

The Return of the God of War [The Protector] Chapter 926

Chapter 926 Breaking The Rules

When Emma and Zoey heard that Erwin wanted them killed, both of them panicked.

"Please spare my son, Mr. Braus. I'd never said that I wanted to leave Margo City.

Heck, I wouldn't even leave this courtyard!" begged Emma after kneeling before the man.

"Mom, what are you doing?"

Levi quickly helped his mother up.

"What if he spreads the information that you're here or goes to the Garrisons? I can't allow that to happen. My father would never allow it! Killing them is the only way to avoid complications," insisted Erwin.

"Kill me if you have to, but please let my son live!"

Emma stood determinedly before her three guests.

"You've broken the rules, Emma. They'll have to die."

With a wave of his hand, dozens of Erwin's men rushed inside with shiny daggers in their hands.

"Close your eyes, Mom. You too, Zoey," instructed Levi.

The two women did as they were told, and the frightening noises that followed only made them more afraid to open their eyes.

After a while, silence fell upon the scene. Afraid that something had happened to Levi, the two finally opened their eyes, only to see the other men lying motionlessly on the ground.

Staring at the unscathed Levi, Erwin was dumbfounded.

The man could not believe his eyes when he witnessed Levi crushing his men effortlessly. How can someone who had grown up an orphan be this powerful?

“Tell The King of Margo City that I’ll be waiting for him here. He kept my mother here for nearly thirty years, didn’t he?”

I want him to watch as I walk away with her,” commanded Levi calmly.

“What?”

Erwin was stupefied by how arrogant Levi was.

Why would he want to do it in front of my father, The King of Margo City?

Levi glanced at the tombstone. “This is what you’ve used to keep my mother here for more than twenty years. I’m going to destroy it today.”

Crack!

Levi broke the tombstone into pieces with a strong kick while Erwin and Emma watched on with widened eyes.

It had been almost thirty years since the Garrisons had erected the tombstone there, and it was finally destroyed that day.

Its destruction was a challenge to the Garrisons and the rules that they had set for the past few decades.

Erwin was so horrified that he quickly took off to find The King of Margo City.

“We’re in trouble now, Levi! The Garrisons will never let us get away with destroying the tombstone,” stated Emma.

The Return of the God of War [The Protector]

Chapter 927

Chapter 927 The Ancient Family Of Erudia

"It's simple, Mom. Nobody will erect a tombstone for me while I'm alive. Anyone who tries to do so will die," responded Levi with a smile.

"You're too young to fully understand what you're up against, Levi. You have no idea how powerful the Garrisons are." Emma shook her head helplessly.

"Is that so? I'd like to see it for myself."

Since Phoenix was unable to gain access to their information, Levi was curious to find out.

"Did you know that the prominent families in Erudia are century-old, while the ancient ones are millennia-old? The Garrisons happened to be the most powerful family of them all, and they were known as The Head of Erudia!"

Over the years, the Garrisons had gradually hidden themselves to the point that even their identities' had become top secret. Still, those who knew anything about powerful families knew that the Garrison family was the most powerful in Erudia.

"The Joneses were considered a prominent family in South Hampton, but when compared to the Garrisons, we're nothing. Because of the inferior blood that runs in my veins, I'm not worthy of being part of the Garrison family. They refused to allow me to stay with your biological father, let alone allow you to be born," continued Emma.

"The Head of Erudia, huh? Interesting," responded Levi with a smile.

No wonder the files on the Garrisons were SSSSS-level classified. I didn't know that they were so powerful.

The corners of Levi's mouth lifted higher as he smirked.

Too bad for them, the confidentiality of my files is SSSSSS-level, a level higher than theirs. So what if they are the most powerful ancient family in Erudia? They're no match for me.

"What the most powerful ancient family says shall go. They allowed me to give birth to you, but in exchange, I was to be imprisoned here. You'd broken the rules when you'd destroyed the tombstone, and they won't take it lightly."

Emma was in despair because she knew that the Garrisons would never allow any of them to leave Margo City.

Not to mention, letting the world know that Levi was a Garrison.

They had every reason to make the four disappear from the face of the earth.

I don't mind dying, but I don't want to see my son being killed. I'd only just met him.

The thought was enough to bring Emma to tears once again.

Zoey was almost as frightened as her mother-in-law when she heard about the Garrisons.

Even the Joneses of South Hampton submit to them, so how can we hope to fight against a family that is so powerful?

They'll probably merely have to lift a finger to obliterate us.

Zoey shuddered when she thought of how superior the Garrisons were.

To her, it was like a battle between gods and mortals.

Zoey then glared at Levi before she scolded him, "Levi, you're far too impulsive! You may not care about yourself, but you've endangered your mother. Why can't we just think of another solution?"

The Return of the God of War [The Protector]

Chapter 928

Chapter 928 The One Who Imprisoned My Mother

Emma could not help but agree with Zoey because her daughter-in-law was right about her son being impulsive.

I'm happy that my son is capable, but he has to learn how to pick his fights.

"Now that the tombstone has been destroyed, it wouldn't make a difference even if I stayed, so let's get out of here before The King of Margo City arrives!" requested Emma.

"We're in no hurry, Mom," responded Levi with a smile.

"What?"

Both Emma and Zoey were stunned by Levi's response.

What is Levi thinking? He's the one who wanted me to leave with him earlier. Now that I've agreed, why are we not leaving?

"Don't worry. We will leave eventually, but I have a score to settle first," assured Levi when he noticed how confused the two seemed.

"I'll make them pay for what they'd done to you for over twenty years, so we'll wait for them here."

"The past doesn't bother me. What's important to me is your safety. Trust me, you wouldn't want to face The King of Margo City. Let's just leave!"

"Sylas, get them out of here," ordered Levi after forcing his mother and wife into the car.

Sylas then quickly drove away, leaving Levi alone.

Before long, The King of Margo City arrived with a dozen cars and several trucks, as hundreds of men stepped out of the vehicles.

As the title suggested, the man was the king of the city, and he could summon hundreds to the courtyard with a raise of his arm.

When The King of Margo City, Amos, and his son arrived, they only saw a calm-looking man.

The man, with his hands behind his back, looked as though he was waiting for them.

"Where's Emma that old swine?" shouted Amos.

"She probably took off. We just spotted a car outside," answered Erwin.

"Father, let me go after her."

"No. I have eyes all over Margo City. They won't get away," stated Amos coldly before entering the courtyard to stare at Levi. "So, you're Emma's bastard son?"

Without a hint of emotion, Levi remained silent.

"Weren't you an orphan who was abandoned to the streets? How did you find this place?"

Amos was curious as to how Levi had done it.

"Answer my father, you bastard! Are you dumb?" roared Erwin.

"You're not worth it."

The arrogant answer stunned Amos, who never expected anyone to speak to him in such a manner.

"So you're The King of Margo City? The one who'd imprisoned my mother for almost thirty years?" asked Levi.

Amos laughed out loud before replying, "That's right. I'm the one who's kept that old swine here."

The Return of the God of War [The Protector]

Chapter 929

Chapter 929 Reward For Killing Levi

"The Garrisons only wanted me to keep the old swine in Margo City. It was me who decided to imprison her in this city block, forbidding anyone from socializing with her. I also made her clean the sewers and deliberately raised the prices for the medications to torture her."

The man seemed to enjoy remembering how Emma had suffered. "You may not have seen it before, but it was amazing to watch her writhe in agony during the rainy days. I'll never forget the sight. There's only so much a person can take before they succumb to the pain."

Levi's face darkened as he clenched his fists.

"Are you even a human being? Do you have a conscience?" asked Levi coldly.

Amos laughed once more. "Calm down, boy. You should blame your mother because this is what happens to people who have offended the Garrisons. I could have treated her a lot worse, you know?"

Erwin agreed, "It's true. I only give her a casual beating once every three days and a serious one, once every five days."

"The old swine can really take a beating, can't she? She's still alive after all of these years. What a miracle!"

Listening to their conversation, Levi tried his best to hold back his tears. These heartless animals!

"Look at how upset he is. I think that he wants to kill us." "Look at how scary his face is."

The men ridiculed Levi for being angry and had a good laugh for themselves.

Levi then smiled with a murderous intent.

"I'm guessing that everyone present had a hand in bullying my mother, right?" asked Levi coldly.

"That's right. Every single one of us has hit your mother before. So what?"

Then, Amos and all his men continued to laugh.

"Good. I just needed to hear you say it because you'll all pay for hurting my mother!" promised Levi before his mouth curved into a disturbing smirk.

He had not had a good fight since he had gotten back from the front line of the warzone.

Even taking Assassin 47 was a breeze.

Today's going to be different because these people will suffer my wrath. How unfortunate for them to have met the God of War!

"Make us pay? Who do you think you are?"

"Look around. You're outnumbered!"

Once again, the men laughed as though Levi had made a fool of himself.

"I've heard that he's skilled at fighting. Let's put that to the test. Seize him!" ordered Amos as dozens of men rushed forward.

"The Garrisons will reward me for killing this boy."

Amos laughed in excitement.

The Return of the God of War [The Protector]

Chapter 930

Chapter 930 The Horrifying Side Of Levi

The King of Margo City was sure that his dozens of elites would have no problem in regard to dealing with Levi.

“Kill him!”

The men gave it their all to take Levi’s life.

Thud! Thud! Thud!

The next moment, Amos froze in terror because he had witnessed the impossible.

The men that he had sent to kill Levi were driven back as if they had been hit by a truck.

Thump! Thump! Thump!

One by one, the men fell to the ground with blood gurgling in their mouths.

Their bodies twitched and squirmed before coming to a halt.

The men merely passed out because of their broken ribs. Levi thought that the bone fractures were punishment enough for them and that there was no need to kill them.

“What?”

Amos and his remaining men were dumbfounded at the sight that lay before them.

How can he be that powerful?

“We’ve underestimated him, father. We need to send everyone over,” suggested Erwin.

“Go! All of you!”

At Amos’ command, hundreds of men broke through the courtyard walls and doors to swarm in like locusts.

“You’re vastly outnumbered! Let’s see how long it’ll take before my men tire you out.”

Amos looked at Levi and cackled.

“Let’s see how good you are.” Then, as though they were getting ready for a good show, Erwin lit some cigarettes for his father and himself before leaning casually against a car.

Due to the crowd, the two could not actually bear witness to how the battle was going, but they believed that Levi would die from exhaustion if he had not been beaten to death.

The father and son merely had to wait for the result.

A minute later, they started to notice their men backing away from the courtyard.

Peeping through a gap in the crowd, the two were surprised to see a mountain of fallen men in the courtyard.

The men were only backing away because there was hardly any space left inside.

There are people everywhere on the ground, and some are even stacked up upon others.

Levi must have defeated them all! Nevertheless, how is that possible?

The two were so horrified that they both dropped their cigarettes as they began to break into a cold sweat.

Then, they finally spotted Levi, the God of War himself.

Wherever the God of War went, people were bound to drop like flies.

Like a powerful weapon, the man could break bones just by swinging his iron fists.

The invincible God of War had no problem in defeating hundreds of Amos' men.

Horror! It's pure horror!

The situation that unfolded next was rather unbelievable.