

My Dreamy Old Husband

Chapter 591

Linus beckoned Michael to remain silent. While he was talking to Phantom Wolf's leader, Linus tapped the robot's screen lightly and said, "Why are you leaving all of a sudden? Didn't you say that you'd wait until the wounds on your face recover? The wounds on your face are not suitable for flying at such a high altitude."

That tone of voice seemed so natural, and it looked as though they did have a good relationship; Linus was indeed the Phantom Wolf's sponsor!

Hot, burning anger burned from inside out as Michael balled his fingers into a fist and grinded his teeth. He could even taste the metallic taste of blood in his mouth.

Suddenly, his phone vibrated. He looked down and saw that Linus had sent him coordinates that were constantly moving.

While Linus was talking to Phantom Wolf, he gave Michael a pointed look.

That was Phantom Wolf's current coordinates!

Michael looked at Linus with a complex expression, but he had no time to spare for him. After sending the coordinates to everyone, he rushed into the car and led the rest of his men toward Phantom Wolf's location.

The coordinates showed that Phantom Wolf was going on the highway at full speed. Since it was late at night and there was not much traffic, they managed to speed through without any obstacles.

Their destination was clear; they were heading to Linus's private airport at the outskirts, and Linus's private jet was waiting for them.

If the Phantom Wolf managed to take Sophia on that plane, he would never be able to find her ever again!

In the car, Michael's phone never stopped ringing.

Stanley called and said, "My brother and Uncle Joel have been dispatched, Uncle Michael. The special forces are in position; once they complete the road blockade within the next 3 minutes, the combat helicopter should be able to catch up with them in 10 minutes."

Michael nodded and replied, "Make sure to protect the hostages."

Although he didn't want to alert the Fletcher Family and its troops, there was no other force with troops that could arrive at the scene as quickly as them.

Then, Gary called back, "We have captured Madam Curtis and have confirmed her as Tanya."

"Lock her up." Michael replied coldly.

A minute later, Harry called, "That robot of yours seemed quite curious about what was going on, so I took it along with me. Its needle seems quite useful right now."

At Villa No. 2, everyone was still gossiping about the conflict between Michael and Linus after the storm had passed over. They were speculating about what had happened between them.

Meanwhile, Linus had retreated back to his study. He was distracting Phantom Wolf as he tried to hack the surveillance cameras in the car. It was his own car after all, and Linus knew the car had surveillance cameras in it.

“The wounds on my face have recovered, and that batch of super medicines have sped up my recovery process compared to a regular person.”

“I see.”

Phantom Wolf hung up and cut off the conversation, but Linus had managed to hack into the surveillance cameras on the car. On his screen, Phantom Wolf was holding his phone with one hand while tightly covering the lips of a woman using his other, blocking off her voice.

Phantom Wolf released his hand on her lips as he hung up.

Sophia was lying down on the backseat of the car, still wearing the same evening gown she wore to the party. Her face was covered with panic and her make up was smeared by tears; she was defenseless. Her hands were spread out on the leather seat as her body trembled all over, but she couldn't even lift a finger.

She parted her lips feebly, but only soft whimpers were heard.

That gunshot from Stanley had caused Phantom Wolf to lose his family heirloom, and he could no longer have any form of physical intimacy. However, it didn't matter if he needed the help of tools—he still wanted Sophia for himself!

He sat on Sophia's lap, leaned down, and gently brushed his fingertips against her delicate, fear-stricken face.

“Don’t worry, I won’t hurt you—you just can’t move right now. However, you’ll definitely experience how I’m about to violate you.”

Sophia’s lips parted silently as tears poured down her face. Her chest rose and fell violently from her labored breathing. Her tongue was so numb that she could only make helpless sobbing sounds.

She was going to be violated by Phantom Wolf in such a perverted way, yet she didn’t even have the strength to fight back!

Her fear and powerlessness turned into tears as they spilled from the corner of her eyes...

The medicine that Phantom Wolf had injected into Sophia rendered her powerless, but her mind was lucid and clear; every inch of her skin became unusually sensitive and every touch was amplified. Even when Phantom Wolf came close to her and breathed gently on her skin, it was enough to give Sophia goosebumps all over.

Never did she expect Quinton to be Phantom Wolf. Along with a few other classmates, she had gone to Quinton’s house to give him their farewell gifts. However, everyone fainted and lost consciousness as soon as they stepped foot into the house.

By the time she came to her senses, she was already here.

Sophia knew that she was in a car from the occasional bumps, but she had no idea where they were going or if Michael would come in time to rescue her.

She was desperate and helpless, feeling like a leaf that could be crushed at any time by a passing boat...

He was actually Phantom Wolf! He had always been lurking around Sophia and observing her every move; he was waiting for the perfect opportunity to strike!

Linus turned off the screen as he could no longer bear to watch that scene. A gush of warm heat gushed out and condensed into tears. As he turned around, the tears splashed out from his eyes.

“I want Phantom Wolf dead, Butler!”

One second later, the robot butler replied, “The other party has gone beyond your range of control, Linus. Unable to execute the relevant commands.”

The bomb placed on Phantom Wolf was Linus’s protection amulet; it was also a kill switch for him. He could take Phantom Wolf’s life as long as he wanted to, but they were too far apart and Linus could no longer control him right now.

The news of Phantom Wolf’s appearance in Bayside City spread like a wildfire, alarming all forces in the city.

Michael’s men, the Winston Family, the military and Linus’s men all followed the coordinates. Meanwhile, Sean also brought men from the Mitchell Family. Phantom Wolf had killed 10 men from the Mitchell Family last time, so Sean wanted to avenge their deaths.

While these vehicles drove toward the private airport outside the city, Sophia’s gown had already been taken off in the car, leaving her only with a thin layer of base clothing; she was completely useless against Phantom Wolf. She looked like a dumpling wrapped in a thin layer, utterly defenseless and powerless.

Phantom Wolf was not in a hurry to devour her. Having left in a hurry earlier, he did not bring along any lubricant. If he were to go overboard this time round, it would probably be his only time having her.

He wanted to slowly enjoy the process of swallowing his prey and watching her cry helplessly beneath him; it filled him with a sense of accomplishment.