

My Dreamy Old Husband

Chapter 656

Harry immediately looked at the surveillance tape—sure enough, there were a handful of people from the West Family blocking the entrance to Harry’s house. Sarah’s father, Mr. West, and her stepmother, Judy Edwards, stood in front of the house—he held a feather duster with a furious expression while she pretended to sob. In addition, Sarah’s brother, sister-in-law, uncles and aunts were present as well.

Mr. West thought that Sarah was staying on her own because of her busy work schedule, but never expected her to be living with someone from the underworld.

He was now well-prepared with ropes to bring her home. I also want to take a good look at who this leader of the underworld is!

When Sarah looked at the surveillance tape, she freaked out when she saw her father in front of the door with a feather duster in his hand. Holding the bunny tail of Harry’s cute pink bunny costume, she asked fearfully, “What should we do, Old Wolf?”

Harry consoled, “Calm down. Let’s lure him in and talk it out with him.”

However, Michael frowned while looking at Harry’s messy house. For two people who did not know how to manage their lives to stay together, it only brought disaster to them.

If Michael was Sarah’s father, he would have beaten Harry to death with the feather duster after seeing his daughter eating cup noodles all day long.

“Let’s calm down and tidy the entire place while changing the dishes.” Michael pointed at Harry’s striking costume. “Change your costume too, you indecent old fellow.”

...

After waiting for what seemed like an eternity, Mr. West's face darkened when the guards still refused to allow him in. His group of family members behind him started to give snide remarks.

One of the women in heavy makeup led the conversation. "Oh dear, why aren't they opening the gates? Is it because Sarah is doing something unspeakable?"

The group of women started to gossip among themselves. "How shameless! She has even locked her own father outside the gates!"

"What's wrong with Sarah? How can she be associated with those from the underworld?"

"She's a good child, but the older she becomes, the more useless she is. She's a disgrace to the West Family!"

"The underworld is merely a bunch of gangsters who collect protection fees, especially when anyone can call themselves a member."

"I heard that she suddenly took a few million from the family a while ago, supposedly to start her own business. Hmmph, I wonder what business she's doing!"

"I bet she's using the money to fool around with the gangsters!"

The more they discussed, the harsher the criticisms became and Mr. West was unable to retain his dignity any longer.

As a businessman himself, he had his fair share of dealing with people from the underworld. He even had a few friends—both from the underworld and from the lawful side. Many people of the underworld were also rather loyal to him, so he could close eye one if his future son-in-law was a decent man. As long as Harry was able to handle most scenarios, everything was doable.

However, Mr. West never expected the entire incident to be known by everyone in both the West Family and Judy's family. Since both families gossiped about Sarah's boyfriend who was allegedly from the underworld, Mr. West could not risk his pride being made fun of. I need to take a good look at him today! I'll see whether he is really someone prominent from the underworld or merely a gangster. If he's the latter, I'll definitely bundle Sarah up and kidnap her home if I have to!

A few brothers from the West Family had started their business in the retail industry and learned from the Mitchell Family to stay together. It was obvious that nothing could be hidden from anyone when many people lived together under one roof. As a result, the incident surrounding Sarah was known by every member of the household.

Her stepmother, Judy, wiped her fake tears away. "It's all my fault. If I cared more for Sarah, maybe she wouldn't be that rebellious."

The woman with thick makeup on her face next to Judy quickly added, "Judy, don't be sad. This already happened when you married Peter, so let's think of possible solutions to bring Sarah home!"

She was none other than Judy's sister, Victoria Edwards.

Both sisters agreed with each other, making themselves look kind. However, deep down in their hearts, they couldn't wait for Sarah to be estranged from her father. The worse their estrangement is, the better.

Back then, when Mr. West succeeded in his business, he divorced his first wife and married someone from the Edwards Family—Judy Edwards.

In the second year of their marriage, Judy gave birth to a daughter. With that, problems surfaced—company stocks were limited and the children from Mr. West's first wife all received their fair share of it, but not his second wife's daughter. Of course Judy would have needed to plan something beneficial for her daughter.

Sarah's elder brother was now Mr. West's capable assistant, so Judy could not afford to offend the young man for the time being. However, she could definitely cause problems for Sarah.

Hence, over the years, she had sowed discord among Sarah and her father. To make matters worse, Sarah also became more rebellious—during the new year, she went to another man's house to spend the festivities with him. She hadn't even returned home recently and started a relationship with a gangster instead.

*He's from the underworld? My ss! He's merely a gangster. People nowadays have the courage to claim that they are part of the underworld. Based on what Sarah has achieved, the best person whom she looked for ends up to be a good-for-nothing gangster!

The entire West Family was aware of what Sarah did—the high and mighty young lady of the West Family was actually in a relationship with a good-for-nothing!

*Let's see how Mr. West is going to defend her this time! If only he's able to chase that b*tch from the family and take her shares away, it'll be for the best!*

Both Victoria and Judy had their own schemes in their minds, but the former was rather confused when she saw the area. What kind of a good-for-nothing will stay at such a strategic spot? It's The Imperial after all!

Rumors had it that those who lived in the neighborhood descended from the aristocrats. The head of the Edwards Clan—Jordan Edwards—originally thought of purchasing a house in The Imperial, but failed to do so. No matter what, Sarah is still in love with a gangster. It doesn't matter how well his life is; he is still a gangster.

To them, Sarah was always a rebellious kid—she never maintained a proper job, didn't help out in their family business and even after she enrolled into Bayside University, she never worked hard in her studies. What she did instead was isolate herself in her room with her computer while she drew.

*Be an artist? Will toying around with her computer pay her bills? Sure enough, when one is wealthy enough, they won't appreciate what they have. No one in the West Family is not involved with anything associated with the arts. I don't believe that she can f*cking draw! On top of that, after having drawn for many years, she hasn't even made a name for herself. Other artists often appear on magazine covers and the news, but I haven't seen her anywhere!*

Those folks in the West Family even tried to ask around the circle of artists in Bayside City, but Sarah was never a part of them. Hence, to the West Family, she was merely a good-for-nothing herself and only befitting for them to think that they thought she was entangled with a gangster. She has embarrassed the entire West Family!

Just as everyone was still in the midst of their discussion, the security finally announced, "The owner of Villa No. 4 welcomes everyone."

With that, the door was opened. They finally opened the door!

As they chatted among themselves, they entered the compound with Mr. West leading the way, holding a feather duster in his hand.

Sarah's elder brother was slightly nervous as he tried to calm his father. "Dad, calm down and put the feather duster down first. Don't give Sarah a hard time. After all, this is the first time that you're visiting her boyfriend's place."

Victoria immediately added, "That's right. Even though he is a good-for-nothing gangster, he's someone whom Sarah loves. We have to behave ourselves and not embarrass him."

Judy also chimed in. "Dear, this is our first time here. We shouldn't give them a long face."

Initially, when Mr. West heard his son's advice, he was not going to make a scene since it was his first time meeting Harry. However, after hearing Victoria and Julia's comments, he suddenly remembered that his daughter had fallen heads over heels for a gangster. I have to knock some sense into her today!

Hence, the group of people stormed into Villa No. 4.