "You are the one having irregular menstruation! Even if I do have one, it's all because of you!"

William just paused and not said a single word.

Janet slapped on the table twice angrily, her hands turned red.

"What management meeting did you just say? Is it necessary?" Janet couldn't help but ask. After all, she was a rational, responsible person.

"Well, it is necessary. The game is not over yet," William answered.

"What is going to happen next? Isn't it all over?" Janet was too lazy to use her brain at that moment.

Anyway, she couldn't guess what this little b*stard was thinking.

"Don't you know we have some internal affairs to be dealt with before we can collaborate with people outside? I will let you relax as I take care of it myself. Please send a notice about the meeting in half an hour. I am leaving now to go over to the company. Oh, by the way, please call Darren, Linda, and Laura to join in too," William said.

A chill ran down Janet's spine at once.

Some internal affairs to be dealt with? Before they could collaborate with people outside?

This brat was about to make a comeback; he was going to weed out those who stabbed his back!

D*mn!

She should have understood long ago that the brat's plan was a flawless one. If he didn't get rid of the rebels, how could he be at ease!

William explained a few more things over the call.

Janet accepted all his instructions and hung up angrily.

She could almost feel smoke was coming out from her head, fuming.

How many evil things did she do in her past life that she had to tolerate with such an irritating b*stard?

The whole company went into chaos when Janet sent out the notice about the meeting.

Darren and Linda happened to be together. When they received the meeting notice, they were excited!

It was a management meeting!

They were usually not qualified to participate in such an important meeting!

Yet, they were actually notified to attend the meeting!

What did it mean?

It showed that the company was going to formally introduce them to the management team! A bright future was waiting ahead of them!

Darren and Linda were consumed by excitement, but they didn't even know what was actually going to happen to them.

They thought the company was dying.

They quickly headed to the company. When they reached the company's entrance, Darren saw a person walking toward him.

Mockery flashed across Darren's eyes at once.

"Oh, isn't this the former director of our company? Why? Do you feel it was unfair so you're coming back for a petition?"

@vamp20w0v

Chapter 245

Darren was talking to William.

William smiled when he saw Darren and Linda.
"Huh, what a small world."

It went without mentioning Darren's mood was badly affected when he saw William.

He had finally avenged himself for the humiliation that William caused him previously.

He was the final winner!

And for this b*stard William, not only he was ousted, but he also caused the company to lose a large sum of money!

How dared he show up in front of him again? How arrogant!

"What is our former director doing here?" Darren deliberately emphasized the words 'former director'.

"Oh, I've come to clean up some rubbish," William said casually.

In his eyes, the two people in front of him were but rubbish.

After Darren and Linda listened to what he said, they guffawed loudly, "Hahaha, cleaning up rubbish? Have you been hired by Mr. Zhang to be a cleaner? Mr. Zhang is indeed creative!"

Linda stared at William and said contemptuously, "You acted with much authority and pride in front of me previously. And now the two of us are going to attend the management meeting shortly. As for you, you only deserve to be a cleaner of Lunanica Media. Interesting!"

William shook his head and entered the building.

Just when he passed by Darren, he whispered to him, "Would you like me to tell you another secret? Do you know who invited you to attend the management meeting? It was me."

William entered the building as soon he made that statement.

Darren and Linda looked at each other and chortled again. "This guy must be daydreaming, thinking that he was still the director. How pathetic. I feel sympathetic for him. Has he become delusional? I guess he has failed to accept the reality."

The two of them tittered and followed William into the building while making jokes about William along the way.

The elevator took them straight to the meeting room.

When they got out of the elevator, another person appeared.

Linda couldn't help but snort coldly when she saw that person, Laura.

She looked exceptionally lone while standing in front of them.

Laura, who used to be so invincible, had lost a lot of weight.

She was sylphlike, her cheeks sunk in slightly, with an unspeakable aura surrounding her.

Linda hated Laura immensely.

"Laura, you seem to have lost a lot of weight. Have you not been able to sleep well lately? Oh, yes, the scandal between you and this rubbish has been spread all over the internet. How can you sleep well?" Linda mocked enigmatically.

Laura ignored Linda, her eyes fixed at William, "What are you doing back here?"

William smiled at Laura and replied softly, "I'm here to give you an explanation."

Linda tittered again after hearing that. "What a pair of shameless couples! It's entirely your fault that you end up like this! It's unbelievable that you two are still in love. Do you want me to take a photo of you and post it on the Internet?"

Laura glanced at Linda in disgust.

She already knew that the photo that brought her so much agony was taken secretly by Linda.

"You can't blame me. I have reminded you before that I'll never forget your ruthlessness. You deserve it; you'll be in the cold storage! I am joining the management meeting now. Darren, let's go. I'm afraid that I'll get eyesores after looking at these presumptuous couples." Linda vigorously pulled Darren toward the meeting room.

Laura and William stood facing each other, both silent.

"It must've been hard for you for the past few days," William voiced.

Laura shook her head. "You better leave. You will be ridiculed by everyone if you appear in the company now."

William patted her shoulder. "Let's go to the meeting room."

"You? Are you going to the meeting too?" Laura was taken aback.

William didn't answer her. He continued to go ahead.

As the door was opened, there were more than twenty pairs of eyes staring at them.

Darren and Linda were already seated.

Although they were sitting at the back, they still looked very proud, obviously elated.

But when they saw William, Darren stood up and scowled. "Goodness! Why are you here? Get out now! You're here as a cleaner! I can't believe that you have the nerve coming in here!"

Linda also stood up and uttered sarcastically, "Do you still fail to see your rightful position?"

The audience cast doubtful and angry eyes on William.

However, there were two people in the room who remained indifferent.

One of them was Janet.

Janet looked at Linda and Darren amusedly, thinking whether these two people had realized that the table had been turned.

Did they think that they were invited here to attend the meeting?

It was a feast of treachery.

The other person was Martin.

Martin frowned when William was striding into the room.

He began to feel uneasy.

He didn't know why William was here.

Janet's breakthrough plots continued to awe Martin; words couldn't even describe how meticulous her plan was.

However, he could sense traces of William's existence in Janet's plot.

There must be nothing good about the fact that he appeared now.

Laura also walked into the meeting room.

Everyone's eyes were glistening with derision

upon seeing her.

The audacious couple had made an appearance together.

Why would Laura taint her own image with such a useless good-for-nothing?

She must have been blinded by love. How foolish!

She must have regretted her action now that she had become infamous.

Janet sighed when she saw Laura.

She didn't like Laura very much initially.

This was because Laura was just too domineering and arrogant.

However, Janet felt pitiful when she saw Laura in that state.

All these misfortune was caused by that b*stard.

They were people of the same miserable fate.

Janet walked to Laura's side and smiled at her.

"You are here. Come sit with me."

Befuddled at Janet's kindness, Laura glanced at Janet without speaking.

Janet took Laura's hand and whispered as they walked, "I saw your performance in the movie. You are the only one whom I will call an actress. Let's make bygones be bygones."

Laura seemed to have been reminded of the humiliation and distaste that she went through for the past few days. She lowered her head, her eyes welling up with tears at once.

Laura, such an arrogant queen, had finally bowed down.

When the two were seated, Janet spoke, "Since everyone is here, let's start the meeting."

"Wait, Miss Ching, he shouldn't be standing here, right?" Darren pointed at William.

William patted his head and squealed, "Oh yes, I shouldn't be standing here."

He then sat in the main seat of the highest position in the room!

@vamp20w0111

Chapter 246

The people in the room were shocked when William took his seat!

Everyone looked at William in disbelief and was fuming.

Darren flushed with anger and hissed, "What the hell are you doing?! You really think of yourself as the director, don't you! You are just a rascal who had already been kicked out of this company! Now get out of here!"

A cacophony of curses echoed off the wall.

William after all had taken the main seat!

Only Janet could deserve to take that seat!

Janet slapped on the table and screamed, "Be quiet!"

She glanced at William angrily.

What a brat who spoke and did everything according to his whims and fancies!

He had completely ignored others' feelings!

It seemed like her hand would be crippled from all the slapping today!

Janet managed to calm down the people and then said in a cold voice, "The seat is just a formality. What can it represent? As for why he is here today,

I will give you a satisfactory explanation later.
Let's start the meeting now."

Everyone glared at William angrily.

Janet stated, "First thing first, let's talk about our gains. We have made a total of 2.1 billion yuan."

Upon listening to Janet's statement, the people went into an uproar again!

Everyone looked at Janet with shock!

They only knew that Lunanica Media made 1.1 billion yuan.

They were not involved in the rest of the negotiations.

Lunanica Media had made another one billion yuan!

When did all this happen?

How could they earn so much money in such a short period of time?!

2.1 billion yuan!

Lunanica Media would need three years to make so much revenue!

Unexpectedly, in just a few days, Janet had managed to make a revenue that surpassed all that they made in the last few years!

It was madness!

Linda and Darren looked at each other, shocked!

None of them participated in the plot and hence, knew nothing about it.

They were under the impression that Lunanica Media was precarious.

Never did they expect that Lunanica Media, which had hit the rock bottom, would make such a surprising comeback!

Their expressions were clearly plastered with shock and awe.

Lunanica Media was not falling! It was making a storming fightback!

What an opportunity for them!

They were going to make a huge profit!

Laura's body trembled and she took a glance at William.

Unbelievable!

The storm had brought about such huge profits to the company.

Unfortunately, was it at the expense of her?

She seemed to be the biggest loser in the room.

Laura's eyes lost their sparkles as she bit her lower lip silently.

"Oh no. To be precise, we need to exclude the five hundred million yuans which belong to the previous shareholders, and one hundred million compensation owed by William. In this case, it is actually 1.5 billion yuan," Janet added.

When everyone heard that, they retorted immediately, "Miss Ching! This is the company's money! Why should the company pay one hundred million compensation for him? Why is our company paying for him? This is unacceptable!"

Everyone pointed their fingers at William.

Janet said in jest, "I will explain this later."

There was another thought that came to the mind of shareholders at that moment.

Even if the company made 1.5 billion yuan, what did it have to do with everyone present in the room?

They had sold off all their shares.

At the thought of it, their eyes turned red. A few stared at Martin viciously!

One of them stated, "Miss Ching, we were misled previously and hence, sold off our shares to the company. We were instigated by a traitor. We need to invalidate the previous agreement and regain our shareholding."

Everyone nodded in agreement.

However, Janet couldn't help but sneer.

Such a bunch of ungrateful brats!

When the company seemed to collapse, these lots insisted on selling off their shares.

They even poured scorns and slanders on the company!

How shameless!

They requested her to return their shares since the company managed to turn things around?

How disgusting!

Had it not been for William's magical plan, Lunanica Media would have been wiped out by the lots of these rebellious thieves.

"You guys want to buy back the shares? Sure! Buy them back at ten times the price." As if accustomed to calling for exorbitant prices, Janet's reply frightened everyone at the scene.

Her lips spread across her face into a sly smile.

She gave William a sheepish look.

She was reminded of this b*stard's previous tips: slaughter them all.

It had made her get used to taking huge risks and making bold moves.

The shareholders were in rage.

But what could they do?

It was them who ditched the company at first.

Moreover, they had signed agreements; none of them was fabricated.

They had nothing to say.

At that moment, Martin interjected, "Miss Ching, show some mercy. The people here are the pillars of strength for the company. A few of them are founders who have served us from the very beginning. Don't you think you're being too ruthless?"

He paused for a while and continued in a threatening tone, "If everyone in the company resigns, it will be a huge loss for the company."

Clenching his teeth, Martin was definitely aggrieved.

Not only had he lost his shares, but he had also become the number one enemy to everyone.

All these shareholders were definitely not on the same boat as him at that moment.

If he didn't step forward and help them, his power in the company would completely vanish.

When the other shareholders heard Martin's words, they immediately supported him.

All of a sudden, the room was in an uproar again.

They demanded Janet to reinstate their shareholdings.

Janet frowned.

It was something that she didn't expect.

As Martin said, although these people were selfish, many were still the founders of the company.

It would taint the company's image if the public learned what happened.

Janet couldn't help but look at William and asked, "What do you think?"

As they saw Janet asking for William's opinion, their clamor became louder.

"Miss Ching, why would you ask him for such an important matter? He has already been dismissed!" a man in his fifties yelled.

"You are now the director of our company; are you trying to shirk your responsibility?"

Darren quickly chimed in, "Miss Ching, he is a useless person. He is not even qualified to sit here, let alone asking for his opinion!" He was going to grasp this opportunity to win the shareholders' favor.

It was at that moment that William chuckled.

It only took William's one sentence to make everyone silent!

"Go and draft twenty resignation documents now!"

Everyone fumed when they heard his words.

This b*stard wanted to expel them from the company!

He was but a good-for-nothing!

Janet was also shocked by William.

The expulsion would bring the company a huge impact.

It was insane!

Yet, she didn't have a choice. Or did she?

Irate, Janet couldn't help but slap on the table again!

"Shout for all you want but aren't you wondering at all why he's here?!"

Janet rose from his seat. "Think what right he has to be here!"

She shook her head. "Alright, I'll give you an explanation now!"

"He is indeed no longer the director of the company, but he is now..."

She paused for a while and announced, "The biggest shareholder of Lunanica Media!"

She raised a document in her hand. "He owns 90% shareholding in the company!"
