

Medical Genius's Unspeakable Marriage Chapter 398

Travis finally started to panic. Kneeling on the ground, he said in a trembling voice, "Master Newman, I-I've made a grave mistake.

Please forgive me this once; just this once! You can treat me like a dog, but let me go. I-I will never dare to step into Eastcliff ever again! Master Newman, it's not worth it to become enemies with the Hughes family on my account..."

Billy replied with a cold expression, "If I don't kill you today, don't you think that others would dare to cause me trouble in future as well? Travis, you've sentenced yourself to death from the moment you captured Crystal!"

Upon saying that, Billy waved his hand and a few men instantly dragged Travis away. He screamed and pleaded for mercy but nobody paid any attention to him. Seeing this, Travis' subordinates shivered in fear, their faces pale. Nobody dared to say a single word the whole time.

Billy glanced at them and said, "Break their arms and legs, then throw them out of Eastcliff! Go back and tell the Hughes family that from now on, no one is allowed to step foot in Eastcliff.

Otherwise, I'll pay a visit to the Hughes family residence myself!" With that, Billy spun and left. Travis's subordinates immediately wailed and begged for mercy, but everyone ignored them.

It was later that the arms and legs of these men were broken, rendering them handicapped. After everything was said and done, Billy's men left. Meanwhile, Annie and the others were still curled up in the corner inside the factory but no one paid any attention to them.

Annie and the rest were trembling with fright. After all, they had witnessed Travis' death with their own eyes and saw those men from the Hughes family become handicapped.

They finally came to their senses on how ridiculous their once arrogant and domineering actions were in front of big shots.

Meanwhile, Matthew was standing outside the factory. He wasn't there when Billy killed Travis earlier. This was something that Billy had made sure of. His thoughts were simple: since he killed Travis, this would be between him and the Hughes family. Matthew wasn't there so he had nothing to do with this.

Even if the Hughes family wanted to seek revenge, they would look for Billy instead of Matthew. In short, Billy was protecting Matthew so that the Hughes family wouldn't confront Matthew.

Billy asked Matthew to get in the car and he passed a box to Matthew. "Mr. Larson, this is the Thousand-Year Snow Lotus that you asked for. I also have the Fruit of Mandala with me. When can you save my daughter?"

Matthew immediately opened the box and saw the Thousand-Year Snow Lotus nestled within. Almost instantly, a refreshing lotus aroma filled the car, and Matthew was overjoyed. After all, the medical properties of the Thousand-Year Snow Lotus were strong enough to cure his sister's illness.

"Mr. Newman, follow the instructions I gave you and leave the fruit of Mandala for three days. Three days from now, I'll personally go and treat Miss Newman!" Matthew replied.

Billy was ecstatic to hear this. "Thank you, Mr. Larson!"

Matthew didn't go home even after he received the Thousand-Year Snow Lotus. Truth be told, even Sasha went to stay in the office, for she couldn't stand the pressure from her parents. Up until the minute that Matthew left, James and Helen kept hounding Matthew to ask Stanley for money.

After the whole fiasco, Matthew returned to Lakeside Garden alone. As soon as he arrived at the gates, he saw Joseph and Crystal standing at the entrance. Joseph looked exhausted while Crystal's eyes were red and swollen.

As soon as Joseph saw Matthew, he let out a sigh of relief and rushed over to greet him. "Mr. Larson, you're back! You're okay. That's great!"

Earlier, as soon as Joseph and Crystal left the factory, they were sent away by Billy's men, which was why Joseph didn't know what happened afterward.