

Life at the Top Chapter 101

“Let’s go home.”

Jasper smiled and reached out his hand.

Wendy nodded and placed her small hand into Jasper’s large hand naturally.

The two of them walked shoulder to shoulder back to the parking lot.

On the way, Wendy saw an ambulance driving into the courtyard hurriedly and asked curiously, “Why is the ambulance here?”

“Zayden’s psychological state isn’t doing too well. He got so angry with me that he needs to go to the hospital.”

Wendy covered her mouth to laugh secretly after what Jasper said.

The two of them got into the car where Wendy said suddenly, “The daughter of the businessman from Harbor City is named Anna Law, right?”

“Yeah.” Jasper drove and did not glance sideways.

“I saw what happened. She spoke up for you and that’s how you got the chance to speak to Mr. Law.”

Wendy smiled.

“I think she can’t bear to look at Zayden’s arrogant face.”

Jasper’s expression was getting more and more serious.

“Perhaps.”

Wendy looked profound.

During the auction earlier, Jasper was not weak when he was devising a plan for the battle of more than a billion dollars of funds and when facing Mr. Law, but now, there was a light sheen of sweat on his forehead.

Back at Schuler Manor, Dawson was waiting for the two of them at the door with a huge grin on his face after he got the news.

“You’ve returned victorious!”

Dawson made a joke that was hard to come by.

“Luckily, we didn’t disappoint you,” Jasper said with a smile.

Dawson looked at Jasper up and down as if this was the first time he met him.

“I knew what happened. You rascal, you can remain calm and even-tempered, orderly and coherent, and have a sense of propriety when you’re facing the Laws. You have no idea how many friends of mine were praising you when you were in that situation.”

“The Laws are no different than any others to me,” Jasper said sincerely.

“They’re just richer, but I don’t think I’m requesting them to work with me. I just gave them a better direction for collaboration. They’re smart, so naturally, they’ll make the right choice.”

“Good boy!” Dawson patted Jasper’s shoulder. “Come, I’m happy today, so let us two men have some drinks.”

On the dining table, Wendy looked helplessly at Dawson who kept clinking his glass with Jasper's. She said, "Dad, the doctor said your blood pressure is pretty high, so you can't drink too much."

"Alcohol is the essence of foodstuff, so the more I drink, the younger I'll get."

Dawson ignored his daughter's worries. He turned around to lecture Jasper, "You have to listen to the woman at home. However, you should also know when to listen to them. For example, you don't have to care about the women now."

Jasper smiled and looked at Wendy who was fuming right now. He said, "You're right. You're right."

Wendy could only change the topic when she saw the men behaving like this.

"The Hanks lost so much this time, and now they have to make a very difficult decision. Do you think they'll clench their teeth and hold onto the land development rights?"

"No," Jasper shook his head and said, "If Zayden is the head of the family, then maybe. However, his elders won't be as brainless as him."

"The best choice for the Hanks right now is to give up on the bid. It's better to give up on the cash deposit of 50 million than taking out 1.5 billion. If not, they would hurt their vigor greatly."

"However, how will the Hanks gain ground? Won't people laugh them to death? These families value their image the most," Wendy said curiously.

"Normally, they value their image, but when they're facing a matter of life and death, they'll be more understanding than anyone," Jasper smiled and said.

"That's too bad. It's just a 50 million loss," Wendy said while feeling that it was a great pity.

Dawson chuckled softly and said, "Just leave this to me."

Jasper and Wendy lifted their heads to look over. Dawson then smiled and said, "The Hanks have been so arrogant for so many years. So many people are not happy with them. Now, we finally have a chance to beat them while they're down, so how will 50 million be enough?"

Life at the Top Chapter 102

Zayden opened his eyes slowly in the hospital room.

The person he saw after he opened his eyes was his father, Sylva.

Zayden felt a heavy weight on his chest as he anxiously opened his mouth and said in a trembling voice, "Dad, that Jasper kid... We've been..."

"I know," Sylva said calmly.

"I won't resign to this!" Zayden gripped the bedsheet and said through gritted teeth.

"You've lost everything," Sylva said in an extremely disappointed voice.

"The family has decided to give up on this auction. We will surely lose the cash deposit. The city hall is furious because the auction was such a huge event and everybody's attention had been on it. However, in the end, we decided to void our bid.

"The city hall is giving us a penalty of 200 million."

"The family will never forgive me for this 200 million and the 50 million combined," Zayden said in a trembling voice.

"You had walked into his trap since the beginning."

Sylva sighed ruefully. "I didn't think that young man named Jasper would be able to move Zachary Law. This is a huge variable and is the key for the Schulers to turn the tide."

“I want to kill him!” Zayden gritted his teeth. He was so mad that his voice started to change.

“You should leave the province for now,” Sylva said flatly.

“Dad, you’re giving up on me too? Where can I go if I leave the province?” Zayden said hurriedly.

Sylva sighed and looked as if he had aged a few years. He said, “From the looks of it now, the Hanks have completely fallen into a disadvantageous position. The continuous loss has struck down hard on my prestige. When one is rising, the other is falling. Your Uncle Zach’s right of speech is growing now.”

“You’ll go to Harbor City. I still have some resources, and I’ll plan for your future. The Laws have hoodwinked the public and they have a lot of rivals in Harbor City.”

Sylva looked deeply at Zayden and said, “You’ve had lessons coming at you one after another, so I hope you can grow from them. If not, there’s nothing else I can do anymore.”

After he said that, Sylva left the room.

Zayden widened his eyes to stare at the white ceiling and growled in a voice that was laced with extreme rancor. “Jasper Laine! Just wait, just you wait!”

...

‘The Hanks Tossed Out a Grand Total Of 1.5 Billion in the Auction to Obtain the 16-Acre Land in the Southface River and the Rights to Develop the south bank as a Whole!’

‘A Change of Attitude From the Businessman From Harbor City. Leaning Toward Working With JW Real Estates!’

'The Hanks Voided Their Bid, Angering the City Hall and Causing A 50 Million Cash Deposit Deduction and a Penalty of 200 Million Dollars!'

The upper-class were all watching the drama as a series of huge news shocked the province.

There was so much news in one day and it was such a rare sight.

The twist and excitement of the story were not inferior to that of a blockbuster.

No one could expect that the initial winner would suddenly fall at the last hurdle. On the contrary, this meant JW Real Estates of the Schulers had become the key to turn the situation around.

At the same time, Jasper was sitting in Dawson's office. He was on a call with the person in charge of the auction on his future father-in-law's phone.

"Oh, Uncle Jasper, you're hilarious. It's an honor that you're willing to transfer the land development rights and land to JW Real Estates."

The name of the person in charge was also Jasper. He had the same name as Jasper and was also older than him, so in order to become closer to him, Jasper naturally addressed him as Uncle Jasper.

"Price? Oh, Uncle Jasper, you should know that I was so furious I got confused during the auction, so that's why I called out 1.2 billion. Actually, we're just a small real estate company that just started. Where will we get that money?"

"I genuinely don't dare to play any tricks on you. I'm not pretending to be poor, but I really am poor..."

"Alright, Uncle Jasper. We'll just do whatever you say. You're occupied with important matters every day, so you must be so exhausted. We can't provide any help to you, so why would we cause more trouble for you regarding these minor matters?"

“Yeah, it’s the price I called out the third time. 710 million. That price is still doable. We definitely can’t afford 1.2 billion.

“Alright, you should go back to your business now, Uncle Jasper. I’ll treat you to a meal next time.”

Dawson did not know whether to laugh or cry when he watched Jasper wrangle with the person in charge of the auction.

However, this kid was indeed skillful. He lowered 1.2 billion to 710 million just by being cheeky.

Who else in this world could do this aside from him?

Life at the Top Chapter 103

After exchanging some conventional greetings with the person in charge of the auction over the phone, Jasper finally ended the call.

“When are you going to visit the Laws?” Dawson asked.

“It’s better now than never.”

Jasper pondered for a while. “They’ve shown enough sincerity, after all, so I’d better go over and do something as soon as possible.”

...

In the presidential suite of Sheraton, Jasper met Zachary once again.

“Mr. Law.” When Jasper saw Zachary walking out of the room, he got up and greeted him.

Zachary smiled and gestured to Jasper to sit. Then, he said, “Young man, we’re going back to Harbor City tomorrow.”

Jasper asked, “Has the investment agreement been confirmed?”

“If you’re the one with the land development rights, then yes, it has,” Zachary said with a grin.

Jasper said sincerely, “Thank you for your help, Mr. Law.”

“This is not even me helping you out. The situation in Mainland is not the same as in Harbor City. Even though we’ve invested here before, the central core would still be Harbor City. As such, we still have to work together with a local developer with a much larger strength in this project to have peace of mind.

“Meanwhile, the Schulers are considered to be a pretty strong company in the province, so I’m not worried.”

“Mr. Law.” Jasper was silent for a moment before saying suddenly, “I’ve been planning to go to Harbor City for a while because I think after the bubble burst in the real estate market in Harbor City three years ago, the current market situation is in a slump. It’s the best time for bottom fishing.”

At the time of the handover, under the malicious manipulation of the authorities, they had planned to make Somerland take over Harbor City which was now left in ruins and had been squeezed dry.

It was because ten years ago, the real estate market in Harbor City had been flourishing.

Almost all of the rich families and millionaires in Harbor City were dealing with the real estate industry.

In addition to that, the Laws were nicknamed God of Land in Harbor City.

The main reason this happened was that the authorities wanted to suck their blood dry. They wanted to converge all of the capital in Harbor City to the real estate industry before drawing all of them out.

It could be said that they stole all of the savings Harbor City saved up for decades and only left Somerland with the ruins.

However, although they did not have complete success because of a lot of reasons, the real estate in Harbor City completely ruptured and broke out that year.

That was the rule of the economy, and nobody could stop it from happening.

As such, the current housing prices in Harbor City were no different from cabbages to Jasper.

After Zachary heard that, he smiled and said, “Young man, it’s impossible to dabble in the real estate industry in Harbor City if you don’t have the capital.”

Jasper smiled and said, “Indeed. Judging from my current assets, it’s indeed not enough to dabble in the real estate industry in Harbor City.”

After adding up all of the money Jasper had right now, he might be able to buy a normal piece of land in Harbor City with a decent location. That was it.

After all, Harbor City was indeed the economic center in the east currently. The pre-flourishing real estate prices in Mainland could not compare to that of Harbor City.

“So, the other reason I’m going to Harbor City is that I think there’s a huge opportunity in the stock market there.”

After Jasper said that, Zachary’s expression became solemn.

To Zachary, Jasper was already not a normal young man, after all.

Jasper’s identity as the mysterious individual shareholder in the international crude oil market was enough to make someone not dare underestimate his opinion in the capital market.

Not everyone had the ability and guts to snatch away more than one billion dollars of profit from the large countries all over the world and big shot capitalists.

After returning from the auction, Zachary had asked his people to look into the details of the battle in crude oils futures.

The more he understood what was going on, the more shocked Zachary felt about Jasper. Jasper was experienced—his foresight was savage and his decision was unwavering.

Now, the manipulation skills of the mysterious individual shareholder were being used as a classic example by the professors in educational institutes of finance and economy during lectures.

If he had not seen this with his own eyes, Zachary would not believe that this was done by the young man in front of him who was the same age as his children.

“I’ve mentioned to you about the opportunity in Harbor City’s stock market. It’s the chance to make up for the near tens of billions of loss your family suffered back then.”

Jasper’s tone sounded very confident.

Zachary looked at Jasper seriously and said in a low voice, “Are you saying that you want to make a stock market index?”

The stock market index was a way to invest.

For example, the stock market for Harbor City was called Hansel Index and this was fundamental for the entire market of Harbor City. If the market rose, then the Hansel Index would rise as well. If the market dropped, then the Hansel Index would drop.

Since the finance environment of Harbor City completely replicated that of the west, they could use the rise and fall of the Hansel Index to trade the futures of the market as a whole.

Basically, they would be treating the Hansel Index as one of the products of the futures. They could leave it empty or they could make more of it.

Jasper nodded and said, "There will surely be a huge quotation of market price in a short time."

The reason Jasper was so sure was that the dot-com bubble was about to burst.

The stock exchanges of the world would rise because of the internet economy. At the same time, internet corporate would be in high demand for stock investors.

However, after the bubble burst, a financial crisis that swept across the world would arrive.

Jasper could not tell the Laws everything because of a multitude of reasons.

Zachary lowered his voice and asked, "How sure are you?"

Jasper smiled and said, "Mr. Law, you should know that there isn't a 100% certainty on the capitalist market."

Zachary nodded and said while feeling disappointed and frustrated, "Indeed. I was too rash. However, the Laws do need a quick opportunity to withdraw currency from circulation."

"90% maybe." What Jasper said froze the expression on Zachary's face.

"Hahaha!" Zachary guffawed because he thought Jasper was joking with him. He said, "Oh, young man. Alright, I'll wait for you in Harbor City. If it's just like what you said, then you'll be... the most valuable friend to the Laws."

Jasper got up and said calmly yet solemnly, "Old Master Law was a legend throughout his life, and his heart was with his country the entire time. As a fellow compatriot, I feel proud to have such a senior."

Zachary could feel that Jasper was saying that from his heart. He nodded and said, "I'll wait for you to come to Harbor City and be a guest at our house. My father hasn't met any guests in so many years. However, he must want to meet an excellent young man like you."

Life at the Top Chapter 104

“As the younger generation, it’s my pleasure. When I get to Harbor City, I will definitely get in contact with you, Mr. Law,” Jasper said and smiled.

Zachary said in a forthright manner, “If you don’t come to find me, I’ll get someone to kidnap you and bring you to me. After all, you’ve promised that you’ll make money for us.”

After some conventional greetings, Jasper got up to leave.

The moment he got out of Zachary’s room, he ran into Henry and Anna.

“Damn it, why did I run into this Mainlander?”

When Henry saw Jasper, his face darkened and he wanted to turn around to leave.

“Stop.”

Anna’s word caused Henry to stop as if his feet had been nailed to the floor.

“How many times have I told you to respect the people from Mainland now that we’re here? It’s easy to offend them by calling them Mainlander, don’t you know that?” Anna lectured.

Henry said impatiently, “I just blurted it out. I don’t mean it that way.”

“How would they know if you don’t mean it that way? Apologize right now,” Anna said.

Henry widened his eyes to look at Anna and yelled, "Are you sick in the head? You're asking your older brother to apologize to an outsider?"

"You're at fault, so you have to apologize." Anna looked at Henry coldly. "Are you going to or not?"

The corners of Henry's lips twitched, and he turned around reluctantly to say to Jasper, "Sorry."

It was insincere.

However, Jasper did not mind.

He knew Henry was not a bad person. Not only was he not bad, but he had a lot of the excellence of the Laws in his bones.

Why?

It was because in Jasper's previous life, this spoiled brat from a rich family would marry the diving queen a few years later!

When that happened, everyone in the country enjoyed a lot of piping hot tea.

However, Jasper did not expect that the cultured and refined young master from the previous life would be a sloppy brat now. It felt as if they were two different people.

"It's fine."

Jasper looked at Anna and said, "Are you guys leaving tomorrow?"

Anna nodded and said, "Early flight tomorrow morning."

"So, I'll see you in Harbor City," Jasper said with a smile.

“You’re going to Harbor City as well?” Anna asked curiously.

“Yeah, but not now. I still have to wait,” Jasper replied.

“Alright, I’ll see you in Harbor City.” Anna smiled. Her lovely feminine charms could shake one to their core.

After bidding farewell to the siblings, Jasper got out of the elevator.

Henry watched slyly as his sister stared at the door of the elevator until it closed. Then, he said, “Stop looking. He’s gone.”

Anna came back to her senses and peered at Henry flatly. “Do you like to get all up in my business?”

Henry chuckled and said, “Why do I have a feeling that you have a crush on this Mainlander?”

“Do you think I’d have a crush on someone so easily?” Anna said, in a bad mood.

“Hehe, don’t be shy. There were so many young masters pursuing you in Harbor City but you always gave them a dark face. However, you’re chatting and smiling with this Mainlander? Come, tell me, I’ll come up with a plan for you,” Henry patted his chest and said.

“Do you want me to tell Dad how many girls you’ve hurt when you were studying abroad? If I hadn’t solved your problems for you, I think Dad’s grandsons would be studying in junior high now, huh?” Anna said coldly.

Henry’s expression froze, and immediately, his disposition was gone completely.

Life at the Top Chapter 105

After all, some time ago when he started causing trouble outside and did not dare to tell his parents about it, his sister had always been the one to help him take care of those matters.

Sometimes, he would wonder if she was the elder sister and he was her younger brother.

...

Everything in the province was basically completed, and now, what was left would be given to the subordinates to handle. Of course, Dawson would arrange for all of these.

As such, Jasper brought Wendy back to the city.

It had been a while since they came back. The moment Jasper and Wendy stepped through the door, they heard Jasper's mother, Sally, nagging at them.

"Even if you're busy, you have to rest and eat well. Where did you two go these few days? I saw that the lights in the house you're living in next door were turned off at night. I didn't see you two as well."

"We were in the province these few days. We were with Wendy's father." Jasper took off his coat and hung it on the rack while replying.

"You've met her parents?" Sally had joy written all over her face.

"Did you remember to bring a gift?"

“Did you forget your manners?”

“Is Wendy’s father satisfied with you?”

Sally’s back-to-back questions caused Wendy to blush. She said quickly, “Sally, it was just a normal meeting. The main purpose of the meeting was still the business collaboration. It’s not what you think.”

“Wendy, it’s nothing to be ashamed of. Let’s discuss this when Jasper’s father comes back. Let’s decide a time for us parents to meet,” Sally said something astonishing.

Jasper did not know whether to laugh or cry. “What meeting between parents? Mom, stop interfering!”

“What nonsense are you talking about, kid? Do you still want Wendy to stay with you with no status? I won’t agree to it, and the parents should meet when it’s almost time. According to our tradition, the man’s family should go to the woman’s home and invite the woman over.”

The more Sally talked about this, the happier she became. She wanted so badly to call Charlie back right now to discuss the meeting of the parents.

When Jasper saw Wendy being as shy as a mouse and wanting very badly to hide, he coughed dryly. When he was about to say something, the phone rang.

The person calling was John. He said it had been a while since they met each other, so he wanted to invite Jasper out for a gathering.

Jasper could hear some hidden trouble that John could not mention amidst his stammers.

As such, Jasper agreed without a second thought.

Back then, John had helped him a lot, so if he could help him now, Jasper would not be stingy about it.

When Sally heard Jasper saying that he needed to go out right after coming home, her face fell immediately.

“You’re always so busy and don’t even have time to eat at home, huh?”

Jasper said helplessly, “It’s about social nicety, and I can’t decline. I’ll come back early.”

After he said that, Jasper ran away under Wendy’s eyes that were filled with a secret grudge.

After Sally nagged for a while, she turned around and beamed at Wendy. She said, “Wendy, let’s ignore him. What do you want to eat? I’ll buy the ingredients now and make it for you.”

Wendy answered in a lovable manner, “Sally, let’s go together. I want to learn how to cook from you as well.”

The more Sally looked at Wendy, the more she adored her. She said unhurriedly, “Alright, let’s go to the supermarket. I think Jasper’s father should be back when we’re done.”

20 minutes later, Jasper arrived at the agreed location.

It was a cafe.

Nowadays, if someone wanted to eat out, it was either a down-to-earth restaurant or a high-end restaurant. There would not be a myriad of choices like in the future.

As such, the existence of a cafe would gain popularity among ordinary people because it seemed stylish and pretty petit-bourgeois to them.

After Jasper found the private room, Jasper pushed the door open to see John sitting and drinking alone.

‘What happened? You look like you just went through a breakup.’

John sigh

Life at the Top Chapter 106

“Tell me, I’m listening. Let me know what’s going on,” Jasper said while sitting down.

John rubbed his face and started to tell Jasper what had happened to him during this period.

Gradually, Jasper understood what was going on.

The trouble John had run into was indeed directly related to him.

Although Jasper had won a huge amount of money after the fight with Hugh in Royce Villa, Hugh never planned to let this matter go so easily.

However, after that incident, Jasper was either in the province or Cavern City, so Hugh could not find a chance to seek revenge on him.

As such, Hugh, who had lost 50 million dollars, then channeled all of his anger and desire to seek vengeance on John, who was closest with Jasper.

Even though John also belonged to the circle, at the end of the day, he was just a president of Commercial Bank’s district branch. He still depended on his salary for his living.

Normally, when the firms wanted to take loans, they would need to see if he was in a good mood. However, to be honest, those millionaires never paid much respect to John.

Plus, Hugh was the one attacking first, so it was even more improbable for someone to be willing to offend Hugh for John.

It was because of this Hugh played some dirty tricks and set a trap to get hold of the details of how John went against the rules to approve loans for companies. Then, he even disclosed this to the city branch.

Hugh's people were among the leaders of the city branch and were tough. John pulled some strings but they still closed the door in his face.

If the investigation team came after him, then he would lose his job. As such, John only called Jasper because he had no choice.

"Is it true that you violated the rules and approved the loans? How much?" Jasper asked.

John's eyes were red as he gritted his teeth and growled. "It's not a lot, just more than three million. However, those inhuman b*stards with no conscience will still complain about life even if they have more than enough. They're all thankless wenches!

"I did violate the rules in some parts. If I have to go strictly by the rules, then a lot of companies won't fit the requirements for loans. The ones who fit the requirements might not even want a loan. How do they expect us to do our jobs like this?

"These are the unwritten rules in the industry. Everyone will turn a blind eye to this. It'll be fine as long as no one causes any huge trouble.

"That b*stard Hugh deliberately asked someone to set a trap for me. That person wasn't a stranger, so I wasn't worried that he wouldn't pay up and that's why I approved the loan. In the end, who knew that person would take all the money and run?

"I can't get the money back, and Hugh is using his connections to disclose this to the branch. So, that's how I got into trouble."

Jasper did not say anything as he was thinking.

John remained silent for a while, then he gritted his teeth and said, "Brother, it's fine if you can't take care of this. If worst comes to worst, I'll just quit my job as the president."

Jasper shook his head and said, "If they really implicate you, it's not a matter of losing your job or not. You might even get sent to jail if this is not handled correctly."

John's face turned white. He was in the industry, so how would he not know the sensitivity of these banking matters? If he approved loans without following the rules and the person ran away, as a president, he would really be sent to prison.

"But don't worry." Jasper smiled and calmed John down.

"This is easy to take care of. However, my goal is not just to take care of this.

"A person like Hugh will always bear grudges at one side, and he'll be a time bomb for you and me. Why don't we use this opportunity to get rid of him?"

When John heard what Jasper said, he widened his eyes and controlled his excitement. He said, "Brother, are you sure?"

According to the memories of his past life, John would keep getting promoted, and in the end, he would be the second-in-command of the provincial branch.

On the other hand, Hugh's Lantern Capital would bomb, and in the end, it would be finished.

At the end of the day, the reason Jasper knew this was still because he had changed some things after his rebirth.

However, overall, there was one thing that would remain unchanged.

It was that Lantern Capital would definitely be finished.

Lantern Capital's investments were running at a loss. If Hugh wanted to fix the hole and also the 50 million he lost back then, he could only rob Peter to pay Paul.

He might have already used the clients' funds.

Plus, there was another important point. Jasper remembered that in his previous life after Hugh's business completely went down the drain, he was eventually sentenced.

The team from the Municipal Bureau of Economic Investigation had been watching Hugh a very long time ago. The moment the company went down, they immediately got hold of him. Back then, he was arrested for illegal fund-raising.

To Jasper, it was not too complicated to destroy Hugh.

"Can you get in contact with Hugh?" Jasper asked.

John did not know why Jasper asked this question. However, he said, "Yeah, but I had a falling out with him over the phone yesterday."

Jasper said, "Call him and tell him you're treating him to a meal."

John stared blankly at him and said, "Um... Won't you be walking right into the trap? He's been looking for you all over the place."

"I'm worried that he won't find me. If he does, then I have everything planned. Make the call," Jasper said.

John nodded and called Hugh. He also deliberately put it on loudspeaker.

Immediately, the call went through and Hugh's gloomy, hoarse voice sounded from the phone.

“Jackson, why are you still calling me? Are you gonna beg for mercy?”

Jack took a deep breath and suppressed the anger in his chest before saying, “I’m inviting you to a meal.”

Hugh was stumped for words before chortling. “A meal? I won’t let you get away with this even if you kneel in front of me! You should blame yourself for following the wrong person. I’ll consider letting you off if you get that Jasper kid to come over, ask him to kowtow to me, and apologize to me.”

Jasper gave Jack a look.

Jack said coldly, “He’s the one who wants to see you.”

There was silence on the other end of the phone. Then, Hugh chuckled and said, “That kid has really appeared?”

“Alright, he’s pretty ballsy for having the guts to see me. Tomorrow afternoon at two o’clock, I’ll book a table at Grand Millennium and treat him to a meal.

“Remember to tell him that if he wants to beg for mercy, he needs to bring a check of 80 million dollars. If not, I’ll break his legs and let him crawl out the door.”

After he said that, he hung up the phone.

Jack said with worry, “Hugh has some connections with the mafia. Aren’t we a little impetuous by doing this?”

Jasper smiled and said, “Those tricks are better kept under the table.”

“So what should we do now?” John asked.

“Find two experienced stock traders and just follow my instructions tomorrow,” Jasper said calmly, “I know Lantern Capital has one main holding share. So, we’ll get it down for him tomorrow. His clients will feel the fire catching their eyebrows before he can even feel anxious.”

John said excitedly, “Brother, I’ll count on you this time.”

Jasper smiled and said, “You’re in this position because of me too, so I should help you to the end.”

While he said that, Jasper stood up. “Come, let’s go to a place.”

“Where?” John asked curiously.

“The Securities Commission in the city.”

Life at the Top Chapter 107

“Are you...” John looked blankly at Jasper as if he knew what he was thinking about.

“Hehe, do you think someone like Hugh would have a clean background?” Jasper smiled indifferently. Then, the two of them went to the Securities Commission.

As for why they went there, only they and the president of the Securities Commission would know!

...

The next day in John’s office.

Two young people who had just stepped into society were shaking in fear.

It was obviously their first time in the president’s office and doing personal matters for the president. Damn it, they were being favored by the president now...

“Do you remember now?”

John’s expression looked solemn.

“The account and target shares have been given to you two. When the trading commences in the afternoon, go in and immediately hammer the market. Hammer it as low as you can.”

The two young people nodded in haste. “Don’t worry, sir. This is easy, so we’ll definitely do well.”

“However, since we’re going to hammer the market, what about the capital?” one of the two young people voiced out their concern.

This was the stock market, and if they did not have at least hundreds of millions of capital, they would not even cause a ripple.

John gestured to them to look at the capital in his account in the back-end.

The two confused young people opened the back-end. Then, they widened their eyes as if they had just seen a ghost and their mouths turned into O shapes.

“Gosh, there’s so much money! Two billion?”

“I-I’ve never had this much money to play the game with before...”

The two young people were looking at John as if they were looking at a tall mountain.

Two billion dollars. No ordinary people would be able to see this much money in their lifetime.

“Anyway, the task handed to you two is not difficult. You’ll be fine if you do it properly. If you cause any trouble, then you can take off your clothes and get lost.”

John gave the two of them a warning.

“Got it.”

The two of them did not dare to say anything more. It had been so difficult for them to get into this industry after pulling some strings. They were not idiots, and if they were able to do this well, then they would be able to get the chance of being favored by the president and become his people. If they did not do well... then they might seriously have to leave.

After his announcement, John looked at the time. When he saw that it was about time, he left his office.

After he left, the two young people started murmuring immediately.

“Say, which God-tier client is this? Two billion? How f*cking scary.”

“We shouldn’t ask what we shouldn’t. We should be careful not to cause trouble for ourselves.”

The other was more cautious and sensible. After they said that, they shut their mouths and waited for the time to come.

Downstairs, John had already gotten into Jasper’s Bentley.

“It’s great to have money,” John said ruefully. He remembered his predicament when he remembered the two billion capital and sat in the Bentley.

“Both have their advantages and disadvantages; both have their troubles,” Jasper chuckled and said.

John nodded and said nervously, “Are you sure it’ll be fine?”

“Don’t worry. Does he really have the balls to kill us?” Jasper said indifferently.

John nodded heavily when he thought about this.

Grand Millennium was one of the assets under Hugh, and it was considered a pretty high-end hotel.

Jasper's car stopped at the entrance, and the two of them got out.

After they got out of the elevator to go to the reserved private room, Jasper and John could feel the tension in the air.

There were people on both sides of the corridor.

All of them looked like thugs. They were chewing gum and shaking their feet as they looked at the two of them in a rowdy manner.

There were roughly over 20 people standing in the corridor at first glance.

John was starting to panic when he saw this. Then, he remembered the rumor about Hugh keeping a bunch of desperadoes as his subordinates, and his face turned white.

Life at the Top Chapter 108

However, Jasper was not scared at all. He walked straight to the private room without glancing sideways.

Behind Jasper, John's face was pale. He kept swallowing his saliva and did not dare to look at the thugs on both sides.

When they got to the door of the private room, John, who wanted so badly to run away from this corridor, took the initiative to grab the doorknob.

With a smack, one of the men who looked like the leader of the thugs smacked John's hand away.

"Mr. Lewis said you have to kneel and crawl into the room if you want to go in!"

The head of the thugs had a buzzcut and was showing off the sinister-looking tattoos all over his arms. He snickered, and his eyes were filled with sinister glints.

John was shaking from anger. However, he did not dare to say anything, so he turned his eyes to Jasper.

Jasper glanced at the head of the thugs and increased the volume of his voice to say to the person behind the door, "Hugh, is this how you treat your guests?"

The private room was dead silent.

"Alright, if you think these thugs can hold up the facade, then you can have fun on your own."

After he said that, Jasper turned around to walk away.

The moment he turned around, the door of the private room opened.

The inside of the room was huge. There was a big round table that was filled with food. Hugh was sitting on the main seat that was facing the door in an imposing and forthright manner. He was holding a piece of roast chicken, and his face was greasy from chomping down on it.

On the other seats of the round table were a few of the people Jasper knew and had seen in Royce Villa before. They looked as if they were sitting on pins and needles.

Behind Hugh were a few tall and sturdy bodyguards.

He had the manner of the head of the mafia.

“Haha, I’m sorry, I’m sorry. My men were insensible. Guys, please come in.”

Hugh grinned and said. He pointed at the seat opposite him with his greasy finger. “There. I saved those seats for you guys.”

Jasper led John into the room and sat down directly.

Hugh stood up and walked to John so that he was behind him. He wiped his greasy hands on John’s suit and chortled. “Did you bring the money?”

“What money?” Jasper asked him back indifferently.

The smile on Hugh’s face disappeared gradually. Then, he slammed his hand down on the table.

He had exerted a lot of force in that slam. Not only did the utensils on the round table jump, but even the people on both sides of the round table were startled.

Hugh roared at Jasper, "Are you f*cking joking with me right now? I told you to bring 80 million! Where's the money?"

Jasper stood up and looked straight at Hugh. He took out a checkbook from his pocket and wrote a sum of 80 million.

Hugh's eyes were twinkling when he saw this.

He thought Jasper was scared of him and he really came here to beg for mercy.

Back then, he had lost 50 million, and during this period, he had secretly embezzled a large number of the clients' funds to barely fill in the gap. Even so, a lot of clients were starting to feel suspicious.

However, Hugh managed to suppress all of them.

If he was able to get this 80 million today, then not only would he make the losses back, but he would even earn 30 million.

"Hahaha!"

Hugh patted Jasper's shoulder and guffawed. He said, "A wise man submits to his circumstances. Young man, I admire you for having a sense of propriety."

At this moment, Jasper had already written the check but did not sign it.

"Do you want this?"

Jasper glanced at the grease Hugh got on his coat and said indifferently, "Wash my clothes till they're clean again."

Hugh stared fixedly at the check in Jasper's hand and sneered, "It's just a piece of clothing. Sign the check, give it to me, and I'll buy ten of them for you!"

“Mr. Lewis, money has always been nothing but numbers to me, but... do you think I'm here to give you money?”

After he said that, Jasper ripped the check in front of Hugh and the others.

With a rip, the check that was able to cash 80 million dollars from the bank turned into waste paper.

The smile on Hugh's face froze.

Then, Jasper looked at Hugh and uttered a statement coldly.

“You dirtied my clothes, so you have to wash them for me!”

Life at the Top Chapter 109

Gulp.

That was the sound of John swallowing his saliva with difficulty.

At this moment, the air in the private room was extremely tense.

It felt as if everyone had been set firmly in place with glue. Nobody dared to do or say anything.

John was seriously scared.

He was scared that Hugh would be completely infuriated and do something irrational.

This place was filled with Hugh's men, and if he really were to go insane, nobody would guarantee what would happen to Jasper and him.

“Heh!”

When everyone was holding their breath and did not dare to exhale, Hugh made this sound from his throat.

It sounded like a laugh, but since it was too short and cold, nobody felt any benevolence from it.

“Jasper, nobody dares to be impudent in front of me. Meanwhile, you have completely enraged me.”

While he said that, Hugh stared fixedly at Jasper with his eyes glinting in a hostile manner.

“I’ll let you guess if I have the guts to call a few of my men in here, pluck the nerves of your hands and legs and give them tens of thousands of dollars to leave the country. What will be waiting for you then is a lifetime of disability.”

...

A little while before Jasper and John arrived at the hotel.

The two young men in John’s office were waiting for the trading to commence.

They did not dare to hesitate. When it was time, their fingers immediately flew across the keyboard and they started doing what John had told them to do before he left.

At the next moment, Company A received a two billion cash injection.

Zoni was the blue chip stock in the eyes of a lot of stock investors.

A second before the trading commenced, its price was still flat and reasonable.

A lot of the stock investors who were following this got the news about the dealer hyping and there would be a huge increase very soon.

When they were considering whether to buy some, in the next second, the price of the stock plummeted.

When the stock investors were in a daze, the price plummeted horrifyingly once again after staying still for less than a second.

The stock investors who did not buy were feeling lucky that they had dodged the bullet. However, the stock investors who had bought in were crying to the heavens and selling the stocks they were holding at the lowest price as if they had gone insane.

However, the plummeting stock price would not give them the chance to sell.

After they had their lowest price pending, the current stock price would fall below the price they set.

This plummeting of stock prices without warning attracted the attention of a lot of people.

Including the vice president of Lantern Capital who had been staring fixedly at the situation all along.

He was Hugh's trusted aide, so naturally, he would know that his boss and a few owners of a private enterprise had a controlling number of shares and were trading in Zoni.

Since it had great potential, Hugh had invested most of the funds from Lantern Capital into Zoni. He was waiting to make a huge amount of money when the time came.

However, Zoni was now plummeting as if it had fallen down a cliff. Sweat was forming on this vice president's forehead.

In the blink of an eye, he received a lot of calls. All of them were asking whether Lantern Capital was the one that caused this plummet because of something they secretly did.

The vice president only wanted to curse.

If Zoni's stock price plummeted, the one suffering the biggest loss would be Lantern Capital. He was not an idiot, so why would he let it plummet?

After a few calls, the price was still plummeting. On the other hand, the floating loss account of the company had reached a ghastly number.

This was beyond his range of control.

The vice president did not hesitate before calling Hugh.

At this moment, Hugh was considering whether to cripple Jasper.

The hurried ringtone eased the tension in the silent room.

Hugh frowned and answered the call while feeling pissed.

However, after hearing the urgent report from the other end, Hugh's expression changed slowly.

The contrast of that was Jasper's eyes that were getting calmer.

"How is that possible..."

Hugh muttered in disbelief. Then, it was as if he had come back to his senses. He grabbed Jasper's collar and roared, "It's you? Did you do that to Zoni?"

Life at the Top Chapter 110

“Were you the one who caused Zoni to plummet ten minutes after the trading commenced?”

Hugh’s furious roars caused everyone’s expressions to change.

“Zoni? The one where Lantern Capital is the dealer and has the main holding shares?”

“I heard in order to make back the 50 million loss, Hugh put all of his money in it.”

“How could it have plummeted? Even though Zoni doesn’t have a huge market, it’s impossible to control the price without a few billion dollars.”

“My gosh, they’re seriously taking drastic measures to deal with a situation.”

The crowd who did not dare to speak because of Hugh were now like cats on a hot tin roof. All of their expressions started to change.

Suddenly, John was no longer panicking in the crowd.

He even took out a cigarette and lighted it before taking a drag happily.

Looking at the crowd around the table who were overwhelmed with shock, horror, or amazement, John suddenly wanted to laugh. He wanted to laugh at all of them.

These people had no idea how horrifying Jasper could be.

On the other hand, Jasper lifted his hand to remove Hugh's hands before saying indifferently, "You're involved with Zoni? I'm sorry, I didn't like that company so I smashed its market. Now, I might let it lose a few hundred million dollars."

Hugh felt as if his heart had been ripped out after Jasper said that.

He looked at Jasper with rancor and gritted his teeth. He said, "My entire fortune and life are on Zoni. If you smash it, then you'll be taking my life!"

"Too bad, then." Jasper chuckled lightly.

He lifted his eyes to look at Hugh who was like a mad dog. He said slowly, "Or maybe you can kneel in front of me? If I'm in a good mood, I might save a few coins for you to spend for the remainder of your life."

"Jasper!" Hugh had completely lost his mind. He roared, "I'm going to kill you!"

"Shut up!"

Jasper roared all of a sudden.

All this while, Jasper's tone had been neither fast nor slow. This was the first time he used his voice to completely overpower Hugh.

"If I were you, I'd be wondering what the investors will do to you after such a huge loss. Will they pluck your nerves or will they skin you alive?"

Jasper's words caused Hugh's face to turn white.

He was clear that the money from Lantern Capital had all come from the investors, and none of those people should be provoked.

If word about what happened today got out, Hugh Lewis would be completely finished.

There was intense fear in Hugh's eyes. His lips were trembling as he said, "Y-You're a devil."

"Thanks for the compliment," Jasper said slowly.

"Do you think you've won?" Hugh said suddenly.

"If not?" Jasper asked.

"Hahahaha!" Hugh lifted his face and guffawed. He pointed at the outside of the room and said, "Everyone out there was arranged by me. Yes, I'm done for and Lantern Capital will close down tomorrow, but so what? Before that, I want to kill you!"

"You can only blame yourself for being too savage. You burnt all of the bridges, so don't blame me for being cruel!" Hugh said while laughing nastily.

Some people on the round table were shaking their heads while sighing.

"Even though Jasper's skills are amazing, unfortunately, he's still not Hugh's rival."

"The carpet pulling is great, but at the end of the day, a slow remedy does not address the current emergency."

The people who were talking looked at Jasper, and their eyes were filled with pity.

"Everyone here is under Hugh, and the ones out there are desperadoes who will seriously do anything for just 10,000 dollars. Jasper is finished for forcing Hugh to a dead end."

"He's still inexperienced, not like us seniors. If not, he would not have come here. It'd be enough manipulating this from the dark. He wouldn't have to face these risks if he did that, would he?"

When John heard that as he was smoking his cigarette, he wanted to laugh even more.

He wanted so badly to stand up and tell those opinionated idiots that they had walked into Jasper's trap right from the beginning.

Hugh's final counterattack was just vulgar claptrap to please the crowd.

However, he could not do that, so John was having such a hard time holding himself together.

Bang!

At this moment, the door of the room was kicked open and a team of uniformed officers walked over to Hugh solemnly.

Share this:

Life at the Top Chapter 111

“Are you Hugh Lewis?”

The leader of the team asked Hugh sternly.

Hugh looked at him in panic and looked at the corridor. He realized that the men he brought with him were nowhere to be seen.

Ineffably, Hugh’s expression turned horrible as if a crisis was going to fall on him anytime.

“I’m asking you if you’re Hugh Lewis!” the officer yelled.

“Y-Yes,” Hugh answered with difficulty.

He knew if these people were able to show up in front of him, then they must already have concrete proof of his crimes.

“Hugh Lewis, we have sufficient proof to suspect that you’re involved in illegal fundraising and manipulating the stock prices in the dark. This is your summon. Please come with me,” the officer said in a deep voice.

Hugh gritted his teeth tightly and looked at Jasper with rancor. He growled, saying, “Did you arrange all these?”

Jasper said indifferently, “You’ve broken the law, so you were simply asking for this.”

Hugh roared, “If it wasn’t for you, how would it be possible for them to show up just in time? Stop quibbling, you’re the one who did this!”

“Hugh, you still aren’t remorseful even when death is near. We’re not working under someone, so nobody can tell us what to do. Actually, we’ve been watching you for a very long time. You’re just too egotistical and didn’t notice,” the officer said coldly.

Hugh laughed maniacally and said, “Bullsh*t! Those people’s money is for me to invest!

“You’re saying that I’m manipulating the stock prices? Jasper is the real manipulator! If not, how could Zoni have plummeted all of a sudden?”

“The investment agreement of Lantern Capital clearly states that all of the investment funds will not be used for stock speculation, so it means you’ve made a promise to your investors. Hence, this is illegal. A lot of people have reported you, you just had no idea.

“As for you saying that Jasper is also manipulating the stock price, if you have the evidence, you can report him to us too. We’ll definitely enforce the law impartially,” the officer said sternly.

“Ask them if you don’t believe me! Everyone here heard Jasper saying that... That...”

After Hugh said that, he suddenly could not continue anymore because he remembered that Jasper had never admitted to manipulating the stock price before.

Jasper looked at Hugh indifferently as if he was watching the final outburst of a hysterical lunatic.

“I think everyone here can be my witness. Just now, I said I thought Zoni has a pretty high price and it’s scamming the stock investors of their money, so that’s why I’m not happy with it. The only thing I did was sell its stocks.”

Jasper chuckled and turned his head to the officer to ask, "Is this manipulating the stock price?"

The officer shook his head and said, "This is a normal investment in the market, so it's not."

Hugh staggered backward and glared at Jasper with extreme rancor in his eyes. Suddenly, he laughed furiously. "Alright. Well done! What a nice trick! You've planned this from the start so that I'll go behind bars!"

Now, everyone in the room understood.

This was indeed a trap.

However, could one say that Jasper was the one who set this trap?

At the end of the day, the problem was with Hugh because he was the one breaking the law. If not, Jasper would not have been able to make those officers do this even if he wanted.

As such, Hugh's arrogance and Jasper's impression as a scatter-brained youth back then were all fake.

This entire development had already been in the palm of Jasper's hand.

"How horrifying!"

The person next to John who had just teased Jasper for being inexperienced sighed in regret with a horrible expression on his face.

"I've been living on this earth for 40 plus years but I didn't expect to gain knowledge and experience today," another man looked at Jasper and muttered with a complicated look in his eyes.

John snorted and said, "That's why you can't just look at one side when you're looking at things. Who knows what will happen in the future? All of you are not young anymore and you still don't know this?"

Life at the Top Chapter 112

Everyone on the table flushed red when they heard what John said. None of them dared to refute him.

“Jasper, you’ll die a horrible death!”

When he thought about how his high position and great wealth would end here today and what would be waiting for him was jail time, Hugh completely lost his mind.

He pounced at Jasper like a mad dog and looked as if he wanted badly to drag Jasper down with him.

However, Jasper stood in his spot without moving.

It was because the officers at one side who had been waiting and eyeing covetously instantly tackled Hugh to the floor.

“Take him away!” The leader waved his hand, and hence, Hugh was brought away while he yelled and cursed continuously.

As Hugh’s voice got further and further away, the officer shook hands with Jasper and said, “No matter what, thanks for your information. If not, we wouldn’t have been able to capture him so easily.”

“As a citizen, I should cooperate and help out,” Jasper said with a smile.

The officer displayed a smile on his expressionless face. Then, he said sternly, “We’ll support legal businesses, and at the same time, we’ll also provide the best environment for you guys. However, we will not allow any illegal activities to go on.”

Jasper nodded and said, "As it should."

"I won't be staying for long. I'll get going now." After the officer said that, he gathered his team and left.

After they left, Jasper turned around to look at the table.

There were about eight to nine people at the table. Even though the host, Hugh, would not be coming back anymore, no one dared to leave before Jasper said anything.

As such, Jasper walked to the seat Hugh had been sitting on before he left amidst the stifling silence.

He draped his arm across the back of the chair and scanned everyone's faces. Then, he chuckled lightly. "What are you waiting for? Continue eating if you're still hungry and if you're not, leave."

Everyone left out sighs of relief after Jasper said that.

After all, it might seem that they were siding with Hugh because they were sitting here.

Although they never said anything, their presence was proof enough.

Now, Jasper had completely ended Hugh quickly and efficiently. No one was sure if Jasper would seek revenge on them in the future.

No one expected that Jasper, who only joined their internal meeting a few months ago as a newbie, would now replace Hugh as the powerhouse among them.

"Um, I still have something to take care of, so I have to go now."

Finally, someone could not take this anymore and stood up while saying with a smile.

With someone taking the lead, a few more people immediately started bidding their farewells as well.

However, after they said that, Jasper did not say anything. As such, they would not dare to leave just like that.

It seemed that they were pretty cautious.

Jasper did not look at them. On the contrary, he only said nonchalantly, “Just leave if you have something else to tend to. I’m not the same as Hugh. He wants to control you guys, but I don’t want to do that. I think there’s an endless amount of money to earn in this world, and if there’s money, we can earn it together.

“However...”

Jasper lifted his eyes to scan their smiling faces.

“If anyone dares to do any shady business, then what happened to Hugh will not be the worst because there will be something even worse coming. None of us want to see that happening, right?”

Amidst everyone’s silence, John took a sip of his tea.

The hidden dragon was finally going to fly into the sky!

Life at the Top Chapter 113

“Mr. Laine, Hugh is emphatic and domineering, so we all had sorrows that we couldn’t voice out. Now that the villain has got his punishment, we’ll definitely be well-behaved.”

Someone stood up and said with a grin.

His words got the approval of a lot of people.

Jasper did not want to bother himself with whether this man was being sincere or not.

The pond of this city was too small to accommodate his growth and development.

These people would be destined to live in a different world than him in the future.

“Go now.”

Jasper waved his hand and left the room with John.

At the hotel lobby, Jasper asked John, “Do you need me to find someone to ask about your loan kerfuffle?”

John said quickly, “No need. It was difficult back then because Hugh was watching me. Now that he’s been defeated, I have a great chance to get away with this. I’ve been working in this industry for so many years and there will be some older higher-ups who appreciate me. Plus, this was a trap, after all.”

After this was settled, John felt like he owed Jasper a big one. He did not have the cheek to trouble Jasper anymore.

However, he was fearful in secret, because he could sense from Jasper's tone that it would be effortless for him to take care of this.

John felt that this was outrageous. When did Jasper get to such a high level?

Jasper nodded. From the memories of his past life, John was able to make his way to the second-in-command position of the provincial branch before retiring with honor and glory. It was enough to prove that he had something in him.

"Mr. Laine, I don't know how can I thank you for this. Perhaps you might not need me anymore in the future, but if you do, just tell me and I won't hesitate to go through water and tread on fire for you!" John said sincerely.

Jasper laughed and said, "I didn't help you just to have you make it up to me in the future. I just feel that you were only implicated in this because of me."

"You can't say that. After this incident, I came to understand a lot of things. I now know that I can't depend on the brothers I drink together with when I'm in a crisis." John shook his head and sighed sorrowfully.

"A friend in need is a friend indeed," said Jasper with a smile.

After John expressed his deep gratefulness for Jasper, they parted ways in front of the hotel.

After he returned home, Sally asked the moment she saw Jasper, "Why did you come back alone?"

Jasper replied, "We were in the province this entire time and had a lot of things going on in the office, so Wendy couldn't make it back in time."

“You should do more work. How can you leave Wendy alone in the office while you come back alone?” Sally was immediately displeased.

“Mom, I’m your son,” said Jasper helplessly.

“Wendy is more lovable than you. I wanted to have a daughter back then but you Laines have a feudal way of thinking and insisted on a boy,” Sally said while feeling slightly regretful.

Jasper sat down on the sofa and saw a few pieces of crumpled-up tissue paper on the coffee table. He asked in astonishment, “Mom, were you crying? What happened?”

Sally sat down and sighed. She said with a miserable look on her face, “Rose Peters is dead.”

“Rose Peters? Who’s Rose Peters?”

Jasper frowned and tried to mentally search for this person’s information among the family and friends who were close to his family.

“Her!”

Sally pointed at the television and sighed. “She was such a wonderful person. Your father and I loved her skits. Aside from Mr. Roberts’ skits, hers were the best.”

“Famous actress Mrs. Rose Peters who was beloved by everyone passed away early this morning today because of lung cancer...”

The host’s pained voice sounded from the television.

Even though it was a local entertainment channel, Rose's death as an artist was still being broadcasted on television and this showed just how big of an influence Rose had in the country.

For example, people around Sally's age would know that actress with an infectious smile.

"Oh, her." Jasper did not know whether to laugh or cry.

He did not understand. This person was not related to them at all, so why would his mother cry so sadly over her death?

"I think she's the only one qualified to be an actress and a star. Look at those young people on television nowadays. They're just androgynous bells and whistles. How can they be called stars?"

"Still, you young people love them so much and call yourself groupies. I think you people need to think properly with your brains."

While listening to his mother questioning the taste of the youngsters, Jasper laughed and said, "Mom, you're outdated. Just you wait, in the next few years, those are the ones who are truly androgynous, and the fans will be..."

When he said that, Jasper fell silent suddenly.

Two years later, with the economic development, everyone's living standards will increase and showbiz would welcome its boom before truly prospering.

Then, toward the end of 2020, any of those celebrities with huge followings would become cash cows.

The celebrities who would be shooting to fame in late 2020 were probably suffering in poverty or hardship now.

If he dabbled in the entertainment industry, he might not even need to do anything. As long as he signed them and gave them some resources that they were destined to get, then he could just sit home and wait for those cash cows to make money for him.

Others aside, the future superstar of Terra, Jay Ciao, might still be using other people's recording studios to make his first album.

It was this album that launched Jay's music career and dominated the English pop music industry for more than ten years.

Other than that, the women who the sims idolized in the future—Mimi Young, Tinker Belle, and Reba—had yet to make their mark.

Even Vicki Bird was just starting out, and she was far from being the mighty figure she became in the future who no one dared approach.

These people were the shiniest cash cows!

Throughout the ten years between 2000 until 2010, the three industries that would make one rich quick were real estate, the stock market, and the entertainment industry!

Jasper already had his plans for the first two, so now, he could not miss out on the entertainment industry!

"Why are you lost in thought?"

Sally's voice woke Jasper from his thoughts.

"I suddenly remembered something, so I spaced out for a little," Jasper answered without thinking.

“Wendy’s back, so I’m going to heat the chicken soup up for her to warm her body.”

Sally heard the sound of a car outside and got up to say.

“Why didn’t you tell me there’s chicken soup when I got back just now?” Jasper grumbled.

“Women are weaker, and you’re always asking her to do so many things, so of course, she’ll need this to replenish her health. You’re still young, so why do you need chicken soup?”

Sally said without even turning back. Then, she walked straight into the kitchen.

While they were talking, Wendy opened the door to come in. She asked Jasper curiously, “I heard your mother’s voice just now. What were you talking about?”

Jasper smiled and said, “We were talking about how to build an entertainment empire. Are you interested in being the best actress?”

Life at the Top Chapter 114

“Are you planning to advance into the entertainment industry?” Wendy asked as she was sharp and could sense Jasper’s intention.

As for the last sentence, Wendy ignored it automatically. She was used to this guy spewing nonsense occasionally, so she would treat it as if she had not heard him.

“The entertainment business is full of potential,” Jasper said. When he saw Wendy trying to say something but stopping herself, he asked, “You don’t agree with me?”

Wendy sat down and said, “No, I’ll always support your decisions. However, I’m just worried that we have too much on our plate. On one hand, JW Capital is doing investment, and on the other hand, we’re doing real estate too. Would it be a little too much if we venture into the entertainment industry as well?”

Wendy’s concern was reasonable. Some of the companies that were flourishing in one industry would be unable to recover after a minor hitch when they went onto the so-called path of diversification.

An example in another country would be the beverage company that was considered the brand of the people. They did not focus on making beverages, but instead, they went on to dabble in real estate and supplements. In the end, their losses almost caused the company to close down.

Within the country, it would be Schuler Group. An old fox like Dawson had almost jumped off a building because he went into the capitalist domain with his initiative after being deceived by the Hanks.

Naturally, Wendy’s concerns were not completely unreasonable.

“JW Capital’s main focus will always be in the finance industry, and our main job will be venture capital. This will never change,” Jasper explained attentively.

“As for the real estate company, it will be another business and your father will be the one managing it. As such, I’m not worried at all.

“I don’t plan to start from scratch regarding our future entertainment business. I want to buy an entertainment company in both Mainland and Harbor City. It’s the same concept. I can’t manage the company myself, so I’ll leave the professional things to the professionals. I’ll just be responsible for planning the entire project as a whole.”

Wendy’s eyes lit up when she heard what Jasper said. She asked, “Are you planning to set up a holding corporation in the future?”

Jasper smiled and pinched the bridge of Wendy’s nose. He said, “Smart.”

“The company’s system is too small.

“Although a corporation would be enough to hold a multi-industry development, the framework for a corporation is still pretty limiting.

“So, I’m planning to cast my net for now. In the future, when the companies from different industries become successful enough, then we can start a holding corporation.

“In the end, we’ll control the subsidiary companies with the holding corporation and each of the subsidiary companies will be responsible for their own industries.

“This way, we won’t cause a situation where people from outside the industry will need to lead the people from inside the industry. Plus, we won’t have the possibility of failing to have a multi-industry development.”

After he said this, Jasper looked at Wendy and smiled softly. “Let me test you, where will these frameworks usually appear in?”

Wendy suppressed her excitement and said, “Financial groups?”

“That’s right, financial groups.” Jasper nodded.

“My goal has never been to expand any company or corporation. That’s too small. The only way is to create a true financial group and use it to own a controlling number of shares of the headquarters of different industries. That is the true development of an oligarch economy.”

Jasper was not the first person to create this framework.

For example, Simsing Financial Group, Triton Financial Group, and a lot of other financial groups in the west all developed this way.

Even the strongest company would have its limits. For example, Weresoft and Honeydew were both the biggest companies in the world, but Weresoft was good at developing operating systems while Honeydew was good at developing electronic goods.

One industry was unable to satisfy Jasper’s appetite.

He had a chance to be reborn, so if he did not start a financial group and become an oligarch, then what was the difference between him and a dead fish?

“Back then, my father kept telling me that you’re a hidden dragon and you’ll fly into the sky one day. I thought he admired you too much and was only talking big. Now, why do I feel that your ambitions are bigger than the hidden dragon?” Wendy asked sincerely.

Jasper chuckled and said, “I’ve talked to your father, and we’ll ask the head of Financial Affairs to work for half a year in JW Capital. We’ll treat this as a temporary transfer. You have to learn from her in these six months.”

Wendy said angrily, “Do you think I don’t have the ability?”

Jasper said quickly, “No, it’s not that. I’m worried that you won’t be able to handle things after the industries under our name grow.”

Life at the Top Chapter 115

“I’ll definitely let a professional be the one to manage the overall system. However, aside from my parents and you, I won’t trust anyone to be in charge of the finances.”

Wendy grunted softly. She was enjoying the fact that Jasper was trusting her as much as he trusted his parents, but instead, she said, “I’ll steal all of your money when you’re not watching!”

“Whatever is mine belongs to you too,” Jasper said with a smile.

A faint red tinge appeared on Wendy’s face.

“Wendy, come, I’ve made chicken soup for you. Drink it while it’s hot. They brought me an old hen from the hometown and it’s good for you.”

At this moment, Sally walked over with a bowl of soup.

Wendy quickly went over to take it from her.

“Thank you, Sally,” Wendy said sweetly.

Her mother passed away when she was young, so she and Dawson had been interdependent this entire time.

Even though Dawson spoiled her like she was a treasure, he was still a man and was always busy with work. Aside from materialistic things, it could be said that he was unable to give Wendy the care she needed in life.

In these few days, Wendy could feel the motherly love she had lost for so many years from Sally. Naturally, she was very close to her.

Sally was beaming with joy as she said warmly, “Just tell me anything you want to eat in the future. Don’t trouble yourself.”

“Okay.”

Wendy took small sips of the chicken soup that had been simmered on low heat for long hours. She felt a warm feeling flowing all the way into the deepest part of her heart.

Sally turned around in satisfaction when she saw Wendy drinking the soup. Then, she instructed Jasper, “Go, call your father over for dinner. That old man hasn’t been doing anything after he came here. He’s either fishing or playing chess with his friends. He never knows to come back even when it’s time for dinner.”

...

Three days later, Province International Airport.

“JW Real Estate is operating according to standards now. I’ve entrusted the designers from the Province Design Institute to come up with something. I’ll show you when it’s done.”

Dawson said to Jasper.

Jasper nodded and said, “No rush. Soon, the people who are constructing the Laws’ amusement park will arrive. We can communicate with them because after all, the Laws started from real estate. They’ll know more than us.”

Dawson laughed and said, “Don’t worry. I’ll be watching over JW Real Estate, so there won’t be a problem.”

“I’ll be leaving, then,” Jasper said softly to Wendy.

After nodding, Wendy said, “Come back soon.”

Jasper smiled and waved at Dawson and Wendy before walking into the security check lane.

“Oh, that rascal. JW Real Estate was just set in motion and he’s asking me to ask around for any entertainment companies that are on sale because of bad business. How much information does he have in his brain?”

Dawson sighed ruefully.

He could flaunt himself as one of the few successful people in the business world. However, when he looked at Jasper, he felt that he was getting old.

“He said he wants to get into the entertainment industry. I think he contacted the Laws and that’s why he’s in such a hurry to go to Harbor City. I heard he has his eyes on an entertainment company that’s going to close down and go for sale.”

Dawson furrowed his brows. He did not have any opinions about Jasper going into the entertainment industry, but he had a feeling that something bad would happen because he remembered that the Hanks had also sent Zayden to Harbor City.

However, he had already reminded Jasper. Judging from his personality, anyone in this world would suffer a loss before him.

Dawson unfurrowed his brows when he thought about this. He said to his daughter who was almost turning into the Widow’s Rock, “Let’s go, your Aunt Zoey has already arranged for you to learn under the head of Financial Affairs, so you have to learn from her. If not, you won’t be able to handle Jasper’s humongous business empire in the future.”

Life at the Top Chapter 116

Wendy put her arms around Dawson's neck and said coquettishly, "Dad, you're the best."

Dawson patted the back of Wendy's hands, which were crossed in front of his body, and said, "You're my one and only daughter. Who else would I do all of this for, if not you?"

"The shares of JW Real Estates are already in your name. In the future, I'll entrust the management team of the entire real estate company to you.

"Is this appropriate though?" Wendy betrayed some hesitation.

"I'm giving it to you as a gift, so of course it's appropriate. Jasper's a smart man, he understands my intentions."

Dawson pondered for a moment, then continued, "Jasper is an outstanding young man. His future won't be limited to just this province. The entire country, or an even larger stage—that's where he should go.

"I want to seize the opportunity now to arrange a large dowry for you so that no matter where Jasper ends up in the future, you will always have sufficient authority to speak up."

Wendy frowned and said, "Dad, I haven't even thought this far ahead yet. What's more, Jasper isn't that kind of person."

"I don't think he is either," Dawson commented, smiling.

"However, given he's such an excellent young man, do you think he'd ever have a shortage of philanderers and lascivious women around him? Even if he does remain faithful to you till the end, you won't lack for rivals. The shares of the JW Estate, as well as the future Schuler Group are the bargaining chips I'm giving you.

"This isn't for you to strive for favor. It's for you to always have enough to intimidate the women who want to get close to him, so that they'll back off once they're aware of the overwhelming odds against them."

...

"I've received inside information that Sylva has fully retired and no longer manages anything within the Hanks family. However, Zayden Hanks has been dispatched to Harbor City, so you need to beware."

On the plane, Jasper narrowed his eyes slightly, recalling the news Dawson had given him just before departure.

It seemed as if the Hanks family really did intend to keep some lingering influence.

Before Sylva fully relinquished his position, he had used the last of his resources and connections to send Zayden to Harbor City.

Surely he was counting on Zayden to open up new prospects in Harbor City to plot their comeback, father and son.

From this, Jasper could also consider himself as having gained insight into the power of this sort of large, deeply-rooted family.

It was absolutely true that old institutions died hard. Even at this point, Sylva's reach could still extend into Harbor City.

However, the proverbial currents of Harbor City ran many times deeper than that of the province—they were powerful enough that the Law family still did not dare proclaim itself the king of Harbor City.

What could Zayden Hanks alone stir up within Harbor City, even if he had the capital that Sylva had given him?

These were just the ravings of a lunatic.

As the plane lifted off into the air, Jasper closed his eyes and temporarily put aside the affairs of the Hanks family.

He still had a tough battle to fight in Harbor City.

Three hours later, the plane eventually landed at the Harbor City International Airport.

As he came out of the airport after going through Customs, from far away, Jasper noticed a Rolls-Royce parked conspicuously by the side of the road.

In Harbor City, one could customize the numbers and letters on their own license plates.

For example, a car with a single number 9 on its license plate belonged to a tycoon in the entertainment industry of Harbor City. Anyone would recognize it anywhere; it was worth 13 million Harbor dollars.

Furthermore, the license plate of the Rolls-Royce before his eyes was known to everyone in Harbor City.

LAW.

These 3 letters represented the Law family.

As for the value of that particular license plate... Unless they were mad, no one would even consider trying to buy this license plate, no matter what the price. That would be the equivalent of a death wish.

“Mainla... Mr. Laine, you...you have quite the reputation.”

Henry Law, who was standing by the car, had spoken of out of habit before immediately realizing that he had said the wrong thing. After forcibly correcting himself, his face was still wooden with displeasure.

“This is Old Master Law’s car. He requested the driver to pick you up with this vehicle to show how much the Law family values you.”

The person who spoke was Anna Law.

Life at the Top Chapter 117

“Please extend my gratitude to the old master on my behalf,” Jasper said sincerely to Anna.

Although it were the Laws who had asked for him, they had treated him with enough respect in all aspects regardless.

Jasper was not one to have an exaggerated opinion of his own ability. He respected Old Master Law, and his words were spoken from the heart.

“You should convey this to the old master yourself,” Anna said with a smile.

“Alright, Little Sis. You’ve picked up the man, I’m leaving now.” Henry took the opportunity to say this just as Jasper was getting into the car.

Anna furrowed her brows and said, “Grandfather wants to invite Jasper for dinner at home tonight. Where are you running off to?”

“Oh shucks, Grandfather also knows that I don’t fancy these kinds of occasions. I’ve already made plans with a friend, so I’ll be going off first.”

As Henry finished saying this, he sped off in a hurry.

Anna sighed. Turning around, she got into the car.

The same moment the driver started the car, Anna said to Jasper apologetically, “My brother, he is in truth a bit rude, so please don’t mind him.”

“Not at all. From the way he sees it, we’re simply not individuals from the same world. It’s not surprising that we might not have things to talk about.” Jasper actually understood this clearly.

“Apart from his group of scoundrels, who else would be of the same world as he?” said Anna unhappily.

As they sat in the car, there was a faint feminine fragrance coming from his side. This fragrance was not heady and carried with it the slight scent of perfume.

Ordinary women certainly wore perfume as not all women had a natural bodily fragrance. Like for Wendy, she did not really fancy using perfume as her body was naturally pleasant smelling.

It was different for Anna, though. The perfume on her body was supplemented by the scent of her own body, making it even more fragrant. Even though it was not heavy, the level of its intensity was one that tugged at heartstrings the most.

Jasper felt some discomfort sitting in the same car with both of them so close together.

They were so close that the two could clearly feel each other’s breath and heartbeat.

“This is the first time you came to Harbor City...”

“This is the first time I’m in Harbor City...”

The both of them opened their mouths and spoke at the same time, then stopped at the same time as well.

Looking at each other, the two began laughing. The previously awkward but charming atmosphere immediately dispersed.

“You speak first,” Anna said softly.

Jasper smiled lightly. “I wanted to say that this is my first time coming to Harbor City and I’m not familiar with the place. I’d like to ask you to bring me around Harbor City later. I heard that Victoria Harbor is the most beautiful at night.”

Anna’s face turned a faint red. She nodded and said, “I was just about to say the same. I’ll be your tour guide when you’re free tomorrow.”

As they chatted happily, the car drove quietly on the road and gradually left the bustling city.

Sassoon Road, Repulse Bay. As the top wealthiest district of Harbor City, almost all of the four wealthiest and most powerful families in Harbor City lived here.

33 was the residence of the Law family.

In Harbor City, the huge gap between the rich and the poor could be seen from the housing.

99% of the people in Harbor City lived in cramped ‘coffin rooms’ with family members essentially piling up on one another.

For a large family like the Laws, the area occupied by their house was so extravagant that their wealth had soared within this rich port city.

Entering through the gates of the villa and bypassing the garden lawn, Jasper then arrived at the door of the villa.

To his surprise, Zachary Law himself was actually waiting at the door.

This action showed that the Laws were really treating him like a distinguished guest!

Life at the Top Chapter 118

Jasper, we meet again.”

Zachary walked over with a loud laugh when he saw Jasper getting down from the car.

As he spoke, he smiled heartily while firmly shaking hands with Jasper and patting Jasper’s shoulder with his free hand.

Jasper smiled and replied, “I’m sorry to bother you with my coming to Harbor City this time.”

Zachary returned with a smile as well and said, “It’s no bother. It’s our responsibility to host you as the owner of this place.”

With that, Zachary guided Jasper into the manor. He said as he walked, “How’s the scenery of Harbor City on the way from the airport?”

Jasper thought for a moment and sincerely said, “I saw prosperity along the way. I also saw opportunities everywhere.”

Zachary said meaningfully, “Young people are full of vitality. Your vision is indeed different.

“C’mon, the old master is in the backyard. I’ve talked to him about you and he really wants to meet you,” Zachary said.

Following Zachary to the backyard, Jasper saw an elderly man in loose, everyday clothes wearing a straw hat. He was doing weeding work in a small vegetable garden.

Frankly speaking, Jasper really did not expect this to be how his first meeting with the corporate legend Old Master Law would turn out.

“Typically, when the old master has nothing to do, he likes to keep himself busy in this small vegetable garden. There’s nothing we can do about it,” Zachary explained and then walked toward the vegetable garden.

At this moment, Old Master Law saw the two of them. Ignoring Zachary who was walking over, he beckoned to Jasper and motioned for him to come over.

Jasper entered the vegetable garden and smiled. “Old Master, you’re as fit as fiddle.”

The old master was born in 1923 and was now at a venerable age of 77.

Old Master Law leaned on the garden hoe, his forehead slightly sweaty. He took in a breath and smiled. “There’s a lack of energy to do other things when one is old, but it instead feels meaningful to be in a vegetable garden.

“C’mere, youngin, come over and talk.”

Jasper went to the old master’s side. The two of them finally had the opportunity to take a good look at each other at this moment.

The old master was very lean. He was not a tall man, nor was he what novels might describe as ruthlessly ambitious or intractable. His whole bearing was not redolent of the domineering aura of the sort of people who enjoyed simply lording over everyone.

On the contrary, he looked more like an ordinary old farmer. It was just that his eyes were very bright. Although he was nearly 80 years old, his gaze was not murky but full of vitality.

The old master scanned Jasper from head to toe and complimented, “Not bad.”

“Youngin, come here and have a look. How’s my vegetable garden?” the old master asked rather proudly.

Jasper looked over and noticed that the vegetable garden was not big, but it was obvious that someone took great care of it every day. Some of the vegetables were growing up well.

If it were ordinary people, they would be racking their brains to think of praise and flattery regardless of the situation.

Jasper, however, shook his head. “Old Master, you’ve planted them wrongly.”

The old master was taken aback. He asked, “How is it wrong?”

Jasper pointed to a tomato seedling and the cucumber seedling next to it, saying, “Old Master, tomatoes and cucumbers cannot be planted together. Cucumbers have relatively shallow roots and need to be watered regularly, but tomatoes are the opposite. They have deep roots and low water requirements.

“If these two are planted together, either the cucumbers will die from underwatering or the tomatoes will die from overwatering. Only a child born in a farmer’s family like me would know such things.”

The old master slapped his forehead and said with a sudden realization, “So that’s why I’ve been unable to grow the tomatoes. Alas, knowledge obtained from books indeed feels shallow.”

Zachary, who was not far away, was sweating profusely.

He never really expected the old master and Jasper, where the age gap between the two was more than 50 years, to have such a great conversation on the topic of growing vegetables.

Anna, who had come over to his side at some point, burst out laughing.

“What are you laughing at?” Zachary asked curiously.

Anna looked at the two people in the vegetable garden and said, “Before this, Grandpa wouldn’t even listen when told to rest more, but it’s alright now. Grandpa will probably be embarrassed to show off the garden hoe again now that somebody has revealed his flaws.”

Life at the Top Chapter 119

At this moment, Old Master Law smiled and said to Jasper, “As a matter of fact, you’ll understand how to be a person after living long. The principle is the same when it comes to growing vegetables.

“From loosening the soil to sowing the seeds, fertilizing and watering, then waiting for the flowers to bloom and bear fruit; each process has to be done meticulously in its rightful order.

“Problems may occur at every stage. If the quality of the soil is not good enough, the seeds won’t grow. Too much fertilizer and the roots will burn, but too little fertilizer and they will wilt. Too much water and the veggies will be waterlogged, but too little water and they will dry up. Everything has to be just right.”

Jasper nodded in deep agreement. “The smallest piece of land may be no more than a few square feet, but it still possesses great wisdom.”

Old Master Law said cheerfully, “I heard from Zachary that you promised to help the Law family earn back the nine billion?”

Jasper said solemnly, “I’m certain of it.”

However, Old Master Law waved his hand and said, “There’s no need to feel pressured. The Law family enjoys making friends, even more so with young talents like you.

“When there’s a lot of money, it’s just a string of numbers. The Law family is still the Law family regardless of that nine billion. You don’t have to worry about it.”

Jasper smiled and said, "I am, of course, impressed that Old Master Law is able to look at the bright side of things, but I plan to seize this opportunity to lay a solid foundation for myself, so I can't let it slip by."

"If there's anything you need, you can let Zachary know. The Law family will provide you with all the help you need," Old Master Law said.

"Thank you, Old Master Law." Jasper did not pretend to be modest.

Showing up in Harbor City and standing in the Law family's manor had already proven the alliance between the two parties.

The Law family needed him, and he also needed the Law family.

The main intention when it came to helping each other out was to form an alliance.

"I'm tired, I'll be heading upstairs to rest. You can look around the Law family's manor while you wait to have dinner together in the evening," said Old Master Law.

"Alright," Jasper smiled and said.

The two of them walked out of the vegetable garden with Jasper right behind Old Master Law.

"Dad, don't work on this vegetable garden anymore. Just leave it to the servants," said Zachary.

"Grandpa, I'll help you upstairs," Anna said with a sweet smile.

"It's still my granddaughter who understands me." Old Master Law smiled and patted Anna's hand, then said to Zachary peevishly, "You just need to mind your business. I don't see any prospects from you even at this age, yet you still want to lecture me every day?"

Jasper stood beside Zachary and watched Old Master Law leave.

It would be too foolish to think that he was just an ordinary old man because of his appearance.

This old man was considered to be the real hero of Harbor City!

Like any other wealthy family, even the richest Caucasian family, the Langdon family, had encountered violent criminals kidnapping their son. However, the Law family had for many years stood firm against the wind and rain. No one from either law enforcement or the mafias dared to touch them and why was that?

It was because Old Master Law of the Law family was still around.

This old man was a big shot who had connections in both sides of the laws and clever means. The Law family had also been involved in arms dealings back in the early years.

Besides, very few people knew that the Law family held a lot of shares in the gambling industry in Harbor City. Back then, the king of gambling had offended Old Master Law and the latter said to him, "Never step into Harbor City for as long as I live."

The king of gambling was so scared that he had yet to step into Harbor City till this day.

In the past, it was only after Old Master Law died did the king of gambling dare enter Harbor City free and easy again.

It could be seen that while Old Master Law had long retired and was busy with this vegetable garden every day, his name could still keep the entirety of Harbor City and Auma City in his control.

There was a saying that everyone in the elite circle knew.

Old Master Law was the first and only true top businessman since the economic reformation.

It was not an exaggeration to say that Old Master Law's ability had surpassed the heavens!

Life at the Top Chapter 120

“Jasper, I heard you started an investment company in Mainland?”

After Old Master Law had gone upstairs to have a rest, Zachary took Jasper for a walk in the backyard and asked the latter casually.

Jasper was not surprised that Zachary knew about this.

After all, investigating his background would be an effortless task for the Law family and their capabilities.

“My capabilities are limited and I can’t perform specific tasks, so I can only provide the money and let the professionals do what the professionals do best,” Jasper smiled and said.

Zachary laughed and then said, “The lower-class work using effort, the middle-class work using talent, and the upper-class work using people.”

Jasper chuckled and said, “In fact, in my opinion, this is a golden age, especially in Mainland where opportunities are everywhere. Start a little earlier and you may have some preemptive opportunities in the future.”

Zachary nodded and said, “Your investment company has invested in an internet company called Terizone Inc.. You seem to be very optimistic about the internet industry?”

Jasper nodded. “The internet is the general trend of the future. This is what the generation has chosen.”

Zachary did not comment on that.

Jasper knew very well that all the rich and powerful in Harbor City of today were still sticking to traditional industries apart from a few others.

It was not that traditional industries did not make money, but these people had become accustomed to cultivating deeply in the field they were good at.

They did not understand the internet, nor were they optimistic about it.

The issue of the rich having limited vision was not exclusive to Harbor City. It was the same in many places.

“The present performance of the internet companies in the stock market indeed makes people green with envy,” Zachary said.

“The Law family also has some investments in Harbor City’s stocks, but the current turmoil in Harbor City’s stocks has been treacherous and the market is a bit unpredictable. Several recent investments have failed, and comments against the Law family from the outside world are uproarious, which is very troublesome.”

Jasper immediately recalled something about the Law family from the memory of his previous life.

In his previous life, the Law family at this time had suffered a loss of nine billion as well and had been looking for opportunities to earn back what they had lost.

However, matters in the financial world could never be done in a hurry.

The Law family had made several investments. Although there were gains and losses and still a slight profit overall, it was not worth mentioning when compared to their investments and the risks taken.

For example, if one earned 10,000 from spending a million while risking the possible loss of half a million, should one really think that such an investment was successful?

It was without a doubt, a failure.

That was because the cost and risks were too high and not worth the profits.

Furthermore, according to the timeline, the Law family should have bought Hansel Index by now.

This was the Law family's last financial investment because they had lost 800 million at once in this investment.

800 million was not a big deal for the Law family, but this failure had driven the family to completely abandon the financial capital market and return to the traditional industries of real estate and shipbuilding.

"Is Mr. Law betting that Harbor City's stocks will fall?" Jasper asked according to the information from the memory of his previous life.

Zachary said in surprise, "Yes, how do you know?"

Jasper thought for a moment and said, "Can you look at Harbor City's stocks here at home, Mr. Law?"

Zachary nodded. "Come with me."

With Zachary's guidance, Jasper came to a study room.

After switching on the computer, Zachary ushered Jasper to take a seat in front of the computer while he himself stood by and watched.

"How much did the Law family buy?" Jasper asked.

"One billion."

Zachary sighed. "Because the stock that we're betting on is falling, the recent rise in Hansel Index also means that the Law family account now has a loss of at least 200 million.

"But we're ready to increase our investment. As long as the Hansel Index drops later, we will not only gain back our previous losses but also earn a lot of money!"

Jasper smiled, shook his head, and said, "Mr. Law, you and your analyst, along with most of the richest people in Harbor City, are wrong."

Since his rebirth, Jasper knew very well that Hansel Index Harbor City's stock will continue to rise above 18,000 points soon, maybe even today.

What was more, the burst of the internet economy bubble that was soon to come would cause the Hansel Index to plummet immediately, erasing more than 100 billion worth of wealth in an instant.

Three years later, under Harbor City's rooftops, there would be many bodies of those who jumped off buildings due to their bankruptcy.

"What do you mean? Do you think it'll rise above 18,000 points?" Zachary asked in astonishment.

Jasper nodded and said, "It's now the last carnival of the capital and the amount involved has reached trillions of dollars!"

"Besides, the stock market of both Harbor City and the United States are closely intertwined. Several of the major financial giants have poured in nearly one trillion dollars in funds with the prosperity of the internet economy, and good news will continue to come."

Zachary frowned deeply. He paced a few steps at where he was before looking at Jasper seriously, asking, "What would you do if it were you?"

"Accept all the losses, then take out as much cash as possible to buy it all up!"

Jasper raised his head and looked at Zachary. The corners of his mouth were slightly raised, making him look confident and crazed.

“The Hansel Index will definitely surpass 18,000 points!”

Although he was mentally prepared, Zachary still found it a little outrageous in the face of Jasper’s confidence.

“With this back and forth, there’s at least a billion-level gap. Are you confident that it will be as you think?”

Zachary asked seriously.

Jasper tapped his finger on the tabletop lightly and said indifferently, “Mr. Law, if you believe in me, just do as I say. If you don’t, it’s useless no matter how much I say!”

Life at the Top Chapter 121

“Why don’t you stay here and rest for a while? I’m going out real quick,” Zachary muttered.

Jasper took a sip of the coffee the servant brought him.

The pure Blue Mountain coffee produced in Jamaica was a good coffee that could hardly be found in any other ordinary coffee shops out there.

Nevertheless, Jasper missed his plain tea that cost 50 dollars a pound more.

Jasper was not surprised by the considerations Zachary mentioned.

He had just formed an alliance with the Laws. Even though the Laws recognized his status and ability, taking into consideration his crude oil futures record as well...

This was the first time one billion in funds was involved. No one could afford to bear the responsibility if there was a loss.

As the Laws’ current person in charge, Zachary needed to be cautious.

After Zachary got out of the study, he went upstairs straightaway and knocked on Old Master Law’s door.

“Come in.”

Old Master Law’s voice carried a trace of weariness.

When Zachary entered the room, he saw his daughter Anna massaging Old Master Law's shoulders and recounted what just happened.

"He's that confident?"

Old Master Law raised his eyelids and asked.

Zachary let out a bitter smile. "I've never seen anyone with so much confidence when it comes to capital market forecasts."

"What do you think?" Old Master Law asked lightly.

"If this fails, Dad, let's not talk about the loss we're going to suffer when the public opinion is already unfavorable enough to the Laws. If this problem crops up, it might affect other businesses of the Laws."

Zachary stated his concerns.

Harbor City's four giants were all wealthy families with a net worth of well over several hundreds of billions of Harbor Dollars, even after conversion to US Dollars, it was still well over ten billion in assets.

The Laws could easily bear the loss of several billion Harbor Dollars!

The problem, however, was that this sequence of bad news would affect other businesses of the Laws, which would then trigger a domino effect, resulting in more losses.

This would shake the Laws' foundation!

Ever since the Laws suffered a loss of nine billion Harbor Dollars that year, their investments had since failed more than they succeeded. There were numerous people who were pessimistic about them.

The Laws were in desperate need of a victory to defend themselves.

The Laws could not afford to lose. Not only in money but also in reputation.

The silence in the room had turned the air stagnant.

“Grandpa, Dad, I have something to say,” Anna said.

Old Master Law smiled and said, “Go on, then. I’m listening.”

Anna thought for a moment and said, “You once said before that the business field is filled with people who are trying to outwit others, but those who have managed to grow their business must not have a lack of trust toward others.

“This is a partnership between people. Now that we have chosen Jasper as our ally, that means we value him, and naturally, he values us even more.

“This is the first suggestion he has made, and he knows better than us how important this suggestion is. If this fails, then this will have an adverse effect on our subsequent alliances and cooperations, so he will be more worried about failing than us.”

Anna said with a smile, “Under circumstances like these, he still gave the advice anyway, so I think we should muster the courage of the Laws.”

After she said those words, Old Master Law let out a smile and patted the back of Anna’s hand that was resting on his shoulder. He said, “Good girl, you have said the things I wanted to hear.”

With that, Old Master Law got up and said to Zachary, “You’ve lived for more than 40 years yet aren’t as discerning as your own daughter. Why, when the Laws are in your hands, did you turn so apprehensive all of a sudden? Do you think you can support the Laws yourself when I’m no longer around one day?”

Zachary looked slightly embarrassed but also quite pleased at the same time.

Onlookers saw most of the game. After his daughter's reminder, Zachary understood the stakes involved and made his choice.

Life at the Top Chapter 122

After more than ten minutes, Zachary returned.

“Jasp, we will do as you say, but we need you to guide our traders.”

Zachary got straight to the point.

“Let’s not waste any time and get straight into it,” Jasper said.

Zachary nodded and immediately ordered someone to set up the system.

Therefore, Jasper started a video conference with the Laws’ traders in Zachary’s study.

“This is Mr. Laine. From now on, I need you to obey his orders unconditionally.”

After speaking to the traders, Zachary stepped aside.

The traders exchanged glances with each other, obviously a little confused.

One of the men who looked like a manager asked hesitantly, “Mr. Law, are you dissatisfied with our partnership?”

Zachary said, “There’s nothing to be dissatisfied about. Our investment strategy has changed now, so just do as I say. You will still get your commission as usual.”

Having said that, Zachary motioned to Jasper to start giving his orders.

Jasper, who had been watching the trend of the Hansel Index, looked up and said, “Immediately close the position according to the current situation!”

What Jasper meant was to sell all trading orders on hand and acknowledge all losses.

However, the first order that Jasper made confused the traders greatly.

The manager was dumbfounded, saying, "If we close the position now, we will lose more than 200 million dollars. More than 200 million dollars! You're a Mainlander, right? Even after converting to Somer Dollar, it's still more than 200 million Somer Dollars!"

"I said to close the position immediately!" Jasper raised his voice.

The stock market changed rapidly with the index fluctuating every second. Jasper would never allow anyone to waste a good opportunity talking nonsense.

The manager grimaced and said, "Are you insane, little boy?"

Jasper turned his head to look at Zachary. This time, his tone was no longer polite as he said sternly, "Mr. Law, I need a trader team that will obey me fully."

Zachary looked at the manager coldly and said, "Gordon Liam, Mr. Laine's words are mine, do you understand?"

Gordon gritted his teeth and glared at Jasper through the screen. His heart was filled with extreme disdain.

This young boy was at most in his 20s. The Laws must be mad to hire a boy like him to direct the traders.

However, Gordon was not brave enough to disobey Zachary, hence he could only clench his teeth and say, "I understand."

Seeing this, the traders started closing down the Laws' one billion transaction orders.

“We have closed the position successfully. We’ve suffered a paper loss of 248.64 million Harbor Dollars with 741.36 million Harbor Dollars left,” a trader reported.

Zachary grimaced. Although he had already prepared himself for this, he was still annoyed when he heard the numbers.

“Pending orders, Hansel Index, direction, bullish and going long, 17,980 points, full position.”

Jasper locked his fingers together and placed them under his chin, staring at the screen while giving his second order.

Zachary’s mouth twitched.

The market trend was falling, but as soon as Jasper removed the previous transactions, he planned to go long immediately.

Even though he was already mentally prepared for operations like that, he was still filled with apprehension nonetheless.

From the market trend’s perspective, he was going against the market completely.

Gordon could not help it anymore and roared furiously.

“Motherf*cker, do you even know the stock market at all!?”

Life at the Top Chapter 123

Gordon pointed at the market and sniggered. “This market is obviously choppy and declining. Motherf*cker, you’re actually calling me to go long right now?”

“If the market goes up today, kid, I’ll take my underwear off and eat it!

“Mr. Law, we may not be the first in Harbor City, but we have served numerous aristocratic families in the past. We had a pretty pleasant time working together before this, but now this little boy suddenly pops out of nowhere speaking all kinds of nonsense. Is he burning the Laws’ money like paper for fun?”

Gordon looked at Zachary with a cold expression as Zachary remained silent.

“Even a three-year-old can tell that he’s going against the market. You may end up losing one billion dollars...”

“Mr. Law,” Jasper said lightly.

Zachary looked over.

“I suggest you cut off all partnerships with Mr. Liam immediately!”

Jasper’s cold and firm orders entered Gordon’s ears clearly.

Gordon was so furious his lungs nearly exploded. He let out a scornful laugh. “You b*stard. You think you’re so great, huh? Motherf*cker! Who do you think you are? I, Gordon Liam, am famous amongst all the traders in Harbor City...”

“Gordon.”

Zachary raised his eyelids and stared at Gordon who was still chattering non-stop.

“From now on, the Laws will stop all partnerships with you, so please shut up right now. As for the other traders, do as Mr. Laine says. If I hear one more word of nonsense, I’ll take this to your boss, Harrison Zeigler.”

Zachary’s position was perfectly clear, and his words silenced the entire team of traders.

Everyone turned to look at Gordon.

Gordon’s expression looked extremely ghastly and awkward.

He did not expect Zachary to actually go nuts and be so dead set on listening to Jasper’s command.

Gordon’s mouth began to twitch, then he sneered and said, “Okay, Mr. Law. That’s your money, do whatever you want!”

Gordon did not lose his rationality no matter how furious he was. In Harbor City, very few dared to go against the Laws, not to mention Zachary, the second-generation patriarch!

Gordon did not leave either and simply stood by to watch. He would like to see the exciting changes on their faces when Zachary blew up his account.

“Do you need me to repeat my previous command?” Jasper asked coldly.

The traders stopped talking nonsense and got straight to work.

A split second later, a massive long position order hit the Hansel Index.

Although the amount reached nearly 800 million, it was only a drop in the ocean for the entire Hansel Stock Index, hence it did not cause a stir at all.

However, many people noticed the massive order and ridiculed this silly man who had too much money to spare for going against the market when the market was going down.

Meanwhile, in Harrington Capital's office, Harbor City's top-notch financial investment company.

"Is someone bucking the market and going long?"

Wallace Langdon, the man who made it to the list of the richest men in Europe four years ago, watched the market trend with great interest.

Although the richest man in Europe had now changed to Joe, whose last name was also Langdon, no one dared to underestimate Wallace's ability.

"Interesting. I wonder which company in Harbor City is this? Or perhaps, a foreign investor?"

Wallace pondered and picked up the phone on the desk before muttering into it, "It's me. Someone has started trading. Don't waste any more time. Release the news. It's going to be a rough night."

Having said that, Wallace hung up the phone, leaned back in the executive chair, and squinted his eyes to look at the massive order buried in the vast sea of transaction data.

At the same time in the Laws' study.

"Are you confident?" Zachary asked.

Jasper thought he was worried and said with a smile, "Of course."

Zachary nodded and said in a deep voice, "Since you're so confident, I can bring in another two billion within ten minutes."

Though Jasper knew that the Laws were rich, he was still shocked by Zachary's generosity. He was just about to say something when the market fluctuated.

"It's too late."

Jasper stared fixedly at the market and burst out laughing. "The market has already begun!"

As soon as Jasper said those words, Zachary turned over immediately to look and saw the telecommunication services sector leading the gain. They were driving the electronic technology sectors with it, causing them to skyrocket at once.

The skyrocketing of individual stocks drove the sector, and several sectors were driven at the same time, which caused the market to soar immediately.

Hansel Index jumped from 17,979 points to more than ten points. From the market perspective, it looked like a giant dragon lying flat on its belly raising its head ever so slightly.

"Hurry, switch to the Economy Channel on the TV!" Jasper hastened to say.

There was no servant in the study, so Zachary took action immediately after hearing what Jasper said. He took on the role of a servant and switched on the TV, changing the channel to the Economy Channel.

Although Jasper did not understand Harbor City's language, he could roughly make out what the host was saying from looking at the pictures on the screen.

"The U.S. Nasdaq and the New York Stock Exchange have hit all-time highs! The internet industry has contributed a lot to this huge wave of rising prices.

“The stock markets of countries around the world have risen due to the U.S. stock market’s influence...”

“Will Harbor City’s Hansel Index break through the 18,000-point mark by taking advantage of the positive news in the global stock market?”

“We have invited our stock review experts specifically...”

The market was still soaring. Harbor City’s financial market was extremely sensitive. At this critical moment, the Harbor City government suddenly released a piece of news.

“Harbor City government will, with the support from Mainland, introduce a series of policies beneficial to the stock market development!”

The Hansel Index had already accumulated enough momentum to start with and broke through the 18,000-point mark with the help of this news.

Both long and short parties launched a fierce offensive around the 18,000-point mark, and a massive amount of funds gathered in the Hansel Index market with tens to hundreds of millions of transactions per second.

Driven by the good news, Zachary held his racing heart and stared at the screen. They had broken through the 18,000-point mark!

“The dragon is about to raise its head!”

Jasper lowered his head, took a sip of Blue Mountain, and chuckled.

At this moment in the video conference, the face of Gordon, who had been waiting to see Jasper make a fool of himself and for Zachary to regret his decision, turned pale.

He stared fixedly at the market as if he had lost his soul.

“How could it be? It has only been a few minutes. He buys long and the market actually rises? It can't be...

“Not only did he win all the previous losses, but he even made an extra 100 million!

“How did he predict it?”

Gordon broke out in a cold sweat at the sight of Jasper who remained ridiculously calm at the moment...

Life at the Top Chapter 124

“I should have mobilized the funds sooner and make an extra one billion!” Zachary put on a pitiable expression.

Jasper said calmly, “This is just the appetizer. There will soon be another wave, and that will be your chance to earn a fortune. However, not many can laugh when that happens.”

Zachary looked at Jasper with mixed emotions and said, “I really wonder if you can foresee the future.”

This was not the first time Jasper had heard similar words.

Wendy Schuler and Dawson Schuler had said similar things.

With a chuckle, Jasper stood up and said, “18,000 point is an important threshold. Since you have broken through that threshold, it will continue to rise for at least a few days. When it’s around 18,400 points, you can then choose to close the position.”

“Okay, I will let the rest know.”

Zachary nodded. Right now in the financial sector, he had zero doubts when it came to Jasper’s words.

“Mr. Liam, do you want me to wait for you to take off your underwear?” Jasper asked, looking at the dazed-looking Gordon on the screen.

Gordon came back to his senses, his complexion alternating between blue and white. He opened his mouth and was about to speak when Jasper had already walked out of the study.

Gordon felt even more aggrieved now.

He could tell that the young boy had not taken him seriously from the start!

Zachary glanced at him and said coldly, “Hand in your resignation to Harrison yourself. You can at least find a job in another company that way. If I do it for you, then you should probably get ready to leave Harbor City for good.”

Having said that, Zachary turned around and walked off without taking a look at the ghastly-looking Gordon.

At the Laws’ dinner table were exquisite and distinct dishes—all a perfect combination of color, aroma, taste, and appearance

Zachary recounted the incident that happened that afternoon.

Although Old Master Law and Anna already knew about the investment, they did not expect the result to come out so soon. It was one in which they seized a total victory too.

“When the market closed just now, we already had 300 million dollars of paper profit. Not only did we make up for our previous loss of over 200 million dollars, but we also made an extra 100 million dollars.

“According to Jasp, if we hit the 18,400-point mark, then our profit will hit around 600-700 million.”

As Zachary spoke, he could not help but look at Jasper in admiration.

How could it possibly be so easy to earn profits in this world?

When he thought about it, the Laws were a big family that owned major industries as well, but making a net profit of six to seven billion was simply no easy feat.

Not to mention Jasper did it with just a cup of coffee.

“The capital market carries risks. Profit can come very quickly but go even quicker. If I wasn’t really confident about this, then I wouldn’t have done anything at all,” Jasper said with a smile.

Old Master Law nodded and said, “Yes, it’s important to look at the profit, but even more so at the risks involved.”

As Old Master Law said those words, he glanced at Zachary and asked, “Where’s Henry?”

Next to him, Anna replied, “He went out and said he’ll come home late.”

Old Master Law snorted and said, “Henry is two years older than Jasp, but look at the difference between them.”

Zachary said with a sullen expression, “I’ll make sure to discipline him well.”

“You’ve disciplined him for more than 20 years now, do you see any improvements yet?” Old Master Law was obviously a little displeased.

“Jasp, can I ask you for a favor?”

Upon hearing what Old Master Law said, Jasper hastened to say, “Please go ahead, Old Master Law. I will try my best to help you as long as it is within the scope of my abilities.”

“During your time in Harbor City, bring Henry along with you and teach him so he can learn a thing or two from you.” Old Master Law made an astonishing statement.

Jasper did not expect Old Master Law to make this request at all. The face of Henry, the trust fund baby, popped up in his mind, and he suddenly let out a wry smile. “That’s a huge challenge for me, Old Master Law.”

Life at the Top Chapter 125

“You don’t have to do anything. Let him follow you and be influenced by you. Let him see what a truly outstanding peer looks like. Tell him I’m the one who made the arrangements, and if he doesn’t listen to you, come to me.”

Jasper looked at Zachary, hoping that he could say something for him.

In the end, Zachary nodded his head appreciatively. “Yes, it’s time that kid faces the world.”

Failing to get Zachary to help him, he pondered and said, “If that’s the case, Old Master Law and Mr. Law, I’ll give you my word for now, but I must make it clear that Young Master Law and I don’t get along very well, so we might have some conflicts with each other.”

Zachary said, “Rest assured about this. Anna will come with you. Henry is most afraid of Anna and will listen to everything she says, and if he doesn’t, come to me or Old Master Law. Spare the rod and spoil the child. We can’t let Henry go on living his life like this any longer.”

After obtaining Zachary’s reassurance, Jasper picked up the glass and smiled. “Here’s a toast to the three of you. Thank you for your hospitality.”

Grand Old Master Law laughed, picked up his glass, and said, “Okay, we hope you’ve thoroughly enjoyed yourself.”

Old Master Law was getting on in years, and he left the venue to rest while they were still having their meal.

Zachary drank a little more with Jasper before going back to work.

As the person in charge of the big Law family, Zachary was much busier than what outsiders thought. According to Anna, there were only two out of ten days when Zachary would eat at home.

After dinner, Anna sent Jasper to the hotel.

This time, Anna drove her own car.

A brand new Porsche 911.

In Harbor City's circle of trust fund babies, this car was already very low-key.

Sitting in the car, Anna turned around and asked Jasper, "Mind if I ask you a question?"

"Go ahead."

"What would you have done if your investment failed today?" Anna asked.

Jasper smiled and said, "I haven't thought about your question, actually. I knew that I wouldn't fail."

"Is that confidence or arrogance?" Anna asked with slight interest.

Jasper chuckled and shrugged, saying, "If I win, then that's confidence; if I lose, then that's arrogance."

Mandarin Oriental Hotel.

It was the most luxurious hotel in Harbor City that specialized in receiving important foreign dignitaries.

The most luxurious imperial suites here would cost more than one million Harbor Dollars per night.

This time, Jasper stayed in this said imperial suite, and that just showed how much the Laws valued him.

The Laws booked the room for Jasper for half a month.

Anna and Jasper had just arrived downstairs of the hotel when they heard the harsh sound of a car braking.

A Lamborghini pulled over domineeringly in the middle of the road with its window rolled down. A young and handsome face was staring expressionlessly at Jasper.

“Who is this person, Anna?” the man sitting in the Lamborghini asked coldly.

“My friend.” Anna frowned. She then turned around and smiled at Jasper.
“Should I take you upstairs?”

Jasper could tell that Anna clearly did not want to have anything to do with this young man and said in a considerate manner, “Yes, please.”

Anna chuckled and walked into the hotel lobby with Jasper.

The car door opened upward, and Zane Lancaster got out of the car, rushing into the lobby with a gloomy expression to catch up with the two.

“I don’t care who you are but I’m warning you, stay away from Anna,” Zane said coldly, staring fixedly at Jasper.

Life at the Top Chapter 126

“He’s my friend, Zane, show some respect!”

Anna’s face was covered in frost as she stood beside Jasper without hesitation and chided Zane.

Zane brushed the tip of his nose, paying no heed to Anna’s words.

When he swept his gaze at Jasper’s luggage with an air freight label, his expression changed slightly.

“You’re from the Mainland?” Zane sneered.

“It turns out you’re from the Mainland. No wonder I’ve never seen you around here. What’s wrong? Trying to come here and make a fortune? If you want to make money, we can give you some, but you need to know your place. Harbor City is nothing like your poor Mainland, you hear me?”

“I thought that most of the young people in Harbor City are knowledgeable, have class, and are talented like Anna. Turns out it isn’t the case,” Jasper said faintly.

Even in 2020, there were still many self-opinionated people who thought they were superior and thus looked down on Mainlanders just because they were from Harbor City.

Zane’s complexion changed as he raged. “Hey, Mainlander, who are you calling ignorant and having no class? How dare a Mainlander like you say that I have no class?”

“I’m referring to the one who’s mad about this.” Jasper shrugged.

Having said that, Jasper turned his head and said to Anna, “Let’s go upstairs, there’s no need to waste time on a man like that.”

Zane stared at Jasper with cold eyes and let out an angry smile. “You think you can do whatever you like just because you’re friends with Anna? I can easily squash a Mainlander like you to death.”

As Zane said that, he looked at Anna and said, "Anna, you're a member of the Laws, Harbor City's aristocratic family. Hanging out with a Mainlander like that will only make you look inferior."

Anna glanced at Zane and said, "I think I'll look inferior when I hang out with someone like you."

Having said that, Anna smiled at Jasper and said, "Let's go upstairs. Ignore him."

He watched sullenly as the two figures disappeared into the elevator. Zane clenched his fists and slowly loosened them. It was obvious that he was in a state of great anger.

Just then, Zane heard someone cursing outside the door.

"Motherf*cker, whose damn car is parked in the middle of the road? Does this b*stard have a death wish?"

Already surging with great fury, Zane turned around and rushed outside.

When he walked out of the hotel, Zane saw a young man smashing the window of his Lamborghini with a crowbar.

Though when he saw the man's face, Zane suppressed his rage immediately.

"Young Master Law!?"

When Henry heard his name, he turned around to look with a sullen expression. When he saw Zane, he pointed at the Lamborghini and asked, "This car is yours?"

Zane nodded. He glanced at Henry's Ferrari F12 that was currently sitting in the middle of the road because the Lamborghini was in his way. He looked slightly awkward all of a sudden.

"I smashed it. Do you have anything to say about that?" Henry said with a grin.

Zane let out a dry smile. "You're too polite, Young Master Law."

When he saw how wise Zane was, Henry patted him on the shoulder and said, "I didn't know this is your car, plus I'm in a bad mood today. I'll treat you to dinner later."

In a bad mood?

Zane looked at Mandarin Oriental Hotel before him and asked, "Are you in a bad mood because of that man who's with your sister?"

Henry's expression sank as soon as he heard what he said.

He had received Zachary's call earlier. Zachary wanted him to follow Jasper and learn from him!?

Henry exploded on the spot.

Zachary, however, was unbending. He had also told him that this was Old Master Law's idea.

Life at the Top Chapter 127

When Henry heard that, he stopped clamoring at once.

He knew that there must be a limit to his mischief. As an aristocratic family, the Laws had the strictest parenting style among other top-notch aristocratic families in Harbor City. The seniors in the family had all been displeased with his behavior from a long time ago.

Nevertheless, asking Henry to listen to the Mainlander was worse than killing him.

Henry was about to make a trip to Mandarin Oriental Hotel to warn Jasper against assuming unwanted authority when he bumped into Zane downstairs.

“You met him?” Henry did not answer, but instead, asked a question.

Zane nodded and scowled. “He seems to be very close to Anna.”

Henry smiled when he saw how envious and furious Zane was.

Many of these rich and noble trust fund babies in Harbor City were interested in his sister.

Zane was only one of them, one that was more cowardly too.

Zane’s father, Bob Lancaster, had only four listed companies under his name. He could not even squeeze his way into the list of the top ten tycoons in Harbor City.

To put it nicely, he was only a second-string tycoon. In the eyes of first-class aristocrats like Henry, he was merely a character who was barely qualified to be in their circle.

This insignificant man wanted to marry his sister?

Henry would be the first to smash his head.

Right now, though, he was comparatively more pleasing to the eye than the Mainlander Jasper.

“My sister isn’t the only one close to him, even my dad admires him.” Henry sneered, wearing a disdainful look on his face.

Zane narrowed his eyes and said, “Young Master Law, since you and I both find him to be an eyesore, why don’t I set up a trap tomorrow and humiliate him? I will let him know that Harbor City is nothing like Mainland and that he should learn his place.”

Henry’s eyes lit up, then he sniggered and said, “Okay, I’ll leave this to you, then. But since he’s our guest, I want you to keep a low profile. I don’t want you to cause a major stir.”

Zane said nonchalantly, “Don’t worry, Young Master Law. What kind of commotion could a Mainlander possibly raise in Harbor City? I know my limits.”

“I’ll find a way to ask him out tomorrow and leave the rest to you. Call me when you’re ready.”

Henry and Zane smiled at each other and parted ways.

After giving Anna a call and getting the room number, Henry took the elevator straight to Jasper’s room.

As soon as he walked in and saw Anna and Jasper chatting happily while drinking red wine, Henry's expression sank at once.

"Mainlander..."

"Henry Law!"

Anna cast her cold gaze over.

Henry felt extremely aggrieved when his aura was suppressed before it could even be released. He raged, yelling, "I'm your elder brother. Have you seen other younger sisters calling their elder brothers so rudely?"

Anna chuckled and said, "Sure, I'll stop when you start acting like an elder brother instead of making me clean up your mess every day."

Henry did not bother to refute. He was already used to being the inferior one when it came to Anna.

Henry sat on the couch and poured himself a glass of wine while muttering to himself. He said to Jasper with a grin, "Jasper, my dad told me to follow you and... learn from you?"

"I won't call it learning." Jasper shook his head.

Henry chuckled cheerfully and thought that Jasper was not exactly that ignorant after all. In that case, maybe he should consider working with him to put on an act for his family.

"Let's start by learning how to be a proper human."

Life at the Top Chapter 128

“Pfft... Hahahaha.”

Anna could not help falling on the couch laughing.

Henry’s smile froze on his face. He turned his head and stared at Jasper, seemingly trying to confirm whether Jasper was serious about it.

“There’s no need to stare at me. I can tell you for sure that I’m being serious.”

Jasper shrugged and said, “I know you’re very unwilling. After all, you’re an adult who’s accustomed to being free, and to suddenly have your peer, someone who’s even a few years younger than you, guide you, you will feel more or less humiliated.

“Similarly, I’m in a tough position myself. It’s really awkward for me to have a student who’s older than me.

“So if you can persuade your dad and your grandfather, I will gladly skip this errand.”

As Henry listened to Jasper, he knew what he meant.

“What if you use my dad and the rest to pressure me?” Henry said with a scowl.

“We’re not trying to pressure you. We just want you to know that right now, you can’t resist, nor do you have a choice. You can only listen to me,” Jasper said in a mild tone.

“Don’t even think that I like having to watch over you. I don’t have the time for that. But since Mr. Law and Old Master Law requested it, I will think of a way to transform you so that you’ll stop being a little bug, at least.”

“Who are you calling a little bug!?”

Henry stood up abruptly, roaring while staring at Jasper.

“You.” Jasper put down the wine glass, looked at Henry, and chuckled. “What’s wrong? Want to hit me?”

“You think I’m not brave enough to touch you just because my dad and my grandfather are on your side?” Henry said coldly.

At this moment, Anna stood up and frowned at Henry. “What are you trying to do?”

Henry pointed at Jasper and said to Anna, “Didn’t you hear him calling me a little bug?”

Anna said calmly, “Actually, I think he’s right.”

Henry’s expression sank.

“Look at yourself. What else can you do aside from leading a life of debauchery and hanging out with your prodigal friends? We’re even the ones paying your credit card bills. You’re nothing without your family.”

Anna wanted to use this opportunity to wake Henry up, hence she spoke in a very direct manner.

Henry’s expression was cold and dark. He did not utter a word.

“I’ll talk to him,” Jasper said to Anna.

When he saw how anxious Anna looked, Jasper smiled and said, "Don't worry, if we do fight, this prodigal young master might not necessarily be my match."

"I'm going to the washroom." Anna compromised.

Henry was so furious he laughed out loud. "Are you actually worried that I'll hit him, Sis? Aren't you worried that I'll get beaten up instead?"

"If you get beaten up, that's because you deserve it." Having said that, Anna walked toward the suite's balcony.

After Anna left, Jasper said to Henry casually, "You must be really unhappy about this. I don't intend on pleasing you either, so here's the deal. You have no choice but to listen to me for now.

"Don't be in a hurry to speak yet. If I give your dad or even Old Master Law a call right now and tell them about your attitude, do you think they'll think that I'm being too pushy or will they think that you're a hopeless prodigal?"

Henry was livid and harrumphed. "So you're not going to let me go, huh?"

"Well, you can't say that either!"

Jasper did some stretches and said, "I just want you to understand one thing clearly. You're nothing after you leave the Laws. As for me, I'm a lone wolf, so no one in this world can stop me.

"Take for example, if the Laws cancel your credit card tomorrow, then even simple things like paying for gas will be a problem for you. On the contrary, I earn all my money, so no one can stop me from doing anything."

Life at the Top Chapter 129

Jasper looked at Henry and said in a mild tone, "That's the difference between you and me."

Henry was sullen, feeling very upset and itching to punch Jasper in the face, but he had to admit... Jasper had touched a sore spot.

He would be nothing if he left the Laws. It was true that as soon as his credit card was canceled, he would have no way to pay for gas. It just so happened that his car was running out of gas now...

When he saw Henry's conflicted expression, Jasper tossed him a bait in a timely manner. "If you follow me and learn from me before I leave Harbor City, then I will not only turn you into your father's right-hand man but when it comes to trading, no youngsters in Harbor City will be your match either."

"Really?" Sure enough, Henry was hooked.

Trust fund babies were humans too. Henry was not naturally bad, nor did he want to be a little bug. If given the chance, he was eager to improve more than anyone.

Judging from his past life, the future Henry would come to his senses later in his life. After marrying the queen of diving in accordance with his family's arrangement, he then started to manage his family's business in an orderly manner as well.

Therefore, it had never crossed Jasper's mind that trust fund babies were idiots. They had received high-quality elite education from an early age, so they would not be any less educated than others, only wiser.

Henry was one of the best.

“Really!” Jasper nodded.

“Okay, I’ll treat you to a meal tomorrow and introduce you to a friend. If you agree to my condition, then I’ll do as you say,” Henry said.

“Cool,” Jasper said casually.

“Heh.”

Henry grinned and said, “I’ll be leaving first, then. Ask my sister to go home earlier.”

Having said that, Henry swaggered out of the room.

Standing on the balcony, Anna saw Jasper coming over and asked, “Done?”

“Half of it. He’s gone home and asked you to go home earlier as well,” Jasper said.

Anna grabbed another glass for Jasper, poured some red wine, and asked curiously, “My brother isn’t someone who compromises easily.”

“I know that. He asked me to have a meal with him and his friend tomorrow,” Jasper said with a smile.

Although he had no idea what Henry was plotting at, he knew this was not going to be an easy meal.

“Shall I go with you?” Anna said, seeing through Henry’s plan.

“No, he’ll look down on me if I bring you along. Also, if I can tame him this time, then he’ll follow me willingly,” Jasper said.

“Sigh. I’m sorry for all the trouble,” Anna said with a sigh.

“The two of you are pretty close.” As the only son, Jasper sounded rather envious.

A close relationship like that was commendable, especially among the rich.

“We’re not like other families. Take my dad, for example. He has an elder sister and a younger brother.

“My aunt and uncle, however, were told that they were not eligible to compete for the family assets and were not allowed to do business when they grew up, hence my aunt is now a lawyer and my uncle a professor at a medical school.

“It’s the same for my generation. The heir is designated, but if my eldest brother is truly inept, then I might take his position, but I don’t want that.

“When you’re born in a huge family, while you get to enjoy the benefits of your family, you also bear huge responsibilities. Having these responsibilities means that you don’t have a say in many major decisions in life.”

Jasper nodded and said, “Old Master Law has his reasons for setting the rules. He has avoided family disputes, at least. Look at other Harbor City’s aristocrats. All of them have had a history of heirs competing for family assets. The Laws, on the other hand, never had similar news.”

Anna let out a slight smile and gently ran her fingers through her hair next to her ear, chuckling. “It’s late. I should be heading back now. Give me a call if anything goes wrong tomorrow.”

“I don’t think that’s necessary!”

Life at the Top Chapter 130

The next day, Jasper did not leave the hotel at all.

He had been watching Harbor City's entertainment news channel.

Since he had decided to enter the entertainment industry starting in Harbor City, it was necessary for him to learn about this era's entertainment news.

Although he still had memories from his past life, Jasper was not God, hence it was impossible for him to recall what every celebrity did at this point in time.

After a long day, Jasper was considered to have gained something because he finally had a preliminary understanding of the entertainment industry! At least his plan to enter the entertainment industry was much clearer now.

In the afternoon, Henry came to pick Jasper up for lunch.

It was already two o'clock. Others would be having afternoon tea by now.

However, it was not strange at all for a trust fund baby like Henry to have lunch at two o'clock.

When he arrived at the hotel's entrance, Jasper immediately saw Henry's frivolous bearing as he stood next to his sports car coolly.

"Let's go. If we still have time after lunch, I can take you around Harbor City to broaden your worldview," Henry said to Jasper, grinning from ear to ear. He stood next to his Ferrari F12, tapping his car keys on the car's smooth and radiant body.

“Just the two of us?” Jasper thought of something and asked deliberately.

“A few of my friends have already booked a table. They’re all Harbor City’s rich kids. I’ll introduce you to them.”

Henry chuckled before opening the car door and climbing in.

Jasper got into the car and was just about to fasten his seat belt when Henry slammed on the accelerator all the way to the end.

The Ferrari roared like a beast, and all four of its tires scratched wildly against the ground. After releasing a burst of blue smoke, it whizzed forward like an arrow.

Henry deliberately pulled a prank in hopes that he could hear Jasper shriek. Henry let out a boisterous laugh when he saw Jasper staring at him like he was mentally challenged.

Henry said to Jasper, who continued to fasten his seatbelt slowly, “Aren’t you afraid?”

“See the double-decker bus in front of you?” Jasper asked a question that puzzled Henry greatly.

“Yeah,” Henry replied subconsciously.

“Crash into it,” Jasper said coldly.

“Huh!?” Henry looked at Jasper in astonishment.

“Crash into it. I might be scared then.” Jasper’s lips pulled into a devilish arc.

“...You’re a lunatic!”

Henry squeezed the words between clenched teeth.

Harbor City's first-class private kitchen, the Mythical Dragon Kitchen.

The Mythical Dragon Kitchen's concept was similar to the popular private home cuisines that popped up in later generations, except that it was an authentic private kitchen.

Three great chefs were born here.

It was not easy to be rated as a great chef in Harbor City because not only was one required to master traditional cuisines, but one also needed to invent new dishes, all while making sure they remained popular.

A plain bowl of mushroom soup in Mythical Dragon Kitchen could be sold for hundreds of dollars, yet even so, many still rushed over to try it.

It would take half a year to reserve a seat here.

Henry took Jasper into Mythical Dragon Kitchen with a deadpan expression. Amidst the greetings along the way, Henry's expression gradually recovered.

"I'm guessing you don't have first-class chefs in Mainland?" Henry boasted.

"We indeed don't have one because they're all busy teaching your chefs how to cook authentic Mainland cuisines," Jasper said flatly.

Henry was taken aback, then recalled how Harbor City's great chefs were indeed restricted to authentic Mainland cuisines despite numerous attempts to move away from it. Out of the three great chefs, two of them started their careers with Mainland cuisines.

Henry was suddenly bringing contempt upon himself.

“Our private room is upstairs.”

After saying with a sullen expression. Henry walked ahead to lead the way.

Jasper walked up the flight of stairs slowly. As a first-class private kitchen, Mythical Dragon paid utmost importance to their decor. A random mural hanging on the wall of the corridor could easily be an authentic piece of antique. Mythical Dragon Kitchen’s strong financial position was evident.

After coming to the private room upstairs, Henry pushed the door in.

Life at the Top Chapter 131

Although it was meant to be a private room for dining, this was actually a massive suite.

There was a dining table in the center of the living room, a couch area behind it, and washrooms and lounges on both sides. This was way better than a five-star hotel's presidential suite.

Sitting on the couch inside were two young men talking and laughing with each other.

Jasper was not surprised to see Zane here.

Back at Mandarin Oriental Hotel yesterday, Henry had appeared immediately after Zane left. They were from the same circle and both of them disliked him, hence it was not surprising to know that they were plotting something together.

However, sitting next to Zane was someone he was familiar with—Zayden Hanks!

Jasper was astounded to see him here!

When Zayden saw Jasper, his expression was as excited as if he was watching the national football team making it to the World Cup.

Zayden had come to Harbor City with the last bit of hope and resources from Sylva, and his greatest backer was the Lancaster family.

In their early years, Sylva was acquainted with Zane's father, Bob Lancaster, who was nicknamed Big B. They had been keeping in touch from time to time.

After coming to Harbor City, Zayden uncovered the dazzling human world with its myriad of temptations. In comparison, the developing Mainland was not much different from the countryside.

He also learned that in a place like Harbor City, anyone who had money was king, and no one would disobey them.

Therefore, Zayden recalled his painful experiences and planned to cling to Zane for dear life. Then, he would find a chance to make a comeback and get his revenge.

Zayden thought about 10,000 different scenarios when he would meet Jasper again, how he would take his revenge and humiliate him. The thought of each scenario would make Zayden extremely emotional.

However, he did not expect this meeting to come so soon and so abruptly.

“Motherf*cker! Jasper!”

Zayden stared at Jasper and hissed through gritted teeth.

“Hehe, yup that’s me. I didn’t expect to bump into you here,” Jasper said lightly.

Zayden clenched his fists and sneered. “You b*stard. Who says you’re allowed to come to Harbor City?”

Standing next to him, Henry broke out into a grin.

He did not expect to bump into Zayden here.

Henry remained nonchalant about it and was even gloating a little. He wanted to teach Jasper a lesson, to show him the difference between Harbor City and Mainland. Jasper needed to know this was not the place where he could fool around as he liked.

Now that Zayden was here, Henry watched with great interest as both sides argued.

Zane was the only one who did not know anything about this complicated relationship. He looked back and forth between Zayden and Jasper, chuckling. "Looks like you hold a grudge against him, Young Master Hanks?"

A hint of viciousness flashed across Zayden's eyes. He gritted his teeth and said, "More than just a grudge! He stole our bidding results using shameless means back in Mainland and caused my family to suffer heavy losses. I can't wait to kill him!"

"Zayden, the Hanks were clearly the ones who didn't pay up and gave up their right to bid. That's why I reluctantly accepted it."

Jasper shrugged and said in a breezy and nonchalant tone, "By the way, I have to thank the Hanks, and you, especially.

"The price you called was too high, so no one dared to take the order after that. For this reason, the city government gave your family a fine of 200 million dollars, then used the money as a subsidy to deduct it from the bidding money I paid. I must thank the Hanks for your generosity."

Zayden gnashed his teeth so hard they were about to crush under the pressure. He sprung up from his seat and roared, "Motherf*cker!

If you hadn't colluded with the Laws using such despicable and underhanded means, how could my family have possibly given it up?"

"Winner takes all. From the way I see it, your angry and incompetent roars at the moment make you look more like a loser," Jasper said coldly.

Clap, clap, clap.

Zane clapped his hands and stood up.

He then stuck his hands in his trouser pockets, walked over to Jasper, and laughed. "Winner takes all, indeed. Look at me then, am I a winner or a loser?"

"Whether you're a winner or a loser depends entirely on who your opponent is," Jasper said mildly.

Jasper's tone was filled with a hint of disdain. Zane's complexion changed abruptly!

This was plain mockery!

Seeing this, Zayden's eyes lit up.

He immediately fanned the flames and said, "Young Master Zane, Jasper told me a long time ago that he looks down on rich kids like us the most because all we do is fool around all day and have no serious purpose in life.

Well, I think he's just jealous! This idiot has no idea how terrifyingly rich and influential Harbor City's aristocratic families really are!"

Having said that, Zayden's lips drew up into an arc as he stared at Jasper with a sneer. "Have you looked at yourself in the mirror, Jasper? How dare you throw your weight around in Harbor City and boast in front of Young Master Zane? Aren't you afraid of being squashed to death?!"

Life at the Top Chapter 132

“Hey kid, don’t get so arrogant just because you’ve made a tiny achievement. This is Harbor City, not your remote and desolate Mainland. You have to pay a price for being arrogant here.”

Zane narrowed his eyes at Jasper, sneering and saying unhurriedly.

“You look down on rich kids, huh? You’d better listen up then. I’m a rich kid! My family has assets worth tens of billions of Harbor Dollars and four listed companies, what about you? You really think you can throw your weight around after toying with the Hanks, huh?”

Standing next to him, Zayden was thrilled. He was itching to scream at the top of his lungs to express his happy feelings.

It felt great to see Jasper being humiliated!

“You hear that, Jasper? This is Harbor City! Young Master Zane can squash you with just one finger!” Zayden let out a burst of smug laughter.

Next to them, Henry crossed his arms in front of his chest while sitting at the table and eating the fruit on the platter. He had one leg over the other as he watched the argument as though things were not more serious than they were.

In the face of Zane’s aggressiveness, Jasper chuckled slightly and said slowly, “I’m guessing you’re planning to stand up for Zayden?”

Zane sneered and said, "So what if I am? You'd better listen up, your insignificant achievement is nothing but a pile of trash to me. Stop being so complacent. In front of someone who is truly powerful, you..."

At this point, Zane slowly leaned toward Jasper's ear and let out a grim smile as he uttered word by word, "...are... nothing..."

"Alright then! Let me show you who I really am right now."

Jasper nodded and took out his phone.

"Oh? Are you calling someone? Oh, I'm so scared! Idiot! This is Harbor City, not Mainland. Do you think you can intimidate me? Do you think a piece of trash like you is worthy of hanging out with Anna at all!?"

Zane laughed when he saw what Jasper was doing.

Zayden laughed out loud as well. "This idiot must be scared stiff. An idiot from Mainland is trying to give someone in Harbor City a call to fight Young Master Zane?"

Zayden was gloating at this point. Now that Zane was around, he would be able to fix Jasper up real good. Best if Jasper could never make it back to Mainland anymore!

Henry felt his scalp tingling when he saw Jasper dialing the number, worried that Jasper would call his father or sister...

He would be in trouble regardless of which one of them Jasper called.

"Why don't you sit down and have something to eat first?"

Henry thought it was time for him to step in and smooth things over now.

Henry, however, was looking down on Jasper very much when he said those words.

God knew what was wrong with his grandfather and father that they would dote on Jasper when his ability was not at all impressive. Was he already going to call for help just because they had said a few words about him?

His grandfather and father sent a man like that to guide him?

Henry shook his head.

Jasper merely ignored him.

The call connected.

The call was not to Anna nor Zachary, but to Mainland.

“Jasp?”

John’s slightly puzzled voice rang out on the other end of the call.

Jasper had told him that he was going to Harbor City on a business trip a few days ago and would not be back so soon. Why was he giving him a call already?

“John, link my account to Harbor City’s stock market. I’ll direct you while you operate from your side,” Jasper said without exchanging any greetings.

“Right now? This needs to be approved first.” John was taken aback.

Life at the Top Chapter 133

“Who’s the b*stard?” Zane frowned as he asked Zayden.

Zayden let out a sneer and said, “God knows. He’s just trying to seek trouble by struggling with all his means. In a while, let’s see what tricks he has up his sleeve.”

After a moment, John’s slightly nervous voice was heard. “All done. Say, which stock?”

“Megan Company. Set the current market price as the target price. Purchase all stocks with full positions,” Jasper ordered calmly.

His voice was not just heard through the phone to John but even echoed throughout the entire room.

“Megan Company? Young Master Lancaster, isn’t that your family’s property?” Zayden turned around, feeling suspicious. However, he found out that Zane was smiling as if he was about to go crazy.

“Hahaha, what a joke. How dare this brat from Mainland, who has never even seen the world, think of making a move on my Megan Company? Sure, show me five billion, or else, stop humiliating yourself.”

Zayden came back to his senses and said through maniacal laughter, “Jasper, are you actually a fool? Megan Company is the Lancaster family’s main property with a market value of ten billion. Do you want to buy this company? Do you f*cking have the money?”

“Why bother putting on an act with this fella? What a joke.”

It was as if Jasper did not hear the mocking words from the other two people. He said to John calmly, "Go allocate the assets from JW Real Estate into the market. When I'm back, I'll settle the procedure by asking Wendy to make it up for your part."

John also heard Jasper's voice over the phone. However, he did not question any further and said without thinking twice, "Rest assured, I can give you the highest limit of two billion."

Previously when Hugh set him up, it was Jasper who immediately helped him get rid of Hugh. He had promised Jasper that one day in the future, he would give his all to help Jasper out!

Besides, John was confident that Jasper would not set him up.

'If you want to play this game, then let's make it a huge one!'

John immediately used the highest limit and reallocated all of JW Real Estate's credits. Two billion in total was immediately transferred into Jasper's account, adding to Jasper's account which initially had four billion.

'Six billion!'

The six billion, after being processed by John, was placed into the stock market of Megan Company.

Boom! It was as if a giant rock had smashed onto the surface of the pond, causing a terrifying wave.

The stock value of Megan Company immediately rose by a few points. The exchanging volume flipped ten times in a blink of an eye!

The red color exchanging message kept renewing. Jasper's account and all those who were holding onto Megan Company's stocks were rising frantically.

Following then, Harbor City Securities Regulatory Commission immediately received the official note released by John, who acted as Jasper's assistant.

[Jasper Laine, as a natural person, will officially launch a purchasing battle against Megan Company by force!]

Just a single movement and it caused a commotion. The capital immediately changed with the news released. Almost everyone's attention was focused on the stocks of Megan Company.

"Jasp, the percentage of stocks you're holding is approaching 37%. You're now the second-largest shareholder of Megan Company."

"Wait for my news."

Jasper said, then hung up the call.

As soon as Jasper hung up the call, Zane's phone immediately rang.

With much effort, he took out his phone. He was entirely dumbfounded and jammed the answering button, feeling numb.

On the other end of the call, there came the roar of a middle-aged man who sounded almost like he was in a rage. "You brat! Who have you offended out there?! Why is there someone making a move against our company?"

"37% of the shares of Megan Company have been forcibly purchased! Do you know that person can set up a meeting with the board of directors anytime and request for a reorganization of the entire company?!"

Zane's lips fumbled when he heard it. He could not help but feel that something was off, yet he was unable to spit it out. That was because he was unaware of the issues regarding the company!

Bob was still barking continuously on the call.

Jasper had made his way to Zane, who was now looking pale. He said calmly, "You can stop thinking about it. I'm guessing right now, your dad will even have the intention to beat you to death. Are you still thinking of freeing yourself?"

Life at the Top Chapter 134

Jasper's comment made Zane recover as though he had just been suffocated. He took a deep, cold breath into his lungs vigorously.

He glared at Jasper. Zane's eyes were gleaming with terror and astonishment.

He clenched his teeth and muttered, "Impossible... You're just a b*stard. What rights... What rights do you have?!"

Never mind that Zane could not wrap his head around why Jasper could do so, but even Henry could not figure it out.

'This man, why is he such a hot-tempered guy?

'He wants to purchase another person's listed company just because of a disagreement?

'And he f*cking succeeded?'

Henry gulped a mouthful of saliva and looked at Jasper with a gaze mixed with shock and... terror.

"What the hell is going on? What trouble did you get yourself into outside?!"

Bob's roar was heard coming from the other end of the call once again.

Jasper chuckled softly. He took the phone from his hand before Zane could even speak and immediately spoke up to cut off Bob's barking.

“Come over to the private room on the top floor of Mythical Dragon Kitchen to retrieve both your company and your son!”

Jasper hung up the call and tossed the phone to Zane’s hand after he was done talking. He spun around and sat beside the dining table.

Seeing that Jasper had come over to sit, Henry’s first reaction was to stand up with a jump.

In the next second, Henry was slightly embarrassed with his lackluster performance.

Just when he was thinking of saying something to rescue his pride, Henry heard Jasper saying, “Aren’t you going to serve the dishes? I’m feeling hungry now.”

‘Serve the dishes?! Serve my foot. I’ve had enough of seeing you putting on an act. Aren’t you full after putting on such an act? Yet you still want me to serve the dishes?’

‘Besides, who else at this moment is in the mood to enjoy a meal?’

“I’ll immediately relay the message.”

Henry, who was frantically cursing internally, uttered those words after successfully changing his thoughts.

At a corner, Zayden suddenly felt a sense of sorrow dwelling within him as he looked at Henry’s figure. The man was happily running out to order the waiters to serve the dishes. Stunned, Zayden then looked over at Zane who was standing at the exact spot, motionless as if he had been struck by lightning.

In the province, he had just been like a dog, serving Henry as he was scared that Henry would not be pleased. After arriving at Harbor City, he was still behaving like a dog, trying to get on good terms with Zane, afraid that he would just kick him away.

'But how about Jasper?'

As he glanced at Henry's seemingly delighted expression, it looked exactly like himself when he served Henry previously.

Back in the province, he had made use of both Anna and Zachary to pressure Henry. After coming over to Harbor City, he immediately made Zane nearly lose his company.

Zayden clenched his fists and lowered his head, not daring to face Jasper.

Soon, the waiters presented all the dishes. Jasper took his sweet time to taste each and every dish. Henry was famished as well and picked up his cutleries to start eating.

Zane and Zayden dared not walk nor move an inch. They just stood there like wooden poles, looking at the two men eating their meal.

"Let's start the first lesson immediately."

Jasper suddenly put down his cutleries, drank a mouthful of water, and said to Henry who was chewing on a piece of pork.

"Mmm?"

Henry was chewing on the piece of pork and looking at Jasper absentmindedly. His mind could not process what was currently going on.

"A successful businessman, when they're earning money, most of them have a very bad character."

"This phrase, it sounds rather familiar?" Henry said, puzzled.

"It was Bob Lancaster who said it!"

The corners of Jasper's lips curled into a sneer.

"Bob relies on his family business, Megan Company, which is involved with ceiling fans, to become rich. However, after entering the capital market, they excel in purchasing other companies secretly, then blackmailing them for a large sum of money."

"So, for today's first lesson, there are two things to it. The first is to solve a problem starting from its root, and the second lesson is to use their evil method against them to teach them a lesson!"

Henry felt a tingling sensation on his scalp when he heard Jasper's comment.

He could not help but look at Jasper and then at Zane, who was behind him. He even had a feeling that since the very beginning, it had all been just a plan to hunt. Jasper was the hunter, and his prey was not Zane but the person behind Zane... Bob Lancaster.

The thought of it made Henry have goosebumps throughout his body.

'How terrifying this person is to be able to look ten steps ahead in his plan?'

Life at the Top Chapter 135

At that moment, the door of the room was being pushed open.

Under the escort of a few security guards, the famous Bob, who was well known throughout the entire financial world, entered the room grandly.

“Dad, you’re here!”

Zane finally dared to speak out when he saw his father’s arrival. However, when he saw the exasperated look gleaming in Bob’s eyes, he could only clench his teeth and shift his gaze to Jasper.

Bob glanced across the entire room. His gaze was extremely stern as it swiped past Zane. Then, he placed his gaze on Jasper’s body.

The moment he saw Henry, Bob revealed an expression as if he was almost smiling. “Henry, is this your friend?”

‘Bob is trying to make out Jasper’s background.’

Currently, Bob was apoplectic with rage. It was always him who triumphed over others on the share market. ‘How is it possible that I’ll be beaten by others?’

The rage and humiliation made him have the urge to just immediately order his security guards to throw Jasper into the ocean to feed the fishes. However, Henry was sitting there, and that made him rather wary.

After all, Henry’s position in Harbor City was not someone like Bob could compare to.

Subconsciously, Henry looked at Jasper, not knowing how he should answer.

“Director Lancaster, please have a seat.”

Jasper said faintly, “Even though Mr. Law and I have some connections, business is still business. Today’s issue has nothing to do with Mr. Law.”

Bob looked at Jasper seriously. Suddenly, he laughed and said, “You have guts. Just a statement and you said out everything clearly. Now, I’m more convinced that you’re the one who laid a finger on our company.”

“After all, I’m still a bit younger. It’s only reasonable for Director Lancaster to have some suspicions.”

Jasper looked at Bob taking his seat in a prestigious manner and said calmly.

Not knowing why, Henry sneaked a peek at Jasper beside him who was looking joyous. Deep in his heart, there was a voice that was shrieking frantically.

‘It’s starting, it’s starting. It’s going to start again!

‘This b*stard is going to put on an act again!’

Henry was somehow slightly looking forward to it yet slightly agitated at the same time.

After all, this time, Jasper was not going against any brainless young master but a genuine master from the business world, Bob from the Lancaster family!

He was a boss who was just half a level lower than Henry’s father, Zachary Law!

Bob did not say a word. Jasper did not continue talking as well and slowly ate his rice while completely ignoring Bob’s fearsome gaze.

Gradually, Bob could not tolerate it any longer.

“I already have an understanding regarding today’s issue. It’s Zane who was at fault first. I’m going to make him apologize to you. Well, this is considered as getting to know each other after an incident. I’ll organize a banquet on another day and treat you to a meal. Let’s become friends, what do you say?”

Bob had lowered his pride very much. That was considered a helpless act.

After all, on the surface, Jasper had the upper hand.

In Harbor City, setting up a banquet would mean to apologize. Given Bob’s position, he had already given in quite a lot by taking this measure.

“Well, youngsters will often have times when they are more aggressive. It’s all just a small matter. With just a word from Director Lancaster, of course, there won’t be a problem.”

Jasper placed his cutleries down, took a tissue from beside him, and wiped his mouth with it while saying.

Bob also revealed a smile when he heard it. He felt that Jasper was quite a reasonable person.

“So, let’s just forget about the conflict between the youngsters. Next, let’s talk about business. Right now, in my hands, I’m holding onto 37% of Megan Company’s shares. How much do you intend to buy back, Director Lancaster?”

His comment left Bob’s smile frozen on his face. It was as if a blizzard had suddenly covered his entire face.

Henry, who was just beside, had his eyes glittering frantically.

‘Indeed, how is it possible that this brat would just let this matter slide by?!’

That was the moment Henry was looking forward to. He wanted to see how Jasper planned to tackle Bob!

“B*stard! You’d better not go overboard. My dad is...”

Zane, who was beside, also sensed where Jasper was heading to and immediately stepped out to roar.

“Shut the hell up!”

Jasper’s cold gaze landed on him before he could even finish talking, and it immediately stunned him.

“Right now, do you still have the rights to talk?”

Life at the Top Chapter 136

"You..."

Zane was terrified by Jasper's gaze. Subconsciously, he took a step back and fixed his gaze on his father, Bob.

"Young man, you're indeed different from the other youngsters!"

Bob stared at Jasper, exasperated. His eyes glittered with an icy cold layer. It had been a while since he was this disgruntled.

All this while, it had always been him who looked at the mad expressions filled with grievances of the people he was blackmailing.

Since when was it his turn to be in the shoes of those being blackmailed while staring at another who was sitting tall and mighty?

Furthermore, it was a person whose age was the same as his son!

"Director Lancaster, we're now having a business discussion. We shouldn't let others run their mouth." Jasper was not fazed by Bob. Instead, he was looking at Bob calmly.

Hearing him made Bob's expression darken. His expression that was initially already angry looked even madder now.

"What do you mean, young man?"

Jasper said after hearing Bob's comment, "Director Lancaster, you can't seriously be thinking that I spent billions to purchase 37% of the shares of Megan Company just because I got into an argument with some brat?"

'Brat?'

Zane clenched his fist. He was so mad that his body was shaking, but he dared not speak. He did not even have the courage to lift his head as he was afraid to see his father's burning gaze.

Bob leaned on the big chair. He squinted his eyes and lighted a cigarette before sneering, "Hey youngster, are you declaring war against me?"

Jasper tapped on his temple and said, "In my mind, there's no such thing as war, only trading. Right now, I have the chips, and it's up to Director Lancaster whether or not you're willing to pay the price to purchase these chips back."

Bob extinguished the cigarette bud ruthlessly and said coldly, "Aren't you afraid that I'll launch a reverse takeover on you?"

In the financial world, one could buy with force, and naturally, there would be anti-takeovers as well.

Bob could use a vast amount of assets to purchase other shares of Megan Company and that would grant him the advantage over his ratio of shares.

However, if that occurred, it would be a genuine business war, which would not end if neither side crumbled.

Jasper said calmly, "The achievement of Megan Company is increasing annually. It's considered one of the rare blue chip stocks. I'm guessing that apart from me, there will be tons of people out there having an interest in the shares of Megan Company. Why don't you make a guess how difficult it'll be for me to let go of the 37% of shares I'm currently holding, Director Lancaster?"

Bob's pupils shrunk slightly. Even though he was exasperated, he had to admit that Jasper had grasped his weak point.

All these years, he had managed to blackmail others through shares. There would be tons of enemies out there. How was it possible for him to still be so carefree?

That was because Bob had never given other people a chance to invade his company.

However, on that day, without any preparations and with no time to take precautions, he was now being cornered by Jasper.

It was not at all Bob's fault. He could only blame things for happening too suddenly. How would he be able to predict that Jasper, who came from Mainland, would make a move against Megan Company?

Currently, Jasper was having the advantage. If he was willing to sell off the 37% of shares, all of Bob's enemies from the past would be all too glad to pay a huge sum of money to buy them.

Even if they failed to change the leader of Megan Company, they would still be able to give him a hard time ruthlessly.

Bob would not allow such a thing to happen.

However, this was precisely Jasper's confidence.

The atmosphere had come to an awkward situation.

Even Henry was feeling anxious.

Not knowing how long had passed, Bob spoke coldly, "Six billion."

The master of the business world had finally given in.

According to the normal market, the value of the 37% of shares of Megan Company that Jasper held would be approximately 4.5 billion.

However, Jasper underwent a takeover in the shares market without considering the cost and obtained the premium price. Hence, he had spent an approximation of five billion.

Currently, Bob was offering six billion to purchase those shares.

According to the calculation of the market value, Bob was losing 1.5 billion while Jasper would earn one billion.

“Deal!”

Jasper answered gladly.

‘I should retreat when the time is up.’ Jasper was not planning to corner Bob to a state where his back was against the wall. That would not comply with his initial intention of obtaining profit.

The deal was achieved, and Bob had no intention of staying back.

“Young man, you have guts. That method you have there is not bad!”

Before he left, Bob left Jasper a thoughtful comment.

“You’d better teach your son to behave. Next time, you won’t be able to solve it with just six billion,” said Jasper calmly.

Bob squinted his eyes, let out a cold smile, and turned around to leave.

Zane, bearing a grudge, glanced at Jasper. Just when he dragged Zayden to leave as well, Jasper got up.

Life at the Top Chapter 137

"Stand there."

Under Zayden's terrified gaze, Jasper walked over to him and stood still.

"What are you plotting?!"

Zayden was tough on the outside but weak on the inside. He had asked with a ferocious look, attempting to conceal his anxiety with his fierce expression.

Smack!

A slap landed on Zayden's face.

Zayden felt as if a layer of flesh on the left side of his face was about to be slashed off, leaving half of his face feeling numb.

He raised his hand and covered his face. Zayden, with his gaze that was frantically brewing with a grudge, stared at Jasper while roaring, "How dare you slap me?!"

"The feeling of slapping Young Master Hanks' face is no different than slapping anyone else's face."

Jasper flicked his wrist and said calmly.

At that moment, Zayden was on the brink of going crazy.

"This slap is because you intended to get your hands on Wendy when you're not supposed to."

As soon as he was done speaking, the second slap came along.

The other half of Zayden's face now felt numb as well.

"This slap is because you never look at others in the eye, and you've humiliated me a dozen times."

Receiving two slaps continuously left Zayden's head spinning. His eyes became engorged with vessels as he roared and pounced on Jasper.

However, Jasper took a step back and Zayden lost his balance before falling to the ground. That made him even more embarrassed.

Jasper said coldly while looking at Zayden on the floor from high above, "Since the beginning, you've viewed me as your ultimate enemy, but in my opinion, you're just a piece of worthless trash."

Zane, who was beside, witnessed the entire scene. Even his expression was trembling as well.

At that moment, in his vision, Jasper was no different from a devil.

It was just that he was covered with a layer of human skin.

What was more terrifying was that this demon who was covered with a layer of human skin was walking toward him now.

"You... What are you planning to do..."

Zane gulped a mouthful of saliva and said with a dry tone. He did not realize that his voice was shaking.

"Earlier, your dad said you're going to apologize to me. Have you forgotten about it?" Jasper said coldly.

Zane, with a hopeless gaze, looked at his father.

Having him apologize to Jasper made him feel more terrible than the idea of being dead.

“Youngster, you’re going overboard,” said Bob coldly.

“Director Lancaster, this is an affair between youngsters. Are you planning to stick your nose in?”

Jasper furrowed his brows and looked at Bob who was wearing an angry look.

Bob’s expression suddenly changed. He could hear the threat from Jasper’s calm comment.

‘That deal has yet to be completed right now.’

The shares had yet to be traded, and the six billion had not been credited into the account.

The deal could be off anytime.

Bob had never felt so aggrieved before.

“Apologize to him!”

Bob suppressed the rage within him and barked at Zane.

“Dad...” Zane looked at his father, finding it hard to believe.

‘Even Dad has given in as well?!’

Zane did not understand why his father was so scared of Jasper!

“I said apologize! This is what you get by being so proud when you’re outside. This is a lesson, and you’d better keep it in your mind!” Bob roared.

He clenched his teeth. Zane stared at Jasper, bearing a huge grudge. Then, he hopelessly lowered his head and blurted out three words through the gaps of his teeth.

“I’m sorry.”

“I didn’t catch it,” Jasper said coldly.

Zane was dumbfounded. He raised his head aggressively and looked straight at Jasper. He shouted, “I’m sorry!”

Life at the Top Chapter 138

At that point, Henry was at the brink of slamming the table and jumping to his feet, feeling exasperated.

'He really is good at putting on an act!'

There were three people in total. One of them had surrendered to Jasper, the other was pressurized by Jasper, and the last one was now terrified of Jasper!

He was looking at Jasper, and Henry could not help but feel scared and stunned.

He thought of himself who was a son from a rich family with the title of being Young Master Law. On usual days, he would court ladies and look down on others.

Such a low standard of acting, when compared to Jasper, was lacking far behind—just like a kid's show.

'When will I be able to put on a show and be able to show off? If Dad and Grandpa know about it, they'll be sure to praise me!'

"Let's go!"

Bob blurted out that comment coldly.

Zane, along with Zayden who had just peeled himself from the ground, both looked at Jasper with a gaze that was gleaming with a hatred that had seeped into their bones. They followed Bob and walked away without turning their heads around.

Henry looked at the room door that was being closed. He licked his lips. He was moved and could not get enough of Jasper's prestigious performance earlier.

After the guests had left, the drinks were still warm.

"Bob had lots of ill thoughts!"

Jasper held the teacup and gently drank a mouthful before saying.

Henry was dumbfounded and subconsciously asked, "Didn't you just win the game?"

"Yes, I won, but that doesn't mean that Bob has lost. He was just pushed to a corner where he had no way to counter. If he was given time to prepare, the chance of me winning this blackmailing game would not have been more than 10%."

Jasper shook his head and said.

Henry was flustered when he heard it. He felt as if he was listening to his father talking about a few tricks regarding the business industry. It was completely like listening to a text that was extremely hard to comprehend.

'The feeling is like I can understand every word he's saying and I can even write them all out, but once the words are combined together, I can't comprehend it at all.

'F*ck, how does this guy's thought process work?'

Henry was cursing internally.

"Did you learn anything today?" Jasper asked.

Henry was speechless as his mind went blank. "I only saw you putting on an act. What's there for me to learn?"

"However, if you're asking about the aspect of putting on an act, I did learn a bit from there. For example, no matter what the opponent says or does, you have to look at them with a gaze as if you're looking at a mentally disabled child," Henry said confidently.

Following that, Henry spotted something else that made him exasperated. Jasper was applying what he had just said, using a gaze as if he was looking at a mentally disabled child to look at him.

"B*stard! What's with that expression you got there?!" Henry asked angrily.

"Let's go. I'm tired today. I want to head back to get some rest."

Jasper shook his head, got up, and said.

He sent Jasper back to the hotel after being busy for the entire afternoon. After dropping Jasper off, it was already evening.

If it was an ordinary day, Henry would definitely not go home so soon. However, today was different than usual.

He immediately ignited the car engine and drove back home. Along the way home, the road was packed with cars and he was slightly frustrated. That was because he had an issue to discuss with his father and grandfather.

It was seven in the evening when he finally reached home. As soon as he entered the house, he saw Anna.

"You didn't do anything to Jasper today, right?" Anna immediately asked when she saw Henry.

“Why don’t you ask him regarding this issue instead? What could I possibly have done to him?!”

Henry put on a horrified expression when he recalled the incident that occurred today.

“It’s not convenient for me to ask him... What happened today?” Anna asked curiously.

“There’s something that I can’t figure out. I have to go ask Dad.”

Henry immediately ran upstairs to the study after he said it. Anna sensed that it must be something related to Jasper and immediately tagged along.

In the study, Henry blurted out the entire incident to Anna and Zachary.

Life at the Top Chapter 139

After he was done talking, Henry looked at his father who was laughing out loud. He had a delighted look on his face, and even Anna was wearing a faint smile on her face.

At that moment, he said with a very unpleasant feeling, "Why does it feel like both of you know what's going on and I'm the only fool here?"

"Dad, Jasper said he has won but Bob did not lose. He even said that Bob has lots of ill thoughts. What the hell does that mean?" Henry asked.

Zachary smiled, and then his eyes were brewing with admiration. Hearing his son's question, he said, "Actually what Jasper wanted to witness was Bob failing to accept his defeat and insisting to have a rumble in this business war."

Henry was puzzled.

Zachary glared at Henry, apoplectic with rage. He said, "Bob has lots of enemies in Harbor City. If the business war broke out, Jasper would have lots of alliances.

"At that point, Jasper would need not personally join the battle. He just has to sell off those shares and he would easily be able to sell them at a very high price."

"Then why doesn't he just sell them off to other people immediately?" Henry was getting more curious.

"That's where Jasper's wisdom lies."

Zachary's tone of admiration was getting intense. "He has one more important motive for coming here to Harbor City."

“You’re talking about the issue of taking over and investing in an entertainment company?”

Henry suddenly thought of that matter.

It was because of that the Law family had used up lots of resources to help Jasper gain some news.

“Mmm... If Jasper were to immediately sell those shares to Bob’s enemies right now, how will the other people from the business world of Harbor City view him? He will be the second Bob Lancaster.

“When he wants to take over an entertainment company, it won’t be an easy feat.

“If Bob wasn’t satisfied with the way things turned out earlier and wanted to go all out in a business battle, no one would be able to comment as throughout the entire incident, Jasper was just being reasonable.”

Zachary said, then looked at Henry and added, “Do you know why we, the Law family, receive honorable greetings wherever we go within the Mainland?”

“We’re rich, so they want us to invest in them,” said Henry casually.

“Foolish.”

Zachary scolded and said, “It’s because your grandpa has built up his reputation throughout his life!

“The superior position the Law family has in Mainland is so because everyone knows your grandpa is a businessman who sincerely loves his country, and everybody respects him for that.”

Zachary stood up and tapped on Henry's shoulder, saying, "When a businessperson reaches a certain level, they must consider the issue of reputation."

Since ancient times, fame and fortune are not divided with one's name still being the most important.

"Jasper is so young, yet his skill of being able to read others' intentions is splendid. This is no longer considered as perfect but scary," said Zachary with a sigh.

Anna said thoughtfully, "In the end, he beat up Zayden and forced Zane to apologize. He must be testing Bob as well."

Zachary nodded and said, "Bob is a cunning man but not easy to go against."

"However, being able to make Bob suffer from such a big loss, it's still a good thing," said Zachary with a smile.

Henry's eyes were sparkling, and no one knew what was in his mind.

"So how is it? Do you finally know just how big a gap there is between you two?" Anna said with a chuckle.

Henry nodded and said from the bottom of his heart, "There's indeed a huge difference"

For once, Zachary gladly gave a word of encouragement. "Don't compare yourself with him. In this world, there are not many people of Jasper's age who are able to be on par with him."

His opponent was someone from the older generation. "I'll be satisfied if you can learn 70% of his ability."

“In this world, are there not many who can be compared with his ability to put on an act?” Henry wore a look of admiration and said it sincerely.

Zachary was dumbfounded, and the smile on his face froze up.

Zachary roared, “You spoilt brat, get lost right now!”

Henry, who was being chased out of the study, was not at all bothered. Anyway, he was used to it, and he happily ran downstairs.

“Where are you going?” asked Anna.

“Off to bathe and call it an early night. He said he’ll bring me over to the trading center tomorrow to put on an act... Oh, no, it’s to learn how the capital market operates.”

Standing upstairs, Anna looked at Henry’s outline, astonished. ‘How many years has it been...’

After the siblings went past the age of 15 years old, she had never seen Henry turning in for the day before 11 at night while claiming that he wanted to sleep early.

At that moment, Anna had to admit that her grandfather’s idea of letting Henry hang around Jasper might just be an excellent move that could cause a miracle to happen!

Anna returned to her bedroom and subconsciously dialed Jasper’s number.

Life at the Top Chapter 140

Jasper was surprised when he received Anna's call.

Jasper, who was having a live stream meeting with Hudson and the rest, hinted for the meeting to end. He got up and came to the balcony of the suite to answer the call.

"I thought that the super-rich guy who earns one billion a day wouldn't answer my call."

After hearing Anna's teasing, Jasper replied with a smile, "It's a call from the beauty of the Law family. Even if I'm earning ten billion, I still have to pick up the call!"

"I already know about today's matter. My family gave you high praises for what you did today," said Anna.

"I guess it's all about fate. I don't have any good points about myself, the only thing that's worth praising is that I'm good at grasping the opportunity."

Anna lay on the bed. She twirled her hair with her fingers as she said, "I think my elder brother has changed."

Jasper massaged his forehead and said helplessly, "To be honest, perhaps the part that he's interested in is different from what we expect."

"According to him, he said you'll bring him over to the trading center tomorrow?" asked Anna as she was interested.

Jasper said, "Yes. I'm planning to head over there tomorrow."

“Can I tag along?” asked Anna.

“I can’t find any excuse to reject you,” said Jasper with a smile.

With a soft chuckle, Anna flipped over and lay on the bed, saying, “Then, shall we meet up tomorrow?”

“Sure, see you tomorrow.”

After hanging up the call, Anna sat on the bed. Both her hands were hugging her long legs. With her chin placed on her shin, one could not tell what was on her mind. It was just that she revealed a bright smile.

The next morning, Henry hurriedly ran to his car after having his breakfast.

However, just when he arrived at the side of the car, he saw that Anna had been waiting there a long time ago.

“What are you doing here?” Henry stared at Anna and asked.

“Going out with you,” said Anna as a matter-of-factly.

Henry frowned his brows and said, losing his cool, “I’m heading out to do some big business. Why are you tagging along? Go and have fun by yourself.”

Anna said, unsatisfied, “Aren’t you going out with Jasper? I already gave him a call, and he permitted me to tag along.”

After being stunned, Henry looked at Anna with a suspicious look. “Previously, there were so many young masters who put up so many tricks just to beg you to go out with them, but I’ve never seen you being bothered with any one of them, yet today, you insist on tagging along with me to look for Jasper?”

“Lil Sis, you’d better take good care of yourself.”

Anna glared at Henry and said coldly, “It’s alright if I don’t come along. Then I’ll now go upstairs and look for Dad to have a fine discussion with him regarding those matters of yours when you were studying abroad—”

“Go, go, go!” Henry unlocked the car door irritatedly, cutting Anna’s comment short. “You’re such a talkative person.”

At Mandarin Oriental Hotel, Jasper was just done with his breakfast when Henry and his sister arrived.

They drove and headed in the direction of the trading center. Henry was feeling rather uncomfortable when he sneaked a peek at the two people who were sitting side by side in the backseat while chatting happily.

‘Why did I become a driver?!’

It was clear that this was not what Henry had expected.

“Today, what are we going to do at the trading center?” Henry thought of a topic and successfully interrupted the two people who were having an engrossing conversation.

“I’m planning to go over there to open a new securities account. Then, you two can each open your respective accounts too,” said Jasper.

“We can open one as well?” Anna asked curiously.

“Don’t you want to earn some spare cash?” said Jasper.

Anna’s eyes were sparkling. She knew that Jasper was a genius in stocks yet had never witnessed it with her own eyes. With this chance presenting itself to her, she would not miss out on it.

Life at the Top Chapter 141

"Are you really someone who became rich via stocks? I heard from my dad that you previously earned a ton from crude oil futures," asked Anna.

"I guess so." Jasper thought back at his entire process of becoming a successful person. He shook his head and said with a smile, "Actually, I'm not paying much attention to the current stock market, unless I think it has a huge potential, or else, I'll just carry out a few trades. There's not much meaning to it."

"Previously, you said that there will be a huge change in the price of Harbor City's stocks. Is it going to happen soon?!" Anna asked earnestly.

Jasper nodded his head. Then, he saw the trading center that they were fast approaching. He said, "Indeed, it's going to happen soon. It's just that I wonder how many people are going to go bankrupt during this wave."

At the securities exchange center of Harbor City. Earlier when computers were not widely available, ordinary stock exchanges were done via phone calls to the professionals at the stocks exchange center, and the professionals would follow the investors' guidelines to conduct the purchasing and selling procedures.

Some would personally come forth to the exchange center. They would look at the large monitor while having a conversation with other stock investors. It would be a lively scene.

Currently, following the fact that every household in Harbor City had their own computers, everyone would operate themselves. Hence, the number of people lingering at the stock exchange center had declined drastically.

However, that was just one side of the story. After all, there were still many people who loved to come here to have a conversation with other stock investors.

The moment Jasper and the other two arrived at the exchange center, not long after the start of operational hours, it became peak hour.

With the presence of the Law siblings, Jasper would not need to queue up. With the manager's service, who nodded and bowed throughout the entire process, they opened new accounts at the fastest speed.

Under the arrangement of the manager, Jasper and the other two had arrived at a VIP room.

Aside from having a sofa in the resting area, there was also a large screen that displayed the condition of any stocks at any time.

Jasper observed the listed internet-based corporations in the stock market and noticed the markets were all hyped up. Most of the money was flowing to this sector.

"I heard from my friends who do stocks trading that buying shares of internet-based corporations is a business that will definitely earn and will not suffer any loss," said Henry from the side.

Jasper laughed and said instead, "Even you think that way as well?"

Henry was stunned and said, "Even though I'm not familiar with stocks, I believe everyone can earn some money from here. I guess that pretty much sums it up?"

"When everyone thinks a particular corporation's shares can bring fortune, it means it's near to its crash," said Jasper.

Henry pouted his lips, thinking Jasper was trying to put on an act again.

'It's plain obvious that it's a guaranteed profit if one purchases it and everyone's fighting to get their hands on it. How is it possible that it'll undergo a crash?'

Coincidentally, at that moment, they heard the door being knocked.

"Come in," Henry said lazily.

The door of the VIP room was opened, and a young gentleman came in. His gaze landed on Anna, and he said gently, "Anna, earlier when I heard someone saying that you've come to the exchange center, I didn't believe it. I didn't expect you to actually be here."

Anna, who had been quiet all this while and looking from aside, saw the person who came in. Her face revealed an irritated expression as she said coldly, "I'm just here to look around."

"His name is Mitch Langdon, one of my sister's pursuers. He's also considered as your number one enemy!"

Henry suddenly inched over to Jasper's ear and whispered.

Jasper looked at Henry, finding it hard to believe.

Henry chuckled and said, "He's the best investor among the younger generation from the rich families of Harbor City. During university, he got one million from his father and turned it into 20 million. Currently, he owns properties worth billions!

"The one who's great is his grandfather, Wallace Langdon. Speaking of rich people in Harbor City, there are two Langdons, one is Joe Langdon, who's the richest man, and the other one is his grandfather, Wallace. When Wallace just started off, he wasn't as brilliant as Joe!"

Henry was just done with the introduction, and Mitch shifted his gaze over to Jasper.

It was hard for him to ignore Jasper because of the way he was sitting so close to Anna. Even the slightest movement of their bodies would make their shoulders touch gently.

It was also because of such a small detail that it made Mitch look at Jasper with a hostile gaze.

“Young Master Law, this guy looks unfamiliar. I haven’t met him, right?”

Life at the Top Chapter 142

Henry said with a laugh, “Of course, he’s unfamiliar to you. He’s Jasper Laine, from Mainland. He’s the most splendid stock god I’ve ever seen.”

“Stock god from Mainland?”

Mitch’s tone was a playful one as if he heard someone claiming themselves to be the number one rich guy from the rural area.

“Hey dude, people from Mainland know how to invest in stocks as well?” asked Mitch calmly.

“There are, but very few,” Jasper answered calmly.

“Hahaha...”

Mitch burst into laughter on the spot.

Then, he waved his hand in an elegant manner and said, “I’m sorry, I really can’t take it when listening to this dude’s comment.”

In Mitch’s opinion, perhaps there might be people from Mainland who knew how to play with stocks and were smart enough to earn money, but how many people actually knew how to invest in stocks? The answer was rare among the rarest!

“What’s so funny about it?” Jasper looked at Mitch calmly.

Mitch shrugged his shoulder and said thoughtfully, “My friend, Harbor City’s stocks and the stocks in Mainland are totally different. Don’t think that by knowing a little, you’ll be able to survive in this stock market. You guys from Mainland are lacking way behind. In my opinion, you're just a brat from the rural area of Mainland!"

Henry was the first to reveal an unpleasant look when he heard up to that point.

In his current opinion, Jasper was like a god when it came to putting on an act. All this while, Mitch never had a good relationship with Henry. 'With all the things he has blurted, then what does my identity as Young Master Law mean anyway?

'Is he implying that I'm a lackey following a kid from the rural area and learning from him?'

"Mitch, don't act all mighty. Yesterday, Zane suffered a terrible loss in Jasper's hands!"

Mitch sneered. "Zane? Will you believe that he will try to get on my good terms when he's facing me?"

As he was saying, Mitch pointed at Jasper with his finger and said coldly, "Don't think you can ignore everybody's presence just because you know a thing or two. There's more that goes on under Harbor City's surface than you think. It's not up to someone from the rural area of Mainland like you to claim yourself as a stock god. Even I don't dare proclaim myself to be a stock god, let alone you?"

Henry's expression was dark as he was unhappy about it. He looked like a young master whose temper was at the brink of exploding.

However, he still put up with it. His eyes kept glancing over at Jasper.

He found it rather weird. 'Mitch is being so arrogant, but why isn't he showing any reaction?'

Henry could not wait to activate his learning mode. He could still vividly recall Zane trembling with fear yesterday!

Once again, Mitch shifted his gaze to Anna without waiting for Jasper to speak up.

He said gently, “Anna, if you want to learn how to invest in stocks, just let me know. I’ll teach you for sure.

“Why bother wasting your time on this brat from Mainland?”

“I’ve seen plenty of such people. At most, they’re using some tricks and acting as if they’re very brilliant. In reality, though, they’re worthless and their true intention is to cheat you.”

Anna frowned, putting on an irritated look. Just when she was about to speak, Jasper got up.

Henry was agitated. His trembling hands nearly flew to cover Anna’s mouth.

He knew that Jasper was about to speak, so he quickly held Anna back.

“I’ve never said that I’m the stock god. Whether or not I’m the stock god, it’s just a title. Besides, in my opinion, even with such a childish title, it all comes down to each other’s ability in the end. No one can say for sure that they’ll have the final laugh.”

Jasper stood opposite Mitch. His tone had a sense of confidence that one would not be able to ignore.

“But you... You’re Young Master Langdon, right? And you keep displaying your superiority before me, all just so everyone will think greatly of you.”

The corners of Jasper’s mouth gradually lifted up. His unique and impressive aura that his body exuded suddenly changed. He was like a hawk now, aggressive and full of hostility.

“However, all this so-called sense of superiority, to me it’s just a childish act.”

Henry was almost voicing out to cheer.

He said into Anna’s ear, suppressing his agitated voice, “Did you see that? Did you see that?! Lil Sis, he always waits till his opponent is done expressing themselves before talking. Besides, every time he talks, he never scolds them, yet he’s able to trigger his opponent.”

Anna, feeling speechless, pushed Henry who was still blurting, away. She put on a worried look when she glanced at Mitch’s dark and ruthless expression.

With Mitch’s character, he would hold on to grudges and was not generous enough to forgive others. With Jasper agitating him, Mitch would definitely not let this matter slide aside.

Life at the Top Chapter 143

Indeed, at the next moment, Mitch spoke up.

“Hey Mainlander, you’re calling me childish and even said I’m faking it?!”

Mitch stared at Jasper with a dark gaze, his eyes gleaming with an icy cold layer.

“You’re Jasper, right? Great, very good. I admire your courage. Since you say that I’m childish and faking it, then do you have the guts to bet with me?”

“Right now, take out 100 million in cash. In one day’s time, before afternoon approaches, we’ll see who has earned the most.”

Mitch stared at Jasper and said coldly, “Mainlander, today, I’ll let you experience that there will always be others who are better than you!”

After glancing at Anna, who was just beside, Mitch realized that not only did Anna not look like she had gotten spellbound by his performance, but she was also wearing an expression as if she was worried for Jasper. That made Mitch angrier.

“Jasper, don’t play along with him.”

Anna came to Jasper’s side. She was not willing to let Jasper agree to it after being provoked.

After all, aside from Mitch’s reputation, he also had very splendid results. Anna thought Jasper might not stand a chance to win against Mitch.

“Let’s go. Come accompany me shopping, alright?”

Anna, with much care, gave Jasper a reason to step down.

However, she did not realize that because of her concern and action of siding with Jasper, it only made the jealousy and rage within Mitch almost explode.

Mitch glared at Jasper and said coldly, "If you don't have the guts, then get down on your knees, slam your head on the ground, and admit your fault. Then, f*ck off to your Mainland and continue being a worthless being!

"Why don't you look at yourself in the mirror? You're a Mainlander from Mainland. Return back to your village and live your poor life. How dare you try to lay your hands on Anna? What rights do you have to be with her?"

"Mitch, are you done talking?"

Anna turned around and looked at Mitch expressionlessly.

Mitch took in a deep breath, suppressing the jealousy dwelling within him. He did not answer Anna's question and only stared at Jasper.

Anna wanted to say something, but Jasper just used one of his hands and yanked on her arm.

"I'm fine with gambling, but since we're going to bet, how can we not have a prize?"

Seeing that Jasper was agreeing to it, Anna thought that Mitch had successfully provoked Jasper. She frowned and was about to say something when Henry yanked her to the rear end.

"Just keep your mouth shut. Sometimes, pride is far more important to a man."

Henry's expression was dark.

Anna was not in the mood to entertain her crazy elder brother.

“When facing challenges from another man and when a man chooses to accept the challenge, ladies can only provide support but not stop them.”

Henry glared at Anna, who did not know her position, and said in a more serious tone.

At that point, Anna finally stood motionless, not protesting anymore—except she continued frowning.

She could not comprehend the logic of a man’s thought process.

‘Is pride really that important?’

“Lil Sis, I think you’re blinded by love and way too worried!”

“Aren’t you a bright one? Have you ever seen this guy doing things that he’s not confident about? When everyone thinks he’s acting rashly, in fact, he has already targeted his opponent’s weak point and is all set to deliver the fatal blow!”

Henry said with a tone as if he had seen through everything.

“You’re the one who’s being blinded by love!”

Anna’s face suddenly turned bright pink. Her teeth bit on her red lip as she glared at Henry, who was taking the matter lightly.

“I’m speaking the truth!”

Henry’s voice was stern and serious. “Don’t you want to have a look at the more excellent side of the Prince Charming you’re having a crush on?”

Life at the Top Chapter 144

"Prize?"

Mitch was stunned and could not help but burst into laughter as if he had been made to laugh by Jasper.

"Hey poor guy, do you know who I am? You're talking to me about a prize?"

"Alright then, you name it. What do you want to bet on?"

"Very simple, the one who loses the match will crawl one round around the hall of the exchange center!" Jasper said coldly.

As soon as Jasper said it, Henry, who was looking forward to seeing Jasper putting on a show, was surprised—let alone Mitch.

To rich brats like them, pride was way more valuable than money.

'Jasper's bet is like scraping off Mitch's dignity and pressing it hard on the ground while rubbing on it.'

It was the same principle applied as well. If Jasper lost the bet, then he could just give up mingling in Harbor City in the future.

However, at that moment, regardless of what bet Jasper said, the Law siblings were not in any position to offer any comment.

As for Mitch, he was glaring at Jasper as if he wanted to start off brand new and get to know the person before him again.

Mitch then let out a cold smile and said, "I really have no idea where a Mainlander like you got your confidence."

"Alright, since you insist on digging your grave, then I shall grant you that opportunity."

After saying it, Mitch let out a cold laugh and continued saying to Anna, "Anna, today, I shall prove to you with my ability that this Mainlander named Jasper is just a scammer. Wait till it's afternoon. He will be crawling one round around the exchange center."

Anna looked at Mitch and said calmly, "You make me feel all this is just ridiculous."

Mitch's expression showed that he was stunned. He clenched his teeth and glared at Jasper before adding coldly, "Regardless of what underhanded method you used to cheat Anna, you Mainlander, I'll bestow you with a lesson you won't forget."

After saying it, Mitch raised his head and looked at the giant screen.

Jasper shrugged and sat on the sofa. He picked up the iced coke that the exchange center served and drank it joyfully. Then, he took a magazine and started flipping through it while reading it earnestly.

Mitch sneered when he saw Jasper's actions. He teased, "Giving up already? Or pretending to act all high and mighty? Who are you trying to show your act to?"

Henry was feeling anxious as well and came over to say, "You're not going to choose a stock?"

"I've already chosen it," Jasper was looking at the magazine and said calmly.

Henry felt that his intelligence was slowly degrading when being compared to Jasper.

'Why can't I understand a single thing that Jasper says?'

"Earlier, wasn't I constantly looking at the screen? At that time, I had already chosen the few stocks that I want to invest in. Or else, why do you think I'd want to play along with his childish game?" Jasper said faintly.

While he was talking, Jasper changed to another magazine again... Earlier, it was a magazine about some gossip within the entertainment industry and had no business value at all. Hence, he was feeling disgusted about it.

"Do you have confidence?" Anna asked sneakily.

"There's no 100% guarantee in the stock market," said Jasper with a smile. Seeing Anna frowning, he then comforted her. "But don't you worry. For sure, I won't be the one crawling one round around the exchange center this afternoon. I have full confidence in this matter."

Anna was slightly relieved when she heard Jasper saying that.

Mitch glanced at Jasper coldly and sneered.

In his opinion, Jasper was merely pretending to be all high and mighty right now when in fact, Jasper must be extremely worried. Everything he was doing now was just to act tough.

However, Mitch was not bothered at all because when the result was out, he would be able to enjoy looking at Jasper crawling around the exchange center.

'How dare a lowly piece of trash dare to be so close to Anna?!'

Suppressing the jealousy coursing through him, Mitch called a manager from the exchange center.

“I’ve already chosen my stock. Do you have a team that will manually process the trading? I guess a Mainlander like you won’t have such a team. Do you want me to lend you a few men?” Mitch looked at Jasper and said disdainfully.

People with a status like Mitch would not personally operate their own account and do stock trading.

He would usually come up with a strategy, then give his order. Then, there would be a professional team carrying out Mitch’s order.

Life at the Top Chapter 145

As for Jasper, he could not own a trading team to deal with Harbor City's stocks. Just when he was about to say something, Anna spoke up faintly, "Jasp, you may use the Law family's team as you wish."

"Then I'll take up that offer," said Jasper with a smile.

Anna nodded and then made a call. Soon, a small trading team consisting of three men immediately showed up in the VIP room.

Mitch was almost at the brink of breaking down from jealousy when he saw the scene, the corners of his eyes twitching. He said coldly, "Anna, even this Mainlander has the right to use the Law family's team?"

"You already said the team belongs to the Law family, so what rights do you have to instruct me?" Anna counter-questioned.

Mitch was speechless, but his hatred and jealousy against Jasper had grown stronger.

Mitch said to Jasper while letting out a cold laugh, "In a moment, I shall see how you fall!"

Jasper knew the few traders. It was the same trading team he previously met in Zachary's study during the video conference.

It was just that the manager who led the team, Gordon Liam, was naturally not here. Instead, they had already replaced him with a middle-aged man.

“Young Lady Law, Young Master Law, I’m Zack Jensen.” The manager who led the team introduced himself politely then stood aside and was all set to wait for further instructions.

‘This feeling he gives is much better compared to Gordon.’

Anna nodded her head and said, “Manager Jensen, later on, you and your team shall follow Mr. Jasper Laine’s orders. Just follow his instructions when trading.”

Zack’s eyes were sparkling. He still remembered how his colleague, Gordon, ended up quitting his job and feeling dejected because he offended a big shot who was a friend of Mr. Law. ‘Could it be that person is this man before me, Jasper Laine?’

“Your orders, Mr. Laine?”

Zack expressed his respect and said politely.

At that moment, Mitch and Jasper each had their team showing up.

Since it would just be small trading this time and the cash limit was only 100 million, both teams were only limited to three people.

Each team consisted of two traders and a manager in charge of communicating with the strategist.

In no time, both parties had thoroughly understood the situation.

All of them were trading experts within the financial industry. They had experienced such a battle between rich people before.

However, except for Zack, who knew just a little bit about Jasper, the rest of them did not have faith in Jasper.

After all, Mitch was considered as one of the experts in the younger generation of Harbor City when it came to investing.

His previous results were excellent as well.

‘And who the hell is Jasper?’

‘Mainlander?’

‘Is he here at Harbor City to humiliate himself?’

Everyone on the scene was looking at Jasper with a scornful gaze. ‘I wonder where he obtains the confidence to have a battle with Mitch?’

Both teams were settled in the trading room. Each trader had a computer placed before them and logged into their accounts. They were on standby for their respective strategists to give them orders.

“Sunny Internet and Carefree Net, these two stocks are currently at the opening price. Allocate 50% to each of them.”

After Mitch gave his orders, he looked at Jasper with a cold smile, waiting to see what stocks he would choose.

Everyone’s attention was gathered on him.

He casually flipped through the magazine in his hand. Jasper drank a mouthful of cold coke and said carefreely, “Full position into Densen Wintech.”

Mitch was stunned as soon as Jasper said it, then burst into manic laughter.

“Hahahaha, like I said, you’re indeed a worthless Mainlander. Are you really that eager to prove me right?”

“You spent so much time choosing and didn’t choose internet stocks which are on trend right now. Instead, you choose Densen Wintech, which is half dead? What a joke. With that ability, you want to have a battle with me?”

Life at the Top Chapter 146

"If you're really not familiar with it, then please proceed to the main hall downstairs and simply catch hold of one of the janitors. They'll be able to tell you to purchase internet stocks if you want to earn some money."

Mitch was sneering while looking at Jasper. His face was filled with a mocking and scornful look.

"It's one thing if you're able to earn money without learning about stocks. However, your capability in choosing a trash stock is quite impressive."

"Yes, this Densen Wintech is a company belonging to the almighty Langdon, but their achievement this year isn't too good. They've been losing billions continuously and were nearly listed as junk stock. Everyone is desperately trying to avoid them, but you're different from them. You're not bothered and even rushing into them foolishly."

The more Mitch said, the more hilarious he found it. In the end, he just generously burst into loud laughter and said, "Are you regretting it? No problem, don't say that I'm bullying you. I'll give you a second chance to choose again. Hahaha."

As soon as Mitch said it, everyone's gaze that was on Jasper became much more suspicious.

Even though Mitch was an arrogant person, everyone there was a professional within the field and knew that Mitch's comment was reasonable.

This year, Densen Wintech's achievement was so poor that it made everyone disappointed.

A few huge projects under their business ended up with a loss without any profits.

A few days ago, their financial report was out and revealed a piece of huge news—Densen Wintech had lost two billion in the first half of the year.

This caused their stock value to drop drastically.

Currently, no one would buy Densen Wintech's shares.

However, Jasper chose to go full position of 100 million to purchase Densen Wintech.

'Isn't this a crazy move? What else could it be?'

Even Henry and Anna were starting to be suspicious of Jasper, wondering if he had analyzed it wrongly.

Henry said to Jasper, "Did you make the wrong choice? Why not just choose it again?"

"I may not know much about shares, but I know about Densen Wintech. It's a company that belongs to Joe's second son, Kayden. This year, they've suffered a terrible loss.

"Don't tell me you know that these two Langdons have some conflict and will go against each other, hence you purposely chose the shares of Densen Wintech?"

Anna frowned. Even though she had not said a word, her opinion was obviously the same as Henry's.

"I don't need to choose again. I have my own reasoning."

Jasper waved his hand and did not give any further explanations.

There were many things that occurred just like that. Everyone had their cognitive disability, and it would be meaningless to blurt a ton before a certain issue occurred.

As compared to a thorough explanation, Jasper preferred to use actions to speak for himself.

It would save time and energy. Plus, the effects were way better.

Those who applied it would know it best.

“Mr. Laine, the trading is a success,” Zack said politely.

Jasper nodded. He was satisfied with Zack, who did not waste any time and carried out his job decisively.

Mitch laughed coldly when he saw Jasper’s choice and said carefreely, “You really won’t be scared if you don’t bump into potholes. Be prepared to crawl around the exchange center. I hope you’ll still have the confidence you have right now.”

Time was ticking past. When it was noon and the market was about to close, the two men’s results from the morning were presented.

“Mr. Mitch Langdon, the shares of the internet companies are still continuing to rise, especially Carefree Net, which shot up. Your choice on Sunny Internet has risen 3%, and Carefree Net rose 5%. In conclusion, you’ve earned a profit of eight million.”

The manager who led the trading team said to Mitch while putting on a look of admiration.

Such a result made everyone in the room impressed.

Eight million was not worth mentioning, especially to rich people like the Law siblings and Mitch. However, that was a 100 million capital, and it was the result of the entire morning.

Being able to earn eight million in one morning was huge news that would attract everyone, regardless of where the news was spread to.

“Hehe.” Mitch laughed and said, “The stocks I choose will turn out decent. They will still rise in the afternoon. This is nothing worth mentioning.”

As he was saying, Mitch looked at Jasper and said with a cold smile, “How are things going on with Densen Wintech?”

The manager under Mitch glanced at Jasper scornfully and said, “Densen Wintech was dropping all the way during the entire morning. However, just when the market was about to close, it rose a little bit. Currently, Mr. Jasper Laine has some profits too. His profit amounts to about 10,000.”

“Pfft.” Mitch laughed out loud. “10,000?! Did I hear it wrongly? The profit from investing a capital of 100 million can’t be just 10,000. Jasper, you really are amazing, hahaha.”

Life at the Top Chapter 147

On Jasper's side, Henry and Anna were not looking too good.

Of course, they were rooting for Jasper, but reality gave them a feeling that perhaps Jasper had made the wrong choice.

At that moment, Jasper suddenly got up and walked to the door.

"What's wrong, thinking of fleeing away?"

Mitch laughed coldly as if he was looking down at Jasper from a high place, like a victor.

"Who says he's fleeing, f*cker!"

Henry, with a dark expression, glared at Mitch. "We're going for a meal. If you're worried, do you want to tag along?"

Mitch's expression turned dark, and he said with a firm tone, "Henry Law, don't you be too arrogant!"

"Huh?"

Henry, who was holding back the rage that had been coursing within him the entire morning, was looking for a channel to vent it out. Hearing those words made him let out a sinister laugh as he said to Mitch, "I'm an arrogant guy, so what are you going to do to me?"

"Let's go." Anna glared at Henry, warning him not to cause any trouble and follow Jasper out to the doorway.

Henry mouthed a few words to Mitch, then spun around to leave.

With a stern expression, Mitch snorted upon seeing the VIP room door being closed. "Why does he bother being so arrogant? One day, I shall make him regret it!"

"Mr. Langdon, how about us?" the manager asked cautiously.

"Send someone in to deliver the meals! We're not going out. I'm going to wait for them right here. I want to see them returning with teary looks and getting down on their knees before me," said Mitch coldly.

In a hotel nearby the exchange center, Jasper took his sweet time to eat his meal, not at all worried.

Henry could no longer tolerate it and said, "Jasper, what's going to happen in the afternoon?"

It was as if Jasper did not hear it. He ordered the servant to change the television channel to the finance channel.

At that moment, the screen revealed the logo of Densen Wintech, then it was the face of Kayden, with whom everyone in Harbor City was familiar.

"Today, the objective of having this conference is to let everyone know a piece of news. The telecommunication project Densen Wintech took on in Europe previously is a success.

"Densen Wintech has officially attained the telecommunication license in Europe. This will mean that Densen Wintech has successfully become the fourth company in Europe to carry out a legal telecommunication business.

"In the future, Densen Wintech will invest 20 billion and enter the telecommunication market in Europe on a large scale. Besides, we've obtained a 12 billion loan without interest from Chance Corporation.

“In terms of shares, we will be purchasing our shares back on the market and guarantee that the shareholders will gain profits.”

That conference was announced two hours earlier compared to the history Jasper remembered.

However, it would not cause any major loss.

Starting from that day, Densen Wintech would march its way to a high position in the telecommunication industry.

The share price before that day's conference would be Densen Wintech's lowest price for the next 20 years to come.

There were 26 continuous bullish sticks, making Densen Wintech the king of stocks during the miserable situation of the economic crash for the internet aspect during the year 2000 in Harbor City.

Kayden, because of this wave of trade, slowly began having the title of 'Little Superman'.

This conference had stunned the entire Harbor City.

At least at that moment, in the room where Jasper was having his meal, both Henry and Anna were feeling a tingling sensation on their scalps.

They looked at Jasper as if they were staring at a ghost. They even suspected whether Jasper was someone who had traveled from the future.

'This is way too scary.

'Or does he have a very good relationship with Kayden and was already informed about the insider news a long time ago?'

Both of them, feeling stunned and confused, could not say a word.

At that moment, it was as if Jasper had recalled Henry's speech from earlier. He said with a smile, "What did you ask earlier? What about the afternoon?"

"Of course, we're going to find ourselves a nice spot and enjoy the scene of Young Master Mitch Langdon crawling one round around the exchange center."

Life at the Top Chapter 148

“Do... Do you have information from the inside?”

Anna could not help asking.

There would be no other explanation as to how Jasper had managed to grasp such perfect timing for himself on his first try otherwise.

He had just purchased shares for Denson Wintech that very morning, and news of Denson Wintech's prices rising in the stock market then surfaced that afternoon.

Even an idiot knew that Denson Wintech's shares would be up for grabs under such positive circumstances.

If even the top management of Denson Wintech wanted to buy back their shares, did that not prove that they did not want others to earn this money?

The shareholders would not have the audacity to purchase shares from investors if it were not for the immense benefits, which was the nail in the coffin.

However, it was unlikely that anyone would sell their shares unless they were crazy.

Anna would not have believed it had she not witnessed it with her own eyes.

No such coincidence existed in real life.

He either had informants on the inside, or he could predict the future.

There was no other logical explanation.

“I was reading a magazine in the VIP room this morning and happened across a European news magazine that included a story about how the original telecommunication companies in Europe are now seeking cooperation with companies in other countries as 2G networks become more popular.

“Thus, it’s imperative that a new telecommunication company enter Europe. Denson Wintech has exactly the strengths needed.

“In the previous investments that Denson Wintech lost money over, they were not seeking to buy the company itself but rather the patents the company held regarding 2G technology.

“Money might have been lost in the short-term, but these patents will bring unimaginable returns in the long run. That’s how the Langdon family is looking at things. In the long run, the Langdon family will dominate the highest level of the business layout and become one of the richest families in Harbor City.”

The expression on Henry’s face made it seem as if he were listening to a ghost story as he stared at Jasper in shock. He said, “So, you managed to predict that Denson Wintech’s prices in the stock market would soar today based on a cheap magazine that you can buy anywhere in the streets?”

“That’s 90% of it. Another 10% is based on luck. After all, if Kayden had lost his mind today and decided to only hold the press conference tomorrow, I’d have to crawl around the stock exchange this afternoon even if the share prices soar tomorrow.”

Jasper shrugged. Of course, he could not tell the Law siblings that his 10% of uncertainty had withstood the test of time.

After all, the continuously low prices of Denson Wintech’s shares in the stock market had proved to be a hurdle for Kayden to prove his ability.

Thus, he continued to prove his flair in business with everything that was performing well.

Kayden did not have the patience to wait, and Jasper had become the angler who waited patiently.

Henry gave a contented sigh.

He knew it. He just knew it!

By following Jasper, the guy would definitely show his opponents a thing or two!

He could not wait to finish his meal so that he could return to the stock exchange center and look at the expression on Mitch's face. He would use the opportunity to taunt him!

No, he was still inexperienced and needed to learn. He would first observe how Jasper would deal with Mitch!

Henry became excited when he remembered how arrogantly Mitch had mocked him that morning.

Being able to retaliate after being looked down upon felt as refreshing as having an iced drink in the middle of a blazing desert.

When the group returned to the VIP room, there were about ten minutes left before the stock market opened for the afternoon.

It was obvious that Mitch, who had not left the VIP room at all, had no idea what had just happened that afternoon.

He crossed his leg over the other and scoffed as he watched Jasper enter through the door. "I thought you had chickened out and swum back to Mainland."

Jasper sat down calmly on the couch as he said, "You might not be able to watch me swim back, but at least we'll have the pleasure of seeing you crawling around the stock exchange center today."

The smile on Mitch's face slowly vanished as he stared coolly at Jasper, saying, "Sometimes I don't understand where you get your confidence from. Can't you see the facts right before your eyes? I've won, you lost!"

"If anyone needs to crawl, you're the one who needs to do it!"

Life at the Top Chapter 149

Jasper stared at the timer counting down the minutes before the stock market opened and said calmly, "Is the time up yet? How are you sure that you'll still be smiling at the end?"

Mitch scoffed and said, "Delusional."

"I'll let you continue pretending for a couple more hours. When the stock market closes this evening, I'll wait to watch you crawl out of this door like a sniveling dog."

Henry and Anna felt much calmer now than this morning when they had been anxious and worried.

"Why do I feel like laughing when I look at how crazy Mitch is being now?" Henry whispered as he leaned toward Anna.

Anna leaned away in disgust and said irritably, "Don't come so close to me... What's there to watch about that idiot? I do admire Jasper for not losing his cool. You would probably have told him everything by now if it were you."

"Damn, you do know he's the mean one, right? He's not telling Mitch on purpose so that he'll be even more gleeful. The more gleeful he is now, the worse he'll be later. Tsk tsk, I can't wait."

As they spoke, the time arrived. It was time for the stock market to open!

The stock market for Harbor City underwent a massive change the minute it opened.

Jasper and Mitch's men reported everything at a fast pace.

“Sunny Internet’s shares went down at opening!”

“Carefree Net’s shares went down at opening!”

“The crash is massive. It seems that funds are being taken out from the market.”

Shocked, Mitch immediately turned toward the electronic screen and immediately saw that the two shares he had invested in were declining at that moment. It was not because there was bad news from the companies either.

Rather, it was because the funds that had been invested in them were being taken out at the same time.

The stock price was bound to sink when funds were withdrawn.

“What’s going on!? Find out for me where the funds are going!” A bad feeling crept across Mitch as he hollered.

However, he did not have to wait for his team of traders to speak before he heard Zack Jensen’s excited screams from where Jasper was standing.

“It’s growing!

“It’s growing! It’s growing!

“Denson Wintech is growing rapidly!

“A huge amount of money is pouring in!

“It stopped growing!”

“It has stopped growing!?”

“Only ten seconds since the stock market opened and it has stopped growing.

“Sir, Denson Wintech has stopped growing!”

‘Sir’ could refer to both Jasper and Mitch.

However, the two of them had intensely different moods.

Mitch’s face was deathly pale, and his widened eyes were filled with disbelief as his hands shook. He stared at the electronic screen which had already switched to show Denson Wintech’s stocks.

As for Jasper, his eyes shone like stars as he took a sip of his iced coke.

Jasper stood up and walked over to where Mitch was. He gazed at the line that had shot up so rapidly it nearly went out from the screen. He smiled as he said, “The stock market is unpredictable. No one can tell what will happen in the next second, right?”

“No, that’s impossible,” Mitch muttered before yelling crazedly, “This is not normal. How could it stop growing within ten seconds after the stock market opened?! It’ll... It’ll start again soon! It’ll drop for sure!”

“8.9 million dollars worth of stocks are hanging onto this price now, and more than 30 billion dollars worth of stocks were purchased when it stopped growing. Are you going to bet your damned life to get the stocks to drop in price when it opens again?”

As Jasper’s voice rose, his aura changed instantly. He looked like a king as he stared coolly at Mitch, who was wailing in defeat.

“How could this happen... It’s impossible! It must be a fraud!”

Life at the Top Chapter 150

“Don’t you so-called rich kids always talk about victor’s justice? You’re the loser now!”

Jasper’s voice rang throughout the VIP room.

Everyone was staring at Jasper as if he were a god.

Even though the Law siblings had already known beforehand, they still could not help but sigh in admiration as they witnessed it again.

Where had Jasper gotten the courage and foresight to purchase Denson Wintech’s stocks?

A treacherous change occurred among the traders the minute victory was decided between the two.

The three traders who Mitch had brought along with him previously stared at Zack and the others with visible contempt in their eyes.

Zack and the others had been annoyed, but they had no choice but to swallow their anger because of Jasper’s orders.

However, things were different now.

Jasper had retaliated marvelously, kicking Mitch from the heavens to the dust.

It was now Zack and the others who were crowing with delight.

“Tsk tsk tsk. You two, take a good look.”

Zack crossed his legs and shook his head as he said to his two employees, “When you officially debut and become a manager like me, you’d better polish your glasses so that you don’t choose the wrong boss and embarrass yourself like some people I know.”

His words caused Mitch’s three traders to turn an ugly shade of red in the face.

However, Denson Wintech just had a massive growth that could not even be witnessed once a year, and that took all the bravado they had to retaliate against Zack and the rest.

They had no choice but to admit that Jasper had done a wonderful job.

Mitch glared at Jasper, his eyes red as he said coldly, “Did you get insider information?! Did Kayden get you to come lure me into a trap!?”

Jasper said calmly, “So what if it is, and so what if it isn’t?”

Then, Jasper turned toward Mitch and said calmly, “No matter if it’s a trap or not, you’ve lost. You should keep your promise since you’ve lost.”

Stepping out of the way, Jasper chuckled as he said, “Crawl. Start here and crawl around the entire stock exchange center.”

Anger, humiliation, shame, and hatred.

Mitch’s body shook slightly as various emotions took hold of him. He gritted his teeth, caught in a dilemma.

If he, Mitch Langdon, crawled around the stock exchange center, he could never appear in Harbor City again.

Not just him, but the entire Langdon family, including his grandfather, Wallace Langdon, would be the butt of everyone’s jokes.

The minute he crawled out of the room, he would find himself on the front page of Harbor City's tabloids. The next day, the Langdon family would be the laughing stock of Harbor City.

However, if he did not crawl, it did not matter if no one else said a word. Henry Law himself would be able to broadcast the news. Then, not only would he have embarrassed himself, but he would have also become a despicable person.

Both options led to a dead end.

Mitch stared at Jasper as he said, "Don't be so hard on others. You shouldn't pressure people this much."

Jasper scoffed as he asked nonchalantly, "If I'm pressuring people too much, what about your actions?"

The expression on Mitch's face stiffened as he gritted his teeth and said, "Jasper Laine, the Langdon family is a big shot in Harbor City. The Langdon family will never forgive you if I crawl out of this room."

"Woah, woah."

Henry, who hated listening to stuff like this, said in a grim tone, "You make it sound like our families aren't all big shots. If the Langdon family is miffed, there's no problem at all. Shall I get my old man to visit your old man? Or should we bring out the big guns and have your grandfather pay a visit to my grandfather?"

Mitch curled his hands into fists as he glared at Jasper, ignoring what Henry said.

However, his heart had sunk to the pit of his stomach.

Henry would not have been able to represent the entire Law family if he were alone, but since Anna had not objected, it was obvious that the Law family would support Jasper till the end.

This possibility made Mitch uneasy.

“Jasper, choose another way. I can compensate you in any other way.” Mitch’s voice took on a pleading tone.

He had decided that he would do anything to get past this hurdle and then turn back to retaliate ruthlessly.

He would let that country boy have his fun for a while before he seized the opportunity to take his life from him!

“We can do it another way.” Jasper’s lips curled upward in a stunning arc as he spoke.

Mitch felt as if he had been pardoned. He gloated inwardly when he realized that Jasper was still scared to offend him.

A touch of contempt appeared in Mitch’s eyes as he said, “Tell me, how much do you want?”

Country boys would remain country boys in the end. There was nothing insightful about them, and they could be bought off with some money.

It seemed that it was just his lucky day today.

Life at the Top Chapter 151

At least, that was what Mitch thought.

“Kneel.”

When he first heard the word, Mitch thought his ears were playing tricks on him.

Even Henry and Anna widened their eyes.

Kneel?!

Jasper was asking Mitch Langdon to kneel!?

Jasper’s smile grew wider as he gazed at Mitch, whose eyes had widened in shock. “What, did you not hear me clearly? I asked you to kneel.”

Mitch, who had just fallen from heaven to hell, yelled furiously, “In your dreams!”

Jasper said coldly, “Fine. You have a backbone. You can crawl, then.

“You can crawl out of this room and have everyone stare at you as you crawl a full round. Either that or you can kneel before me here. It’s your choice.”

Jasper sat on the couch and stared capriciously at Mitch as he said calmly, “Hurry up with your decision. I’m losing my patience.”

Mitch’s entire body shook slightly as he gritted his teeth. The veins on his hands that were now curled into fists were popping out.

Mitch was experiencing a multitude of emotions right now.

Henry did not even dare to breathe loudly.

To be honest, he had witnessed what it was to be arrogant and domineering today.

His arrogance was merely child's play.

For example, Henry was not intimidated when facing Mitch, but that was about the extent of it.

He would not dare force Mitch to kneel before him.

However, Jasper had gone ahead and done it.

Henry's eyelids twitched as he realized how childish and petty the things he had done in the past were.

They were simply tasteless.

One had to be like Jasper—be the most powerful and arrogant.

“Jasper.”

Anna walked over to Jasper and whispered, “His grandfather has a history with my grandfather. Besides, he's the heir to one of the big shot families here. Why don't we let it go?”

Jasper frowned as he looked at Anna and asked, “Are you begging for his mercy?”

Anna said helplessly, “I guess so! After all, the four big shot families have a complicated relationship. You can't be too ruthless if you're going to expand in Harbor City.”

Jasper frowned but did not say anything.

However, he was cheering inwardly for Anna.

Jasper did not care if Mitch kneeled before him or not.

No matter if he kneeled or not, Jasper would not earn or lose a single penny.

In contrast, he only needed to earn the most tangible benefits.

Anna's words rounded off the scene nicely.

"Yes! Anna's right!" Mitch could not care less about his resentment toward Jasper when he saw there was a chance to turn things around for himself. Hurriedly, he said, "Ten million! I'm willing to pay ten million! Let's forget this ever happened!"

Mitch glanced hopefully at Jasper.

He did not want to witness Jasper deciding to go all out and destroy his reputation. Ten million dollars was nothing compared to kneeling or crawling. Mitch was much more willing to settle this with money!

"100 million and I'll let you off the hook," Jasper said calmly.

Mitch gritted his teeth and glared at Jasper when he heard that. It was f*cking daylight robbery!

It would still hurt him even if he was rich!

"Hehe, Young Master Langdon, you can still earn more money after losing it, but you can never regain your reputation after losing it."

Henry seemed to be reminding him of this out of the goodness of his heart, but the furtive smile on his face seemed to tell another story.

Mitch gritted his teeth as he wrote a check for Jasper and handed it to him.

“You win!”

Life at the Top Chapter 152

“Thank you for your generosity, Prince Langdon.”

Jasper smirked as he took the cheque.

Mitch gritted his teeth and scoffed as he glared at Jasper, saying, “Don’t be too smug. Harbor City might not be large, but things happen every day. We... will have plenty of opportunities to fight again!”

With that, Mitch left with his traders.

“F*ck, what a shame we couldn’t witness him kneeling.”

Henry had a disappointed expression on his face. He might have reminded Mitch just now, but he wanted to see him kneel even more.

“It might have been nice for a moment to watch him kneel, but we wouldn’t have gotten anything else besides that. We would even have gained the Langdon family as our enemy,” Jasper said.

Anna nodded and said, “Jasper is right. Our parents might not care if our subordinates fight amongst themselves, but we would have been pissing on the Langdon family if we had forced him to kneel. They would never let that go.”

Jasper waved the check and said, “If you take a look at the bigger picture, it doesn’t matter if he kneeled or not. We have a far better result now. 100 million dollars! Did you think it would be this easy to earn this much money?”

“I think it’s quite easy for you,” Henry mumbled.

“Come on, let’s go,” Jasper said as he smiled.

Jasper had planned to return straight to the hotel, but after Anna received a call from Zachary saying that things had gone wrong with her business in the entertainment circle, Jasper changed his plans to return to the Laws’ household.

Jasper was much more familiar with the Laws’ household on his second trip there.

“Jasper, long time no see.”

Zachary smiled warmly as he shook Jasper’s hand, then clapped him on the shoulder.

Henry simmered with jealousy as he watched this scene. He might be Zachary’s son, but he rarely received such affection from him.

“Two days,” Jasper said as he smiled.

“Come, let’s have dinner,” Zachary said as he waved an arm.

Old Master Law had gone for treatment and was not present during dinner.

Sitting at the head of the table, Zachary’s eyes lit with curiosity as he listened to Henry and Anna talk about what had happened today.

“I know a little about what happened with Denson Wintech. Joe and Kayden had been making preparations since a year ago to enter the European market, and they’ve done a lot in the process.

“I knew for sure that they would succeed, but I never expected them to succeed this quickly.”

Zachary gazed seriously at Jasper and said, "Did you really predict this outcome just by reading a magazine?"

Jasper laughed and said, "Well, not exactly. I've always paid attention to Joe's properties. There might be a wave of increase in value for them in the future.

"It was just a coincidence today. Besides, I wasn't sure if Denson Wintech would reveal the news today."

Zachary nodded. Jasper's talent would be horribly demonic if he were able to sniff out such a huge business opportunity from a magazine.

However, this was already enough to prove that Jasper had an extraordinary flair for business.

It should be noted that as the head of the Law family, he had access to insider information that no other person could have. However, Jasper still managed to uncover the truth with just the bare facts.

Life at the Top Chapter 153

How could this have been accomplished by an ordinary person?

“You did well in your final choice. Mitch’s grandfather is an honorable man, and we’re indebted to him due to things that happened in the past. We must let him keep his reputation.”

Zachary was extremely appreciative of the fact that Jasper had not driven Mitch to the point of desperation but instead chose to settle the matter with 100 million dollars.

“Of course, you didn’t have to help the Law family repay what we owe the Langdon family. However, if you want to settle in Harbor City in the future, you should take note that we’re different from other places as we take our relationships very seriously. It would have been detrimental to your development if you had offended the Langdon family.”

Jasper said calmly, “I didn’t think about it that much. Respect is earned, not given.

“The Langdon family’s attitude doesn’t affect me too much. I merely think that exchanging a one-time kneel for 100 million dollars is much more worth it.”

Zachary smiled and said, “Alright, not bad. I can’t detect any of the arrogance that young people, especially successful ones like you, might have on you. Many successful people are arrogant, but you aren’t. I always feel like I’m talking to someone my age when I talk to you.”

“Thank you for your generosity in giving me such honor, Mr. Law,” Jasper said as he smiled.

Zachary said jokingly, “Still calling me Mr. Law? Such formalities.”

“Uncle Law, I’ll drink a toast to you.” Jasper smiled as he raised his glass.

“Haha, alright.” Zachary laughed heartily as he clinked his glass against Jasper’s.

Bored of watching Jasper and Zachary tooting each other’s horn, Henry interrupted them.

“Dad, didn’t you ask us to only bring Jasper back home when you’re almost finished with looking into the matter of the entertainment company?”

Zachary nodded when he heard that and said to Jasper, “It must be your luck too. I got my men to look into entertainment companies after you brought it up to me and found out that two of them are intending to sell.

“I finally found one that fits your requirements after excluding some newly-established ones and those that asked for exorbitant prices.

“This company was among the top five film distributors when Harbor City’s movies were still popular all across Terra.”

Jasper raised an eyebrow as he asked, “Are you talking about Gladness Entertainment Movies?”

Zachary was truly surprised this time.

“How did you know that? There are less than five people in Harbor City who now know that Gladness Entertainment Movies is looking to sell. You wouldn’t have guessed this from a magazine this time, would you?”

Jasper smiled and said, “Of course not. However, you just mentioned that the company used to be among the top five film distributors in Harbor City in the past, Uncle Law. That narrows my target down to five companies.”

“Asia Media Movies, Emperor Entertainment Corporation, and Nation Star Movies can be eliminated from the list.”

“Asia Media Movies has the support of Harbor City’s tycoons. They don’t need the money.”

“Emperor Entertainment Corporation is a huge corporation with a focus on entertainment. There’s no way they would consider selling their assets in the entertainment industry.”

“As for Nation Star Movies, they’re owned by the famous Smith brothers. They got rich through movies, and there’s no way they would let go of their money tree.”

“And lastly, I didn’t even consider Sullivan Group. That old man has just as much power as any of the tycoons in Harbor City. The possibility that he would sell the company is low.”

With that, Jasper spread his hands and smiled as he said, “Using the process of elimination, wouldn’t there only be Gladness Entertainment left?”

Zachary nodded as he listened to him and finally said in amazement, “You’re right. It is Gladness Entertainment. Jasper, I’m starting to feel lucky that you’re my ally in the business world instead of my enemy.”

Life at the Top Chapter 154

“Uncle Law, is Gladness Entertainment seriously considering selling?” Jasper asked.

Zachary nodded and said, “Their boss, Michael Lane, is an old friend of mine.”

“Gladness Entertainment Movies is a branch of his company, Gladness International Corporation. It did quite well in the early years, and the company earned quite a bit of money in the movie industry. However, Harbor City’s movies have been losing their popularity in recent years.

“Which is why he has decided to switch his focus from the movie industry to financial asset management and go international. That’s why he wants to carve out the entertainment portion of his company and sell it.”

Jasper thought to himself that the head of Gladness Entertainment Movies, Michael Lane, was a visionary.

In his past life, Harbor City’s movies had peaked in the 90s. Gangster films, gambling films, and movies starring Stephen Cole had made up the youth of a whole generation.

However, their fame started fading starting from the year 2000, and this went on till the year 2020.

However, Michael Lane did not sell the company in his previous life.

“How much is he selling it for?” Jasper asked.

Zachary frowned slightly as he said, "That's where things get complicated. To be honest, if Gladness Entertainment Movies had not met all your requirements, I would have eliminated them immediately.

"First of all, Michael is looking for a powerful buyer to buy the equity of other companies through selling the equities of his own company.

"If you're looking to buy with cash, he's asking for no lower than two billion dollars for the entire company."

Jasper now understood why Gladness Entertainment was never sold in his previous life after hearing what Zachary said.

Michael Lane was blinded by money.

One could not even comprehend how much two billion dollars was. Jasper had only spent ten million dollars to own a controlling share of Terizone.

Although, Terizone was a grassroots organization that was still far from being developed to its full potential.

In Jasper's opinion, Gladness Entertainment Movies was worth no more than 1.5 billion dollars even if it still held the copyright to many movies and had many cinematic resources.

It would only be odd if someone did decide to buy it.

No wonder Gladness Entertainment Company had not managed to sell in his past life.

"Gladness International is only worth five billion dollars as a listed company. Asking for two billion dollars just for a film sub-company is daylight robbery," Anna said as she frowned.

“You can’t look at things that way,” Jasper said as he shook his head.

“The price of things can’t just be measured using the market price. If you find something you like, it doesn’t matter if you pay a slightly higher price for it. If it’s something you don’t like, you wouldn’t buy it even if it’s priced lower than its market price.”

Zachary smiled. “That makes sense. If we think about the influence Gladness Entertainment Movies has, it’s not surprising that there’s a markup.

“After all, even though Harbor City’s movies are not as popular as they used to be, the market for them still exists. As one of the top five companies in the industry, Gladness Entertainment possesses an excellent system.

“Thus, if Jasper wants to enter the entertainment industry, it’ll be a solid deal for him if he splurges and purchases Gladness Entertainment Industry. Just the time and labor costs that you’ll save on in the process is astronomical.”

“Having said that, I can’t just splurge with no reason. Uncle Law, please help me arrange a meeting with Mr. Lane. I would like to have a conversation with him,” Jasper said.

Zachary nodded. “If you think there’s a need for a meeting, I’ll be more than willing to bring the two of you together. How about this? Most of the tycoons in Harbor City will be attending a charity ball tomorrow to show their support. You can come with Anna.”

“Charity ball?”

A wave of emotions washed over Jasper.

He had seen tycoons attending various charity balls in his past life.

They mostly just procured several harmless items to auction and then donate the money raised to those in need.

To put it bluntly, it was a place where rich people would mingle and spend some money to build themselves a good reputation.

Such charity auctions existed worldwide, but Harbor City's tycoons were especially fond of using this method to show off.

He had never imagined that he would also be attending such charity auctions after getting reborn.

"What's wrong?" Zachary asked after noticing the odd expression on Jasper's face.

He thought that Jasper was not a fan of such occasions.

"Nothing. I'm just curious because I've never attended such events," Jasper said as he smiled.

Zachary laughed and said, "It's just a place where we talk, meet new friends, and broaden our social circles. We also buy some trinkets that will never be seen again to build ourselves a good reputation."

"Henry is familiar with such places. I'll get him to bring you along."

Henry smirked as he said, "It's just a place for you to show off, which you're good at."

Zachary glared at Henry, who had forgotten his place. He immediately zipped his mouth and stopped joking.

"Alright, I'll make sure to be on time the day after tomorrow," Jasper said.

Once Jasper had said his goodbyes to the Law family, Henry acted as his chauffeur back to the hotel.

However, this time, Henry did not mind his duty at all.

After boasting all the way to the hotel, Henry scrambled the minute he dropped Jasper off. It was evident from the direction he was driving in that he was not heading home. He was probably heading off somewhere to have fun.

Jasper could not be bothered.

When he got back to his room, he discussed the company's plans with Jack and Hudson as usual. It was past midnight when they wrapped things up.

Jasper called Wendy once the meeting ended.

"You're not asleep yet?" Jasper asked.

"I was waiting for you to call," Wendy said, her voice as gentle as ever.

Smiling, Jasper asked, "Has much been happening in the company these few days?"

"Things are alright with the company, but trying to learn financial stuff is hard. It's so complicated," Wendy said dispiritedly as she flopped onto the bed.

"Every process takes time. Don't be too eager for achievements and take it slowly. I can't afford to have you collapse from exhaustion," Jasper said as he smiled.

Wendy huffed and said, "You're worried that I'll collapse from exhaustion? Look at you, taking such a long trip to Harbor City without coming back sooner."

"I still have some things to do. I'll come back the minute I'm done," Jasper said.

Wendy turned onto her side and said, “Oh, right, Dad wanted me to tell you to visit him once you’re back in Mainland. I think there has been some progress with the entertainment companies in Mainland and he wants you to talk to them.”

“I’ll deal with that once I’m back. There are more pressing issues at Harbor City.”

Life at the Top Chapter 155

“Alright, you deal with your matters in Harbor City first!”

“Don’t worry, I’ll be back soon.”

Jasper talked to Wendy about other matters before hanging up. However, he did not go straight to bed.

He used the hotel’s computer to browse the news and make some notes in the notebook he brought along with him.

Although rebirth was Jasper’s greatest advantage, it would slowly weaken over time.

Jasper was not one to sit on his laurels both in this life and the previous one.

Thus, he needed to study and analyze the day’s news.

Hard workers would not necessarily succeed, but successful people were always hard workers.

Jasper was convinced of that.

The next day, Anna dropped by the hotel with a tailored suit for Jasper.

“It’s for the charity ball tomorrow,” Anna said as she passed the clothes to Jasper.

“How did you know my measurements?” Jasper asked in surprise.

Anna said gleefully, “Besides being the second young lady of the Law family, I’m also a designer. It’s not that hard for me to use my eyes as a ruler to take your measurements.”

This was the first time Jasper had heard that Anna was a designer. With great interest, he asked, “So, you designed this suit for me?”

Anna laughed lightly as she said, “Do you think I’m capable of designing a suit in a couple of days? This is an old design that my mentor praised, so I kept it. You’re the first person who will ever put it on.”

“Who’s your mentor?” Jasper asked.

“Karl Lagerfeld,” Anna replied.

Jasper stared at Anna in surprise. “Kaiser Karl?!”

“You know him too?” It was Anna’s turn to be surprised.

“Oh, I more than know him,” Jasper said as he shrugged.

To be honest, Jasper would not have heard of the man if he had not died and caused the entire world to talk about him in 2019.

However, he could not deny that the well-tempered Kaiser Karl had been one of the absolute best in the fashion circle.

After all, not everyone got a documentary about their life after death.

“If you’re Kaiser Karl’s apprentice, would you be interested in opening a fashion design studio? I can invest in it,” Jasper said as he smiled.

Anna said flatly, “He said that I’m still young, so I’m not allowed to open a studio and disgrace him before I master the skills.”

Jasper laughed. That did indeed sound like what Kaiser Karl would say.

Jasper stepped out of the bedroom once he was done changing.

He was usually dressed casually in a T-shirt and sweatpants, sometimes with a jacket thrown on top of. It was rare for him to be dressed this formally.

Anna's eyes lit up when she saw Jasper in the suit.

Frankly speaking, Jasper had always been good-looking.

Not the preppy kind of good-looking, but just pure masculine handsomeness. He could be described to have a soft, moderately chiseled face with strong eyebrows and clear eyes.

Besides, he had a good figure. He was neither thin nor bulky. He had a wide frame and wide shoulders too. He was a natural model.

Jasper could pull off any outfit he was given.

Especially suits, which demanded a good figure. They looked even better when he wore them.

"After seeing you, I'm beginning to think that the men in Harbor City are too effeminate. They can't be called men at all," Anna said sincerely.

"Thank you for your praises," Jasper said as he stood in front of the mirror and smiled.

He was quite pleased with how he looked too.

Kaiser Karl did not care how rich or powerful one's family was when he took in apprentices.

The Law family could be considered powerful within Harbor City, or even within the entire Somer community. However, there were people much more powerful than the Law family if one looked at it from a global perspective.

Thus, Kaiser Karl only ever looked at a person's personal style and talent when choosing his apprentices. If they fit his style, he would even instruct you for free.

Anna must be a talented designer to be Kaiser Karl's apprentice.

The suit that Anna designed had a simple uncomplicated style that looked clean and crisp. There were not any complicated patterns and it managed to convey a majestic aura using only the simplest designs.

"Just one more thing," Anna said suddenly as she walked toward him.

She stood in front of Jasper. A black bowtie had somehow found its way into her hands.

Tilting her head back, Anna used her slender, pink arms to turn over Jasper's collar. Then, she circled her arms around him and helped tie the bowtie on his collar.

The two of them were standing very close to each other. They were so close to each other that Jasper could even feel Anna's body touching his when she breathed.

Jasper had to lower his head to Anna's height because she was helping him wear his bowtie. The minute he lowered his head...

To be frank, Anna won over every woman Jasper had ever seen in his life in terms of figure.

Her creamy fair skin was tinted with a shade of cherry blossom pink and was so smooth that even your gaze could smoothly slide down it.

In the span of a stolen breath, that stunning glimpse was enough to enrapture his soul.

Perhaps because she was done with the bowtie, or perhaps she had realized how close they were to each other, Anna took a step backward.

That step was enough to jolt Jasper out of the charming and sweet-smelling trance he was in a moment before.

“Done.” Anna’s forcefully calm voice wavered slightly.

What could one say to ease the awkwardness now?

Nothing.

No matter what he said, it would make the girl shy and flustered.

Like the expert he was, Jasper avoided the minefield. Turning again to look into the mirror, he gazed at the bowtie as he smiled and said, “Gorgeous.”

It was hard to tell if that ‘gorgeous’ was meant for himself or Anna.

“I’m... I’m going now. See you tomorrow.”

Anna’s flustered voice rang out before she grabbed her purse and ran off.

Jasper scoffed as he stared at himself in the mirror. The corners of his lips curled upward to form a smile that made him seem wickedly flirtatious.

“See you tomorrow!”

Life at the Top Chapter 156

Anna and Henry arrived at the hotel in the early afternoon to pick Jasper up.

You would never drive yourself to such formal events, which was why the Law siblings had their chauffeur drive them in the family's other Rolls-Royce.

Henry, also dressed in a suit, widened his eyes in surprise when he saw Jasper stepping out of the hotel.

"Why bother buying an entertainment company when you look like that? Might as well go star in a movie and gain instant fame," Henry said with jealousy.

Jasper laughed as he got into the car. "Starring in a movie is such tiring work. How could it be as easy as being a CEO?"

Henry clicked his tongue and was about to say a reply when he noticed something. He stared intently at the suit Jasper was wearing.

A couple of seconds later, Henry wailed and said in equal parts anger, jealousy, and woe, "Anna Law, isn't this the suit you designed?!"

"You wouldn't let me wear it no matter how much I asked. Were you waiting for Jasper?!"

"I'm your brother! Your brother! Besides your mom, dad, and grandpa, I'm the person closest to you! How could you do this to me?!"

After listening exasperatedly to Henry's wails, Anna said stiffly, "What are you yelling about? Are you scared that the tabloid journalists won't be able to hear us?"

Henry had a vengeful expression on his face.

Excelsior Hotel was a top-notch five-star hotel in Harbor City best suited for these high-end charity balls.

The red-carpeted area outside the hotel was already filled with people when Jasper and the others arrived.

The press, crowd, and bodyguards had been arranged on both sides in an orderly manner.

Every once in a while, a luxurious car would pull to a stop near the red carpet and the passenger inside would step out of it.

It was just like an awards ceremony.

However, stars were the main characters of an award ceremony.

These stars were only an accessory to tycoons at places like these, where the rich and famous mingled with each other.

No matter how famous you were or how large your fanbase was, you had to be careful here, lest you say or do something wrong and offend the wrong person in the community.

Tragedies like these had happened in the past.

Modern stars were not much different from the playwrights of the past in front of the powerful.

As one of the top four most powerful tycoons, the Law family required an elaborate entrance.

A time period of an extra five minutes had been allocated both before and after the time slot the Law family was supposed to arrive.

For those not in the know, there was nothing new about the Law family. They were all old-time friends or rivals. They were much more interested in Jasper, who had been growing close to the Law family.

Especially Bob, who heard that Jasper would be attending the charity ball with the Law family.

“Jasper Laine is coming tonight.”

Bob spoke quietly to Zane who was standing beside him.

Zane’s mouth twitched, and a gloomy expression came over his face when he heard Jasper’s name.

“I’ll head in first to socialize with some old friends. Find a chance to humiliate him if he has arrived. Count it as interest.”

Bob patted his female companion on the arm when he was done speaking and motioned for her to follow him.

A famous, beautiful female movie star was standing beside him.

Zoelle Griffin.

Zoelle Griffin might be the most famous star in Harbor City now, but at this moment, she was nothing more than Bob’s female companion.

Zoelle had also gone through various hurdles and defeated many people to be his companion.

The entertainment industry was far more complicated than outsiders thought it to be. Female stars had to pay painful prices that one could not even begin to imagine to advance through the ranks.

Seemingly posh and elegant before the masses, they were nothing more than a tool to earn profits in a capitalist society.

Zoelle glanced in another direction. It was another female star who was in the same rank as her, Queenie Shaw.

At that moment, Queenie was standing beside Mitch, who was gazing silently at the approaching Law family's car with a solemn expression on his face. No one could tell what thoughts were going through his mind.

Life at the Top Chapter 157

As the crowd stared, the Rolls-Royce pulled to a stop at the red carpet. Someone immediately came forth to open the door.

Lights immediately began flashing wildly. It was as bright as if someone was shining a large searchlight.

Henry was the first one to get out of the car.

The wealthy son was well-known by both the tabloids and the crowd.

Then, there was a face that most people did not know.

“Who's that?”

Someone asked curiously as they watched Jasper getting out of the car.

Even though they had no idea who he was, everyone understood that any person who could enter a venue in the same car as Henry Law would be someone important.

He would have to be at least an esteemed guest of the Law family to have such eligibility.

Both Zane and Mitch's blood were boiling as they stood some distance away. They were wishing they could charge forth and pummel Jasper to death.

Under the flashing lights, Jasper turned to stand by the car door in a gentlemanly manner. He reached out and elegantly helped Anna out of the car.

Anna's slender, soft hand nestled in Jasper's palm. The minute she got out of the car, Harbor City's passion for both beauty and gossip heightened to new levels.

Dressed in a red evening gown, Anna grabbed the attention of every male at the scene the moment she got out of the car.

Bright red was a picky color. Not every woman would be able to pull that color off. Moreover, the evening gown demanded a perfect figure.

However, not only did Anna pull off the dress beautifully, but she even managed to make it seem even more beautiful.

When a person was truly beautiful, it was not their clothing that made them look even better, but the other way round.

She had a long, slender figure, and her long hair was pulled into a simple bun at the back of her head. Several strands of hair bounced around her pale neck.

She seemed as regal as a swan and as flirtatious as the devil.

At that very moment, no one dared challenge her title as the most beautiful woman in Harbor City.

The venue was filled with movie stars and gorgeous girls galore, and none of them gained their looks through plastic surgery. They were all gorgeous in their way.

However, Anna's appearance had caused their beauty to fade.

Jasper smiled as he extended his right hand toward Anna for her to hold on to as they walked forth.

Anna smiled as she placed her arm in Jasper's. The two smiled as they stepped onto the red carpet and walked toward the hotel.

A strange man had arrived in the same car as the Law siblings.

The young lady of the Law family seemed to have a boyfriend.

The journalists had adrenaline coursing through them as they looked at the lovely couple. They had even already crafted the next day's headline in their minds.

Henry felt jealous as he walked behind them, a stiff expression on his face.

"Stupid. He doesn't even look that good, but he's good at what he does. He even got my sister to be his date!"

Henry gritted his teeth. He might have changed his opinion of Jasper, but he still felt annoyed!

He was the young master of the Law family but seemed to only be an accessory to Jasper. He could only be his student!

Besides, this was not the first time he had felt that his identity as the young master of the Law family was worth nothing when he stood next to Jasper.

“Young Master Law, who is the man next to your sister? Is he your future brother-in-law?”

A brave journalist extended their neck out to pose the question.

“You’re talking about him?”

Harry pursed his lips. “He’s from Mainland. But if he’s alright with it, my grandpa and dad might even wrap my sister up like a present for him!”

Boom!

Everyone nearby felt their heads imploding!

Life at the Top Chapter 158

Who was Anna Law?

She was recognized to be the most beautiful lady in the upper circle of Harbor City.

She was the apple of Old Master Law’s eye.

The number of people who wanted to date her could form a line that stretched from Victoria Harbor to Causeway Bay!

They were all sons of rich families too.

However, they were now hearing this from Henry Law?

The journalist who asked the previous question seemed to think that they had struck gold, but by the time they wanted to ask another question, Henry had already walked off.

He was finally free from the flashing lights once he had crossed the red carpet and entered the hotel.

However, the socializing that came after was also a pain.

The differences between various cliques were exceptionally obvious in vanity fairs like these.

The four big shot families formed a clique of their own, and no one else was allowed in it.

When the four big shot families were done socializing, they would scatter off to look for those who were on good terms with their families.

The rival circles would have a clear-cut separation from each other.

However, no matter who you were, you would put on a smile for everyone.

New acquaintances popped up continuously before Jasper as long as Anna stayed beside him.

He had met members from the other three big families. They were mostly elegant, well-spoken people.

They had an obvious interest in Jasper. However, it did not seem right for them to pose the question.

However, Jasper could feel the crowd's attention shifting toward him as his name spread throughout the venue.

"Master Boyle, I heard your wife is pregnant. We'll be looking forward to your invitation once your child is born," Anna said as she smiled at the head of the Boyle family.

The man, who was several years older, blushed as he laughed and said, "Of course, of course. I'll make sure yours doesn't get lost in the mail."

After a round of greetings, Jasper had gotten to know several people and even more people had learned his name now.

No one knew where it started, but news of what Jasper had done awhile back traveled through the crowd like the plague.

"Mr. Laine, you were the one who purchased our company on the stock market the other day?" Kayden asked as he looked at Jasper in surprise.

Jasper smiled and said, "I didn't expect that to surprise you, Mr. Langdon."

"The amount of shares you hold now makes you eligible to enter the board of directors. Rules state that you must be notified the next time the company meets with the board of directors," Kayden said as he smiled.

Jasper said to Second Young Master Langdon, who was a refined man, "As an investor, I'm merely optimistic about your company's future and intend to make a profit while I can. I don't think I'll be needed in the company's meeting with the board of directors."

Kayden smiled meaningfully as he said, "I must compliment you on your fine taste, Mr. Laine."

Their conversation seemed peaceful, but there was a hidden agenda to it.

Kayden was worried about the intentions Jasper might be holding toward his company. If that was the case, the two would have to fight then and there, but Jasper had no interest whatsoever in the Langdon family's business, and he made sure to give an honest explanation.

His honesty had gotten him Kayden's appreciation in return.

"Here's my card. Let's talk again when we have the chance." Kayden smiled as he handed his card over.

"Of course."

Smiling, Jasper took the card from Kayden and offered his in return.

Taking the card from him, Kayden glanced at it and said in surprise, "Mr. Laine, you have an investment company in Mainland? JW Capital... Is that the one that's investing in Terizone?"

"Yes!" Jasper was not surprised that Kayden had heard of Terizone.

In his past life, Hudson had asked Kayden to invest in the company, and he had indeed done so.

"Haha, seems like we'll have a lot to talk about in the future," Kayden said playfully.

The two conversed for a little longer before Kayden said goodbye and headed elsewhere. People like him could not talk to any one person at an event for too long.

Kayden had just stepped away when Jasper heard a piercing voice behind him.

"Hey, look at what I've found. A Mainlander trying to mix into high society. You actually have the nerve to come in?"

Mitch scoffed as he walked over with Queenie.

“Was 100 million dollars too little for you to be considered as a punishment?” Jasper asked coolly.

The expression on Mitch’s face stiffened as he scoffed and said, “Don’t be too proud. You were just lucky. I refuse to believe that you’ll always be this lucky. One day, you’re going to end up worse than a dog.”

“I don’t know how I’m going to end up in the future, but I do remember clearly that I ended up with 100 million dollars from you the other day,” Jasper said as he laughed lightly.

Mitch gritted his teeth as he said angrily, “Do you have nothing else to talk about besides that 100 million?”

“Indeed, I have nothing else to say to you,” Jasper said coolly.

“Young Master Langdon, the banquet has not started. No need to get into conflicts with other guests,” Queenie hurriedly said when she saw the expression on Mitch’s face.

Mitch scoffed and said, “You’re right. Getting angry at someone like him does nothing but taint my reputation. That Mainlander ought to take a look at himself. He won’t fool anyone into thinking he’s a king even if he has the royal mantle draped over him!”

Queenie glanced curiously at Jasper. She had done several jobs in Mainland this year and also shot several commercials there, which meant she had a vague understanding of Mainland.

What she was sure of was that a man as attractive as Jasper was hard to come by both in Mainland and Harbor City.

Even without mentioning anything else, Jasper's gentlemanly and elegant demeanor on the red carpet just now had already attracted countless women.

"Queenie, I hear that many of your fans are Mainlanders." Mitch scoffed as he raised his chin toward Jasper. "See that? The movie star who you Mainlanders don't even dare dream of meeting is my date tonight."

"Ms. Shaw, you're under Gladness Entertainment, aren't you?" Jasper asked calmly.

"Yes."

Queenie nodded, not understanding why Jasper asked that question all of a sudden.

Smiling, Jasper turned and said to Mitch, "The world is a miraculous place because you can never guess what's going to happen in the next second. For example, your date who you're so proud of, a famous movie star with countless fans, might have a new boss in the next second."

"What do you mean?" Mitch narrowed his eyes and glared threateningly at Jasper as he spoke.

"Nothing," Jasper replied calmly.

"Jasper, my dad's looking for you."

Just then, Anna walked over and spoke quietly to Jasper.

Mitch was handsome, and Queenie was naturally gorgeous.

However, they paled in comparison to Jasper and Anna.

Jasper smiled as he extended an arm toward Anna and then pointed to their interlocked arms.

He smiled at Mitch and said, "My date, Anna Law."

Life at the Top Chapter 159

Mitch stared at Jasper's retreating figure. He felt blood pooling at the base of his throat, but he could neither swallow it nor spit it out.

He had just been gloating over the fact that Queenie was his date, and Anna Law suddenly appeared beside Jasper the very next second.

Queenie was pretty and famous enough.

To be honest, one could not be embarrassed bringing Queenie along to any event.

She was on par with his status as Mitch Langdon too.

However, one was always worried to be compared with.

A man's success was measured by the woman beside him.

Queenie was fine, but could she and Anna be compared side by side?

They were miles apart.

Mitch felt his face burning, and that translated to him feeling annoyed as he stared at Queenie.

“Young Master Langdon... You...”

Spooked by the look in Mitch’s eyes, Queenie was just about to speak when she heard Mitch saying, “F*ck off!”

Queenie stared at Mitch, flabbergasted.

“I said, f*ck off!”

Mitch turned after speaking coldly to Queenie and strode off, leaving her stranded at the venue. Tears filled her eyes.

...

Jasper and Anna entered a smaller hall in the hotel.

The hall outside was for the younger generation to mingle and form connections while this smaller hall was where the real vanity fair was. It was where the actual bosses gathered.

The majority of the richest in Harbor City had arrived.

This was not a scene that everyone would have the opportunity to witness.

When Jasper entered, he saw Zachary approaching him with a smile on his face.

“Jasper, come over. I want to introduce you to a few of my old friends.”

Zachary grabbed hold of Jasper's arm affectionately and laughed loudly as he led him forward.

He was doing this on purpose for the others to witness.

He wanted the others to know that he, Zachary Law, approved of this young man. They all needed to pay their respects to him.

Zachary could do that with the status and power he held.

Sure enough, everyone immediately looked at Jasper with a different glint in their eyes.

They had to have a certain amount of power to be let into this room. News traveled much faster among them here, and Jasper's identity was already no longer a secret.

Bob, who was nearby, got Zoelle to talk to the other women. When he got rid of her, he turned toward the middle-aged man who looked somewhat similar to Mitch.

"Kennedy, what's Jasper's relationship with the Law family?"

Kennedy said calmly, "Big B, you should stop using all your attention on those movie stars and pay more attention to other matters.

"Zachary got to know Jasper in Mainland some time ago. I don't know what exactly happened between them, but Zachary thinks very highly of him. Even Old Master Law can't stop praising him."

The expression on Bob's face faltered when Old Master Law was mentioned. "So, this Jasper Laine is not going to be easy to deal with."

Bob raged inwardly when he remembered how he had taken a fall in front of Jasper even though he was Jasper's senior.

Life at the Top Chapter 160

Just then, Zachary had already led Jasper over to a modest-looking middle-aged man who had a pair of round glasses on.

"Jasper, this is Michael Lane, otherwise known as Mr. Lane. He's the CEO of Gladness International Corporation."

"Mike, this is the wonderful young man I've been telling you about, Jasper Laine."

When Zachary was done with the introductions, Jasper extended a hand and said while smiling, "Nice to meet you, Mr. Lane. I've heard a lot about you."

Michael smiled as he shook Jasper's hand. "I've never heard about you in the past, but Zach's been talking about you for the past few days."

The fact that Zachary and Michael had nicknames for each other proved that they were on close terms.

After exchanging pleasantries, Jasper said, "Mr. Lane, I won't beat around the bush anymore since Uncle Law is here. I'm interested in purchasing Gladness Entertainment, which you currently own."

Michael glanced at Zachary before he smiled at Jasper and said, "I do intend to sell it. However, in terms of its pricing, I understand that it's not exactly cheap, but I don't plan to lower the price."

Michael might be a good-tempered man who was easy to talk to, but he was a force to be reckoned with in the business world. After all, he had managed to build the empire that was now Gladness International Corporation.

“You can’t deny the fact that Harbor City’s movies are declining in popularity. I’m worried that you’ll struggle to find a buyer as sincere as I am if your price is too high.”

Jasper was not one to spend mindlessly and thus would not just agree to whatever price Michael had set. As such, he did not hesitate to retaliate.

Michael said calmly, “But Gladness Entertainment has the best assets in the entertainment industry. That’s a fact. Jasper, how much effort would you have to put into creating a company like mine from scratch if you wanted to enter the entertainment industry?”

“I would not be standing before you if I didn’t agree that Gladness Entertainment has the best assets, Mr. Lane,” Jasper smiled as he said that.

Michael laughed and thought for a moment before he shook his head and said, “I had put my heart and soul into Gladness Entertainment. I wouldn’t be selling it if I had a choice. No more negotiations regarding the price.”

Jasper said calmly, “If that’s the case, there’s no need to continue this conversation.”

With that, he turned and left.

Not only was Michael stunned at that swift exit, but so was Zachary.

Who did business like that, turning around and leaving the minute a disagreement surfaced?

Given Jasper’s assertive attitude, it did not look like he wanted to buy Gladness Entertainment but more like Michael was begging him to buy the company.

“Jasper, wait.”

Zachary had not interrupted thus far. He was merely a middleman for this transaction, and his role was to ensure things wrapped up nicely. Now that the deal was about to fall apart, he called after Jasper.

Just then, a waiter walked over with a tray. Zachary took three glasses of wine and gave Jasper and Michael a glass each before he took a sip. He then said while smiling, “What’s a business deal without a little compromise? Mich, you’re the senior here. Why don’t you express your attitude first?”

Michael frowned as he said, “I’m not explicitly demanding cash. You can also seal the deal with shares.”

“What if it’s a tip that can prevent Gladness International Corporation from losing 40% of its value in the market?” Jasper suddenly asked.

Michael’s eyes lit up as he gazed seriously into Jasper’s eyes and asked, “Young man, do you hear what you’re saying?”

Zachary’s expression turned solemn.

Jasper’s choice of business jargon had already crossed the line from being impolite to being insulting.

In his past life, Gladness International Corporation, which shifted their focus into the finance industry, had met with the burst of the dot-com bubble. They had suffered major losses at the end of the year 2000.

Memories of Gladness International Corporation played in Jasper’s mind as he said calmly, “The burst of the dot-com bubble is starting in the west. It might be as fast as a week or as slow as half a month. Either way, something will definitely happen. Most of Gladness International Corporation’s investments are in internet companies, right?”

Michael shuddered.

“Do you dare take responsibility for your words?” Michael asked solemnly.

Jasper glanced at Zachary before he said calmly, “Mr. Lane, I’m willing to bet a billion dollars with you if you don’t believe me.”

Michael barked out a laugh as he said, “No need for a bet. I can sell Gladness International Corporation to you for 15 billion dollars, but you have to promise me one thing.”

Life at the Top Chapter 161

“Mr. Laine, you’ve been really close to the Laws recently. You guys must be planning something together. No matter what you are planning, you have to count me in as well!”

Jasper raised his brow at Michael’s words.

Logically, the first thought that came into Jasper’s mind was that Zachary Law must have told Michael something.

However, Jasper immediately snuffed out the possibility of something like that happening.

From a business perspective, Zachary had a position that ranked higher than everyone present here. Even if he had a good personal relationship with Michael and wanted him to join his side, he would not just disregard Jasper and tell Michael everything.

For now, the fact that he was working together with the Laws was absolutely confidential.

It was impossible for Zachary not to understand the risks of involving more people in their plans. If something like that were to be exposed to the outside world, especially by someone from the Law family, it would definitely bring forth consequential impacts to the finances of Harbor City.

Therefore, as long as Zachary did not do anything foolish, it was impossible for the outside world to know anything about their plan.

“Don’t overthink. It was easy for me to guess. You made your fortune in the stock market, and everything that you have recently done in Harbor City revolved around the stock market. At the same time, Zachary has been rather active nowadays. It is obvious that a major event is about to take place.

“These aren’t secrets. Those who are observant can easily realize this if they pay a little attention. However, they lack the core contextual information, so they don’t understand the common goal that underlies your individual actions.

“In the beginning, I didn’t get it as well. However, after hearing what you said just now, I immediately understood. The downfall of the Internet economic bubble is a disaster for most, but if you managed to predict it and made arrangements beforehand, it would be a celebration of wealth and capital.

“You have the abilities, and Zachary has the funds. That’s enough to create an impact in the capital sector of Harbor City.”

Jasper nodded after Michael finished speaking.

Sure enough, someone who had managed to make a name for himself in a place full of powerful, influential people like Harbor City was not simple-minded at all.

Since Michael had already seen through their facade, there was no need for Jasper to continue hiding it from him.

“This condition is acceptable, but there’s something that you must do, Mr. Lane. Otherwise, there’s nothing more for us to discuss,” Jasper said.

“Say it,” Michael said with a grin. He was overcome with relief after Jasper agreed to his proposition.

“I don’t care about how much funds you intend to contribute, but you must hand it over to me to ensure everything operates in unison. Also, since you’ve decided to get in this car that I’m driving, you must follow my command in everything, from the speed, to the direction that the car is going.”

Michael smiled at his words. "Of course, I'm just taking the opportunity to score a bargain deal. I definitely wouldn't try to overthrow you. I'll listen to whatever you ask me to do when the time comes," he said.

Jasper raised his glass with a chuckle. "Let's make a toast to our successful collaboration. Cheers."

"Cheers."

This toast signaled the commencement of a 1.5-billion-dollar entertainment film package sale plan, and future financial plans involving at least tens of billions of dollars' worth of funds.

Michael was evidently in a pretty good mood. He chatted and joked around with Jasper for a while before coming up with an excuse to leave.

After he left, Jasper said, "It seems like there are a lot of smart people out there in the world."

Zachary laughed. "In truth, this deal guarantees a win for both parties in the transaction. You saved 500 million dollars in the takeover of Gladness Entertainment, and he can rely on you to earn more in the future. There are no losses for you," he said.

"More importantly, after this incident, Gladness International Corporation will naturally form an alliance with you. This is extremely beneficial for you in the future."

Jasper nodded at his words. He replied, "Actually, having one more person on board does not affect how we earn money. With him, we won't make a penny less, and without him, we won't make a penny more either. The thing is, is this person reliable?"

“He’s trustworthy. I’ve known him for a few decades now. He’s a person who doesn’t easily show his true intentions. He’s good at scheming, but he may appear rather selfish at times just because he’s too good at it.

“Honestly, nobody’s perfect. Other than that, he’s perfectly reliable.”

Jasper nodded at Michael’s words.

Since it was a charity auction gala function, the main attraction of the gala would be the auction.

In reality, these were all formalities. All the rich men simply had to take out some of the items they did not need and put them up for an auction. No matter how much the items got auctioned for, the money would be donated to charity.

Moreover, there was a high probability that these items would not even pass through the actual auction. This was simply a matter of price.

All the rich and powerful people who came to the function would also make a bid for one or two items each to join in the fun of the occasion.

This money meant nothing to them. They were only doing so to make a good reputation for themselves.

Life at the Top Chapter 162

The auction commenced not long after. Jasper and Wendy had already returned to the banquet hall.

A big boss like Zachary Law no doubt had a custom seat for himself. Meanwhile, the younger ones like Jasper and Anna gathered in the hall while waiting for the auction to begin.

This occasion was a gathering of the stars. Everyone shone in all of their extravagance.

Even the air was filled with the lingering scent of wealth and fame.

Being as meticulous as always, Jasper also noticed that Mitch Langdon and Zane Lancaster were seated together. The two of them were peering at him as subtly as they could.

It was evident that having a common enemy allowed them to achieve a certain degree of understanding with each other.

“How did the both of them get together?” Anna asked, frowning her brow.

Based on logical reasoning, Zane only had his father, Bob Lancaster. Nonetheless, Mitch was different. His father was Kennedy Langdon, whereas his grandfather was Wallace Langdon. They were both top bosses in their own leagues.

With Wallace Langdon around, the Langdons would easily take the throne among the top four families of Harbor City.

Therefore, based on such reasoning, Zane had no right to sit next to Mitch.

“Both of them are equally bad. It should be easy for them to find a common topic among themselves,” Jasper said. He did not mind at all.

Since he attended the function with Anna, Jasper sat in a seat designated for the Laws. It was located right at the front of the hall.

The first four rows were reserved for the Laws, the Boyles, the Langdons, and the Lennons.

The remaining seats were allocated for the other prominent and wealthy families of Harbor City. The seats extended backward in order of wealth and status.

There were close to a hundred tables.

This showcased the number of wealthy people in Harbor City.

Over here, those with assets worth a billion dollars or less were considered poor.

Meeting Henry once again, Jasper realized that there was a beautiful female celebrity seated next to him.

Furthermore, Jasper knew her well. Thanks to Mr. Collins, Jasper had enjoyed viewing a fair few of her gorgeous photographs.

Cindy Jung.

Stage name, Sherry.

She would be debuting in a group with another female celebrity this year after signing a contract with Golden Entertainment. She would become really popular in the future.

However, after the incident with the camera, she was utterly ruined.

Jasper had even lamented over it in his past life.

“Here’s my date. Not bad, huh?” Henry remarked proudly.

He did not really like famous female celebrities. If he wanted any of them, they would be queueing up in front of him in no time. However, he generally found them dirty.

Therefore, Henry preferred fresh faces that have only just made their debut. He found them pleasant and fresh-looking.

Cindy was rather nervous as well. She greeted Anna and Jasper respectfully.

If Henry had not brought her here, never in her life would she have the right to sit in this seat.

Anna was unfazed. Something like this was extremely normal in a wealthy family.

However, Jasper knew that Cindy had a pretty messy private life despite her innocent looks. He grinned and said, "It's good as long as you think it's good."

Henry always felt that Jasper was trying to hint at something with his curious choice of words. Nevertheless, he could not seem to figure out what Jasper meant. Therefore, he felt extremely uncomfortable about this.

Jasper had just sat down when Zane's sinister voice rang out from the table beside them.

"Oh, look over here. It's a country bumpkin from the Mainland. Do you think that you're our equal now that you've found a wealthy person to back you up? The fact that you're pretty pleased about it all is terribly disgusting."

His voice was not loud, but it was enough for everyone from the four top families, who were seated not too far away, to hear clearly.

Life at the Top Chapter 163

His words attracted the attention of many people.

Most of them were here just to watch the scene unfolding before them and join in on the fun.

Alas, Jasper was not a slice of delectable pie. It was impossible for him to make everyone like him.

If he were to consider the top four families alone, many of them felt a strong animosity toward him due to him being an outsider's sudden appearance in their family affairs.

Everyone was simply maintaining a facade of harmony on the surface.

Mitch Langdon, for example, was on the verge of becoming his lifelong archenemy.

Now that Zane had voiced out, a lot of people were waiting for Jasper to embarrass himself. Many of the gazes directed at him were dripping with contempt.

Henry arched his brows. He thought of Jasper as a respected mentor that would guide him on the path of becoming bigger and better. Furthermore, the Laws had invited Jasper to sit at their table. Thus, he represented the Laws as well.

By shaming Jasper Laine, it meant that he was putting the Laws to shame as well.

How could Henry stand this?

Just as Henry was about to say something, Jasper voiced out.

“You have it wrong. Being your equal is an insult to me.”

A lot of people could not resist bursting out into laughter at Jasper’s words.

Zane was fuming with anger. He glared at Jasper after being humiliated by him and sneered, “Why are you being so rash? Harbor City isn’t the Mainland. You can’t act as arrogant as you wish to over here. You won’t even know the cause of your death later on.”

“Aren’t you tired of repeating the same things over and over again?” Jasper asked impatiently.

“Even if you want to threaten me, do it differently. Please enlighten me on how you wish to end my life.”

Henry was amused while listening to their exchange. Jasper had such a smart and sharp way with words. Looking at the helplessness and blunt rage in Zane’s gaze, it was clear to everyone just how powerful Jasper’s stance was.

Zane, who did not manage to humiliate Jasper but got humiliated himself instead, was so vexed that he began gritting his teeth. Just as he was about to say something, Mitch, who was seated beside him, raised his voice.

He glanced at Jasper indifferently. “Zane, stop talking. What good can come out of having a sharp tongue with someone like that?” He asked nonchalantly.

“He’s just like a dog at home. It won’t understand if you scold it. Just beat it up. When it hurts, it’ll learn its place. Dogs are dogs, it’s impossible for them to surpass their owners.

“Are you just afraid that you won’t have the chance to teach the dog a lesson?”

A light-hearted expression formed on Zane's face after listening to Mitch's words. He chuckled. "You're perfectly right, Mitch. I can't bite back at a dog if it bites me, right? I'll teach it a lesson when the opportunity arises. It'll understand when it hurts after getting beaten up," he said.

Right then, the host walked onto the stage. Everyone fell silent immediately.

Although the host was a hotshot within the entertainment industry, he did not dare to showcase his wits in front of all the wealthy families of Harbor City.

After a brief opening remark, the host reiterated the charity theme underlying the auction event. After sending waves of praise to the wealthy families, the auction immediately began.

Since the items being auctioned were all personal belongings of these wealthy and powerful people, they were not half bad. Therefore, many of them began bidding right after the first item was presented.

Nevertheless, the atmosphere was extremely harmonious. Everyone was here to support the occasion. They could just act their part. Nobody would cause an uproar during an occasion like this.

Even the bosses from Zachary Law's social circle made a few bids and purchased a few items.

"Everybody, the auction item that will appear next is very special. It was specially handed over to us by the late famous philanthropist Ms. Shannon White. She had specially requested for us to display the collector's item at this auction."

Life at the Top Chapter 164

“This collector’s item is known as the Angel’s Heart. It is a jewelry piece that Ms. Shannon White brought back from New Zealand more than a decade ago.

“According to Ms. Shannon White, there’s a secret within this collector’s item. However, she doesn’t know what that secret is either. She didn’t manage to find out even after analyzing it thoroughly for more than a decade.”

“Before Ms. Shannon passed away, she wanted to put this collector’s item up for auction. All the proceedings will be donated to the Leukemia Research Foundation. The starting price is 1 Harbor Dollar.”

This jewelry piece selling at starting price of 1 Harbor Dollar looked like a very simple and ordinary pendant. The pendant itself was molded in the shape of an angel holding a heart. Based on its material and appearance, it looked like it was worth 100000 Harbor Dollars at most.

However, Shannon White was one of the most famous philanthropists in Harbor City. Her death, which had been caused by leukemia, caused quite a huge uproar back then.

Hence, the Angel’s Heart, which had a mere starting price of 1 Harbor Dollar and a so-called “secret” within it, attracted the attention of many people as soon as it appeared.

As for that so-called secret, many of them did not take it seriously. They just laughed it off.

Most people thought it was simply a gimmick created by the auctioneer. Shannon White had analyzed the piece for more than ten years without making any discoveries. Therefore, they could conclude that this ‘secret’ was a mere sham.

Meanwhile, Jasper's interest was piqued when he set his eyes upon the Angel's Heart.

Going through his memories of the future, he clearly remembered that this Angel's Heart really had a secret... A huge secret that was worth more than 100 million dollars.

People eventually discovered the secret around the year 2012. It had been the hottest topic for a significant period of time.

"500000 Harbor Dollars."

During the few minutes that Jasper had been immersed in thought, the price of the Angel's Heart had already been elevated to a number far beyond its original value.

The people in the audience were some of the wealthiest people in Harbor City. To them, 500000 Harbor Dollars and 50000 Harbor Dollars were no different.

As the late philanthropist Shannon White had commissioned for the auction of this jewelry piece herself, this was indeed an item of notable prestige. Hence, many people intended to purchase it.

"800000 Harbor Dollars." Jasper joined in the bidding without a moment's hesitation.

Given Jasper's current net worth, he did not really have a liking for such things anymore. This included the secret, which was worth more than 100 million Harbor Dollars.

However, people like Jasper thought that it was a loss not to earn anything on a daily basis. After all, only b*stards did not love a good bargain.

Someone from one of the tables of the four top families made a bid. After that, the other wealthy people sitting behind understandably stopped matching the bid.

Although the item was good, it would not be wise to offend someone from the four top families over it.

Noticing Jasper join in on the bid, Zane, who did not have much interest in the Angel's Heart, sneered. After meeting eyes with Mitch Langdon, he slowly raised his hand.

"1000000 Harbor Dollars."

The moment had arrived. A lot of people watched on eagerly.

Since ancient times, battles for riches between wealthy families had always been an interesting sight. Many of them were beyond thrilled to watch Zane and Jasper go against each other.

"1.5 million Harbor Dollars." Jasper did not disappoint the interested audience. He added 500000 Harbor Dollars to the bidding price immediately.

"Oh, it seems like the country bumpkin wants to gain some fame from purchasing the Angel's Heart from Ms. Shannon White? Well, that's too bad. I won't let you do as you wish. 2 million Harbor Dollars," Zane said with a grin on his face. He crossed his legs and side-eyed Jasper snobbishly.

"Listen to my advice. Don't embarrass yourself in the high society circle of Harbor City with just those few steel bars in your pocket. Even if you force yourself into the community, you're still a country bumpkin.

"If you really wanted to be famous, why don't you make a bid for the renaissance painting worth more than 10 million Harbor Dollars just now? Just accept the fact that you're poor. Aren't you ashamed of bidding for an item that had a starting bid of 1 Harbor Dollar? You can't give up the money, but you still want fame? What a joke."

Zane scratched at his ear nonchalantly. He then laughed maniacally. "Continue following the bid if you can! I want to see just how much money you can spare to play this game with me!"

Life at the Top Chapter 165

Those who were listening to Zane thought that he made perfect sense as well.

At this point in time, most people from Harbor City were still extremely xenophobic. They looked down on all outsiders, especially Mainlanders.

They felt that the Mainland was a land of barren hills and turbulent rivers where savages lived. It was a barbaric place.

In their eyes, Jasper's actions showed that he was chasing for clout while being reluctant to spend his money.

Seeing that many people agreed with him, Zane stared at Jasper contemptuously. "Did I get it right? Shut up and stay by the side quietly, you dog. Aren't you ashamed of yourself?" He drawled confidently.

Zane's expression turned stony as he spoke. "I can't even stand your dog-like stench when I'm seated in the same room as you. You stink," he growled in anger.

"Mr. Zane Lancaster bid 2 million Harbor Dollars. 2 million Harbor Dollars going once. Does anyone think that this Angel's Heart is worth a higher price?"

The host did not want to join in the fight raging on between the two wealthy men. However, he had to carry out his responsibilities. Thus, he had no choice but to bite the bullet and shout out into the microphone.

Right then, Zane smirked at Jasper. He was absolutely certain that he would defeat Jasper tonight.

“Follow the bid! Why don’t you follow the bid? Aren’t you extremely capable of doing so?”

Jasper’s silence fueled Zane’s satisfaction. Jasper must have used up all the tricks he had up his sleeves. Zane guffawed loudly. “If you don’t have the money, you can always borrow some from the Laws. Anyways, you’re just a dog that the Laws brought home,” he said.

“Or do you mean to say that the Laws won’t bother to lend that much money to a dog like you? Right, you’re just a dog. Who’d want to spend money on someone like you? Hahahaha!”

As Zane laughed maniacally, everyone stared at Jasper while anticipating what would happen next. They could not wait to see if he would rise up against Zane’s attack or accept his defeat.

Even the group of big bosses were paying attention to the development of the situation in an interested manner.

“Mr. Law, it seems like this young man that you look so highly upon is nothing special.”

Bob Lancaster had been displeased with Jasper for some time now. Upon seeing his own son deal Jasper a harsh blow, he laughed out loud and joked to Zachary Law.

Zane smirked. “It’s not over yet. Don’t jump to conclusions,” he said.

“Oh, I think the result is already out.”

Kennedy Langdon was the one who spoke out. He voiced out calmly in front of all the bosses. “Mr. Lancaster, your son made a pretty powerful move. If Jasper Laine continues following the bid, it would show that he's calculative, impetuous, and easily irritated. However, if he doesn't do so, it would mean that he's admitting to what your son said about him."

"This is a dilemma. Either way, it seems that Jasper has lost the first exchange."

"2 million dollars, going twice." "

The host gulped and stared at Jasper, who appeared calm and collected. There was no sign of anger or humiliation on his face.

"100 million Harbor Dollars."

Jasper's clear voice rang out just after the host finished speaking. His firm and strong voice resonated throughout the entire function hall.

"Beep!"

All the wealthy people who took pride in having a good upbringing and education could not resist causing an uproar in the hall.

Plenty of them were beyond shocked. They all stared at Jasper in disbelief after registering the price of his bid.

Even a few of the bosses within the group of big bosses had dumbfounded looks on their faces.

Just as Kennedy Langdon had said.

If Jasper continued following the bid, it would show that he was angered by Zane. It would be shallow and simple-minded of him to get tricked by a scheme like that.

If he did not follow the bid, it meant that he was recognizing his defeat.

It was a tough situation for him either way.

However, this tough dilemma got resolved by his 100 million Harbor Dollar bid.

The bidding price had to be considered as well. If Jasper called a bid for 3 million or even 5 million Harbor Dollars, people would just think of him as a silly fool.

However, following a 2 million Harbor Dollar bid with a bid of 100 million Harbor Dollars was not a foolish move at all. It was a show of power!

Kennedy Langdon's squinted his eyes and pinned Jasper with a scorching gaze. It was impossible to read his thoughts.

Zachary Law sipped at his glass of whisky cheerily. The scene unfolding before him did not seem to shock him at all.

Life at the Top Chapter 166

If Jasper was so easily defeated, how could he have trusted him enough to take time off for his health at such a crucial time?

How could the Laws rest assured while placing such a large bet on him?

Countless discussions were still going on in the function hall.

A lot of people were shocked by Jasper's strong financial power and boldness.

If he could take out 100 million Harbor Dollars in cash, no one would even bother to look at how much the Angel's Heart was really worth. This 100 million Harbor Dollars would be enough to crush Zane Lancaster's arrogant stance.

A dark expression formed on Zane's face. Jasper had raised the bidding price to the maximum.

There was no way for him to continue following the bid.

He had been arrogant and smug up till a second ago. He suddenly snickered. "Alright, alright. You're good. This jewelry piece is only worth a maximum of a few hundred thousand Harbor Dollars. This fool here actually bought it for 100 million Harbor Dollars. Don't you know that others will just see you as a fool right now?"

"It looks like you're not just a dog. You're a foolish, idiotic one."

Forget the other people, even the Law siblings were shocked by the bidding price.

However, they knew that Jasper had earned a lot more than that from Zane and Mitch over these few days. Although they suspected that Jasper was just doing so to get back at Zane, they did not say much.

Beside him, Cindy Jung's gaze shone in admiration as she stared at Jasper. He had just spent 100 million Harbor Dollars on a whim. A man like this simply oozed charm and charisma.

Nobody would follow a bid of 100 million Harbor Dollars.

After asking the price three more times in accordance with the rules, the host closed the bidding with a knock of the hammer before everyone's gazes.

"Congratulations to Mr. Jasper Laine for successfully bidding for the Angel's Heart at the monumental price of 100 million Harbor Dollars. I believe that Ms. Shannon White would also love to thank you from the heavens for your contribution to charity."

This host was extremely witty. He knew that there was nothing the wealthy people here loved more than building a good reputation for themselves. Therefore, he showered Jasper in praise without a moment's hesitation.

After that, a staff member held the Angel's Heart on a tray and delivered it to Jasper.

After taking the Angel's Heart, Jasper took out a cheque and put it on the tray.

When Mitch Langdon caught sight of the cheque, his expression instantly darkened.

F*ck, of course he found that cheque familiar. That was the cheque he paid to Jasper as compensation!

"What a foolish dog," Mitch Langdon remarked, gritting his teeth.

"He spent 100 million Harbor Dollars on something that's only worth a few hundred thousand at most. What is he if not a foolish dog?" Zane snickered beside him.

After getting his hands on the Angel's Heart, Jasper did something that nobody would have expected.

He handed the Angel's Heart to Anna Law, who was seated next to him.

"I haven't thanked you for gifting me this set of clothes. Let me give this Angel's Heart to you as a gift," Jasper said.

Anna blinked in shock. She then accepted the jewelry piece instinctively.

Everyone was now paying attention to them. Nobody would have expected Jasper to give something that he had bought with 100 million Harbor Dollars to Anna Law.

"Press the angel's palms."

Anna was slightly baffled by Jasper's words. Nevertheless, she followed his instructions all the same.

She believed that Jasper had his reasons for doing so.

Anna pressed lightly on the simple carving of the angel's palms under the watchful eyes of Harbor City's wealthiest men and women.

The outer shell of the angel pendant fell apart after what seemed like the activation of a contraption. A dazzling pink diamond appeared before everyone after being kept inside the pendant for more than a decade.

"What... what a massive pink diamond!"

The chairman of Chadstone Jewelry exclaimed out loud upon catching sight of the pink diamond.

“I’ve been working in the jewelry industry for my entire life, and yet I’ve never seen such a flawless pink diamond!”

His words, accompanied by the brilliant and dreamy iridescent glow that reflected off the pink diamond under the light, caught everyone’s attention like a massive boulder being flung at their faces.

Life at the Top Chapter 167

The pink diamond glowed softly under the light, but its brilliance seemed to blind the eyes of everyone within the function hall.

Zane was rendered speechless with shock. He stared at the pink diamond in Anna’s hands in utter disbelief.

Right then, Zane felt his scalp grow numb.

How could this be?

How could some worn-out accessory that Jasper had purchased without much thought turn out to be a priceless treasure?!

Although he was not from the jewelry industry, as someone from a wealthy family, Zane had seen a lot more valuable items than the typical person.

Thus, he could easily tell when something was valuable.

This pink diamond was definitely not something of low value!

It felt as if countless invisible slaps were being directed at his face and smacking him till he was ruddy and swollen.

Zane gritted his teeth while his eyes turned bloodshot. He was so jealous that he was about to lose it.

Right now, he seemed just like a fool who had been busy entertaining himself just now by throwing insults and contemptuous words at Jasper.

“The Angel’s Heart really comes with a secret?”

Mitch Langdon murmured out loud. He found this situation unbelievable as well.

His words represented the thoughts of everyone present in the function hall.

The host had told them there was a secret within the Angel’s Heart. Ms. Shannon White had even examined the jewelry piece for more than a decade just to find out the secret. Everyone thought that it was simply a gimmick.

Maybe Shannon White had gotten fooled by it herself.

In any case, nobody would actually take a myth like that seriously.

However, the turning point of the incident came to them like a harsh slap across their faces.

“So what if it’s a pink diamond? You spent 100 million Harbor Dollars on it. Even if this pink diamond is valuable, is it worth more than 100 million Harbor Dollars? Aren’t you being taken advantage of just the same?”

Mitch sneered derisively.

He simply could not stand the sight of Jasper acting all high and mighty in front of everyone.

Jasper's free and easy demeanor was like a constant stab to his heart.

This was because Mitch could not help but recall the moment when he almost kneeled down before Jasper two days ago. He had the same expression on his face at that moment!

"Exactly! You're still being taken advantage of!" Zane shouted out loud.

Sneering out loud, Mitch continued adding fuel to the fire. "What are you being so proud of? A country bumpkin from the Mainland will always be a country bumpkin. Look how overjoyed he is over some cheap bargain."

Jasper said calmly, "It's just 100 million Harbor Dollars. Anyways, I bought it using your cheque, Mr. Langdon. I don't mind at all."

Mitch's face reddened in anger upon hearing what he said.

Mitch hummed in response to everyone's curious gazes and expressions that reflected their yearning for gossip. He remained silent after that.

He was afraid that his previous scandals would be revealed.

That would truly bring shame upon his entire family.

"Ms. Law, can you let me take a look at this pink diamond?" In the chaos, the chairman of Chadstone Jewelry had made his way to their side without anyone noticing.

He then asked Anna this while staring at the pink diamond in her hands with an obsessive gaze.

Anna glanced at Jasper. After he nodded, she handed the pink diamond to the chairman.

Accepting the pink diamond with both hands, the chairman of Chadstone Jewelry exclaimed in excitement, "In the past, the largest pink diamond that had been put up for auction at a public auction was a 18.96-carat pink diamond, which had been auctioned off at Christie's Auction."

"They were only five minutes into the auction when the diamond got sold off at a price of 360 million Harbor Dollars.

"Although this pink diamond isn't as large as that one, it has a better color grade and seems to be much clearer. It would be considered a diamond of the best grade. A gem like this is truly a rare sight in this world.

"Excuse me, Mr. Laine. I would like to ask you something. If it is possible, I would like to purchase this pink diamond from you for a price of 300 million Harbor Dollars."

Although many of the people present here were wealthier than the chairman of Chadstone Jewelry, nobody could compare to him in terms of authority on the jewelry industry.

His words caused everyone's expressions to change.

Especially Mitch Langdon and Zane Lancaster.

They had been mocking Jasper for spending 100 million Harbor Dollars out of bitterness just a second ago. Just split second later, everything had backfired on them.

300 million Harbor Dollars!

It could be sold off at the colossal price of 300 million Harbor Dollars.

Life at the Top Chapter 168

Everyone knew that if this pink diamond was officially put up in an auction, it would definitely sell at a price that was much higher than this.

Everyone's gazes and expressions changed instantly. They looked at Jasper like he was a deity.

What kind of person was he to be capable of having such an accurate and sharp insight?

How did he know the secret of Angel's Heart?

"I've already given the diamond to Anna. It's not for sale," Jasper said matter-of-factly.

With this sentence, he firmly denied the opportunity to gain a profit of 20 million Harbor Dollars at once.

The expression on Jasper's face was so calm and indifferent that it seemed as if he had just rejected a poached egg delivered by the chef during breakfast.

"That's really...a pity."

Heartbroken, the chairman returned the pink diamond to Anna. He had no other choice. If Jasper was not willing to sell it, it was impossible for him to snatch it from him, right?

Anna stared at the pink diamond in her hand dumbfoundedly. All of a sudden, she found herself facing a slight dilemma.

“This is way too valuable!”

Annie wanted to return the pink diamond to Jasper.

If it was just Angel’s Heart, Anna would dare to accept it as a gift although Jasper had bought it for a price of ten million Harbor Dollars.

However, the value of this pink diamond could not even be appraised accurately right now. Most importantly, such a pure and perfect pink diamond only came with a price but not any buyers.

Even someone like Anna Law found it way too valuable.

“I meant it when I told you that it’s a gift for you.”

Jasper chuckled lightly. In contrast to the shock on everyone’s faces, he remained unfazed.

Alas, he had already caught up on all the news regarding the diamond in his past life. However, he had only been able to admire it from his computer screen back then.

“In my opinion, a man should take more pride in winning the smile of a pretty lady as compared to earning a sum of money,” Jasper said with a hint of a smile.

After registering his words, all the women in the function hall looked at Jasper with a different gaze.

No other man could even begin to compare with Jasper’s current charisma.

He was willing to take a gamble at high stakes just to win a lady’s smile.

How many people in the world could be as bold and generous as he was?

A king who tormented his subjects for the queen's pleasure may be a fatuous and self-indulgent ruler in the eyes of his people. However, to the queen, he was the best husband in the world.

Cindy Jung, who was standing beside Anna and had been closely watching the entire incident all along, was particularly amazed.

She stared at Anna in admiration. If she was Anna, she would be willing to do anything for Jasper right now.

How many women in the world had men who were willing to spend their riches on them?

Furthermore, this was not just thousands of Harbor Dollars in cash. It was worth at least 30 million Harbor Dollars!

As the female lead of the entire act, Anna's gaze flickered. She did not dare to meet Jasper's eyes right now.

For some inexplicable reason, she felt slightly flustered.

As the princess of the Laws, 30 million Harbor Dollars was not a large sum of money. However, now that Jasper was making her the subject of everyone's admiration and attention, she felt extremely shy.

"Thank you..."

Anna thanked Jasper in a small voice and turned around immediately. She held the pink diamond tightly in her hands as her cheeks blushed. She was slightly mesmerized by Jasper.

Henry Law, who was forced to witness the sweet scene unfolding before him, leaned over to Anna. "Anna, show me that big diamond," he said.

“No!”

Anna refused his request in an outright manner.

He should not even think of it!

Nobody could take this diamond away from her.

Not even for one second!

Henry’s face darkened. He grumbled, “Now that she has a man, she has forgotten her own brother! I don’t even want to look at it!”

That being said, Henry’s will wavered as well.

Even for a grown man like him, he had to admit that Jasper had made an excellent move.

How could any woman resist him?

Life at the Top Chapter 169

“Hahaha.”

Michael Lane, who was seated at the table of big bosses, laughed out loud.

“Zachary, Jasp is pretty good!”

Michael openly expressed his admiration for Jasper.

The other bosses looked at Michael in distaste. Michael had always been on Zachary's side. There was no need for him to act all supportive of him right now.

However, even they could not deny the fact that Jasper had made a brilliant move.

Zachary had a bright smile on his face. "This kid has always been like that," he said.

Although he was speaking in a casual tone, his choice of words reflected just how much he admired and cherished Jasper.

Alas, the head of the Law family would not just address anyone as 'this kid'.

This was how an elder addressed his or her junior.

Zachary and Michael were both in good spirits. In contrast, Bob Lancaster and Kennedy Langdon's expressions did not look too good.

They had not personally joined in the exchange, but anyone could tell that both their sons had been defeated by Jasper.

Since their sons had been put to shame, what glory could they have?

The big bosses did not really care about 30 million Harbor Dollars. It was just that they had gained a profound insight into Jasper's way of doing things.

The auction continued amidst the audience's chatter and laughter.

Zane and Mitch suppressed their discontentment over their defeat and sat back in their seats.

According to the rules, all the wealthy people present in the function had to purchase at least one item from the auction. Otherwise, news about them being stingy and reluctant to do charity work may be published in tomorrow's tabloids.

Therefore, although Zane and Mitch were already in a state of distress from the previous incident, they still called to bid when a blue and white porcelain bowl was presented before the audience at a starting price of 200,000 Harbor Dollars.

"200,000 Harbor Dollars," Mitch called for a starting bid.

Nobody competed with him either. After all, he was a member of the four top families. Besides, everyone knew that he had just embarrassed himself badly and was currently in a bad mood. For their own sake, no one wished to offend him.

"1,000,000 Harbor Dollars."

Unexpectedly, Jasper, who had not called for a bid since buying Angel's Heart, made a bid.

It was beyond their expectations, but his actions were perfectly understandable.

Henry almost burst out into laughter. He whispered loudly in Anna's ear, "See, I told you that Jasper would not let him off just like that. He's definitely going to embarrass those two idiots thoroughly before defeating them once and for all."

Jasper's bid caused Mitch's expression to further darken.

He eyed Jasper, who was standing nearby, coldly. Meanwhile, Jasper seemed lighthearted and relaxed. He picked up a strawberry from the table and ate it. He did not even spare Mitch a glance.

The more Jasper acted like this, the more hatred and resentment rose up within Mitch's heart.

“3,000,000 Harbor Dollars!” Mitch said through gritted teeth.

He could not back off at a moment like this. Otherwise, he would not only embarrass himself, but he would also bring shame upon the Langdons as well.

“8,000,000 Harbor Dollars,” Jasper called for another bid almost immediately after Mitch announced his bid.

“Jasper Laine!” Mitch stood up and yelled out in rage. He fixed a stony glare on Jasper. “Do you really want to have a falling out with me?” he asked in an icy voice.

Jasper picked up a strawberry and popped it into his mouth. He chewed for a while before swallowing. He then picked another strawberry and passed it to Anna. “Taste this. It’s quite sweet,” he told her.

Mitch stood motionless. It was awkward for him to either remain standing or sit down. He felt like the biggest joke in the world after being thoroughly ignored by Jasper. Everyone was laughing at him.

“Alright! You forced me to do this! Ten million Harbor Dollars!” Mitch shouted out in a frenzy of rage.

Looking at the seething expression on Mitch’s face, Jasper chuckled. “You’re a wealthy and generous man, Mr. Langdon. Why are you being so stingy over some charity work? 50 million Harbor Dollars.”

“Hahaha!”

Mitch let out an angry bark of laughter. “Country bumpkin, are you comparing your wealth to mine? My personal assets alone are worth several billion Harbor Dollars! Come on, I’m bidding 100 million Harbor Dollars!” he hollered.

Jasper shrugged. “You’re really something else, Mr. Langdon. As expected, you must really be committed to charity since you’re willing to buy a porcelain bowl at a gargantuan price of 100 million Harbor Dollars. You have my admiration. I'll happily announce my defeat and back out of the bid," he said calmly.

Mitch's eyes widened after hearing what he said. His face turned red-hot with rage. "Stupid f*cker, were you fooling me?!" he roared out angrily.

Everything had already gone wild when Mitch called for a bid of 100 million Harbor Dollars.

Although this porcelain bowl was an antique item, it was worth around 1,000,000 Harbor Dollars at most. Its price had now spiked up to 100 million Harbor Dollars after Mitch got enraged over Jasper's taunts. An act like that could not be merely deemed irrational anymore.

Mitch Langdon was out of his mind.

At the same time, Kennedy Langdon, who was seated at the table of bosses upstairs, had a heavy expression on his face.

He never would have expected his son to be so incapable.

It would have been better if his son had just called for a bid of ten million Harbor Dollars or even more when the auction just began just like what Jasper did before this. Instead, he was slowly lured into Jasper's trap.

"This kid is way too immature."

Life at the Top Chapter 170

Zachary shook his head and laughed out loud.

Utterly amused, he could not miss out on the opportunity to mock Kennedy Langdon.

As expected, Kennedy's expression darkened.

The other bosses chuckled happily after meeting gazes with each other.

Both situations occurred during an auction and involved a battle of wealth.

Nevertheless, the one who had the upper hand between Mitch and Jasper could easily be discerned.

"Mr. Mitch Langdon has called for a bid of 100 million Harbor Dollars for this blue and white porcelain bowl. Going once.

"Going twice.

"Going thrice, it's a deal! Con-Congratulations to Mr. Mitch Langdon," the host announced. The host did not even dare to look at Mitch, who had a ferocious expression etched on his face. He began auctioning the next item after carrying out the follow-up processes in a hurry.

The items to be auctioned grew fewer and fewer. Jasper did not call for a bid after that.

With a look that could kill etched on his face, Mitch was still fuming with rage. Nonetheless, Zane Lancaster, who was seated right beside Mitch, grew nervous.

He was extremely anxious.

He had not called for a bid up till now.

Using Mitch's incident as a reference, he knew that Jasper would not let him go once he called for a bid.

However, he was in an urgent situation. If he gave up on the auction, others would mock him for being stingy. A lot of them would think that he was frightened of Jasper.

He could not be put to shame by this person.

Besides, he also knew that he could not embarrass his father, Bob Lancaster.

As the auction gradually progressed toward the end, a landscape painting by a famous painter from Harbor City was presented in front of the audience. Zane gritted his teeth. He decided to call for a bid.

“1.1 million Harbor Dollars.”

Zane, who had called for the bid, glanced at Jasper instinctively. He had already decided on a limit of ten million Harbor Dollars. If Jasper called for a bid higher than that, he would get back at him by giving up on the bid.

That way, he could prevent himself from losing a fortune.

Thinking about this, Zane’s lips curled into a smile.

There were many ways to trick someone else in an auction.

What could a country bumpkin from Mainland know about auctions?

“Ten million Harbor Dollars.”

As expected, Jasper did not disappoint the audience who were eager to watch the showdown between the both of them. He immediately raised the price by nearly ten times in front of everyone’s watchful gazes.

Zane took in a deep breath as the corners of his mouth twitched. The price Jasper called for had reached the maximum bidding price that he had set for himself. He was overcome with a sense of extreme discomfort.

However, this was just the first round of bidding. If he gave up right now, it would be awfully embarrassing for him.

Gritting his teeth, Zane's gaze flickered. "15 million Harbor Dollars," he announced.

He intended to get back at Jasper. He would give up on the bid later no matter how much Jasper called for.

Just as Zane was feeling full of himself, he realized that the entire auction hall was silent.

"Mr. Zane Lancaster has called for a bid of 15 million Harbor Dollars. Is there a higher price?" the host asked cautiously.

Nobody responded to him.

"15 million Harbor Dollars, going twice."

Zane's hands were shaking. He pinned his gaze on Jasper as his heart raced in anxiety.

'Follow the bid! F*cking follow the bid right now!'

Zane wanted to rush in front of him and force him to raise his hand, making him follow the bid.

He was not the only one looking at Jasper. Everyone had their attention on Jasper and awaited his response.

However, Jasper... did not even move. He did not even have the intention to follow the bid.

“Why aren’t you following the bid?!” Zane yelled out at Jasper instinctively.

How could he not follow the bid?

He was waiting for him to follow the bid so that he could get back at him! Why was he not following the bid?!

Zane was about to lose it.

Jasper glanced at Jasper like he was looking at a fool. “15 million Harbor Dollars for something like this? Only an idiot would buy it...”

Zane’s face flushed bright red. He looked like he was about to suffocate. Looking at Zane’s expression, Henry could not resist bursting out into laughter.

Life at the Top Chapter 171

“Hahaha, this is f*cking hilarious. Look at this f*cker’s face. He looks like he just got kicked in the face by a donkey. Hahaha...”

When Henry Law grew bold, he did not care if Zane was Bob Lancaster or someone else’s son. He simply dissed him mercilessly.

After hearing what he said, everyone’s expressions turned odd. They wanted to laugh but did not dare to. It was hard to suppress their laughter, though.

Zane was so infuriated that he was about to spit blood. However, he did not dare to do anything to Henry Law. He could only repress his anger and glare at both Henry and Jasper with a seething gaze.

The auction, which had been nearing its end, concluded after this interlude.

However, everyone felt dull for the remainder of the auction.

After all, they had just watched Jasper go against Mitch and Zane in two epic showdowns. Everything else paled in comparison to that.

After the auction ended, the host rushed down the stage while breaking out in cold sweat. He had even forgotten to greet everyone in the hall.

This auction could be regarded as a traumatic memory that he would never forget for as long as he lived.

He would be easily wiped out if he had made a slight mistake while striving for survival amongst these big bosses,

It was too f*cking scary.

Just when everyone thought that the charity gala had ended, Michael Lane suddenly walked onto the stage with a wide smile on his face.

His appearance caused all the wealthy men and women to quiet down. They looked at Michael curiously while wondering what he was about to do.

“Everybody, I’d like to take this opportunity to make an announcement.”

Standing on the stage, Michael grinned. He scanned the entire hall before his gaze finally landed on Jasper.

Many people took note of this detail. Everyone focused their attention on Jasper.

“Today, I just signed a deal with Mr. Jasper Laine who’s from Mainland. In line with our principle of being fair and open, I’d like to let everyone know about it in advance.

“The subsidiary under Gladness International Corporation, Gladness Entertainment Movies, was officially sold to Mr. Jasper Laine at a price of 1.5 billion Harbor Dollars today. From today onward, he will be the head of Gladness Entertainment Movies.

“I believe that under the guidance of Mr. Jasper Laine, Gladness Entertainment Movies will definitely achieve greater heights in the future...”

Michael continued speaking on the stage. However, everyone below the stage could no longer pay attention to what he was saying.

They were all so shocked by the news that they lost the ability to form words.

Gladness Entertainment Movies was a well-known film company in Harbor City.

Gladness Entertainment Movies had been a constant in the industry ever since films from Harbor City began rising in popularity. The company owned the copyrights of many popular movies. Many artists were signed under the company as well.

Nevertheless, Gladness Entertainment Movies, one of the most prominent companies in the film and entertainment industry, would be handed over to a Mainlander today just like that?!

1.5 billion Harbor Dollars!

This was a fair price point that befitted the company's worth.

Those who were quick-witted immediately recovered from their shock. The real deal was likely to include something worth far more than 1.5 billion Harbor Dollars.

However, Michael and Jasper did not say anything about it. Nobody could guess the real terms listed in the deal.

Nonetheless, the change of ownership of Gladness Entertainment Movies had become a reality.

"How is this possible?!"

Zane shouted in shock.

"Gladness Entertainment Movies has been operating well all along. There has been no news about this at all. How could it get sold off just like that?"

Zane's family was considered to be the most highly involved in the entertainment industry among all the top wealthy people of Harbor City.

Although Bob Lancaster was in the real estate business instead of entertainment, he had the nickname of 'Harvester of Female Celebrities'.

With the net worth of his personal assets, he had close relationships with the bosses in Harbor City's entertainment industry.

However, the Lancasters had not received any news regarding Michael's decision to sell off Gladness Entertainment Movies.

Mitch squinted his eyes and looked at Jasper. "Did he come to Harbor City for Gladness Entertainment Movies? Does he want to set foot into the entertainment industry?" he asked in an icy voice.

Most of the wealthy people from Harbor City had their eyes set on Jasper, who was now the center of everyone's attention.

Right then, they suddenly realized that this young man from the Mainland would come to occupy an important part of Harbor City in the future.

After Michael got down from the stage, he walked toward Jasper while gesturing to him affectionately. There was a bright smile on his face.

"Your move caught me by surprise, Mr. Lane," Jasper said.

Michael chuckled. "The entertainment industry is different from other sectors. Bosses in the entertainment industry should keep a high profile. Otherwise, the artists under the company will question their boss' ability," he said.

Jasper shrugged. "It's alright. Anyways, once the deal is made official, we'll have to announce it to the public as well. It's only a matter of time," he said.

After the news regarding Jasper's acquisition of Gladness Entertainment Movies was revealed, the charity gala officially came to an end.

The wealthy people gradually left the hall. However, they all had one name in their mouths... Jasper Laine!

At the side door located in a more discreet area of the hall, Kennedy Langdon and Bob Lancaster looked at Zane and Mitch, who both had despondent expressions on their faces, with indifferent gazes.

“You guys have thoroughly disappointed me,” Kennedy reprimanded them straight in the face.

Mitch’s expression dulled. He gritted his teeth in anger. “That Mainlander is freaking despicable!” he exclaimed.

“Despicable? Anyone capable of doing big things is despicable. If you can’t get on your opponent’s level, you’ll just be trampled by them,” Kennedy said icily.

Beside him, Zane had his head lowered. He did not dare to utter a single word.

Bob Lancaster took a long glance at his son. “You guys are no match for him,” he said.

Refusing to accept his defeat, Mitch argued, “This is just one failure! I’ll eventually find the opportunity to crush him once and for all!”

“That’s enough,” Kennedy chastised him impatiently. “There are more important businesses coming up soon. They cannot be delayed any longer. Both of you should head back first. In the meantime, don’t do anything foolish!”

After that, Kennedy and Bob walked out of the hotel and entered a Rolls-Royce which was parked beside the building. They were in a hurry and were guided by their bodyguards.

A middle-aged man clad in a business suit was seated inside the car. He gave off an air of superiority.

The middle-aged man had a burly physique, blonde hair, and blue eyes. He must be from the west.

He was slowly swirling a glass of wine in his hands when the both of them got in the car.

After closing the door of the car, the man looked at the red wine sliding down the curve inside of the glass. He chuckled. "Mr. Langdon, Mr. Lancaster, it seems like your sons are still pretty naive," he remarked.

The fact that their sons were incapable was a private matter. They could teach and scold them themselves. However, it was different when it came from someone else's mouth.

Therefore, Kennedy Langdon did not seem to be in a good mood either. "Mr. Rogers, let's talk about our plan," he said in a blunt voice.

"According to what we previously discussed, Quantum Fund has already convinced a group of Wall Street capitalists. They're all extremely interested in this plan. All you need to do is to cooperate with us from within Harbor City," Rogers stated matter-of-factly.

"The United States' internet economy bubble is about to be disrupted. Once the disruption occurs, we will start immediately. It'll soon become a festival where we celebrate getting our hands on trillions of capital!"

Life at the Top Chapter 172

"You can rest assured about all your affairs in Harbor City, Mr. Rogers. We're always monitoring the major wealthy families of Harbor City. There has been nothing out of the ordinary in terms of their performance. However, a Mainlander named Jasper Laine has joined the Laws lately...”

Detecting the hesitation in Kennedy’s speech, Rogers frowned. He put down his glass of wine and said, “Tell me your worries, Langdon. This plan is of an extremely large scale. Factors beyond our control should not exist at all.”

Kennedy then began to explain, “Not long ago, Bob and I discovered that the Laws have hidden a large sum of funds. We have no idea where the funds have gone up till now. It seems to have happened around the same time as Jasper Laine’s arrival.”

Bob added, “However, the Laws have always been doing business in the real estate industry. Other than the financial crisis three years ago, they rarely involved themselves in the capital sector. Therefore, we’re still in the midst of investigating. We’re not sure what the Laws intend to do.”

“I know the Laws from Harbor City. They rarely do business involving capital. You guys should continue to monitor their activity, but don’t do anything rash. After all, they’re still the top wealthy family in Harbor City. They must be on alert at all times,” Rogers said calmly.

“As for Jasper Laine... What’s his background?”

Kennedy replied, “He’s from Mainland and has been pretty close to the Laws lately. The stock market is his forte.”

“He’s the one who made your sons suffer, right?” Rogers asked in amusement. There was a playful glint in his gaze.

Kennedy and Bob’s expressions darkened almost immediately.

“Young man, the higher you soar, the harder you’ll fall. Countless young talents emerge on Wall Street every year, but eventually, elders like us are the ones who have the final say.”

...

After the charity gala ended, Jasper left the hotel with Anna and Henry.

Before they left, Jasper met Queenie Shaw and Zoelle Griffin once again. Only this time, everything was different.

“Mister... Mr. Laine,” Queenie greeted Jasper courteously.

At the same time, a surge of complicated emotions surged through their hearts.

This world changed way too quickly. A few hours ago, they had just met for the very first time.

However, the man in front of them was now their boss.

Queenie’s eyes glowed as she recalled Jasper’s glory in tonight’s charity gala.

However, once she took a glance at Anna Law, who was standing beside Jasper, she immediately extinguished all her thoughts of him.

One had to know their own place. Queenie personally thought that her looks outshone a lot of other celebrities from the entertainment industry of Harbor City. However, in front of Anna Law... She should not humiliate herself by comparing the both of them.

“Hello,” Jasper greeted. He did not act haughty in front of them. In his opinion, these celebrities were people who worked and earned money on his behalf. They were the ones generating wealth for him.

Therefore, there was no need to act all high and mighty in front of them.

It would be meaningless that way.

Right then, the Laws' car arrived.

"I'll head back first. After a while, I may go to the company. Let's have a chat then if the opportunity arises," Jasper said politely. After that, he left together with the Law siblings.

Watching Jasper leave after getting into the Rolls-Royce, Queenie pursed her lips.

"He's very different from the other wealthy people," Zoelle suddenly said.

Queenie nodded. "Yeah, how often do the other wealthy people treat female celebrities like us as decent human beings?"

The both of them sighed. The future held endless possibilities, but they had their own difficulties that outsiders did not know of.

...

The Laws' study.

Jasper and Zachary were both seated in the study.

"I previously had a discussion with Michael. It'll be alright as long as we settle the transaction payment before you leave Harbor City," Zachary said.

Jasper nodded. "That would be the best. After all, the 1.5 billion Harbor Dollars can be withdrawn at any time, but it'll affect the follow-up plan," he replied.

Life at the Top Chapter 173

Zachary smiled. “Don’t refrain from speaking up if you need help. The Law family has ample wealth.”

Jasper raised the teacup and took a sip. He smiled. “I don’t think that’s necessary... Has the Law family prepared the funds?”

Zachary’s expression grew stern. “Give me something to go with here. How much do I need exactly?”

“It’s hard to tell for now.”

Jasper thought back to the United States stock market that he had been following the past few days and frowned. “The United States stock market is wrecking up a weird storm. I’ve noticed that someone’s already trying to control the market over there and they’re covering quite a large area of stocks as well. It’s a gamble of at least trillions of dollars over there.”

“Trillions!” Zachary found it hard to believe despite having seen his fair share of money.

‘Using trillions as a base unit...

‘Only the country’s GDP had that power!

‘Only the country’s GDP was worth enough to be measured by trillions.’

That showed how exaggerated and terrifying the amount was.

“But that’s the United States stock market. As the world’s economic center, there’s nothing any single entity or force can do to stop it once the strangling begins. So all we’ll do now is focus on Harbor Stocks.”

Jasper thought about it for a moment before he replied, “As for funds, the exact amount we’ll need will depend on how big a wave is made once the bubble pops over in the United States. With how things look now, the Law family might need this much.”

Jasper raised three fingers.

“30 billion?” Zachary frowned.

“Yeah, 30 billion. You might only need to take out ten billion in the beginning, but I’d say it’s safer to have 30 billion ready to mobilize at any time just in case,” Jasper replied.

Zachary’s expression was solemn as he fell into deep thought. A moment later, he replied, “Alright. I promise you, money-wise, it won’t be a problem.”

Seeing how Zachary was agreeing so easily, Jasper had a better understanding of how deep the roots of Harbor City’s rich families went.

It was 30 billion, yet Zachary’s reaction told him that 30 billion was not his limit.

“How much can Michael gather?” Jasper asked.

Zachary replied, “Michael’s wealth is more fixed than fluid, or he wouldn’t need to sell Gladness Entertainment Movies. From what I can tell, I think he’s got around five billion?”

Jasper gave it some thought. ‘I probably won’t be able to gather more than five billion either.’

Thank goodness that Jasper had earned quite a bit from Harbor Stocks these few days, especially from Kayden's company's stocks. The moment Jasper sold his stocks, he would make at least twice or thrice the profit.

In addition to the funds that he could transfer from Mainland, five billion was an easy amount to gather.

By then, he would probably find himself with around 40 billion worth of funds. That was enough for this battle.

"Now we wait." Jasper smiled.

Zachary opened the windows in the study, allowing the chilly midnight Harbor City wind to rush into the study. The warm temperature indoors immediately dropped, causing him to shiver.

"It would be a waste of your time on earth not to achieve great things, Jasper."

"I see that Uncle Law is open-minded."

Jasper stood next to Zachary and smiled, looking at Harbor City's dazzling night view.

"I'm not the open-minded one here. This is the aura I get from you."

Zachary turned to clap Jasper's shoulder.

"The Law family may be helping you now, but I can't help thinking that it'll be you helping the law family in the end."

Jasper took a sip of the hot tea. The burning liquid entered his mouth and scalded its way down his throat like a sip of strong alcohol. Only then did he part his lips to reply.

“Since we’re allies, we become one whole entity.”

Life at the Top Chapter 174

The following morning, all of Harbor City’s gossip magazines released breaking news as if an explosion had occurred.

‘Mysterious Mainland Youth Crushes Son of Plutocrat At Charity Dinner In Front Of All Harbor City’s Magnates!’

‘Mysterious Mainland Youth Throws 30 Million, Gains Favor Of Law Family’s Princess!’

‘Gladness Entertainment Movies’ New Owner, Mysterious Mainland Youth Buys Harbor City’s Fourth-Largest Film Company with Striking 1.5 Billion!’

All the gossip magazines shared the same protagonist, and that was the mysterious Mainland youth.

Paparazzi had managed to take a picture of Jasper’s side profile.

The image was one of Jasper linking hands with Anna, and the two had smiles on their faces as they talked and walked on the red carpet.

This mysterious youth from Mainland was rich, handsome, and full of charisma.

Jasper’s name had instantly swept all over Harbor City.

Some people even began to wonder when Jasper and Anna’s wedding would be held.

Meanwhile, people in the business world were more interested in news about Gladness Entertainment Movies now that Jasper had bought it.

1.5 billion.

That was hardly a small sum.

What was once Harbor City's fourth-largest film company had just changed its boss, one from the Mainland too, no less. It was on a path to a fresh start.

Quite a few people began to bemoan Jasper's identity as a Mainlander on social media, only for the Law family to quietly get rid of such comments.

With the Law family's current position in society, one word from them was all it would take to rid such negative comments from the internet.

From that, people in the business world came to understand that the relationship between Jasper and the Law family ran deep.

Countless people began to speculate about Jasper's identity, wondering if he was from a rich family back in the Mainland.

Meanwhile, the outside world was in an uproar about all sorts of news. As such, Jasper shut himself within the confines of his hotel.

He was watching the activity on the United States stock market.

Due to the difference in time zones, Jasper had burned the midnight oil twice in a row.

"How about you go take a nap? You'll get sick staring at this all day."

Anna turned to tell Jasper who looked exhausted.

Anna wet a towel with hot water as she spoke and passed it to Jasper.

Henry's jaw fell to the floor beside them.

This was his first time seeing Annie serve anyone.

Jasper took the hot towel and wiped his face, looking more alive now. He shook his head. "Their movements are only getting bigger over at the United States stock market. I can't afford to take a break at all right now."

Henry leaned over to take a look at Jasper's screen and asked strangely, "Aren't the stocks for the internet rising? Holy crap, look at that jump. Wow!"

"God will drive men crazy before He bestows death. The same goes for the stock market. Prices skyrocketing for no reason and without warning is a common tactic for gaining capital.

"They'll raise stock prices to attract buyers, only to resell all their stocks when the time is right before they finally go short. That way, once these falsely high-price stocks no longer have the capital to sustain them, they'll have no other option but to plummet."

Anna was not completely unknowledgeable like Henry. She had a vague understanding of the financial market, so she added, "That's right. That's the logic behind it."

Jasper nodded in approval. "The entire internet economy is essentially a castle in the sky right now. It may look stunning, but its roots have already completely eroded. All it takes is one opportunity, and the entire structure will fall apart in an instant."

Life at the Top Chapter 175

“Doesn’t that mean the people who are starting to invest in the internet now are screwed?” Henry asked.

Jasper thought about how the dot-com bubble had popped in his past life and how multiple people in Harbor City had gone bankrupt overnight, turning to suicide through jumping off buildings.

Some people even said that the ground in front of every high-rise in Harbor City was filled with blood afterward.

Others said that while the police dealt with a case of suicide by jumping, someone else would jump from the building before the body below could even be moved away.

It had been a heart-shuddering sight.

“I suppose they dug their own graves,” Jasper replied plainly.

“The United States currently leads the western capital since their economy is overheated and their loan interests are low. It urges investors to put money into the stock market, so there’s a large number of fluid funds there. Business’ financial statements end up looking great too.

“Especially the internet industry. There’s a guarantee of two to five times the return once it enters the stock market, so it puts analysts, investors, entrepreneurs, venture capitals, and the bank into a frenzy.”

A message popped up on the computer as Jasper spoke.

It was KK.

A message from Jack.

Having worked in Weresoftware's internal management for years, it was no surprise that Jack could get wind of Weresoftware's news before the rest of the world.

From what Jasper remembered of his past life, two iconic incidents signified the popping of the dot-com bubble.

The first being Weresoftware, the world's biggest internet company, losing its antitrust lawsuit and facing the dilemma of having to close down.

Although Mr. Granger had resigned and the new CEO, Thomas, overturned the verdict in the court of appeal, but that was something that would happen later. Right now, the current news was indeed greatly affecting the internet stock market in the entire world.

This was a fuse, a report that would directly trigger the explosion of the dot-com bubble.

Barron's then published an article with figures from an investigation done on more than 200 listed internet companies.

It was a report that directly dried up the cash flow of internet companies, resulting in company executives going mad and cashing out their stocks. With multiple actions taking effect, many internet companies began their path toward bankruptcy and reorganization.

With these memories of the future, Jasper had told Jack to keep an eye out for Weresoftware's antitrust lawsuit through the contacts he still had in Weresoftware.

Tapping on the notification window, Jasper fell silent as he read Jack's message.

[The trial has come to an end in the United States and the high court ruled that Weresoftware has lost the case. The verdict was passed a few minutes ago and it's about to go public soon. Weresoftware is being forced to split up!!!!]

The three exclamation marks represented the surge of emotions Jack was currently going through.

As the world's largest internet company and a company with the highest net worth in the world, Weresoftware splitting up would undoubtedly immensely affect stock markets worldwide.

It did not matter that Jasper knew Weresoftware would evade the fate of being split up as the rest of the world right now did not.

Even Anna and Henry gasped in shock at the news.

"Weresoftware is being split up? Oh my God!"

Jasper glanced at the time. It should be eight a.m. over in the United States right now.

According to history, the first article directly popping the dot-com bubble worldwide would be published this afternoon.

It would be followed by investors being frightened by both major newsflashes. Managers and retail investors would proceed to pull their stocks out maddeningly and the stock prices would plummet...

Such was fate, and no one would be able to save it anymore.

Jasper suddenly shot up and spoke firmly, "I need a team of the best stock traders and an absolutely quiet environment. Right now!"

Henry's scalp tingled as he felt the premonition of being in a toppling building. It was as if there was an invisible tsunami coming right at him.

At that moment, not even the richest trust fund babies dared to fool around anymore. For once, Henry's expression turned solemn and he pulled out his phone.

"I'll inform Dad right away!"

Life at the Top Chapter 176

Zachary was in a meeting with senior executives of the group when he received Henry's call.

He raised a hand to halt the man speaking and picked up the phone.

"It's starting, Dad! Jasper's plan is starting! Our stock traders need to get in position now!" Henry spoke agitatedly.

Zachary, a man who rarely lost his composure, felt his emotions go haywire at his son's words.

"I've already contacted the professional team. Bring Jasper back immediately. There's no safer or more quiet place in Harbor City than our home. The people and equipment will be waiting for him there."

With that, Zachary ended the meeting and rushed off, leaving behind the senior executives in the room to scratch their heads and share looks of confusion.

On the way back, Zachary lined the people up while he texted Michael the details.

Since they had already decided to involve Michael in this, there was no way they would neglect him when things were happening.

Zachary was efficient. Everyone he had prepared was mostly in place by the time Jasper, Henry, and Anna had returned to Law Manor.

The manager leading the team was Zack, someone Jasper had met once before.

“Hello, Mr. Laine. I’ll be the manager leading this team of stock traders. We’ll do our best to follow your instructions.”

Zack immediately walked over to speak when he saw Jasper.

This manager who had a quick mind, worked cleanly, and acted instead of speaking had left a good impression on Jasper.

“We’ve already worked together before, so it’s just the same thing as then. Execute my instructions as fast and as efficiently as possible. Leave everything else to me,” Jasper stated as he shook Zack’s hand.

Zack replied solemnly, “Don’t worry, Mr. Laine. These 15 stock traders here are an old team of mine. Their skills are guaranteed, and we’ve already signed an NDA of the highest order.”

Jasper nodded. He was not surprised for this was what he and Zachary had already discussed.

As the stock traders would be following Jasper’s orders directly, it could be said that they were Jasper’s left and right-hand men in this business war. What was most important was not high efficiency but rather, absolute trust.

Before these traders entered the room, the Law family’s bodyguards had taken all their phones and checked them for any form of communication devices.

Moreover, they were not allowed to take a step out of Law Manor before their mission was complete. The Law family would be in charge of everything they did, be it an intake or the letting out of food. Bodyguards were tasked to follow them even when they took bathroom breaks.

Naturally, their pay would also be a generous one.

They earned, in one day, what ordinary people could only earn in three months.

Zachary had especially cleared a large living room for this battle. When Jasper and Zack walked over, there were already 15 stock traders sitting in front of newly installed equipment, ready to begin.

Glancing at the large LED display on the wall, Jasper gave his first order for the war.

“Open up Harbor City stock market. I want the internet sector strictly monitored from now on and any change of stock prices exceeding 3% reported.

“Open a short position at the bottom. Zack, equally split and transfer the prepared 15 billion worth of funds to each of the traders’ accounts, then let me authorize it after you’re done.”

Zachary and Michael’s promised funds had already arrived earlier today and the funds that Jasper transferred from his account in Mainland had also smoothly arrived with John’s help.

At that moment, Jasper currently had a whopping 40 billion in his hands.

30 billion was from the Law family while he and Michael both contributed five billion.

This 40 billion would prove to be Jasper’s weapon to move all of Harbor City’s finances at his will.

Zack’s team was very efficient, and it was less than a minute after Jasper’s order that Zack reported the completion of tasks.

After entering the password authorization to the master computer with the highest authority, 15 billion funds were then split up and entered into each of the 15 traders’ accounts.

Zack’s heart raced as he saw the large balance before him.

Life at the Top Chapter 177

Up until that moment, Zack had no idea what the Law family and Jasper wanted him and his team to do. However, the shocking sight of 40 billion in cash signified that a storm had begun to brew over Harbor Stocks.

He did not dare ask nor think into it, throwing away all thoughts that he should not have. He waited in focus for Jasper's next order.

Just then, the doors opened to reveal Zachary and Michael walking in with solemn expressions on their faces.

"How's it going, Jasper?" Zachary asked.

Jasper relayed the information he had gotten from Jack.

"Weresoft... is splitting up?" Zachary asked in disbelief.

Michael was more sensitive, for he had switched to working in the finance industry, after all. "It's going to affect a lot of people."

Jasper nodded. "From my understanding of Weresoft, there's no way they'll be so willing to split just because they're forced to. However, once the news gets out, then it will come with drastic effects."

"Will this be what induces the popping of the bubble?" Michael asked.

Jasper shook his head. "It's one of them, but unless I have it wrong, another reason will appear very soon. I don't know what it'll be, but it'll definitely appear today. By then, the future will be set."

The fuse leading to the first world war was the Sarajevo assassination incident. There were too many contradictions, and conflicting forces were still keeping up the delicate balance. Yet one falling leaf was all it would take for this balance to topple and crash.

Weresoft losing their lawsuit was the first leaf, and the balance had already been toppled. It was still a slow process, but the next leaf would undoubtedly trigger the figurative avalanche.

“Mr. Laine, there’s a shift in Ardent Tech’s stock prices! It just dropped by 4%!”

Zack’s voice suddenly cut through Jasper and the other two’s conversation.

The three turned to look at the screen, and before their eyes were Ardent Tech’s stock prices on the large LED display, dropping a heavy 4% as if being axed.

At that moment, Harbor City’s investors had yet to realize the impending storm. Many merely assumed that it was a conspiracy within the stocks.

However, people with sharper senses began to realize that something was different this time.

“Keep watching and monitoring,” Jasper ordered without turning back.

The first change brought the second and the third changes.

“Sunny Internet’s stock prices dropped by 3.5%!”

“Carefree Net’s stock prices dropped by 3.6%!”

“The entire internet sector had an overall drop of 3%!”

“Its Hansel Index keeps dropping! It’s currently at 17,970 points!”

Updates after updates were reported.

The atmosphere within the large living room slowly turned nervous and heavy.

Michael and Zachary looked at Jasper, waiting for him to react.

Jasper did not say anything.

A quick moment later, Michael asked, "The stock prices are already dropping, Mr. Laine. Won't we start investing?"

"Not yet."

Jasper shook his head and replied, "It's not the time to start investing yet. There's no way the idle funds and organizations dealing these internet stocks will go down without a fight."

Michael frowned. "But Mr. Laine, if the future is already set, it'll be too late when we do start investing."

"You're welcome to take your funds out if you don't trust my judgment, Mr. Lane," Jasper replied calmly.

Michael frowned and spoke distastefully, "So you're going to be so stubborn?"

Life at the Top Chapter 178

Michael was enraged when Jasper talked back at him.

After all, Michael was still his elder, especially in terms of working in the business world. His Gladness International was a large corporation.

Everyone respected him, in front and behind his back.

Yet Jasper's words had cornered him and made it difficult for him to accept.

"We've already agreed, Mr. Lane. I need to have absolute authority," Jasper stated.

Michael replied roughly, "All I did was make a suggestion. You're the one who's acting like a tyrant who won't listen to others' opinions."

"I didn't say that I won't, but I'm trying to think and make a decision here. Your self-righteous suggestion will only divert my attention." Jasper's expression hardened at Michael's accusation.

"We're a team now. If we win, we split the winnings, and if we lose, we all shoulder the blame. If you've already decided to give me the full authority, then I'll greatly appreciate it if you remain a silent bystander most of the time, Mr. Lane."

Michael pointed at the market and laughed. "The market is dropping right now. If you're not going to start investing, then what if we miss the opportunity?"

"Let's all take a minute."

Zachary spoke in understanding and turned to Jasper with a light-hearted expression. "Mr. Lane might be a little confused here, Jasper. How about you explain it to him?"

"The dealer!"

Jasper pointed at the market and raised his voice. "There's no way internet companies will just stand there and watch as their own stock prices begin to drop. Not when a dealer is controlling the stocks in every company. No way."

"So you're telling me that no one has seen the horrible drop in the entire sector?" Michael scoffed.

"Of course, they have," Jasper replied without hesitation, "But most of their funds are in the stock market. If they want to pull out, they need to raise the prices first.

"Not to mention that the status of senior executives and bosses depends on the price of their stocks. They will definitely make a move."

Just as Jasper finished speaking, Zack's voice suddenly rang out.

"The overall price of the entire internet sector has just jumped back up!"

"All stock prices that dropped just now are rising at different rates again!"

"The market is picking up again. Businesses have begun to oscillate and recover!"

Michael's head snapped up as he stared at the electronic screen. Each green line that showed a decrease had turned red and started to rise.

"I..." Michael felt like there was a hand suffocating him and he could not speak.

The turn of events had given him a whiplash.

“Haha. Nothing to say this time, huh, Mike?” Zachary chuckled.

With Zachary smoothing over the situation, Michael then apologized to Jasper. He had an embarrassed expression on his face, but he was a man who knew when to leave things and move on. “My apologies, Mr. Laine, I’ve spoken out of turn. I did give you the authority when it comes to the stock market, so I shouldn’t have suspected your decision.”

Jasper’s expression warmed as he replied gently, “Like I said, Mr. Lane. We’re a team.

“You know too that we already have 40 billion funds at hand, but we’re in for a financial war involving hundreds of billions in the future. So I have to ensure my authority to command.

“My apologies if I offended you just now, Mr. Lane.”

Jasper had already spoken so understandingly and humbly that Michael was at a loss for words.

“Alright. I promise to watch my words,” Michael replied in admiration.

Jasper smiled and saw Zachary, who stood behind Michael, giving him a big thumbs up. Jasper turned to instruct Zack’s team, “Prepare to open a position!”

The clickity-clack of fingers on keyboards brought the living room into a frenzy, and the 15 professional stock traders immediately opened a position.

All it would take was an order from Jasper to buy any stocks, and they would immediately enter Harbor Stocks with a large number of funds.

Life at the Top Chapter 179

At that moment, fierce competition began among the people who were watching the rise and fall of the internet sector in Harbor Stocks. A large number of funds were entering the market every second.

Bearish people wanted to knock down the stock prices, bringing down with them all of Harbor Stocks and its Hansel Index. Meanwhile, bullish people continued to defend their territory and refused to let the prices drop so easily.

A war without the use of gunpowder continued to spread.

At that moment, in a quiet villa within Harbor City, the clicking of keyboards continued to sound out.

Kennedy stared at the display screen solemnly and kept firing orders.

A short distance away, Rogers sat idly as he sipped red wine.

“We’ve accumulated enough bargaining chips, Mr. Rogers,” Kennedy turned to tell Rogers.

Rogers put the glass of red wine down and looked at the screen, a playful smile tugging at the corners of his lips as he spoke, “News of Weresoft in the United States should’ve arrived at Harbor City by now, yes?”

Kennedy replied, “People more well-informed should already know by now. Quite the amount of funds have begun to enter the market.”

“Good!”

Rogers rolled his shoulders and walked over to the door. "I'll tell the people at Wall Street to start moving. There'll be an exciting battle there in no time, and I'm sure Harbor Stocks will immediately make their move as well."

"Solo, that old man, didn't manage to defeat Harbor City's economy three years ago, but this time, I'm going to make sure Harbor City's economy loses the past five years of their development!"

Bob spat at him sullenly as he watched Rogers leave to contact his Quantum Fund Group. "These white people from the United States are just coming here to dig up the graves of Harbor City's ancestors. And here we are, handing them the shovels."

Kennedy glanced at Bob plainly and spoke, "Ancestors don't exist in the capital market, but if you mind, you're free to leave."

Bob smiled embarrassedly. "I don't care if they live or die. The more they lose, the happier I become. After all, that's how we profit."

Five minutes later, Barron's, the dominating financial magazine, had published an emergency report in the United States.

Its contents were no different from Jasper's memory of his past life.

They had investigated more than 200 internet companies and realized that the senior executives there had all begun to cash out. The companies' performances began to fall, and a lot of them on the market were facing dilemmas of bankruptcy and restructuring.

With that report published, the public opinion around Wall Street that had been shrouded in the gloomy clouds of Weresoft losing the antitrust lawsuit immediately exploded.

The capital's senses were the most sensitive, and they had immediately affected the stock market.

All three of the United States' indexes, The Dow Jones, the S&P 500, and the Nasdaq Composite, plummeted drastically.

Without warning, the dot-com bubble crashed worldwide.

In a flash, trillions of funds turned into maddening strangles in the United States stock market, and enormous amounts of funds disappeared into thin air in mere seconds. Countless people were immediately faced with bankruptcy.

The tragedy hit like a tsunami, and it swallowed the entire world whole.

Harbor Stocks' Hansel Index was immediately affected, and countless investors immediately tried to retreat. Every investor began to sell their stocks at maddening speed in fear of being affected.

However... they were too late.

"Quick, what's the trading volume of the internet sector?"

"It's three times larger than it was three minutes ago! It's continuing to grow!"

"The Hansel Index just dropped by 200 points!"

"The stock market crashed!"

Zack's frantic and exceptionally excited voice was quickly followed by Jasper's new instructions.

"Open a position! Open a position! The Hansel Index, it's dropping! Open a position now!"

Life at the Top Chapter 180

In the futures market, one could decide whether they wanted to buy or to sell. In other words, to take a bullish or a bearish stand.

It was a simple idea. Taking the bullish stand meant that you believed the stock index would increase, so when it did, you earned profits.

Taking the bearish stand meant that you believed the index would drop, so when it did, you earned profits.

All in all, it was a gamble of whether the stock indexes would drop or rise.

Jasper believed that the Hansel Index would drop, so he chose to take a bearish stand.

When in truth, the falling of the Hansel Index was a trend that not even God could change.

The figurative tsunami had appeared at sea level, and the only thing anyone could do now was run as high up as possible, since stopping the tsunami was impossible.

With both Weresoftware losing the antitrust lawsuit and Barron's article, sorrow filled Harbor City's stock market.

The entire market was starting to crash, and retail investors were trying to escape. Everyone was selling their own stocks, but where would they find an investor who would take over the market at such a time?

For stocks to be sold out, it first required someone to buy them or the transaction could not be completed. Without anyone purchasing, the falling of prices was the only outcome!

Harbor Stocks right now and stock markets all over the world were facing the same situation.

Countless shares were dropping drastically and therefore lowered the overall stock indexes.

Almost every stock price was dropping!

Countless people were hugging their heads in disbelief at the current situation of Harbor Stocks' trading market. Wails, sobs, screams, and shouts filled the city.

The scene was one of absolute chaos.

At the same time, media companies were trying to report the latest news of the stock market as quickly as they could.

Now the entire world knew that the dot-com bubble had popped.

Such a situation only promoted more fear.

Harbor City's government quickly set up an emergency press conference stating that they would do everything in their ability to guarantee the safety of investor's funds while providing a series of favorable measures for internet companies.

Harbor City's government was trying to use politics to reignite the stock market to ensure that the city's economy could continue to develop.

Yet with the major trend of panic spreading through the entire market, the government of Harbor City's press conference produced no effects.

Stock prices continued to drop.

The drop in the stock index was beyond what anyone had ever seen.

Like a nightmare, it reminded Harbor City's investors of the horrific memories from the financial tsunami three years ago.

Every single citizen had to pay for the economic fallout of one single district.

The most straightforward and simple result was that the market price of companies would drop too low, thus leading to their cash flow breaking up and lastly the company closing down. The first thing that happened was the axing of employees.

Having lost their jobs, employees no longer had any economic income and their entire family's financial stability would be put at risk.

Too many people would lose their jobs, and the worst, as well as the most direct result, would be social chaos.

Similar tragic consequences had happened overseas before.

Citizens were terrified.

In less than half a trading day, the Hansel Index had continued to drop. By the time the market closed for the day, the Hansel Index had dropped to 14,979 points!

At that moment, everyone knew Harbor Stocks was screwed.

Those who took the bullish stand had lost everything in this war, down to their defenses. All they could do was watch as those who took the bearish stand celebrated joyfully.

They were tasting the fruits of their victory.

In Law Manor, Jasper let out a long exhale the moment the stock market closed.

“Report,” Jasper ordered.

Zack was flushed with excitement. He had never felt so ecstatic in the more than ten years since he started working in this industry.

Life at the Top Chapter 181

Gulping, Zack licked his dry lips and did his best to stop his voice from shaking. “Since this morning, the Hansel Index has dropped by 3,000 points and the 15 billion we invested in has become a total of 29.6 billion.

“In just one morning, we’ve earned 14.6 billion!”

“Stock god! Mr. Laine, you really are the god of stocks!”

Zack shook as he spoke.

At the same time, stock traders in the room all looked at Jasper with gazes of utter admiration. As executionists who merely followed his orders, they knew better than anyone how decisive and intellectual Jasper’s orders had been.

Many of his seemingly inexplicable orders had proven to have incomparable foresight, for the ever-changing capital market would shift a very short moment afterward.

It was as if Jasper could see through every secret in this treacherous capital market.

Jasper, who had been wearing a solemn expression for the past few hours, finally smiled and said, “Alright. Let’s go eat something now that the market is on break. Eat and drink whatever good food you want, and if there’s anything you need, just tell them and they’ll fulfill it!

“Oh, and everyone gets a 100,000 bonus.”

The stock traders immediately chortled at the news.

Meanwhile, Jasper and the rest left for their meal upstairs.

Both Michael and Henry kept staring at Jasper as they ate, for Jasper seemed as divine to them as God Himself.

“How are you so good at this?” Anna spoke honestly.

Jasper merely smiled. “Am I? It’s still too early for anything to be confirmed. We’ve only just started.”

Zachary heard him and asked, “When do you think the Hansel Index will stop dropping?”

Jasper fell into thought for a moment and tried to remember the result of the financial crisis in his past life.

A total of three trillion US dollars had vanished in this bubble. That was how terrifying it had been.

On the other hand, the Hansel Index had dropped to 8,000 points.

That was more than 60%.

To explain this concept with a simple example, imagine you invested 100 bucks into the stock market before the bubble. When the bubble was over, you would be left with less than 40 bucks.

If you happened to invest in a company that went bankrupt and had to exit the market, then you would be left without a single cent.

Such was the cruel reality of the financial market.

“There’s no way it’ll hold at 10,000 points. I’ll say it’ll drop past 9,000, at least.” Jasper gave a more conservative reply.

Zachary and Michael shared a look and sucked in a cold breath.

They understood what the figure Jasper gave them signified.

Such a figure meant that Harbor City's economy was set to lose at least five years of its economic growth.

"What's with your expressions? Don't we earn more the more it drops?" Henry asked dumbly.

Anna glared at him and replied, "That's why I told you to read more in your free time. Sure, we'll earn more the further it drops.

"But you have to remember that our family and Mr. Lane's family both have roots in Harbor City. How are business families like us supposed to continue making money when Harbor City's economy is screwed?"

Henry was stunned and quickly responded, "You're right! What do we do?"

Jasper was deep in thought.

He had been a mere bystander who could only witness what was happening after it happened in his past life. He had only learned of the economic crisis that burst the bubble afterward through reports.

Yet to experience it firsthand now, he could feel that there was an invisible hand controlling this financial crisis.

Someone seemed to be intentionally destroying Harbor City's economy.

"Harbor Stocks can drop, such is the trend. There's no way anyone can save it now with how the bubble has been enlarged. But that doesn't mean Harbor City's economy can be destroyed," Jasper stated solemnly.

He had intentions to invest in Harbor City, for its future development would undoubtedly bring unimaginable profits and return. As such, how could he let someone destroy Harbor City's economy?

"Harbor City must not be destroyed..."

Life at the Top Chapter 182

While the market was put on hold for lunch break, it gave a breather to every person in Harbor City who had been shrouded by gloomy clouds.

Just then, people suddenly realized that this storm had not come without warning.

In the United States across the ocean, a similar situation was occurring.

The entire dot-com bubble was being popped worldwide.

It had originated from the United States and slowly spread to Europe and Terra. Sweeping across the entire world, every stock market in every country and region was affected.

Everyone who entered the stock market with high prices now had to pay a tragic price for their impulsive decisions.

Almost one trillion US Dollars had been lost in the global stock market on the first trading day the bubble popped.

A flood of reports had brought the latest news to citizens of Harbor City, and the readers felt their scalps tingle in fear.

Harbor City had not fully recovered from the financial tsunami attack three years ago, and here they were with the popping of the dot-com bubble. Countless people had grown gray hairs overnight because of this.

With such unprecedented chaos happening in the background, all sorts of monsters and devils began to lurk.

Some so-called stock review experts on the economic channels were frantically advocating how the current crisis was merely a temporary adjustment and that everyone should hold their defenses so that they would not spread and create more panic...

As if anyone was willing to listen to them at this point.

Watching the stock prices drop by the minute and names of shares lining up at the limit down, everyone was worried that they would lose the money they had invested into the market. People were gloomy and they began to think of how they could extract themselves from the situation.

No matter how the outside world thought of and understood the situation, Jasper followed Zachary and Michael back to the living room that was their battleground after lunch.

“Say, Uncle Law, if Harbor City’s economy really faces irreversible losses, will the rich families of Harbor City save the city?” Jasper asked.

Zachary replied without hesitation, “Yes, or at least, most of us will. It’s just like the economic crisis three years ago. Most of Harbor City’s rich businessmen teamed up to defend against the invasion of western investors.

“Harbor City is our home, after all, and no one is excluded. If Harbor City’s economy is destroyed, then we rich families will also have nothing to rely on. Balancing the pros and cons, I think most people would be able to tell which is more important.”

Zachary's words had given Jasper something to think about.

"Let's see how it goes first." Jasper sighed.

Despite Zachary promising him, Jasper could not help but think that there was more to this incident.

If the mysterious force's target was Harbor City's economy, then it did not make sense for them to ignore the strength of Harbor City's wealthy families.

The biggest problem now was that the enemy was in the dark. Jasper did not have enough leads to go on.

However, Jasper had his advantages as well. His biggest one being the same as his opponents—a hidden identity. His only solace was that his opponent did not know enough about himself either.

That afternoon, the market opened again on time.

Just as Jasper had expected, after the short lunch break, bullish funds were gathered together and the battle began to focus on a few representative stocks.

Since it had just been a few minutes since the market reopened, both sides were still trading back and forth.

Such had given countless investors hope and reignited their trust in the market.

However, people in the industry, like Jasper, knew that this was merely a ray of light before death befell.

As expected, ten minutes after the market reopened, there seemed to be no end to the funds from the short position. The bullish people could not hold it up anymore and their line of defense fell again.

This time, it was a rapid drop.

The Hansel Index had instantly fallen by 500 points.

Steady flowing water in a river had suddenly turned into a waterfall that plummeted off the cliff. It sprayed everywhere like an avalanche, and no one could stop the attack from the short position.

“The market crashed!”

Jasper suddenly spoke, staring at the spectacular sight of pure, tragic green on the screen. Almost every stock was dropping.

Life at the Top Chapter 183

At that moment, calls were blowing up Zachary's phone.

They were all from Harbor City's rich families, some of whom even held senior positions in the government of Harbor City.

They had one goal.

In face of Harbor City's current economic crisis that was so severe, the rich were frantic and lost. They needed to communicate a plan.

As the wealthy held the life of Harbor City's economy in their hands, they were the only ones with the power to turn the tides at such a time.

Even Michael had received similar phone calls.

Both Zachary and Michael were torn between feeling ecstatic and sorrowful.

For the bigger dip the stock market took, the more they earned. Yet letting it continue to drop was no different than killing the goose that laid golden eggs.

Not to mention that the Law family's prestigious image would be destroyed if the outside world came to know about the situation.

"Not only are the wealthy families frantic, but even the government of Harbor City is urging for action too, Jasper. They need to discuss a plan to save the city. What's your say in this?"

Zachary had begun to see Jasper as an equal, instead of someone from the younger generation, before he knew it.

Otherwise, Zachary would not ask Jasper for his opinion on something so crucial.

"Saving them goes without saying," Jasper replied with certainty.

Even Michael could tell.

"Harbor City's economy is a base. It can drop, but it must not be destroyed."

Jasper glanced at the stock market that continued to fall without restraint. Harbor City currently had around 1,300 stocks on the market and more than 900 of them had reached the limit down.

With the way things were going, at least 1,000 stocks would reach the limit down before the market closed this evening.

This was a situation that Harbor Stocks had never encountered since its first opening.

To Jasper, Harbor City would turn to be one of his biggest golden cash cows, leading to the burst of growth in his wealth in the future. As such, how would he allow others to destroy this cow of his?

That was no different from getting sacked.

Logically and emotionally speaking, Jasper would not let such a thing occur.

Zachary nodded. "Michael and I will talk to them tomorrow."

"More than a thousand stocks have reached the limit down!"

Zack's voice suddenly rang out.

Jasper and the other two turned to look. The scene that was talked about by countless people in his past life had finally appeared.

On the limit down, the number of companies' stocks: 1,001!

Like some sort of signal, the Hansel Index's defenses completely fell and dropped by more than 1,000 points!

If one were to look at the market for Harbor Stocks right now, all the stocks they would be able to see were gathered at the limit down, and the entire screen before them would be filled with tragic light green lines.

"Profit report," Jasper demanded.

"Hansel Index closed at 8,700 points. Total account balance amounts to 45 billion, a total profit of 30 billion!"

15 billion in capital had brought them 30 billion worth of profit.

While everyone had expected it, their hearts could not help but shudder as Zack announced the figure.

Zachary wore an expression of utter shock. Despite being a hero in the business world, he could not stop his heart from shaking in excitement.

“Is... this the capital market? Earning 30 billion worth of profit in a day?!”

Life at the Top Chapter 184

'Popping of the Dot-Com Bubble!'

'Harbor Stocks Drops Violently by 10,000 Points!'

'Hundreds of Billion Harbor Dollars Lost!'

'Financial Tsunami Tragedy Three Years Ago Sweeps Harbor City Again!'

'Harbor City's Economy in Danger, Citizens Ask What Now?'

Countless news articles had spread throughout Harbor City that night.

Almost every citizen was affected by the crisis.

Switching on the television, every channel was reporting today's economic crisis.

What truly chilled the hearts of civilians was that the boss of Carefree Net, an internet company on the stock market, had gone bankrupt and proceeded to kill himself and his kids by jumping from the rooftop.

A true tragedy.

Sorrow and fright could be seen everywhere in Harbor City.

Meanwhile, a joyful party was held in a rural and safe villa somewhere in Harbor City.

“Haha. In these few years, I’ve never been as happy as I am today!”

Bob raised his wine glass and clinked it with Kennedy’s with a smile on his face as he spoke.

Kennedy smiled and replied, “Yeah. We earned almost ten billion today. What’s better than earning money?”

“But something still feels weird to me.” Bob rubbed his chin and explained, “According to our predictions, we knew that Harbor Stocks were bound to have a violent drop, but we never expected them to drop like this. It’s too exaggerated. I almost got a shock with the Hansel Index dropping 10,000 points in just one day.”

“Just our funds alone wouldn’t have gotten us this result,” Bob frowned and voiced out.

Kennedy seemed to be in thought as well. “I realized it this afternoon as well. There’s got to be another entity in the market aside from us and their funds are not in any way lesser than ours. They’ve taken the bearish stand too, and if I had to guess, I’d say they had prepared at least tens of billions of funds!”

“Who do you think it is?” Bob asked sullenly.

“I don’t know, but it probably isn’t Harbor City’s local forces.” Kennedy gave his own deductions.

Just then, Rogers descended the villa's stairs with a relaxed expression and turned to Kennedy. "Quantum Funds' headquarters are very happy with our results, my friends. Wall Street's investors have largely profited too. Shouldn't all this good news be celebrated?"

Unable to disagree, Kennedy and Bob nodded with a smile. Then, they told him of their suspicions.

Rogers frowned, but his expression was not one of concern. "Perhaps Europe's other capitals were sold, or it may even be one of your Somerland's neighbors? But I can confirm that the capital wasn't from Wall Street.

"Keep an eye out tomorrow, we'll watch out for their next course of action," Rogers replied plainly.

Bob hesitated before he spoke, "Mr. Rogers, our original plan was to knock the Hansel Index down by 10,000 points in three days.

"But it's only the first day and the Hansel Index has already dropped 9,000 points. If this goes on, the government of Harbor City and the other rich families will team up to help."

Kennedy interrupted, "I already received their calls today, saying that the four main families should come up with a plan and publicize it, then team up with the other wealthy families to save the city."

Rogers smiled playfully. "It's a shame that they don't know that among Harbor City's four main rich families, you're egging for Harbor Stocks to drop."

Kennedy replied plainly, "Still, you can't let them find out, or at least, not yet. Otherwise, that's goodbye to my foothold in Harbor City."

Life at the Top Chapter 185

“The Langdons’ business has already started moving out of Harbor City, hasn’t it? You’re everywhere in Southeast Terra, so what are you afraid of?” Rogers did not care.

“But there’s nothing wrong with you going. At least then we’ll get some insight on how Harbor City’s four major families plan to save the city. With intel on our side, how will they ever win us?” Rogers stated plainly.

Rogers clapped Kennedy’s shoulder when he took notice of the other’s calm expression. “There’s a saying in the United States that capital only makes friends with winners, Langdon. Harbor City’s still too small, not to mention that it has already returned to its previous state now. You have to know that the west is where true heaven exists for people like you.”

Kennedy smiled. “I know. We will always be friends with Quantum Funds.”

Rogers laughed aloud. “Of course, as one of its founders, I can promise you that Quantum Funds will always be willing to be friends with intelligent people like you.”

...

The night slowly darkened, and Zachary had much to do. In addition to the shock the stock market had suffered, people were very volatile right now. That was why he left the house after the market closed.

It was especially in times like this that celebrities like Zachary and Michael became busier, for most people expected the rich to provide them with rescue measures.

Meanwhile, their companies also needed to show their presence to calm the civilians' hearts.

Jasper, on the other hand, now had a lot of free time.

Watching the situation with the United States stock market, Jasper realized that its development was fundamentally different from his past life.

Perhaps it was his participation in Harbor Stocks, but the strength and speed of this storm had been greatly increased.

Harbor Stocks had only dropped 10,000 points three days after the storm began in his past life, yet it had dropped more than 9,000 points in one day this time. Today's daily decline had hit an all-time high.

It was the first time for any stock market worldwide to drop 10,000 points in one day.

The night was cold, and Jasper pondered over tomorrow's plan.

Anna had walked over before Jasper realized. She said to him, "You haven't been resting well these past few days. Won't you take the time to give yourself a break?"

"I'm not actually that tired. Plus, there are a lot of things that I haven't planned yet," Jasper replied with a smile.

Anna sighed. "Bystanders only see how brightly successful people shine, yet not many of them know that success has never come easy to begin with."

"That's the idea. You'll have to put in the effort if you want to reap rewards." Jasper agreed.

Anna gave it some thought before she suddenly invited Jasper, seeing as he did not have the intention to rest. “How about we take a walk around Victoria Harbor?”

Jasper was shocked. “Now?”

“What, are you afraid I’ll sell you off?” Anna joked. “I told you when you first arrived in Harbor City, didn’t I? That I’ll be your tour guide and bring you around Victoria Harbor? You’ve already been in Harbor City for so long and you still haven’t stepped foot there yet.”

Jasper smiled. “Alright. Let’s go, then. I’ll take the chance to relax.”

The two walked to the garage together, tacitly choosing to ignore Henry’s car with large headlights this time.

Sitting in Anna’s Porsche 911, Jasper felt his nerves unwind after the past few days of accumulated stress as he watched Harbor City’s night view zoom past him.

“Are you saving the city tomorrow?” Anna asked while driving.

Jasper thought about it and replied, “As a businessman, my main focus is business. Everything else is secondary to me. That’s why I did what I did today.”

“But being a businessman means you have to look at the bigger picture. And the crashing of Harbor City’s stock market is bad news to me and the whole Harbor City!”

Life at the Top Chapter 186

“But whether I do save the city or not tomorrow will depend on how things end up going.”

Anna fell into deep thought. “You mean that if the trend continues and the market crashes, then you won’t help. But if this is caused by someone and they’re secretly trying to increase the severity of this economic crisis, you’ll help?”

Jasper smiled. “Smart! There’s no way I’d be able to fight the trend of the dot-com bubble popping no matter how rich I become, so the only way to earn money now is to go with the flow. Fighting against the trend is only something idiots would do.

“But if someone from the outside is putting their capital in? That means someone’s trying to crush Harbor City’s economy and that’s a man-made disaster, not a natural one! Then I have to act!

“Not to mention that the government of Harbor City and the city’s rich families will act even if I don’t do anything. By then, I’ll still just go with the flow!”

As they spoke, the two arrived at Victoria Harbor.

Anna pulled the car to a stop, and the two walked on the pedestrian bridge side by side like many ordinary couples here.

Harbor City was overpopulated, so most roads were rather crowded. As such, pedestrian bridges had been integrated into one of Harbor City’s unique scenery.

It was getting late, but an international metropolis like Harbor City hardly ever grew deserted.

People came and went on the pedestrian bridge, most of them talking about what had happened on the stock markets today. People strode quickly around them with sullen expressions on their faces.

As Jasper and Anna chatted and walked around Victoria Harbor with smiles on their faces, Mitch and Zane were currently joyfully clinking glasses at an open bar.

“Today sure was great, Young Master Langdon! Had you not shown me the way to earn money and told me to take the bearish stand for Harbor Stocks, I wouldn’t have been able to earn tens of millions today!” Zane thanked Mitch elatedly.

Mitch merely smiled softly at Zane’s praise. “It’s nothing. Keep working for me and I can promise you’ll be earning big bucks in the future. This is only the beginning.”

“Looking at those aggrieved expressions those people wore just makes me want to laugh! What do they know about stocks? They had it coming for losing!”

Zane leaned against the chair comfortably and enjoyed the sea breeze. “How much did you earn today, Young Master Langdon?”

Mitch’s lips quirked upward as he lifted two fingers.

“200 million?!” Zane exclaimed.

Mitch burst out in laughter. “Look at you, so unpromising. It’s just 200 million, that’s nothing. I’m one of Harbor City’s well-known investing masters, after all. I could tell that something was up when I looked at the market’s big picture. So I prepared my funds and chose to take the bearish stand before it was too late. There’s only more money to be made from now on.”

Zane replied in admiration, “You sure are good at this, Young Master Langdon...”

Halfway through his praise, Zane's eyes suddenly widened. Looking over in the other direction, he roared, "What the hell! Look at those two, Young Master Langdon. It's Jasper, that country bumpkin, and Anna?"

Hearing Zane, Mitch immediately snapped his head over to see a couple walking by the harbor not too far away, approaching their direction.

While the lighting around them was dim, Mitch could easily tell the two's identities!

"Motherf*cker! It really is that country bumpkin and Anna!"

Mitch huffed enviously.

He had been chasing after Anna for quite a few years already. Yet every time she saw him, she would have a dark expression on her face. How could she possibly take strolls with him?!

He thought about himself, how he was still a member of one of the four major rich families in Harbor City with equal footing as the Law family. However, Annie had never even looked his way!

Meanwhile, Jasper, a country bumpkin from Mainland, was deeply favored by her...

Mitch scoffed and stood up when he saw Jasper, that new distaste adding to his old resentment. "Come on, let's go talk."

Jasper was chatting and laughing with Anna when a sharp voice sounded not too far away.

"Hey, isn't this a Mainland cockroach?"

Life at the Top Chapter 187

Zane had both his hands in his pant pockets as he scoffed at Jasper and spoke, “What? Haven’t seen a night view as beautiful as Harbor City’s before? That must be why you’re here, right? To learn more about the world.”

“Don’t say that.”

Mitch glared at Jasper and spoke wittily, “That’s a humiliation to cockroaches. People like him should be called a mangy dog.

“After all, it wasn’t easy climbing up a tree like the Law family. He looks so proud of himself. It’s like he can’t wait to wag his tail and please his master.”

Zane broke out into a laugh and agreed. “You’re right, Young Master Langdon. He really is just a mangy dog!”

Jasper could not help but feel like he was being stalked by Zane and Mitch.

Needless to say, the amount of hatred, new and old, between them had gotten beyond the point of mitigation.

“Should’ve checked my horoscope today before I left the house.” Jasper shook his head.

“Shouldn’t we be the ones saying this?”

Zane scoffed. “What misfortune to see a dog like you the moment I leave my house.”

“You’ve got to be understanding too. After all, Mainland is hardly as urbanized as Harbor City. At least he’ll have something to gloat to his friends back in Mainland if he has walked around Victoria Harbor.”

Mitch mocked plainly.

With that, Mitch then turned to Anna. “How could you come out for a walk with someone like this, Anna? What about your dignity if this news gets spread?”

Anna had long felt annoyed when it came to Mitch, so she replied to his words coldly, “Who are you to control who I take walks with? And watch your attitude, the two of you. You disgust me.”

“I disgust you?!”

Mitch started laughing, feeling infuriated as he pointed at Jasper. “It’s people like him who schemes and tries to flatter his way into your family who’s disgusting here!”

“What gave you the idea that he’s flattering his way into my family?” Anna asked impolitely.

“Just look at him. It’s obvious, isn’t it?”

Mitch spoke with certainty, “You’ll get the f*ck out of Harbor City if you still see yourself as a man, Jasper! Leave Anna alone, or we’ll never have an ounce of respect for you!”

“How does your respecting me or not affect me?” Jasper asked.

Mitch scoffed and replied wretchedly, “You really are just a mangy dog!”

“Let’s go, Jasper.”

Anna had enough of the two's faces and pulled Jasper away to leave.

"Stand there!"

Mitch blocked the duo's path and sneered at Jasper. "I thought you were capable, country bumpkin. But all you're doing now is hiding between a girl's legs and running away?"

"Exactly, Miss Law. I'd think carefully if I were you. Young Master Langdon easily earned 200 million from the stock market today. What about that country bumpkin next to you, can he do that?" Zane sneered.

Mitch was pleased with what Zane had said and huffed his chest as he spoke with an intentionally nonchalant tone, "It's just 200 million. I could already tell from the trend that Harbor Stock's index would plummet. That's why I prepared money and opened a position for a bearish stand. Earning just that bit of money was easy-peasy."

With that, Mitch turned to Jasper and snickered. "I'd f*ck off soon if I were you, you Mainland country bumpkin. Harbor City isn't a place for losers like you!"

At that, Jasper merely chuckled in disagreement. "Is 200 million a lot of money?"

Life at the Top Chapter 188

"Pfft!"

Mitch burst out laughing and said while laughing, "What did I just hear? 200 million is not a lot, but can you make so much? You're just lucky, and you only made some money from shady businesses, so how can you compare to me? I made my money with my own ability!”

“Yeah, you’re just a country bumpkin and you dare to compare with Young Master Langdon? You’re a humiliation to all of us with the last names starting with L,” Zane chuckled coldly and said at one side.

“I’m sorry, I think I’m going to disappoint you guys. I did use my luck to make money, but my luck has been great so far. From stock speculation to futures, I rarely fail. I think I made a few billion in just a few months.”

Jasper shrugged and looked at the two of them who widened their eyes after they heard him saying that. He chuckled lightly.

“Right, how much did you say you made? 200 million? You just made the scraps from what I made, so I guess that’s just my pocket money.”

Mitch and Zane felt a buzz in their heads and they almost shut down.

Pocket money?

The rich children of the rich families in Harbor City did not even dare to say 200 million was pocket money and this country bumpkin from Mainland had the balls to say this?

“Bullsh*t!”

Zane said sharply, “Country bumpkin, you expect us to believe that you’ve made a few billion just from your words? You even made a few billion in a few months? I don’t even have the guts to say this! Who do you think you are?”

“Mitch, just because you can’t make this much doesn’t mean other people can’t,” Jasper said flatly.

Mitch narrowed his eyes and looked at Jasper sinisterly. He chuckled coldly and said, "Do you think I'm as easy to fool as a three-year-old? How many hundred million of capital do you need to make a few billion in the stock market in such a short period? Have you calculated that? All ten of your fingers won't be enough for you to count that!"

"Whatever. Do you think I care whether you believe me or not?" Jasper sneered.

Mitch was immediately speechless, and he felt extremely terrible.

It was because he believed that Jasper was able to make some money in the stock market by seizing every opportunity.

After he had this thought, Mitch felt so jealous and pissed that it felt as if he had bugs gnawing on his heart.

Then, he looked at Anna who was standing next to him.

Mitch could only feel that Jasper had defeated him in the business world and also relationship-wise.

Now, he felt that he was the country bumpkin instead!

"Hehe, how amazing you are!"

Mitch smiled coldly while gritting his teeth. "However, don't feel too pleased with yourself, country bumpkin. There'll be a time when you'll cry!"

"Young Master Langdon, have you forgotten about our bet last time? You lost 100 million to me, and it was thanks to that I was able to bid on a pink diamond that's worth a few hundred million at the charity party."

Jasper looked at Mitch and Zane. He said indifferently, "Plus, Mr. Lancaster, I almost bought your family's company last time, and in the end, your father had to show up and give me a billion dollars!

"Have you guys already forgotten about that?"

After they heard this, their faces turned green. There was a hint of anger in their eyes and their faces looked sinister.

Especially Zane. When he remembered what had happened last time, he did not even know what to say.

"Damn you! Do you think you're all that just because you seized every opportunity and defeated me? Don't forget that the stock market can make someone get rich in one night but can also make someone lose everything in one night!"

Mitch glared at Jasper malevolently. He chuckled coldly and said, "Hmph, you just defeated me by 100 million. I can earn it back with just a turn of my hand. Plus, I can make even more in the future.

"Country bumpkin, it's okay for you to come here to make money. If you're tactful, I can take you along to make more with me.

"As long as you leave Anna and get out of Harbor City after you make your money, I'll be willing to let you tag along. This is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity, so don't blame me for not giving you this chance."

Jasper smiled. "After you let me tag along then we'll watch Harbor Stocks continue plummeting, yeah?"

"This will just make things worse in a bad situation. If the economy in Harbor City collapses, no one can escape unscathed in a great disaster."

“You son of a b*tch! Stop saying it like you’re so high and mighty! Aren’t you involved in the stock market to make money?”

Mitch felt disgusted when he saw Jasper acting so pretentious. He looked at Anna. “Anna, did you see that? He didn’t come here to make money. He’s obviously putting on an act for you by being so full of justice! It’s so that you’ll fall for his tricks!”

“Do you think Jasper is on the same level as you guys?”

Anna suddenly said. She could not stand this anymore, so she opened her mouth and berated.

Life at the Top Chapter 189

When Mitch saw Anna siding with Jasper, he felt the fire of anger and jealousy burning in his chest. His eyes were filled with rage!

“Anna, I know you’re pure-hearted, but don’t be fooled by him! Do you think he got close to the Laws with no ulterior motives?”

Anna gritted her teeth with anger. She wanted to tell them that Jasper was making a lot of money just from the short sale.

Due to the general trend, the market of Harbor Stocks would plummet. He could not fight the general trend, and Harbor Stocks would fall no matter if he did or not.

However, this was the secret between the Laws and Jasper, so Anna could not tell them everything.

She looked at Mitch and Zane before saying coldly, “Mitch, do you know what Jasper said to me just now? We’re talking about how we’re going to save the crisis of Harbor Stocks and not how to continue to suck the blood of the citizens of Harbor City dry! As someone from a rich family, don’t you ever think about the economy of Harbor City?”

“A market rescue?”

Mitch almost burst out laughing. “Jasper?”

Mitch pointed at Jasper’s nose and was struggling to breathe due to all the laughing. “This is the burst of the dot-com bubble. Do you know what it means by the bubble bursting?”

“You just made some money in the stock market because you got f*cking lucky. Do you seriously think you’re able to predict and understand everything?”

“Damn, this is a f*cking global financial crisis and you want to do a market rescue? You? A country bumpkin from Mainland? I’m going to die from laughter.”

“Harbor Stocks are worth a few trillion dollars. They fell 10,000 points today and the Langdons can’t even save this. You can still be a poser back in Mainland with your coins. Aren’t you scared that I’ll laugh my head off from you boasting shamelessly in Harbor City?”

Jasper looked at Mitch sympathetically and said flatly, “Continue laughing then. Laugh more. I hope you can laugh for a few more days.”

Mitch deliberately laughed even louder. “I’m going to keep laughing and I’ll laugh at you every day. What can a country bumpkin like you do to me?”

“A market rescue? F*ck your market rescue and f*ck you! You’re so pretentious that your head is in outer space. What do you even have? You’re just a country bumpkin from Mainland and you want to rescue Harbor Stocks? You might not be afraid to lose your image, but aren’t you afraid of embarrassing the Laws?”

“Anna, are you willing to let the Laws lose their image because of this country bumpkin from Mainland? I think you should tell him to get lost as soon as he can!”

“You’re so senseless!” After Anna said that frigidly, she grabbed Jasper and said, “Jasper, let’s go. We have nothing to say to this lunatic.”

Jasper patted Anna’s hand and said to Mitch, “I’ll remember your laughing face. I hope you can still laugh as foolishly as you are now the next time we see each other.

“The one who gets the last laugh is the winner, no?”

After he said that, Jasper left slowly with Anna.

Mitch watched as Jasper and Anna’s figures walked farther and farther away. The smile on his face slowly disappeared, and what was left was a distorted look filled with malevolence.

“Young Master Langdon, I want to kill that country bumpkin so badly!” Zane said through gritted teeth.

“I want to do it more than you!”

Mitch snorted and said loftily, “Just wait, the time will come when he’ll die. Let’s just allow him to feel pleased with himself for now.”

Zane pondered for a while and asked, “He said he made a few billion from the stock market and wants to rescue the market. Do you think he’s serious?”

Mitch gritted his teeth and chuckled coldly. He said, “I think he did make some money but I’m sure it’s not as much as a few billion. Just listen to him talk big! And he even wants to save the market? He must be dreaming!”

Mitch remembered the news his father had talked about on a call while he was standing in front of the door of his study. He felt his heart burning up.

He knew that his father was probably doing something major and it was related to the financial crisis.

However, Mitch would not tell anyone about this secret.

When he thought about this, he scoffed. 'Jasper, even if you're all that, but can you do better than the Langdons?'

"Tomorrow, let's take out all of our savings for a short sale. We'll use this once-in-a-lifetime chance to get rich overnight!"

Zane was shocked when he heard this. He said, "All of our savings? Isn't this a little risky?"

"What are you scared of?"

Mitch glared at Zane. "Just do as I say. I have a source, and I got some information that the financial crisis this time won't be so simple. It's still early, and that country bumpkin wants to go against me. After I make enough money, I'll kill him!"

Zane thought about it and said through gritted teeth, "Alright, I'll do as you say. I'll get the money tomorrow!"

Life at the Top Chapter 190

After leaving Victoria Harbor, because of Mitch and his gang, their moods were destroyed so they went straight home.

Tonight, a lot of people in Harbor City could not sleep.

This entire city fell into a dense cloud of dismal.

However, Jasper got himself a rare good night's sleep.

He had not had the chance to rest for the past few days because of the time difference and having to follow up on the stock market in the United States. He had to be prepared for the burst of the dot-com bubble at any time.

Now, the bubble had burst and the storm had arrived in Harbor City.

Jasper slept soundly tonight, and he only woke up because of the blaring alarm clock the next morning.

After washing up and eating some breakfast, he walked to the living room.

At this moment, Zach and his team were already in position.

When they saw Jasper, everyone got up enthusiastically and greeted him.

Due to the exceptional results yesterday, Jasper was now the true stock god in their hearts.

As such, even if Jasper told them the sun was square, they would lift their heads to look at it seriously.

“My dad as well as Mr. Lane and his gang have gone to Clark Duvall. I think they’re discussing the countermeasure for dealing with this.”

When Anna saw Jasper walking over, she walked over to him and said.

After nodding, Jasper said, “We should have news by afternoon.”

While he was saying that, the trading had commenced.

At the same time, the trading commencement of Harbor Stocks had attracted the attention of a lot of people.

At this moment, the entire Harbor City went silent. Everyone was watching the changing of Harbor Stocks.

It was not out of everyone’s expectations. After the commencement, the stocks started to plummet wildly.

The plummet yesterday was enough to make Harbor City famous around the world, but it was as if that was not enough. The wealth and riches of Harbor City were evaporating amidst the bitter plummet.

Now, even the most impulsive investors were silenced. Everyone looked as if they were numb.

Everyone’s faces were as gray as ash.

They could only watch as Harbor Stocks continued to plummet.

Everyone’s moods were like the plummeting numbers. They felt as if they were falling down a cliff and they could never reach the bottom.

“The Hansel Index fell by 800 points after the commencement and it’s reaching the gateway of 8,000 points.”

Zack was announcing the situation of the market.

At this moment, everyone was extremely nervous and felt strange in their hearts.

Jasper looked at the time on the screen. It had only been 30 seconds since the commencement.

They had a slump of 800 points in only 30 seconds.

It seemed that this mysterious hand would not be satisfied if it did not completely destroy Harbor City.

“There’s another two billion from a put option short seller! The Hansel Index dropped by another 180 points! It’s now at 7,813 points!”

Zack’s voice sounded again.

Jasper furrowed his brows tightly.

That mysterious fund finally bared its fangs after failing to control itself.

“Give up on the shorts we have now. Let’s hedge this two billion,” Jasper ordered.

Zack was stumped for words.

The more the Hansel Index fell, the more money the party that was waiting for it to drop would make. However, Jasper was now asking them to hedge the other party while facing the destruction of the economy of Harbor Stocks.

Hedging meant that Jasper would buy what the other party sold.

The more the other party sold, the more Jasper would buy.

That way, there would be two successful transactions and it would stop the plummeting Hansel Index from dipping even more.

There was another name for it, and it was called the protection of the market.

Jasper was going to protect the market of Harbor Stocks.

However, a second later, Zack quickly realized this was not the time to space out. Hence, he quickly did what Jasper told him to do.

At the same time, Zack started to feel a surge in his heart.

Life at the Top Chapter 191

To Jasper, he wanted to protect Harbor City's economy even if it meant giving up the profits he already had in his hands.

What kind of mindset was this?

Even though they had made a lot of money these two days and Zack could get a hefty sum of money, he and his team were from Harbor City after all.

Zack would still feel a little uncomfortable when he watched the economy of his home being plundered and robbed by someone else. In addition to that, they were also sucking the blood of the citizens and taking away the results their economy had gained after so many years.

However, he was just someone holding onto a job. He did not have the ability, and his words would not amount to anything, so it would be impossible for him to do anything.

However, now, Jasper's order felt like a cardiac stimulant to him.

'Mr. Laine... is a hero!' Zack murmured to himself in his heart.

Jasper's expression was serious. His main issue was that someone else was digging this farmland that was Harbor City and he could not tolerate this!

This farmland would be able to bring him a lot of opportunities to make money in the future!

The measly profits that he was letting go now would be able to get him a wider space to grow in the future.

He would need to be farsighted if he wanted to do business. He would not have a future if he kept staring at those tiny profits in front of him.

Now, the Hansel Index had dropped to 8,000 points. Its limit would be this even if Jasper did not do anything. If it continued to lose another 1,000 points and reached 7,000, the Harbor City government would take strong action and those millionaires would also start to inject funds.

To Jasper, 90% of the money he could make was already in his pocket. As for the remaining 10%, it would be a worthy trade if it would be able to give Harbor City a rapidly developing economy in the next 20 years.

In Harbor Stocks Trading Center, everyone lost all of their hopes when they saw the two billion being shown on the screen.

To them, Harbor Stocks would continue to plummet this morning as they had yesterday. They would continue to bomb.

“Oh no, oh no! This is the same as the financial crisis three years ago! It’s exactly the same!”

An old stock investor wailed in front of the trading hall with tears in his eyes.

Everyone around him was silent, and they all had despair on their faces.

However, when despair was looming over everyone, a buy order of two billion appeared in the list of trading without any warning signs.

In the next second, a buying order and a selling order were hedging. The Hansel Index miraculously stabled at 7,813 points and did not drop anymore!

“What’s going on? Did someone eat the order of two billion?” someone yelled loudly.

This loud voice attracted everyone's attention.

When they realized what they were seeing was not an illusion, someone yelled, "Did the four wealthy families do something?"

"Maybe the government of Harbor City injected the emergency funds into the market?"

Among the commotion, inside Law Manor that was more than ten kilometers away.

"There are 15 stock traders and everyone is using their own accounts to display the order they bought with 100 million. These 15 orders will be the tool for us to protect the market and fight back."

Jasper took a sip of the spring tea Anna handed him as he stared at the screen and ordered.

Inside the living room, all of the stock traders were so excited that their faces were red.

None of them would expect to be in the team of heroes saving Harbor Stocks one day.

Some things were more important than making money in one's life.

Harbor City was their home, and they did not want to watch as their home got destroyed.

At this moment, everyone was working faster and with more excitement than when they were furiously making money.

In the next second, an order occupied a line of information. Then, 15 lines of information and 15 purchase orders appeared in the trading list of Harbor Stocks.

15 orders.

15 purchasing information.

All of them were worth 100 million.

They were displayed dazzlingly and evidently on the screen, occupying the buying list that had been empty for a day and a half.

The purchasing order of 1.5 billion was like a soundless and shapeless thing, but at that moment, it was a message that everyone in Harbor City could understand as it resounded in everyone's hearts.

'When you're in despair and when you're feeling helpless, someone is still protecting and saving the economy of Harbor City!'

At this moment, in another secluded villa on the other side of Harbor City, Bob furrowed his brows tightly.

"Someone's causing trouble!"

Life at the Top Chapter 192

When the 15 orders totaled 1.5 billion were listed on the trading list, Bob could tell something was wrong. Someone wanted to protect the market!

It was because Kennedy was at the internal meeting of the four wealthy families.

He could not be absent from this important meeting with his current status. If not, his entire plan would be exposed and they would be finished.

As such, Bob was the one controlling the situation. However, they did not expect that someone would do something at this moment. Were the four wealthy families and the government of Harbor City doing something to save the city?

Impossible! They would not be so fast!

“Mr. Lancaster, someone devoured the order we sold for two billion earlier in the blink of an eye. Now, they’re listing out these 15 orders and it’s clear that they’re declaring war with us.”

The manager who was leading the stock traders said.

“It doesn’t matter who it is. They’re just overrating themselves and attempting something impossible.”

Bob thought for a while before chuckling coldly. He ordered, “Take them down. Don’t give them any hope.”

After Bob gave out that order, the stock traders started to do their things.

In the blink of an eye, the 1.5 billion order was swept clean.

“Continue selling. I want the Hansel Index to drop until 7,000 points this morning!”

Bob’s haughty voice reverberated in the villa.

He was enjoying the feeling of being full of vim. When Kennedy was here, his words were nothing compared to his.

However, it was different now. He was the boss here, and with one sentence, he was able to cause the rise and fall of Harbor Stocks. He was also able to control the fall of Harbor Stocks according to his wishes. This feeling was even more addictive than doing drugs.

...

“Mr. Laine, the other party has swept our orders clean. We’re still selling shorts and watching it drop!”

When Jasper heard Zack’s voice, he stayed silent for a while. A moment later, he ordered, “Take. Take as many as they have. We have to maintain the Hansel Index at 7,810 points.”

After Jasper’s order, Zack started to instruct the stock traders.

Immediately, Jasper and Bob’s funds were competing against each other on Harbor Stocks.

The funds that were worth more than ten billion did not cause any ripples when they were going against each other. However, these funds worth more than ten billion dollars would dictate the fate of Harbor Stocks this morning before the market closed.

“Tell me the situation of the funds in our account,” Jasper said while looking at the market without blinking.

“For now, we have about 89.6 billion in our account.”

When Jasper heard what Zack said, he nodded.

His capital was 40 billion. He had made almost 50 billion from yesterday and today.

Since he had such a huge amount of funds in his hands, he was naturally confident.

“Continue to list out purchase orders for a total of three billion. I want the Hansel Index to rise ten more points.”

...

“B*stard!”

Bob stared gloomily at the changes in the market. It had only been half an hour and he had already put in almost five billion dollars. However, it was as if the other party’s funds were bottomless. The other party would put in as much as they put in.

After spending five billion dollars, not only did the Hansel Index not fall as he had predicted, it even stood firmly at 7,813 points.

This figure was like a spell and he could not get rid of it no matter how hard he tried.

If Kennedy came back to this scene, he would certainly question Bob’s ability.

When Bob thought about this, his eyes darkened even more.

“F*ck! Who the hell is fooling with me?” Bob muttered to himself sinisterly.

At this moment, a three billion order crashed into Harbor Stocks.

“M-Mr. Lancaster, should we take this down?”

Even the blind would be able to see that Bob was in an extremely bad mood, so the manager asked in a small voice nervously.

Life at the Top Chapter 193

“Rubbish! If we don’t take it down, then are we going to watch them raise the market? We’ll all be finished if the Hansel Index increases, isn’t it?”

Bob yelled angrily, and his saliva almost drenched the manager’s face.

“We can’t let him raise the market!”

Bob’s eyes were shining with a sinister glint.

“Once the market is stable or even has a glimpse of a rally, then those investors will think the time for bottom fishing is here. When they make a comeback, then we’ll be in huge trouble!”

When Bob thought about this, he yelled fiercely, “Continue to smash the price! I refuse to believe that he has so much money to play with me!”

...

The parents of the four richest families were sitting together and discussing in Clark’s house.

“We can’t watch Harbor Stocks crash. I suggest all of us take out some funds. We have to stabilize the market.”

The Ship King, who was also the head of the Boyles, said with a serious expression on his face.

“You’re right, but we don’t even know who’s the other party or how much funds they have. What if we fall into their trap if we just do this blindly?” Kennedy said indifferently.

“What should we do, then? Are we just going to watch it happen and do nothing? Everyone out there is waiting for us to say something,” Spencer Boyle said bluntly.

“Please don’t be impatient.”

Clark chuckled and turned his head to look at Zachary. He said, “Old Man Law, what do you think?”

Zachary had a calm expression on his face, and he said calmly, “I support the Boyles’ opinion. As the four richest families, we have to be the examples. On the other hand, we have to communicate with the government as well. They can’t just allow the economy of Harbor City to fall back!”

At this moment, Clark’s secretary knocked on the door before coming in. She quickly said something to Clark.

Clark made a noise of surprise that attracted the attention of the other three.

After waving his hand to dismiss his secretary, Clark said profoundly, “I think someone’s one step ahead of us.”

While he said that, Clark turned on the television and ordered someone to connect it to Harbor Stocks Market.

Immediately, the situation of the market appeared on the television.

Right now, it was 13 minutes to closing.

The Hansel Index was stable at 7,820 points and there were two large amounts of funds going at each other surrounding this point.

“Is someone protecting the market?” Spencer said in surprise.

Clark nodded and said, “My secretary told me while we were in the middle of the meeting, there was an injection of funds and the other party has been protecting the market since 7,813 points. They’ve been going at each other for the entire morning. Not only did the points not fall, it even increased by seven points.

“Now, everyone out there is guessing who this person is. Nobody has any idea who’s spending the money now,” Clark said profoundly.

At this moment, the expressions on Zachary and Kennedy’s faces changed subtly.

Of course, Zachary knew that the person who was protecting the market now was Jasper.

There was a hint of comfort in his eyes.

On the other hand, Kennedy was conflicted.

He did not expect that Bob would be able to mess this up when he was out having a meeting.

They had so many funds but they still let the other party successfully protect the market.

“Who’s this person?”

Kennedy asked quickly. He wanted to find out who this person was right now more than anyone.

“No idea.”

Clark shook his head and said gleefully, “But since someone’s ahead of us, then we can’t hesitate anymore. If not, people will be disappointed.”

Everyone looked at each other and reached a mutual agreement.

Even though Kennedy was extremely reluctant, he did not dare to show it. He could only say that he agreed with this while going against his wishes.

After a while, the morning market closed.

Bang!

In the villa, Bob slammed down on the screen violently. He roared, “F*ck! Who is that person?”

“Who among you can tell me why not only did you fail to make the points go down, but you even walked right into the other party’s trap and lost a few hundred millions?”

Life at the Top Chapter 194

The entire villa was quiet.

At this moment, the stock traders wanted so badly to stop breathing.

They were scared that once they made a squeak, Bob, who was in the middle of his rage, would take out his anger on them.

Nobody dared to say a word, but everybody was disapproving of this in their hearts.

'You're the one who ordered this and you're the one who made all of the decisions. Now that you've fallen into the other party's trap, you're blaming the people who're working for you?'

Bob gasped for air loudly, staring at the market angrily and irritably. He was gritting his teeth tightly. Nobody knew what he was thinking about.

At this moment, his phone rang.

When he saw that it was from Kennedy, his face fell. However, he still decided to answer.

"What's wrong with you? I handed you the power to command them and you caused this mess! How do you expect me to explain this to Rogers?" Kennedy's dark voice sounded from the other end of the phone.

Bob could feel a demonic fire surging from his stomach, but since he was terrified of Kennedy's power and influence, he suppressed his displeasure tenaciously. He said, "The other party is too sly. I didn't expect this to happen—"

"That's enough. Stop talking!" Kennedy interrupted Bob's sentence.

"We've talked about this just now and we're on the way to the government of Harbor City. We plan to host a press conference with the government at noon.

"The four rich families will take out ten billion each. With the market rescue funds from the government and the other millionaires, we might be able to get about 100 billion for market rescue funds.

"The 100 billion will be injected into the stock market for market rescue in the afternoon. I'll come back with Rogers before the market commences in the afternoon. Be more low profile later. If you make Rogers think you're a useless piece of trash, I won't be able to save you, nor will I want to save you!"

After Bob heard that, he felt fear and trepidation in his heart. He said, "100 billion? How are we going to play this after the funds come in?"

Kennedy scoffed and said, "Quantum Fund has not made a move yet. Why do you think Rogers and his gang are staying in Harbor City? We'll just wait for them to inject the funds into the market. When that happens, we won't know for sure if they're rescuing the market or sending themselves to their deaths. Hehe."

...

During lunch, Jasper, Anna, and Henry were eating while watching the television.

Showing on the television was the live broadcast of the government's press conference.

"The four rich families in combination with the government are declaring that the economy of Harbor City is the result of every citizen in Harbor City, and they won't allow anyone to tarnish this!

"This afternoon, the four rich families, the other millionaires in Harbor City, and the government has an overall plan to raise 100 billion in funds to rescue the market!"

A series of news proved that the government had started doing something.

Henry turned his head to look at Jasper. He said, "You're pretty accurate. The government did release a statement at noon. You even got the 100 billion correct. Are you a god?"

When Henry remembered how Jasper had said the government would release a statement before lunch about rescuing the market with 100 billion in funds and how he had not believed him, Henry felt a little awkward.

“Your dad called and told me. I was just repeating what he said, so how would I be wrong?” Jasper shrugged. He did not mind Henry’s murderous gaze after he flew into a rage out of humiliation. A moment later, he stared blankly at him.

“Damn it! You’re fooling me!” Henry yelled in displeasure.

After spending some time with him, Henry could finally predict Jasper’s temper.

He looked mature and earnest, unlike anyone who was the same age as him. However, he was a pretty easy-going person and was able to take a joke.

The relationship between the two of them was much better than before. Plus, Henry was genuinely impressed with Jasper, so his sense of superiority of being the son of the number one millionaire in Harbor City had long been gone.

Life at the Top Chapter 195

As such, Henry was able to say anything he wanted and according to his wishes.

Jasper took some soup for himself and did not forget to also take some for Anna who was beside him. The latter reacted shyly to what he was doing. Jasper said to Henry, “Let me quiz you. If you were me, what should you do this afternoon?”

Henry was stumped for words. He bit his fork and fell into deep thought.

When Anna was about to say something, she saw Jasper smiling and shaking his head at her. Immediately, Anna fell quiet. She was also looking at her ignorant and incompetent brother with interest. She wanted to see what strategy he would blurt out.

“Wait and see,” Henry said probingly.

The way he observed Jasper carefully and the way he tried to guess if his answer was right or wrong was exactly as if he was a pupil in class who just got called by the teacher to answer a question.

However, what disappointed Henry was that he did not get anything from his observation.

“Continue,” Jasper ate some vegetables and said flatly.

“Because I know we have about 100 billion in the morning but we didn’t make the other party lose out too much because it was just a trap you set to make them lose a few hundred million.

“A few hundred million is just a slap in the face compared to such a large amount of funds. It’s far from being able to make him lose out too much.”

Henry felt that he had not killed his brain cells and operated his thoughts so violently after graduating from high school. He continued to stammer.

“Plus, I remember you saying yesterday that the government will rescue the market so the other party must be prepared because everything is according to their plans. So, we have to see what they’ll do after the market rescue this afternoon.”

After listening to Henry, Jasper nodded under his expectant gaze and grinned. “Not bad. Good answer.”

“Yes!” Henry snapped his finger and chortled arrogantly. His entire body was filled with complacent.

Mr. Law stated that it was truly so difficult to get a compliment from Jasper’s mouth.

Anna looked at Henry in surprise. To be honest, she did not expect Henry to have this thought.

Looking back at Jasper, Anna felt in her heart that this man was extremely magical. He could even educate an idiot like Henry, so what else could he not do?

“Hey, Anna, your brother is the one who did a good job, so why are you looking at him with such admiring eyes?” Henry said in displeasure.

“I’m impressed by him because you did a good job. Half a month ago, you didn’t even know what’s a stock market index,” Anna replied bluntly.

“...” Henry looked at Jasper in embarrassment. He was saying that he did not know whether he should say ‘f*ck you’ to her.

At this moment, Jasper’s phone rang.

It was from Zachary who just attended the press conference.

After a while, Jasper hung up the call and rubbed the space between his eyebrows.

“What’s wrong?” Anna asked in concern.

“Seems that we can’t execute Henry’s plan anymore,” Jasper said helplessly.

“What?” Henry looked over curiously.

“Your father sold me.”

Jasper looked as if he was complaining. He smiled bitterly and said, “He recommended me to host the market rescue with the fund of 100 billion. He’s asking me to rescue the market myself!”

Life at the Top Chapter 196

“You be the host?”

Henry was completely stumped for words. Even though he knew Jasper had the ability to do so, this involved the economy of Harbor City, and his father was recommending him to conduct this!

The more responsibility one had, the more honor one would get!

If Jasper successfully conducted the market rescue, then he would cause a sensation in Harbor City!

His status and position would be higher than his!

However, if Jasper failed, not only would he need to bear the infamy, he would also affect the Laws.

At the side, Anna also looked as if she was in deep thought. On one hand, she supported Jasper, but on the other, she was worried that Jasper might fail.

Of course, she wished that this man in front of her would succeed.

However, the market rescue involved too many people and if there was a slight mistake, then it would cause an incurable loss as well as huge trouble.

“A-Are you confident about this?” Anna asked in a low voice.

“Someone has to do it. The Laws have placed so much value in me so naturally, I don’t wish to embarrass you. However, I’ve never conducted this kind of quibble worth a few hundred billion before.”

Jasper's expression looked solemn. After a while, a burst of light flashed across his eyes. "However, I've said that I won't let anyone destroy Harbor City!"

...

On the other side, an office in the government of Harbor City.

"Are you guys crazy?"

A man in his 30s who looked as if he had an out-of-the-ordinary character yelled loudly. His face had turned green.

His name was Jake Cullen, and he was an exceptional stock trader and investor from Wall Street.

Inside the room, Zachary and another high-level official from the government of Harbor City who was about the same age as him were looking at him calmly.

"Two years ago, I was the stock market genius in Wall Street. Now that I'm back in Harbor City, I've never failed after hosting more than a dozen trade wars in the stock market. Aside from me, who else in Harbor City is qualified to host this market rescue?"

Jake slammed his hand down on the table angrily as he glared at the people sitting in front of him with a dark face.

"Now, you're recommending a minor nobody from Mainland to steal this mission from me? What is the meaning of this?"

The official glanced at Zachary who had no expression on his face. He later chuckled and said, "Mr. Cullen, don't be mad. Mr. Law must have his reasons to say this."

Actually, the government of Harbor City was surprised and embarrassed at Zachary's suggestion.

It was because in Harbor City, Jake was indeed the top of the top when it came to controlling the trade war in the stock market. No one had better qualifications than him.

The government had planned to entrust him to host this market rescue worth 100 billion.

However, the government had to take Zachary's suggestion into consideration as well. As such, that was why there was this scene in the office.

Zachary knew who Jake was, but his expression did not show that. On the other hand, he said slowly, "Everyone, firstly, I need to mention that this young man named Jasper is not an unknown nobody.

"He started out by depending on the stock market in Mainland. He was the mysterious retail investor who defeated the capitalist big shots in the international crude oil futures market a few months ago.

"He was also the one who purchased Gladness Entertainment Movies and caused a stir in Harbor City a few days ago.

"Plus, he was also the one who tried hard to save the market this morning."

While Zachary said that, he looked expressionlessly at Jake and the official.

"Next, this is not just my suggestion. This is also a suggestion made by my father to the higher-ups of the government."

Jake and the official still disapproved while listening to the first two statements, but when they heard that Jasper, who saved the market in the morning, was also recommended by Old Master Law, their expressions changed.

The market rescue this morning had given the citizens of Harbor City a lot of confidence. When the hearts of the citizens wandered in this kind of economic crisis, it would be hard to assemble them again.

It was because of Jasper's market rescue this morning, the government had time to release the press statement at noon to strengthen the confidence of the citizens.

It could be said that Jasper was already the hero of Harbor City with just the market rescue this morning and nothing else.

Plus, with the recommendation of Old Master Law, even the higher-ups of the government had to attach some importance to him.

Jake moved his lips. The reason he dared to slam down on Zachary's table just now was that the government officials supported him in doing the market rescue, so that was why he had the guts to be so arrogant.

Life at the Top Chapter 197

However, he did feel a little guilty now after hearing Jasper's past achievements and how Old Master Law had already taken action.

"If that's the case, then I think Mr. Law's suggestion is reasonable."

The official wiped the sweat from his forehead and thought of a compromise.

"Everyone is just trying to protect the economy of Harbor City, so there's no need to make this so tense. Why don't we let Jasper host the mission this time? However, Jake, as the representative of the government, you should go along. If Jasper can't handle it, then you can help him too."

The 100 billion market rescue plan was funded by the four rich families and the government. As such, it did not matter who was the host. The four rich families or the government would definitely ask someone to keep watch.

As this was the case, Zachary did not have any opinions on it.

“Okay, I want to see how skillful this country bumpkin from Mainland is!” Jake said with a cold chuckle.

He did not go against what the Laws wanted, however, he was genuinely looking down on this country bumpkin named Jasper.

He was just a hillbilly from Mainland, so what knowledge and experience did he have? How dare Jasper steal this chance to rescue the market from him?

Initially, he wanted to use this market rescue opportunity to better his reputation so that his business would have a bright future.

However, everything had gone down the drain now.

Jake’s heart was bleeding.

Half an hour later, Zachary went back home. The people tagging along were Jake and a few officers from the government of Harbor City.

“Jasper, this is Jake Cullen, the number one professional stock trader in Harbor City. He just came back from Wall Street. Initially, the government planned to ask him to host the rescue, but I recommended you.”

Zachary reminded Jasper indifferently. Then, he patted his shoulder and said in a low voice, “However, he’s nothing to me compared to you. You don’t have to treat him like a fellow human being.”

Jasper almost burst out laughing at Zachary’s last sentence.

“You’re Jasper?”

Jake narrowed his eyes and said with a cold chuckle.

“Mr. Cullen, hello,” Jasper nodded and said courteously.

On the other hand, Henry’s eyebrows twitched at one side. Even though he did not hear what his father said to Jasper, Jake’s expression, eyes, and tone...

...were pissing him off!

Usually, he would be the one looking down on people with the kind of despise that came from the bones because he was Young Master Law.

“Mr. Cullen, may I know which university did you graduate from? What course did you do?” Jake asked with a smirk.

Jasper answered indifferently, “Just a regular university in Mainland. I have a degree in Business Administration.”

“Hahaha...”

Jake guffawed and said, “I was a postgraduate student in an Ivy League university in the United States and I majored in Economics. After I graduated, I joined one of the Big Four companies in the United States as an investment supervisor. I’m the most well-known young stock trader on Wall Street!

“You graduated from a diploma mill in Mainland and you’re here hosting a market rescue worth 100 billion? Are all Mainlanders so shameless?”

Jasper could feel Jake targeting him, and it was obvious that he was not happy with him. However, Zachary had given him a lot of confidence just now.

At this moment, Jasper did not plan to exercise forbearance with him. The situation was urgent now, and he could not let anyone affect the market rescue!

“You don’t think I can succeed in this mission?” Jasper asked indifferently.

“Hehe, I don’t care what you’ve achieved before this, but you have to know that the 100 billion market rescue will directly affect the future of the economy in Harbor City. Not any Tom, Dick, or Harry can host this thing!”

Jake suppressed the jealousy and displeasure in his stomach, saying coldly, “I would advise you to give up voluntarily.”

Jasper sighed and turned around to call the security in Law Manor over. “Get me a few people and make this idiot sit over there quietly.”

Everyone in Law Manor from the maids to the bodyguards knew Jasper. Naturally, they would not dare to defy his orders.

As such, two beefy bodyguards walked over with malicious looks on their faces immediately.

Jake widened his eyes and backed away subconsciously. He roared, “What’s the meaning of this?! I came here representing the government of Harbor City and you have the balls to call the security to control me?”

“Shut up then!” Jasper suddenly opened his mouth and yelled, “This is serious, and there’s no time for you to be so presumptuous! I don’t care who you are. We’re doing a market rescue right now, so I won’t be fighting with you over the position of authority!”

“I don’t care which Ivy League school you graduated from and I don’t care what stock genius you are on Wall Street. If you want to be a poser, then get the hell out! If you affect my decision-making with your nonsense, you won’t be able to pay for the losses even if you sell your body!”

Life at the Top Chapter 198

Jasper's words shocked everyone into looking solemn.

No one expected Jasper, who usually appeared so cultured and refined, to look so terrifying when he got angry.

Henry almost burst out laughing at one side.

"Listen. Listen to that. What a beastly statement."

Henry only thought of one word while listening to Jasper scold Jake.

'Great!'

It was so great that it felt refreshing!

Henry wanted to laugh out loud when he saw Jake's face that looked as if he had eaten dog excrement.

Jake was stumped for words.

To him, a hillbilly from Mainland would be very gutsy if he could say a complete sentence without stammering in front of him.

However, what was going on now?

Was he being berated now?

Was he being scolded?

He felt angry and wronged as a series of emotions became intertwined in his heart. Jake's face was green, and his entire body was trembling.

He stared fixedly at Jasper, and his eyes were filled with so much bitter resentment.

However, when he saw the two bodyguards who were waiting longingly for him to explode, Jake burst out laughing suddenly.

He was laughing from anger.

"Alright, hot stuff. Okay, I won't talk. I'll see how you're going to lose later! If you cause the market rescue to fail because of your problems, then let me tell you, no one will be able to save you when that happens!"

Jake's tone was extremely cold. It was as if he was hoping for Jasper to face a crushing defeat. He wanted the Laws and the government to know that it was their biggest mistake to have chosen this hillbilly from Mainland over him!

"Are you hoping that I'll fail?" Jasper looked at Jake and asked flatly.

Jake scoffed, and there was visible disdain on his face. He said, "This is a battle of capitals of hundreds of billions. This is a capital trade war! Do you even know what you need?"

"You need structure! You need foresight and strategy! You're just a country bumpkin from Mainland, so what do you even know?"

"Do you think you know the capital trade war just because you've made a few coins from stock speculation?"

"Please take a piss and look at yourself in the reflection. I just can't bear watching the funds from the four rich families and the government being wasted by an ignorant country bumpkin like you!"

Jasper placed his hands behind his back and watched Jake coldly. He said, "What if I win?"

It was as if Jake had heard the funniest joke in the world. He pointed at the floor and said, "If you win, I'll kneel in front of you in front of the four rich families of Harbor City. I'll grovel to you and admit my mistakes. Then, I'll formally become your apprentice!"

"Same goes the other way. If you lose, you need to kneel, grovel, admit your mistakes, and apologize to me. You don't need to become my apprentice. You're not worthy!"

Jake smirked and looked at Jasper. He did not believe that Jasper would agree to these circumstances.

Even though he did not know what kind of spell Jasper had cast on the Laws to make them support him so much, so what?

Everything depended on one's ability in the finance market.

You could not do anything you want just because you have someone powerful backing you up.

"If you don't dare to do it, then hand over the authority to command. Tell the government that you're a piece of trash and you're just a country bumpkin from Mainland who's not brave enough to gamble!"

The smile on Jake's face was sinister and malicious. "Don't do something that you'll regret forever because you're impulsive. You have to think carefully. This is a trade war that is worth hundreds of billions and not the child's play of millions or tens of millions you're used to in Mainland.

"Everyone is watching the stock market in Harbor City and you want to host the market rescue this time? Are you even qualified for this?"

Life at the Top Chapter 199

When Jake was close to getting the opportunity to humiliate Jasper, he heard four unenthusiastic words.

“Alright, I’ll do it.”

Jasper’s four words caused Jake to have a million words in his head but he was unable to even utter one word.

“What did you say?” Jake narrowed his eyes and looked at Jasper.

“I’ll take this bet. If I win, you’ll kneel and formally become my apprentice. Of course, you have to kneel and grovel. It’ll depend on my mood if I want to take you as my apprentice.

“And vice versa,” Jasper said fully.

Jake laughed angrily and said, “Alright, you’re the one who said this. I’ll take this bet!

“Country bumpkin from Mainland, remember this, the worst mistake in your life is stealing this market rescue because you seek to impress people by taking on more than your ability. From this moment on, you’re going to have your reputation swept away!”

Jake smiled coldly and said, “The facts will tell you that Harbor Stocks is the one place where all the international capitals come together. On the other hand, a country bumpkin from Mainland like you will only be an ignorant and narrow-minded toad. You have no idea how big the outside world is!”

“I have no idea how big the outside world is, but there are a lot of idiots in society nowadays,” Jasper said insipidly.

Jake said sharply and unkindly, “Don’t think you’re all that because you’re quick-witted. I’ve seen a lot of people like you. They don’t have any talents and only know how to dupe people with their smart mouths, but actually, they’re just lying.

“I’ve seen more than you think you know. I can even make a name for myself in a place like Wall Street, so who do you think you are?” Jake said disdainfully.

“Not bad. You’re indeed educated so that’s why you keep saying the same old stuff. Remember what you just said so you can reminisce about them when you eat your words later. It’ll help you make clear of reality.”

After he said that, Jasper did not want to pay any more attention to this simpleton. He entered the door while talking to Zachary.

Then, the group went into the house together. Nobody paid any attention to Jake.

“Mr. Cullen, shall we go in?”

The official from the government who tagged along smiled bitterly and said.

Jake gritted his teeth while feeling aggrieved. He smirked coldly and said, “Go! Let’s go now. I want to see how he’s going to fail and how he’s going to die!

“When he fails, I want him to kneel in front of me, unable to cry!

“Those people who are supporting him now will also pay the price for being hot-headed. They will know that only I can host this rescue!”

...

Still in that secluded villa.

Bob stood at one side with an awkward and angry expression. Kennedy's face was grim, and he did not look good.

On the other side was Rogers. He lightly tapped the surface of the table with his fingertips and said coldly, "Lancaster, I think you're very stupid. It was such an obvious trap and you couldn't even see it. On the contrary, you even fell into it."

Bob's expression looked even worse.

Even though he was feeling extremely pissed, he did not try to defend himself.

He knew what everyone wanted now was results and not explanations.

The result was that he was the one who did not crash Harbor Stocks according to the initial plan, but instead, he fell into the other party's trap and caused them to lose a few hundred million of funds.

At this moment, the more he explained, the more mistakes he would make.

Kennedy scoffed. Even though he was displeased with Bob's useless performance, he still said, "Since it has already happened, there's no use explaining anymore."

"I just got the news that the Laws are going to make Jasper the host of the market rescue. Now, we can be sure that Jasper was the one behind what happened this morning."

At this moment, a Caucasian man walked in front of Rogers with a cold expression on his face. He handed him some documents.

“Jasper Laine? That young man...” Rogers lowered his head to look through the information in his hands. Suddenly, he guffawed and said, “Interesting! I didn’t expect this young man to give everyone such a huge surprise!”

Life at the Top Chapter 200

“Earlier this year, he made his first pot of gold in the futures market in Mainland. Then, he made a lot of money in the international crude oil market. I didn’t expect the mysterious retail investor that Quantum Fund contacted last time to be him as well.”

When Kennedy and Bob heard that, they were surprised.

“I guess we underestimated him last time!” Kennedy said profoundly.

“You guys got information on Jasper in such a short time?” Bob narrowed his eyes and said while suppressing the shock in his heart.

Rogers shrugged and said nonchalantly, “You have to believe in the ability of Quantum Fund. We have clients and information all over the world. As long as you can pay, I can even tell you what color underwear the top man of the United States is wearing right now.”

“I have to go to Law Manor in the afternoon. On one hand, I’m going to watch their every move, and on the other hand, I need to be prepared at any time. So, over here...” Kennedy looked at Rogers.

“You don’t have to worry,” Rogers said flatly, “My people from Quantum Fund will take over from now.”

Bob was not happy that he had been pushed aside. He asked quickly, "What about me?"

"You can watch from one side."

Kennedy sighed and made eyes at Bob secretly.

Even though he was disappointed in Bob, Kennedy could not kick him away now.

The collaboration with Quantum Fund was fine for now, but Kennedy knew more than anyone that Quantum Fund was a coyote that would swallow a person whole.

He needed to go to Law Manor, so no one would be keeping an eye on Quantum Fund. He would not be able to be at ease this way.

Bob understood what Kennedy meant and could only nod.

It was as if Rogers had no idea what they were communicating about. He said insipidly, "Initially, my team and I planned to collaborate with the government and aristocrats of Harbor City to rescue the market. This time, we've prepared 150 billion Harbor Dollars in addition to your 50 billion."

He lifted two fingers. "We have a fund of 200 billion, but the market rescue fund of Harbor City is only 100 billion. Plus, I have a team of the best traders in the world, so how can they fight with me?"

When Kennedy heard this, he got up and said, "Okay. We'll do it according to the plan. I'll go to Law Manor now. It's almost time, so I have to get there before the market commences in the afternoon."

...

Before the market commenced in the afternoon, the atmosphere in Law Manor was getting lively.

One after another, cars representing the top aristocratic families in Harbor City drove into Law Manor.

At the same time, the security had been heightened to the max. Not only did the millionaires have their own bodyguards, but the police force that was transferred here by the government was also patrolling around the place.

Before the end of the financial war, this place would be one of the safest places in Harbor City.

In the living room of Law Manor, Jasper was officially meeting the heads of the four richest families in Harbor City.

There was nothing much to say about Zachary.

The first one to greet Jasper was Clark.

“Young man, I’ve heard about you. Keith told me about you as well. You’re exceptional. I’m depending on you this time,” Clark shook Jasper’s hand and said.

Jasper nodded and said, “Don’t worry, Mr. Duvall. I’ll do my best.”

Clark laughed loudly and said, “You don’t have to bear too much burden. If the sky were to fall, us old farts will hold it for you.”

“I’m young and my body is still strong, so I don’t think you elders need to throw your caps in the ring.”

Jasper made a joke.

Clark guffawed and pointed at Jasper before he turned his head to say to Spencer and Kennedy, "Look, I told you that Zachary won't make mistakes. This young man is so interesting."

Kennedy smiled and looked at Jasper. He said, "Our hopes are on you."

Jasper replied neither obsequiously nor superciliously, "I'll try my best."

"To be honest, I was quite surprised when I knew it was you." There was a hidden meaning behind what Kennedy said and it was significant.

Jasper looked at Kennedy without saying anything.

Kennedy patted Jasper's shoulder affectionately. He grinned and said, "My son is insensible. It'll be useful for him if you taught him a lesson."

Jasper did not think much about what Kennedy said.

At this moment, perhaps he was worried that the animosity between the two of them would affect the market rescue plan, so Kennedy's words actually sounded pretty reasonable.

"Your son and I did have some beef between us, but it's between us. The present condition is more important for now."

Jasper's attitude caused Kennedy to smile in 'satisfaction'. He said, "We're looking forward to your performance."

While they were talking, Zack knocked on the door and came in. "Sir, three minutes till the market commences."

There were a lot of 'sirs' in this room.

However, everyone knew he was referring to Jasper.

Jasper nodded and extended his hand as an invitation. Then, he led the heads of the four rich families into the living room.

Clark, Zachary, Kennedy, and Spencer arrived in the living room, and the air there immediately became intense.

Even Zack and Jake, who wanted so badly for Jasper to fall flat on his face, were feeling more nervous than usual, let alone the stock traders.

After all, these four men were the heads of the four rich families of Harbor City.

It would be extremely difficult to meet even one of them on any ordinary day. Now, they were here together.

Everyone felt a sense of glory as they were in the same room as sovereign kings who were far removed from the masses and reality.

Jake suppressed the nervousness in his heart. With a scoff, he looked at Jasper who was the center of everyone's attention. He felt extremely jealous and furious.

If it was not for this country bumpkin from Mainland, the person enjoying the attention and escort from the heads of the four rich families would be him, Jake Cullen!

When he thought about this, Jake clenched his fists in anger. His eyes that were staring at Jasper were getting more and more hostile.

“Stock traders, get ready for the commencement of the market.”

Jasper did not care what the four rich families and Jake were thinking. He ordered calmly and unhurriedly.

After he said that, the stock traders under him started making preparations. A hint of solemnness and respectfulness appeared amidst the intense atmosphere in the living room.

After turning around, Jasper saw Anna handing him a pot of tea she just brewed.

Anna knew Jasper liked drinking tea and he would drink some whenever he felt like it. As such, whenever she was free, she would make a pot for Jasper.

This was the tacit understanding that had been cultivated between the two of them after spending these few days with each other.

Jasper smiled at Anna before turning around and lifting his head to look at the digital screen. Right now, it was the countdown to the commencement of the market.

At the same time in the secluded villa.

The team of stock traders had been replaced by blonde-haired Caucasians with blue eyes. As the person with the decision-making power, the man stood under the digital screen and stretched lazily.

“Brace yourselves, boys. This afternoon, I want to massacre Harbor Stocks. Tomorrow, all of the investors from around the world will know the name Quantum Fund. We’re the kings of the capitalist world!”

Life at the Top Chapter 201

When it was time, the market commenced.

In the split second after, not only the investors in Harbor City were watching Harbor Stocks, but numerous capitalists from all over the world also had their eyes on it.

Although the burst of the dot-com bubble was global, anyone with a discerning eye would be able to tell that the situation in Harbor City was more than extraordinary.

It was because someone was trying to collapse the economy in Harbor City using the crisis.

This was already a financial battle, and it was not as simple as a normal crisis after the burst of a bubble.

The moment the market commenced, numerous funds were being injected frantically into the transaction of the stock market index. The Hansel Index was fluctuating intensely in just a split second.

“Mr. Laine, the Hansel Index dropped by 11 points after the commencement of the market. Currently, the short sale of the funds that have reached a deal has reached five billion and it’s increasing continuously.

“Mr. Laine, the party that’s short-selling is offensive and violent. Now, the Hansel Index has dropped another seven points.

“Mr. Laine, two stocks in Harbor Stocks have reached their price limits.”

The atmosphere in the living room became more intense after Zack reported the situation at an extremely fast speed.

Spencer, from the four rich families, had a horrible look on his face because the two stocks that had reached their limits were the listed companies under his name.

The other party was having a demonstration!

They were attacking the stocks of the rich families!

Everyone looked at Jasper, waiting for him to give out an order.

However, Jasper was only drinking his tea. The lingering dense vapor was hanging in the air, obscuring his expression.

Spencer could not keep his cool anymore because his listed companies had been attacked to their price limits. He said, "Mr. Laine, aren't we going to do anything?"

At this moment, Jake smirked and said, "I think he's stumped from the attacks. It's just been three minutes since the commencement. The funds of the short-selling parties who are waiting for the put have been increased to seven billion. Have you never seen this kind of battle, country bumpkin?"

"Let me teach you, the market needs confidence now. Everyone knows that the government of Harbor City has a market rescue plan. You should go in immediately and clear the market of the sellers!"

While he said that, Jake chuckled coldly. "Country bumpkin, you can't handle this kind of battle. You should hand over the power to conduct and do as I say obediently."

Jake's words started to sway the opinions of everyone in the room.

Indeed, according to the normal rhythm, what Jake said would be the best way to handle this.

However, if Zachary and Clark did not speak, then nobody would dare to say anything.

Zack looked at the attacks by the sellers that were getting denser and more intense on the market. At this moment, the Hansel Index was falling continuously.

Zack did not know when the sweat started to form on his forehead. He asked carefully, "Mr. Laine, what should we do?"

At this moment, Jasper said, "Don't worry. Let's bide our time."

When Jake heard this, he chortled. "Bide our time? Is this the ability of the country bumpkin you found? He's all battered and bruised and he wants to bide the time? I'm going to die from laughter.

"Spencer, you're the head of the four rich families. You're going to lose the market value of your company because he wants to bide his time."

Jake kept smirking. His words were like venomous snakes as he frantically ridiculed Jasper.

"Get lost if you don't have the skills. Why are you inflicting suffering on other people here?"

"You're pretending to be so calm, but in reality, you've already pissed your pants from fear, right?"

"Country bumpkins are so stupid. I told you you should fight back now. Do you think you'll lose your reputation by listening to me? What a joke. Anyone knows the ability of a Mainland hillbilly like you. Stop acting like a poser here, okay?"

“Enough.”

Zachary interrupted Jake’s taunts coldly. “Can you shut your mouth? You’re so noisy!”

When Jake saw Zachary’s hostile expression, he swallowed his saliva and suppressed his anger and hatred. He scoffed with a disdainful look on his face, but he did not dare to talk back to Zachary.

Jasper had been staring fixedly at the digital monitor the entire time.

Lines and lines of information kept being refreshed. Jasper was arranging and analyzing every move of the other party in his head.

Life at the Top Chapter 202

With a woosh, the Hansel Index fell to 7,802 points. The short-selling party was vigorously attacking the defense line of 7,800 points.

At this moment, no matter the heads of the four rich families at the scene, the higher-ups who were following the changes of the stock market in the government of Harbor City, or the ordinary investors at home and at the exchange watching the market, a lot of them were curious. Why was Jasper not doing anything?

If the Hansel Index fell and broke 7,800 points by the short-selling party, it would be too late to do anything when everything tumbled down vigorously.

“Make an opening!”

Under everyone’s anticipating gazes, Jasper finally said something.

Everyone shifted their gazes over to him.

Jake chuckled coldly and looked at Jasper. He was waiting for him to make a decision.

“Make an opening at 7,800 points. Buy all of the short-selling orders in the list that’s under 100 million.”

After Zack heard that, he turned around to yell at the stock traders under him, “Did you guys hear that? Do it according to Mr. Laine’s orders!”

The stock traders had been suppressing themselves since the beginning. After they got the order, they immediately started firing away on their keyboards frantically.

In the next second, all of the short-selling orders under 100 million in Harbor Stocks were swept clean by Jasper.

The other party sold their orders and Jasper would buy them. With one in and one out, he managed to stabilize the number of transactions.

On the other hand, the Hansel Index was forcibly stopped at 7,801 points, unable to budge.

The stock price of another listed company of Spencer’s that was being attacked seemed stable now. This allowed Spencer to let out a sigh of relief.

He was feeling miserable. He did not know why the other party would target him.

At this moment, they could hear Jake’s cold laugh floating over.

“You idiot. The orders below 100 million are all just useless troops and minor characters. The true pressure comes from the main force of the other party.

You're not attacking the main force and instead, you're attacking these useless troops. I'd be insulting a pig if I say you're as stupid as a pig!"

...

At this moment inside the secluded villa.

Rogers was staring at the market.

"Oh? He's finally doing something because he can't bear this anymore, huh?"

Rogers said with a scoff after he saw the orders under 100 million being cleared out in the market.

"What should we do next?" one of his subordinates asked.

Rogers shrugged and poured himself a glass of red wine. He said, "Our opponent is just observing our tactics. Now, he has cleared out the tiny investors who wanted to make some money while hopping onto the trend. Is he trying to fight with us on 7,800 points?"

"We'll continue to wait for it to drop and short sell. Open more small orders under 100 million. If he wants to clean up the battlefield, then I'll just create more messes for him.

"What an interesting young man from Mainland. Your calmness surprises me, but..."

"Can you still find where my main force is?"

...

"I can almost tell the composition of the main force from the seller, but now, there are a lot of vermins trying to use this opportunity to make some money while Harbor Stocks is plummeting. These vermins will obscure our vision, so if we want to find the main force that's short-selling, we have to clear the battlefield," Jasper said.

Then, more than ten transactions from the seller that were under 100 billion dominated the digital screen all of a sudden.

Jake chortled. "Are you dumbfounded? Do you think you're the only one who knows how to make something unnecessarily complicated? You're so great at talking big, so find it for me now. Where's the main force hiding among these dozens of orders? Hmm?"

"These are just confusions created by the main force. Why should I find them?" Jasper said insipidly while ordering.

"Make openings. Buy and clear out all of the short-selling transactions on the market. I want them to be unable to create more confusion!"

"Then, make more openings, list out, and buy in the order of ten billion. Our target point on the Hansel Index is 7,850 points!"

Life at the Top Chapter 203

A large order of ten billion!

It was a rare sight to see no matter which stock exchange market in the world one was at.

This afternoon, investors from all around the world had their eyes on Harbor Stocks when a large order of ten billion with genuine significance appeared.

When this ten billion was injected into the market, this was undoubtedly a cardiac stimulant to the buyers who were almost exhausted of all resources.

Everyone knew that the market rescue from the government and four rich families had started to take place.

The fund of hundreds of billions was finally here!

However, the investors were not able to stay happy for long. This huge order of 10 billion was devoured in the next second like it was a provocation.

At the same time, numerous selling orders appeared at the side of the short-selling party.

The Hansel Index that just had signs of recovery dropped down to about 7,800 points again and it was fluctuating around that figure.

The main forces of the seller and buyer started an intense massacre surrounding 7,800 points without any warning.

“Buy all of the top ten stocks of Infrastructure Bank, energy and technology, and the four major sectors.

“There are 40 stocks and it’ll be a total of 40 billion if each of them is one billion. After you’re done so, I’ll authorize it.”

Jasper kept giving out orders in the living room. At this moment, the atmosphere and situation in the living room were extremely intense.

Jasper was hosting the main force of the buying side. He had already come to grips with the mysterious main force of the selling side that was hiding in the dark in close-range fighting. Transactions worth hundreds of millions were made in every minute and every second.

On the market, the retail investor had all been cleared out of the game. The ones remaining were the institutions who would ride roughshod over people normally, but now, they were shaking like leaves in the wind and did not dare to make any noise as they watched the two big shots going head to head with each other.

The stock market worked much like fantasy novels with distinct power levels.

Usually, retailers would just follow the direction of those higher up on the food chain in hopes of making a buck or two off the wisdom of the rich. Meanwhile, a collective of retail investors combined was strong enough to take down any force. There were simply too many retail investors. With such a big spread of resources, it was hard to stay united.

Those with a higher level of capital were usually called 'whales'. These large-scale retail investors were characterized by their large amounts of capital and they had the ability to influence the price of companies with small to medium market capitalizations.

Moving up another level would be the institutions. Institutions were usually led by investment banks or large investment companies. These folks controlled capitals starting from billions at the entry level, and quite a few operated in the realm of tens of billions.

All in all, institutions were considered the giant crocodiles in the stock market. Usually, they were the ones calling the shots and making the deals in the market

However, at this moment, the power of the institutions was insignificant.

It was because the true main forces of the two parties had funds reaching hundreds of billions, and they could easily affect the fluctuation of Harbor Stocks.

After the authorization, the 40 stocks Jasper chose started rising in response.

The stocks would spur the market. While the Hansel Index rose, the pressure on the short-selling party would skyrocket.

It was evident that the short-selling party had not expected Jasper to take action at this moment.

Plus, the 40 stocks Jasper chose belonged to large-scale listed companies with huge dimensions. They would need to pay a large price if they wanted to lower the prices for these.

The main force of the short-selling party hesitated for a few seconds. In the next second, a fund of 100 billion entered the market.

It was as if they were opposing each other with equal harshness. The fund of 100 billion entered those 40 stocks and was frantically crashing the market.

“Got them!”

Jasper’s eyes were lighting up like never before.

Even if they were virtually fighting this war with their opponent and they could not smell any inferno or smoke, Jasper could feel the pressure from the other party every second of the way.

They were experts.

Plus, they were top-notch experts who were skilled in stock trading with large amounts of funds.

The reason Jasper did that move back then was to force out the fund of the main force of the other party.

At this moment, with an injection of a fund of 100 billion, it seemed that the other party had seen through Jasper’s decision and was taking up the challenge.

“This tactic...” Jake exclaimed.

Life at the Top Chapter 204

“It’s the capitalists from the west! It’s definitely one of the financial big shots from the west. No ordinary person would have skills and courage like that! It’s going to be a decisive battle!”

Jake’s face had turned red from either excitement or fear. He roared at Jasper, “Hurry! The opponent’s main force has shown up. They’re going to fight a decisive battle with you in the next second. Put down your composition and make an opening right now! You have to protect the 40 stocks from just now with your life!”

Jasper did not pay attention to Jake who was screaming frantically. On the other hand, he asked Zack, “How much is the purchase price of the 40 stocks earlier?”

Zack immediately answered, “Volume’s at 40%.”

“Cancel all the remaining orders that have not reached a deal.”

When he said that, everyone in the room was shocked.

That was right. In a stock transaction, when you bought a stock with a price, you needed someone who was selling with the same price to get a successful transaction. If not, it could be canceled at any time.

However, would Jasper not be giving a helping hand to the enemy if he canceled the transactions at this crucial moment?

“Are you f*cking insane?”

After feeling shocked, Jake looked at Jasper with disdain on his face. “Do you even know the stock market? How can you cancel at this moment?”

“Is this part of your own plans and arrangements? Are you the f*cking spy that was sent here by the opponent?”

“Get lost if you don’t know anything. Stop harming yourself and the others over here. Don’t consign yourself to eternal damnation because you want to be a poser!”

At this moment, an officer from the government of Harbor City said solemnly, “Mr. Laine, I’m not doubting your decision, but I think you can give everyone a reason why you’re doing this.”

“Do you know about traps?”

Jasper said insipidly. “If we fight with them for real, even if we win, Harbor Stocks will be in ruins. So, we have to set a trap, and in this trap, we need some bait. My bait is over here.”

While he said that, Jasper lifted his hand to point at the 40 stocks on the digital screen that were plummeting frantically because of his cancellation.

When everyone was pondering about what Jasper had said, Zack raised his voice.

“The Hansel Index has fallen under 7,800 points!”

Everyone looked over with ghastly expressions. The Hansel Index on the digital screen showed 7,620 points.

A fund of 100 billion that crashed the market combined with Jasper’s cancellation was one disaster on top of another. The Hansel Index eventually fell below 7,800 points.

It was the lowest in history!

“This is my bait. Do you dare come at me at 7,600 points?” Jasper muttered.

“You’re gambling with the economy of Harbor City!” Jake yelled.

“If you do this and fail, Harbor Stocks will be in ruins. You’re insane!”

While he said that, Jake walked to the heads of the four rich families who had been silent this entire time. He pointed at Jasper and said, “He’s a lunatic. I suggest that we strip him of his authority to conduct. Let me do it! He’s from Mainland, and it’s in his bones that he won’t care about the economy of Harbor City. He’s just messing around without a plan!

“Tell him to get lost now! I’m the only one who can save the economy of Harbor City!” Jake yelled loudly.

Clark’s face was as calm as a pool of water. He turned to look at Zachary and did not say anything.

Zachary said in a deep voice, “However, if he succeeds, he’ll be able to take care of this crisis instantly. I think it’s worth it!”

Spencer shook his head and said, “I’ll listen to you guys.”

At this moment, Kennedy secretly wrote a text message on his phone without batting an eyelid and sent it out. Then, he said flatly, “Why don’t we continue observing?”

Clark nodded and said, “Since we’ve chosen him, we have to believe him.”

While he said that, Clark peered at Jake. “Please be quiet.”

Jake was extremely disappointed and furious. He pointed at Jasper and said, “You son of a b*tch, I want to watch how you’re going to die with my own eyes!

“If Harbor Stocks collapse, the economy of Harbor City will fall back a few years.

“You’re being so pretentious now but soon, you’ll become the target of scorn!

“When that time comes, you’ll only have yourself to blame because you were too arrogant and conceited!

“You’re just a country bumpkin, so you should know your place and stay in the poor valley in Mainland. Why did you come to Harbor City asking for death?”

Life at the Top Chapter 205

Inside the secluded villa, Rogers’ eyes were staring fixedly at the phone in his hand.

After he deleted the message, he lifted his head to look at the digital screen. A cold smile appeared on the corners of his lips.

“You’re Jasper, right? You’re too sly. I almost fell into your trap.”

While he said that, Rogers calmly gave his order, “Watch for a bearish and sell short. Don’t hold back.”

...

“It’s here! The short-selling party is attacking!”

Zack’s excited voice broke the contemplations of everyone in the living room.

At this moment, they could only see the 40 stocks plummeting wildly in the blink of an eye. In less than three minutes, they were almost at their price limits.

With the fund of 100 billion, not only the 40 stocks, but almost all of the remaining and surviving stocks in Harbor Stocks were plummeting wildly.

On the other hand, the Hansel Index was plunging like it had fallen down a precipice.

Oh no!

Almost everyone in Harbor City was howling in grief.

Jasper had never been so focused before.

“Make more openings!

“Build a defensive line at 7,610 points on the Hansel Index! Let them know this is our defensive line.

“Aside from the internet sector, buy all of the top ten stocks of all of the other sectors. Buy all of them with huge amounts of money!

“The authorized fund for this execution is 150 billion!”

After Jasper said that, Clark stood up suddenly. He exclaimed, “The total market rescue fund amounts to just 100 billion, so where is this 150 billion coming from?”

“I have them!” Jasper said insipidly, “Don’t worry about the funds.”

When he said that, he did not look at the conflicted expressions on Clark and the others’ faces. He continued to give out his orders.

The main forces of both sides had been fighting at close range.

This time, there was no probing. It was a direct grapple of fund injections between the two main forces.

Jasper stared straight at the Hansel Index. He watched as it got nearer to 7,600 points gradually.

At this moment, Jasper was a little nervous as well.

When the other party forced the Hansel Index down to 7,600 points, he would be able to use this trap and lure the other party here.

This trap was like a lasso. Once it got hold of the funds of the main force of the other party, they would be a pig in an impossible situation waiting to be slaughtered by Jasper.

The current situation was indeed developing according to Jasper's prediction.

7,610 points!

Jasper had deliberately put down a defensive line. After a series of tough resistance, it was still broken through.

However, the following points would be more and more challenging for the short-selling party who was waiting for a bearish to break.

It was as if Jasper's final defensive line was at 7,600 points. Once it was broken, Jasper would lose all control.

The fruit of victory was right in front of their eyes.

7,608 points!

Jasper was still resisting. He kept giving out orders based on the decisions he made. Zack and everyone in the team wanted so badly to grow four more pairs of hands to be able to operate in time.

7,605 points!

The smell of smoke in Harbor City was now extremely thick.

This trade war in the stock market was destined to be written into the textbooks of business schools, and it had already reached its true climax.

7,602 points!

The pressure had been forced to the max.

At this moment, both Jasper and the short-selling party had already thrown their whole weights behind this.

Even the heads of the four rich families could not sit still now, let alone the investors out there. They were all standing up now, and their eyes were glued on the market.

Aside from Kennedy, of course.

He was pretending to look nervous, but there was a sneer and a hint of ridicule hiding deep in his features.

He felt that this was interesting. While looking at the reactions of these people, he suddenly wanted to know what his comrades' expressions would be if they knew he was a spy and he had already leaked all of their information out.

When he thought about this, Kennedy could not help but wanted to burst out laughing.

Jasper stared heatedly at the digital screen.

Numerous pieces of information of the transactions kept refreshing on the screen.

An unprecedented and intense close-quarter fight was happening on the battlefield between the two main forces.

Everything looked normal.

He was protecting his defensive line and the opponent was inching closer to him.

However, it was as if the short-selling party did not have enough follow-up power. When the index was at 7,602 points, it would not fall no matter what.

Life at the Top Chapter 206

To other people, this looked like good news.

However, Jasper sensed something amiss.

The main force of the short-selling party must be a top-notch expert. It would be impossible for him not to know why Jasper was insisting on protecting 7,600 points. At this moment, he was getting closer and closer to victory.

The treasure was right in front of him after working so hard and it was within arm's reach, however, he was suddenly backing away now.

This move was very unusual.

To the outsiders, this meant that the main force of the short-selling part had exhausted their resources. However, Jasper had been fighting with them this whole time and he was sure they still had energy left over.

“Something’s wrong!” Jasper yelled all of a sudden.

“He’s going to run!”

“Increase the stock price now! All of them! Use the fastest speed you can to increase the Hansel Index!”

Jasper’s voice startled Zack. He instinctively carried out Jasper’s orders as if it was in his subconscious.

It was like magic. The Hansel Index skyrocketed as if someone had used a cheat code on it.

The screen was initially shrouded by a gloomy-looking green color, but after the increase of the stocks, the numbers turned from dark green to bright red.

The stock market had a rebound and was increasing!

At the same time, it was as if the short-selling party did not dare to continue the fight. They were retreating.

The Hansel Index increased from 7,602 points to 7,650 points.

7,680 points.

7,800 points.

8,000 points!

It surmounted all difficulties and there were no obstacles on the way!

“We won?”

Spencer yelled in excitement.

Not only him, but the entire Harbor City was going insane.

“We won!”

“The stock market is rising!”

“We saved it!”

Everyone was frantically celebrating the victory.

After the last transaction of the short-selling party was taken down, the Hansel Index went up to 8,500 points.

Even though there was still a long way to go to reach the top, it would all be a matter of time.

After all, Harbor Stocks plummeted because of an irresistible trend. The bubble would eventually burst if it became too big, so when that happened, not even the gods could stop it!

Jasper had saved the points, and it was equivalent to saving the economy of Harbor City. This was pretty commendable.

This battle of the two main forces finally came to an end.

The living room fell into a state of boiling merriment.

The heads of the four rich families were beaming. Even the officials from the government were high-fiving each other in celebration.

Outside of the crowd, Jake's face was white as he murmured, "How is that possible... How could they just retreat like this? He won just like that? Impossible..."

Jake looked ghastly pale, and his first thought was to run!

He felt as much panic as the arrogance he initially felt.

However, the moment he turned around, he saw the young master of the Laws, Henry, blocking the door with a grin on his face. He looked as if he was waiting for him to make a mistake so that he could beat him up authoritatively and fairly.

Jake gritted his teeth and withdrew his foot that had already stepped out. The look on his face changed irregularly, and he looked horrible.

“Congratulations! Mr. Laine, you did it!”

Kennedy came over to Jasper unbeknownst to him and said with a grin.

Jasper had no joy on his face.

It was because this entire script was completely different than the one he had in mind.

The main force of the other party had retreated at a crucial moment, causing Jasper’s initial plan to be fruitless for the greater part.

Even though they won for now, for Jasper, he knew he had lost a little to his opponent!

The other party had obviously seen through his objective.

They did not step into his trap but on the contrary, they turned around and walked away.

Jasper composed himself while facing Kennedy’s words of congratulations. He smiled lightly and said, “I just did what I should do.”

“We always have to remember that there’s always someone who’s better than us in this world, no?”

Kennedy said this significant statement.

Jasper’s eyes twinkled as he looked deeply at Kennedy. Then, he nodded and said, “Yes, but I believe the truth will come out one day!”

Life at the Top Chapter 207

Was there a mole?

This was the biggest possibility Jasper could come up with.

However, he did not eliminate the possibility that the opponent had predicted what he was about to do.

In short, it did not matter if there was a mole or not. Judging from the current situation, Jasper should enjoy the fruits of his victory.

It would be impossible for Harbor City to get through the burst of the economic bubble this time unharmed.

The global economy had been badly affected and suffered a great loss. These were the rules of economics and also the trend that Jasper was talking about, so it would be impossible to change this.

As such, as long as he was able to stop Harbor City's economy from being further destroyed, this was the biggest victory for him!

Jasper had done it.

However, it just did not reach his expectations.

Jasper got rid of these thoughts and walked in front of Jake. He only smiled and did not say anything.

Jake looked at Jasper sinisterly and frenetically. He gritted his teeth and said, "Why are you smiling at me like that?"

“Honor your promise,” said Jasper insipidly, “You said that if I win, you’ll kneel, grovel, admit your mistakes, and even become my apprentice. Did you forget that in such a short time?”

Jake laughed from anger. “You want me to kneel, grovel, and ask you to make me your apprentice? You’re dreaming!”

“The heads of the four rich families have all witnessed what you said just now. If you plan not to own up, then can you guess what your consequences will be?” Jasper said flatly.

Jake said with animosity, “Jasper, don’t go too far!”

“Am I going too far or were you too egotistical?” Jasper asked, and his eyes that were looking at Jake were emotionless.

“I never liked competing with someone verbally. I prefer to talk based on facts. Now, you’ve seen it for yourself. I won, so... you should honor your promise.”

Henry chuckled and walked over. He lifted his hand and patted Jake’s shoulder. He pressed him down, saying slovenly, “You son of a b*tch, you bet, you pay. Now, a weasel like you should kneel, grovel, and admit your mistakes before asking him to take you as his apprentice.”

After he said that, Henry said meaningfully, “If you don’t kneel, do you think you can walk out the door of Law Manor?”

After Jake heard that, his face turned white.

He knew a child of a top aristocrat like Henry would have the guts to do anything. There were also a lot of people willing to risk their lives for him.

Jake pondered for a while before bowing his head deeply. He bent his knees and knelt on the floor heavily.

“I was wrong. I’m sorry!”

Jake gritted his teeth and suppressed the anger in his heart. “Please take me as your apprentice!”

Jasper looked at him unenthusiastically and said to Henry, “Let him go and let him leave.”

“You’re not taking him as your apprentice?” Henry asked with a grin. He wanted to use this opportunity to insult him some more.

“Next time.” Jasper narrowed his eyes.

If one overlooked the rest, a person like Jake really had professional skills. He was a suitable candidate to be his subordinate to manage the properties in Harbor City after he left.

However, it was not suitable to talk about this now.

“Alright, get lost.” Henry kicked Jake. “Remember to be humble next time. Don’t go about with your nose in the air just because you have some kills.”

After he heard this, Jake got up hurriedly. He glanced at the two of them with bitter resentment in his eyes and was too embarrassed to stay here anymore. As such, he turned around and ran away.

The heads of the four rich families were very busy, especially now. After exchanging courtesies with Jasper and leaving promises of working with him in the future, they left hurriedly.

After Kennedy got out of Law Manor, he did not go to put his assets in order like the rest of the gang. On the contrary, he went back to the secluded villa.

After he stepped into the villa, he saw Rogers smiling at him while raising his wine glass.

“My number one spy is back.” Rogers joked.

Kennedy shook his hand nonchalantly and asked, “How’s our profit?”

“We can make a ton of money, of course.”

Rogers said and shrugged. “However, there’s still some disparity with what we expected. That young man, Jasper, is very skilled. The trap in the end was pretty interesting!”

“Yet you still managed to solve it, no? I saw Jasper with a horrible look on his face when I was over there,” Kennedy said with a smile.

“He’s still young and needs to pay some tuition fees after all,” said Rogers while standing up.

Life at the Top Chapter 208

”I’m also heading back to the United States to report myself in. There’s a celebration banquet awaiting me as well. All the investors were extremely satisfied with the cooperation with my fellow partners. From now onward, we’ll have opportunities to work together.

“The share that belongs to you will be transferred to your designated account within this week. For now, let’s stay low as currently, Harbor City is experiencing a massive crash in the dot-com bubble. Many potential shares are on the lower side, and it’s just the right timing to enter now.”

Rogers said as he burst into laughter.

“To be honest, I’m looking forward to the day when I cross paths with Jasper. This young man has intrigued my interest.”

After making only a few comments, Rogers led his team to leave the scene.

In the villa, only Kennedy and Bob were left there.

Kennedy tossed a cigarette to Bob and said with a complicated expression, “This bunch of foreigners has earned quite a ton.”

Bob said with a rather jealous feeling, “Their ability is overwhelming. What can we do about them?”

“However, this is also a lesson for Jasper. It should make him realize others are more capable than him and he shouldn’t be too arrogant.”

Kennedy breathed out a mouthful of smoke and said, “In the future, there will be plenty of chances to teach youngsters in Harbor City about their standings in society.”

While he was in the middle of the conversation, Kennedy received a call.

It was a call from his son, Mitch Langdon.

“What’s the matter?” Kennedy asked.

On the other end of the call, Mitch’s voice was followed by a sobbing tone.

“Dad, I’m... I’m broke!”

At that moment, Mitch’s hair and clothes were in a mess. It was as if he was a poor guy running for his life. He glanced at Zane who was on the ground and unable to move an inch. The man was not saying a word while Mitch was speaking with a shaking voice.

“I thought Harbor Stocks would still drop today, so I used up the family’s assets and put it into a short sale. I didn’t expect that b*stard, Jasper, to be chosen as the host for the market rescue fund. In the first wave, he immediately cleared off our orders.

“Currently, the prices are continuously rising. Me and Zane... have been liquidated and are bankrupt!”

Kennedy, who initially was still in a somewhat pleasant mood, immediately had a dark expression after hearing it.

“Didn’t I order you to behave yourself and stay at home without doing anything?! Who gave you the guts to make your own decision and go forth to play with stocks?!”

“Don’t you know what the current situation is? Even I’m being cautious and dare not do anything rashly. Who are you guys to be so daring?!”

Kennedy was getting more exasperated as he spoke, and he suddenly roared as he asked, “How much did you and Zane lose respectively?!”

“We’re both broke. I’ve lost billions. Zane has it far worse. He even mortgaged his house and suffered a loss of 600 million,” said Mitch with a shaky voice.

Kennedy took in a deep breath and said through his gritted teeth, “What a piece of trash who can never accomplish anything and only fails!”

“At this period, there are tons of eyes watching over the actions of affluent families like us. If this news spreads out, that my son carried out a short sale on shares and attempted to engulf the hard earn monies of those shareholders only to end up losing billions... Say, what do you think those reporters will write about it?!”

“The pride of the Langdon family, my pride, and your grandpa’s pride will all be tainted by rubbish like you!

“I’m with Bob right now. You two spoiled brats better come back home this instant!”

...

At the Laws’ household.

Jasper was calculating the rewards from this operation. He did not feel good whenever he thought of the mistake made at the end of the market rescue plan.

“After deducting the 100 billion funds to save the city, we managed to earn 98 billion from the 40 billion capital during its peak. However, in the afternoon, I used that sum of money for the market rescue plan. On the surface, we’ve won.

“However, at the very last moment, it was obviously my loss when I was having a contest with the opponent. I lost an additional 18 billion!”

Jasper was shaking his head in Zachary’s office. There was a look of dismay on his face.

“So, right now, we still have 80 billion with us, which coincidentally has been doubled. It’s just that most of the money couldn’t be taken out, all so that we can stabilize Harbor Stocks.”

Zachary tapped on Jasper’s shoulder and said, “You’ve already done the best. Don’t be too harsh on yourself. You’ll only wear yourself out.”

“I’ll take control over that sum of money. Previously, you spent five billion and gained back your capital with some profits. Later, I’ll give you ten billion. Michael is just the same as you. He took out five billion of capital. I’ll do the same and give him an additional ten billion. The remaining 60 billion, I’ll gladly accept it.”

Zachary was smiling. He sensed that this young lad, Jasper Laine, would one day be a big shot in the future!

No, it should be that he was heading to a much higher stage in the world where he would stand at a higher level!

The thought of it made Zachary glance at Jasper with an astonished gaze. He admired and respected Jasper from the bottom of his heart.

“To be honest, at the very beginning when you said you’re able to help the Law family earn back that ten billion, I was still doubting you, but now, you’ve helped the Law family earn 30 billion! You didn’t let us down, you even exceeded our expectations!”

Life at the Top Chapter 209

Jasper shook his head and said, “We both gained some benefits. Without the Law family, I wouldn’t be earning this much as well. At the end of the day, without the help from the Law family, I’m afraid that I wouldn’t even have the opportunity to show my talents as well!”

Zachary nodded his head with satisfaction when facing Jasper’s humbleness. He said with a smile, “Regardless, you’ve indeed done a huge favor for the Law family in this matter. The Law family shall always remember this.”

Jasper waved his hand and said with his expression suddenly becoming much more serious, “Uncle Law, please allow me to say something on my mind. Just keep these words in your heart after hearing this.”

Seeing that Jasper was speaking in such a manner, Zachary became all serious as well. He said, "Spit it out. I'm all ears."

"At the very last moment, I was actually planning to set up a trap for the opponent. Once he was in the trap, he would be within my control. With that, we could have gobbled up the main funds for a short sale, at least half of it!"

"I know about this. You mentioned it previously," said Zachary.

"But at the eleventh hour, we just lacked that one step. The opponent was very decisive and backed off instead. I'm suspecting that there's a spy among us."

Hearing this made Zachary's expression become extremely stern.

"We can be absolutely sure that the main force doing the short sale has its funds from the western countries. However, the investigation about who the leader is is still ongoing. You're saying that among us, there's a spy who's helping out the western countries?"

Zachary's tone was extremely serious.

Earlier, there had been lots of people in the hall. They could exclude Zack and the trading team. Since two days ago, they had been staying together under the tight surveillance of the security guards.

Even if they had the intention of leaking out information, they would not have had that opportunity to do so.

Next up were the heads of the four affluent families, along with the two officials with the government of Harbor City, and... Jake Cullen!

"Who do you think is the most suspicious?" Zachary asked.

“I’ve got no idea.” Jasper shook his head. “Actually, the conclusion that there’s a spy among us is also my own guess without any concrete proof. So as for who’s the most suspicious, currently I only have very little information to go on. I can’t say for sure.”

“Alright, I’ll conduct an investigation on this matter,” said Zachary with a dark expression.

At this point, being a spy for the funds to the western countries was no different than selling one’s own country to others.

Zachary despised people who betrayed their country for their own luxury.

“There’s something that you might need to consider.”

Zachary said to Jasper, “The financial weekly magazine that’s the biggest and most famous throughout Harbor City, Terra’s Financial Weekly, hopes to have a special interview session with you.”

Jasper waved his hand and said, ‘I’ve got lots of work to do. I might not be free.’”

It was an opportunity to integrate Gladness Entertainment Movies when Harbor Stocks were still in a recovery phase. He got to enter rapidly in those potential stocks that might rise in the future. There were tons of things awaiting for Jasper to accomplish.

“It won’t do you any harm to spare some time to go over. They can follow your schedule. Besides, you’ll still be able to gain some benefits from this weekly magazine. Regardless of what happens, Harbor City is a place that emphasizes reputation. There are many times where reputation might be more useful than benefits.”

Zachary’s thoughtful words made Jasper change his mind. “Alright then. Then please ask them to get in touch with me.”

...

In a quiet study room in a villa.

Smack!

A slap landed across Mitch's face.

Due to that slap, Mitch stumbled and took two steps back. He nearly fell hard with his bottom hitting the floor.

The burning pain on Mitch's face made him clench his fist, but he dared not retaliate or vent out his frustrations. He knew that his father, Kennedy, had a temper that was much worse than himself. Hence, he did not have the guts to speak even a word.

"You scumbag!"

Kennedy's exasperated roar exploded in Mitch's ears.

"It's one thing if you lost your mind and lost some money. But how dare you be so daring, even dragging Zane along and selling the family's assets, tossing all of it away?!"

"Do you two fools know that you guys are the sons of affluent families? If news were to spread out about you guys doing short sales and trying to earn the hard earned monies of Harbor City during the financial crisis, do you guys think that you'll be able to raise your heads high in Harbor City?"

"Even the family's business will be affected as well!"

Life at the Top Chapter 210

Zane was hiding at a corner, shaking out of fear. He dared not let out a single word under Bob's stony gaze.

He was feeling utterly aggrieved as well. Initially, he did not have the guts to do such a thing, but it was all because Mitch was overconfident. As such, he got all hyped up and both of them gathered about two billion. They then placed all the funds into the shares.

If it was just because of the two billion in funds, Kennedy would not be that exasperated. The main problem was that Mitch's actions could possibly expose him to everyone in Harbor City.

His cooperation with Quantum Fund was a top secret and should never be known to any outsiders. For safety purposes, he had not told his son about it either.

He had been cautious while working on it on the side but his son nearly got into huge trouble. The thought of it made Kennedy disgruntled.

"It's all because of Jasper!"

Mitch clenched his teeth and shouted, exasperated, "If it's not for him provoking me, I'd never have done short sales with such a big fund!"

Kennedy's expression darkened as he roared, "You've committed such a foolish mistake, yet you still want to put the blame on others? Being easily provoked by others will only mean that your composure is not sturdy enough!"

"Wait a moment!"

At that moment, Bob voiced out and said, “Mr. Langdon, it’s useless if you continue being angry. It’s better if you think of a way to fix things. Mitch, earlier you said that Jasper provoked you. What actually happened?”

Mitch and Zane both blurted the entire incident on the day they were at Victoria Harbor.

Finally, Mitch gritted his teeth and said, “Back then, Jasper should have already known that he would be hosting the market rescue plan. That’s why he intentionally provoked me and set up a plot against me. This man is utterly cruel!”

Zane was also so mad that his face had turned pale. He yelled, “Don’t ever give me the chance. If I seize that chance, I’ll be sure to make that Mainlander suffer!”

Bob and Kennedy looked into each other’s eyes, and everyone fell silent.

“Jasper...”

Kennedy softly called out that name.

“This brat is not as simple as he seems,” said Bob with a deep voice.

With a smirk, Kennedy said, “What’s there to be afraid of? As long as he’s in Harbor city and intends to run a business in Harbor City, we’ll get our chance to go against him.”

Mitch opened his mouth to say, “Dad, we can’t just let this matter slide aside.”

“Obviously not!” Kennedy’s expression darkened. “However, for these two days, you two better not show up anywhere. Don’t leave the house. I’ll arrange for someone to do their best to cover up this matter. At least there’s good news, which is that the outsiders are temporarily unaware of you guys doing short sales.”

“Let me handle this matter,” said Bob, “I’m still able to say something to the media of Harbor City.”

“Sure.” Kennedy nodded. There were some things that would not be appropriate for him to handle himself, and Bob would be just the perfect person to do this.

...

While Kennedy and his son were having a secret discussion, Jasper was already at the International Commerce Center of Harbor City.

Even though it was named a center, in fact, it was the iconic building of Harbor City.

As the tallest building in Harbor City, its outline had appeared in lots of dramas and movies made in Harbor City.

On the 118th floor at the top balcony.

An umbrella, a coffee table, and three chairs.

Jasper was sitting on the balcony, feeling the chilly breeze and the sunny weather. He had a lazy yet calm smile on his face.

Henry, who was sitting beside, yawned. He was lazily lying and sunbathing. He sneaked a peek at the troop of security guards who were lined up at a place not far away and was jealous of them.

“Right now, you’re occupying a higher place in my dad’s heart. He even said that he’s worried about your safety. He has dispatched all the elite security guards to you. I’ve never received such treatment.”

Jasper smiled and ignored that statement, saying, “Has Jake arrived yet?”

“Don’t worry. I’ve already sent someone there to get him. Even if he has the guts, he won’t be so bold to refuse to step forth!”

While he was talking, Jake, who looked famished, showed up at the entrance of the balcony. They both locked eyes. The moment Jake saw Jasper, the corners of his mouth twitched. He had a very dark expression on his face.

Life at the Top Chapter 211

The moment Jake bumped into Jasper again, he gritted his teeth. He was so eager to pounce on Jasper and feast on him!

After coming back from the Laws' household that day, Jake had been listening to people singing praises at Jasper while they mocked him.

He wondered who was the loudmouth who spread out the news of him being humiliated by Jasper in the Laws' household.

As such, he, Jake, a rich and influential person who led his life as if he was the main character in a novel, suddenly became the opposing character in a novel instead...

He would himself in the office for almost the entire day and not come out.

He knew that after this incident, he had humiliated his entire family throughout Harbor City. From then onward, no one would be willing to cooperate with him.

He, as a stock trader, had no funds to invest in himself, hence what awaited him in the future was only death.

Jake did not even consider whether to go to other countries to develop.

However, at that moment, Henry's men had found him.

Jake did not have the guts to not show up when faced with Henry's summon.

At this moment, he was looking at Jasper who was sitting on the balcony. His back was facing the sunny sky, and his casual white shirt made him look handsome under the umbrella.

Even Jake had to admit that Jasper's appearance and aura were definitely of a prestigious person.

'This guy, he's from a family that's slightly of the lower class. If only he was from an affluent family of Harbor City, perhaps he might be a very successful person.'

That was what Jake thought as he made his way to Jasper and Henry.

"Have a seat."

Jasper pointed at the only empty seat.

Jake said with a cold smile, "You called me over to continue humiliating me? You should begin right now. The winner is the king and the fallen will be the loser. I've got nothing to comment on that. However, in regards to sitting, I'll pass on that."

"Humiliate you?"

At that moment, Henry was not happy and said scornfully, "F*ck you. Who do you think you are? Do you have any idea how busy we are right now? There's a ton of stuff waiting to be settled. Who has the spare time to humiliate you? You've really overestimated yourself."

While being lectured, Jake gritted his teeth and roared, "Then why did you guys call me over here? Don't tell me we're here to be friends?"

"It's not that accurate if you say it's to be friends, but we can't say it's wrong from a different perspective," said Jasper with a soft chuckle.

Jake looked at Jasper with a hostile gaze. He realized he was no longer able to see through what was going through the mind of that person.

“Harbor City is a very important place. However, I can’t possibly stay in Harbor City forever. So, I need someone in Harbor City to help me settle some issues regarding business.”

Jasper said it without beating around the bush. He tapped on Jake and continued saying, “You’re one of the candidates.”

Jake found it hilarious yet felt exasperated at the same time. He said, “You’re not holding a grudge against me and are even thinking of putting me in a very important position? Do you think I’m some three-year-old kid who’s easily cheated?”

Jasper stood up and walked to the side of the balcony.

Jake was in doubt, hence he followed as well and stood not far away from Jasper.

At that moment, if it was not for a group of security guards glaring from a place not far away, Jake might really push Jasper down to end everything.

However, that was just a quick flash of an idea. Jake was aware that if he did that, he would be taken down before he could even make a move.

Even though he hated Jasper, the hatred he had was not to a point where he would take him down with his life.

“Harbor City is indeed a city that can spellbind others. It’s full of temptation, isn’t it?”

Jasper faced the wind and the vast sky that was hundreds of meters wide. He said those words while facing the entire Harbor City.

Life at the Top Chapter 212

Harbor City had just endured a financial crisis. Currently, its sky was so clear with sunny weather. Skyscrapers were standing tall under the dark blue sky. Each floor was shining, and there were lots of people strolling along the streets downstairs. Cars were passing by each other as well. Everything looked so lively. "Don't you wish to stand at the top of this city and enjoy its beauty from up here?" said Jasper.

Jake looked at Jasper's back view and raised his brow. He had to admit that at that moment, he was indeed being mesmerized by the beauty mentioned by Jasper.

'Standing at the peak of Harbor City? That will be an enormous honor.

'That will really make my ancestors proud of me as well!'

It was also a target that made Jake keep putting in the effort. It was just that the target was way too far and hard for him to reach. Aside from fantasizing about it, Jake dared not think further about it.

However, Jasper did not just have the guts to think about it, he even blurted it out. Besides, he was also making a move toward it.

At least at that moment, everyone in Harbor City had come to know of the name Jasper.

"There's no such thing as being enemies forever in the business world, only benefits exist. If you think that there's a miscommunication between us from earlier, and to you, it's a barrier that you can't overcome, then you may leave this instant. I give you my word that no one will stop you."

After listening to Jasper's comment, Jake's face twitched. Finally, he snorted and said, "Previously, I was the one who insulted you in the first place. Then later on, you made me kneel and grovel to you, forcing me to take you as my master. Doesn't that make things equal?"

"Equal? Maybe."

Jasper's comment made Jake's expression change for the worst. From the moment he arrived up to that point, Jasper's words and actions made Jake think that he was intending to solve the issue. However, he did not expect Jasper to say such a thing after he surrendered.

"However, to me, business is business. You have your strengths that I admire, and it's something that I need. This is the basis of our cooperation. It has nothing to do with other things. It's only up to whether or not you want to cooperate with us."

Jasper spun around. The curve on his lips at that moment was no different from a demon in Jake's vision.

He could not think it through. 'What kind of person will be able to really place their personal emotions aside when making a decision?'

Even if he previously had a very huge argument with Jasper, he should be discussing with Jasper with a calm spirit all just because he possessed an ability that Jasper needed?

'Does such a person really exist in this world?'

"For a time period, I'll be leaving Harbor City. When that happens, my investments in Harbor City will be under your supervision. You have the skills, but your temper is so bad. That's why I don't plan to give you the main authority. Without my permission, you can't make any decisions by yourself.

"I'll give you 5% of profits for your part for one year."

Jake sneered, “5%, isn’t that way too low?”

“You can choose not to agree to it. You can just turn around and leave.”

At that moment, Henry came over and stood beside Jasper. He chuckled and said, “Of course, the moment you leave, I might end up giving you lots of trouble!”

Jasper frowned and looked at Henry, saying, “Don’t frighten him.”

After saying it, Jasper’s expression became awful as he said to Jake, “This is win-win cooperation. We’re gaining benefits from each other. There won’t be any revenge if you don’t agree to it.

“Both parties cooperating on their own record is the basis to a cooperation process that will be guaranteed to be a success.”

Hearing Jasper’s comment made Jake’s expression look much better. Deep within his heart, he started having a good impression of Jasper.

After all, when compared to Henry, Jasper was so generous that he could gain the respect of others.

“5% is too little. It’s so much lower than the market price.” Jake was already inclined to give in, but he insisted on gaining more profits.

It was normal human psychology.

Jasper gradually raised his head and said, “The investments in Harbor City that I’m about to hand over to you are not less than two billion. Now, do you still think that 5% is little?”

“What?!”

Jake was shocked and looked at Jasper, horrified. He was stunned by Jasper's large sum of money.

Life at the Top Chapter 213

Since young, Jake was always surrounded by others and flattered by them. He grew up with the nickname of being a genius.

He was always the ideal kid mentioned by other parents.

Even on Wall Street, he was also considered to have become famous from a young age.

However, it was those incidents that created Jake's ego and proud character.

However, no matter what happened, no one would deny Jake's exceptionally strong working ability.

In his 20s, he was able to create fame for himself on Wall Street. Such an ability was impossible to be seen in any ordinary person.

Besides, Jake was also a bright person.

After leaving the Laws' household, even though he was very upset and suffered a lot, he took the time to calm himself. After looking back at his mistakes, he returned to witness Jasper's way of trading.

He had to admit that if he was the one who operated it, Harbor Stocks might be done for.

Jake was not willing to admit it verbally, but deep within him, he knew it crystal clear.

According to the momentum on the market, looking out for such an investment would require at least 15% of profits. Only then would it be considered as the norm.

However, that was only for those small customers with millions of investments.

‘This is two billion...’

To be honest, Jasper’s offer was considered luxurious.

Even if Jasper was not famous now, many people would still fight their way to get hold of the offer if it was extended to the public.

The thought of it made Jake grit his teeth and say, “I’ll take the offer!”

Jasper smiled and clapped Jake’s shoulder, saying, “This is what you call knowing what’s best.”

“When are we signing the agreement?”

Even though Jake had agreed to cooperate with Jasper, deep within his heart, he had completely surrendered to him. Even though his pride made him unable to step down without feeling awkward, he still forced himself to ask the question.

“I’ll get in touch with you after some time.” Jasper waved his hand.

“Sure. I’ll be waiting for your news,” said Jake, then he left the scene.

Looking at his back view, Henry elbowed Jasper. “Let’s not talk about me, but there are tons of talented people in Harbor City. Why bother looking for him?”

“Indeed, there are lots of talented people and investment management companies who can accept my task. However, in the near future, Harbor City will be operating as my second largest base. I won’t be able to rest assured if I hand it over to other companies,” said Jasper while shaking his head.

As for the details, which involved Jasper’s future and the plans for his business territory, there was no need to reveal them to Henry as he would not be able to understand it.

“Then you’ll be able to rest assured if it’s Jake? Don’t you forget that he’s a man with greed! Besides, he even has a grudge against you,” said Henry, astonished.

Regardless of what he said, those two people were considered to have suspicions toward each other. He had never heard of an enemy who would be much more trustworthy than other people.

“He’s aware of my relationship with your family, and he knows that I have good connections with the four affluent families of Harbor City, as well as the government of Harbor City. Hence, even if I’m not in Harbor City, he won’t dare do anything foolish.

“An enemy who knows how overwhelming you are will do things more cautiously compared to a stranger who knows nothing about you. The chances of them doing foolish things will be fewer as well.”

Henry heard the comment and thought about it for a long time. He then said with a sorrowful tone, “I don’t get it...”

“Aren’t you guys tired? Every day, you guys are calculating so many things. It’s as if you guys have to think through it ten times.”

“Let’s go. Let’s head home.”

Jasper stretched lazily.

Henry quickly followed happily. He was already used to being the character of Jasper's underling... He still did not find anything weird about it.

This time, Jasper did not return to the Laws' household.

Zachary was busy, and he was not able to divide his person to carry out other tasks at the same time. After the huge financial crisis that landed on Harbor City, Zachary would have to personally handle issues, be it the family's business or the issues in the government of Harbor City.

Zachary even brought Anna along to help out.

Life at the Top Chapter 214

Henry, who would only make things worse when he helped out, was cast over to Jasper without hesitation.

That was why when Jasper returned to the hotel, he immediately abandoned the idea of heading out to have fun, especially when he knew that Jasper was going to attend the interview session with Terra's Financial Weekly.

"Man, that's Terra's Financial Weekly! It holds such a great influence!

"They only interview big bosses, people like my dad. He was interviewed once. Even if that's the case, I haven't heard of such a thing as special interviews."

At the executive lounge of Mandarin Oriental Hotel, Henry was saying to Jasper with an excited look.

"Why don't you go for the interview since you're so excited about it?" said Jasper with a smile.

Henry's expression turned dark and he said angrily, "Forget it. If I'm able to attend an interview with them, my dad will laugh till he wakes up from his sleep. Knowing one's limit is the key to being a prestigious person... The key is to know one's limit."

"There's no such thing as something being impossible."

Jasper left a comment when he noticed Henry being lifeless.

According to Jasper's memories from his past life, later on in the future, Henry really got featured on a page in Terra's Financial Weekly. However, that was after he changed his ways and carried out a legit business. It was also after he married an athlete, the queen of diving.

While they were talking, three people consisting of a lady and two men rushed into the executive lounge.

The two men were carrying some supplies while the lady had delicate makeup on, looking quite stunning.

She had short hair that reached her ears and was wearing a lady's suit. She did not have heavy makeup on, which made her appearance look fresh. That lady was Leilani Carlson, one of the most famous hosts in Harbor City.

"Nice to meet you, Mr. Laine. I'm Leilani Carlson, representing Terra's Financial Weekly. I'm responsible for the interview session with you this time."

As a host who was used to dealing with lots of huge crises and had even interviewed many talented bosses from the business industry, Leilani was rather amiable and could easily leave a good impression on others.

Jasper smiled and shook hands with her, saying, "Nice to meet you. It's a pleasure."

After taking a seat, Leilani said, “We know that you’re quite busy, Mr. Laine. So, let me get straight to the point. We’re very grateful that you’re willing to spend some time and cooperate with us to sit for this interview.

“In light of the market rescue plan which you hosted, you managed to rescue the finances of Harbor Stocks and they didn’t suffer from further damages. Hence, the citizens of Harbor City are eager to know more about you. So this time, you’ll be featured on the front page of our Terra’s Financial Weekly.”

Henry, who was beside, was widening his eyes when he heard it.

Once again, he was able to sense himself being extraordinarily weak when compared to Jasper—especially when he recalled his younger days of fooling around with young models, racing cars, clubs, and going to yacht gatherings.

‘Look what others are fooling around with!

‘He hosted a rescue market plan that’s worth tens of billions!

‘He’s sitting for an interview with Terra’s Financial Weekly and is even f*cking getting featured on the front page!’

In Harbor City, the influence of Terra’s Financial Weekly was just only second to the magazine Fortune, which was famous throughout the world.

“Will you need to specially take pictures for this?” Jasper asked.

“If you have to take additional photos, then you guys can forget about it. I’m really very busy, and I have no time for makeup and taking photos.”

Jasper’s comment nearly made Henry, who was beside him, jumped to his feet.

‘F*ck you! You may not have the time, but I do!’

Leilani was stunned for a moment. A weird sensation was dwelling within her.

To be honest, Jasper was very easy-going. He did not have the ego of a young ambitious man. Even if he was rejecting something, he could make others feel his sincerity as well...

'But this is Terra's Financial Weekly!'

Even if it was a boss like Kayden, he had also given full cooperation and used one whole day for makeup and photoshoot when he was featured on the front page.

"If you're busy with work, Mr. Laine, then let's be flexible and immediately start with the interview. As for the photoshoot, we'll just seize any opportunity and take a few pictures. Later on, we'll choose a nice one and publish it," said Leilani.

"Let's start," said Jasper while nodding his head.

Leilani hesitated again and said awkwardly to Henry who was staring at a corner with an excited look, "Young Master Law, could you please move aside and have a seat while our shooting takes place? We don't want anyone else showing up beside Mr. Laine..."

Suddenly, Henry's expression turned dark. Flames of rage dwelled within him as he cursed internally.

'F*ck you!'

Life at the Top Chapter 215

Henry was so mad that his expression changed for the worst.

Since when would Young Master Law, who was all mighty in Harbor City and had a good reputation, be cast aside disdainfully by others?

‘She even thinks I’m a nuisance for being in the background?!’

“No need for that.”

Jasper suddenly spoke up and said with a smile, “Allow him in to be in the interview with me. After all, I think there are quite a number of readers who are rather curious about the identity of Young Master Law.”

Jasper’s request was one that did not comply with the standard set of rules. All this while, such a professional interview was on a one-on-one basis. When would there be a scene where two people showed up and were interviewed at the same time?

‘Plus, Henry is not on our list of to-be-interviewed as well.’

However, Leilani was not a fool. After giving it some thought, she understood that Jasper’s suggestion would work out. Henry was not some random person but the eldest young master of the Law family.

During this market rescue plan, the four affluent families of Harbor City had spared some funds, and among them, the Law family had put in lots of effort. Logically speaking, he should be allowed to stay for this interview.

The most important thing was that Leilani was able to recognize reality. If she were to reject the suggestion and did not do a perfect job, she would have to endure an earful of a lecture when she returned. Jasper would definitely not be happy as well, and she would even offend a mighty young master of Harbor City like Henry.

‘Only a fool will do such a thing!’

“Alright, then shall we officially start our interview?”

After getting all set up, Leilani started with her first question.

“Nice to meet you, Mr. Laine. You came from Mainland yet have become so famous in Harbor City. You were elected as the host for the market rescue plan. Besides, your performance truly did not let anyone down. In regards to this, do you have anything that you’d like to share with everyone?”

Jasper thought for a moment and said with a smile, “If I were to share something, I will only say that gold will shine wherever it goes.

“I’m not trying to praise myself. I’m just trying to tell everyone that it’s 99% effort, as well as a little bit of luck and a tiny bit of talent. Only by persevering one will ultimately be successful.”

Leilani’s eyes sparkled.

She had interviewed so many people before. Unless they had already memorized their lines, it was very rare for someone to perform in such a perfect manner during a spontaneous interview session.

Jasper, at that moment, regardless of his mentality or vibe, all seemed natural without an ounce of anxiety.

While they were talking, Jasper was behaving appropriately and was able to fulfill a difficult task with the least effort.

Leilani had only sensed such a vibe and charisma on those bosses who had been famous for a very long time in the business industry.

After asking a few routine questions, Leilani did not give Henry a cold shoulder and asked him, “Mr. Law, you’re good friends with Mr. Laine. So, tell me, what kind of person is he in his usual life? Is he always this elegant and easy-going?”

Henry nearly burst into laughter.

He could not comprehend the fact that Leilani was able to sense that Jasper was elegant and easy-going.

‘This brat is using his looks to cheat others again.’

Even though he was cursing frantically internally, Henry had a bright smile on his face.

“You’re saying that about him? Previously, in my eyes, he was just a Mainlander... No, actually he’s a very good person.”

Henry nearly went with the flow and revealed his relationship with Jasper. He immediately became serious when he remembered that this was a serious interview.

“In my life, my relationship with him is actually... that of a master and a student.”

Leilani’s eyes were opened wide. She did not expect to get such an answer from the mouth of Henry.

“That’s right. You’re very surprised, right? Actually, I’m also quite astonished by my conclusion.

“Well to be frank, during this period of time, I’ve learned a lot from him. At least, I realized just how childish I was last time.

“Right now... he’s the target that I’m running toward.”

Henry shrugged his shoulders. Initially, he had not planned to praise Jasper, but as he kept talking, he realized that speaking out what was in his mind was actually not an embarrassing thing to do. As that was the case, he might as well blurt out everything that was deep within him.

‘Setting my master as my target and learning from him is not an embarrassing thing.’

Leilani’s eyes were gleaming with rays of excitement. She could already predict that with just Henry’s statement, this issue of the magazine would be able to sell out till it was out of stock.

“Mr. Laine, do you think you’re a genius in the investing world?”

Under the lightings that gathered together, Jasper sat on the sofa with the most natural and comfortable posture. When facing Leilani’s question, he kept silent for a moment.

“Maybe I have a bit of talent. Actually, I didn’t have any interest in investment at the very beginning. I’m actually quite a lazy person.”

Henry glanced at Jasper as the corners of his mouth twitched.

‘It’s starting!’

‘It’s starting again!’

‘This man is starting to put on an act!’

Life at the Top Chapter 216

Henry, who was eager to curse, did not show any fluctuations in his expression. He was even looking forward to seeing what sort of performance and script Jasper would put on and say next.

Jasper's comment which was said with a tone that made him appear calm made Leilani experience a brief moment of suffocation.

"I still have some personal questions. Usually, when you're making friends, do you have any special criteria? Do you disregard identity and status, or do those who are able to mingle with you need to possess a certain amount of wealth and status?"

"I have no criteria. What matters is that I get along with them. I never look at their wealth nor status when I'm making friends because I know that usually, those who are of the same age as me will not be as rich as me!"

Henry caught the sign and grasped it on his chest. He was feeling an ache in his heart as he looked at Jasper's calm expression. Suddenly, he was feeling slightly envious of him. 'When can I be just like Jasper, able to blurt out such arrogant words carefreely?'

"Mr. Laine, you've such high expectations in your investments. I heard that your returns from your previous investment were terrifying. May I ask what's your feeling about that?"

"Well, I don't have many feelings about it. Actually, when you've earned a ton of fortune, money will become just numbers to you."

Hearing it made Henry, who was beside him, and Leilani feel a strong urge coursing through them...

Leilani forced herself to suppress the emotions within her. Her expression remained composed as she continued with the interview.

“Then, may I ask, do you have a target, Mr. Laine? Or in other words, have you ever thought that one day, you’ll be able to obtain the title of being the richest man in the country?”

“Nope. if you insist on asking for a target, well I guess I should at least be the richest man in the world?”

Leilani was speechless.

This time, it was both Leilani and Henry whose expressions turned dark again. Even Leilani, who had received very stern training, was unable to remain composed in this interview.

Even Henry wanted to purchase some cardiac medications!

‘Are... Are these even words spoken by a human?’

‘In his eyes, being the richest man in the country is not at all something to be proud of?’

Next up, Leilani followed her usual schedule and asked Jasper a few more questions before ending the interview.

After the camera was off and the interview was over, Leilani let out a breath of relief. It was as if she had completed a big project.

“Mr. Laine, you’re no doubt a more unique rich man I’ve ever interviewed. Not one of them but the only one.”

Leilani’s comment was approved by all the workers.

The interview session was completed after being struck by a few continuous sudden strikes.

Leilani and the two men left. Henry wiped off his sweat and glanced at Jasper with a weird gaze before asking weakly, “Do you have any idea how well you can act?”

Jasper said astonishingly, “But all this while, I’ve just been stating the truth.”

Henry was speechless.

Henry let out a dry laugh, and his expression was dark.

In no time, Henry started scolding while leaving the scene.

Judging from the contents of his words, he was feeling depressed and was heading over to look for his two girlfriends to comfort his soul that was injured.

On the next day at Hennessy Road of Harbor City, number 777, on the ground floor of Gladness Entertainment Movies.

Hennessy Road was considered the most crowded street where all entertainment companies were. The four big movie companies were over here, and not far away from number 777 where Gladness Entertainment Movies was located, was Elite Corporation.

At that moment, Gladness Entertainment Movies was very crowded. Even though it was a fact that the movie industry of Harbor City had declined, the company still shone brightly despite the poor financial status. At the entrance of Gladness Entertainment Movies, there were still people lingering around and it was extremely lively.

Jasper had come over today because he had made an appointment with Michael to sign the final purchasing agreement.

He was not in a hurry, but Michael was.

Michael was desperate for cash as half of the cash he had was trapped within the stocks. He had earned five billion with five billion, which allowed him to have capital with a profit of ten billion. However, he was not Jasper, and Zachary did not abuse his powers to help him out. Hence, it would take a very long time if he wanted to take out that ten billion.

That was why Michael kept remembering the 1.5 billion that Jasper would be paying to purchase Gladness Entertainment Movies.

Even though they had agreed to sign the agreement on that day, Jasper did not inform Michael in advance when he came over. He planned to have a look at Gladness Entertainment Movies' operation, whether or not it was still functioning well.

That would affect his decision on whether or not he should change the employees of the higher management after purchasing Gladness Entertainment Movies officially.

Once the ruler was changed, the underlings would be changed as well. Those who were of no use to Jasper would obviously need to step down.

“Out of the way, out of the way!”

As soon as Jasper entered the entrance of the building, he heard an impatient voice coming from behind. Following then, there was a hand stretched out, attempting to push Jasper away.

Jasper took a step back and evaded that hand.

“What the f*ck, didn't you hear me asking you to get out of the way?”

The owner of that hand was a middle-aged man with an average physique and a potbelly. Earlier, he ended up pushing the air and felt that he had lost his dignity as he looked at Jasper with a fierce gaze.

“You must be Scarlet’s fan, right? Did you happen to know that she’ll be coming here to Gladness Entertainment Movies this morning? Hence, you’ve come here earlier to wait? Hurry up and get lost!”

Life at the Top Chapter 217

Jasper calmly stared at the middle-aged man who had a big head and equally large ears.

Then, he glanced at the latter’s working pass on his neck and said faintly, “You’re an employee of Gladness Entertainment Movies?”

The middle-aged man suddenly let out a smile and said, “I’m glad you’re aware of it. Later, you’d better behave appropriately and stand aside. Don’t go causing any trouble, you hear me?”

While he was speaking, a commotion suddenly broke out at the entrance. A luxurious car came to a halt at the entrance of the company, and immediately, there was someone who went over attentively and opened the car door while serving the owner.

This scene was as if a director of a company had shown up.

Jasper calmly said to the middle-aged man who had an excited expression on his face while he tidied his suit, “In the eyes of your movie company, no matter how famous a celebrity is, they’re just a money-maker. Do you have to do things in such a grand manner?”

The middle-aged man glanced at Jasper and said scornfully, "What do you know? How is Scarlet the same as others? The son of our company's vice president, Mr. White, is courting her. She might just become the daughter-in-law to the vice president."

"A loser like yourself, who can only lick her on the screens, can just forget about it for the rest of your life."

At that moment, the door of the car flung open. The first to come down was a young man, who insisted on wearing a suit that was made specifically for him. His entire body was giving off an exquisite aura, revealing his identity as a young master to a rich family.

That man put on a smiling face and opened the car door attentively. Then, a female celebrity who was well known throughout the entire nation came out of the car.

Scarlet Yates.

Being a part of Purple Fairy had immediately pushed her up to the peak among the female celebrities of Harbor City.

She was considered the crush of most of the people in the same age group in the entire nation.

Currently, Scarlet was at the point where she was extremely famous. As soon as she got down from the car, there was a reporter frantically taking her pictures and there were lots of fans holding up her posters and pictures while shouting out her name.

If it was not for the security personnel blocking the way, perhaps the scene might be thrown into chaos.

When faced with the questions from the reporters, Scarlet smiled politely but did not answer any of them. Under the escort of the young master from the rich family from earlier, they went straight into the company.

The young man glanced at the entrance of the company, feeling disgusted. He even pouted his mouth at those reporters who were rushing in and muttered, "These reporters are way too annoying..."

As he was saying, the man glanced at the surroundings. He immediately spotted Jasper, who had long ago been standing at the side. He found Jasper to be an eyesore.

"Who is this guy?"

He pointed at Jasper and asked irritably.

The middle-aged man planned to head forth and reply but he soon got ruthlessly lectured, "Didn't I mention before that the company doesn't permit these ordinary people to enter?"

"These fans are just so disgusting. They think of all means to get in here to cause havoc!"

As he was talking, the young man lost his patience and waved his hand to Jasper as if he was getting rid of a fly. "Get lost!"

Jasper said with a stony expression, "Regardless of whether or not I'm a fan, am I causing you any trouble by just standing here and having a look?"

The young man did not expect Jasper to answer back. He snorted and said with his eyes squinted, "Judging from your slang, you must be from Mainland?"

The young man put on a disdainful expression when he commented on that as if there was a disease on Jasper that would spread to him.

“Scarlet, your fans from Mainland have chased you all the way till here,” said the man as he burst into laughter.

Scarlet could no longer tolerate it and said to Jasper, “Nice to meet you. If you’re my fan, I need to tell you that I’m currently rushing to a meeting in the company. So, right now, I don’t have much time. Why don’t I give you one of my pictures with my signature on it?”

Jasper was rather surprised to see Scarlet being so polite. She knew her manners. He said faintly, “Alright.”

In Jasper’s past life, he really did fancy Purple Fairy for some time.

Scarlet gave a sweet smile directed to Jasper. Then, she spun around and received a picture from her agent... Celebrities like her would often bump into fans when she was out of her house. Hence, she had prepared all these things in advance.

She signed the picture, then gave it to Jasper while saying, “Thank you for your support!”

After receiving the picture, Jasper was surprised that it was a picture from the drama where Scarlet was dressed up as Purple Fairy.

Life at the Top Chapter 218

“Beautiful,” Jasper said sincerely.

Scarlet smiled. She turned around and was about to walk away, but noticed the gloomy expression on the wealthy, second generation White heir’s face.” “Alright, can you go away now?”

“I came to Gladness Entertainment Movies to take care of some business. Why should I leave?” Jasper shot back.

Mack almost laughed out loud. “The f*ck, you damned country bumpkin, I’ve met a lot of sons of b*tches, but you’re the biggest one there is. You’re here at Gladness Entertainment Movies to take care of business? Do you actually know what this place is?”

“Get lost now! Or I’ll call security to throw you out!”

Jasper said coldly, “Are you an employee of this company?”

Mack gave a smug smile as he replied, “My father is the vice president of Gladness Entertainment Movies!”

“I asked—are you an employee of this company?”

Mack’s expression gradually darkened. “You’re really not going to give up until reality smacks you in the face, huh? You want to act all high and mighty in front of me even when you’re not? Alright then..”

Seeing that the situation was escalating, Scarlet hurriedly said to Mack, “Mack, why don’t we leave now?” Today’s company meeting is very important and Mr. Lane will be attending personally. Let’s not waste any more time.”

Mack eyed Jasper coldly and ground out through gritted teeth, “Count yourself lucky today, bumpkin.”

As he spoke, Mack directed his words at the middle-aged man beside him, who had broken out in a cold sweat. “This is Gladness Entertainment Movies. It’s a big company! Not every Tim, Dick, and Harry can come in here. You don’t want your job anymore, is that it? If that’s the case, I’ll just let my father know you can get out immediately!”

“No no no, rest assured Mr. White—I’ll call security immediately and chase him out.” The middle-aged man’s expression was full of panic.

With a snort, Mack eyed Jasper and sneered, “Bumpkin, Harbor City isn’t somewhere you can come and act like some pretentious prick. Remember that. Now get lost!”

With that, Mack and Scarlet left together.

With a frosty glance at Mack’s back, Jasper headed inside the building.

“Hey!” The middle-aged man exclaimed, and hurried over with two security guards to stop him.

“You were told to get lost—didn’t you hear? Are you that keen on digging your own grave?” The middle-aged man asked Jasper in flustered exasperation.

“Why are you acting like his flunky when he’s not someone from the company?” Jasper asked coldly.

With a sneer, the middle-aged man retorted, “How can a country bumpkin like you be such an idiot? His father is the vice president. The vice president—do you understand? He could crush you with just the tip of a finger. You’re already pretty lucky to have gotten an autographed photo, so go home and lap it up. Now hurry up and leave!”

As the middle-aged man was speaking, the door of the elevator opened and a capable, experienced career woman hurried out.

The moment she noticed Jasper at the door, her eyes lit up and she approached him with the utmost respect.

When the middle-aged man saw her, he was startled. In an instant, his expression altered, becoming a million times more circumspect than when he had faced Mack. He went up to her and said very cautiously, “Secretary Lee, why are you here? If you have any instructions, you only need to give us a call and we'll take care of things.

Secretary Lee ignored him. Walking over to stand directly in front of Jasper, she said deferentially, "Mr. Laine, you've already arrived. Mr. Lane is in the meeting room upstairs waiting for you to commence the signing ceremony. Would you follow me, please?"

Jasper gave the ghastly-pale middle-aged man a bland look and asked, "What is this person's position?"

Secretary Lee did not know what the middle-aged man had done to offend Jasper. Nevertheless, she replied, "He is one of the deputy reception managers."

"Have him pack up his things and leave."

After saying this, Jasper immediately headed toward the elevator.

Secretary Lee looked at the violently trembling middle-aged man, whose forehead was drenched in cold sweat. Shaking her head, she noted, "You heard him, right? Go get your salary from finance, sign the termination agreement, and leave."

The middle aged man asked indignantly, "That fellow? Who is he? Isn't he just some country bumpkin from the Mainland?"

"He's our new boss."

With a look of pity at the middle-aged man, Secretary Lee hurried to catch up with Jasper and left.

With a plop, the middle-aged man sat right down on the floor, ashen-faced...

Life at the Top Chapter 219

The building of Gladness Entertainment Movies had a total of 26 floors. Jasper took the elevator directly to Michael's office on the top floor.

"Mr. Laine, why didn't you tell me you're coming? I could've arranged for someone to welcome you in advance."

Michael laughed aloud as he stood up and walked to the door. He shook Jasper's hand.

"I came to take a look at how Gladness is and I wasn't disappointed," Jasper said meaningfully.

Michael smiled a little and thought nothing of it. He dismissed Secretary Lee with a wave of his hand.

He invited Jasper to take a seat and said, "All families have skeletons in their closets. To be honest, I've indeed neglected my business in the film industry in the past two years, which has led to some issues within the high-level and mid-level management," Michael tapped his temple lightly as he said.

"Mr. Lane, you're throwing me a mess," Jasper rubbed between his brows and said.

Michael smiled and replied, "You don't have to be so pessimistic. Most of the higher-ups are fairly diligent and conscientious, such as the current CEO, Ryder Lawrence. He was hired back from Halluvu with a large sum of money. You can use him as you wish."

"We'll talk after I get to know him," Jasper said.

“Shall we get going then? The signing ceremony is ready. All the higher-ups and top-tier celebrities who are important to the company are already there,” Michael said.

Jasper got up, nodded, and said, “Let’s go.”

The meeting room on the 25th floor of the company.

The huge meeting room was full at the moment, and everyone was whispering to one another.

The people sitting in the frontmost row were all the current top executives of Gladness Entertainment Movies. CEO Ryder Lawrence was a man in his early 40s who was wearing gold-rimmed glasses and a solemn expression.

A wealthy-looking middle-aged man came over from the side and inquired, “Mr. Lawrence, what is Mr. Lane’s plan? I’m a little puzzled that the company has been sold all of a sudden? I heard that it was sold to a Mainlander. Do you know anything about it?”

Ryder shook his head and said, “I’m not sure. Mr. White, just mind your own business. You still have to work regardless of who the company is sold to, no?”

Joseph chuckled and said yes, but in his heart, he was cursing Ryder.

‘You, Ryder Lawrence, is a CEO who can just brush his bottom and leave anytime. I’m f*cking tied to Gladness Entertainment Movies since a long time ago. Where else can I go besides here?’

Joseph’s worry echoed with the vast majority of people in Gladness Entertainment Movies.

No one knew what this new boss was like. Some of the top-tier celebrities were quite fine with this. With their fame, they were not afraid of not being able to put food on the table.

However, for the other shady mid to high-level managers, their hearts were drumming in their chests.

A little to the front from the middle of the meeting room, Mack said to Scarlet who was next to him, "Rest assured, my dad holds a veteran status within the company.

"No matter who the boss is, they'll have to count on him. When the time comes, I'll ask my dad to keep you busy, and the resources you will get will definitely be much more than what you have now."

Scarlet suppressed her annoyance and said politely, "Thank you then."

Mack smiled smugly and said, "My dad started this business with Mr. Lane. Many matters in Gladness Entertainment Movies were personally spearheaded by my dad. My dad's status is higher than anyone else's."

Suddenly, the buzzing meeting room quietened down. The side door of the meeting room opened and everyone's gazes were drawn to it.

The main character was here.

Michael was the first one to be seen but he was very polite. After entering, he turned sideways and made a gesture of invitation. A very young man with an imposing presence walked in immediately afterward.

Everyone was shocked by this man's youth upon seeing him.

Mack and Scarlet, who were sitting in their seats, had expressions that were beyond incredulous.

Especially Mack, whose eyes were widened and had his hair on end. It was as though he had seen a ghost in broad daylight.

Life at the Top Chapter 220

The person who came in was Jasper Laine, the one who was hooted and driven away by him downstairs earlier.

“Isn’t he that country bumpkin?” Mack cried out involuntarily.

At this time, Jasper had already walked toward the center of the meeting room at Michael’s invitation.

Michael would be selling the company to Jasper in the next moment, so he was tactful. Even though he was still the current chairman, he still deliberately lagged behind Jasper by half a step, highlighting Jasper’s future authority in Gladness Entertainment Movies.

After he took the microphone, Michael said to everyone who was still shocked by Jasper’s youth. “Today’s a sentimental day, but also a day worthy of joy.

“Today, the Gladness Entertainment Movies of the past will come to an end. But today is also the day where the brand-new Gladness Entertainment Movies will welcome a new life.”

Michael was very good with words. After his opening speech, he continued right away, “As the chairman of Gladness Entertainment Movies, I have one last thing to announce today.

“Gladness Entertainment Movies will be sold to Mr. Jasper Laine who’s next to me. He will lead everyone to higher glory in the future.”

Then came the signing ceremony. There was still thunderous applause regardless of what everyone below the stage thought.

After signing and exchanging documents, Jasper formally acquired 100% equity of Gladness Entertainment Movies and was automatically elected as the chairman of the board of directors and concurrent chairman.

Michael stepped down after handing the microphone to Jasper.

Jasper smiled a little as he stood on the highest spot of the meeting room, looking at the employees of Gladness Entertainment Movies beneath who looked at him with various expressions. He said, "Hello, everyone. I'd like to thank Mr. Lane for his trust. I will replace Mr. Lane and continue to push Gladness Entertainment Movies toward the peak from here on."

This was considered to be Jasper's declaration after he took the throne of Gladness Entertainment Movies.

There was another round of applause.

"However, today's meeting is an internal meeting. Is there anyone present who does not hold any position in Gladness Entertainment Movies and is not a contract artist of Gladness Entertainment Movies?"

Jasper's words distorted Mack's expression as he had already been anxious and fearful for the past few minutes.

The corners of his mouth twitched. His expression was stiff and his face was flustered.

The others also felt a little baffled by Jasper's words. Everyone gradually looked toward Mack.

In the past two years, Mack had done a lot of resentful things in the company using his father's identity. Even some female stars would bow down to him and had to please him.

Jasper's words immediately shrouded the meeting room with an extremely weird atmosphere.

At this moment, Jasper followed everyone's gaze and looked at Mack White.

Under everyone's gaze, Mack stood up with an expression of embarrassment and anger. He felt like a monkey being surrounded and watched by people in the zoo at this moment.

"This is Gladness Entertainment Movies' meeting room. You're neither an employee nor a contracted artist of Gladness Entertainment Movies, so what are you doing here?" Jasper asked dully.

At this moment, everyone understood that this would be the first cut of the newly appointed boss' knife.

Nobody knew how Mack White had offended the new boss, so much so that he was being addressed directly.

Most people looked at Mack gloatingly, wishing him bad luck.

"I..."

Mack found it difficult to speak and could not think of an appropriate reason. As such, he could only ask for help by looking over at his father, Joseph White.

Joseph frowned a little and looked at Jasper darkly, his expression slightly gloomy.

Naturally, Joseph could not bear to watch his own son be humiliated. Just as he was about to speak, he heard Jasper's voice shocking the audience through the speakers.

"Get out!"

Life at the Top Chapter 221

“Get out!”

Jasper’s voice was amplified by manyfold through the speakers.

Mack, who was already flustered with a guilty conscience, shuddered. He was so scared that he fell back into his seat under everyone’s watchful eyes.

“Pfft...”

A number of people at the scene sniggered when they saw Mack’s flustered appearance.

Joseph’s expression changed unsightly.

The mid-level managers and those artists were looking at his own son, Mack, but the higher-ups of the company kept their eyes on Joseph.

Seeing that his son had been humiliated till this point, Joseph knew that he had to speak up no matter what.

He stood up, wanting to go up the stage to Jasper’s side to speak.

However, Jasper swept his gaze over and said indifferently, “Who is the one standing up?”

Secretary Lee, who had been watching everything quietly on one side, immediately walked over and said into Jasper’s ear, “This is Joseph White, the company’s vice president... and Mack’s father.”

“Then, there’s no need for you to come over. Just stand there and speak,” Jasper said coolly.

Joseph’s expression sank. There was a hint of resentment in the depths of his eyes, but he stood at his place and said to Jasper, “Mr. Laine, he’s my son, Mack White. He actually came to apply for a job today. The company has already considered letting him take the position of a contract supervisor.”

“Who’s in charge of the Human Resources Department?” Jasper asked coolly.

Everyone present was silent. No one answered, but everyone’s gaze was on Joseph.

Joseph’s expression was extremely unsightly.

He said that Mack came here to apply for a job, but it was considered a lie. He had already planned to place his son in the company a long time ago.

It was just that in the past few years, he had run amok in the company and had made many enemies. His son had also followed his arrogance and became a spoiled brat. Many higher-ups headed by Ryder were opposed to this matter and he was still working on it.

“Vice President White is in charge of the Human Resources Department.” It was still Secretary Lee who explained matters to Jasper.

“So you, who are in charge of the Human Resources Department, plan to place your son into the company?” Jasper asked coldly.

“Although he’s my son, I appoint people based on their merit—”

Before Joseph was done speaking, he was interrupted by Jasper. “Since you intend to utilize him, has there been any public recruitment conducted in accordance with the company’s rules and regulations? Is there documentation of the recruitment process?”

“ ... ”

Joseph was speechless this time.

The formal personnel appointments in modern companies had a set of very formal procedures and processes. If the company had gone through with it, it would definitely leave evidence. However, Joseph only relied on being in charge of the Human Resources Department. How could he have gone through those procedures and processes?

Once such procedures were gone through, how could an idiot like Mack be selected?

“It seems that there isn’t any,” Jasper said coolly.

“Gladness Entertainment Movies used to be Mr. Lane’s, now it’s mine. But I don’t know when it has ever been Mr. White’s?”

Jasper’s words caused the hundreds of people present to tense their bodies.

When new officials took office, bold changes might be made on assuming office. The new boss of the entire company would inevitably alter the management.

It was just that nobody expected Jasper’s method to be so decisive and assertive.

He targeted the eldest senior, Joseph, as soon as he took over the company.

On one side, Michael looked at everything with a faint smile.

Everything about Gladness had nothing to do with him now. Therefore, from the perspective of a bystander, Michael could increasingly feel the depths and wisdom of Jasper’s actions.

Before this, Secretary Lee had told him everything that had happened downstairs.

Hence, Michael knew that Jasper seemed to want to make Mack eat a humble pie.

However, how could the truth be that simple?

Mack was but a minor character, not worthy of making a big fuss over. His aim was still Joseph, or in other words, to eradicate the higher-ups of Gladness Entertainment Movies.

Life at the Top Chapter 222

Joseph had been an executive in the company for many years and had secretly infringed on countless of the company's vested interests. His son, Mack, would not have the guts to paw at the company's artists otherwise.

It was not that Michael did not know of it, but Joseph was indeed a founding member who had followed him for many years. On the other hand, there was also the complexity of bureaucratic division within Gladness Entertainment Movies, and if he disturbed one division, the rest would also be affected. It would be big trouble for Michael to deal with it.

However, it was different now.

Jasper never had the intention to take things slow and steady. When he made a move, he would make it big. It was not only to establish his authority but also to sweep away every other background noise in the company. It would only be him who had the authority and power.

“My apologies, Mr. Laine, I...” Joseph said with a troubled expression. He had the intention of acknowledging his mistake.

“There’s no need to apologize,” Jasper interrupted him once again.

“Having been with Gladness for so many years, you still made the effort even if you didn’t gain achievements. I’ll let you keep your reputation, so do hand me your resignation letter voluntarily tomorrow.”

Jasper’s words completely changed the expression on Joseph’s face.

Every one of the higher-level management including him had thought that Jasper only wanted to display some authority after taking office.

However, he had immediately gone to the depths by taking action, and his method was intense.

Shocked and in disbelief, Joseph opened his mouth in indignation. He said, “Jasper, what is the meaning of this?”

“Was my intention not clear enough?” Jasper asked indifferently.

“I’m a founding member of this company and I manage a large number of people under me. Aren’t you afraid that the company won’t be able to run smoothly if I leave?” threatened Joseph immediately.

His gaze was bitter with resentment, yet it still held confidence and assurance.

He did not believe that Jasper would really dare go against him till the end.

Jasper looked at Joseph coolly, his eyes only showing indifference. There was no trace of concession that Joseph was expecting on his face.

“Will the earth stop on its axis just because you’re no longer here?”

Jasper said coldly, "Get lost now and I'll see who are the few rotten apples who will follow you as you leave. I will sincerely thank you for saving my time in weeding and getting rid of a few more of them."

Joseph was so angry his body shook. At the same time, there was also a feeling of despair as if the end was approaching.

"Alright! Just wait, don't celebrate so soon! This film company is not one where you can so easily manage!"

After Joseph said this with a very bitter voice, he turned around and left in embarrassment.

Nobody dared take a breath. Joseph's playing of his vice president's card had proven that Jasper was not only all bark and no bite. Who would dare object at this time?

Jasper did not even spare a glance at Joseph. His eyes fell on Mack, who was unable to even stand. He was now sitting limply in the chair. Jasper said lightly, "Do you want me to get someone to escort you out?"

Mack stood up shivering and ran away without looking back.

In the meeting room, everyone looked at Jasper and waited for him to speak after Joseph and his son had left.

"I don't care how the company was before, but now that I have acquired it, all of you will do things according to my rules.

"If you're capable, you will rise.

"If you're not, you will fall.

“Troublemakers like Joseph will be caught and fired. There will definitely be no mercy.

“I announce Gladness Entertainment Movies to be officially renamed Advent Entertainment Group.

“It will be split into three larger business groups called Advent Films, Advent TV, and Advent Agency.

“The three business groups will be in charge of film and television dramas, singing and variety shows, and overseeing the contracts of artists of Advent Entertainment Group respectively.

“In the meantime, President Ryder Lawrence will continue serving the group in his position. Other personnel arrangements will remain unchanged. An official document will be issued to notify all employees of the company of the subsequent appointment of the board of directors.”

Michael sighed softly as he looked at Jasper speaking on stage.

It seemed that Jasper had long been prepared before buying Gladness Entertainment Movies. He had been eyeing the entertainment industry.

He suddenly regretted having sold Gladness Entertainment Movies to Jasper for a capital price of 1.5 billion. Maybe Jasper could really create a giant in the film and television entertainment industry.

Life at the Top Chapter 223

“Alright, these few points are all that we’ll be discussing today.

“If anyone has a better idea, please feel free to talk to me or Mr. Ryder Lawrence.

“That’s all for today.”

It took Jasper two hours to finish this meeting. He walked away in a breezy manner, but everyone in Gladness Entertainment Movies was unsettled and had mixed emotions.

Almost everyone thought that... change was coming to Gladness Entertainment Movies.

After the meeting, Jasper then talked to Michael.

Michael was full of praise for Jasper.

Michael, the cunning old fox, could tell that Jasper would inevitably make great achievements and have the last laugh in the future—provided that he did not get trampled to death while he was still an immature youth.

It was already hard enough for anyone to mess with Jasper now.

After a series of affairs, those who wanted to give Jasper trouble would have to think twice because they would have to deal with the Laws at the same time.

Those who were incapable of doing it should just give up.

Therefore, Michael was extremely friendly with Jasper because then he might have the chance to work with him in the future and make a fortune.

What was more, the five billion Somer Dollars that Jasper had earned for him was now lying in the stock market. When Harbor City's economy recovered a little, he would then withdraw it immediately.

He owed him a great favor.

As for Jasper, he accepted Michael's goodwill fully.

It was important to exalt each other, especially in business. It was better to make more friends than enemies.

Lone wolves who walked around with their noses in the air definitely would not make it too far in the business field.

They talked and laughed and had a great time. Michael kept talking, and it was not until Secretary Lee came to make reports that he sought permission to leave.

As soon as Michael left, Ryder entered through the door.

"Hello, Mr. Laine," Ryder greeted politely.

Standing behind the desk, Jasper looked at Ryder. He was a middle-aged man in his early 40s, the type that young girls in later generations would be greatly obsessed with. He said with a smile, "Please have a seat."

When Ryder took his seat, he pondered for a moment and said, "Mr. Laine, to be honest with you, the changes happened too quickly at today's meeting. Many people, myself included, are at a loss at what to do next."

"Just act according to the company's articles of association," Jasper replied.

“Mr. Lane told me that you’re a professional manager from Hallavu, and that he had paid handsomely to hire you. You have a wealth of experience and know how to manage an entertainment company, so I can trust you.”

Ryder waved his hands and said, “With all due respect, I can’t make bricks without straw...”

“What do you need?” Jasper asked.

Ryder was startled by how straightforward Jasper was and felt so awkward that he did not know how to start.

“If you lack money, then I’ll continue to inject 300 million Somer Dollars into Advent Entertainment Group. Spend the money first and then assess the effect after spending.

“If you lack manpower, go to a headhunting company and hire talents from there.

“If you lack power, you’re the company’s president. I’m going back to Mainland soon, so I can delegate a lot of power to you. I can give you full authority.”

Jasper leaned on the executive chair and looked at Ryder with a smile.

Ryder looked at the unruffled-looking Jasper as he made those bold claims. For more than 20 years he had been in the industry, he had never met a boss like him who did things so differently.

Who would fool around like that immediately after acquiring a company?

Advent Entertainment Group seemed like nothing but a toy to him.

“Advent Entertainment Group is a crucial piece in my business landscape. I will not tolerate any mistakes, and therefore I’m eager to succeed. We don’t have much time left. I can give you what you want, but I want to see a powerful Advent Entertainment Group in the shortest time frame possible!”

Ryder looked intently at Jasper. He knew that Jasper was serious about this.

Life at the Top Chapter 224

However, the more he received, the heavier his burden would be.

Ryder knew that Jasper would not give so much power for no reason.

“What’s your condition?” Ryder asked.

“I want Advent Entertainment Group to produce five movies with box office of more than one billion Somer Dollars within two years, bring at least three phenomenon-level celebrities to fame, and double the scale of assets.”

Jasper stated his request and said with a smile, “In addition to the rights I mentioned above, you can also get 10% of the company’s stock.

“If you can accomplish it, then your net worth will grow over 100 million. If you can’t, then I can only find someone else.”

Ryder took a deep breath, stood up, and said, “I’m willing to try.”

Jasper laughed, then stood up and shook Ryder’s hand while saying, “I’m an easy-going man. I won’t interfere with the company’s day-to-day affairs.

“I focus on the results, not the process. I don’t treat my subordinates as workers, and I prefer to use cooperation to define superior-subordinate relationships. If everyone performs well, then we'll make a fortune together. If not, then I'll work with someone else."

Ryder laughed as well, saying, "To be honest with you, Mr. Lane, I did plan to resign and join a new company. I've also talked to several headhunters. But now, I think it'll be a whole new experience working with you."

Jasper laughed and said, "Let's shine together."

"Mm. Let's shine together." Ryder nodded.

After Ryder left, Jasper pondered for a very long time in the office.

Jasper did not have a candidate that was better than Ryder right now, hence he could only give it a try and employ him.

Jasper was not lying earlier either. If Ryder did a good job, then he would give him all the benefits he stated earlier. If not, then Ryder would have to pack up and leave.

Jasper was not running a charity. He acquired Gladness Entertainment Movies for 1.5 billion and injected another 300 million after that. That was 1.8 billion altogether. He must see results.

He would be able to tell whether Ryder was performing well or not in just a few months' time.

In Jasper's opinion, it would not be difficult to establish a phenomenal entertainment company when he recalled the songs, TV series, and even variety shows that would go viral in the future.

However, Jasper could not just sit around doing nothing and stay in the entertainment company doing one thing only. His goal was to be a true modern consortium, not to have a successful business.

That would be too boring and not grand enough.

Therefore, although Jasper had high demands for Ryder, he did not mind pulling up certain things from memory to let Ryder apply them in the business if he was a genuine talent.

If Ryder was not, then he would just leave him be.

Now that matters related to Advent Entertainment Group were settled, it would not be long before it was time for him to leave Harbor City.

At the thought of this, Jasper summoned Jake Cullen.

After rushing over to Gladness Entertainment Movies, Jake was stunned for a very long time after hearing the news that Jasper had acquired the company.

“Why are you daydreaming? Here’s an investment list containing the stock names and the pre-authorized amount that I want you to purchase next month.”

Jasper gave him a list that totaled up to a two-billion investment.

Some stocks in the list could already be purchased, but some had not reached the lowest price yet, hence it was necessary to wait it out.

Jasper did not have the time to wait it out, and at the same time, he did not want to purchase at a higher price and be taken advantage of. Therefore, this was where Jake came in.

“Two billion! You’re giving it to me straight away for investment? Didn’t you ask me to manage only? Aren’t you afraid that I’ll run away with the money?” Jake asked in shock, looking at the list in his hand.

“What are you thinking about? The funds will be in the Laws’ trusteeship. You can’t take a single dime away without the Laws’ authorization. They also have a copy of this list,” Jasper said.

“...” Jake gritted his teeth, wanting to slap himself in the mouth.

Did he have nothing better to do? Why did he bring contempt upon himself?

At this moment, Jasper’s phone rang.

It was a call from Zachary.

“Jasp, Old Master Law is back and wants to see you. Can you come over?”

Life at the Top Chapter 225

Jake heard the contents of the call.

His heart skipped a beat.

He knew that Jasper shared a close relationship with the Laws.

However, from the viewpoint of an ordinary person, Jake thought that Jasper was at most close to Henry and Anna. They were of the same generation, after all.

Then it was from there that he used his own ability to gain recognition from Zachary.

This was a standard procedure that was very easy to grasp.

However, Zachary was personally giving Jasper a call and told him that Old Master Law had returned.

Where Old Master Law went was not important, but the first thing he wanted to do when he came home was to meet Jasper!

This meant a lot of things.

This showed that Jasper was not only a popular figure in the Law family, but he also played a pivotal role in front of Old Master Law.

How many people in Harbor City today could meet Old Master Law as they liked?

To put it negatively, even the head of Harbor City's government needed to seek Old Master Law's approval before meeting him.

The noble and prestigious Old Master Law had an intimidating identity. He was renowned and distinguished even in Mainland.

Although he only had a nominal post, the prestige he had accumulated over the decades was enough to prove many things.

"I'll be there soon."

Now that Old Master Law had asked to see him, Jasper dared not keep him waiting.

After hanging up the call, Jasper instructed Jake on a few things.

The latter's thoughts were fully occupied by the relationship between Jasper and Old Master Law, hence he only nodded absent-mindedly.

"Why didn't you tell me that you share such a good relationship with Old Master Law?" Jake asked suddenly.

“Had you told me earlier, do you think I’d be so crazy as to act so brazenly in front of you?”

Jasper was taken aback, then said sternly, “Do I look like an ostentatious person to you?”

“...”

Jake turned around, ignoring Jasper.

He could not stand the pretentious look on his face.

It was already afternoon when Jasper arrived at the Laws’.

Zachary had gone out, while Anna and Henry were chatting with Old Master Law.

“You’re here, Jasp.”

Old Master Law raised his head and said to Jasper with a smile.

“You’re in good spirits as always,” Jasper said while walking over, making himself at home and sitting down.

Old Master Law chuckled. “A person becomes more afraid of death as they grow older. I have to take good care of my body and live a few more years.”

“You’re sure to live to a ripe old age, Old Master Law,” Jasper said cleverly.

Old Master Law laughed, took a magazine from Anna’s hand, and said, “I see you were interviewed. Good job.”

Jasper took the magazine and said in surprise, “It’s published already? That’s fast.”

It was the latest issue of Terra's Financial Weekly.

On the cover of the magazine, Jasper was seen sitting on a couch, smiling. He was clasping his hands with his chin resting on them. He was radiating with health and vigor, looking both outstanding and elegant.

The title was even more eye-catching: 'The stock market genius made every effort to save a desperate situation!'

Apart from everything else, Jasper could tell that Terra's Financial Weekly was pretty sophisticated judging from the cover photo and title alone.

Life at the Top Chapter 226

Upon flipping the cover page, the full interview contents were basically in it. There were also a few pictures printed that were taken during the interview.

Contents and pictures of professional-level magazines like this were meticulously designed, which made it very interesting to read.

The things that Jasper said were pretty novel too.

For example, the things he said about choosing friends, his goal to be the richest man in the world, and so on... Not a single thing he said was left out.

To appear on such a strict and traditional financial magazine, it was clear that Jasper's words were extremely appealing.

The most unique thing of all was that Henry was included as well. Henry's internal monologue had set Jasper off to a considerable height.

If even Henry had admitted that Jasper was outstanding and thought of him as his teacher, who would have the guts to say that Jasper was only fishing for fame and reputation?

What was more, Jasper's record was evident. Harbor City's financial crisis had just passed not long ago.

"I'm so envious..."

Henry had already read the contents, but he still said sourly.

“When you’re capable enough, you too will be the main character one day,” Anna said.

Henry snorted and said, “That will happen sooner or later!”

“Oh?” Anna looked over. “Sure, I’ll be waiting.”

Old Master Law smiled and said to Jasper, “You did really well, Jasp. Although I wasn’t around, I knew about everything that was going on. Excellent! You have once again proved me right.”

Jasper said with great sincerity, “If the Laws hadn’t helped me, things wouldn’t have moved so smoothly for me either.”

Jasper expressed those words from the bottom of his heart.

The Laws had helped him a lot since the beginning. Both parties were not so much allies because both Old Master Law and Zachary treated him as one of their own juniors.

Jasper was not an ungrateful person. He would remember their kindness and the favor they showed him.

Old Master Law said with a chuckle, “You’ve helped the Laws tremendously too. Zachary told me that you’ve helped the Laws earn 30 billion this time. That’s a huge favor you’ve done for the Laws.”

Anna’s eyes glowed when she looked at Jasper.

Henry clicked his tongue.

He knew that Jasper had helped the Laws earn a lot of money this time, but since Zachary did not say how much exactly, he did not ask either.

Henry was startled after hearing that the exact amount was 30 billion.

Even for the Laws, 30 billion was a big sum.

Jasper was able to do it without anyone knowing

“Old Master Law, I’m returning to Mainland soon, but before that, I still have a few investment projects in Harbor City. I’ll need all the help I can get from the Laws,” Jasper said.

Old Master Law said, “Take this to Zachary. Your business is the Laws’ business.”

As he said those words, Old Master Law thought for a while and glanced at Henry with a meaningful look on his face.

Henry tensed up subconsciously. No matter how prodigal he was, as soon as he was facing Old Master Law, he would turn as obedient as a puppet. He would be afraid to cause any trouble at all.

“Actually, I’m optimistic about Mainland’s development,” Old Master Law said slowly.

Jasper nodded. Among the richest in Harbor City, the Laws were indeed the first to invest in Mainland. They had invested a large sum of money as well.

Of course, Old Master Law was hoping to drive Mainland’s economy. He was not running a charity. No matter how powerful a family was, it could never drive a country’s economy on its own.

Therefore, all investments made by the Laws were still done based on interest.

A virtuous cycle was when a project could drive the local economy, make money, then use the profits to continue investing. This was what the Laws had been doing.

“Mainland’s economy will advance by leaps and bounds next, so we plan to enter earlier to make arrangements, but we need someone to coordinate. Zachary is too busy, so I plan to train Henry for a period of time by sending him to Mainland.”

As Old Master Law spoke, he did not notice Henry’s jaw dropping. He only said to Jasper gently, “This is supposedly unrealistic. Henry is ignorant and incompetent. No matter how much money I give him, it’ll all go to waste. But things are different now that you’re here.

“This was also my initial intention, and that’s to let Henry follow you and learn from you.”

Life at the Top Chapter 227

Jasper was not surprised by what Old Master Law said.

He could already have predicted this when Old Master Law sent Henry to him.

Surely, as the one and only third-generation son who had inheritance rights to the Law family, Henry was not going to keep fooling around.

In the future, Henry did learn as silver tried in a furnace.

Jasper’s appearance, however, had caused the Laws to change their initial plan.

Therefore, Jasper did not hesitate to accept Old Master Law’s request.

“Okay.”

Jasper answered straight away.

Henry was moved to tears.

“Do you believe in me so much?”

This was the first time Henry had ever felt Jasper’s kindness.

“Old Master Law, if there’s really no way around this, then ask Uncle Zachary to give birth to another son. He’s still young anyway... Or maybe you can let Anna be the heiress instead.”

No ordinary person would ever have the guts to sit in someone else’s home, especially not in front of Old Master Law, and tell them what to do.

This was an absolute taboo in every family. Outsiders had no right to comment on their family.

Jasper, however, did it ever so casually.

Not only did Old Master Law not take it to heart, but he even laughed and said, “You’ve hit the nail on the head. I’ll consider it.”

Henry erupted on the spot.

“Believe me, Grandpa. I know I was wrong now. What I’ve been doing in the past was nothing but a waste of time. I only fooled around all the time. I’ve repented and turned over a new leaf...”

When he got to this point, Henry glanced at Jasper and then said in a very serious tone, “That’s because Jasper taught me that a true man is absolutely dope! And those who only rely on their family to gain status and power are simply using their powerful connections to intimidate others.”

Old Master Law did not understand what Henry meant by dope, but he knew it was something good.

For the first time ever, Old Master Law did not lecture Henry like he always did.

Instead, he said earnestly, “Grandpa is getting older. I don’t know how much longer I can live. Once I leave, I can foresee great changes befalling the family. Young people like you need to grow up quicker.”

Both Henry and Anna put on a stony resolve. Henry said, “Grandpa, you’ll definitely live to a ripe old age.”

Anna added, “Why are you saying these things all of a sudden, Grandpa?”

Old Master Law smiled and said, “Do you think I’ll never die? Am I supposed to turn into an old fairy or something?”

As he said that, Old Master Law waved his hand and said, “I’m tired. I’m going upstairs to get some rest. Jasp, stay for dinner tonight.”

“Okay.” Jasper got up and sent Old Master Law upstairs.

Zachary also took the opportunity to have dinner at home.

At the dinner table, Zachary and Jasper talked in detail about certain projects that they were working on together.

“Real estate is the best way for the government of Harbor City to recover its economy quickly. With that being said, real estate will soon usher in great development.”

Zachary agreed with Jasper.

No matter which country or region, the real estate industry was definitely a pillar industry that could drive the economy. Although real estate in Harbor City was still in a downturn, it would soon flourish.

“My plan is to establish a real estate company in Harbor City in the future. Although market competition over here is fierce enough, I may still have a chance.”

Jasper said while smiling at Zachary, “Are you interested, Uncle Zachary?”

Zachary smiled and said, “A large part of the Law family’s properties are in real estate, so of course, I’m interested. But Jasp, are you planning to buy the property for hoarding or buy a piece of land to develop it yourself?”

Life at the Top Chapter 228

“I’m buying a piece of land to develop it,” Jasper replied resolutely.

He had memories about the future and knew areas where housing prices would rise dramatically, so naturally, he would not do tacky things like being a middleman.

“You need a large capital to enter Harbor City’s real estate industry,” Zachary said.

Jasper nodded even though his total wealth had already reached ten billion.

Of the ten billion, two billion would be left in the Harbor City’s stock market to make money.

1.8 billion had been invested in Advent Entertainment Group.

There was only 6.2 billion cash left in his hands.

Though it seemed like an awful lot, it was still not enough to enter the real estate industry.

“Let’s wait until Harbor City’s stocks recover.” Jasper chuckled lightly, sounding extremely confident.

Jasper needed the Laws’ help to watch over the two billion investment funds that Jasper gave to Jake. Zachary was aware of this.

“With your ability, I’m sure you can make a fortune out of the two billion. But how much can you make in the short run? In my opinion, Harbor City’s real estate will launch early next year,” Zachary asked curiously.

“It’s enough. When the time comes, the two billion will triple,” Jasper said lightly.

Everyone at the table was startled.

There were only two months left before the end of the year and at least four months to the beginning of next year.

300% profit in four months?

Henry looked at Jasper and thought how he was constantly deepening his understanding toward pomposity.

There was no limit to this person’s pomposity!

...When would he ever get to this stage?

Had those words not come out of Jasper's very mouth, others would have regarded him as a fool by now.

"Sure, I'll order someone to invest according to your list." Zachary laughed.

"Let's make a fortune together. When the Laws' capital comes in, we can then make advance stock speculations. It's a good thing," Jasper said with a smile.

...

The Langdons'.

With a bang, a magazine was thrown far away. Mitch stared at Terra's Financial Weekly on the ground with gloomy eyes and raged, "Are these editors crazy? How can a man like that go on a cover!?"

Bob sat on the couch and said lightly, "Don't get so angry, Mitch. I'm not surprised to see him on Terra's Financial Weekly after what he has done."

"The things he said are really novel, eh?" Kennedy said.

Mitch sneered. "He's only making those bold and arrogant claims to attract attention. I can't believe those rubbish media are actually currying favor with him! Does he really think he's now Harbor City's king?"

"Mitch," Kennedy looked at Mitch and said faintly, "If you can't bring yourself to recognize your opponent's strength, then you will forever remain at the bottom of the ladder."

Mitch's expression darkened as he gritted his teeth. "I can't stand his arrogant face."

Bob glanced at both father and son before saying meaningfully, "He has officially acquired Gladness Entertainment Movies, renamed it Advent Entertainment Group, and divided it into three major business groups. He seems ambitious and wealthy.”

Mitch sneered. “He’s only trying to court people’s favor with his nonsense. Does he really think he’s capable enough to enter the entertainment industry?”

“Well, after taking a look at his plan, I can say that you’re right. Today, he fired Joseph White, a veteran who previously worked for Michael. Joseph came to me to ask for a job,” Bob mused.

Kennedy raised his eyebrows slightly. “A veteran? He must be really familiar with Gladness then?”

“At least this saboteur will create enough trouble for him,” Bob chuckled and said viciously, “Since he has invested heavily in the entertainment industry, we will then knock him down and suppress his arrogance.”

Mitch said excitedly, “That’s right! We can’t allow him to keep being so arrogant! Who does he think he is? He’s just a country boy acting absurdly in Harbor City. We must teach him a lesson.”

Life at the Top Chapter 229

“What are you planning to do?”

Kennedy looked at Bob.

There was a sinister smile on Bob’s face when he said, “What else?”

“Jasper has spent more than a billion to buy Gladness and renamed it Advent Entertainment Group. It’s obvious that he needs to spend a lot of effort doing this.

“It’s not easy to succeed in one thing, but it’s extremely easy to destroy it.

“I intend to start with Joseph White. He was in Gladness for many years and knows many secrets and scandals. We’ll ask him to reveal some of it after some time. I call this controlling public opinion.

“I’ll then ask him to poach several top-notch celebrities from Gladness. I call this pulling the carpet from underneath.”

As he said that, Bob chuckled and said, “Once these are all done, we will contact Emperor Entertainment. They won’t want to see a big entertainment company backed by the Laws rise to popularity. They’re more anxious than us. How do you think Gladness is supposed to stay in business if all the industries are against them?”

The more Mitch listened, the brighter his eyes glowed. Bob did not sleep with so many female celebrities for so many years for nothing.

At least he was clearer than anyone about the entertainment industry’s rules.

“I’ll take care of this.” Mitch offered.

“I want to trample Jasper to the ground myself!” Mitch’s expression was grim, and his eyes were exceedingly sinister.

Kennedy mused on how Jasper was almost turning into a demon residing in his son’s heart. If this issue was not resolved, his son probably would not be able to get over it.

At the thought of this, Kennedy nodded and said, “Okay, I’ll leave this to you. We’ll give you a portion of our family’s resources to support you. Also, discuss this with Uncle Bob. He’s more experienced than you and can point you in the right direction.”

Mitch nodded and said excitedly, "Got it. I'll come to you for help if I need any pointers, Uncle Bob."

Bob laughed. "Sure. But it's best that we start this plan a little later. We will easily alert our enemy if we act now."

"I understand."

Mitch gritted his teeth and stared viciously at the magazine he had tossed to the ground, saying, "I'll let him have fun for a few more days first."

Bob's eyes flashed with a deep, meaningful smile. "Before Harbor City stabilizes, it's best that you stay put. Don't cause a stir. We'll defeat Jasper sooner or later!"

"Yes!"

Mitch nodded. Although he was eager to end Jasper now, Jasper was simply too reputable at the moment. With the Laws as his backer, it was impossible to get rid of him alone.

He could only wait for the perfect opportunity!

...

On the other side, Jasper was done packing up his luggage and was ready to leave Harbor City.

Many things in Mainland had been put aside because he was in Harbor City for so long. Now that everything here had been dealt with, it was time for him to hurry back.

Mainland's industry was Jasper's top priority after all.

After his farewell this time, it would probably be a very long time before he would return to Harbor City again.

Henry and Anna came to see him off at the airport. They had spent a considerable amount of time together during this period of time and had naturally formed a much stronger bond now.

Henry was completely awake by now. What started as a dislike for Jasper in the beginning had turned into admiration today. Jasper had become his role model.

Anna had witnessed everything that Jasper did with her own eyes. An outstanding man like him had sparked the fondness in the depths of her heart.

When they were bidding farewell at the airport, Henry said to Jasper casually, "Let's both be pompous together the next time I go to Mainland to visit you."

"I'm not really good at being pompous, to be honest," Jasper said sincerely.

"Look, you're being pompous again."

Henry twitched his lips. He was already used to Jasper's unexpected pomposity.

On a side note, their relationship was different than before. They were so close that they could joke around with each other at any time.

Jasper looked at Anna who remained silent the whole time and chuckled. "I'm leaving now, Anna. I'll come and visit you in Harbor City next time, or maybe when you visit Mainland. I'll definitely take good care of you."

"Okay, it's a deal!" Anna nodded, her eyes flashing with a hint of obscurity. She muttered under her breath, "Have a safe journey."

"Thank you."

Having said that, Jasper turned to leave.

He had just lifted his suitcase when a fragrant breeze whizzed past him. The soft and graceful woman was embracing Jasper from behind.

Jasper was taken aback. When he turned around, he was surprised to see that it was Anna hugging him!

He did not expect Anna to be so bold!

One must know that this was Harbor City Airport and she was the Laws' daughter. If anyone saw this, then this would surely make it to the media headlines tomorrow!

“Don't move, don't talk, don't turn around!”

Anna sounded really anxious. It was as if she was afraid that Jasper would turn around and see what she looked like at the moment.

“I'll let go after hugging you for a little while,” Anna said.

“I might not have the same courage again next time.”

Jasper could hear her trembling voice and smiled bitterly. “Why are you doing this? You're acting like death is separating us. I'm going back to Mainland, not to die...”

Her slender and dexterous fingers pinched his belly gently. The charming lady was annoyed. How inappropriate were the things he was saying at this moment!

“Uh...”

Standing next to them was a completely dumbfounded Henry. His first reaction was to stop the man and woman who were bursting with hormones as quickly as he could.

Anna's identity aside, even Jasper was Harbor City's celebrity right now. These two! This pose! If a paparazzi captured a picture of this scene, even their children's names would appear at the celebrity gossip corner tomorrow.

"Gosh, Sis, can you please behave yourself? What happened to being demure?!"

Henry said in a panic, and at the same time, he was sweeping his gaze around the place for fear of being noticed.

Anna ignored him and continued burying her face in Jasper's back. She said in a slightly trembling voice, "I know you have a girlfriend, but... I have the right to pursue my own happiness too."

"Yes." Jasper nodded, a wry smile emerging on his face.

"Ask her to prepare herself."

Jasper, "..."

Henry yelled, "Ah!"

Anna did not continue and let go of her hands.

"You should probably go through the airport security now," Anna said.

Jasper gave a chuckle and strode off.

He did not turn back at all.

As such, he did not see the blush on Anna's beautiful face either.

The maiden's tender bashfulness had vanquished every other maiden out there...

Life at the Top Chapter 230

It was not until Jasper was completely gone that Henry stared at Anna with an extremely strange gaze.

"Let's go."

Anna immediately restored her ever unruffled expression.

"You'd better train and study hard. Try your best to get Dad and Grandpa's consent to go to Mainland as soon as possible," Anna lectured him.

His sister's conflicting attitude threw Henry off balance completely.

Why!?

Why was she so gentle in front of Jasper but pulled a long face in front of him, acting like his big sister instead?

"Why do you care when I go to Mainland? Grandpa asked me to go, not you." Henry sulked.

"I want to go with you!" Anna said resolutely.

Henry stared at Anna and understood what she meant immediately. He said in surprise, "Sis, you clearly know that he has a girlfriend and yet you insist on putting yourself down to be with him?! Have you forgotten who you are? You're the Laws' precious daughter!"

Anna looked at Henry and suddenly chuckled, saying, "Do you think I look good?"

Henry turned away with a disgusted expression. "No matter how good you look, I'll still get sick after having looked at your face for 20 years..."

After saying those words, Henry saw the change in Anna's expression and quickly corrected himself. "Don't look at me with those murderous eyes... You look beautiful, okay!"

"So why can't I fight for my relationship? We're not married yet, so we're all free to choose our partners," Anna said indignantly.

Henry was amused and shook his head helplessly. "This is my first time seeing someone using such high-sounding words to intervene in other people's relationships."

"You impregnated a trust fund baby's fiancée the first year you came back from abroad. If it weren't for me, this incident would have reached Dad's ears. Don't you feel embarrassed at all to say that to me?"

"...How are we the same!? I'm not going to lose anything, but you! You're a girl!"

"You're shameless!"

...

On the plane. Jasper bought a first-class ticket.

It was the same flight yet it was three times more expensive.

Jasper knew how to enjoy life. He was not a miser who would make a lot of money and then refrain from using it.

It had never been his intention to be frugal. Take the local Warwick Company's CEO for example. In the future, his company became a multinational giant, but when he went out, he still took a second-class seat on the high-speed rail and an economy seat on a plane.

Jasper expressed his admiration for the older generation's diligent and thrifty spirit, but no thanks.

Had this not been the crucial time for him to put every single penny he had to good use, Jasper would have even bought a private jet.

If a man did not spend the money he earned, then that man would be no different than a dead man.

Jasper had just taken his seat when he caught a whiff of fragrance in the air whizzing toward him. Two women walked over and sat not far away from him.

"Queenie Shaw?"

Jasper was a little surprised. He did not expect himself to bump into a Harbor City celebrity—one whom he had encountered before too!

"Oh, Queenie, Your Majesty, we're just adding a last-minute event, that's all. Those Mainlanders are foolish people who have too much money to spare. You'll earn 500,000 bucks just standing there for a few minutes and saying a few words. Why wouldn't you want to go?"

Standing beside Queenie was a woman who looked like her agent and was painstakingly persuading her, saying, "You must attend this event no matter what! Otherwise, the money will go down the drain!"

The other party obviously had not noticed Jasper.

Jasper did not plan to go up and say hello either.

If this happened when he had just been reborn, he would at least feel a bit more excited.

As Jasper's wealth and status had improved, his mentality changed as well.

Right now, Jasper was certainly not interested in idolizing a star. This was not something he would do in the past life, let alone now.

As far as his current status was concerned, only celebrities would come to him to curry favor with him.

Therefore, Jasper looked down at the magazines prepared for him on the plane. It just so happened that Terra's Financial Weekly was there...

"Don't say anymore, Liliana. I really don't want to go. I'm going to Mainland to film a movie this time, so I'm not going to the additional event you scheduled for me," Queenie said helplessly.

When Liliana saw how resolute Queenie was, her expression grew sullen as well.

The sponsorship from Mainland hoped that Queenie would attend their event, and in order to get this to work, Liliana had taken the other party's money.

If Queenie refused to go, not only did she need to return the money she received, but she would also be greatly humiliated.

"You must go to this event, Queenie. You don't have a choice! It's so easy to earn Mainlanders' money, and if you don't go, then you're not showing due respect for my feelings."

Queenie frowned at Liliana's words.

Jasper was frowning too.

Jasper did not want to be nosy at first, but since Queenie was his company's artist, how could he just let her agent bully her like that?

Besides, her agent was plain condescending!

"What's the matter with Mainlanders? If you look down on Mainlanders so much, why are you going there to make money then?" Jasper said lightly.

Liliana turned her head to look at Jasper, then frowned and said, "I'm not talking about you. What are you barking at?"

"I'm a Mainlander. You said that Mainlanders are fools but I'm not allowed to comment on that?" Jasper said lightly.

Liliana snorted when she heard what he said. "You're from Mainland too? I'm not wrong then. You Mainlanders live in poor and remote places, and all the nouveau riche are fools who are too easy to trick, no?"

At this moment, Queenie looked over after hearing his voice and her expression changed drastically!

Liliana might not know who Jasper was, but Queenie had met Jasper at a charity dinner. Plus, Gladness had been acquired by Jasper and was renamed to Advent Entertainment Group, so Jasper was now her boss!

As soon as Queenie recognized Jasper, her complexion paled. She wanted to cry out subconsciously.

Jasper motioned to her with his eyes, hinting at her not to say anything.

Queenie clammed up silently, glanced at the lofty and self-conceited Liliana, and gloated a little inside.

In Harbor City, there were many agents who assumed great airs—even more than the celebrities themselves. It was just because they thought they were really experienced.

Liliana was one of those people.

She had, on many occasions, tried to squeeze as much income from her reputation as possible.

Take this event for example.

Queenie was aware of Liliana's underhand dealings with those investors but was powerless to do anything about it. She had signed a contract with Liliana, so she could not do anything even when Liliana invested outside without the company knowing.

Things were different now. Liliana had shot herself in the foot. This was going to be her unlucky day!

"You need to be responsible for your words and deeds," Jasper said to Liliana.

Life at the Top Chapter 231

Liliana snorted and said, “Oh, don’t be so full of yourself. Who do you think you are?”

As she said that, Liliana glanced at the magazine in Jasper’s hands and sneered disdainfully, “Look at you, reading Terra’s Financial Weekly like the rest of us. Only figures in Harbor City and big shots in the business world are featured on it. All a Mainlander like you can do is watch.”

“Liliana, you really need to get your eyes checked,” Queenie said with a sigh.

Liliana frowned upon hearing this and said coldly, “What do you mean?”

Queenie pulled out a copy of Terra’s Financial Weekly that was in front of her seat and tossed it to Liliana. “Look carefully at the man on the cover.”

Liliana looked over and noticed how the man on the cover resembled the Mainlander in front of her...

No, not just ‘resembled’ but it was the same person!

Liliana was taken aback abruptly, then turned her head in horror to look at Jasper. She then confirmed over and over again before realizing that they were indeed the same man.

“Who... Who are you?!” Liliana exclaimed.

“Queenie is an artist under Advent Entertainment Group and you’re her agent. Now that the group has been restructured, you should only do what you’re required to do as an agent, no?” Jasper said lightly.

“You’re now fired.”

In an instant, Liliana felt as though she had been struck by thunder and lightning. She looked at Jasper with a pale face, opened her mouth, and stammered, “You’re... You’re... Mr. Laine?!”

Queenie stood up, glanced at Liliana with an exceedingly indifferent expression, and said mildly, “Thanks for taking care of me all these years, Liliana. I wish you a safe journey in the future.”

As they spoke, Queenie came to Jasper’s side and greeted respectfully, “Nice to meet you, Mr. Laine.”

“Nice to meet you.”

Jasper nodded. He adopted a neutral feeling toward Queenie. In his opinion, Queenie was just a cash cow!

Queenie asked carefully, “Can I sit next to you, Mr. Laine?”

“Sure,” Jasper said lightly.

Most female celebrities in the entertainment circle were conscious about serving their bosses. Most of the time, unwritten rules were done out of mutual consent, and Queenie was no exception either.

Especially when Jasper was also the boss of her company. He carried more weight than anyone else.

At this moment, Jasper’s status could get eight out of ten female celebrities in Harbor City to readily line up to serve him if he wanted to.

Of course, Queenie had ideas too.

Jasper was young, handsome, influential, and wealthy.

If she could become acquainted with a boss like that, then why would she even bother working so hard? She could just be his very own canary without worrying about anything else.

Unfortunately for Queenie though, no matter how well she tried to perform after that, Jasper simply treated her in a lukewarm manner.

His indifference that kept her at arm's length made Queenie realize just how naive she was.

How could a man like Jasper possibly fall in love with a woman like her?

“Mister... Mr. Laine, that was very wrong of me. I shouldn't have said those things. I deserve to be punished. Please forgive me!”

Liliana stepped forward and pleaded, crying.

She knew better than anyone that an agent like her could offend anyone, even the celebrities themselves and the sponsors, but not the boss.

The moment she offended her boss, everything would be over.

“Be quiet.”

Jasper said softly, “I'm a gentleman. I don't want to have anything to do with a woman who yells for no reason.”

“Pfft...”

Seated next to him, Queenie could not help but snigger after hearing what Jasper said. Jasper was not only young and capable, but he was pretty humorous too!

Liliana was in total despair. She turned her gaze to Queenie for help.

Queenie pretended not to see it.

She did not have the power to do so, but even if she did, she would not help Liliana either.

Liliana sat slouched in her seat. At the moment, the plane was above 10,000 meters in the sky, and she was tempted to jump off of it to end her life...

“Hi, do you need a blanket?”

The stunning flight attendant did not know what had just happened in the first-class cabin and came forward to deliver them blankets politely.

“I’ll have one.”

Queenie quickly took the blanket, then carefully and thoughtfully placed the blanket on Jasper’s thighs, saying, “Mr. Laine, feel free to let me know if you need anything.”

At this time, the flight attendant had recognized the popular celebrity, Queenie Shaw. Before she could express her surprise, she saw how obsequious Queenie was toward Jasper.

The flight attendant’s gaze changed. Who was this young man?

After more than two hours, the plane landed smoothly at Province International Airport.

As soon as the plane landed, Jasper got off the plane straight away.

Queenie knew that Jasper had things to attend to, hence she very tactfully chose not to follow him.

She turned back to glance at the pale-looking Liana and shook her head, then walked off straight away.

When Jasper left the airport, he saw Wendy standing not far away waiting for him.

After being apart from each other for so long, both Jasper and Wendy missed each other a lot.

They walked toward each other and eventually came face to face with one another.

Wendy smiled sweetly.

Jasper's eyes were full of smiles. When Wendy was about to speak, he suddenly reached out and hugged her.

"Oh!"

Wendy exclaimed and softly hammered Jasper with her fists in embarrassment.

"What are you doing? Lots of people are staring."

Jasper embraced Wendy, feeling her soft and warm body in his arms. He thought to himself, 'Money? Company? Business Landscape? Nah. They're all nothing in comparison.'

He went full-on ostentatious mode!

The onlookers exclaimed at this sight, "How nice it is to be young!"

"Let them watch then. Why won't you let others stare when you look so beautiful?"

Jasper buried his face in the crook of Wendy's neck, took in the fragrance of her hair and body, and teased.

Wendy blushed and stopped resisting, resting her chin on Jasper's shoulder peacefully. She said, "You must be really tired after your trip to Harbor City, right?"

"A little!"

Jasper let go of Wendy, took her hand, and left the airport.

Wendy drove while Jasper sat lazily in the front passenger seat.

Jasper looked at the province's scenery and said slowly, "I plan to take a two-day break."

Wendy agreed. "It's time you take a break. Your body won't be able to stand working around the clock like that."

Amid the shakiness of the car during the journey, Jasper chatted with Wendy about his experience in Harbor City and felt his eyelids growing heavier and heavier.

When Wendy did not get Jasper's reply after saying a few words, she turned to look curiously and noticed that Jasper had fallen asleep.

Wendy felt her heart aching and slowed down the car to drive at a much steadier pace.

Life at the Top Chapter 232

Schulers'. Dawson was waiting for the two at the door.

When he saw Wendy's car, he walked over and saw Wendy tiptoeing out of the car while giving him a 'shh' gesture.

"He fell asleep. He's probably too exhausted during this period of time. When we talked on the phone, he would often stay up until two or three in the morning. Let him sleep for a while," Wendy said.

Dawson glanced at Jasper who was sleeping in the front passenger seat and nodded, saying with a smile, "Okay then. I'll ask someone to make dinner. Let him rest."

When Jasper woke up, he found himself sitting in the car with a shirt placed on top of him.

He got out of the car and happened to see Wendy walking toward him.

"Let's go, dinner is ready. My dad is waiting for you," Wendy said.

Jasper did some stretches. "When did I fall asleep? Why didn't you wake me up?"

"I just wanted you to rest longer."

Wendy said softly, "Your career may be important, but your health is your asset. Have you ever seen anyone work as hard as you?"

When Jasper recalled himself chatting and drinking with Anna last night and that was why he had slept late, he suddenly felt a little guilty.

At the dining area. Jasper said to Dawson, "I'm sorry, I overslept."

"Don't be too hard on yourself. You're still young and healthy," Dawson said while pointing at the seat from across the table. "I asked the cook to make something nutritious for you. Let's eat first."

Jasper drank the spiced lentil & butternut squash soup before asking, "How's the real estate company doing now?"

"It's doing okay overall, but we bumped into a bit of a problem in one of our projects in Brac County. Our subordinates can't handle it. I simply don't have the time to go. Maybe you can go and take a look two days later once you've gotten the rest you need," Dawson said.

Jasper nodded and agreed.

"How's Harbor City? Wendy told me that everything went smoothly for you," Dawson asked.

Jasper said with a chuckle, "Everything went very well indeed. It even exceeded my expectations. I made five billion this time. I left part of it as an investment and I've brought back the rest of it. I don't have to worry about insufficient funds for now."

Dawson and Wendy were both startled.

They knew that Jasper had gone to Harbor City to make some money but did not know the details about it, let alone the fact that he had made five billion dollars.

"I heard that the dot-com bubble burst some time ago and caused quite a stir. The domestic stock market was greatly affected too. Was this the opportunity you took?" Dawson asked.

At this time, the dot-com bubble had yet to have a great impact on the domestic stock market and thus avoided an economic loss that might happen due to the burst. There was a slight impact, but not so much compared to other places.

Moreover, the domestic news was still relatively restricted and not as developed as in the future, so they did not know much about the things happening out there in the world.

Jasper said, "Yes, I predicted that the dom-com bubble would burst soon, so I went to Harbor City ahead of schedule. Fortunately, I seized the opportunity this time. Otherwise, the rapid development of JW Capital in the future would require a lot of funds. I guess you can say that I've earned all my capital back."

"I'm old now compared to young people like you." Dawson laughed. "The money I made this entire lifetime can't even compare to the money you earned from just one investment."

Jasper shook his head and said, "Venture investment is all about tricks. There are both benefits and risks, and no one can say for sure if they'll fail. However, one failure is enough to bury the benefits of ten successes. It's important for the industry to have a solid foundation."

If someone else said these words, they would seem really pompous and arrogant.

However, Jasper proved with facts as not one of his investments had failed, hence the things he said just made him seem genuinely dope.

Dawson was pleased to see Jasper keeping a humble and cautious attitude. He was not haughty and arrogant just because he had achieved a win or two.

"I've contacted someone with regards to the entertainment company you mentioned earlier, but there's no rush in this. The seller is still considering it. You can go when you have the time."

“Which company? What’s its name?” Jasper asked curiously.

“I think it’s called... Easy Media. It’s a company run by two brothers with the last name King,” Dawson mulled it over and said.

Easy Media!

Jasper suddenly grew interested.

The company would later turn into one of the leading companies in the domestic film, television, and entertainment industry in the future.

As for the King brothers, they would also become the uncrowned kings of the domestic entertainment industry.

He was surprised to learn that they had plans to sell the company at this time.

“Uncle Dawson, can you confirm with the other party as soon as possible? I acquired an entertainment company in Harbor City and I think the ones in Mainland need to keep up as soon as possible. I plan to open up both territories and create a major entertainment group across the straits.”

Upon hearing what Jasper said, Dawson said seriously, “Okay, I’ll arrange a time for you as soon as possible.”

After dinner, Wendy sat on the couch and propped her chin as she stared at Jasper who was carefully reviewing JW Capital’s documents that had piled up during the time he was away.

Jack had taken care of many things for him, but there were still many major decisions that he needed to make.

“You said you were going to rest for two days first, didn’t you?!” Wendy was a little displeased.

“Now you’re reading documents and two days later you’re going to the entertainment company for a discussion. There’s simply no time for you to rest.”

Jasper shifted his attention away from the documents and smiled at Wendy. “I’ve made plans. We’ll drive to the beach tomorrow to have a relaxing time together.”

“Really?” Wendy suddenly grew excited.

“Yes, we’ll go to Brac County. One of the projects in the real estate company has hit a wall. It’s not far from there, about a two-hour car journey. We can go there and drop by while we’re at it. Besides, it’s just next to the beach. There’s a beach, barbeque, and even a beer festival there,” Jasper said with a smile.

Wendy said happily, “I’ll go and pack my luggage then.”

“We’ll just be there for a day or two. Two changes of clothes will do,” Jasper said.

“What do you know, big man? Every time a woman goes out, that’s like going to war. We mustn’t let our guards down!” Wendy had already walked out the door when her words fell into his ears.

Jasper gave a chuckle, picked up his mobile phone, and booked a five-star hotel in Brac County.

“I want to book a suite, the most expensive one.

“Yes, one... The kind with only one bedroom.”

...

The next day, Jasper and Wendy returned to the city together.

After greeting his parents and getting nagged as usual, Jasper and Wendy drove to Brac County.

More than two hours later at Brac County's Marriott Hotel, Jasper tossed the car keys to the valet and accompanied Wendy into the hotel to check-in.

As soon as they got to the entrance, Jasper and Wendy heard a young man passing by while talking on the phone. His voice was harsh and grating to the ears.

"Stop talking nonsense, damn it. JW Real Estate? Never heard of it. I, Mark Zion, am the king in Brac County. If they want that piece of land, ask them to come and speak to me. If I'm in a good mood, then I'll talk to them. If not, I'll kick them out of Brac County overnight!"

Life at the Top Chapter 233

Mark captured both Jasper and Wendy's attention when he mentioned JW Real Estate.

Wendy frowned, a little displeased with the insulting tone in Mark's words.

Mark had come to the front desk while still talking on the phone.

Jasper was currently doing the check-in procedure at the moment. He had handed in his ID and deposit. He was waiting for his room card now.

Mark squeezed in like Jasper was not there, tossed the signature sheet that Jasper had placed on the counter aside, and said to the attendant, "I want a suite."

The attendant who was currently handling the check-in arrangements for Jasper was taken aback. She could tell that Mark was not someone she could offend, hence she sounded very sorry when she said to him, "I'm sorry, sir, the last suite has been booked by this gentleman right here. We only have standard rooms left.”

“Do you know who I am? Standard room? F*ck standard room. Do you have a death wish by asking me to stay in a standard room?” Mark slammed the counter and roared.

The attendant was caught off guard, and her face turned pale. She was too afraid to utter a word.

At this time, Jasper’s voice fell into their ears.

“Please give me my room card as soon as possible.”

Jasper sounded very gentle, helping the attendant out of the embarrassing situation tactfully. The young lady glanced gratefully at Jasper and hurried to finish the procedures.

After saying these words, Jasper glanced at Mark indifferently and said mildly, “Line up.”

Mark frowned slightly as he looked at Jasper up and down. He sneered, “Are you not from around here? You don’t know me?”

“You really don’t know who I am? I don’t need to line up anywhere in Brac County.”

Having said that, Mark caught sight of Wendy standing next to Jasper. His eyes widened and lit up.

He had never seen such a stunner in Brac County before!

He did not care who Jasper was. With his power and status in Brac County, everyone who saw him would show him respect.

Therefore, Mark started flirting with Wendy straight away.

“Hey gorgeous, are you here in Brac County for a holiday? I’m Mark from the Zion family!” Mark stated his name. He believed that the other party would be interested after knowing who he was.

No one in Brac County could resist his status and charm.

“You can mention my name wherever you go and I guarantee that you’ll be treated like a VIP. So, want to play?”

Mark smiled and stretched out his hand to Wendy.

Smack!

A crisp and clear sound rang through the lobby. Mark’s hand was smacked aside by Jasper.

Mark was taken aback for a moment. He narrowed his eyes, his gaze gleaming fiercely as he stared at Jasper. Hissing, he yelled, “F*ck, how dare you hit me?”

Jasper did not care about his reaction and said mildly, “You and your filthy mouth. I’ll chop your fingers off if you try groping around again. Get behind the line!”

Jasper had the experience of hitting a trust fund baby and even trampled on magnates to the ground before.

He had caused quite a stir in Harbor City and hung out with the top four aristocratic families such as the Laws.

Now that he was back in Mainland, how could he allow an insignificant Brac County trust fund baby to act domineeringly in front of his face?

Mark was furious. He had always been the person to throw his weight around Brac County and had never encountered a person like Jasper before.

Mark gritted his teeth. He wanted to hit Jasper, but he looked robust and full of energy.

Although Mark was young, his body had been damaged a long time ago from all the wine and women. Normally, a young master like him would pay a thug to do the job, so why bother doing it himself?

Therefore, after comparing their size and strength, Mark decided to put up with it first.

“Fine, you’re really something, huh? We’ll see about that!”

After saying those words, Mark stormed off with an extremely sullen expression.

Life at the Top Chapter 234

As long as Jasper was still staying in Marriott Hotel and was in Brac County, he was not worried that he would not have the chance to seek revenge.

Jasper did not even see Mark leave and grabbed his room card from the attendant’s hand. When he walked to the elevator, Jasper said to Wendy, “Get Brac County’s real estate company’s person in charge here.”

Wendy replied and started making a call.

They had just taken a two-hour car ride to Brac County, and after encountering this incident, Wendy was no longer in the mood to go out and enjoy herself.

After taking a shower in the hotel, Wendy and Jasper waited for the person in charge to come over.

The person in charge took his big boss' orders very seriously and merely took a little over half an hour to get to Jasper.

"Ms. Schuler, Mr. Laine."

The person in charge, Mr. Lambert, was a shrewd and capable middle-aged man in his early 40s. He was previously the backbone for Schuler Group, a competent worker. As such, he was transferred by Dawson to the real estate company to help with opening up new markets.

In Brac County, however, not just his but all of JW Real Estate's projects had now sunken in a quagmire.

"Tell me all about JW Real Estate's situation in Brac County." Jasper grabbed a bottle of red wine and poured two glasses, motioning Mr. Lambert to take a seat before speaking.

Mr. Lambert responded to him. Despite Jasper's young age, Mr. Lambert, who had just left Schuler Group, knew that the Mr. Laine who was sitting across from him was not only JW Real Estate's second-largest shareholder but also Dawson's future son-in-law.

The real estate company aside, even the entire Schuler Group would belong to him in the future.

In addition to that, Jasper was mostly acquainted with the upper-class social circle. His aura was growing stronger and stronger every day. It was nothing like what he used to be anymore.

With those two things in mind, Mr. Lambert dared not let his guard down anymore.

“Currently, JW Real Estate is mainly doing a real estate project in Brac County called Landscape City.

“This land has been auctioned off to JW Real Estate before this. It’s located by the sea. The plan is to build a high-end residential building in Brac County, focusing on the concept of sea view properties.

“There’s a problem though. When the land was first auctioned off, JW Real Estate’s main competitor, Majestic Real Estate which is also the core industry of Brac County’s Zion family, started using all sorts of means to hinder our development when they failed to auction for the land.

“They even arranged for a bunch of households to refuse to move from the property, and that hindered our demolition work greatly. Then there are also local thugs coming over to give us trouble every now and then. We simply can’t start the project.”

As Mr. Lambert spoke, he wore a wry expression. “Otherwise, we wouldn’t have sought help from the headquarters in the province either. The Zions are too powerful here. They said that JW Real Estate will either have to take out 50% of the profits to give them a bonus or do nothing at all.”

“They want half of the profits? Is Brac County’s last name Zion? They’re simply asking for too much!” Wendy raged.

“What’s Mark’s position in the Zion family?”

Jasper asked suddenly.

He recalled the man he met in the lobby today who happened to be called Mark. Moreover, he had also mentioned that he was a Zion!

He seemed really confident. It looked like the Zions were really influential in Brac County.

Mr. Lambert replied, "He's Harvey Zion's only son, the head of the Zion family. He's arrogant and domineering and doesn't care about the law. No one in Brac County is bold enough to offend him."

Jasper nodded, then discussed the progress and work arrangements of the entire project with Mr. Lambert before sending him away.

"Jasp, never condone forces like the Zions!" Wendy said to Jasper.

Jasper smiled and said, "Temple is small but evil winds heavy, the pond is shallow yet wicked cuckolds too many. The smaller a place, the easier it is to encounter rebellious people. It's okay, I'm great at dealing with all sorts of people who refuse to cooperate."

It was nearly evening after their discussion, hence Jasper took Wendy downstairs to have dinner at a restaurant.

"We'll fill our tummies first then go to the beach to have a walk after dinner," Jasper said to Wendy, taking a seat at the table.

"And beach barbeque too!" Wendy said with a sweet smile.

"We can't forget that, can we?" Jasper said with a smile.

The two were still talking when Mark returned. He was standing at the entrance of the restaurant. This time, he brought two tall and hunky bodyguards with him.

As soon as he entered the restaurant, Mark saw the duo engaging in a delightful conversation. He let out a vicious and smug smile.

Mark swaggered over to Jasper and Wendy's table, displaying an insincere smile. "Hey, kid. Having dinner?"

Life at the Top Chapter 235

Wendy wore an unpleasant expression. This feeling was like when one was in a good mood and when it was about time to enjoy a meal, a fly kept lingering around them, making all sorts of disturbing noises from beside.

Jasper glanced at Mark and said calmly, "I'm not used to having my meals with someone pacing back and forth at a corner."

A smile remained on Mark's face, but the evil chills within his gaze were getting more intense.

Placing one of his hands on Jasper's chair, Mark then leaned forward and whispered into Jasper's ear, "I love seeing this arrogant side of you, because the more arrogant you are right now, the more miserable you'll be later on."

"I don't care what kind of person you are. In Brac County, regardless of your capability, it's best you behave appropriately. Or else, your family won't have a place to mourn your death once I'm done with you!"

As Mark was talking, he let out a burst of devilish laughter and immediately pulled a chair from the table beside. He then called the waiter over to order.

The man beside him also followed to take a seat. He went around Jasper with ill intention and said, "Young Master Zion, aren't you going to make fun of him straight away?"

Another man joined in and giggled, saying, "That's right, Young Master Zion. Just let us siblings torture him to death. That lady is f*cking gorgeous. Young Master Zion, you should personally go comfort that beauty. Isn't this the perfect solution?"

Mark sneered, "What do you guys know about? It's only meaningful if you slowly torture a person like that."

"One glance and it's obvious he's not from here. I'm guessing this guy has some cash on him and brought this beauty over here for a meal to put on an act. If I want to make this beauty admire me, I have to first let her know that in Brac County, there's no one richer than me nor more powerful than me.

"Just look at the day and age! We don't kill and murder people anymore. That's the lowliest method." Mark deliberately raised his voice so that Jasper and Wendy could hear him crystal clear.

"He wants to use fortune and authority to make you admire him," said Jasper to Wendy with a smile.

Wendy glared at Jasper, and for the first time, she gave him a warning glance. "Stop making me feel disgusted."

At that moment, Mark had already summoned the waiter.

"High-quality foie gras, abalone vegetable dish, then according to the headcount, I want codfish from the deep ocean, tuna, and salmon. Also a set of platter Albino Sturgeon Caviar."

Even though they were having their meal in a five-star restaurant, ordering dishes that were worth hundreds of thousands was enough to shock the manager of the restaurant.

The manager rushed over and said to Mark in a polite, cautious tone, "Sir, aside from others, in regards to the Albino Sturgeon Caviar, our restaurant does not have many in stock. One gram will cost approximately 20,000, and there are three of you here, which sums it up to 60,000."

"Do you think I can't afford it?" Mark's expression was dark.

The manager quickly answered, “No, that’s not what I meant. I’m just trying to confirm with you, sir.”

“Then cut the nonsense and just serve what I ordered.”

Mark waved his hand with a calm face. Then, he glanced at Jasper disdainfully and said faintly, “That’s all. It’s just hundreds of thousands, a simple meal.”

Knowing Mark was trying to use his money to suppress other people, the two underlings he had brought with him naturally showed their support. With a mystifying manner, they worked together and said, “Young Master Zion is generous! However, for someone else, perhaps they won’t be able to earn these hundreds of thousands, right?”

“Don’t say so. It wasn’t easy for a certain someone to save more than half a year’s worth of salary to bring a beauty over to a five-star hotel to enjoy a meal. If you guys are here triggering him, won’t he lose his composure when he returns home?”

“Hahaha!”

Ear-piercing sounds kept traveling over, but Jasper’s expression remained calm.

“Manager, I’m going to order some dishes.”

The manager walked over to him. As someone with a discerning eye, one glance was all it took for him to know that the guests from those two tables were trying to compete with each other. This made the manager hope for more good things to happen.

“Give me a portion of whatever they ordered. For that Albino Sturgeon Caviar, give me two boxes of it.”

The manager was dumbfounded when he heard Jasper’s words.

“Two... Two boxes?!”

“Sir, you heard the price just now. One box has six grams, and two boxes will be 12 grams. It’ll cost 214,000...”

Subconsciously, the manager emphasized the price of Albino Sturgeon Caviar.

“For foods like this, what’s the meaning of being so calculative when eating? It’s only by having a big spoonful per mouthful can I make out the taste,” said Jasper calmly.

When the manager heard this, he dared not even let out a sound. He dared not offend someone who could afford a meal costing more than 200,000. He spun around and placed the order.

Mark’s expression changed for the worst.

He bought Albino Sturgeon Caviar according to grams while Jasper immediately ordered two boxes of it.

This made him feel that he was being overwhelmed by Jasper.

The truth was indeed that way.

Mark was rich, but there was a limit to it. After all, his money was sourced from the Zion family, which was the source of his monthly pocket money.

He had not reached a level where he was able to enjoy a meal worth 200,000 to 300,000.

If his family found out about it, he would be in trouble.

The corners of Mark's mouth were twitching as he wore a dark expression. He stared at Jasper and said, "Cut the overacting. Later you won't be able to pay for the bill."

At that moment, the dishes for both tables were being served. Jasper immediately opened up a box of Albino Sturgeon Caviar and poured all of it on his foie gras. He took a bite and frowned gently.

It was not as delicious as he thought it would be.

Jasper took the remaining box of Albino Sturgeon Caviar and waved to a waiter who was doubting his life. He said a word or two to him.

The waiter's expression changed drastically.

Wendy was laughing sneakily.

That scene made Mark curious because he did not know what Jasper had told the waiter. His sixth sense was telling him that it would not be a good thing.

Following then, the waiter looked at Jasper with a troubled look, then looked at Mark.

Finally, he gulped a mouthful of saliva and walked over while holding onto the box of Albino Sturgeon Caviar.

"What are you trying to do?!"

Mark saw the waiter who was walking toward him and asked, suppressing the unpleasantness and anger within him.

The waiter let out a dry smile and said awkwardly, "That man said he can't bear to see you three eating on such a tight budget, so he's giving you guys one box. Just help yourself to it... This is what he said."

‘Eating... on such a tight budget?!’

Mark felt the flames of rage burning within him. In his entire life, he had never been humiliated in this manner before.

What was more, it was regarding the wealth he was so proud of.

Just when he was about to open his mouth and roar at Jasper, a young gentleman suddenly came in from the outside. He rushed over.

“I beg your pardon, Young Master Zion! I came late...”

Mark did not speak a word after hearing it. He looked unhappy.

Seeing Mark’s awful expression, the man thought Mark was exasperated because he was late.

When he was about to apologize, he noticed Mark’s dark gaze staring in another direction not far away.

The man looked in that direction. When he saw the familiar face that was not far away, his face was decorated with astonishment. “Wendy... Wendy Schuler?!”

Life at the Top Chapter 236

Steve did not expect to meet Wendy, who he had been dreaming of for nearly ten years, at Brac County.

He had a crush on Wendy since their high school days. Steve was considered the most passionate one among the group of pursuers courting Wendy back then.

However after so many years and even up till graduation, Wendy had not spoken more than three sentences to him, let alone became closer to him.

Later after graduating, Steve's family business that was involved in building materials shifted over to Brac County. As such, he gradually let go of his feelings for her.

He did not expect to be able to meet Wendy once again.

Even though a few years had already passed, Steve was still able to recognize Wendy with just a glance.

In the meantime, he spotted Jasper beside her.

“Jasper?”

Steve's tone was laced with some doubt, but then he let out a smile. “What the f*ck? A poor guy like you also has what it takes to show up in a five-star hotel?”

It was plain obvious that Steve thought Jasper was pestering Wendy, and in light of them being old classmates, he made Wendy treat him to a meal at this hotel.

'Otherwise, this poor guy wouldn't be able to come to such a high-end place in his lifetime.'

The thought of it made Steve glance at Jasper with much disdain.

"Steve, you guys know each other?" Mark asked coldly.

"Yes," said Steve with a chuckle, "Wendy was a goddess in my high school. How can I not know her? As for Jasper, he's also our schoolmate, but he's just a genuine poor guy.

"He could wear the same set of school uniform for one whole year, and I never saw him change to another set of clothing. Even if the clothes had a hole in them, he still continued to wear them. Every day, he would eat buns and pickles. Some people found him pitiful and would offer him food, and he would be happier than a dog."

Mark was delighted when he heard it.

"What the f*ck, a poor guy is putting on an act against me?"

Mark was slightly exasperated as he was terrified of a poor guy just earlier.

The thought of it made Mark so mad that he wanted to just tear off Jasper's skin.

"Steve, please mind your language," Wendy said coldly. Currently, what irritated Wendy was other people teasing Jasper.

Steve witnessed Wendy shielding Jasper, and all of a sudden, it made him disgruntled.

"I said nothing wrong. Isn't he the famous poor brat in the entire school?"

“Wendy, I know you’re very kind, but you have to pay more attention. Don’t get used by these useless beings because of this matter.”

Steve said in a mystifying manner and then said to Jasper with a smile, “As a man, I really f*cking look down on you!”

“However, as your old schoolmate, I’ll just give you a piece of advice. Wendy is already showing you some dignity by treating you to a meal. Or else, a poor guy like you won’t be able to come to a five-star hotel like this for the rest of your life.

“You’d better leave this instant after gaining the benefits. Don’t be such a drag and insist on staying here.”

“What a splendid speech.” Mark stared at Jasper with a dark gaze. He then said with a sinister smile, “Hey brat, you’re quite good at putting on an act. I nearly got scared by you. Now, how do you wish to die? Huh?”

Steve immediately understood when he saw the scene.

‘It must be Jasper, this fool, who came to a five-star hotel and went overboard. He ended up offending Mark!’

When he thought about how his family’s business relied on the Zion family, it made Steve all hyped up.

“Young Master Zion, did this fool offend you?” asked Steve politely.

“Does he have what it takes to do so?” Mark smiled coldly. “At most, I’m just disgusted by the filthy smell coming off his body. It affected my mood.”

“Got it.” Steve nodded, spun around, and barked at Jasper. “Why are you still daydreaming here? Hurry and apologize to Young Master Zion, then get lost!”

“We haven’t seen each other for so many years, yet you’re still the same,” Jasper looked at Steve and said calmly.

“Back in school, you were a lackey to those young masters from rich families. You were good at getting on other people’s good side. Then, your family managed to gain some profits through a business involving building materials and you became so proud. Right now, it seems that Mark is your new owner?”

Hearing Jasper’s comment made Steve’s expression become darker.

He did not see any fault in getting on good terms with those with power and fortune, but with Jasper blurting it out like this, it was like a slap on his face.

“Who are you to comment about me?”

Steve was looking fierce. “It’s way better than being a poor brat like you, pestering an old female schoolmate and making Wendy bring you over to a high-end hotel to treat you to a meal.

“I advise you to apologize to Young Master Zion if you know your standing, then get lost. After all, you’ve already eaten. You can return to the construction site and show off to your colleagues about how you’ve been to a five-star hotel.”

As he was saying, Steve suddenly burst into laughter and was proud. “Someone like you can only work as a laborer at a site, moving bricks around, right? You can beg me. If you beg me and if I’m in a good mood, I can arrange to have you take up a foreman position, hahaha.”

Mark sneered and said, “A fool like him wants to be a foreman? Just put on a metal string around his neck and make him squat at the entrance of the site. He can be a watchdog who looks after the site. That would suit him best.”

“You’re right, Young Master Zion, hahaha.” Steve raised a thumb to Mark, putting on a flattering expression to get on his good terms.

“You guys are so full of yourselves and look down on others!” Wendy got up with a stony expression.

“Jasp, let’s go. It makes me want to puke being together with these people.”

Mark snorted and blocked Wendy with his body, saying with a delighted face, “Hey beauty, don’t be in such a rush to leave. What’s so good about this watchdog? This world is so vast. A beauty like yourself should only be a match to someone as splendid as me.”

Steve’s heart skipped a beat when he saw Mark staring at Wendy while drooling.

Wendy was his goddess.

It was a rare chance for him to bump into her. Hence, he still had some thoughts about it...

However, the moment he thought of his family’s business relying on the Zion family’s charity, Steve made a decision after weighing the pros and cons.

“That’s right, Wendy. Young Master Zion is the heir to the huge Zion family of Brac County. He’s not someone who can be compared to some brats. Seeing that we’re old schoolmates, I’ll just remind you that it’s your luck that Young Master Zion is willing to be friends with you.”

Mark was very satisfied with Steve’s comment. He clapped his shoulder and said with satisfaction, “Not bad, you’re good at analyzing the situation. I’m very satisfied with your action.”

Steve put on a lowly smile and said to Mark, “I’m just stating the facts. In the entire Brac County, who doesn’t know that Young Master Zion is the number one person among the younger generation?”

Wendy glanced at Steve coldly and said, “Last time, I only felt that you were just a spineless person. But now, why is it that your actions disgust me?”

Hearing that comment made Steve twitch the corners of his mouth, and his expression looked awful.

At that moment, Jasper also stood up and looked at both Steve and Mark coldly.

Before he could even speak, Mark saw his reaction and immediately smiled coldly before saying disdainfully, "F*cker! Hey brat, earlier I was petrified by you because I didn't know about your background, but now, are you still thinking of scaring me?"

"Utter rubbish! Let me tell you, in Brac County, I'm the one with the most authority!"

Life at the Top Chapter 237

"How boastful you are!"

Jasper let out a smirk and placed his gaze on Mark. He said with a deep voice, "So far, the Zion family supporting you can't control the entire Brac County. With just you alone, you dare claim yourself as the king of Brac County?"

Hearing Jasper's comment made Steve sneer. He looked at Jasper as if he was looking at a mentally disabled person and said, "You b*stard. You have no ability yet you sure talk big. Do you know who the Zion family is? Is the Zion family someone the likes of you are able to comment on? Who do you think you are?"

"Hehe, I'm someone from JW Real Estate. Young Master Zion, you must be familiar with JW Real Estate, right?" Jasper did not continue hiding his identity but blurted it flat out.

His comment made both Steve and Mark stunned.

The Zion family had high authority in Brac County. Most of the citizens were afraid of the Zion family, hence only a handful of people dared to go head-on with the Zion family.

During this period, the only defeat the Zion family had ever suffered was the incident with that piece of high-quality land.

They were unable to do anything as the opponent had lots of funds. Even though the Zion family was one of the big families in Brac County, when being compared to JW Real Estate which was being supported by the Schuler family of the province, their funds were not even comparable!

It was because of this incident, the Zion family had been very exasperated lately.

“Hey brat, you’re someone from JW Real Estate?” Mark squinted his eyes to look at Jasper and said with a hostile tone.

While speaking, he looked straight at Wendy who was beside Jasper as something suddenly struck his mind.

“Wendy Schuler, the Schuler family... JW Real Estate?!”

He suddenly thought of something. Wendy, the person before him, was perhaps the daughter of Dawson Schuler of the Schuler family!

“Someone from the JW Real Estate, my ass. I say you’re just a worker. I wonder what makes you so proud? However, your boss is just a dog,” Steve said with a cold smile.

Wendy, who was beside, heard this and was not willing to continue with the conversation with them both. She felt that the two men before her were way too lame. She spun around and said to Jasper, “Jasp, Let’s go.”

Jasper let out a thoughtful smile at those two men and brought Wendy out.

This time, Mark did not block them. When Steven was attempting to say something, he was stopped by Mark instead.

“Young Master Zion, are you just going to let that b*stard leave?” asked Steve cautiously.

Mark smirked and said with a deep tone, “You really are stupid. Think about it, who’s the boss of JW Real Estate?”

“Who else if not Dawson Schuler, the chairman of Schuler Group!” Steve answered without thinking further.

“Use that stupid brain of yours and think again. What’s Wendy’s surname?” said Mark coldly.

“Of course, Wendy’s family name is...”

Steve left his statement hanging, then he widened his eyes and said, finding it hard to believe, “Young Master Zion, you’re saying... It cant be, right? How is it possible that something can happen so coincidentally? Wendy and I were schoolmates during high school, and I never knew that Dawson is her father!”

Mark glanced at Steve and said straightforwardly, “I know right? We’ll know if I send someone to go check on it. This is not a secret anyway.”

“It’s Jasper. He doesn’t look like a capable person,” said Mark coldly, “His ability to act is great.”

Steve smirked and said, “He’s just a poor guy who depends on his girlfriend. He’s not worth being wary of. I’ll believe that Wendy is from a super-rich family, though. After all, that aura emanating from her is not usually seen in daughters of any ordinary families.

“But I know about Jasper’s background perfectly. He’s from a poor farming family. During his third year in high school, he was always being looked down on and was treated like a dog.

“He must’ve bumped into Wendy after graduating and used some underhanded methods to make Wendy pity him. She then gave him a job to make ends meet. Right now, it seems that he’s using Wendy’s identity to put on an act.”

Even though Mark said that Steve was stupid, Steve’s words about Jasper were almost just like what Mark was thinking.

“I’ll consider it as you’re not entirely stupid then. I think things are as you said.”

Life at the Top Chapter 238

Mark said coldly, “If Wendy is Dawson’s daughter, then we can’t force our way tonight. However, not to fear. No matter how powerful Dawson is, can he provide a helping hand over at Brac County? If he dares lend a helping hand, I’ll just chop it off!”

Mark chuckled and put on a devilish expression as he said, “I’m still hoping that Wendy is his daughter!”

“Young Master Zion, do you mind elaborating on that?” asked Steve.

“JW Real Estate used up so much money to buy that land. Without the permission of the Zion family, will he dare to start developing it? Impossible. If Wendy is his daughter, then he has to make Wendy come to me to negotiate.

“Hehehe, if I can be Dawson’s son-in-law, there’s no harm letting him develop that land because that’s going to be mine as well!”

Steve looked at Mark who was laughing maniacally. His eyes sparkled, and he buried his greed for Wendy deep within his heart. He raised his thumb and said, "What a splendid strategy you got there, Young Master Zion. Everyone will just plan things as they march forth, but you look a few steps ahead into the future with every move you make."

"Even after taking the entire province into consideration, who can be better than you, Young Master Zion, let alone here in Brac County?"

Marriott Hotel was just at the beach, and there was a large area of their own private beach.

Even though it was a private beach, as long as they were guests of Marriott Hotel, they were free to be there.

Even if that was the case, the environment over here was much better compared to public beaches.

They were holding hands and walking on the beach. Wendy took off her shoes. Her fair feet stepped on the beach which had been drenched by the tides, leaving behind a trail of footprints.

The waves washed up to the beach but did not go over Wendy's feet. The chilly and exciting experience made the smile on Wendy's face never once fade away.

"The air here is so nice," said Wendy, feeling touched.

Jasper let go of his hand, allowing Wendy to jump up and down as she stepped on the waves. He answered with a smile after hearing her, "If you like this, we'll choose a quiet place, buy it, and build a holiday villa there."

Wendy tilted her head and looked at Jasper. She said, "Why are you being just like someone who got rich overnight? You'll just buy everything now. You weren't like that in the past."

“It was the period of starting a business previously, so every penny had to be spent carefully. But now that we have a little bit of capital, we should make our lives better. What’s the point of earning so much money if you don’t use it to enjoy life?”

Wendy shook her head after hearing Jasper’s reply and said, “I don’t want to. There’s no meaning to building a holiday villa. It’s enough if we come here occasionally for a trip.”

“As long as you like it,” said Jasper with a soft smile.

Wendy spun around and walked backward. She glanced at her footprints on the beach while pulling Jasper along, insisting he took off his shoes as well.

Jasper would never reject Wendy on such a trivial issue. He immediately took off his shoes and socks before strolling the beach with Wendy.

As such, the beach had a long trail consisting of two pairs of big and small footprints.

“It’ll be winter after a few more months. Let’s make a trip to Capital City during this coming winter.” Wendy suddenly suggested.

Even though Jasper was very surprised to hear this suggestion, he still replied with a smile, “Sure.”

“Let’s choose a time when it’s snowing and visit the Forbidden City,” said Wendy softly.

She would never tell Jasper that she had heard from others that the ancient palace was only called the Forbidden City when it snowed. Legend had that if one accompanied their loved one and walked around the Forbidden City under the snow, without one realizing it, they would have become old together...

After they were tired from the walk, they lay on the lounge chairs that were set up on the beach nearby the hotel. They ordered the waiters to serve them drinks. Both Jasper and Wendy were feeling very relaxed.

“What do you plan to do to those two disgusting people?”

“In three days, I’ll make them both kneel before you and admit their mistakes!”

Life at the Top Chapter 239

Jasper was never a person who lied.

The same applied when he was treating any lady.

He said that he would make both Steve and Mark kneel before Wendy and admit their faults. Since he said it would happen within three days, it would definitely not happen on the fourth day.

Early in the morning after waking up in the hotel, both of them headed downstairs for breakfast. They immediately headed over to the office of JW Real Estate that was located in Brac County.

With the two big bosses’ arrival, Mr. Lambert dared not waste a single second. He immediately went to summon all of the workers in the company for a meeting.

However, Jasper never liked having meetings on a frequent basis. As such, he utilized his authority as the boss and had most of the workers continue on with their own tasks, leaving only Mr. Lambert and his two assistants.

These three people basically comprised the Management Department of the branch company of JW Real Estate in Brac County.

“To be honest, even though the main company knows that the project in Brac County is not easy to do, we’re still not satisfied with your working progress,” Jasper sat in Mr. Lambert’s seat and said.

The three of them exchanged terrified looks at each other and revealed bitter smiles at the same time.

“Mr. Laine, we’re indeed facing some difficulties as well. The main reason is that Brac County is a special place, and our work is facing a great deal of resistance,” said one of the assistants while feeling aggrieved.

“If it’s not a difficult task, then tell me, why should I be spending several times more to pay you all a higher salary than an average employee to work for me?” Jasper asked.

That question left the three of them speechless.

Wendy, who was sitting beside them, was looking at Jasper intently.

She realized that at this moment, Jasper was very handsome...

“I know that the greatest obstacle for the project in Brac County is the all-around obstruction by the local Zion family. To you guys, this is indeed a very critical issue. Mr. Lambert, I heard that you were previously threatened with blades in the office?”

Mr. Lambert quickly nodded and said with a bitter smile, “This is indeed like an educated person bumping into a ruthless being. No logic can go through their minds. It’s not just me, but many people have been threatened as well—both straight to the face and in the shadows.”

“They also warned us that we’re just workers, and there’s no need to endanger our safety for the sake of a job.”

Jasper said coldly, “It’s now the year 2000 already, yet there are still people using such ruthless methods to run their business. And you guys are actually petrified because of this?”

“I can tell you guys that you work for JW Real Estate, so JW Real Estate will be your shield as well. Whoever uses underhanded methods is going against JW Real Estate, and JW Real Estate will never let you guys suffer from any threats.

“And if anyone really takes the risk and causes any one of you to suffer from any injury, JW Real Estate will definitely redeem justice for you all—even at the expense of losing this project!”

Jasper’s speech was very influential. His voice was not that loud, yet it brought with it persuasion.

Mr. Lambert and the other two people looked at each other before nodding at the same time. “Mr. Laine, we have faith in you!”

Since Jasper had already said so, they were reassured and comforted.

“How many local building materials suppliers are there in Brac County and which one is cooperating with JW Real Estate?” asked Jasper.

An assistant manager with the surname Wood was mainly in charge of that aspect and quickly answered, “The local market for this industry is mainly composed of Ambition Corporation and Future Industries. These two companies comprise 70% of the building materials market. The one who’s cooperating with us is Ambition Corporation, whose ability is slightly weaker than Future Industries.”

“Future Industries... Is the boss’ surname Quare?” asked Jasper.

Mr. Wood nodded. “Yes, sir.”

“Immediately set up an appointment for me to meet with the boss of Ambition Corporation.”

Mr. Wood answered immediately after hearing it, spun around, and went on to proceed with his work.

Life at the Top Chapter 240

”What’s the condition at the site?” Jasper looked at Mr. Lambert.

Mr. Lambert answered with a slight awkwardness, “The demolition work is not able to be completed because of the few families that refuse to move. Initially, we thought of starting with laying the foundation where demolition works have been completed, but because of the hindrances every day, we can’t start on that as well.”

“It means the site is demonstrating a halt in work and I have to witness all sorts of cash outflow every day?” Jasper asked calmly.

Mr. Lambert smiled bitterly and nodded.

Mr. Lambert’s body trembled out of fear when he noticed Jasper’s gaze getting colder.

He knew if he continued to make Jasper dissatisfied, then his position would be handed over to another person.

JW Real Estate was at a stage of developing its company, and the benefits given were way better than usual. If he was fired by JW Real Estate, for sure he would not be holding any position in Schuler Group as well.

He had to bear in mind that the person before him was the son-in-law of Schuler Group.

The chairman only had Wendy as his daughter, which meant his son-in-law would be the future boss. He could not afford to offend him.

“Mr. Laine, this is the report on the Zion family’s business which I compiled yesterday after I went home. I’m not sure if it’s going to be of use but please have a look at it.”

Jasper’s expression became much better when he saw the report Mr. Lambert was cautiously handing to him.

“The core of the Zions’ business is building ships.”

Jasper looked at the report in his hands, and his gaze showed signs of interest.

“Yes, Mr. Laine. Brac County is a city by the beach. It’s not surprising that the shipbuilding industry is more advanced. Old Master Zion was originally a technician in the national shipbuilding factory. Later on, he went to work alone in the oceans, and his business gradually became much better. He even bought over the national shipbuilding factory.”

“Right now, their main business is from cooperating with big companies in Harbor City. Every year, they will receive orders to build a few ships. I heard that one ship can easily earn them tens of millions of profits.

“Adding to the usual maintenance, it’s all under them as well. In one year, with just this shipbuilding company, they can earn tons of fortune. This is also the basis of the financial securement for the Zion family.”

Jasper smiled softly and said, “If they’re from other industries or if they weren’t working with big companies in Harbor City, then it might take some time to defeat them.”

Mr. Lambert's heart skipped a beat. He was making a guess internally. 'Does this son-in-law have any connections in Harbor City?'

With that thought in mind, Mr. Lambert's impression of Jasper was that he was getting more mysterious.

At that moment, the sound of the door being knocked on was heard. It was Mr. Wood from earlier.

"Mr. Laine, the boss of Ambition Corporation, Xavier Johnson, has arrived."

Jasper waved his hand, beckoning Mr. Lambert and the rest to leave the office. He said, "Allow Mr. Johnson to enter."

A moment later, the office door was pushed open and a middle-aged man with a prestigious physique entered while giving off a domineering aura.

There was an astonished look on Xavier's face when he saw that the boss of JW Real Estate, Jasper, was so young. However, very soon, he composed himself and said politely, "Nice to meet you, Mr. Laine. I'm Xavier from Ambition Corporation."

Jasper smiled and got up. He shook hands with Xavier and asked him to have a seat.

Jasper was no stranger to Xavier.

In his past life, Xavier's building materials company left Brac County and became the number one building materials supplier in the entire province.

However, the real reason that made him famous was that his family of three was suddenly met with a robbery when his business was at its peak. All three of them were murdered.

Then, his building materials company was inherited by one of his best friends.

Coincidentally, that best friend of Xavier's went by the surname of Quare!

Life at the Top Chapter 241

"According to what I know, there's a vice president in Ambition Corporation who has the surname Quare. I think he's also the biological brother of the boss of Future Industries?"

Hearing Jasper's question made Xavier, who thought Jasper would first discuss business with him, dumbfounded.

"You're right, Mr. Laine, but my vice president is also my friend, my brother. Even though he's Douglas Quare's biological brother, they've long since been separated.

"Initially when I got transferred back from the military, I couldn't find a good job for a while. It was this brother of mine who brought me onto this path of building materials. I can say that Ambition Corporation was able to get to today's scale mostly thanks to my brother."

Xavier did not hide anything. This incident was known by everyone in Brac County. As long as one went asking around, they would be able to figure it out.

"However, Mr. Laine, does this have anything to do with the corporation between your company and Ambition Corporation?" asked Xavier.

Jasper said faintly, "Of course, there's some connection to it because right now, JW Real Estate is choosing a reliable partner in the building materials industry. Obviously, we can't just find someone who will end up losing his family because of his brother to cooperate with us."

Xavier's expression changed drastically after hearing it.

He was quite joyful when he initially heard that JW Real Estate was having the intention to choose a reliable partner.

In Brac County, that was just a branch company to JW Real Estate. Even though there were some difficulties that prevented it from moving forth because of the pressure exerted by the Zion family, however, in the view of the entire province, JW Real Estate was definitely an upstart in the property industry.

'If only we can become their reliable business partner, then Ambition Corporation will be in charge of all the building materials of JW Real Estate throughout the entire province. That'll be such a great thing!'

However, Jasper's words made Xavier's good mood immediately disappear into thin air.

"Mr. Laine, what do you mean by that? My relationship with my brother is not something an outsider like you can understand. How is it possible that he'll make me lose my family? I wouldn't be here if it's not for him."

Although he had changed countless jobs throughout the years, Xavier still retained the boldness of a soldier from his time in the military deep in his bones. At this moment when he saw that Jasper was trying to 'sow discord', he argued back ruthlessly.

"He can even betray his own biological brother, so what more you?" said Jasper immediately.

That statement left Xavier speechless for a long time.

"Mr. Johnson, honest people won't say things behind other people's back. You can look into it, how the siblings got into a fight in the beginning and ended up going their own pathways. Besides, go and look at your company's account. You'll know what I'm talking about soon enough.

Xavier's expression became more awful as he heard Jasper's words.

Out of trust, he had basically handed over the company's account to his brother to manage and he would not bother with those matters.

However, Jasper's words were like a thorn, making it hard for him to accept the words.

Jasper shook his head slightly when he saw Xavier's expression that was changing for the worst.

'So it means that people like Xavier aren't suitable to run a business.

'He's too honest and easily trusts others.'

Take Jasper for example. No matter how good of a relationship he shared with others or how great the ability of that person was, he would never hand over the financial authority to another.

Except for Wendy.

She was different because she was Jasper's lady.

However, for those who were not his family, Jasper would beat that person's head into pieces with a bat if they wanted to lay a finger on the finances of the company.

"Mr. Laine, you called me over today just to talk about this matter?" asked Xavier.

Jasper said faintly, "As I said before, I'm planning to choose a building materials supplier who is reliable for JW Real Estate. Ambition Corporation is the first company that I'm considering, but if you can't solve the problems within your company, then I won't choose you guys."

Xavier gritted his teeth and said, "I need to go back and have a look."

“Since the opponent has already decided to do it, he won’t allow you to catch him red-handed so easily. I have a better idea that can help Ambition Corporation conquer the market of building materials in Brac County, and it can also make this whole incident come to light. It’s up to you whether or not you’ll give us your cooperation, Mr. Johnson.”

Xavier’s eyes sparkled, and he looked at Jasper before saying, “I’m all ears.”

Jasper said with a smile, “Strike down Future Industries.”

Life at the Top Chapter 242

Xavier was dumbfounded when he heard it.

He felt that Jasper was making fun of him.

Future Industries was his greatest enemy. Never in his wildest dreams would he think of taking down Future Industries. ‘But why is he taking it lightly?’

“Indeed, there’s some difficulty to it but with the full support given by JW Real Estate, things will be much easier.”

It was as if Jasper could read one’s mind and had seen through what was on Xavier’s mind.

“The building materials market is mostly just like other industries. From supplying the goods to providing the goods, the account is being settled in a cyclical phase, right?” asked Jasper.

Xavier nodded. It was not just building materials, most of the industries were like that.

Even if they were the one providing the building materials to JW Real Estate, JW Real Estate would at most pay 20% or around 30% of deposits for the goods and pay the rest later.

“Mr. Johnson, you can go get in touch with your supplier. Ambition Corporation will pay full for the goods with the only request that they have to stop supplying goods to Future Industries.”

Xavier was shocked when he heard Jasper’s comment and said, “This is indeed a way to finish someone off. But where do I get so much money to immediately pay everything to them?”

“JW Real Estate can pay for all the goods. With this, don’t you have the money?” said Jasper with a giggle.

Xavier was stunned for a long time. He looked at Jasper deeply and said, “Mr. Laine, do you mind me asking you something? Do you happen to have a grudge against Future Industries?”

Jasper answered faintly, “Nope. I just don’t like them.”

Xavier took in a deep breath. He could not comprehend what was going on in this young man’s mind. He immediately blurted such huge news the moment they met up. First of all, Jasper claimed that his brother bore ill intentions, then he told him a method to take down Future Industries—both in just a single night.

The main point was that Jasper did not just provide the idea, but the execution of the plan as well!

Currently, JW Real Estate’s business was doing very well. As long as the company was willing to clear off all their debts, then he would be able to hold on to all the supplies and make Future Industries fall.

To be blunt, this was like having a dog sitting on a chair. Even a dog could accomplish it well, hence it was not something that could only be done by being ambitious.

‘And this is just because Jasper despises Future Industries?’

Xavier felt that this world had changed.

“I’m doing it!” said Xavier, determined.

Jasper said with a smile, “A toast to our cooperation.”

...

After Xavier left, Jasper pinched Wendy’s nose and said, “What are you thinking about? Why are you being absent-minded?”

Wendy blinked her eyes and said, “Isn’t it going to be very troublesome if you want to take down Future Industries?”

“If it’s within the rules of the game, Future Industries is deeply involved in the building materials market in Brac County. Even Ambition Corporation is not worthy of being their opponent. It’s indeed not an easy feat for a property company like mine that comes from a foreign land to take the company down.”

While saying this, Jasper shrugged his shoulders. “But why should I abide by the rules of the game? I can just overrule these rules anytime I want. When I’m the one who gets to have a saying about the rules, what is Future Industries going to use to go against me?”

“Hurting others with the lowest cost.” Wendy covered her mouth and smiled.

“Smart lady.” Jasper held his phone, lowered his head in search of a number, and praised her.

“Who are you calling?” asked Wendy curiously.

“It took me about half an hour to contact Xavier and convince him to take down Future Industries. Now, I’ll let you see how long it’s going to take me to take down the Zion family,” said Jasper to Wendy with a smile when he dialed a number. He was waiting for the call to go through.

“How long?” asked Wendy.

“Just a phone call’s time.”

Life at the Top Chapter 243

Over at Harbor City in another shipbuilding company. Jasper was calling the Ship King, Spencer Boyle.

He did not wish to trouble Spencer over such a trivial issue. It was because he did not know any of the Boyle family members who were slightly younger.

Spencer, who was far away at Harbor City, was flabbergasted to receive the call from Jasper. After laughing while talking for a moment, Jasper then revealed his intention behind this call.

Spencer knew what was going on and was able to grasp the situation after just listening to half of Jasper’s speech.

“I’m not familiar with the Zion family’s shipbuilding factory in Brac County that you’re talking about. After all, there are just way too many shipbuilding company partners who provide us with the original equipment manufacturer. Most of it is being arranged by the underlings.

“However, in regards to this issue, I’ll order my men to settle it. So, rest assured.”

The Ship King’s reply showed that he greatly respected Jasper.

After all, as the head of one of the four affluent families in Harbor City, to be able to say such a thing already represented an attitude.

“Thank you. Next time when I head over to Harbor City, I’ll definitely come to visit you,” said Jasper with a smile as he also knew how to reciprocate with the same respect.

Spencer burst into laughter and said, “Sure. When you’re here, be sure to be my guest.”

After another word or two, Jasper hung up the call.

“Just now was...” Wendy looked at Jasper, astonished.

Even though she was aware that Jasper had a good relationship with the four affluent families in Harbor City, witnessing Jasper being able to call Spencer straight and even have a nice conversation with him made her feel that it was rather ridiculous.

“It’s exactly the person who you’re thinking of. The next trip to Harbor City, I’ll bring you along and introduce you to him,” said Jasper with a smile.

Wendy let out a faint smile.

“Earlier, I think you said a total of ten sentences. Among them, eight of them were greetings. With just two sentences, the matter is settled.”

“You finally get to witness the ability of your man, right? Come, let’s go have lunch.” Jasper smiled and held Wendy’s hand before walking out of the office.

...

In Harbor City, Spencer indeed attached great importance to Jasper. As soon as he ended the call with Jasper, he immediately dialed another number.

He made a call to his son, Eustass Boyle. Currently, most of the businesses of the Boyle family were under the control of his son.

Eustass, who was having a meeting, immediately raised his hand to stop the meeting when he saw the incoming call. He ordered a group of staff from the higher management to watch over the situation while he answered the call.

“What’s up, Dad?”

Hearing Eustass’ reply made all of the higher-ups stand up straight subconsciously as if the old man was able to see them through the phone.

After listening to the words, Eustass answered and said another two sentences before hanging up the call.

A dead hush befell the conference room. Eustass loosened his necktie and asked, “Who knows if we’re cooperating with a shipbuilding company under the Zion family of Brac County in the Mainland?”

All the bosses exchanged terrified looks. ‘Who the hell is that? We’ve never heard of them before.

‘Such a trivial matter yet it made Spencer, who is half-retired, personally make a call to enquire?’

After some time, a man who was sitting at a corner of the conference room got up weakly. “Mr. Boyle, I vaguely have an impression of this name. It seems that it’s true.”

Eustass waved his hand and said, “You shouldn’t continue with the meeting. Go give them a call and tell them that we, the Boyle family, will not continue working with them.”

Eustass thought for a moment and added, “Send regards to others who are involved in the same industry. Just say this is my old man’s intention.”

‘Old man’ referred to his father, and the crowd knew the meaning as well. The identity of Eustass’ father...

The higher-ups sighed internally. ‘I wonder which unknown shipbuilding company this is. It seems they are done for this time.’

Spencer’s intention was passed on. It was foreseen in the future that anything that floated on the ocean, even if it was just a little boat, would not involve the shipbuilding company of the Zion family.

...

The plan to go against Future Industries still needed some time to take effect. However, the call from Harbor City immediately made the entire Zion family fall to their doom.

Initially, Harvey was still in a good mood.

Even though in the property industry he had lost his pride because he could not win against JW Real Estate over that piece of land, the arrangement after that incident still made Harvey rather confident that he was able to exert pressure on JW Real Estate.

Plus, their shipbuilding company had received another two boat orders. With this, the Zion family was able to enjoy their lives even without needing to work for the remaining year.

However, just when he was having his lunch, he received a call from Harbor City.

The caller, without even being courteous, immediately claimed that they were going to halt all cooperation agreements. From then on, there was no more cooperation, let alone the two orders for ships that were just placed.

At that moment, Harvey was dumbfounded.

He wanted to ask but the caller had hung up the call.

Following then, he received a call from the underlings of the shipbuilding company, saying that the caller had released an official memo to officially halt all cooperation.

The underlings were stunned, and even Harvey was stunned as well.

“What the f*ck?!” Harvey was so mad that he threw his cutleries and plate. “Who the hell is making fun of me?!”

Mark, who was sitting at the same dining table, was dumbfounded as well. “Dad, I thought our cooperation over at Harbor City was proceeding well? Why did they suddenly call off the agreement?”

Harvey was like a disgruntled bull and said through his gritted teeth, “Someone is setting us up!”

Mark thought for a moment and said, “We didn’t offend anyone, though.”

Suddenly, Mark thought of something and said with a shocked voice, “Could it be JW Real Estate?”

Mark said with his brows furrowed, “Where did JW Real Estate gain the ability to exert influence in Harbor City?”

“However... I met with the boss of JW Real Estate yesterday...”

As he said that, Mark then blurted the entire incident that occurred last night.

“You fool! JW Real Estate from the province is the one who worked with the Law family of Harbor City in developing the project on the Southface River. This incident caused a huge turmoil at that time. It’s obviously Wendy and Dawson trying to set us up through their relationship with the Law family.”

Harvey’s words were making so much sense as he spoke. He frowned and glared at Mark ruthlessly, roaring, “You useless thing! All you know is to cause trouble outside. How is it possible that Wendy will not seek revenge after you humiliated her?”

Mark’s expression was dark as he said through gritted teeth, “I also didn’t expect that lady who was so quiet to actually carry out such a cruel plan.”

“Even if she didn’t, did you think Dawson wouldn’t?!” Harvey kicked Mark’s body and roared, “You’d better go and look for Wendy right now to apologize to her. Whatever she requests you to do, you have to obey her!”

Mark’s face went pale as he said with a teary face, “Dad, if I show up before them, do you think she’ll let me off the hook?”

“Our family relies on our shipbuilding business. If this business is gone, that will be the end for the Zion family! Go over this instant! If Wendy is not satisfied, don’t ever think of coming back!” Harvey barked.

Life at the Top Chapter 244

"Alright... Alright... Alright... I'll go find them now..."

Mark could sense the anger from his father. He dared not waste a single second and immediately nodded to agree.

He made a move to search for Wendy to apologize to her.

After having a meal with Jasper, Wendy happily planned to drag him to watch a movie with her. However, she did not expect to see the person whom she did not wish to see.

Mark Zion! He was standing at the entrance of their hotel room.

Judging from the looks of it, it seemed that he had been standing there for quite some time.

"What are you doing here?"

Hearing Wendy's cold tone, Mark silently gritted his teeth. However, he had a smile on his face to try to get on her good terms.

"Miss Schuler... I-I'm here today to offer my apology.

"I've thought through it and realized that my attitude last night was terrible. I was being too arrogant. So, I purposely came here to apologize to you, Miss Schuler. I hope you'll be generous enough to forgive me."

Mark tried his best to lower his ego as he blurted the most humbling words. Even so, he cursed with the crudest words internally.

Throughout his entire life, he had never suffered such humiliation before. He engraved the entire incident in his mind and vowed to seek revenge. 'I will!'

Wendy looked at Mark coldly. Naturally, she knew that it was impossible for this person to have realized his mistakes.

'It seems that Jasper's method has already taken effect, forcing him to show up to apologize.'

Wendy let out a cold smile. Then, she spun around and looked at Jasper.

Wendy would never make any decision when it came down to dealing with outsiders. As such, she granted the final decision to Jasper.

Jasper smiled. After opening the room door, he entered with Wendy.

Since the beginning, Wendy and Jasper never reacted to Mark's apology.

They did not mention any words of forgiving him but did not comment that they would never forgive him either.

They just ditched him at the doorway!

Mark was dumbfounded. He looked at the room door that was half-closed. Finally, he gritted his teeth and followed them to enter.

Upon entering the room, he stood still in the middle of the hall. Mark saw Jasper sitting on the main seat while Wendy was... cutting an apple for Jasper!

At that moment, perhaps Mark was deeply jealous of Jasper.

'F*cker! Steve was right. Jasper is just a b*stard who relies on ladies. How dare he rely on ladies like this?!'

Since the beginning, Mark never thought that the incident had anything to do with Jasper.

In his opinion, this fight was obviously because Wendy had suffered some grievances and experienced terror last night. She then told Dawson about it, leading Dawson to arrange all of this.

As for Jasper, he was just a b*stard who relied on ladies!

Hence, seeing Jasper sitting in front of him and showing off his mightiness made Mark feel mentally uneasy!

“I’m here to apologize to Miss Schuler. Why are you sitting here? Hurry up and get lost!” Mark said in a mystifying tone.

Jasper leaned on the sofa and looked at Mark calmly. He let out a vague smile and said, “Aren’t you here to apologize? Looks like you’re not sincere enough in your apology.”

“Son of a b*tch! Why are you acting all mighty? Since when was it your turn to put on an act before me?! I’m here to apologize to Miss Schuler, not to some f*cker like you!” Mark said with a cold smile.

Wendy looked at Mark coldly. Then, she carefully cut the apple into smaller pieces and used a toothpick to poke on it. She fed them to Jasper.

That gesture explained it all.

Mark gritted his teeth. His icy yet exasperated gaze stared at both Jasper and Wendy.

In Mark’s opinion, Wendy was intentionally using someone who relied on ladies like Jasper to humiliate him.

'As for Jasper, he's an arrogant f*cker who relies on ladies. That's more disgusting!'

"I heard that your family's shipbuilding business is about to come to an end?" said Jasper faintly.

'Indeed!'

Mark clenched his fist while his expression tensed. 'Indeed, it's this stupid couple who's responsible for this.'

Mark took in a deep breath. He went all out and said coldly, "This time, I admit my defeat. Spit out what you want me to do. I just request that you'll let go of the Zion family's business!"

"Alright, nice. Being able to say this statement can at least prove that your dad didn't waste his efforts bringing you up for so many years," said Jasper with a smile.

Life at the Top Chapter 245

Mark stared at Jasper and said with a cold smile, "Shut the f*ck up. You're a b*stard who relies on ladies! You're just relying on the power of the Schuler family. I despise such a worthless man!"

Jasper got up and sauntered lazily to Mark. When he raised his head, there was a dark gleam within his eyes.

Mark did not seem to back off as he matched up to Jasper's gaze and coldly said, "What do you want?"

“Down on your knees,” said Jasper calmly.

Mark’s eyes widened. His pupils were dilated as he glared at Jasper as if he was trying to confirm whether it was Jasper who said it wrong or it was himself who misheard it.

“You want me to get down on my knees?!” Mark got so mad that he ended up laughing.

“It’s fine if you don’t kneel down.”

Jasper’s chin was in the direction of the room door that was still left half-opened. He pointed at it, saying, “The door is just right there. Off you go. I won’t be seeing you off.”

“Jasper Laine!” Mark raised his voice. “Don’t cross the limits!”

“Is it?” Jasper sneered and fixed his gaze on Mark.

Smack!

Suddenly, a slap was swung and landed on Mark’s face, leaving behind a fiery red palm mark.

“This is your last chance. If you don’t get down on your knees and apologize, then get lost!”

Mark felt the burning sensation on his face. He gritted his teeth and stared at Jasper. If it had occurred in the past, Jasper would have long ago been tortured to death by him!

However, at that moment, Jasper was with Wendy. Besides, if he failed to obtain Wendy’s forgiveness, then that would truly be the end for the Zion family’s shipbuilding company!

He had a ferocious expression as he glared at Jasper. He spun around and looked at Wendy, saying with much effort, “Miss Schuler, I—”

“Don’t talk to me.”

Wendy lowered her head and played with her phone. “I only listen to Jasp.”

Gnash!

Mark was gritting his teeth as he stared at Jasper mercilessly. He said with a miserable smile, “Do you think you have what it takes to make me get down on my knees?”

Jasper looked at Mark calmly and said, “I have no interest in your knees. When I asked you to kneel, I wanted you to kneel before Wendy to make up for the inappropriate comments you said to her last night.”

The thought of his family’s business made Mark so mad that his body was trembling when he recalled his father’s fierce and merciless gaze before he left home.

Jasper just looked at him faintly, not saying a word.

After some time, with his teeth clenched, Mark gradually lowered his head and bent his knees.

Bang!

Both of Mark’s knees knocked against the floor, letting out a deep sound.

“It’s my fault, Miss Schuler. Please forgive me.”

Mark lowered his head, and his voice was heard.

“You’re too soft. I can’t hear you.”

It was as if Mark was going all out as he raised his reddened eyes and roared, “It’s my fault, Miss Schuler! Please forgive me!”

Jasper smiled, then got back to his seat and said calmly, “Get lost!”

With both of Mark’s hands supporting his thighs, he stumbled to peel himself from the floor. Mark, with a cruel gaze, glanced over at the two people then spun around to sprint out of the room.

“Jasp, I’m afraid he won’t just let this matter end like this.” Wendy put down her phone and said to Jasper, “Earlier, did we just do something that crossed the line?”

“Obviously not. Just now, his gaze was saying that he wanted to eat us up so badly.” Jasper nodded. It was not the first time Jasper was meeting a young master from a rich family like Mark.

‘Isn’t Zayden just like him? However, right now, Zayden is not even worthy as a dog!’

“Then, will he go and do anything irrational?” asked Wendy.

Jasper smiled and said thoughtfully, “If he doesn’t become irrational, how are we going to utterly defeat the Zion family?”

Downstairs of the hotel, Mark sprinted out. He sat in the car and slammed the car door. He was panting hard, out of breath.

Bang! Mark’s punch smashed against the steering wheel. His ferocious and cruel voice echoed within the car.

“Jasper! Wendy! Just you guys wait and see! I’ll never let this matter slide aside!”

It was as if Mark had thought of something. He took out his phone and made a call, roaring into it in a hysterical manner, "Steve, come and look for me now. I want to make that lowly couple suffer like hell!"

Life at the Top Chapter 246

"I'm coming over to look for you right now, Young Master Zion!"

Steve received the call from Mark. After hanging up the call, he immediately rushed over.

In no time, he arrived at the designated place chosen by Mark. He was dumbfounded the moment he saw Mark's face.

"What's wrong, Young Master Zion?"

At that moment, Mark's face had a bright red handprint on it. His expression was extremely dark.

Steve had no idea what had happened and dared not imagine who in the entire Brac County would have the guts to hit Mark.

"I must make Jasper fall, regardless of the price I have to pay for it!"

Mark glared ruthlessly at Steve and said with a deep ferocious tone.

The corners of Steve's mouth twitched. He had the desire to enquire the reason but he gulped down his saliva as he had no guts to blurt out another comment.

He thought to himself, 'Could it be it was Jasper who personally hit Mark?

'No matter what, Mark vows to make Jasper fall. This is great news!'

Indeed, Steve did not think into it. His deep voice sounded as he said to Mark, “Young Master Zion, if you really want to make them fall, I have an idea which will definitely make them wish they were dead instead of alive.”

Mark stared at Steve and said evilly, “Stop beating around the bush and spit it out!”

Steve chuckled and said, “Young Master Zion, no matter how great Jasper and Wendy are, they’re just two ordinary beings. We can find someone with a much more powerful ability to beat Jasper till he’s disabled, then kidnap Wendy.

“At that time, won’t it be your call to do whatever you want to a beauty like Wendy? Even if you rape her in front of Jasper, he can only lie on the ground and roar all he wants.”

Hearing Steve’s comment made Mark’s eyes sparkle. His mind was flooding with images of Jasper being beaten till he was covered with blood and lying on the ground. Meanwhile, Wendy was tied up, allowing him to go on top of her body.

Mark felt a warm sensation coursing through his body as if the slap on his face no longer hurt.

However, in the next second, Mark hesitated and said, “But Dawson is not someone we should simply go against. If we do that—”

“Dawson is the richest man in the entire province and naturally cares for his pride. If such a thing happens to his daughter, will he even have the dignity to spread the news out?”

Steve counter-questioned, and on his face was a devilish expression.

He knew that he would not be able to obtain Wendy’s heart. However, even if he could not gain it, he would want to at least destroy Wendy.

'Aren't you a goddess? Aren't you someone who's always at the top? Aren't you always looking at me disdainfully?

'Then, I might as well instigate Mark to rape you. We'll see whether you'll still be able to act all elegant then!'

Steve, who was out of his mind because of the jealousy and hatred that was dwelling within him, was utterly delighted.

"Young Master Zion, you're the young master of the Zion family! You have a prestigious status. When everything is settled, there's no turning back. The Schuler family will have no choice but to give in. After all, the incident has already happened. It's either Dawson makes a fuss about the incident and allows everyone in the province to tease him, or he'll just have to acknowledge you as his son-in-law. If he's smart, he won't choose the former.

"With that being said, not only will you counter them and obtain victory, but you'll also obtain Wendy. What's more important is during that time, it'll be up to you how you'd like to torment Jasper, the man who only relies on ladies."

Hearing Steve's analysis made Mark squint his eyes. The evil gleam within his eyes was getting more intense.

"Not bad, not bad!"

Mark patted Steve's shoulder and said, "If this matter is a success, in the future, your family's Future Industries will be the Zion family's business partner."

Life at the Top Chapter 247

Steve was thrilled. He could no longer suppress the smile that was plastered on his face. He took the opportunity and said, “Young Master Zion, the most crucial point in this plan is to look for a person who is reliable yet has a great ability to help you kidnap Wendy, and in the meantime, he can finish Jasper off too.

“And I happen to know such a person.”

Mark said excitedly, “Great. Indeed even the gods are helping me out. Hurry, go summon this person over here. Remember, the guy must be a reliable one”

...

At Brac County General Hospital.

“Where’s Cathy’s family?” a nurse shouted out loud into the hall that was filled with people.

A man, who was not even 180cm in height, stepped over. He had a physique that was not bulky but still emanated a sharp cold aura.

“I’m her younger brother,” said Julian to the nurse.

The nurse sighed and stuffed a pile of bills into Julian’s hand, saying, “These are Cathy’s bills for this week. Right now, the account is stating that you haven’t paid for the bills. Hurry and go collect the funds.”

After the nurse left, Julian stared at the big stack of bills in his hand. His stern face revealed sorrow and torment.

Ever since his sister was diagnosed with leukemia, the siblings had used up their entire savings. The prize money he previously won from martial arts tournaments and the money earned through his performances all these years was way too trivial in amount when dealing with leukemia.

Julian gritted his teeth and came to the ward upstairs. A lady with a fragile look on her face was sitting on the hospital bed. It was his elder sister, Cathy.

“You should take a good rest, Sis. In the afternoon, you’re going for dialysis,” said Julian.

Cathy sighed and said, “Jul, we don’t have any money already, right?”

Julian forced out a smile. “Don’t worry, Sis. I’ll go borrow some from my friends. You don’t have to worry about the money.”

It was impossible that Cathy could not see through Julian’s intention to comfort her. She said, “Jul, let’s go home. I don’t want to be treated. One session of dialysis costs more than 200,000. We don’t even have the money. Furthermore, we can’t find suitable bone marrow. I’ll still be gone either way.”

Julian put on a stubborn look and said, “No way, Sis! Even if I have to go all out, I’ll make sure you’re treated. Don’t worry about the money. I’ll think of a way!”

Just when the siblings were in an argument, Julian’s phone rang.

Julian walked out of the ward and answered the call.

After half an hour, Julian came to a private room in a restaurant.

Steve, the person who called him, was sitting in the room with Mark. They had been waiting for his arrival.

Seeing that Julian had come in, Steve spun around and faced Mark before saying with a giggle, “Young Master Zion, this is the good fighter I was talking about.”

“He started training in boxing at the age of five. At the age of eight, he started going into professional boxing. At the age of 15, he managed to achieve good results in the boxing industry and became champion in the national boxing tournament in the youth category. He’s a three-time back to back champion in the 60 kilograms category. He’s a rare fighter and one of the best in the entire country, let alone in Brac County.”

Mark’s eyes glittered the more he heard. He nodded and said, “Not bad. He has the required ability.”

Steve smiled proudly, spun around, and said to Julian, “This is Young Master Zion. He needs you for a favor. Once the matter is done, you may immediately leave with one million.”

Julian’s breathing became heavier when he heard the one million figure.

In terms of fighting ability, he was confident he could defeat everyone in the country of the same age group as him. However, because of a small incident, he was unable to proceed further. Currently, Julian was in need of money. For the sake of the money, he was willing to do anything.

Mark took out a photo of Jasper and Wendy, which had been taken in secret, and tossed it onto the table. He said, “These two people are now at Marriott Hotel. Go beat this guy till he’s disabled, then kidnap this lady. When you’re done, inform me. It’s as simple as that!”

Life at the Top Chapter 248

On the other hand, Wendy and Jasper had almost spent the entire day playing outside.

That day, Wendy had played with much excitement. She had never been that happy in her life.

They had strolled along the streets, watched movies, had snacks, and even took a trip to the amusement park.

It was just that Wendy was not that brave. Those thrilling rides such as the drop tower, she had no guts to ride. Finally, she yanked Jasper over to ride two rounds on the carousel...

Jasper followed along with her plans. It was a rare occasion for Wendy to be this happy, and he was happy as well that he relaxed for a moment.

While they were heading back to the hotel from the snack street, Wendy was so tired that she dozed off.

Jasper took out his phone and saw that there were about ten missed calls from Xavier. He finally called back.

“Mr. Johnson, I was accompanying my girlfriend earlier. Is there anything the matter?” asked Jasper calmly.

Judging from the way Xavier was looking for Jasper in such an urgent manner, perhaps Xavier had already verified some information regarding the matter that Jasper told him about earlier in the morning.

“Mr. Laine, I’ve finally got through to you.”

Xavier could not help but let out a bitter smile when he heard Jasper's casual 'reason'.

However, he dared not say anything unrelated and immediately said, "Regarding the matter you told me about today, I sent someone to check on it when I got back. It's not looking too good. Humans are truly unpredictable."

Jasper smiled as he replied, "Since ancient times, the hardest thing to predict is a person's thoughts. Since you've already gained some insights, then I believe you'll agree with my plan, right?"

Xavier said with a deep voice, "Although I've found some traces, there's no evidence yet. It's just that I can already sense something even without the evidence. Regarding your plan, I'll carry it out to the best of my ability.

"I've already contacted a few suppliers who are very powerful. No one will be able to refuse the generous terms I'm going to offer them. Tomorrow, I'll be sure to cut off Future Industries' entire supply chain!"

Jasper said with a smile, "Nice one. Tomorrow, the first batch of funds for the cooperation between JW Real Estate and Ambition Corporation will be credited. In regards to those suppliers, you ought to bear in mind to be careful when signing contracts with them."

Xavier nodded and said, "Got it. You can rest assured about that, Mr. Laine... It's just that, aren't you afraid I won't keep to my promise after you credit those funds to me tomorrow?"

At that moment, the car had come to a halt at the entrance of Marriott Hotel. Jasper opened the car door and helped Wendy step down from the car. While he was walking to the lobby of the hotel, he said, "You won't have the guts, Mr. Johnson."

Xavier kept quiet for a long time and suddenly said with laughter, "Mr. Laine, I realized being your friend is much more assuring than making an enemy out of you."

"I'll wait for your good news tomorrow."

Jasper smiled and hung up the call.

As soon as he put down his phone, Jasper noticed the moment when he entered through the doors, a man got up and walked toward him with clear motives.

'There's danger!'

Jasper looked at the face that was very familiar in his memory, but it was a face that looked far too young. He suddenly spun around and said to Wendy, "Do me a favor and head over to the lounge area to order some supper for me, alright?"

Wendy was puzzled. Jasper did not have the habit of having supper. What was more, they had both just returned from the snack street.

However, since Jasper had already spoken, Wendy did not think any further and obediently answered him. She then spun around to head over to the lounge area beside the lobby.

Wendy and Julian passed by each other.

Julian saw Wendy's back figure. Then, with a dark expression, he came to Jasper.

Having lived two lives after being reborn, he had made lots of enemies. Jasper could sense that the man who was approaching him posed a very dangerous threat to himself.

However in Brac County, who would arrange for someone to cause him trouble?
Could it be Mark?

'Except for him, there's no one else!'

Before Jasper could speak, Julian beat him to it. "Someone gave me money, asking me to do him a favor. I'm sorry!"

After saying this, Julian bowed deeply to Jasper without any prior warning.

Julian only practiced boxing due to interest and it being a hobby. Boxing was his life's passion, but he never thought that one day, he would use this ability to commit a crime.

Plus, it was against two strangers too.

Life at the Top Chapter 249

However, Julian had no way out. He had to do it for the sake of money!

Julian planned to immediately take action once he was done talking and bowing, but when he straightened his body, Jasper suddenly spoke.

"If your sister who has leukemia finds out that you're helping the evil commit a crime all for the sake of money, she will never forgive you even after she's dead."

Julian's pupils quickly shrunk. He stared at Jasper and stood frozen on the ground.

He was dumbfounded.

Jasper looked at Julian and sighed internally.

Very few people knew of Julian. After five years, he would astonish the entire nation using another name.

Rexy, the fighting monk!

He learned boxing, and he was the first one to defeat 18 people in one go throughout the 50 years of boxing history. With his ability, he had made a name for himself.

He was not just a master of boxing. He was familiar with other fighting styles including mixed martial arts.

He had truly mastered all sorts of fighting styles.

Later on, he went to join a world tournament and had a winning streak with 22 consecutive wins. He never lost a match.

With the status of a 60-kilogram athlete, he used only 15 seconds to knock out the boxing king of 110 kilograms, creating himself the title of 'The Legendary Fighting Monk.'

During Julian's interview after that, he revealed that his biggest regret in his life was to witness his biological sister being tortured to death because of leukemia.

Many leukemia patients could not find suitable bone marrow donors and passed away. However, his sister had actually found a bone marrow donor that was compatible, but because they did not have the money for the transplant surgery, she ended up dying on the hospital bed with regret.

That was Julian's greatest pain.

Calculating the timing, this was when Cathy, the Fighting Monk or Julian's sister, was being tormented by leukemia.

If there were no accidents, Cathy would pass away after another half a year.

Then, Julian would give himself the name Remy the Fighting Monk. He would give his all to learn fighting for four years and became famous.

Jasper did not expect Mark to be able to look for Julian.

If it was another person, Jasper would really be in trouble. However, he knew that deep within Julian's heart laid the spirit of a knight.

Adding to the words he said earlier, Jasper was confident that he was able to make Julian return to the bright side from the dark side.

"I know your sister has leukemia. Right now, you two siblings are very poor to the point where you can't pay for the hospital bills. You're on the brink of being chased out of the hospital. But I can help you," Jasper stared at Julian and said.

Julian stared at Jasper and said with a deep tone, "How do you know about me and my sister?"

"There are very few things in the world that I'm not aware of." Jasper let out a smile because he could feel the kindness that was still in Julian. If there was still a ray of hope, he would never take this path.

As for Jasper, he could give him hope. Not just hope, but a path that was bright and where he could cure his sister!

"I even know that it was Mark who made you come forth, am I right?"

Jasper's comment made Julian speechless.

Being silent would mean he had agreed to it silently.

Jasper said with a smile, “Think about it. Mark sent you to go against me. Once things are settled, he’ll be holding on to your weak point. Do you think you’ll be able to shake off his set-up?”

Julian’s expression changed for the worst. At that moment, he did not think much as to why Jasper knew so much about his matters. Instead, he was starting to reconsider Mark’s intention.

Earlier, it was because of his mindset to get the money to save his sister that he did not consider the outcome. However, at this moment, he started to hesitate!

“Mark doesn’t dare to come and look for me but got you to fight me instead. That means he’s afraid of me. Think about it, if anything happens to me, do you think you’ll be able to escape?”

Julian’s expression became dark as he said, “I can’t be bothered too much right now. I just need the money!”

“I can give you the money! And I can even give you the bone marrow that can save your sister!”

Life at the Top Chapter 250

Jasper’s words impressed Julian.

He certainly did not want to break the law if he could.

What did it matter if he was strong?

Was he able to fight the law?

During this time, he had clearly understood that personal strength meant nothing in the world.

Only wealth and power mattered.

As for Jasper, his calm and unhurried demeanor since the start made him so much more powerful than Mark or Steve.

“How can I trust you?” Julian asked.

Jasper chuckled when he realized that Julian was having a change of heart. “How much did Mark give you?”

“One million,” Julian answered honestly.

“What a big deal,” Jasper said quietly.

Then, Jasper took his phone and made a phone call in front of Julian.

“Hi, Mr. Lambert, it’s me. Withdraw two million in cash from the company’s vault. You have 30 minutes.”

Then, Jasper hung up and turned toward Julian to say, “So, can we sit down and talk now?”

Julian stared intently at Jasper before he nodded.

Jasper treated Julian to supper in the lounge.

He was full and did not feel like eating anything, so he just got himself and Wendy a drink each.

As for Julian, he was so broke from using all his money to purchase Cathy's medicine that he had not eaten for two days.

Besides, he was a martial artist, which further increased his body's need for food. Thus, he managed to eat enough for eight in one sitting...

Wendy's eyes widened in shock as she looked at the number of empty plates.

"Who is he? He has such a large appetite. Are you sure nothing will happen?" Wendy asked as she poked Jasper.

Jasper smiled. "He's the bodyguard I've set my eyes on. He's great in combat."

Wendy batted her eyes. She was born into a rich family and thus was familiar with the concept of bodyguards. Her father's bodyguards were usually retired members of elite troops, and they could beat up six people in one go.

Other things aside, Wendy felt that Julian could defeat five or six of her dad's bodyguards in terms of appetite alone.

Half an hour later, Mr. Lambert sprinted toward the hotel with a combination lock case.

Panting, Mr. Lambert placed the case down and glanced at the time.

29 minutes and 30 seconds!

Mr. Lambert let out a breath.

"Thanks for your hard work."

Jasper looked at Mr. Lambert, who had thrown on his clothes haphazardly after being roused from bed, as he spoke.

“No worries. As long as I didn’t hold up any procedures.”

Mr. Lambert was a smart man who made his leave after replying respectfully.

Jasper pushed the case toward Julian and motioned for him to open it.

When Julian opened the case, he saw 200 bundles of 100 dollar bills placed neatly inside it.

Excitement flashed through Julian’s eyes as he said to Jasper, “What... What do you want me to do?”

“Nothing much. I just want to be friends,” Jasper replied smoothly.

Julian was startled.

Was this how rich people acted?

They would spend two million dollars just to become your friend?

However, Julian was not stupid. He knew which side he should be on after doing a cost-benefit analysis.

Steve and Mark wanted him to break the law, but it was obvious that Jasper would not let him do that. His sister had also taught him since he was a child to be a law-abiding citizen.

“Steve was the one who got in touch with me, and the other person you’re referring to must be Mark. Steve paid me to do stuff for Mark. He wanted me to come meet you at this hotel and...

“...beat you up and then kidnap her.”

Julian paused before saying, “Before I left, I heard them saying that Mark will humiliate her in front of you so that you’ll beg for death before they did what had to be done...”

The expression on Wendy’s face turned frosty after hearing that. She was angry.

“How vile and shameless! I never expected them to be like that!”

Life at the Top Chapter 251

Jasper remained calm as he tapped Wendy on the arm, signaling for her to calm down.

“I’ll take care of these two,” Jasper said.

Wendy nodded and said angrily, “Jasp, you must teach them a lesson this time.”

“Teach them a lesson?”

Jasper smiled as he said slowly, “I’ve already taught them a lesson, but it seems that they aren’t in touch with reality yet. Lessons... aren’t enough for people like them.”

Jasper was smiling, but Wendy, who knew him like the back of her hand, knew he was furious.

Wendy knew Jasper was this angry because Mark had malicious intentions toward her. Her heart glowed with the warmth of that knowledge.

“I’m going to have to trouble you with something.”

Jasper said to Julian, “Call them and tell them that your plan has succeeded.”

Julian did not understand what was going on, but he could sense the iciness hidden within the calm expression on Jasper’s face.

Without asking more questions, he nodded and took his phone out to make the call.

...

In a restaurant near Marriott Hotel.

Mark and Steve smoked on cigarettes as they stared at the silent phone on the table, panic building within them.

Suddenly, the phone rang.

Steve immediately answered the phone.

A while later, he hung up and smiled broadly at Mark. "Young Master Zion, it's done."

Mark stood and suppressed his excitement as he asked, "Really?"

Steve nodded and said, "That was Julian on the phone. He told me that he has successfully taken control of Jasper and Wendy. All we need now is for you to grace them with your presence, Young Master Zion."

Mark laughed uproariously as he clapped Steve on the back gleefully. "Not bad! I'll remember your contributions in this matter!"

Steve laughed with him as he said sinisterly, "I wonder how wild Jasper and Wendy will be this time."

"Don't worry, I'll make sure you get the chance to humiliate Jasper. I'll make him lie on the floor and watch me have fun with Wendy," Mark guffawed as he said.

The two excited men hurriedly stood up and set out toward Marriott Hotel.

Within ten minutes, Mark had brought Steve to the door of the suite.

Mark could not conceal the delighted grin on his face as he knocked on the door.

Just today, Jasper had slapped him and forced him to crawl out of the room. Now, he was back!

Everything had come to a full circle. Now, he was going to step on Jasper's face and ask him who was the actual winner!

As for Wendy Schuler, she could pretend to be high and mighty all she liked. He would see if she could continue maintaining that aristocratic persona of hers after he ripped her clothes off!

Her screams must be music to the ears!

Mark's face turned red from excitement as he imagined the scene. He could not wait.

The door soon opened.

Julian was standing behind the door.

"Hahaha, good one, Julian. I admire you!" Mark laughed as he spoke to Julian.

Then, he pushed the door open to enter.

Steve followed behind him.

Julian watched them enter the room before he calmly closed the door and locked it.

Mark and Steve must not have noticed that in their excitement.

The minute he entered the room, Mark roared with laughter as he yelled, "Jasper Laine, you didn't expect this, did you? I'm back! I can do anything I want to you in Brac County! It's too late to be sorry now..."

“Jasper... you...”

Mark realized that Jasper was sitting comfortably on the couch when he strode into the room.

He forgot what he was about to say.

Silence took the place of his arrogant, smug voice as if someone had wrapped their hands around his throat.

Jasper swirled the glass of red wine he was holding and raised it at Mark and Steve, who were shocked to their cores as he smiled.

He looked calm and elegant.

“Young Master Zion, are you surprised?”

Life at the Top Chapter 252

Mark and Steve felt as if they were going crazy.

Their elation fell from the heights of heaven to the pits of hell the minute they saw Jasper... They did not know what to do.

They really did not know what to do.

In their imagination, Jasper had been lying in a pool of blood, ready to either hurl curses or get on his knees and beg when he saw them.

No matter what, he should not be sitting on the couch in one piece and sipping on red wine, looking as if he was awaiting their arrival?!

Who was the mastermind in their elaborately planned scheme?

Steve began sweating profusely as he panicked.

Mark's lips trembled as the sparkle left his eyes.

Instinctively, the two looked at Julian together.

Julian had a calm expression on his face as he walked toward the couch Jasper was sitting on. He stood at attention.

An answer that Mark was reluctant to accept surfaced in his mind as he looked at Julian, who stared back with an indifferent expression.

They had been betrayed by Julian!

"Julian Lager, you dare betray me!?" Steve stared at Julian in shock and roared in anger after understanding what was going on.

Julian did not answer, acting as if he had not heard anything.

Mark was so angry that he turned and slapped Steve. Gritting his teeth, he said, "This is the reliable person you found!? A f*cking backstabber!?"

Steve was shocked by Mark's slap.

He turned his head to the other side, afraid to meet Mark's furious expression. His entire being had been consumed by feelings of fear and trepidation.

Where had his smugness vanished to now?

Jasper inclined his head and downed the rest of the wine before he gently placed the glass on the side table.

“I suppose that’s all you have?”

When he heard Jasper, Mark took a deep breath and shuddered as he said, “Jasper... No, Brother Laine, this is all that idiot Steve Quare’s fault. He’s the one who coerced me into this. I never wanted to seek revenge against you. He was also the one who got in contact with Julian!

“Brother Laine, please forgive me.”

Mark had not imagined this would happen. His father had wanted him to apologize, and indeed he had come over to apologize earlier.

However, he had been angered by the humiliation and thus orchestrated this plan.

He did not dare imagine what would happen when his family learned of this accident that would undoubtedly affect his family’s shipyard.

Thus, Mark decided to grovel first. No matter what, he would sell out Steve first. What was important was soothing Jasper’s temper.

Steve could not believe that Mark was selling him out. He said furiously, “Mark Zion, you were the one who contacted me in the first place to help you find—”

He had not finished speaking when Mark, who was beside him, kicked him aside and roared angrily, “Would I be in this mess if it weren’t for you? F*cking shut your trap!”

“Enough.”

Jasper's voice rang out, stopping the two from ripping each other to shreds any further.

"Young Master Zion, we're all adults here. Don't treat the other party like an idiot. Wouldn't it be nice to just let things go?"

Then, Jasper's gaze landed on Steve, who had a hurt and furious expression on his face. He chuckled as he said, "Steve Quare is a lapdog at best. Would he have the guts to do something like this?"

Mark calmed down after hearing that. He took a deep breath and gazed intently at Jasper as he asked, "What do you want?"

"What do I want?" Jasper's tone was light and playful as if he was talking to a friend.

However, in the blink of an eye, Jasper had grabbed the wine glass on the table and smashed it on Mark's head.

The glass shattered into countless tiny pieces with a crash.

Life at the Top Chapter 253

Mark yelled out in pain as he stumbled backward with his head in his hands. Blood oozed out between his fingers.

Jasper took a napkin and carefully cleaned the stains on his fingers. The gaze he directed at Mark and Steve was impossibly cold.

"It's normal that you want to attack me, but we only look at a man's power.

“If I lost, that means my ability isn’t up to par. Then I should surrender myself to you.

“However, that means you should do the same if you’ve lost.

“You should have never, ever, directed any of your filthy thoughts toward my woman.”

Mark felt his head throbbing and spinning as he raised it to look at Jasper. At that moment, he did not bother taking any more chances and decided he might as well say while grinning evilly, “Shut the f*ck up with your bullsh*t! Of course, you’re in the right when you’ve won!

“Kill me if you can!

“But do you dare to?

“Do you really f*cking dare kill me?

“You’ll have to pay a life with a life if you kill me!

“I’m the sole heir to the Zion family. You dare kill me while you’re in Brac County?”

Jasper laughed as he looked at Mark who still insisted on having the last say even when there was no chance of escape for him.

“I love seeing how emboldened you are. To you, your family losing its power would be much more painful than dying, wouldn’t it?

“If I can cause the Zion family’s shipbuilding company to go out of business, I can treat the entire Zion family as my playthings. When that happens, you, Mark Zion, will be worth even less than a b*tch in Brac County.”

Jasper patted Mark on the cheek and chuckled while saying, "You've made quite a number of enemies in Brac County over the years, haven't you? Many would like to kill you even more than I do. Why would I dirty my hands with your blood?"

Mark's pupils dilated when he heard that. He screamed, "It was you who contacted Harbor City and not Dawson Schuler?! You were behind all this?!"

"Who the f*ck are you?!"

"What the hell do you want?!"

Mark had flown into a state of genuine panic.

It was because he had realized that the actual mastermind behind this since the start was Jasper Laine, someone he had never paid attention to.

This had all been masterminded by Jasper.

How else could Julian's betrayal be explained?

How else could Jasper's calmness be explained?

However... How was that possible?

Was he not a poor b*tch? Where did he gain the power to influence the tycoons of Harbor City?

Fear washed over Mark as he thought about that. He suddenly realized that Jasper was filled with secrets and power.

Perhaps he could actually do what he claimed and sabotage the entire Zion family.

Mark did not dare imagine what would happen to him, who had made countless enemies in Brac County over the years, if that happened.

It would be an attack on the enemy while they were down!

Jasper smiled slightly. "I'll give you another chance. Call your dad and get him to come to talk to me."

The corners of Mark's mouth twitched slightly with both fear and disbelief.

He could not think of any reason why Jasper would do that.

However, he understood that the situation was out of his control now. No matter what, he had to make that phone call.

Mark got out his phone with difficulty and dialed his dad's number.

Jasper walked toward Steve and asked calmly, "How would you like to die?"

Life at the Top Chapter 254

Steve shuddered when he heard what Jasper said.

He had realized something just by listening to Mark speak.

Which was that Jasper had used some sort of method to cause not only Mark but the entire Zion family to suffer extreme losses.

Then, he remembered when he met Mark today. Mark had a handprint on his face and was so furious that he could not wait to swallow Jasper whole...

Steve realized that he was in deep trouble now.

He did not have a background as powerful as Mark's. His family could not even be called a prestigious family. It was just that his family's company had the slightest bit of fame and fortune in Brac County...

With this little capital, how could he fight against Jasper who could cause the Zion family to suffer extreme losses?

"Jasper, we were classmates... We were high school classmates for three whole years. You'll keep that in mind, won't you?"

"I know I've made a mistake. How about I kneel to you? I'll get on my knees and beg for forgiveness!"

As he spoke, Steve fell to his knees and slapped himself without hesitation in front of Jasper.

Steve poured all his efforts into trying to live, slapping himself loudly each time. Within minutes, his cheeks had turned red and swollen.

Jasper narrowed his eyes as he stared at Steve who looked as red as a roasted pig.

To him, Mark was nothing more than a worthless rich kid who was spoiled. He had neither the guts nor brains to be useful to him.

However, Steve was different. He was more intelligent than he seemed and was much eviler. Steve was the one who had instructed Julian on what to do today.

If that had not been enough, Steve could even grovel in the blink of an eye when plans failed. Even a casual onlooker could feel the pain from his slaps.

However, that did not mean Steve was easier to deal with than Mark.

They were the truly poisonous ones. If you did not kill them now, they would cause you more trouble in the future.

Jasper watched quietly as Steve slapped himself repeatedly. He made no action to stop Steve, nor did he say a single word.

Soon, Steve had slapped himself so much that he began seeing stars in his vision. His cheeks were numb, and blood oozed from the corners of his mouth.

When he finally lost the strength in his arms to continue hitting himself, he said to Jasper, "Please forgive me. I swear that I'll be a decent person in the future. I won't cause you any more trouble."

Jasper smiled slightly. It seemed as if he was going to forgive him.

Then, Jasper pulled out his phone just as Steve allowed a flare of hope to ignite in his heart.

He called Xavier Johnson who answered the phone swiftly.

"How do you do, Mr. Laine?" Xavier sounded both confused and respectful.

"Do you dare become the lord of Brac County's building materials industry tonight?"

Xavier sat upright in bed when he heard what Jasper said. His breathing became quick and labored.

"Yes!" Xavier said in a low voice.

"Alright, spread the news then. Once done, contact the suppliers that you've been in touch with and arrange a meeting with them at Future Industries to settle previous payments."

Xavier's heart thumped as he asked, "Mr. Laine, has something changed?"

Jasper turned to look at Steve who had a confused and terrified expression on his face. "Steve Quare is beside me."

That one short sentence was enough for Xavier to realize that something sensitive and sinister was going on. He repressed his curiosity as he said, "I'll get to it immediately. I'll give you my word that the front doors of Future Industries will soon be filled with people looking for payment."

Jasper smiled and asked, "You're in the building materials industry. Your cash flow is supported by default payments and bank loans, right?"

Xavier nodded and said, "Yes. We usually pay a settlement of 40% and then pay the rest of the money periodically. That accounts for half of our cash flow. Bank loans support the other half."

Life at the Top Chapter 255

"Do what you're supposed to do. Tomorrow, no bank in Brac County will issue a loan to Future Industries, and they'll start demanding payments for loans that have already been made."

When Jasper finished speaking, he did not wait for Xavier's surprised reply before hanging up the phone.

At that moment, Steve felt the top of his head go numb as he stared at Jasper.

Jasper was going to kill his entire family!

“What... What are you doing?! Who did you call?!” Steve’s voice shook while he asked his questions.

“Who would most enjoy seeing Future Industries fail in the entire Brac County?” Jasper asked calmly.

Steve shuddered as he roared, “What the f*ck do you want to do?!”

Jasper ignored Steve.

It was because Harvey Zion had arrived.

Harvey had been discussing tactics with his brothers when Mark called him.

All orders for their shipbuilding company had been canceled, and Harbor City refused to give them a chance for a discussion. Harvey could not have kept it a secret from them even if he tried.

Relationships were a complex thing within a family business. Harvey might be the head of the family, but he was not yet at the stage where he could control everything.

He was furious when he heard that Mark, whom he had asked to apologize, did not bear good news. Rather, he was now being held captive at a hotel.

In his opinion, JW Real Estate was showing no respect for the Zion family at all.

The Zion family might be at fault here, but they were still one of the tyrants of Brac County. If JW Real Estate was so aggressive that they not only refused to accept their apology but even captured one of his people, would that not be a loud slap to the face?

Thus, Harvey immediately left with two of his best bodyguards.

When he arrived at the hotel room, Harvey immediately spotted Mark who had his hands wrapped around his bleeding head. He also saw Steve whose face had swollen to twice its size as he knelt before Jasper. His eyes narrowed.

“You’re Jasper Laine?” Harvey asked quietly.

Jasper replied calmly, “You’re the head of the Zion family?”

Harvey huffed, not thinking of Jasper as someone important. He said, “Where’s Dawson Schuler? I want to speak to him. Does he think I would negotiate with any runty scamps he sends my way?”

Jasper shook his head. “Negotiate? I think you’ve made a mistake.

“Besides, we don’t need to trouble him with matters like this. I can take care of it myself.”

Harvey scoffed angrily. “Dawson is too arrogant for his own good. He should know his place as the richest man in the province and me as the tyrant of Brac County. Does he really think the Zion family will sit back on their laurels as he bullies us?!”

“Dad!”

Mark yelled out desperately as he tried to tell Harvey that Jasper was the mastermind behind everything.

However, Harvey frowned and interrupted his son when he saw the state Mark was in. “Stop talking. I’ll take you to the hospital now.”

As he spoke, he got ready to take Mark with him.

Jasper’s low voice rang out. “Who dares leave this room without my permission?”

Julian, who had been standing behind him, stepped forth. He roared as he cracked his knuckles, which sounded more like he was popping corn. It caused goosebumps to appear on one's flesh.

The expressions on the faces of the two bodyguards Harvey had brought along stiffened as they stood in front of their boss. "Boss, this is not someone we can mess with."

Harvey had a furious expression on his face.

This was the first time he had been threatened in Brac County!

Life at the Top Chapter 256

“Dad, this was all Jasper’s doing!

“He was the one who contacted the people at Harbor City!

“We’ve all been fooled by him!”

Jasper finally found an opportunity to yell out desperately.

He sounded miserable. It was as if he had finally gotten the chance to bed a beautiful woman but it turned out she had a thicker schlong than him.

Harvey’s eyes widened after hearing that. He stared at Jasper in disbelief.

The expression on his face and the look in his eyes looked identical to the one Mark showed just moments ago.

Then, Harvey laughed.

“Not bad. I’ve been making my way around Brac County for more than 20 years, but this is the first time I’ve had a youngster run circles around me.

“You’re Jasper Laine, aren’t you? Well done. That was wonderfully executed.”

Harvey pushed his bodyguards aside and stared straight into Jasper’s eyes as he said calmly, “You’ve proven yourself by being able to deceive me at this age. Tell me, what do you want?”

Jasper stood behind the couch, using it to rest his arms. He seemed to be smiling as he stared at Harvey and said coolly, "So, you think I'm doing all this to prove my worth to you?"

Harvey's face fell as he said, "Young man, you were still in your mother's womb when I took charge of the Zion family's business. It's worth more than ten billion dollars! I would advise you not to get too snooty."

"Is ten billion a lot?" Jasper asked calmly.

Harvey was angry now. In a cold voice, he said, "Don't be too arrogant. Not even Dawson would speak like that to me."

"That means you're not on that level yet. You might think you're in high society, but those actually in it can't even be bothered to look at you," Jasper said playfully as he shrugged.

"The larger the crowd, the higher the number of idiots. You're one of those idiots. Do you think you're royalty after making a name for yourself in Brac County, which was just a municipality a while ago?"

Harvey's expression stiffened as he listened to Jasper speak. He roared, "The audacity! And who do you think you are? God?!"

Jasper smiled as he pointed at Mark. "I'm not God, but your son is."

Mark's face turned as white as a sheet when he remembered he had uttered those words before Jasper.

Standing in front of the father and son, Jasper took out his phone once again.

Harvey and Mark had a somber expression on their faces when they saw Jasper do that. Steve was so afraid that he shuddered.

Mere moments ago, Jasper had used his phone to make a call that would cause his family's business, Future Industries, to suffer from extermination.

What was he going to do with his phone now?

Was he going to piss all over the Zion family?

Steve shuddered, his eyes wide with fear.

Jasper dialed Dawson's number.

Soon, Dawson's sleepy voice rang out across the line.

"Jasper, what's the matter?"

Jasper smiled as he said, "I've made matters clear on my end. You can begin exerting pressure from the province, Uncle Schuler. I've already dealt with the Zion family's shipyard. You can ask your friends from other industries for help."

Dawson grabbed his glasses from the bedside table and walked toward the study.

He did not ask for a reason, nor did he ask for details about the Zion family. He simply answered, "Alright."

One word was enough.

Schuler Group had recently been transitioning into the real estate industry and causing economic growth. Thus, they were extremely important to both the provincial and city government.

As Schuler Group's fame and power rose, so did the number of people who wanted to curry favors with them.

Thus, Dawson could not care less about who the Zion family was. If Jasper said they were to be defeated, he would make use of his resources to ensure that was done.

After Jasper hung up, he looked at Harvey whose eyes were glinting despite the stony expression on his face. He said calmly, "You were right about one thing."

Both Harvey and Mark looked at him.

"If I did the math correctly, I was indeed still swimming in my mother's womb when you took over the Zion family's business."

Then, Jasper shrugged and walked over to Harvey from the couch. He still had a calm smile on his face.

"However, now that I'm out of my mom's womb, I'm in such a high position that you wouldn't be able to see it even if you incline your head and stand on your tiptoes.

"Meanwhile, you're still rolling around in your business that's worth a measly billions of dollars."

Jasper's words stung Harvey as much as if he had been slapped.

It felt as if a layer of his flesh had been scraped off his face.

Just then, the ear-piercing sound of a phone ringing echoed.

It was Steve's phone.

He felt terrified beyond measure as he answered the call.

His father roared furiously on the other end of the line.

“Where are you?! Hurry back! All our suppliers are demanding payment right now!

“And you’re still loitering?! Get your ass back right now!”

Steve’s lips trembled as he said, nearly on the verge of tears, “Dad, we’re done for. We’re all done for.”

The furious man was stunned for a moment before he said through heavy breaths, “What do you mean?”

Steve lay paralyzed on the floor, his eyes vacant as he stared at Jasper and said, “It’s not just us. The Zion family is done for as well.”

As if it had been a signal, Harvey’s phone rang as well.

Harvey answered the phone with great difficulty.

His brother, whom he had posted at Ambition Corporation as a spy, was on the other end of the line.

“Brother, they know who I am. Xavier Johnson’s men are on the hunt for me now. Brother, what should I do?”

“I just went home, and the entire family is in chaos. All our partners want to dissolve their contracts with us!

“What’s going on!?”

Amidst the chaos, Harvey lost the strength in his arms. As his phone fell to the ground, he could still hear his brother’s desperate voice.

Harvey shuddered and stared at Jasper with wide eyes. “Who the f*ck are you?!”

“Jasper Laine. J for Julius, L for Lord.”

Jasper relayed this coolly to Harvey before he placed his hands behind his back and left the room.

Julian was right behind Jasper. He did not give the room a second glance as he walked after Jasper.

Mark was as white as a sheet as he stared at Harvey, who had a hideous expression on his face. He asked nervously, “Dad, what should we do?”

Life at the Top Chapter 257

Harvey’s face turned a bright shade of red as he curled his hands into fists and roared like a wounded animal.

“What should we do? How am I supposed to know that?!”

Harvey glared at Mark before he raised a hand to give Mark a resounding slap across the face.

“I asked you to come to apologize. Is this how you apologize?! Huh?!”

As Harvey bellowed, his vision went black and he nearly collapsed onto the ground.

In the end, he gritted his teeth and said, “The Zion family will preserve whatever power it can. As for the rest... we’ll talk about them in the future!”

...

Jasper had gotten himself another room to work in so that he would not interrupt Wendy's sleep.

When Jasper returned with Julian, he found Wendy curled up lazily on the couch and watching television.

"Done?" Wendy asked.

"Yes." Jasper nodded and asked gently, "Aren't you going to bed yet?"

"I was waiting for you," Wendy answered in a matter-of-fact tone.

Laughing softly, Jasper said, "It was a success. We should be able to move the project forward tomorrow."

"How are you planning to get rid of the Zion family?" Wendy asked curiously.

Jasper thought for a moment. The Zion family owned several businesses, but only the shipyard was worth something. He did not have his eyes set on anything else either.

"I'll have Mr. Lambert deal with it tomorrow," Jasper answered.

Wendy nodded and looked at Julian who was standing wordlessly at the door. She called out to him, "You're Julian, right?"

Julian, who rarely talked to strangers, let alone beautiful women like Wendy, was startled. He nodded.

His expression was one of surprise and bewilderment.

Wendy giggled, her liking toward the large, down-to-earth guy increasing.

“You can be Jasp’s bodyguard. Your monthly salary will start at 30,000 with a bonus at the end of the year. Your basic salary is 30% of your annual salary. We’ll sponsor two trips per year to any location you like, and you can bring your family along.

“As for the workload itself, it’ll be harder for you at first since you’ll be alone. But I’ll continue adding members to Jasp’s team of bodyguards, and you’ll act as the leader. Your workload will decrease once you have subordinates.”

This was what Wendy had been thinking about before.

Now that Jasper’s status in society was elevating, he needed to start paying attention to his safety.

Especially after what had happened tonight. Who knew what would have happened if they had been more vicious.

Thus, Wendy wanted Julian to stay.

To her, Julian seemed much more reliable and better at combat than her dad’s bodyguards.

Not only was Julian stunned at what Wendy had said, but even Jasper was also on the verge of laughter.

He had once told Wendy that he would like Julian to stay and work as his bodyguard, but he had not expected Wendy to be this many steps ahead of him.

Even so, Jasper was quite touched.

He could tell that Wendy was undoubtedly serious about this matter. She would not have made this decision on her own unless she was convinced it would benefit Jasper.

“But...” Julian said hesitantly.

To be honest, he had no reason to reject an offer with such great benefits.

Moreover, Julian was broke and wanted to find a rich family that he could rely on to earn a living.

However, he could not leave now.

Wendy guessed the reason for his hesitation. “Is this because of your sister?”

“I’ll go visit your sister tomorrow. Don’t worry about her bone marrow transplant surgery. We’ll do our best to scour the entire country to find someone who’s a match. We’ll search the entire globe if needed. And we’ll pay for all the treatment as well.”

Wendy laughed gently as she asked another question.

“What level of education does your sister have?”

Julian’s eyes lit up as he hurriedly answered, “She’s a university student.”

“I can arrange for your sister to work in our company when she has fully recovered. That way, you won’t have anything to worry about.”

Julian was extremely excited, but he still glanced instinctively at Jasper.

Life at the Top Chapter 258

Jasper laughed as he said, “Why are you looking at me? She’s in charge here.”

Julian immediately nodded and said, “You have such high expectations of me. I’ll do my best to protect Mr. Laine!”

Wendy smiled and said, “Alright, that’s that then.”

...

The next day, Brac County found itself in chaos.

Suppliers arrived at Future Industries, demanding payment, whilst banks refused to sign them a loan. Moreover, they had even demanded that Future Industries repay all their loans immediately.

Future Industries’ financial support chain was on the verge of collapse.

Just when things could not get even worse, Ambition Corporation put out the word that the Quare brothers from Future Industries were laundering money from Ambition Corporation.

Xavier claimed that he was going to kill the Quare brothers.

Future Industries collapsed in an instant.

As for the Zion family...

As one of the most famous families in Brac County, their shipyard piqued the attention of many when Harbor City ripped apart their contract.

Then, the various businesses they owned got exterminated.

They suffered an industry-wide closure.

Anyone who had any sort of relation to the Zion family immediately abandoned them to save themselves.

It was as if a large invisible hand had crushed everything the Zion family had built in Brac County over the years.

The members of the Zion family sat in Harvey's house, sobbing hysterically.

Now that the family business was done for, members of the Zion family began stabbing each other in the back. They were hoping to take whatever remaining benefits there were for themselves.

Harvey sat at the head of the table. He seemed to have gone gray overnight.

He smoked cigarette after cigarette, the ashes piling next to his feet like a tiny mountain.

As for the other members of the Zion family, they were arguing over how the money should be divided. They were all preoccupied with securing themselves the best deal.

Just then, a group of people showed up at the front door.

"Good day, Mr. Zion. I'm Mr. Lambert from JW Real Estate."

Mr. Lambert smiled as he handed Harvey his name card. He felt ecstatic when he saw the chaos the Zion family was in.

Just a few days ago, he had been at the disposal of the Zion family. Anyone in that family could humiliate him.

However, the Zion family was done for now. He felt jubilant as he arrived with the task at hand.

Mr. Lambert was ecstatic.

However, he also had massive respect for Jasper who managed to pull all this off quietly.

That man was horrifying!

Harvey glared at Mr. Lambert as he said coolly, "What are you doing here?"

Mr. Lambert smiled condescendingly at Harvey. He never had the right to do this before, but things were different now. The ecstatic Mr. Lambert said haughtily, "Mr. Laine sent me over to strike a deal with you, Mr. Zion."

"Hah!" Harvey snorted. "What does that *sshole want to talk about? Does he think that he hasn't caused the Zion family enough harm?"

"Tsk, tsk, tsk." Mr. Lambert shook his head and said condescendingly, "Mr. Zion, that's where you're mistaken. Mr. Laine can't bear to watch the Zion family beg on the streets, which is why he has decided to give you another chance.

"Mr. Laine says that he's willing to pay 50 million dollars to buy the Zion family's shipbuilding company."

When Harvey heard that, fury consumed him as he stood and roared, "Bullsh*t! My shipyard is worth at least 1.3 billion. Does Jasper Laine think he can get it for just 50 million?!"

Mr. Lambert calmly wiped Harvey's spit off his face and said, "Do you think anyone will want to buy your shipyard now?"

“Do you think there’s a soul out there who doesn’t know that this shipyard has been blacklisted by Harbor City?”

“Moreover, who dares offend Mr. Laine?”

The three questions stunned the entire Zion family into silence.

Mr. Lambert smiled as he procured a check. Gazing at the Zion family, he said, “50 million dollars. It’s your last chance. If you refuse to sell, it’ll stay there and rot.”

The rest of the Zion family stared at each other, their hearts thumping.

Life at the Top Chapter 259

How much was the Zion family’s shipyard worth?

The 800-tonne gantry cranes they had imported from Germany were worth 400 million themselves.

There were also the most advanced computer numerical control machines of the day, each of which had a starting price of 100 million.

The members of the Zion family understood that even if the machines were dismantled and sold as scrap metal, they would be worth way more than 50 million.

Which was why Jasper’s offer of 50 million infuriated them.

Yet, did they have a choice?

No!

The Zion family was in shambles both on the inside and on the outside.

When they left the house, they were confronted with people demanding the Zion family to pay off their debts. When they returned home, every person in the family was calculating how they could get the greatest amount of money.

Most importantly, they understood one thing.

No one besides Jasper Laine would dare buy their shipyard.

It did not matter if there were great benefits or profits if you were not alive to spend them!

Jasper understood that. Which was why he had let Mr. Lambert drop by with a check for 50 million.

If it were any less, there would not be enough money to divide between the family members. They would not take the bait.

Jasper wanted to claim the shipyard without causing any casualties. If the Zion family decided to take the risk and not accept the offer, it would not fit Jasper's consistent approach to maximizing benefits.

This amount of money was just enough to make the Zion family stop and think.

It would hurt them if they agreed.

However, it would hurt them even more if they refused!

"Eldest Brother, I think we should sell it."

Harvey's younger brother, Herman Zion, was the first one to speak.

The minute he spoke, his other relatives turned to glare at him.

The expression on Harvey's face faltered before he yelled, "Are you stupid or crazy? We inherited this shipyard from Old Master Zion. It's our family business and it's worth well over a billion dollars! How could you agree to sell it for 50 million?!"

When Harvey finished yelling, he looked at his other relatives but realized that they did not look angered. Rather, they had sly expressions on their faces.

Harvey's heart sank as he got a bad feeling.

"Eldest Brother, I think Second Brother has a point."

Another woman spoke.

Harvey glared at her, his eyes resembling those of an angered tiger. The woman avoided his gaze but continued saying stubbornly, "Look at the situation we're in now. There's no way the Zion family is going to survive any longer in Brac County. To hell with a family business.

"You might have earned a lot over the years, but we only got a small portion of that money. We have our families and kids to feed."

A murmur of agreement rang out as the woman spoke.

"That's right. Eldest Brother, you should sell it."

"What's the point in staying stubborn? You can even get 50 million if you agree to sell it to Mr. Laine. Do you think anyone else in Brac County will dare buy our shipyard?"

The more Harvey listened to them, the angrier he became. He roared, "If no one in Brac County wants it, I'll go to Greene City and Fortune County. As long as there's a sea, there will be a shipyard. Does Jasper Laine think he can dominate the world?!"

"Dad," Mark said weakly, "People are demanding we return our debt. They're surrounding the outside now. There's no way you can get out. They won't give us time to raise the money."

The furious expression on Harvey's face melted away as his face turned ashen.

Mr. Lambert dusted his shirt as he looked at the expressions on the members of the Zion family. His respect for Jasper grew by another notch.

How terrifying!

Mr. Laine's calculations when it came to dealing with humans were terrifying.

Life at the Top Chapter 260

Jasper got him to arrive at this time because he knew that the entire Zion family would either be arguing over the money or discussing strategies.

Harvey might be the head of the family, but who would be thinking for the family when they could not even protect themselves during a crisis like this?

Every member of the family had a share in the shipyard.

Now was the time to make off with as much money as possible.

With this interjection, Harvey would not be able to stop his family members' greed no matter how insistent he was.

“Mr. Laine also instructed me to only give you 20 minutes to think about it. It’s been 15 minutes. I’ll leave if you aren’t going to agree,” Mr. Lambert spoke pompously.

That caused members of the Zion family to have an even uglier expression on their faces.

“I’ll sell!” Herman gritted his teeth as he stood and said, “I own 20% of the shipyard’s shares!”

The rest of the Zion family could not sit still after hearing what Herman said.

“I’ll sell too. I own 13%.”

“I have 17%. I’ll sell too!”

A lively discussion took place. Soon, Harvey was the only one who had not spoken yet.

Mark’s face was pale as he tugged on Harvey’s shirt and said chokingly, “Dad, why don’t we sell it? We can go abroad and start again.”

Harvey heaved a long sigh. He seemed to have aged at least ten years as he said listlessly, “I’ll sell. I’ll sell it all.”

Mr. Lambert smiled in satisfaction. As members of the Zion family looked on impatiently, he retrieved a contract that had been prepared earlier from his briefcase and said, “If that’s the case, I’ll need everyone’s signatures.

“The contract will come into effect once everyone has signed their names. Your family will then own an additional 50 million dollars.”

No one hesitated when they saw the check in Mr. Lambert’s hands and surged forth to sign their names.

When Harvey finally managed to sign his name, Mr. Lambert took the contract and placed the 50 million dollar check on the coffee table. He smiled as he said, "It's been a pleasure doing business with you. I hope we never meet again."

Then, Mr. Lambert roared with laughter as he turned to leave.

As he shut the door, he could hear the sound of Harvey roaring in both anger and indignance. He sounded like a wounded beast.

"How dare you fight against Mr. Laine with such capabilities?"

Mr. Lambert smiled coolly as he got into the car and drove off.

...

Brac County was a cryptic place. As the Zion family faced disaster, Jasper and Wendy were at Brac County General Hospital.

"Don't worry. I'll have you sent over to the province where you'll receive treatment from the most elite medical team. Moreover, we'll stick to our promise of helping you find a match for your bone marrow transplant surgery."

Wendy spoke gently to Cathy.

Cathy had an embarrassed, bewildered expression on her face. She could not stop glancing at her younger brother, Julian.

Even though Julian had already introduced her to both Jasper and Wendy, she still felt dubious. She could not believe that such fortune would befall her.

"Thank you... Thank you so much," Cathy said sincerely.

As the two women spoke, Jasper gave Julian a look. The two walked out of the ward.

“We’ll return to the province this afternoon. I’ll arrange for the hospital to prepare an ambulance that will follow us all the way so that your sister can receive the best treatment in the province,” Jasper said.

Julian had a solemn expression on his face. Suddenly, he knelt and said, “Thank you, Mr. Laine!”

That action caused everyone nearby to sneak glances at them as they wondered what was going on.

Jasper hurriedly grabbed Julian’s arm and pulled him to his feet as he said, “I gave you a job where you can work without any additional worries because I need you as my loyal protector. It’s a fair trade.

“Go easy on your knees. Good men kneel only to their parents and God. No one else, not even the king, is worth you kneeling to.”

Julian said solemnly, “Mr. Laine, I owe you my life!”

Life at the Top Chapter 261

Jasper chuckled at Julian's words.

He patted Julian's shoulder and laughed softly. "I don't need you to give me your life. You just have to stay by my side and work hard. I won't mistreat you," he said.

Julian nodded slowly.

He had previously come here to destroy Jasper. Although Jasper had given him 2 million dollars, he had also kept to his words and chosen not to take revenge on him.

Despite this, Julian knew that Jasper absolutely dared to do so.

Julian had watched how Jasper defeated Mark Zion and Steve Quare right before his very eyes.

He knew that if Jasper intended to seek vengeance against him, that he would easily be vanquished despite his abilities.

He could escape, but what about his sister?

Nevertheless, not only did Jasper choose not to take revenge on him, but he also treated him well and employed him as his personal bodyguard.

Julian viewed Jasper as his saving grace due to the kindness he had bestowed upon him.

Thus, he decided to stay by Jasper's side loyally and continue protecting him in the future.

"Anyone who wants to bring harm to Mr. Laine will have to do so over my dead body," Julian said solemnly.

At that moment, Jasper was holding hands with Wendy as they left the ward and headed downstairs. Thus, he did not hear Julian's words.

With their financial power, Cathy's transfer procedure went smoothly. The procedure was completed within half an hour.

While waiting for the operation to be completed, Jasper met up with Mr. Lambert.

"Mr. Laine, take a look. This is the contract for the shipyard. It has already been signed," Mr. Lambert said. He took out the contract and held it before Jasper with both hands.

Jasper took the contract and flipped through it. "I will arrange for someone to take over later. In the meantime, find a few reliable men to look after the shipyard," he ordered.

The shipyard was equipped with top-notch facilities. The raw materials stored there were extremely valuable as well.

If nobody looked after the place, the materials may be stolen by greedy people.

It would be unwise to underestimate these people. There was once a gang of seven to eight thieves that stole a batch of steel worth tens of millions in three days. Their skills were comparable to that of a professional transport and demolitions team.

Mr. Lambert patted his chest and said, "Don't worry, Mr. Laine. With me there, nobody will be allowed into the shipyard."

“Has the project commenced?” Jasper asked.

Mr. Lambert chuckled. “It started this morning. Without the Zions causing trouble, those few stubborn jerks signed the agreement at once and moved away. The project is progressing very smoothly right now,” he replied.

Jasper nodded. “The resettlement compensation provided to normal households that have been demolished must be in strict accordance with the regulations. Meanwhile, welfare protection must be in place for the migrant workers. Wage arrears are absolutely prohibited,” he added.

“These rules are to be stated in black and white, and nobody is allowed to breach them. If anyone causes trouble due to non-compliance, I’ll fire them immediately. Is this understood?”

Mr. Lambert had a solemn expression on his face. “Understood, Mr. Laine,” he replied at once.

Jasper nodded. “In that case, you can continue with your tasks. If anything comes up, get in contact with the provincial headquarters. I can’t watch the project in Brac County every day,” he said.

“In short, you will have indispensable benefits if you do well. An executive like you can get dividends from the project’s profits, so you’ll be rewarded with at least a few hundred thousand dollars.

“However, if you don’t do well, whoever is in charge will have to take responsibility. As the manager, there’s no way you can escape from the brunt of the punishment.”

“I understand, Mr. Laine. I’ll get going then,” Mr. Lambert replied courteously.

Waving Mr. Lambert off, Jasper accompanied Wendy into the car. An ambulance followed them, which Julian and his sister were seated in. They all headed back to the province together.

It was already late into the evening when they arrived at the province.

Jasper originally planned to let Julian send Cathy to the hospital and settle down before coming to work on the next day.

However, Julian came back immediately after sending Cathy to the hospital and ensuring that everything was alright. Jasper did not send him away either.

Back at the Schuler's household, Dawson had already arranged for their meals to be prepared while he waited for them.

"You handled the incident at Brac County pretty well," Dawson told Jasper with a smile.

Jasper chuckled in response. "It's all thanks to your support, Uncle Schuler. Your phone call alone managed to crush almost half the Zions," he said.

Shaking his head, Dawson replied, "The Zions' most important assets are in that shipyard. When those people saw that the Zions' shipyard had been destroyed, they began outsmarting each other. It was brought about by a collective effort. My phone call only fueling the fire and sped up the process."

"Right, I heard that you've taken over the Zions' shipyard?" Dawson asked curiously.

Jasper nodded and said, "That shipyard is a premium asset. I am close to the people-in-charge in Harbor City. If the shipyard operates well, it can bring in a large sum of profits in one year. Even if I don't have the time to manage it, I can sell it for more than a billion dollars. A business like that is a no-brainer.

"I have a friend that's involved in shipbuilding. I've heard that he is currently on the lookout for opportunities to expand his production capacity and is out and about looking for equipment. If you don't intend to operate the shipyard on your own, why don't I help you inquire to see if it can be sold off?" Dawson suggested.

Jasper's eyes shone in interest. "Sure, my main focus is still investing in the Internet, real estate, and entertainment industries. Shipbuilding involves high amounts of professional talent, and I don't have the ability to manage the shipyard either. If he proposes a suitable price, I'll sell it to him," he said.

Nodding in response, Dawson said, "Alright, let's eat first. I'll help you inquire about it soon. If he's interested, I'll ask him to come to the province for a meeting with you."

After having their meal, Dawson was surprised by Julian's arrival. Wendy explained everything to Dawson, who suggested that Julian should train with his personal bodyguards.

Julian wanted to prove himself as well. Hence, he immediately agreed to it after seeing Jasper nod his head.

Alas, Jasper's gamble in him was soon shown to have paid off.

Julian went against five of Dawson's personal bodyguards alone. Not only did he win, but he also defeated them impactfully.

Dawson looked upon Julian in admiration. His bodyguards consisted of highly skilled men that he had recruited via reliable sources. They were either ex-special forces or martial art specialists. Therefore, they were all highly capable men.

"Let Julian come over to train my bodyguards when he's free," Dawson proposed.

"Sure," Jasper said with a smile. "Julian, I'll leave this to you," he added.

Julian grinned widely. "No problem," he said.

The moon shone in the clear night sky, which was speckled with stars. Jasper was lounging on the balcony of the room on the second floor while reading a book leisurely.

Suddenly, his phone rang.

The call was from Hudson Moore.

Hudson's angry voice rang out from the other end of the call when he picked up the phone. "Mr. Laine, Sena has gone overboard. They hired hackers to attack our server! We're in big trouble now!"

Life at the Top Chapter 262

"What happened?" Jasper asked in a heavy tone, a frown forming on his face. He put down his book at once.

"Two hours ago, our users suddenly discovered that their connection was severed over a large area. The server was severely jammed, and the portal website completely collapsed. We have confirmed that it was an attack launched by hackers."

While listening to Hudson's account of the incident, Jasper walked into the study, turned on the computer, and logged into KK.

Like Hudson had described, he could not go online despite having logged in for more than 10 seconds. Not long after, a notification stating that there was a server connection failure appeared.

After that, Jasper clicked on Terizone's portal website. Similarly, the original webpage, which was rich in content, had become blank and was now completely devoid of words or pictures.

"Users are scolding us on discussion forums everywhere. What should we do, Mr. Laine?" Hudson asked bitterly.

Netizens were still relatively simple-minded back in the year 2000. The battles between internet companies were also not as competitive as they would be in the future.

However, due to these exact reason, the opinions and comments published online reflected the most authentic user experiences.

Hudson and the others frequently compiled user reviews from discussion forums because of this.

Unfortunately, they were all scolding Terizone right now.

KK kept disconnecting when they wanted to use the software to chat online. They could not log in and the webpage was completely blank as well. Who were the users to blame if not the?

Jasper pondered upon it for a while. "What about Zaine and the others?" he asked.

"They've gone to the machinery room to carry out emergency maintenance," Hudson said.

"Maintain the server first, then solve the problem of user disconnection as soon as possible. You guys are the top programming professionals in the country. You should be familiar with the groups of hackers within the country, right?" Jasper asked.

"Zaine was once the backbone of the Scarlet Union. However, he quit the group. Nevertheless, a lot of people within the hacking industry know him. Without him here, we might be in a worse situation right now," Hudson replied.

"In that case, use your connections to get in touch with the relevant people and ask them to help you deal with the attack. We must at least try to resist the attack no matter what. Purchase all the firewalls you need for the machinery room. Don't be afraid of spending money at times like this.

“Next, issue an announcement to notify users that the server has been hacked, and let them know that we promise to resolve it as soon as possible. We must first calm down the users, so write it with a sincere attitude.

“Should I tell everyone that Sena was the one who launched the attack?” Hudson asked, gritting his teeth in anger.

Jasper laughed. “Hud, have you lost it due to your anger? Do you have any evidence that Sena launched this hacker attack on us?” he asked.

“No,” Hudson said in exasperation.

“Exactly. Sena may be waiting for Terizone to mess up. Once you blame Sena for the attack, they will follow up with another step, which will bring much worse consequences.

“In any case, our first priority is to stabilize the server and shield ourselves against the attack. At the same time, we will have to appease the users. These two things must be carried out concurrently to resolve our problems. We’ll talk about how to get back at them after I arrive at Cavern City,” Jasper said.

“Alright, I’ll wait for you in the office tomorrow then.”

.....

The next day, Wendy sent Jasper to the airport. Julian followed them as well.

“Take good care of yourself. Remember not to overwork yourself,” Wendy reminded Jasper gently as she helped him straighten his collar.

Jasper stared at the beautiful woman before him and chuckled. “I realize that you’ve been acting more and more like a devoted wife and loving mother lately,” he said.

Wendy glared at Jasper and huffed out, “Devoted wife and loving mother? You make it seem as if I’m gray and old!”

“You aren’t old at all. You’ll forever be a goddess in my eyes,” Jasper teased Wendy as he reached out to pinch the bridge of her nose.

“Ah, you’re so annoying,” Wendy remarked, pursing her lips into a smile as she flicked Jasper’s hand off her. “Go ahead and build your empire. I’ll protect you from behind,” she said.

Nodding, Jasper squeezed Wendy’s hands and said, “Wait for me. I’ll build a huge empire and gift it to you as dowry.”

Wendy blushed and pulled her hands away immediately. She turned over in embarrassment. “What a load of nonsense. Who wants your dowry? I’m not going to bother you anymore. I’m leaving!” she said in a flustered, low voice.

Wendy then turned around and ran away.

Jasper chuckled at the sight of Wendy running away. He greeted Julian, turned around, and walked toward customs.

“Jasp!” Wendy’s voice suddenly rang out from behind him.

Jasper turned around and was met with the sight of a graceful belle standing in the middle of the crowd. She stared at him affectionately, her gaze reminiscent of brilliant stars shining in the night sky.

Life at the Top Chapter 263

“I’ll wait for you to come back.”

Resisting the urge to turn around and hug her, Jasper nodded earnestly. He then turned around walked toward the customs.

On the plane, Jasper took a light nap.

As Jasper's personal bodyguard, Julian sat right beside him.

"Mr. Laine, you have such a loving relationship with Ms. Schuler," Julian said.

Jasper opened his eyes and glanced at Julian. He chuckled. "You're not that young anymore. Should I ask her to introduce a girl to you?"

Julian shook his head solemnly. "Work is my priority," he replied.

"True. Since we are men, how can we start a family without first having a stable career?"

"Work hard by my side for the next two years. After that, I'll arrange something for you," Jasper said.

Julian smiled, but he did not put much thought into his words.

In his mind, protecting Jasper was his topmost priority. Everything else was secondary.

Two hours later, the plane landed at Cavern City International Airport.

Jack Tanner came to pick them up from the airport.

"Mr. Laine, you're finally here," Jack said after stepping forward.

Jasper could tell that he had spent an all-nighter working with Hudson and the others from his pale and tired complexion. "Work is important, but you need to rest as well," he said.

Jack laughed and said, "I can't help much in terms of technical skills, but it's my responsibility to manage and reassure all the employees."

"Let's talk in the car."

Jasper led the way as they walked out of the airport.

After they got into the car, Jasper realized that Jack kept staring at Julian. "He's my personal bodyguard," he explained.

Jack gasped in realization. He was not surprised. Considering Jasper's net worth and social status, he should have employed a personal bodyguard a long time ago.

"How's everything at the company right now?" Jasper asked.

"The competition between both parties lasted till four in the morning. Although it was extremely tough, we managed to protect our server. However, we took a huge loss this time round. The firewalls we purchased and the server upgrades in the machinery room alone cost millions," Jack replied.

"Nonetheless, the good news is that both the portal webpage and KK have been restored. This incident impacted us greatly. KK has been disconnected for nearly 13 hours, and the users are still not reassured about the situation."

Jasper's expression brightened a little after listening to what he said. He then nodded and said, "Since losses are inevitable, all we can do for now is try our best to minimize it."

Soon after, the car arrived at the two-storey commercial building that Terizone had just moved into. Upon entering the building, Jasper was met by the sight of dozens of employees working busily at their respective desks.

Terizone had recruited all of these employees later on, so Jasper did not know any of them.

Everyone was loaded with work right now due to the incident. Despite this, the atmosphere was lively as there were frequent exchanges of conversation and movement between desks.

Jasper was impressed with the vibrant work atmosphere at Terizone.

“Jack, it seems that you’re managing the company pretty well,” Jasper joked.

“I just proposed a general structure. I can’t deny that the founders of Terizone are all extremely talented. Most of the results should be credited to them,” Jack said in a humble manner.

Jasper nodded and told him, “You’ll have to return to JW Capital in the future. I allocated you here just to assist these start-up rookies so that they can familiarize themselves with the management methods of a contemporary company as soon as possible. It seems that everything is progressing well.”

After that, Jasper opened the door of the meeting room and walked in.

Zaine and the others were all fast asleep in the meeting room. Logan, in particular, was snoring loudly as he slept.

This seemingly unorganized and unrefined team would be known as the core of Terizone Inc., a world-renowned company, in the future.

All of it would be made possible because of them.

Thinking about this, Jasper reminisced upon the fact that regardless of in the past or the present, their success was definitely meant to be.

Life at the Top Chapter 264

“Everyone pulled an all-nighter yesterday, and they fell asleep not too long ago,” Hudson said in a hushed tone after making his way toward Jasper.

“Let them rest. Let’s talk in your office.”

After speaking, Jasper walked out of the meeting room with Hudson, Jack, and Cameron, who were all wide awake, following behind him.

Although Hudson had the highest-ranking company position in Terizone, he had the simplest office.

His office consisted of a small space separated by wooden boards. There was only a desk, a computer, a bookcase, and a few sofas in the room. Other than that, it was barren.

“It’s a simple room. After all, the company has a lot of expenses right now,” Hudson said, sounding slightly embarrassed. He poured a cup of water for Jasper.

Jasper chuckled. “That’s why I was willing to invest in the lot of you. From your stingy demeanor, I can tell that your future will definitely be bright,” he said.

Hudson nodded. He was glad that Jasper approved of his mindset.

“Although we have persevered through this incident, it was mainly because Sena stopped the attack halfway through. Otherwise, we may not have been able to recover our system even now.”

There was an overcast expression on Hudson’s face. Although he had not slept in more than thirty hours, he did not feel even a hint of fatigue. He was overcome with rage and aggravation.

“We’re still too weak. We had close to zero resistance against Sena’s treacherous means of attack!”

“How are our losses?” Jasper asked.

Hudson’s expression darkened. “We lost more than a million dollars in terms of funds. However, the loss in user count is way more significant. There has been a decline of one-third of portal visits!” he exclaimed.

Jasper nodded. The main priority of Internet companies was their user count. A decline in users was way more terrifying than a loss in cash.

“That b*stard Dane Warren is being too harsh!” Cameron Scott huffed in anger.

“Sena is now vying against Terizone, so they must still have plans for us!” Jasper said after a momentary pause.

Worry filled the others’ faces after registering what Jasper said.

“To be honest, in terms of technical aspects, I don’t know as much as you guys do,” Jasper said, shrugging his shoulders in exasperation.

“However, I’m pretty skilled in fighting a business war,” Jasper added with a chuckle. “Leave this matter to me. I can deal with Sena,” he said.

Hudson’s gaze lit up almost immediately. Just as he was about to say something, his phone rang.

After exchanging a few words on the phone, Hudson hung up on the call excitedly. “Mr. Laine, our savior is here! If it wasn’t for his help last night, we wouldn’t have been able to withstand the attack,” he told Jasper.

“Does such a talented person exist? What’s his name?” Jasper asked in surprise.

“Theo Wright!”

Jasper slowly raised his brow after hearing this name.

This name belonged to a legendary man. He was the crème de la crème of hackers within the country. He was a godfather-level figure.

He was the founder of the Hawk Alliance, one of the top hacker organizations. Under the leadership of this godly figure, the Hawk Alliance would raise their national prestige through their groundbreaking performance in several global hacker battles in the few upcoming years.

In several global hacker wars a few years later, the master of the Eagle Alliance led by this great god can be said to have beaten the competition severely.

This man was also the only person publicly known to have hacked into the United State's military database.

Jasper did not expect Hudson to be well-acquainted with him.

Jasper met Theo Wright in the meeting room.

He assumed that a Hacker God like him must be someone who was cold and daunting.

Nevertheless, Jasper found it nearly impossible to associate the short, plump young man with middle-parted hair that was standing right before him with the most powerful man in the online world, the Godfather of Hacking.

“Theo, let me start with the introductions. This is the actual head of our company, Mr. Jasper Laine. This is Mr. Jack Tanner.”

Life at the Top Chapter 265

Hudson introduced Theo to everyone passionately.

Theo looked at Jack and smiled. "I know you. You used to be a high-level executive at Weresoftware," he said.

After the both of them shook hands, Theo turned over to look at Jasper.

Jasper grinned and extended his hand. "You're the number one hacker in the country. I've admired you for a long time," he said.

Theo was actually rather nervous. He was not accustomed to interacting with strangers in real life. Jasper's confident demeanor, which radiated from his actions and behavior, made him feel particularly uneasy.

"Nice to... meet you! I don't dare to claim the title of being the top hacker in the country. Hacking technology consists of extremely profound knowledge. No one would dare to say that they are the best of the best. I'm still learning."

Theo's words made everyone burst out into laughter.

A successful person must stand out in one way or another—this applied to any field out there. Take Theo as an example, who had an extremely normal appearance: He looked like any other average young man out there, and was not particularly good at socializing with strangers.

However, his reverence toward technology was enough to prove that he did indeed have the potential and ability to be the top hacker in the country.

Hudson and Jasper exchanged a glance. "Theo, I have previously told you that we would like you to join our company. You would be in charge of all aspects of network security. What do you think about that?" Hudson asked.

Theo chuckled in response. He said, "Hudson, you know very well that people like us are used to having all the freedom we want. I don't have the intention of joining a company, so..."

Jasper laughed. "You're extremely capable. Do you want to remain as a hacker for your entire life?" he asked.

Theo raised his head to look at Jasper. A look of distaste flashed across his face. Jasper's choice of words made it seem like he was looking down upon hackers.

Jasper did not pay any heed to the expression on Theo's face. He continued speaking, "You must know that as laws and regulations gradually improve, even the most highly-skilled hackers will start to experience growing restrictions on the Internet. It will be impossible for you to continue doing as you wish in such an unscrupulous manner.

"However, everything will be different if you join Terizone. With your skills, you can help Terizone build a protective firewall. During the process, you can also compete against hackers from everywhere around the world. The only thing that would be different is that you're doing everything for a good cause.

"Don't you want to rely on your skills to become someone respected and admired by those within the hacker industry?"

Theo's expression changed. Jasper's words had managed to speak to his heart.

"How do you find Terizone?" Jasper asked, suddenly changing the topic.

"It's excellent," Theo replied.

As one of the top hackers within the country, Theo had an even more precise and professional vision of the Internet compared to everyone else. He knew that Terizone had great potential right now.

KK, in particular, had attained massive control of the market.

It was truly the top online chatting software in the country.

“Terizone’s team of founders consists of individuals who are capable of dominating different fields. However, they currently lack a master that’s capable of handling cybersecurity issues. Join us. With you on the team, Terizone will soar to greater heights.”

Theo laughed at Jasper’s sincere words. “Since you guys are inviting me so enthusiastically, I can’t find any reason to reject this offer,” he said.

Jasper and Hudson looked at each other and burst out into laughter.

“However, I have a condition,” Theo suddenly announced.

“You can tell us anything,” Hudson said.

“I have two other friends. They’re currently in poor financial conditions and are in urgent need of a job. I would like to bring them into the company so that we can work together. After all, it would be difficult for me if I was to work alone. You can rest assured of their skills. They’re extremely competent,” Theo said.

Hudson chuckled. “Since you’ve recommended them, I’m sure their skills are impeccable. You can ask them to come over. I’ll have someone make the relevant arrangements so that you guys can start working as soon as possible,” he said.

Theo nodded. “Alright, it’s a deal,” he said excitedly.

“It’s a deal.”

With that, Hudson and Theo shook hands enthusiastically.

Life at the Top Chapter 266

In the office building of the Terra regional branch of Colossal Investments located in Cavern City.

Dane Warren, the chairman of Sena, and William, the president of the Terra regional branch of Colossal Investments, each signed their respective agreements.

Dane laughed as both of them shook hands. "William, I hope that Colossal Investments can help us achieve our plan of getting publicly listed as soon as possible," he said.

William chuckled in return. "Now that we've signed a contract, we're even more eager than you are to get Sena publicly listed. We can only cash in our investment and earn money after Sena gets listed," he said.

Dane snickered and said, "I am in urgent need of funds to acquire Terizone as well. During this period of time, I have been carrying out the relevant preparations required for the acquisition of Terizone."

William shrugged. "Warren, I don't actually understand why you're being so insistent on taking down Terizone. You need to know that Sena's public listing is our top priority right now," he said.

Dane laughed. "There's something you don't know. Sena's public listing is already set in stone. However, Sena is merely one of the four major Internet portals right now. What would happen if I also acquired Terizone and managed to get my hands on the largest online chatting software in the domestic market?" he explained.

William's gaze perked up in interest when he heard this. "There will definitely be a major spike in Sena's stock price," he said.

Dane grinned in satisfaction. "That's right. One of the reasons I intend to do so is to get back at Terizone for defeating Sena Chat with their platform, but this is a relatively minor point. My true goal is to acquire their company after defeating them," he said.

"You're indeed the best Internet merchant in your country, Warren," William praised him.

Chuckling, Dane replied, "Those few young men are still way too inexperienced and naive to found a start-up company. They don't know anything about the harshness of the business world. It's only natural for them to experience such an outcome."

William asked his secretary to open a bottle of champagne. Handing a flute of champagne to Dane, William raised his glass and made a toast. "To your wealth and prosperity," he said.

Dane and William clinked their glasses together. "To our wealth and prosperity," they laughed while making a toast.

Half an hour later, below the office building.

Dane narrowed his eyes and looked at the magnificent office building. He snorted coldly, seeming extremely unhappy.

"Mr. Warren, you don't seem too happy. Isn't it a good thing that the contract has been signed?" His secretary walked forward and asked him.

Dane's expression darkened. "These people are vampires. They want to acquire 25% of Sena's shares in exchange for helping us list the company on the Nasdaq. They're scoring a huge bargain!"

His secretary shrunk into himself. He did not dare to interrupt Dane when he was talking about important affairs. “Mr. Warren, are we going back right now?” he asked cautiously.

“Go back? Since we’re already in Cavern City, we can’t miss out on the opportunity to pay a visit to our former competitor,” Dane said. His lips twisted into a cold sneer as he ordered, “Let’s head to Terizone!”

.....

Everyone in Terizone received the news about Dane Warren’s visit immediately.

Hudson and Logan were sitting in the meeting room with troubled looks on their faces while Jasper stood by the side.

Jasper looked at the solemn expressions on their faces and let out an inward laugh. It seemed as if they were preparing for a battle. “Relax, guys. Dane Warren is just paying us a visit. Do you guys intend to beat him up once you see him?” he asked.

“Zaine and the others are still in the operations room. If they were here, they may really beat up Warren,” Logan said in distaste.

Hudson glared at Logan. “Can the problem be resolved through fighting? We are businessmen now. We should focus on business alone. Everyone will treat us as a joke if we start a brawl,” he said in annoyance.

Logan scratched his head and huffed in anger. “I simply can’t get over it. How dare he greet us and tell us that he’s coming over to get acquainted with us? Acquaintance, my *ss! Why is he acting so courteously toward us? Don’t we all know that he’s the one who brought all this sh*t upon us?”

“Those in the business world have their own way of solving problems. Being expressive of your emotions will only allow people see through you at a glance.

As Hudson said, everyone here is an adult. Don't act in a childish manner," Jasper said in a calm and controlled tone.

Logan nodded and fell quiet after hearing what Jasper said.

Not long after, the door to the meeting room opened and Dane Warren walked in with his secretary following closely behind.

Life at the Top Chapter 267

No matter how unhappy Hudson was, Dane Warren was still paying a visit to his company as the chairman of Sena. As the host, he had to accommodate him out of common courtesy.

Therefore, Hudson stood up and plastered a smile onto his face. He then walked toward Dane Warren.

"You took time out of your busy schedule to visit us, Mr. Warren. It's a huge honor," Hudson remarked politely in a relatively neutral tone.

Dane burst out into laughter. He had a booming voice and hearty laughter. One who did not understand him would have thought that he was a bold and simple-minded man. However, under the facade of his honest and straightforward persona, he was a vicious man with an extremely cruel heart.

"You're being way too courteous, Mr. Moore. I had to attend a public meeting surrounding the Internet industry in Cavern City, so I stopped by your office to look around," Dane said as he clasped Hudson's hand in a tight grip.

“Right, didn’t you get invited to the meeting, Mr. Moore?” Dane asked while feigning doubt and uncertainty.

Hudson’s face stiffened. He drew back his hand and said matter-of-factly, “There has been a lot of company affairs lately. You should understand, Mr. Warren. That’s why I wasn’t free.”

Dane could not help but sneer in his heart upon noticing the somber gaze in Hudson’s eyes. Alas, these young people were way too inexperienced. They could hardly hold it in after receiving a few taunts.

Scanning through the crowd, Dane side-eyed Logan before finally setting his eyes on Jasper.

“And this is?”

Jasper stood up lightheartedly. With a calm demeanor, he gently extended his hand. “I’m Jasper Laine, the president of JW Capital,” he said.

JW Capital!

Dane’s heart lurched. He glanced at Jasper in amusement.

If he wanted to acquire Terizone, JW Capital, who owned more than half of Terizone’s stocks, would be an inevitable hurdle.

“Mr. Laine. I’ve heard all about you.”

Dane said as he extended his hand toward Jasper. A smile that did not reach his eyes formed across his lips.

Jasper shook his hand and chuckled. “You have an extremely well-known reputation, Mr. Warren. Juniors like us have a lot that we can learn from you,” he said.

Dane laughed at his choice of words, which reflected the bare minimum of politeness. Despite this, he did not mind at all.

From his perspective, Terizone had already lost. Losers would inevitably hold some grievances after the battle.

Their insinuating words were more like a compliment to him.

Only winners deserved to accept a loser's derision and mockery, was it not?

Dane took a seat on the chair in a calm and collected manner. "I heard that Terizone faced quite a number of difficulties over these two days," he said cheerily.

Logan clenched his hands into fists upon hearing what he said. He could hardly stop himself from aiming a blow straight at Dane's head.

Everyone already knew that the problems faced by Terizone were caused by Dane himself. Nonetheless, he still came over to feign compassion and gloat about it in front of them.

Without paying any heed to Logan's fuming gaze, Dane continued speaking. "You guys are still young. You have no idea how ruthless the business sector can be. Operating a business isn't an easy feat. As your senior, I would like to give you guys a reminder. It's important to quit while you're ahead," he said.

Hudson sat down and stared at Dane impassively. "Mr. Warren, if you have anything you want to tell us, just say it to us directly. Young people like us don't have much experience, and I'm afraid we don't quite understand what you're trying to imply," he said.

Dane chortled gleefully. "In that case, I'll just say it directly."

Dane then beckoned his secretary over. His secretary immediately took out a document from his briefcase.

Dane waved the document in front of them and announced, "Since Terizone is facing so many hardships, I'm here today to lend a helping hand. Sena would like to acquire Terizone."

Life at the Top Chapter 268

After hearing what he said, Logan could not contain himself anymore.

"What bullsh*t are you going on about? Warren, you were the one who stirred up all these problems in the first place, and now you're saying that you want to acquire our company. What do you take us for?! Let me tell you, there's no way that that'll happen!"

Dane sneered. "Young man, first of all, I don't understand what you mean by 'stirring up problems'. I have never done anything to Terizone. The hardships that you're facing are all due to your own incapability," he said.

"On the other hand, a wise man submits to his circumstances. Terizone is barely surviving right now. Is there still a need to continue struggling? Sena is giving you a way out by acquiring the company!"

Hudson glared at Dane. He was trying his best to control his fury. "We reject your acquisition. If this is the only thing you're here for, please leave. We won't see you on your way out," he said stiffly.

Dane's expression darkened. "Appreciate my act of kindness while I'm still offering it graciously. How long can Terizone persist under such circumstances?" He asked icily.

“As the leading portal among the four major portals, Sena has reached an agreement with Colossal Investments and is about to get listed. Once Sena becomes a public listed company, we will have a market value of at least several billion US Dollars.”

Dane then narrowed his eyes at Hudson. He continued rambling on haughtily, “What about Terizone? God knows when you guys will be able to get Terizone listed. If Sena wanted to crush you guys, it would be easier than stomping an ant to death.

“I’m giving you guys a chance right now, so you’d better appreciate my kindness. Once Sena gets listed, I won’t bother to look your way even if you guys stand before me asking for help!”

After speaking, Dane looked at Hudson with a proud, overbearing gaze.

He believed that anyone with a decent head on his shoulder would carefully consider what he had said.

“Mr. Warren.”

Jasper interjected abruptly. The calm tone attracted Dane’s attention.

“You’ve been talking for a long time, but I’m curious. How much do you intend to acquire Terizone for?”

Dane chuckled in response to Jasper’s question. “You’re a smart person, Mr. Laine. It’s no wonder that you have such a precise vision and decided to invest in Terizone so early in advance,” he said.

“Sena has prepared 20 million dollars for a full acquisition of Terizone.”

After that, Dane threw the agreement on the table. He seemed pretty full of himself.

It was the year 2000. How many millionaires were there in the country?

20 million dollars was a monumental price for the acquisition of a company like Terizone.

It meant that these few young men were about to become millionaires.

Jasper had previously invested 10 million into Terizone in return for 51% of the company's stocks. This incident had largely boosted Terizone's reputation. This was no secret.

Dane figured that Jasper could completely withdraw his investment within a few months. This deal was evidently a huge bargain.

"20 million is a large sum of money," Jasper said, letting out an inward laugh.

Dane snickered. "Young man, you need to understand the circumstances that Terizone is currently facing. If you continue operating the company like this, how long can Terizone survive? It may even go bankrupt tomorrow," he said contemptuously.

"When that day comes, your 10 million dollars will vanish into thin air. However, you can still withdraw your full investment right now. Shouldn't you thank me for giving you this excellent opportunity?" he asked.

Jasper sighed. "My apologies, Mr. Warren. I'm someone who doesn't act until I see the incentives. I'd rather lose everything than settle for a compromise," he said.

"It's just 10 million dollars. I can afford to lose that much."

Dane's expression darkened after hearing Jasper's words.

"Jasper Laine, how dare you turn a blind eye to my good intentions!"

“I will gladly turn a blind eye to your good intentions!”

All of a sudden, Jasper stood up and placed both of his hands on the meeting table. He leaned forward and pinned a predatory gaze upon Dane. “I’ll address you by your name if I want to show my respect to you as a senior in the industry. However, if I look down upon you, you’re nothing in my eyes,” he articulated each of his words clearly.

“Quit acting all mighty because of your experience in the industry. I don’t care about those two measly steel bars of yours.

“How dare you come over to Terizone and appear before me to tell me that you want to acquire Terizone. Aren’t you afraid of biting off more than you can chew?”

“Bang!”

A loud slam resonated through the room.

Incandescent with rage, Dane slammed his palm onto the surface of the meeting table. “Jasper Laine, are you challenging me?!” He yelled.

Jasper let out a soft laugh as he stood upright. “You’ll know very soon if I’m challenging you or not,” he said indifferently.

Logan, who was right beside Jasper, stared at him in awe. He retracted his gaze from Dane, who was consumed with rage, and turned to look at Jasper. His admiration for him instantly soared.

Damn, he was standing up for the company like a real man!

Dane looked at Hudson with an icy gaze. “Hudson Moore, is this how you guys do things in Terizone?” he asked in a low voice.

Hudson shrugged nonchalantly and said, “You’ll have to excuse us. Mr. Laine is the controlling shareholder of Terizone. He will be the chairman of the board of directors once the board is established in the future. Therefore, his words represent the will of Terizone.”

“Well, well, well! Very well!”

Dane was so infuriated that he insistently repeated the same words. He raised his hand and pointed at Jasper. “You guys will eventually submit to us, even after rejecting my good intentions!” He shouted angrily.

Jasper arched his brow slightly. “Will you be the one submitting to us, or will we be the ones submitting to you?” He questioned.

Dane scoffed. “Young man, don’t think that you can act so recklessly just because you have some money. You’re a lowly junior in the internet industry. How dare you challenge me?”

“I’ve said everything that I’ve wanted to say today. I’m showing you guys a sign of respect by acquiring Terizone. However, since you guys refuse to be respected, you’ll bear all the consequences on your own!”

“This goes for you as well, Jasper Laine. All you have is an investment company. How great do you think you are? I’m sorry, but you’re not worth sh*t in front of Sena!”

Jasper narrowed his eyes at Dane. He then took up the document on the table and tore it into pieces!

Pieces of paper billowed through the air...

“Mr. Warren, small transactions like this don’t catch my eyes. Why don’t I add another 0 behind the 20 million? Shall I acquire Sena for 200 million dollars?”

Dane cackled maniacally. “Acquire Sena? Hahaha, you’re being way too full of yourself! Why don’t you look at yourself before talking big like this? What do you take Sena for? Sena is the largest website portal in the country. Do you think you can acquire it just because you want to?”

“Mr. Warren, don’t look down on the younger generation! Let’s wait and see what happens!” Jasper said in a frigid tone.

An overcast expression formed on Dane’s face. He looked like he wanted to devour them alive.

“Your sharp tongue is not something to be proud of. You guys are smiling happily now, but I’ll make sure that you won’t be able to cry even if you wanted to in a few days’ time,” Dane said.

“Mr. Warren, we still don’t know for sure who’ll be the one crying then.”

“What goes around comes around. The time for you to cry will come on the day I show up before you to acquire Sena,” Jasper said calmly.

Life at the Top Chapter 269

The expression on Dane’s face morphed into one of all-consuming rage. He glared at Jasper and shouted, “It seems that you’ll only submit under force. Just wait and see!”

Dane stormed off angrily after saying this.

After Dane left in a state of fury, Hudson looked at Jasper and smiled bitterly. “What shall we do now, Mr. Laine?”

“There’s no rush. Let’s just do what we need to do,” Jasper said calmly.

“It’s just Dane Warren. He can’t raise hell upon us!”

“Mr. Laine, what you said just now was so cool!” Logan exclaimed in excitement while staring at Jasper.

Jasper chuckled. “Although Terizone is indeed below Sena right now, we shouldn’t just take his insults since he took it this far. We must talk back and defend ourselves when we need to,” he replied.

Hudson nodded, seemingly lost in thought.

Right then, Dane made his way out of Terizone with a dark expression on his face. He roared out in anger, “They’re being way too much! How dare this bunch of shameless b*stards treat me like that?!”

Dane’s secretary trembled in shock as he stared at him. The secretary stood by the side, not daring to utter a single word.

Dane panted loudly. A venomous glint flashed across his eyes as he turned around to gaze at Terizone’s office building. He then pulled out his phone with a sneer on his face.

The call went through soon after.

“It’s me, Dane Warren.”

A courteous voice spoke on the other end of the phone, “Mr. Warren, how can I help you?”

“Launch a second attack on Terizone right now. Let them get a taste of despair through this attack! Do everything that you can. It’d be best if you could defeat them all in one go!” Dane growled.

“How dare this bunch of jokers stand up against me? I’ll teach them how to behave today!”

The person on the other end of the phone was evidently stupefied for a moment. However, there was no delay in his reply. “Alright, Mr. Warren. We will do exactly as you wish,” he replied immediately.

Hanging up the phone call, Dane grinned. He then bent down and got into the car.

.....

Back in Cavern City, Jasper, Hudson and the others had just returned to the company after having their meals.

Although Zaine and the others had pulled an all-nighter, they were still young. Hence, they sprung back into action after getting a few hours of sleep.

Hudson brought up the issue of their funds during the meeting.

After moving to a new building and hiring so many employees in addition to the server bandwidth expenses, they had been spending hundreds of thousands on a daily basis. Furthermore, they had upgraded their server and bandwidth after the attack the night before. Another one million dollars had been spent on that.

Therefore, they had less than 10 million dollars left right now.

“If you don’t have sufficient funds, I can invest a bit more. We need to go up against Sena right now,” Jasper said.

The meeting room fell pin-drop silent after he spoke.

Jack spoke up as well, “I’ve got a grasp of Dane Warren’s personality back when I was working at Weresoftware. He’s extremely good at doing business, but his biggest specialty is his cruelty. His cold-hearted methods and unscrupulous way of handling affairs was a major contributor to the rise of Sena.”

“During the early days of Sena’s development, a lot of his competitors were defeated by him through disreputable means, so he had a pretty poor reputation.”

“What should we do?” Logan asked worriedly.

Jasper looked at Theo and said, “We will need your help, Theo.”

Theo had a solemn expression on his face. “Since I’ve already joined Terizone, I will do everything I can to the best of my abilities,” he said.

Jasper nodded and said, “We can’t let our guard down during these next two days. Sena could launch their attack on us at any time. We must be sufficiently prepared this time around.”

Life at the Top Chapter 270

“Sure!”

After agreeing to Jasper’s instructions, everyone left the meeting room to work on their respective tasks. Only Jasper, who was consumed by his thoughts, remained in the room.

Sena was a bomb that would eventually blow up in their faces one day if they did not get rid of it.

Terizone was still too vulnerable right now. It would not stand a chance against any harsh blows. If this problem was not resolved as soon as possible, Terizone’s future development may be severely delayed.

In his past life, Sena rushed to obtain a public listing due to a major shortage of liquidity. Sena had now delayed its listing for such a long time. Furthermore, the internet economy bubble had burst, making it even more difficult for Dane Warren to obtain investments within the country. Therefore, Sena should be short of funds as well.

However, Jasper knew very well that the progress of Sena's public listing would not come to a standstill. On the contrary, it would be fast-forwarded instead.

Jasper called Jack over after thinking about how Sena succeeded in obtaining a public listing through its connections with Colossal Investments.

"Jack, do you know anyone from Colossal Investments?" Jasper asked.

Jack was momentarily stunned. He then nodded and said, "I know William, the president of the Terra regional branch. We don't know each other very well, but Celine Maynard, the general manager, was my classmate. She's also from Harbor City, so we're quite closely acquainted."

Celine Maynard.

Jasper knew this name very well.

In his past life, he had also been involved in the financial industry. Therefore, he had been greatly influenced by the Queen of Investment, who was widely renowned within the global financial circle.

According to the timeline, she should have just gotten married right now. At the same time, she had just taken up the position of general manager of the Terra regional branch of Colossal Investments. Four years later, she would advance further up the hierarchy and become the president.

When Jasper got reborn, the Queen of Investment had gotten promoted to the position of executive chairwoman at Colossal Investments.

“Sure, can you make an appointment with her for me?” Jasper asked.

Jack nodded and said, “Alright, wait for a while. I’ll contact her through a phone call.”

A few minutes later, Jack returned. “She happens to be in Cavern City for a business trip right now. She will be returning to Harbor City tomorrow afternoon. She said that she’s free to meet up with you anytime,” he said.

Acting decisively, Jasper stood up and said, “Give me the address.”

Jack told him the address of a hotel, then proceeded to ask him curiously, “Mr. Laine, may I ask if you know her?”

“If I knew her, why would I bother to ask you to help me set up an appointment?” Jasper asked in amusement.

Jack thought that this reply made sense. “Initially, I told her that you would like to meet her, but she didn’t agree. This is expected because, as you know, a company like Colossal Investments with a large-scale business tends to be haughtier and more arrogant. However, she immediately agreed to meet up with you once I told her your name and that you owned JW Capital,” he said.

Jasper did not find this surprising. If Colossal Investments, which ranked the highest among the top four investment banks, did not know anything about what he had done in Harbor City, they ought to just close down.

“Maybe she managed to sense my domineering stance through my name alone,” Jasper joked.

Silently, Jack watched Jasper leave the company in a hurry.

The hotel that Celine Maynard was staying in was quite a distance away. Jasper received a call from Hudson while he was still on the way there.

“You guessed correctly, Mr. Laine. Sena has launched their second attack on us,” Hudson said in a heavy tone.

“I’m on the move right now. Hold on over there. Make sure what happened yesterday doesn’t repeat itself,” Jasper said calmly.

“Understood,” Hudson said with a nod.

“Hudson, what did Mr. Laine say?” Logan, who had an overcast expression on his face, immediately asked Hudson once he put down the phone.

“Mr. Laine wants us to persevere through it to the best of our abilities. He has begun taking action over there. He won’t allow Sena to continue acting so recklessly,” Hudson said.

“F*ck it, Dane Warren is such a b*stard! We’re all operating our own respective businesses. He’s just messing with us just because he’s more experienced and owns a larger company than us!” Logan yelled angrily.

Logan’s words represented everyone else’s innermost thoughts.

Hudson’s gaze deepened as he voiced out, “Weakness is not an excuse! This is a lesson that each and every one of us must remember. The more aggressive Sena and Dane Warren are, the more we have to bear it and protect ourselves. The day will come when we’ll grow bigger and stronger than them. When that day comes, everyone will look highly upon us!”

Life at the Top Chapter 271

Cavern City, Ritz-Carlton Hotel.

As one of the top global five-star hotel brands, the Ritz-Carlton in Cavern City was the second branch of the flagship hotel in the country after it first opened in Andros.

Needless to say, this was the most luxurious hotel in the whole of Cavern City right now. No other hotel could top the degree of luxury it provided.

Following the address Jack gave him, Jasper went straight to the highest floor of the hotel.

The presidential suite was located on this floor.

A woman dressed in a business suit was standing by the door once he got out of the elevator.

“May I know if you’re Mr. Laine?” The woman, who resembled a secretary, asked him courteously.

Jasper nodded.

“Please follow me,” the secretary said while gesturing at him to follow her. She led the way in front of him. “Miss Maynard is in the midst of a video conference right now. There was a last-minute decision to hold the conference, so we did not have the time to notify you, Mr. Laine,” she explained while walking.

“It’s alright, I can wait for a while,” Jasper said.

The secretary brought Jasper into the suite. After arriving at a reception room, she prepared some tea and left the room.

The presidential suite of this hotel had a master bedroom and a minimum of two other guest bedrooms in addition to a lounge, meeting room, reception room, and a study. It was fully equipped with a wide range of facilities.

Even the reception room that Jasper was currently situated in was about 70 to 80 squared meters in size.

After waiting in the reception room for almost an hour, the door suddenly opened.

A pretty, tall, and slender woman that gave off an air of competency walked into the reception room.

Celine headed straight toward Jasper after entering the room. She extended her hand with an apologetic smile plastered on her face. "I'm really sorry, Mr. Laine. There was a last-minute emergency meeting, so it took quite some time. You must have waited for a long time," she said.

"I'm the one who's disturbing you. I should be the one apologizing instead," Jasper said politely as he shook hands with Celine. The two of them then sat down.

Celine's secretary came forward and placed a cup of tea in front of each of them. After that, she sat down in a corner of the room and remained silent.

Meanwhile, Celine and Jasper quietly sized each other up.

She was indeed the same Queen of Investment that he had seen on a magazine cover in his past life. However, her aura had yet to grow to the same level of sophistication as it was in his past life.

At the moment, Celine Maynard emanated a sense of competency and dominance that could not be compared to her future self. She had long been complacent and comfortable with her position in her future days. Thus, she did not shine as brilliantly as she did right now.

In other words, once a woman concealed their ambitious demeanor, it would not be discovered easily. Nevertheless, that meant that she even more dangerous.

At the same time, Celina was observing Jasper.

Like most of the people who were meeting him the first time, her first reaction to Jasper was shock at his young age.

At an age like this, Celine could hardly associate him with the powerful figure who had dominated Harbor City.

As the general manager of the Terra regional branch of Collosal Investments, Celine knew very well about the incident whereby the Harbor City stock market had gotten attacked by Western capital during the crisis of the bursting economic bubble some time ago.

She even knew that Quantum Fund was the one behind all of it.

This young man before her was the one who had presided over Harbor City's 100-billion-dollar rescue plan.

Not everyone had the ability to do something like that.

Not only did he handle it, but he also did an amazing job at that.

Life at the Top Chapter 272

Besides that, Celine also knew that this young man shared an extremely close relationship with the top four families of Harbor City.

He was especially close with the Laws.

Even the Harbor City Government took a great liking to Jasper as he had played a decisive role in this economic defense battle.

If it had not been for these glorious achievements, Celine would not have decided to meet the mere chairman of a local investment company.

“Mr. Laine, Jack is a longtime friend of mine. He told me that you wanted to meet up with me because of an urgent matter. May I know what this matter is regarding?” Celine spoke up first.

Jasper pondered for a while before deciding to go straight to the point. “I know that Sena is planning to get listed on the Nasdaq. Did they ask Colossal Investments to be their agent?” He asked straightforwardly.

Celine was stunned. “How did you know that, Mr. Laine? Yes, they have. Not many people know about this. Furthermore, Mr. William, the regional president, is handling this personally,” she answered in surprise.

Mr. William was the one who had called for an emergency video conference just now. The main topic of discussion was Sena’s public listing.

Once the listing plan for Sena gets launched, it would become the Terra regional branch’s largest business deal of the year. They would gain a lucrative sum of profits from handling this.

William, who was eager to present his achievements to the headquarters, placed a great deal of emphasis on this issue. Therefore, the conference just now was mainly centred on the arrangements required to help Sena obtain a public listing as soon as possible.

Furthermore, this plan had only been circulated among the top executives of the Terra regional branch of Colossal Investments who had participated in the video conference earlier. How did Jasper Laine know about it?

Jasper chuckled lightly. "I have my ways. I came over today in hopes that you'd be able to work together with me, Miss Maynard," he said.

Celine shook her head after listening to what he said. "My apologies, but I can't help you with this. Mr. William is handling this issue personally and no one else is allowed to interfere in his plans. Besides, both parties have already signed a contract. Why are you suggesting that we should work together, Mr. Laine?" she asked.

Jasper directed a scorching gaze at Celine. "I don't want Sena to obtain a public listing!"

After registering his words, Celine's expression immediately changed.

She looked at Jasper with a frown as she wondered what were the true intentions behind his words.

Jasper looked straight into Celine's eyes. "Miss Maynard, you don't really want to see Sena obtain a public listing, right?" He asked this in a playful tone.

"I don't understand what you're implying here, Mr. Laine. The public listing of Sena is the Terra regional branch's largest deal of the year. There's no reason for me to sabotage this deal," Celine said in a cutting tone.

“Indeed, it is the largest bit of business for the Terra regional branch of Colossal Investments this year. However, this has nothing to do with you. Am I right, Miss Maynard?”

Jasper’s words caused Celine to fall silent.

They were both intelligent people. There was no need to squabble over a trivial matter like this.

Although Celine was extremely competent, she had just taken up this mantle. She arrived at her current position after going through many exchanges of interests and cruel battles.

Hence, both her opponents and those in support of her were all waiting to see how she would perform in this position.

Evidently, William was not one of those who supported her. The responsibilities of the president and general manager both overlapped greatly, which meant that their individual capabilities would determine the one between them who would emerge as the boss.

William would not remain dormant while watching Celine grab all the power from his hands.

Therefore, Celine had not been involved in Sena’s listing at all.

Once the plan succeeds, it would be difficult for Celine, who did not have access to many resources in the Terra regional branch, to surpass the deal and soar toward greater heights.

Jasper took a sip from his cup of tea. “Miss Maynard, you need to preserve the right to speak for the Terra regional branch in order to retain the dignity and authority befitting of a general manager. Meanwhile, I don’t want Sena to get listed. Therefore, we share common interests,” he said with a smile.

Celine pinned a deep and thoughtful gaze on Jasper. She was rather taken aback.

What was the background of this young man, and why did he know so much about the internal strife for power within the Terra regional branch of Colossal Investments? How could each and every of his words resonate with all of her heartfelt thoughts?

Life at the Top Chapter 273

Even if Celine was smart, she did not expect that Jasper had been rebirthed with more than 20 years worth of memories.

In her past life, when Celine had climbed the corporate ladder abruptly, people had dug up some secrets about her.

One of the most well-known secrets was how she changed jobs from Seefa Securities to Colossal Investments as a young newbie and then immediately jumped into the position of the general manager in the Terra region.

Then, there was the story of how she fought for power with the current president in the Terra region, William, as a general manager.

This later became Celine's entry point.

Celine looked at Jasper calmly and said, "Mr. Laine, what are you planning to do? How do you want me to work with you?"

Jasper smiled and said, "First, I hope to know what price Sena had to pay for you to be their agent."

Celine furrowed her brows and said bluntly, “Mr. Laine, you should know that before the listing succeeds, that this is a trade secret. If I leak this, I’ll face the risk of getting sued.”

Jasper held up his hands and said, “There are no risks in this world that you can’t handle, right?”

“Power is always obtained from battles that are full of risks, and never given to you by the enemies out of pity.”

Celine stayed silent for a while before saying indifferently, “Sena is willing to give us 25% of their stocks in exchange for Colossal Investments to help them get listed on the Nasdaq.”

“How generous.”

When Jasper heard this price, even he silently praised Dane’s decisiveness.

How much was 25% of the total shares worth? This would take away a quarter of Sena’s value.

Even though they would need to pay a huge price, in the face of Sena’s capital chain rupture crisis, it was a necessary step. After all, you could not make an omelet without breaking a few eggs.

If Sena wanted to get through this crisis and start anew, they would need to give up on short-term benefits.

Ordinary people would not be able to do this.

It was through bold moves like that Dane was able to make Sena into the most outstanding web portal in the country.

No mediocre leader would be able to get to this position.

“Miss Maynard, will you work with me to take down this 25% figure from your investment company?” Jasper asked indifferently.

Celine’s expression changed immediately.

Jasper was saying that he wanted her to steal from her own company. This was not as simple as leaking a trade secret now.

Before she could say anything, the secretary who had been staying silent this entire time stood up to speak.

“Impossible!” The secretary’s tone was stern.

“Miss Maynard, you can’t promise him this. This is impossible. The company is planning to help Sena get listed. We can’t transfer the shares away. You won’t be able to get past William on this matter.

“More importantly, so what if he gets the shares? Sena won’t be publically listed, and they’ll end up suing us. When that happens, we’ll be in trouble.

“This person is harboring evil intentions. Who knows what’s the purpose behind him coming here?”

The secretary’s words caused Celine’s face to darken. She did not say anything.

A secretary was interrupting the conversation of their superiors but was not immediately berated.

This meant that her boss was carefully considering her words.

Life at the Top Chapter 274

Jasper's expression looked calm and tranquil. He ignored the secretary's overbearing attitude and was only looking at Celine.

"Mr. Laine, Miss Stone came here with me from Seefa Securities, and she's been working with me for 6 years. At work, she's my secretary, but in my daily life, she's my best friend. Therefore, her words are equal to mine."

Celine had a calm look on her face.

The implication was that she had already rejected Jasper.

"150 million." Jasper suddenly said.

"Colossal Investments wants Sena's stocks because you hope it might grow in the future. Despite this, I am currently offering to pay you 150 million on the spot in exchange for 25% of the stock. For an investment company like you guys, this is a deal that is a win for you any way you look at it."

Celine replied without any expression on her face, "Mr. Laine, I don't think you understand. For our investment company, the most important thing is trust. Since we've already signed an agreement with Sena, we'll do things according to the agreement."

"If that's the case, what if Sena is destined to never be listed? Even though Dane is the chairman of Sena, he might not be the biggest shareholder," said Jasper insipidly.

"In order to get more investment, Sena kept diluting and issuing stocks over the years. Three investment companies in the country held a total of 34% of Sena's stocks at the time, and that 34% are in my hands now."

Jasper laced his fingers together and looked at Celine and Miss Stone whose expressions had changed abruptly. Then, he said calmly, "A company will only go public after gaining approval from two-thirds of all of the shareholders. I already own over 34% of the shares, so I have the sole power to decide if we go public or not.

"If I disagree, what will Colossal Investments use to list the company? The decision alone from the internal shareholders of Sena will not be sufficient to save the deal in this situation. Is Dane going to use his head to try to get listed on the Nasdaq?"

Jasper's words felt like a clap of thunder. It was so shocking that Celine and Miss Stone started to breathe heavier.

"How is that possible? We did a background check but we didn't learn anything about this. Moreover, does Dane not know about this?" Miss Stone muttered.

Jasper replied calmly, "I am deliberately scheming against Dane, so why would I let him know? As for your background check, to be honest, you still need to strengthen your information network in the country.

Celine looked heatedly at Jasper and said, "If that's the case, then the contract William signed with Sena has major issues. I need to report to the headquarters now."

Jasper said casually, "While you're at it, tell your boss that you're only going to make them a profit of from this 150 million dollar deal."

"Please wait for my update, Mr. Laine," Celien said.

Jasper smiled and replied indifferently, "I've been babbling for too long, so I should take my leave now."

Miss Stone watched as Jasper left. Then, she could not control herself and asked Celine, "Miss Maynard, can we trust him?"

Celine sighed deeply. “If this were someone else, I would not believe them, but he hosted a market rescue of hundreds of billions in Harbor City and has a good relationship with the Laws. Even the government of Harbor City admires him, so I don’t think he has a need to lie to us.”

“In that case, what are we going to do?” Miss Stone said in appall.

“I think we should ask the headquarters in Wall Street to start a shareholder meeting to talk about this,” Celine sighed.

“What does Jasper want from doing all this? Even if he’s all that, it was all done in Harbor City. Our country is not like Harbor City, yet he thinks he can defeat Dane? I don’t believe him,” Miss Stone spat coldly.

Celine looked fixedly at her and said, “We don’t have any business in his gripe with Dane. Now, I need to immediately report this to the higher ups.”

Miss Stone huffed and was looking down on Jasper’s personality. She felt that he was a vile character who would backstab others at a moments notice.

What big accomplishment could this despicable vermin achieve?

She scoffed.

Miss Stone was suddenly looking forward to this. She could not wait to see Jasper suffer a crushing defeat at Dane’s hands even after doing so much and spending so much money.

At this moment, Jasper had just walked out of the hotel as he called Jack.

“Jack, contact the person in charge of Montagne Capitals. Tell them I want to buy their 34% stake in Sena. If they don’t agree, tell them I’ve already gotten 25% ownership of Sena from Colossal Investments.”

Life at the Top Chapter 275

After going back to Terizone, Hudson and the rest were not back yet. Inside the office, Jasper and Jack were sitting next to each other.

“I’ve contacted Montagne Capitals and they want to confirm whether you’ve really gotten Colossal Investments’ 25% of the shares, Mr. Laine.”

After he heard what Jack said, Jasper smiled and said, “You want to know too, right, Jack?”

Jack chortled and said, “I think it’s true. If this was someone else, I won’t believe them, but if it’s you, there’s a possibility.”

“You think so highly of me.” Jasper shrugged. He was not a god, so he could not make everything go his way.

Basically, the plan this time was to use the misinformation between Montagne Capitals and Colossal Investments to create a chance to gain some advantages.

Jasper told Colossal Investments that he had Montagne Capitals’ 34% of the shares. He was using this to threaten them to make them realize that if they did not nod their heads, Sena would not be able to float in the market.

As such, they would definitely sell their shares.

As it was Sena’s internal problem that caused their float to fail, according to the agreement, Colossal Investments would automatically get 25% shares as compensation.

On the other hand, Jasper could use the fact that he got Colossal Investments’ shares as a requirement to buy the shares Montagne Capitals had.

Montagne Capitals would not have a reason to decline that as well.

After Jack heard what Jasper said, he widened his eyes and said in disbelief, "You're saying that... you're lying to them?"

Jasper smiled and said, "I'm not lying because I'm this close to getting my hands on Colossal Investments' share of Sena's shares, and it is indeed 25%."

Jasper told Jack about his plan.

Jack was dazed and dizzy after he heard it.

"To be honest, I'm so impressed with you," Jack said sincerely.

"These are just cheap tricks. The main problem is that we're still not strong enough. If not, we wouldn't have to use such cheap tricks and could just crush them brazenly," Jasper lamented.

Jack said, "You're still young and have a long future ahead. In a few more years, you'll be able to reach the height you mentioned. To be honest, I have no idea where you'll be in the future, but it must be a height that other people can only look up to.

"How should I reply to Montagne Capitals then?" Jack asked.

Jasper hesitated for a while before saying, "Did they quote a price?"

Jack said, "They did. 200 million."

"They only invested 80 million back then, right? It's just been two years and they're selling it for 200 million. What great businesspeople," Jasper said dully.

Jack laughed and said, "There's still a very large chance with this price."

Jasper shook his head and said, “No, we don’t need to negotiate the price. Just promise them. The requirement is to deal immediately.”

Jack was stumped for words. He could not help but say, “We could at least get it down to 180 million...”

“Jack, we don’t have any stocks with us. If this drags on, problems will arise,” Jasper said with a smile.

“The most important thing is that I can double this 200 million very soon. Everyone underestimates that Sena still has the value of Terizone. If I combine these two companies into one, who else would become the king of the internet in this country?”

Jack stopped speaking abruptly and looked at Jasper while overwhelmed with shock. He muttered, “If that’s the case, Terizone could skyrocket. It would be immeasurably valuable to be number one in the country’s internet industry.”

“That’s why I’m asking you to talk to them about this for me. Go as soon as you can,” Jasper said.

Jack got up and said seriously, “Alright, I’ll get to the airport now and talk to the people from the headquarters of Montagne Capitals. I’ll do my best to close this deal.”

“Thank you for your hard work.” Jasper patted Jack’s shoulders.

Jack smiled and said, “I’m included in the vesting. The more the company earns, the more I’ll get, so this is not hard work at all.”

“Indeed,” Jasper said with a loud laugh.

Sometimes, actual benefits would be more trustworthy than relationships and feelings.

Colossal Investments was an investment company that was top in the world and could be said to be very efficient.

Jasper received a call from Celine that night.

An hour later, the sky turned black and Jasper once again came to Ritz-Carlton Hotel.

This time, Celine was standing at the door to wait for Jasper unlike in the morning.

“Mr. Laine, we meet again,” said Celine as she reached out her hand to shake Jasper’s.

Jasper smiled and shook Celine’s hand. He said, “Is there a conclusion?”

Celine nodded and said, “Actually, the higher-ups are moved by Mr. Laine’s suggestion, because to us, gratuitously making 150 million just by reselling our stocks and agreement would be like finding money on the streets.”

Jasper and Celine walked into the hotel shoulder to shoulder. After Jasper heard that, he laughed and said, “Under normal circumstances, this would be followed by bad news, Miss Maynard.”

Celine looked at Jasper in surprise. She said, “Mr. Laine, do you know how to read minds?”

“I’m just very observant,” Jasper smiled and said.

Celine pondered for a while and then said, “Just as you expected, Mr. Laine, Mr. William is very opinionated about this plan. He thought we should investigate this properly. Even if we’re violating an agreement, we can only talk about this after we let Sena violate it first.

“His reason being that as long as Sena can float successfully, then the profits Sena will bring to Colossal Investments might be much more than 150 million.”

Jasper nodded and said, “Things will be as he said. After all, if Sena floats successfully, the shares of 25% would definitely be more than 150 million. What do the higher-ups think then?”

Celine’s expression looked solemn. She looked at Jasper and said, “I’ve already convinced the higher-ups, but Mr. Laine, I want to know how confident you are.”

Jasper chuckled softly. “100%.”

At one side, Miss Stone had been silent the entire time. However, at this moment, she displayed a cold smirk. “Mr. Laine, don’t talk big. In order to side with you, Miss Maynard has had to bear a very huge risk.”

Jasper furrowed his brows and looked at Miss Stone. He said coldly, “There are only advantages and no disadvantages to this plan no matter for Colossal Investments or Miss Maynard. This is a plan that benefits three parties, including me.

“Miss Maynard needs a huge contribution to stabilize her position, and there can only be one voice in the Terra region. It would either be hers or William’s. Miss Maynard, if you’re worried that this plan isn’t reliable, then you can say no. I’m not begging you to work with me!”

Life at the Top Chapter 276

After Jasper said that, Miss Stone had a horrible expression on her face. When she was about to say something, Celine said, "Alright, Miss Stone, your emotions are too stirred up."

Miss Stone looked angry, but she did not dare to say anything more. However, it could be seen that she hated Jasper to the bone from the way she looked at him.

Jasper did not know why this woman was so hostile toward him.

At the same time, Jasper's phone rang.

It was from Jack.

"I need to answer this call. Excuse me." After Jasper said that to Celine, he walked away to answer his phone.

Miss Stone looked at Jasper's back with rancor and could not help but say, "Miss Maynard, why is he so menacing? I can't stand him believing himself to be infallible. Who does he think he is?"

"He thinks he's all that just because of something he did. Miss Maynard, you're the general manager of Colossal Investments in the Terra region and he's still acting so cocky in front of you."

Celine looked at Miss Stone and said with an indifferent expression, "Firstly, he's not being cocky. You're the one who's deliberately infuriating others the entire time."

"You're minding too much as a secretary. Don't you notice that?"

Celine's words caused Miss Stone's expression to freeze. She was speechless for a moment.

"Mr. Laine, it's done!" From his voice, Jack sounded incredibly excited.

The main reason why Montagne Capitals invested in Sena was to make money. Now that Jasper was offering them a reasonable price and they've acknowledged Colossal Investments' background, Montagne Capitals did not hesitate too much before signing the agreement with Jack.

After Jasper heard this, he let out a huge sigh of relief.

Compared to Montagne Capitals, Colossal Investments was a harder bone to chew. However, his lie had finally become reality now.

"Send the copy of the contract to me." After Jasper said that, he hung up the phone.

Jasper then walked in front of Celine and said, "Miss Maynard, you want confidence, right? I'll show you right now."

After he said that, his phone buzzed. It was an MMS from Jack.

Jasper opened the MMS in front of Celine.

After the slow loading time, a contract appeared.

It was the agreement stating that Montagne Capitals had agreed to transfer their 34% shares in Sena to JW Capitals.

When Celine was about to let out a breath of relief after seeing this agreement, she suddenly noticed a detail.

“You signed this agreement today?” Celine lifted her head in shock to look at Jasper.

Jasper smiled softly and said, “It’s the truth no matter when it’s signed, right?”

Celine was a smart woman. If she could be crowned the Queen of Investment in her previous life and got to the position of executive chairwoman in Colossal Investments, it was proof that she was not just a pretty woman to look at.

After pondering for a while, she immediately understood what was going on.

“Good tactic, Mr. Laine!”

Celine sounded a little angry after she had been lied to. At the same time, her tone was also laced with admiration for Jasper, but at the end of the day, it sounded more complicated than that.

She did not expect there would be a day when she would be lied to.

However, this lie was not truly a lie.

Life at the Top Chapter 277

“Mr. Laine, can you tell me how you did it?” Celine asked.

Jasper smiled and said, “I told you this morning that I have 34% of the shares and then I told almost the same things to Montagne Capitals. Coincidentally, both of you believed me. So, my lie is not a lie anymore.”

Celine was not a petty woman. After Jasper explained things and she understood what was going on, she said sincerely, "Mr. Laine, your tactic is... amazing. Very old-fashioned."

Standing at one side, Miss Stone's expression changed. She yelled angrily, "You're a liar indeed!"

Jasper peered at her and said insipidly, "Did you not see my agreement? I already have the 34% shares. How am I lying?"

Miss Stone said coldly, "But you said it yourself that you didn't have it when you were here this morning. You admitted that!"

"The business world is like a warzone, and this is one of the tactics," Jasper said flatly, "You only have yourself to blame for being unable to see through this."

Miss Stone was so mad that her face had turned white. When she was about to say something, she saw that the way Celine was looking at her was becoming colder and colder.

Miss Stone felt flustered and quickly shut her mouth. However, she was cursing Jasper a million times in her heart.

Jasper ignored her. He looked at Celine and said, "Now, the basis for our collaboration has officially been formed. Miss Maynard, can we talk about the transfer of the shares now?"

Celine said indifferently, "There's nothing to talk about. We agree unanimously on your conditions. I've already prepared the documents too."

While she said that, Celine took out a transfer of shares agreement to hand it to Jasper.

After Jasper looked at it and made sure there was nothing wrong with it, he signed it instantly.

For now, Jasper had successfully pocketed Sena's shares that were stranded out there.

"The money will be transferred into your preferred account today," Jasper said with a smile.

"Mr. Laine, you already have 59% of Sena's shares now. May I know what you're going to do next?" Celine asked curiously.

Jasper chuckled lightly and said, "I'm going to send a huge surprise to Dane from Sena, of course."

Celine looked as if she was in deep thought. Finally, she smiled and reached out to Jasper. She said, "Even though there were a lot of ups and downs, no matter what, I'm still going to wish us all the best in working together."

Jasper reached out his hand to hold Celine's. He smiled and said, "Best of luck."

"I hope I still have a chance to work with you in the future, Mr. Laine. However, I hope such exciting things won't happen again," Celine displayed a look of terror and said jokingly.

Jasper chuckled lightly and said, "I'm sure we will have a chance to work together in the future."

When Jasper was about to leave, Celine walked him to the door and said, "Mr. Laine, William was warned by the higher-ups regarding this. He's furious now, so he might have some misunderstandings toward you. If you come across him in the future, you have to be careful."

Jasper looked deeply at Celine and said, "Miss Maynard, it seems that you're more than happy for me to be rivals with William."

Celine said calmly, "You tricked me as well, Mr. Laine. So I think we're even now that I've appropriately transferred some of William's anger onto you."

After laughing, Jasper said, "Sounds fair."

Celine smiled and said, "The enemy of my enemy is my friend. I hope to replace William's position, and since you've already offended William, then you should just go to the extreme. This way, we can be closer friends."

Jasper looked deeply at Celine. He felt that this woman was not so easy to deal with.

"Farewell."

"Safe travels."

While looking at Jasper's back, a complicated twinkle appeared in Celine's eyes. Suddenly, she chuckled softly and said, "This man didn't get angry even after I put it out in the open. He's such a sharp-witted man."

Life at the Top Chapter 278

"What right does he have to get angry?" Miss Stone finally found a chance to speak and said coldly.

"He's the one who tricked us first."

"But when we were directing William's anger to him, we didn't know he was setting this scheme and were still feeling pleased with ourselves like dummies," Celine said.

Miss Stone said angrily, "Miss Maynard, I told you we have to be careful of this man. I know for certain that he's not a good person."

“So you’re saying that I have a horrible perception of people?” Celine asked airily.

Miss Stone’s expression changed as she said hurriedly, “I didn’t mean that.”

Celine said coldly, “That’s why you’ll always be a secretary.

“There are no real friends or real enemies in the business world.

“Mr. Laine was indeed the person who set a trap this time, but did his trap hurt our profits? Not only did it not, but it also gave us a good chance to strike William’s prestige. This is a good thing for us.”

Miss Stone said aggrievedly, “I just can’t stand him.”

“I know my husband asked you to report to him about anyone of the opposite sex who appears around me, but I’m working, do you understand?”

After Miss Stone heard this, her expression changed.

“Miss Maynard, you’ve misunderstood—”

“You should know best whether I’ve misunderstood or not,” Celine said calmly.

“You don’t have to explain anymore. Since I’ve said it, it means that I’m very confident. Do you need me to show you the proof?”

“Our marriage is based on mutual benefits. We need each other and that’s why we got married. I’ll allow him to be a male chauvinist in the right amount, but I hope you can understand that if you infuriate me, there won’t be good outcomes for both of you.

“Especially you. You should know your position because you’re just a chess piece.”

After Celine said that, she turned around to leave.

Miss Stone stood where she was, and her expression fluctuated irregularly. After recovering from the post-traumatic stress, she gritted her teeth in rancor and said coldly, "Jasper, this is all your fault! Just you wait!"

...

After successfully buying 59% of Sena's shares, Jasper was in a great mood.

Even though he had spent 350 million on these shares, not only did he not lose money, but instead, he made a profit.

Once he successfully combined Sena and Terizone, this 350 million would be 3.5 billion or even more.

After he went back to the office, Jasper noticed that Theo and Zaine were here.

Logan was telling them about Dane swinging by. All of them had furious expressions on their faces. Even Theo, who just joined, had a gloomy look on his face.

After all, for these hot-blooded young people, it was not a good thing to be hacked and then get bullied by the other party.

"Damn it! If I was here, I would've beaten up that Warren guy until his mother can't even recognize him!" the hot-tempered Don yelled angrily.

Hudson was focused on his computer. He said without turning his head, "Then what? Get arrested? Do you think it's worth it to get locked up for a few days because of something like this? Don't you think people will laugh at you after word about it gets out?"

Zaine said while feeling pissed, "But you can't let him feel so pleased with himself."

"He won't be pleased with himself after tomorrow," Jasper walked over and said while beaming.

After they heard Jasper's voice, they lifted their heads to look over in surprise.

"Have we stabilized the machinery room?" Jasper asked.

Zaine said excitedly, "Yes, and it's all thanks to Theo. He wrote some codes which greatly increased our defense. If not, I think we would've needed to work overtime again tonight."

Theo said while feeling a little embarrassed, "No, no, it was everyone's hard work. I wouldn't have been able to do so much on my own."

Jasper smiled and said, "You don't have to be modest. Everyone has witnessed your ability."

After he said that, Jasper looked at Hudson. He said with a smile, "Hud, are you interested in going to Capital City tomorrow?"

At this critical moment, there must be something especially important for Jasper to ask Hudson to go outstation in Capital City. Hudson asked curiously, "Why?"

Jasper smiled softly and said, "Do you want to experience how comfortable the chair under Dane's butt in Sena's headquarters is?"

Jasper's words caused the entire office to go into a state of commotion.

"What do you mean?" Cameron widened his eyes and looked like a curious child.

"Why do I not understand what he's saying?" Logan asked foolishly.

Zaine scratched his head and said worriedly, "Mr. Laine, have you gone stupid from anger? It's not worth it to get sick from anger because of people like that. It's not worth it at all."

Daniel coughed awkwardly and said to Jasper, "Mr. Laine, Zaine is right. We'll just think of a way to get it back. We don't have to hurt ourselves."

Theo wanted to say something, but since he had just joined the team and had not fully blended in with them, he did not dare to talk bad about Jasper.

On the other hand, Hudson looked heatedly at Jasper like he had a lot of things to ask.

Jasper chuckled lightly and slammed his phone displaying the MMS Jack sent as well as the agreement he signed with Colossal Investments just now on the table.

"I'm Sena's boss now."

A tossed stone would cause a thousand ripples.

The entire house went silent. Everyone was staring at the photo on the phone and the freshly signed agreement. What was left was the sound of all of them there gulping.

Zaine then pinched Daniel who was standing next to him with all his might.

Daniel yelped in pain and broke the silence. He said angrily to Zaine, "Why did you pinch me?"

"I wanted to know if it's true. I thought I was too exhausted from working overtime that I started to hallucinate, but judging from your reaction, it seems to be true."

Cameron started at the agreement, and his saliva dripped down from his mouth. He said, "It's real. Of course, it's real. It's black and white, and there's also the official seal. How could he have faked this?"

Hudson looked at Jasper in shock and said in disbelief, "You bought Sena?"

Jasper pulled a chair over and sat down. He said, "Indeed. Sena has a big business now, and Terizone can't compare to them, be it talents or technology reserves.

"So, Terizone is not Sena's rival. It's a fact.

"After thinking about it, there just isn't a better plan. Since Sena is so great, then I should just buy it. After I buy it, then we'll be a family. We don't have to worry about them attacking us."

Did you hear what this man said?

He bought the other person's company because he disagreed with them?

Since they were too strong and he could not compare to them, that was why he bought their company?

This was as if he was too lazy to queue in the bank so he directly bought the entire bank to avoid queueing.

Yeah, there was no problem with that logic.

Zaine and the gang's hearts were shaking. Their throats felt dry, and they kept swallowing their saliva. They looked at the agreement and then back at Jasper. In the end, they drew long breaths and sighed.

Life at the Top Chapter 279

The next morning, Jasper and Hudson showed up in Cavern City International Airport with Julian.

After about half an hour, Jack hurriedly came out from the exit.

After the four of them met up, Jack solemnly took out a shares transfer agreement to Jasper.

“Luckily, I didn’t fail to accomplish this mission,” Jack smiled and said.

Jasper looked at the contract worth 200 million in his hand and smiled. He said, “Thanks for the hard work.”

Jack shook his head and said, “I’m just doing my job.”

Jasper said, “I’m going to Capital City with Hud now to incorporate Sena into our troops. Since we won’t be in Terizone, I’m going to trouble you to watch over it for me.”

Jack smiled and said, “Alright, I’ll keep an eye on it.”

The two of them shook hands. Then, Jasper led Hudson and Julian onto the plane.

...

A few hours later, Hudson felt his heartbeat fluctuating when he was outside Sena’s headquarters that was located in the best location—in the depths of the bustling commercial district. He looked up at Sena's gigantic logo hanging above the building.

"Dane just went to Terizone yesterday. I didn't think that we'd come to his den today," Hudson said.

"How do you feel?" Jasper smiled and said.

Hudson's eyes looked firm as he said, "In the future, Terizone will definitely be more powerful than Sena!"

Jasper laughed. It was good that Hudson had ambitions. This was how the head of a future trillion-dollar company should look like.

The three of them headed into the building.

The moment they got through the door, Jasper and Hudson were stopped by two security guards.

The guards walked over. When they saw that they did not have employee tags and looked foreign, the guards immediately determined that they were not employees of Sena. They quickly asked, "Stop right there. What are you doing here?"

"We're here to discuss something," Jasper said insipidly.

"Register as visitors please." The guard was taking his job seriously. While he was at it, he also asked, "Who are you looking for? Do you have an appointment?"

"Dane Warren. I don't have an appointment."

Jasper's answer caused the guard to lift his head. He then scoffed. "You're looking for our chairman?"

“You’re looking for our chairman and no one’s here to welcome you? You guys look impoverished and yet you’re barging in here to look for our chairman with nothing?”

While he said that, the guard placed down the register book and waved his hand impatiently to chase Jasper and Hudson away.

However, the moment he was about to do something, Julian, who was eyeing covetously from the back, charged over and grabbed the guard’s arm.

The guard yelped. When he was about to escape, he realized that the man’s palm was like a pair of pincer pliers, gripping his wrist tightly. He could not escape from his grip no matter what.

“Damn it, let go of me!” The guard was nervous as he yelled.

In an instant, three to five security guards who were on duty came over.

They were looking at Jasper and the rest with unfriendly faces. One of them said, “Are you looking for trouble? Don’t you know where this is? How dare you behave atrociously at this place?”

“Julian,” Jasper said insipidly, “Don’t hurt anyone.”

Jasper was here to incorporate Sena into his troops. He did not come here to fight with the security guards.

Julian nodded and pushed the guard away. He backed away and stood next to Jasper with a calm expression on his face.

Jasper led Hudson forward with his hands on his back. With Julian around, the guards did not dare to stop them. They could only stare fixedly at the group.

When they got to the elevator, a staff member with some documents in her arms walked out just in time. As such, Jasper stopped her.

“Hello, which floor is the chairman’s office on?”

The woman blushed when she saw the elegant and refined man in front of her. She said, “16th floor.”

“Thanks.”

After thanking her, Jasper led Hudson and Julian into the elevator before pressing the button to the 16th floor.

Life at the Top Chapter 280

The 16th floor was the core office in Sena. There was a huge meeting room here as well as Dane’s office and the office of the chairman’s secretary.

The other higher-ups would be working on the lower floors. From this alone, Dane’s superior status in Sena could be seen clearly.

Inside the meeting room, all of the higher-ups in Sena were sitting upright and still as they listened to Dane’s speech.

“This time, we have to make up our minds to get rid of those little companies that will affect the development of Sena!”

After being humiliated in Terizone, Dane rushed back to Capital City that very night. He was so furious that he did not get a good night’s sleep.

Today, he called all of the higher-ups to have this meeting early in the morning.

He decided to teach Terizone a lesson to let them know that they would not have anything good awaiting them after offending him.

“We’re the ensign for the internet industry in the country! We’re the number one web portal among the four! In this country, it can be said that Sena is the boss!”

Dane coldly scanned the higher-ups in the room with an arrogant look in his eyes. His words sounded powerful and resonating.

“Sena is going to float very soon and once it’s done, all of you will be the higher-ups of a listed company. You guys will have vestings and it’ll be able to make you into millionaires overnight!”

The higher-ups were excited as they looked passionately and enthusiastically at Dane.

The news about Sena signing an agreement to float with Colossal Investments was not a secret in the office anymore. At this moment, everyone was calculating how much money they could make as a higher-up in a listed company after Sena floated successfully.

“However, before that, we have to crush Terizone! Then, we’ll dominate the instant messaging market in the country. Once we’ve done that, the stock price of Sena will be higher and the valuation will be much higher as well. Hence, you’ll get even more benefits!”

Dane looked at the excited faces of the higher-ups and laughed loftily. He was enjoying the feeling of being chased after and worshipped.

‘Jasper, I want to see how you’ll compete with me now!’

Suddenly, Dane felt a slight hint of remorse. He wanted so badly to get Jasper here to let him see how many talents he had under him and how much power he held.

If this power erupted, they would be able to crush Terizone into pieces in a blink of an eye.

At this moment, it was as if Dane's wishes had come true. Suddenly, the door was being pushed open from the outside.

Jasper had Hudson by his side and Julian behind him as the three of them appeared at the door of the meeting room.

"Are you having a meeting? Good, then I don't need to get all of you here one by one."

Most of the higher-ups in the meeting room did not know Jasper, but they did know what Hudson looked like as he was the company's rival for the past two days.

When they saw Hudson, they displayed extremely shocked expressions on their faces. They did not understand why he was in the meeting room of their company.

Now, this scene was like the leader of the enemy suddenly barging into the other troop's base camp when the two troops were facing each other and were about to go to battle and fight.

Dane was staring straight at Jasper, and his face looked like he had just seen a ghost.

"Jasper, what are you doing here?" Dane cried out involuntarily.

He then roared with a dark expression on his face after he came back to his senses, "Security! Where's security? Why did they just let irrelevant people inside? Don't they know that the company is having a meeting with the higher-ups?"

Dane had a bad feeling in his heart when he saw Jasper and Hudson showing up all of a sudden.

At this moment, a group of security guards hurried over. While they were facing Dane's roars with their faces turning pale, they gasped and said, "Mr. Warren, t-they barged in forcefully."

Dane ignored the guard and looked at Jasper gloomily. He said with an insincere smile, "Jasper, who do you think you are? I went to Terizone yesterday so you came to my place today. Do you think we're kids playing house?"

Jasper walked into the meeting room with his hands behind his back and said dully, "The reason I'm here today is to announce a few things, and while I'm at it, I need to call a meeting."

Dane started guffawing from anger. "Is there something wrong with your brain?"

"This is Sena! This is my company and you're telling me that you're here to announce a few things and call a meeting?"

"If your brain is faulty, you should go to the psychiatric hospital for treatment! Stop causing a ruckus here, do you understand?"

Hudson looked coldly at Dane and said, "Dane, watch your mouth. If not, you'll be the one who's going to be embarrassed and put in an awkward position."

Dane chortled and pointed at Hudson to say, "Moore, when I started Sena, you were still in school. Since when do you have the right to speak to me?"

"What's wrong? Is Terizone struggling now? I went to you to purchase Terizone yesterday and you rejected me. Are you coming to beg me now?"

Dane chuckled coldly and said nonchalantly, “However, I won’t give you such a favorable price anymore. Five million. I’m going to give you five million for Terizone now.

“If you don’t agree, then get out of my company and wait for my Sena to crush your Terizone bit by bit!”

Life at the Top Chapter 281

Dane's arrogance and overbearingness that was well-known in the country's internet industry was vividly and thoroughly displayed here.

He genuinely looked down on Hudson and Jasper. Now he was trying to think of a way to humiliate them back after he was humiliated by them yesterday.

With a light chuckle, Jasper said insipidly to Dane, "So you think you're the only one who can come to Terizone unannounced and I can't come to Sena to reciprocate?"

Dane scoffed and said, "You're comparing Terizone with Sena? Are you insane?"

Not only Dane, but the rest of the higher-ups were also looking at Jasper and Hudson like they were idiots.

They felt that these two might have something wrong with their brains and came here to get insulted and humiliated.

"Indeed, Terizone is still small now, but after a few years, Sena won't even be fit to lick Terizone's shoes," said Jasper coldly.

Dane was staring blankly at him before guffawing loudly. The higher-ups were all laughing as well.

The entire meeting room was filled with their jeers and irreverent laughter.

Jasper shook his head amidst the laughter of Dane and the rest. He said, "Even though I want to use my ability to prove it to you, I can't wait anymore!"

Slam!

Two agreements were slammed down on the table.

“This is the stock transfer agreements signed by Montagne Capitals and Colossal Investments to transfer their shares to JW Capital. These two agencies have transferred their shares from Sena to JW Capital, and with their shares combined, it’s a total of 59%.

“So in short, I am now the biggest shareholder in Sena. I’m ordering a shareholders’ meeting right now!”

Jasper turned around and faced the higher-ups in the room who abruptly stopped laughing. Their expressions looked brilliant. Jasper’s tone was cold but calm. He was emitting a majestic and imposing aura of a sovereign king who towered above the world while looking down at it.

Dane stared at the two agreements on the table, his entire body shaking.

The incomparable shock made him feel as if he had been electrocuted. His brain and limbs felt numb.

“How is that possible?”

“Impossible!”

Dane howled madly. He grabbed the two documents and scanned the contents quickly.

Two statements were clearly stated in the agreements in black and white.

[Montagne Capitals will sell their 34% shares in Sena to JW Capital for 200 million.]

[Colossal Investments in the Terra Region will be selling their 25% shares in Sena to JW Capital for 1.5 million.]

Dane's hands were shaking uncontrollably. Blinded by his rage, he violently ripped the two agreements into pieces. He stared malevolently at Jasper like a hurt wolf and roared wildly, "These are fake! These agreements are fake!"

Jasper smiled lightly and said, "The ones in your hands were only copies. If you like ripping things up, I still have a lot, so you can rip them slowly. As for whether they're fake, you'll know after you make a few calls."

Dane stumbled backward. He almost lost his footing and nearly fell to the ground.

In the end, he clenched his fists and stared at Jasper to say, "How is that possible? I didn't get any news about this! Colossal Investments got Sena's shares in exchange for helping Sena float. How could they have transferred them to you? Are they not worried that I'll sue them?"

Jasper chuckled lightly and said, "Have you become foolish from anger? I already have 34% after Montagne Capitals transferred their shares to me, so I can make a one-vote veto and I vetoed Sena's plan to float. So, how are you going to float now?"

"So, it was destined for you to violate the agreement. As it turned out, my collaboration with Colossal was very delightful."

While he said that, Jasper shrugged and his face looked neutral.

Dane's vision went black, and in the end, he still could not resist the urge to fall back into his chair. It looked as if all of his energy, vigor, and spirit had been sucked dry.

He lifted his head to look at Jasper. His eyes were filled with extreme rancor. He said wretchedly, "What are you going to do now?"

Jasper looked at the higher-ups and said coldly, "Now, as the biggest shareholder of Sena, I suggest we have a shareholders' meeting right now.

"There are two topics of discussion for this meeting.

"Number one, proposal to dismiss the chairman and director-general of Sena, Dane Warren.

"Number two, proposal to combine Sena and Terizone."

The first of these two topics of discussion was to get rid of Dane.

The second one was to destroy the entire Sena.

All of the higher-ups were in an uproar. Their faces looked alarmed, and they did not know what to do.

Dane stood up suddenly and yelled with courage that he got from some unknown place, "Impossible! I won't agree to this! This is murder, and you're separating Sena!

"Even if you're the majority shareholder, you don't even have 67% of the shares so you can't achieve a two-third voting right. I can still reject your proposal!"

Jasper seemed to have predicted this. He chuckled lightly and said, "Alright, I announce that JW Capital will convertibly increase 300 million worth of shares for Sena. It will be diluted according to the corresponding proportion of the shares of the shareholders.

"Dane, it's either you follow and inject 300 million so that you can still be guaranteed one-third of the stock right, or my 59% will be increased to 85% after this injection."

Everyone in the room was silent, including Dane. All of the higher-ups had pale faces at this moment.

The silence was deafening.

After Jasper did this, it was as if a clap of thunder had struck down on top of Sena and it was going to turn over the entire company.

Hudson was excited after watching this. He felt that some hot blood had been washed off from a deep part of his heart, and he needed to pour out what was on his mind.

As a student of great ability and the fact that he had led Terizone from nothing to what it was now, Hudson was pretty familiar with the operation of the capital in a company.

The convertibly increased shares and fund injections were basically rogue strategies to hurt someone with money.

For example, if a company had a market value of one million and had two shareholders, they would both own 50% of the shares.

If one of the shareholders wanted to own a controlling number of shares in the company and they convertibly increased one million of shares, then the company's market value would increase to two million. The shareholder who convertibly increased the shares would have 75% of the shares while the other would have the remaining 25%.

This strategy would usually be used by extremely powerful shareholders. This would be a frequent tactic for them to control the company.

What Jasper was doing now was exactly that.

If they were going to hurt each other with capitals and compare the depths of their pockets, then Dane Warren could not defeat Jasper Laine.

After Jasper said that, Dane's face went gray. He knew he had failed by a landslide and there was no saving him now.

Never in his wildest dream would he imagine that Jasper would quietly complete the purchase of Sena in just one day.

Even if he did not convertibly increase the shares, his 59% of the shares would seal the fate of Dane's tragic ending.

Dane chuckled bitterly and looked at Jasper. He said, "You've won. You're savage. You're such a savage."

Life at the Top Chapter 282

"Everyone in the industry says that I always do things by fair means or foul, but they're all blind. Jasper, you're the true savage. You go for the neck immediately and don't leave any room to maneuver!

"Splendid! Tremendous indeed!"

Jasper had on an indifferent expression while listening to Dane.

There was no pleased look on his face nor modesty.

He looked as natural as if he was eating or drinking.

"Who's agreeing or disagreeing with the two proposals I made before?"

Jasper looked at the higher-ups of Sena while standing next to the table. His tone sounded calm, but there was great danger hiding in his voice.

No one dared to stand up and disagree with him. They knew once they disagreed, there would be only one ending for them.

To pack their things and leave.

“I’m forfeiting,” Dane closed his eyes and said as if he was submitting to his fate.

When the higher-ups heard Dane saying that, they all lowered their heads.

Dane stood up shakily and pointed to his seat. He smiled at Jasper and said, “This seat belongs to you now.”

Jasper did not decline. He walked straight to Dane’s seat and sat down.

At this moment, all of the higher-ups sighed internally. They knew that Sena had already staged a comeback.

The flag of the internet industry in the country and the head of the four web portals, Sena, had officially gotten a new boss.

This would be a huge piece of news that would shake the internet industry in the whole nation.

While sitting on the seat of honor in the meeting room, Jasper said flatly, “The decision has been made after the shareholders’ meeting and we’ll be dismissing Dane as the chairman and director-general of the company. After this, I’ll sign the official document to pass it down to every department in the company.

“Now, the company will stop all attacks on Terizone and stop the plan to float. The rest of the tasks in Human Resources will stay the same.”

When he said this, Jasper looked at the higher-ups and said dully, “There’s a change in the person with the highest position in the company and it will undoubtedly affect the working attitude of the other employees. I hope everyone here can pacify the employees later so that they can carry out their jobs as usual.

“Even though the owner of Sena has changed, we still can’t relax about what should be done and what needs to be done.”

The higher-ups looked at each other, and someone even stole a glance at Dane.

However, they saw that Dane was like a cock that had lost in a cockfight. He had lost his spirit, vigor, and energy. He was sitting at one side like a puppet.

The higher-ups sighed, and it was unknown who took the lead to call out, “Yes, Mr. Laine.”

“Yes, Mr. Laine.”

All of the higher-ups agreed at the same time.

Jasper nodded and said, “Dismiss.”

The higher-ups walked out one after another. Before leaving, they would subconsciously look at Jasper and Dane.

One of them was full of mettle like a new king who just ascended the throne.

The other one had his head lowered in dejection after being kicked out of the position of power.

After the higher-ups left, this earthquake that started from the core of Sena immediately spread throughout the office.

After that, it spread to the outside world before finally shocking the entire nation.

Inside the meeting room, Dane walked out the room dispiritedly. He knew he did not have a place in Sena anymore.

“Mr. Warren, wait,” Jasper called out to stop Dane.

When Dane heard Jasper changing the way he addressed him, he clenched his teeth and turned around to look at Jasper. He asked, “Are you going to humiliate me again?”

Jasper said unenthusiastically, “I plan to invite you, Mr. Dane Warren, to be the new general manager of Sena. I wonder if you’re interested in this?”

Dane was startled after he heard that. He stared fixedly at Jasper, and his eyes were filled with doubt.

“Aren’t you going to kick me out of Sena?”

Dane was not the only one with this question, even Hudson was curious. He looked at Jasper curiously to know the reason.

Jasper said flatly, “I detest your moral character, Mr. Warren, but I have to admit that as the founder, you’re responsible for getting Sena to the scale it is now and its achievements.

“Do you think I purchased Sena just to kick you out and vent my anger? That’s too childish. You’re beneficial to the company, so I’ll consider keeping you. If you weren’t, then I’d kick you out even if you’re super close to me.”

Jasper said and stood up to walk to Dane. He continued, “Now, even though Sena’s owner has changed, Sena is still Sena. I still hope that it will continue to develop under your leadership.”

Dane’s body shook slightly. What happened today had too many twists and turns. Dane felt as if he was on a roller coaster, and his mood was fluctuating so rhythmically.

When he was feeling fully content with his achievements, Jasper purchased Sena.

When he was feeling mad and frustrated, Jasper gave him an opportunity.

Dane even felt as if he was a puppet under Jasper's control that would do whatever Jasper wanted him to.

"I..." Dane clenched his fists tightly and looked reluctantly at the meeting room as well as the bright and wide office.

This was all his blood and sweat.

"I'll do it," Dane closed his eyes and said.

Jasper smiled and reached out his hand to Dane.

Dane reached out as well to hold Jasper's hand tightly.

The two men looked into each other's eyes. Dane suppressed his anger and hatred, hiding them in the deepest part of his heart, leaving only conflicts behind.

In ancient times, Queen Boudica had suffered patiently but firmly resolved for revenge. Now, Dane Warren would be willing to bear the humiliation to save his skin for the time being in order to avenge himself in the future.

Jasper patted Dane's shoulder and pretended that had not noticed anything. His smile looked tranquil and unhurried.

...

Inside the chairman's office.

Of course, Dane would not be able to continue staying in this office anymore. After he packed his things, he went downstairs to find an empty office. He hung the plaque stating 'general manager' and went inside.

On the other hand, Jasper and Hudson were having tea in the chairman's office.

"Dane truly knows how to enjoy himself," Jasper smiled and said while taking a sip of the superior green tea.

Hudson looked admiringly at Dane's office with a floor area that was exaggeratedly large. There was a parlor, meeting room, and lounge inside his office.

When he thought back to his simple and unpresentable office, he sighed. "I wouldn't have known if I hadn't made a comparison. After comparing, Terizone indeed can't compare to Sena."

Jasper laughed and said, "You don't have to undervalue yourself. Even though Terizone's office is unpresentable, the feeling it gave me was much better than a bright and wide office."

Hudson nodded and smiled. He said, "I believe Terizone will soon have an office that's much more extravagant than this one."

Life at the Top Chapter 283

"You don't have to worry that I'll pay less attention to Terizone because I have Sena now."

Jasper laughed and said. It would be better for him to say something earlier.

“In the future, JW Consortium will keep Terizone and Sena as two separate companies, but the two of them will naturally be the closest allies.”

JW Consortium!

This was the first time Hudson heard Jasper saying this.

From here, he was able to know some of Jasper’s ambitions.

He wanted to turn JW Capital into a financial group that was built up of different companies!

This was not an idea that a normal person would have.

Hudson sucked in a deep breath. He decided that whether JW Consortium would be a reality or no matter what stage it would get to in the future, his Terizone must be the best among all of the other companies.

After coming out of the office, Jasper lifted his gaze to see Dane. He was standing at the door, hesitating whether to knock or not.

After their eyes met, Dane felt a little embarrassed.

“Is there anything I can help you with?” Jasper asked.

Dane said challengingly, “I need to report on some business.”

Report!

Dane had no idea when was the last time he reported something to someone. It could be years.

After starting Sena, he was always the person with the highest power and the person who people reported to.

Jasper nodded and allowed Dane into the office. He said, "What's wrong?"

Dane quickly recomposed himself and said, "My job scope in the office has changed, so who's going to be responsible for the work that's going to come in after this? What's the arrangement?"

Jasper said, "Still you."

Jasper looked at Dane who had a look of shock on his face and said enthusiastically, "I'll arrange someone to be the director-general of Sena. When that happens, you just need to cooperate with him."

Dane felt his heart tighten as he asked, "May I know who that will be?"

"Jack Tanner!"

Dane was proud and arrogant. He would not allow himself to surrender to Jasper.

Jasper knew this from the start.

In fact, Jasper had considered kicking Dane out of Sena before.

However, this would cause a very intractable problem for Jasper...

He did not have many people who could handle such a huge company like Sena.

Sena was such a huge company, so he would need a professional and experienced team to operate this company.

Jasper was not a god, so he would not be able to support Sena on his own.

As such, keeping Dane was one of his stop-gap measures.

Besides, it would be impossible for Jasper to completely trust Dane.

In his previous life, after Dane's Sena became a listed company, he had a huge conflict with the financiers because of his attitude. When they were at the most serious phase, he led his management team to threaten the financiers. He said if they did not fulfill his requirements, they would have a mass resignation.

This attitude had angered the financiers completely, so they kicked Dane out of Sena.

As the founder, Dane was fired by his own company. This was the first time it happened in the country and caused such a controversy.

As such, Jasper understood that Dane was useful but he could not give him too many responsibilities.

Terizone was slowly progressing now and with Hudson around, Terizone would be fine.

As such, Jack could finally make some time.

As for management, Jack's ability was enough to give Dane a crushing defeat. Jasper was reassured to transfer him to Sena.

Dane was stumped for words after he heard Jack's name. He eventually nodded, and Jasper could not tell whether he was happy or angry.

"I'll tell Jack to brief you later about what's going to happen next."

After hearing Jasper's statement that sounded like a dismissal, Dane turned around to leave.

"Mr. Laine, are you going to transfer Mr. Tanner to Sena?" Hudson asked.

Jasper nodded and said, "Back then when I transferred Jack to Terizone, I told you he was there to help you manage the company as he could use his experience in Weresoft to help you guys build a management system. Now, Terizone is tentatively stabled, so you alone will be enough."

Hudson sighed and said, "Jack and I had so much fun working together and we're pretty close in private too. I'm a little reluctant for him to leave just like that."

Jasper laughed and said, "Everyone is still under JW, so you'll still get a chance to meet in the future."

Hudson smiled and nodded.

After making the decision, Jasper called Jack and told him his intention to transfer him to Sena.

Jack was stumped for words, and it was evident that he was shocked. Then, he frowned and said, "Mr. Laine, I'm not complaining to you, but I just don't think I'll be able to break new ground within a short period after going to Sena."

Jasper smiled and said, "Sena is filled with Dane's people. Even if he has been demoted to the general manager position, he's still a core member. A leader who just fell from the sky like you will definitely not get the respect of everyone."

"So, you have to give me some support, Mr. Laine," Jack said jokingly.

"I'll authorize you as the director-general of Sena. You can go look for the core members you want. This way, you'll have power, and we'll see how long you need to take down Sena completely," Jasper said.

Jack's eyes lit up.

To be honest, he was longing for a platform where he could fully exhibit his ability.

Even though he was happy when he was in Terizone, at the end of the day, his hands and feet were bound.

It was different now that he would be transferred to Sena. Even though it would be tough because Jasper wanted him to break the ice and break new ground, this was a test and also an opportunity.

“Alright, three months! You’ll see results in three months!” Jack said seriously.

Jasper chuckled lightly and said, “If you don’t accomplish that when the time comes, you’ll get smacked.”

After he hung up the phone, Jasper went downstairs with Hudson for lunch.

However, his phone rang again.

Jasper took a look and it was from Dawson. He quickly answered the call.

“Jasper, remember what I told you back then about Easy Media? You need to close the deal as soon as possible. I received news that someone with an extensive background has met up with the King brothers and they’re planning to buy their company.”

After Jasper heard that, his face became solemn. He asked, “An extensive background? Do you know who that is?”

Dawson said, “I have no idea, but according to my friend, he’s the son of one of the rich families in Capital City. If we don’t get this right, it’ll be troublesome for us.”

Jasper frowned and said, “I’m in Capital City now. Give me the contact number, Uncle Schuler. I’ll handle this as soon as I can.”

Life at the Top Chapter 284

Dawson gave him an address before saying seriously, "Jasper, I have more than ten years of friendship with this friend of mine, so he's reliable. You can go to this place to find him.

"I don't think he'll lie to me. If the other party really comes from Swallow Capital Residence, then we'll just give up if we know we'll fail even if we give it a try.

"After all, there are still a lot of entertainment companies out there. If we can't buy this one, we can buy another. However, the people from the great institution are not easy to deal with and they're very demanding as well.

"We don't have to cause trouble to ourselves."

Jasper smiled and said after hearing that, "Don't worry, Uncle Schuler. I'll go about things while sticking to the norms."

Dawson laughed and said, "I know, but you don't have to be weak. We're not fruit cakes that will allow people to do just anything to us. Alright then, go and take care of your business now."

After he hung up the phone, Jasper tapped the surface of the desk with his fingertips. He looked as if he was in deep thought.

Even though Hudson did not know what was going on, from Jasper's face, he could tell he had come across a difficult problem. He became silent as well and did not disturb Jasper's train of thought.

According to his memories of his previous life, on the surface, Easy Media always had the King brothers as the person in charge.

However, Jasper had heard from some gossip forums that the King brothers came from an extensive background.

Back then, he thought it was just a joke from the netizens

However, from the looks of it now, it might be true.

No matter in which industry, Jasper knew that he would need to interact with people on a much higher level in the country if he had come to this stage. However, he did not expect this to happen this fast.

However, the sky was gradually turning dark and it was not convenient for him to go visit them now. As such, Jasper decided to only think about this tomorrow.

...

The next morning, he came out from the hotel.

Since Jack would be coming to Capital City today, Jasper arranged for Hudson to pick Jack up before familiarizing himself in Sena's office with Hudson.

On the other hand, he would go to East Quatre Road. There, he found an office building in the most well-known central business district in Swallow Capital.

'Rosy Commercial Consultants.' Jasper looked at the signboard and walked in.

"Hello, sir, who are you looking for?" the beautiful receptionist asked courteously.

"Jim Yapp," Jasper said.

The receptionist was staring blankly at him before quickly saying, "Oh, you're here for Mr. Yapp. Please wait."

After she said that, she made a call. After a while, she gestured respectfully for Jasper to follow her.

Jasper came to the door of an office after following the receptionist. Then, a portly middle-aged man walked out of the office.

“You’re Dawson’s son-in-law, Jasper, right?” Jim laughed loudly and pulled Jasper into the office.

“Hello, Uncle Yapp,” Jasper smiled and asked.

Jasper could tell that Dawson had a great relationship with Jim after Jim’s first sentence to him. If not, he would not directly call him Dawson’s son-in-law.

It was obvious that these two had discussed this matter before.

Life at the Top Chapter 285

Jim looked at Jasper up and down before saying in satisfaction, “Not bad, you’re young and have outstanding talents. An excellent young man like you is not easy to find even in Swallow Capital.”

Jasper smiled and said, “I just rely on my luck. I don’t dare to look down on everyone on earth.”

Jim chortled and said candidly, “People who don’t belong together, don’t get to live together. You’re just like Dawson when he was young. You’re talented and yet so humble.”

The two of them chatted for a while before Jim said, "Jasper, before this Dawson said you're planning to buy an entertainment company. I had asked everywhere about this matter.

"I think you know what happened in the end. Easy Media had every intention to sell, but the bosses of this entertainment company are brothers. Back then, they did not have a united opinion, so they delayed this for some time.

"After this delay, trouble arose. Another rival has appeared and he has such an extensive background."

When Jasper heard this, he asked, "Who is he?"

Jim chuckled and said, "Swallow Capital is not the same as other cities. There are a lot of high-ranking officials and big shots here. According to my knowledge, the one who appeared this time belongs to the second-ranking family in Swallow Capital."

Jasper frowned slightly.

The second-ranking family in Swallow Capital. Even the wealthiest family in the province would not be able to compete with them if they were placed in the same room.

"Plus, their family should have a very deep connection to the people who did publicity. Otherwise, this young master from the later generation would not want to buy a media company. After all, his family already has the resources, so it would've been easy for him to do this."

Jim's face looked solemn as he said, "So, Jasper, if you're very determined, we shall give it a try. If you think this is dispensable, I suggest that you give up."

Jasper smiled and said, "Uncle Yapp, since I'm here, I don't plan to give up so easily even if the other party has a powerful background. When it comes to business, I can't stay away from it just because he has his eyes on it, right? There's no rule about this anyway."

Jim nodded and said, "Alright, I understand. If that's the case, I'll pull some strings tonight to invite the King brothers for dinner. What do you think?"

Jasper got up and smiled. "Thank you for going to all these troubles for me, Uncle Yapp."

Jim smiled and patted Jasper's shoulder. He said, "You're Dawson's son-in-law, so you're kind of like my nephew. Naturally, I'll help you if I'm able to."

The two of them walked out of the office while chatting. When they got to the door of the company, Jasper wanted to bid farewell to Jim when he heard an ear-piercing voice.

"Jim Yapp, people always say you'll get smarter as you age, but I think you're getting more stupid as you age. How dare you steal the business Mr. Combe has his eyes on?"

Jasper and Jim looked over to see a middle-aged man in his 30s walking over to them with a cold smirk on his face.

When Jim saw this man, his face fell. He smirked and replied, "I contacted Easy Media first, and it's Mr. Combe's business if he's interested in them too. Are you saying I can't even show an interest in them now? George, you're just a middleman, so why are you acting like a poser in front of me?"

George Powell scoffed and said, "You're saying it like you're so goddamn noble. If I'm a middleman, aren't you one as well?"

"The only difference between us is that I'm working for Mr. Combe this time. And you? Hurry up and tell your guy to tuck his tail between his legs and scam. Mr. Combe said if anyone dares to steal Easy Media from him, then it'll mean that they're deliberately embarrassing him!"

Jim had a horrible expression on his face, and he subconsciously peered at Jasper. There was restrained fear and anger in his eyes.

George was pleased with Jim's gaze. He looked at Jasper and said in disbelief, "Is this the person who wants to steal Easy Media from Mr. Combe? He looks like an idiot who still needs his bottle. Hahaha. What a joke!"

Jasper looked at George with no expression on his face. He said dully, "I had my eyes on it first, so if you're talking about stealing, I think your master, Mr. Combe, is the one who's stealing from me. Plus, who do you think you are? Do you think you have the right to interrupt us?"

After Jasper said this, George was furious.

On the contrary, Jim smiled and felt extremely pleased.

He said in his heart, 'Attaboy, he's not a coward at all!'

Life at the Top Chapter 286

George glared at Jasper ferociously and said, “Before you came out, didn’t your parents tell you to be more low profile outside so that you don’t offend other people?”

Jasper answered unenthusiastically, “The elders in my home did tell me to be humble and low profile outside. Plus, they also told me not to hold others in contempt so rashly.”

When George heard this, he thought Jasper was scared and lacking in confidence. Just as he was about to say something after smirking, he heard Jasper continue talking.

“But they only told me that I should be courteous to humans. If a dog keeps barking madly at me, I can just kick it away.”

George’s words that were on the tip of his tongue were then stuffed back into his throat forcefully. In an instant, his face looked extremely dark.

Even Jim was stumped for words. Then, he guffawed and felt extremely carefree.

George was his rival, and even their companies were in the same building.

There were a lot of enemies in the same industry, but one could know how horrible their relationship was just from the looks of it.

Jim had contacted Easy Media and this man in front of them named George was coming between them right now while using Mr. Combe to separate them.

He was just using Mr. Combe’s power and influence to mock and ridicule Jim for the past few days.

Today, Jim did not expect he would be able to vent his anger through Jasper.

Jim's laughter caused George's face to become even darker. There was a hint of coldness in his eyes that were glaring at Jasper.

"You little idiot, aren't you afraid that people will step on you for being so cocky in Swallow Capital?"

Jasper looked coldly at George and said flatly, "Kindness is always returned tenfold, but if you dare to cross me, you'll get a tenfold return as well."

"How cocky! You're so young yet you're already such a gigantic poser.

"You should know that Swallow Capital is not as simple as you think it is. There are people you can't afford to offend. If you get stepped on, you can only lie on the ground and beg for mercy." George smirked, and his eyes were cold.

"Of course, there are a lot of people who'll step on me in Swallow Capital, but I can guarantee that you're not on the list. You're just a hired thug who barely wormed into their circle."

Jasper shrugged, and there was an insipid look on his face. He was not even concerned about George at all.

This kind of person was just a hired thug. His next meal depended on his boss' mood. No one could insult Jasper even if he was in Swallow Capital.

Plus, he could not mess up the purchase of Easy Media because of someone like George.

Naturally, Jasper would not show him respect.

"W-Who are you calling a hired thug?"

George felt a fire of rage surging from his stomach and it was heading straight to his head.

He had been mingling in Swallow Capital for so many years, and aside from those members of the aristocratic families who came from the Residence, he had never seen such an arrogant person before.

Plus, he had asked around about the buyer who contacted Jim and knew he was not from Swallow Capital.

In addition to that, he was definitely not someone from the Residence.

As such, George had no comebacks after Jasper kept calling him out. He felt as if he had been slapped a few times across the face and was in fiery pain.

“You little idiot, I’ll teach you that you can’t be too arrogant in Swallow Capital!”

After a cold chuckle from George, he turned around and yelled at the outside of the building.

After a while, the door of a van outside opened and five to six burly men walked out. They all made their way over.

“Little idiot, it just so happened that I went out to settle some business and brought my men out for a meal. It’s your unlucky day,” George laughed nastily and said savagely.

When Jim saw this, he frowned and barked at George. “Hey, Powell! What are you trying to do? There are security cameras in the building and you’re trying to attack us here? Are you insane?”

After a scoff, George said coldly, “Shut up! You best f*ck off. Let me tell you, Mr. Combe has got my back and if you spew more bullsh*t then I’ll f*ck you up too!”

Jim's expression was gloomy. He said to Jasper in a deep voice, "Jasper, run back into the building. Run to my office and lock the door. Don't open the door if it's not me.

"I'll handle them. I've been in Swallow Capital for so many years. He won't dare to do anything to me."

When Jasper saw that Jim was still helping him so sincerely at this critical moment, he felt slightly touched. He said, "Uncle Yapp, don't worry. They won't do anything to me."

Life at the Top Chapter 287

After Jim heard that, he said angrily, "He won't do anything do you? George is not a good person. He went to jail when he was young because he fought with someone. Plus, he has Mr. Combe's support now.

"You're young, so don't get so hot-blooded and impulsive. It's not embarrassing to admit defeat at this moment. You don't need to suffer this."

Jasper shook his head and walked in front of Jim. Now, he was protecting him.

"Julian!"

Jasper called out.

Julian had been repressing it for a few days now, feeling pins and needles all over his body. He could not hold it in anymore. He stepped out, looking at George and his gang coldly.

There were five beefy fighters next to George, so the man was extremely confident. When he saw what Jasper was doing, he could not help but burst out laughing. "Idiot! You only have one person and you dare to f*cking fight with me?"

"Men, kill that kid. I want to step on his face and ask if he still has the guts to be so arrogant!"

After George said that, the five men walked over with malevolent looks on their faces.

Julian looked at Jasper. He was asking Jasper whether he should cripple these people.

Of course, Jasper did not want to get into trouble with the law because of these thugs. He said flatly, "Go easy on them. Just teach them a lesson."

Julian sighed in disappointment. He turned around and cracked his neck. Cracking sounds that sounded like beans getting stir-fried in a hot pan were heard from his body.

With a low growl, he charged at the five of them like a wild beast out of its cage.

It was evident that he was not afraid of the other party having more numbers than him.

Those five fighters were dazed.

These people always depended on their numbers when they fought, and their opponents would admit defeat even before the fight started. They had never seen the other party charging at them with such vigor even when there was only one of them.

"Damn it, go! Cripple him!"

George roared nervously.

At that moment, the two parties were tangled in a fight.

Jim, who was being protected by Jasper, was extremely anxious. He did not expect Jasper to be so impulsive. He felt that something bad was going to happen tonight.

If Jasper was beaten up by George at this place, then how would he be able to face his best friend Dawson?

When he thought about this, Jim gritted his teeth and turned around to run to the lobby of the building. He opened the fire cabinet and took out an ax. He decided that he would not let anything happen to Jasper.

However, when he was walking over with the ax, he saw George's men lying on the ground. They were wailing and begging for mercy.

Jim was holding the ax after having made the decision of burning their boats, but now, he was staring blankly ahead.

This turn of events... Why was it different from how he imagined it would be?

Jasper saw the ax in Jim's hand and felt touched. He burst out laughing and said, "Uncle Yapp, Julian is my bodyguard. He knows how to fight. He's great."

At that moment, Jim did not know what to say.

Aside from Jim, George felt as if he was watching a movie. How would a normal person in real life defeat five people at the same time?

At this moment, Julian walked over to him.

George was so scared that his entire body was shaking. Julian's emotionless eyes caused him to feel chills down his back.

"Get away from me! Don't come any closer!"

George yelled before turning around to run away.

However, the moment he turned around, he felt the back of his neck tightening. Then, he felt as if he was flying when Julian grabbed his neck and reverse slammed him in front of Jasper.

With a loud thud, he fell flat on his face.

Jim's face twitched. He was feeling pain for George as well!

Life at the Top Chapter 288

George felt as if his organs had shifted out of place. His stomach was churning, and he felt horrible.

He tried hard to get up but his entire body was limp and powerless. He lifted his head with all his might but could only see Jasper's leather shoes.

Jasper took a step forward and squatted. He bent over to look at George, patting his face.

"You had a lot of fun calling me little idiot, huh?"

George gritted his teeth tightly, but at this moment, even if he was resolute, he did not dare to speak anymore.

“You kept saying that the stakes are high in Swallow Capital. Were you having fun acting like a poser?”

George was gasping for air while enduring the pain in his chest and stomach. He opened his mouth challengingly and said, “Just kill me or hack me into pieces if you dare!”

“How stubborn.”

Jasper smiled, and his eyes went cold instantly.

“You’re just a thug of the lowest level in Swallow Capital’s society, so why are you acting like a keelie in front of me?”

A keelie was a dialect and slang in Swallow Capital, meaning an old fox or a person unfit for society.

Jasper lifted his hand to grab George’s cheek and forced his head up to look into his eyes. Jasper said insipidly, “Yes, the stakes are high in Swallow Capital, but it has nothing to do with people like you. Don’t think that just because you’ve been in Swallow Capital for a few years that you’re a big shot here.”

George was shaking all over. He did not know whether he was trembling because of anger or pain.

He felt that Jasper’s statement had crushed his dignity into pieces before slamming them on the floor to get stomped on.

George wanted so badly to have a dagger in his hand so that he could kill Jasper for making him feel this way.

“Mr. Laine, let me remove one of his arms.”

Julian had been pissed with George's arrogance for a very long time. When he saw that he was still looking at Jasper sinisterly with hatred on his face, he could not help but propose.

In Julian's heart, Jasper was his savior—someone he respected the most in his world. He would not allow anyone to insult Jasper.

He owed his life to Jasper, and he was not just saying that.

If they were in a life and death situation one day, he would be willing to take a bullet for Jasper.

When George heard this, the scenes of Julian fighting his five fighters until they were battered and bruised as if he was the God of War flashed across his brain. Then, he saw Julian walking over to him with eyes that were so icy they looked like they could kill.

George was petrified.

He had been in jail before and knew that some people really had the guts to kill.

Plus, now Julian was saying that he would cripple one of George's arms.

George did not doubt that if Jasper nodded, Julian would really do it.

His intense fear washed away all of his hatred. His eyes were now filled with terror as they shook.

"No, no! I was wrong! I was so wrong!"

George completely became a coward.

“Sir, my good sir, please don’t let him cripple me. There are security cameras all around the place. A big shot like you shouldn’t have to get into trouble with the law because of a minor character like me, right?”

When George saw Jasper’s calm and unchanged expression on his face, he quickly yelled at Jim, “Mr. Yapp, please stop him. Don’t make this into something big!”

Jim wanted so badly to spit on George’s face right now. He had seen a lot of shameless people before but he had never seen anyone as shameless as George.

However, George was right. If Julian really did something to George, then Jasper would get into trouble because they were not at the feet of the emperor.

Life at the Top Chapter 289

“Jasper, don’t act rashly,” Jim said softly.

Jasper chuckled lightly. He had not planned to do anything to George from the start.

The difference between an adult and a child was that one of them knew how to weigh the pros and cons. They would not be blinded by momentary emotions.

If he crippled George, he would feel great. However, what was going to happen next?

He would not be able to escape the consequences of his crimes.

It would be such a tremendous loss if he caused Julian to get convicted because of a minor character like George.

However, Jasper did not mind scaring him a little.

“Tell me, who’s that Mr. Combe who’s behind your back?” Jasper asked coldly.

George did not dare to hide anymore. He spilled everything as if he was spilling a bag of beans.

“Mr. Combe is the second son of the Combe family. He just came back from studying overseas. Since most of the big shots from the Combe family are involved in public relations and Mr. Combe has a celebrity girlfriend, he plans to get into the media industry.

“Mr. Combe contacted me through someone and asked me to look for a media company for him. Coincidentally, I was watching Jim during that time and knew he was looking for a media company too. As such, I contacted Easy Media following his clues. In the end, Mr. Combe was satisfied and that’s how this happened.”

Jasper’s eyes looked cold. He stood up and said to Jim, “Uncle Yapp, I think this is more complicated than we thought.”

Jim looked coldly at George who was on the floor and said, “I didn’t think that everything started because this b*stard was coming between us. I was wondering why it was such a coincidence that Mr. Combe got the news the moment I contacted Easy Media.”

Jasper peered at George who was lying on the ground and did not make a peep. He said flatly, “Get lost.”

After George heard that, it was as if he had received the greatest pardon in the world. He scrambled to get up from the floor before limping away.

On the other hand, the other five fighters helped each other up from the ground before running away too.

Julian looked at the figures of the people who were running away. There was a hint of regret in his eyes... He was still reminiscing this fondly because he did not have enough.

At a distance, George went into the car and slammed the door heavily. His racing heart finally calmed down.

After the fear went away, the bone-deep hatred started surging from within.

He turned his head and glared at Jasper who was at a distance away with rancor in his eyes. He despised him so much that he almost crushed his own teeth.

“B*stard, I’ve been mingling in Swallow Capital for so many years and I’ve never suffered such a huge loss before! I was even beaten up by an animal!”

At this moment, the bruised and battered fighters all got into the car as well. They were all looking at George with resentment.

“What are we doing to do now, boss?”

One of the fighters asked with his fangs baring. When he opened his mouth, it had tugged the wound on the corner of his mouth. He sucked in a deep breath from the pain.

Even though George wanted so badly to slap each and every one of them and call all of them good-for-nothings for embarrassing him, he knew he could not do that. Otherwise, his popularity among them would disappear and if that happened, who would still want to work with him?

George controlled his bad mood and took out a briefcase from the compartment of the armrest. He then took out wads of cash for them. “This is for your medical expenses. You guys should recuperate for the time being.”

The fighter who was talking before took the cash happily. When he was holding the cold hard cash in his hands, the wounds on his body did not feel so painful anymore.

Even though they had gotten the money for their medical expenses, they were still pissed. After all, they were beaten up and lost their dignity as well!

“Boss, we can’t just let this go.”

George laughed sinisterly. “Of course. I’m going to see Mr. Combe now and I’ll add more details to the story. I want to see if that little idiot can still jump around so arrogantly after this! We’re working for Mr. Combe now, and he’ll definitely step in regarding this matter. I want to see how he’ll continue being so arrogant then!”

Life at the Top Chapter 290

Jasper and Jim bade farewell downstairs of the building.

“Uncle Yapp, I still have something I need to take care of. I’ll go handle it now,” Jasper said with a smile.

Jim nodded and said, “Alright, go on then. I’ll make an appointment with the King brothers later to see if we can get them to have dinner with us tonight.”

Jasper said, “Alright, I’ll wait for your update.”

Looking at Jasper and Julian’s figures, Jim felt deeply moved. He took out his phone to call Dawson.

“Dawson, you’ve got yourself a piece of treasure. Your son-in-law is really something else!”

...

After Jasper bade farewell to Jim, he went back to Sena immediately. Coincidentally, he spotted Hudson and Jack walking out after finishing a meeting. When he saw their glum faces, he knew something was wrong.

“What’s wrong?” Jasper asked.

“The people in Sena all have different minds! Some of them are willing to side with us while the others are gearing more toward Dane. Now, there are two sides,” Jack said with a complicated look on his face.

“It’s simple. Punish one of them as an example to others. If it doesn’t work, tell them to get lost.”

Jasper made a straightforward decision and smiled at Jack. He said, “We just got here, and we can’t keep pandering to them. I didn’t give you this power for no good reason. You should use it whenever you see fit.

“Remember, we can’t be overly cautious when we’re doing things. Especially you. You promised to manage Sena properly for me! I’m waiting to see the results!”

“Roger!”

Jack nodded. He could not help but feel impressed with Jasper’s decisiveness. The biggest taboo of a company was to have big changes. If they did not execute it perfectly, it would affect the company greatly and cause them huge losses.

Hudson was standing at one side where he was looking at Jasper with admiration too. He felt that the tactics of this 20-something young man were so scary sometimes!

However, he had to admit that Jasper had a huge plan in mind.

While the three of them were talking, Jasper's phone rang.

It was from Jim. Jasper quickly answered the call.

"Uncle Yapp, are there any updates from Easy Media?"

Jim answered, "I just contacted them but we can only talk to them face to face depending on the situation. It seems that they don't really want to talk to us! What do you think?"

Jasper narrowed his eyes and said, "Uncle Yapp, why do you think they don't want to talk to us?"

Jim said without hesitating, "Perhaps something is going on or perhaps they have another arrangement... Wait, are you saying that they might be in contact with Mr. Combe?"

Jasper said unenthusiastically, "Yeah. The Combes were already planning to come between us anyway. Plus, George, the man who showed up today, is not a good person. He might have talked bad about us after we left. Or perhaps, the Combes are the local influencers of Swallow Capital. If we and the Combes both want to buy their company at the same time, who do you think they'll decline?"

Jim was breathing urgently now. He said in a low voice, "It's going to be very troublesome if that's the case."

At this moment, Jasper was the one who was comforting Jim instead. He laughed and said, "Uncle Yapp, don't worry. As long as there isn't a deal, we still have a chance."

Jim said in a low voice, "The King brothers are bad cookies too. I'm afraid they might raise the price in this situation."

“You get business from a discussion. If one raises their price, the other will make a bargain by slicing it down the middle. It’s not something unusual.”

Jim chortled and said, “Jasper, I can’t view you as a young man in his 20s sometimes. You act more like someone around Dawson and my age. You’re too calm and unflustered.”

“Because I know getting angry and anxious won’t help with our case now.”

After chatting for a while, Jasper hung up the phone.

Jasper rubbed the bridge of his nose. It did not matter if the King brothers were talking with Mr. Combe tonight or what they had already talked about. Jasper could not do anything about it now.

Jasper lifted his head to look at the two men in front of him. He was troubled when he thought about the matter with Easy Media. He said, “Hudson, Jack, you guys continue talking. I’ll go back to the hotel to rest.”

“Alright, we’ll settle this as soon as we can.”

After Jasper went back to the hotel, he took a shower and felt much more refreshed. He sat in the hotel alone to think about the purchase.

Jasper did not have many ideas about the purchase of Easy Media for now.

Jasper had no idea what their biggest competitor, Mr. Combe, was planning to do as well.

Life at the Top Chapter 291

As such, he needed to prepare and think about a lot of things.

Easy Media was definitely the most reputable entertainment company. If they could buy it, it would be very helpful to the entertainment group section of Jasper's plan.

This was why Jasper had never considered buying another company.

Although the current Easy Media was far less powerful than in his previous life before he was reborn, it already had a rudimentary form and held a lot of contracts with celebrities who would be popular in the next two years.

This alone was a huge hidden wealth.

If he considered another company, Jasper would need to spend ten times or even 100 times more effort and capital in order to achieve what Easy Media had now.

Therefore, Jasper had made plans. If Easy Media was really not available, he would directly expand Advent Entertainment Group in Harbor City and use Harbor City as a springboard to directly enter the market in Mainland.

However, he still needed to think and carefully weigh his decision regarding this. Otherwise, if he made a mistake, he would lose everything.

...

The core business district was near Workers' Stadium in Swallow Capital. It had always been a paradise for the hedonistic sons of Swallow Capital's rich families to eat, drink and have fun.

There was a small shop where one could drink for 100 Somer Dollars, and there was also a high-end club with bottles of wine selling for 100,000 Somer Dollars each.

Here, the luxury cars and beautiful women were the most indispensable, as well as sons from rich families.

In a high-end clubhouse without a sign, a group of men and women were huddled together. They were chatting in the innermost private room.

After the door of the private room was pushed open, a sturdy and impressive-looking young man in a white suit walked in.

He looked very handsome. The only flaw was his hooked nose that destroyed his face with a sunny disposition, making him look sinister and vicious.

“Mr. Combe.”

“Mr. Combe.”

The moment he came in, everyone in the room greeted him respectfully.

Hector Combe nodded and took out a cigarette to dangle it between his lips. A nearby young man quickly took out his lighter to light up the cigarette for him.

“Mr. Combe, that middleman named George has been waiting for you for quite some time now. He said he has something important to tell you.”

Hector lifted his eyebrow and said nonchalantly, “I asked him to do something and he’s taking his sweet time, yet he’s always running to me to take the credit for other people’s achievements. Let him come in.”

After a while, George walked in from outside. He needed to nod, bend down, and smile whenever he saw someone.

When George saw Hector, he bent down and walked at a faster pace. He got in front of Hector and called out respectfully, "Hello, Mr. Combe."

Hector glanced at George and said, "You have a wound on your face. Did you get into a fight?"

George's sadness came pouring out of him as he said with a bitter expression, "Mr. Combe, you have to stand up for me."

Hector said in annoyance, "What do I have to do with you getting beaten up? What do you mean by standing up for you?"

George said, "You have no idea. I ran into Jim Yapp today and coincidentally, the person who entrusted Jim to steal Easy Media from you was there too.

"He's a young man who looks like he's in his 20s. He even had a bodyguard with him. He was insufferably arrogant like he was above the law and natural morality."

George tried to make himself look pitiful and kept adding in details as he said, "I ran into them so I planned to scout out some information. However, after a while, that person named Jasper Laine started yelling at me.

"I said I'm working for Mr. Combe but I guess it would've been better if I didn't tell him because after I said your name, Jasper became even more arrogant. He said you should go talk to him yourself if you have the balls. He said you have such an exaggerated opinion of your ability for fighting over Easy Media with him."

George carefully glanced at Hector's face and realized that the man was without an expression. As such, he continued, "How would I be able to endure listening to that? So, I fought back, but before I could even say anything, he asked his bodyguard to hit me until I became like this."

After telling the story with some additional details, George tried hard to make himself appear as a poor man who got beaten up just because he stood up for Hector.

After he said that, Hector laughed.

He leaned against the sofa, and his fingers were fiddling with the cigarette. He said to George, "Are you done?"

George nodded and answered vigilantly, "I'm done."

Hector then violently slapped George across the face and roared, "You're a f*cking piece of trash!"

Life at the Top Chapter 292

His sudden roar that came without a warning sign shocked everyone in the room. Everyone turned around to look at them bewilderedly. Then, they looked at George who was holding his face with pain and grievance with pity in their eyes. They shook their heads at the same time.

Mr. Combe was hot-tempered and arrogant. This was not the first time he hit someone without any warning signs.

"You said you're working for me and those people named Jasper and Jim hit you. It means they're indirectly slapping me across the face! And you just came back after getting f*cking beaten up? How do you even have the guts to come back?"

Hector grabbed George's collar with sinister eyes.

"Don't you know how to get a few people to kill him?"

George trembled as he looked into Hector's icy gaze. He said with a shaky voice, "Mr. Combe, I-I was wrong."

"You good-for-nothing!"

Hector pushed George away, and his eyes were twinkling with an icy glint.

"Jasper Laine? I've never heard about this rat before and he dares to fight over this with me? How ballsy."

After he said that, Hector took out his phone to make a call with a gloomy look on his face.

After a while, the call went through.

"Mr. Combe, is there anything I can help you with?" Jim's neither obsequious nor supercilious voice sounded from the other end.

Hector smiled sinisterly and said coldly, "I don't care who you or that son of a b*tch Jasper are, but if you want to fight against me in Swallow Capital, you need to know your place!"

"Today, I'm having dinner with Easy Media. Don't you guys want to buy Easy Media as well? Alright, don't say that I'm not giving that son of a b*tch a chance. Ask him to show up if he has the guts!"

"In Swallow Capital, nobody dares to fight me for what I want. Tell that son of a b*tch what I said. If he has the balls to show up tonight, I'll respect him for being an honorable man before I kill him. If he doesn't have the guts to do so, then I'll kill him directly!"

On the other end of the phone, Jim had a complicated look on his face after he hung up.

How would he not know that this was a banquet set up to attack a guest?

However, this was the chance for them to meet the King brothers. He had to tell Jasper no matter if he was going or not.

As such, he immediately called Jasper and told him about Mr. Combe's phone call.

"Jasper, this is a trap."

While listening to Jim talking on the phone, Jasper stood in his hotel room while facing the bustling night view of Swallow Capital. His face looked as calm as water.

"I'll go!"

Jasper only said these two words.

Jim's words were all stuck in his throat after Jasper's two words. He could not speak after a very long time.

"Jasper, have you thought about this? This is a dinner with a dangerous agenda, not an ordinary dinner. It's obvious that Hector wants to do something bad to you tonight. I'm afraid it's going to be troublesome... Don't be impulsive because you're being blinded by anger." Jim was still trying to talk him out of this.

Jasper said flatly, "Uncle Yapp, I'm not going because of my so-called dignity, but if we don't go tonight because of this, the King brothers might think we've given up. Hector would then be able to get Easy Media without lifting a finger."

Jim heard that and sighed. He said, "Jasper, to be honest, I suggest that you look for another company. You won't be able to buy Easy Media so easily. Hector is... not that easily defeated."

Jasper chuckled and said, "Uncle Yapp, give me the address. I'll go alone."

Jim said angrily after he heard that, "What are you talking about? Do you think I'm afraid of death?"

"Uncle Yapp, this is my business. I don't need to involve you in this for no good reason," Jasper said.

Jim said in a deep voice, "Enough. I've already been involved right from the start. How will I be able to face other people if I run away the moment we're faced with danger? Wait for me at the hotel. I'll drive over and pick you up."

After Jim said that, he hung up the phone.

Half an hour later, Jasper got into Jim's Audi.

After getting into this high-end Audi, Jasper laughed and said, "Uncle Yapp, I guess you made quite a lot of money these few years."

"Are you mocking me?" Jim glared unhappily at Jasper and said, "Compared to you and Dawson, what my consultant agency makes is just pocket money to you two."

Life at the Top Chapter 293

Jasper smiled and said, "We're making money, but Uncle Yapp, you're making connections. You may not be able to do a lot of things with money, but it's easy with connections."

Jim smiled and said, "Do you know about consultant agencies?"

Jasper said after shrugging, "I know a little bit."

The two chatted, and after about an hour, they arrived at the place where Hector and the King brothers had arranged to have dinner together.

"The Prince Mansion?"

This place was not a star-rated hotel, nor a well-known restaurant, but a private guild with the characteristics of Swallow Capital.

Looking at the tall vermilion gate in front of him and the large stone lions sitting on both sides of the door, for the first time ever, Jasper felt the difference between the life of the upper-class in Swallow Capital and other cities.

If one were to say that the gentries in Harbor City were mostly known for indulging in a life of modern luxury, then at Swallow Capital, there was a solid foundation here.

At least, modern metropolises such as Harbor City and Waterhoof City certainly did not have places like Prince Mansion.

"At the end of the 16th century, this was the old house of a Scandinavian prince. Hagen was his last name. It was originally a tourist attraction but was later bought by a businessman with an extensive background to build a private guild."

Jim was very familiar with this place, and his tone sounded inexplicably complicated. "In Swallow Capital, it's not uncommon to be able to go to a hotel to eat a meal worth tens of thousands or hundreds of thousands. However, it's true power when one can enter such a place.

"The chef here worked in the kitchen of a palace before and he's not open to the public. Only naturalized members can come in. The annual fee for a membership card in this place is one million Somer Dollars, and yet it's still an ordinary card of the lowest level."

Jasper asked, "Do you fit the requirements to be a member here?"

Jim quickly chuckled and said, "You think too highly of me. How would I fit the requirements? If you want to join as a member in this place, one million is just a base fee. The most important thing is that you need to have an invitation from a member who's in the middle level or above before you can enter.

"With your father-in-law's assets, he only can barely join as the lowest ranking member if he's not in another city but in Swallow Capital.

"You have to know that if you're in another city and you have a billion Somer Dollars' worth of assets, it's a different concept from if you're in Swallow Capital. A billionaire in Swallow Capital has resources and connections that people in other cities can't match."

Jasper understood.

In his previous life, there were a lot of rumors about the various clubs and clubhouses for the rich and powerful among the upper-class in the country.

For example, there was Club Tarzan in the business circle. Wayne, Hudson, and Warwick's chairman at that time were all members.

Club Gelb was another supercilious club. Most of their members were from Swallow Capital Residence. It could be said that it was where the bigwigs gathered.

Jasper remembered that Henry was a top diamond member in Club Gelb and held a very high rank.

After they stepped into the door, the place was decorated like a classic courtyard of a mansion in Swallow Capital. A staff member came up to them to politely ask if they had a reservation or a member card.

Jim mentioned Hector's name and said they were invited here.

The staff then led the two of them into the inner courtyard.

The winding corridor was circuitous, leading them to a secluded and quiet place.

Aside from Prince Mansion's historical and cultural value, its floor area in the main district of Swallow Capital was enough to give it an astronomical price.

If one could make this place a private guild, then one could only imagine how powerful the boss behind it was.

Jasper and Jim pushed the door open and walked in after they were brought to a small separated courtyard.

The courtyard was deep.

In this extravagant courtyard, the scenery was refined and there was also meticulously decorated greenery. Under the sky roof in the middle, there was an interesting and appealing round table.

Hector was sitting in the main seat, and on his left, there were two middle-aged men in their 40s who looked kind of similar.

On his right, it was George whom they had met before. He was carefully sitting on the stool with just half of his buttocks as he laughed along with Hector.

Jasper's eyes scanned past the King brothers and George before finally landing on Hector.

On the other hand, Hector was also looking at him up and down.

When George saw Jasper, his eyes went red. He suppressed his anger and hatred to say to Hector, "Mr. Combe, that's Jasper."

Life at the Top Chapter 294

Hector glared coldly at George and said, "I'm not blind."

George nodded and bowed to agree with him. Then, he turned around to look at Jasper with rancor in his eyes.

George laughed malevolently and said to Jasper, "I thought you wouldn't have the balls to come. Not bad, you're pretty ballsy."

Jasper said calmly, "I'm doing legal business in the capital and didn't do anything to violate the law, so why would I be afraid to go anywhere?"

Jasper peered at Hector who was sitting at one side. He knew he was the young master of the Combes. He chuckled lightly at George, saying, "I said that you're a hired thug and you didn't admit it. From the looks of it now, you have no choice but to admit it"

"You!"

George's face was flushed red, but he did not dare to do anything impulsive. He quickly turned around to look at Hector. "Mr. Combe, it's this guy. Not only is he disregarding you, but he even wants to steal Easy Media from you!"

After he said that, George looked at Jasper with a pleased look on his face because he knew that after this, Hector might crush Jasper under his foot.

What did it matter if Jasper had the strength? Mr. Combe was the local young master of Swallow Capital. He could crush Jasper under his foot at any minute.

After Hector heard this, he scoffed. He looked at Jasper and said, "Since you know he's my hired thug, then you should also know you need to see who the dog's owner is before you hit it. I don't care that you beat George up, but you still dared to beat him up even after he said my name. That means you're disrespecting me."

Hector picked up a wet tissue to wipe his hands. His eyes looked sinister as he said gloomily, "And anyone who disrespects me in Swallow Capital will pay a terrible price."

Hector's arrogance and audacious character caused Jim and the King brothers who were silent the entire time to have subtle changes in their expressions.

Jasper was the only one looking nonchalant.

"Of course, I won't bite back at a mad dog that wants to bite me. Instead, I'll kick a few of its teeth away. As for how the owner feels? You're the one who didn't tie him up properly so I just kicked him."

"F*cking bullsh*t!"

George was livid. He stood up suddenly and pointed at Jasper before roaring, "Who do you think you are? You keep repeating the word mad dog. Who are you calling a mad dog?"

"The one with the biggest reaction," Jasper said insipidly.

George felt his breathing become hitched as he stared fixedly at Jasper. He chuckled coldly and said, "You're still so arrogant now that you're here. You're really heedless of consequences!"

"Do you know where this is? Do you know that people like you will never be able to eat here if it isn't for Mr. Combe?"

"Do you know how big of a disparity you have with Mr. Combe?"

“You’re just a person with limited vision. Don’t think you’re at the top of the world just because you have some coins. There are more people better than you in this world. There are no disadvantages to going out to see the world to gain more experience.”

George had a pleased look on his malevolent face. He displayed a look as if he was towering above everyone while he looked askance at Jasper.

“Mr. Combe was right. You’re just an idiot. Mr. Combe is the one who’s so generous in giving you a chance to see him. If it were up to me, I’d just crush you to death with a flick of my wrist. Do you even think you’re worthy of speaking to Mr. Combe?”

Hector had a satisfied look on his face while he listened to what George said.

Why did he need a hired thug like George? It was to speak on behalf of him when he was in situations where he was unable to.

It was obvious that he felt amazing after George kept sucking up to him.

Jasper sighed and said, “It’s rare to see someone feeling so superior as a dog.”

George was pleased, but in the next second, his expression froze. The changes in his expression looked very interesting.

“You little b*stard, what did you say?!”

George’s face looked so malevolent it was scary. He wanted so badly to swallow Jasper whole.

“Did you not hear Jasper calling you a dog?”

Jim smirked and said, “As someone in the same industry as you, this is the first time you’re making me feel so f*cking embarrassed to be in this industry. Look at your spineless self. You want so badly to lie on the floor and lick Hector's shoes clean, right?"

What Jim said almost caused George's lungs to explode from anger. He looked at Jim with bitter resentment and roared wildly, "What are you so pleased about? Is it your turn to speak?"

"Enough."

Hector said insipidly.

He looked at Jasper and Jim with an astonished look in his eyes. He said, "Don't ask for a mile when we've already given you an inch. This is Swallow Capital, do you understand?"

"Um, Mr. Combe, Mr. Laine, since we're here to talk business, why don't we get into the topic?"

One of the King brothers, Leo King, said awkwardly to help to resolve the dispute.

To be honest, he really did not want to get between them. At this moment, he was secretly feeling remorseful for waiting for a better offer.

Life at the Top Chapter 295

If they knew Hector would be so demanding, then they should have just immediately sold it.

For now, it would be very difficult for him to get away from this situation.

He could not afford to offend Hector and he did not want to know who Jasper was anymore because from what he could see right now, Jasper was definitely not Hector's rival.

That was why he did not even consider getting in contact with Jasper. He even made the decision that if Hector did not cut the price down too low, he would just sell the company.

Leo was thinking this while bracing himself as he saw that the two of them were already in a state of mutual hostility.

It was none of his business if these two fought to their deaths, but since he was here, he would be undoubtedly involved in it too.

Leo could not afford to provoke these men.

Hector laughed at Leo's statement and said, "Right, we don't want word about this to go out and have people call me petty for not allowing someone to eat."

After he said that, Hector waved his hand. "Serve the food."

The servers quickly brought out all kinds of food. They all smelled, looked, and tasted great. It would be difficult for them to find such food elsewhere.

However, no one at the table had the appetite to eat.

Hector said, "I'm determined to get Easy Media so please, Mr. Kings, give me a good price."

Leo and his brother, Noah King, looked at each other. They had already thought of a price on their way here.

"500 million."

To be honest, the maximum market price for Easy Media right now was approximately 400 million.

By asking for 500 million, they were giving themselves a huge leeway.

However, Hector frowned and was dissatisfied to hear the price.

He expected to take down Easy Media with 200 million.

Even though he was one of the members of the Residence and his family was pretty powerful, when it came to money, he did not have that much.

His family would only be able to handle 200 million.

However, Hector did not care. He was clear that the King brothers were not idiots. As long as he said something, they had to sell and even if they did not want to, they would have to sell it to him all the same.

“Deal.”

When Hector was about to say something, Jasper’s one word shocked everyone at the table.

His clear and sonorous voice was filled with unquestionable certainty. Everyone looked over, their eyes all on Jasper.

Jasper looked calm and was even in the mood to enjoy some duck breast. Yes, the food cooked by a chef who previously worked in a palace was indeed amazing.

At this moment, Leo, who just proposed the price, saw Hector’s face getting darker and darker. He looked as if he was going to explode at any second, and at the same time, he looked as if he was going to start crying internally as well.

'Damn it, my asking price is obviously fake. Jasper, do you have too much money that it's starting to burn a hole in your pocket?'

Jasper was willing to spend 500 million to buy Easy Media, and of course, Leo did not have any opinions about that. However, Hector was still here and if he were to reach a deal with Jasper, this would not be a matter of 500 million.

"Mr. Laine, I..."

Jasper immediately interrupted Leo and said with a raised eyebrow, "Didn't you just say 500 million, Mr. King? I think this price is very reasonable so I can make a deal with you right now. We can sign the contract now and I can transfer the money to you immediately."

"..."

To be honest, this was the most straightforward business transaction Leo had done in his 40 years of living.

If Hector was not sitting here, he wanted so badly to hug Jasper and kiss him a few times.

However, he only wanted to stand up and run away now.

He did not dare to offend Hector.

With a loud slam, Hector slammed his fork on the table and looked at Jasper with dark eyes. He said frigidly, "Laine, are you sure you want to fight me over this?"

After slowly taking a sip of the lobster bisque, Jasper did not even raise his head before saying insipidly, "Since we're doing business, of course, there will be buying and selling. Mr. King proposed a price and I'm willing to pay it. What's the problem with that?"

“Mr. Combe, if you’re not happy, you can compete with me. Just name your price!”

Life at the Top Chapter 301

Old Master Law was an exceptionally talented big shot, while Old Master Combe was a close second.

According to their statuses and identities, Jacob did not even have the qualification to fetch Henry from the airport.

However, Jacob was an ambitious man with a meticulous mind. He had paid a pretty heavy price in exchange for a chance like this. He even brought his little brother along.

It was so that they could fight for a chance to leave a good impression of themselves in front of Henry.

After he greeted Henry, Jacob did not get a reply after a very long while. When he was about to lift his head in curiosity, he heard Henry snort coldly from his nose. "The f*ck you're looking at? I'll kill you if you look at my sister with such a perverted gaze again!"

Jacob felt his heart racing frantically. He turned around to see his brother Hector looking infatuatedly and lifelessly at Anna!

Jacob's heart almost leaped out of his chest after he saw this. He lifted his hand to slap his brother across the face.

"You disappointing moron! Do you think you can look at Miss Law as you wish? Apologize now!"

Hector had never seen such a terrifying gaze from his brother before. His face turned white from terror, and he did not have time to care about the pain on his face anymore. He quickly lowered his head and apologized sincerely, "I-I'm sorry!"

Jacob and Hector were shaking all over. They were facing the Laws, and if they offended them, they might be done for.

Right now, Jacob regretted bringing his disappointing brother along. He wanted so badly to kick him to death at this moment.

Henry smirked. The hedonistic traits in his bones were about to take effect when he heard Anna saying indifferently, "Let's go. We've been on the plane for a few hours and I'm tired."

After Henry heard this, he pressed his lips together and he did not want to look into this matter anymore.

However, it was pretty fun looking at the two ants shaking in fear.

Right, not a lot of Mainlanders could be evildoers like Jasper.

When Henry thought about his bad experience of being tortured by Jasper until he was shaking in fear, he suddenly felt dull and insipid.

"Let's go. Let's go."

He waved his hand impatiently and led Anna to walk forward.

Behind them, Jacob and Hector both let out sighs of relief at the same time.

Jacob then turned his head to glare coldly at Hector. He said icily, "You'd better f*cking watch yourself next time!"

“I don’t care how many women you mess with out there, but you need to remember what kind of women you can’t touch. Don’t you know who Miss Anna Law is?”

“If this happens again, the family and I can’t save you!”

After Hector was done being scolded, he lowered his head deeply and said, “I won’t dare to do it again, Jacob.”

“Hurry, let’s get these two VIPs to the hotel. I heard Mr. Law is someone who loves having fun as well. Tonight, I’ll invite them to have some fun in the club.

“Think of some ways to get that Jasper person to come as well.”

After Hector said that, he was stumped for words. He asked, “Are you sure this kind of situation is suitable, Jacob?”

After a cold chuckle, Jacob pointed at Henry’s figure in front of him and said, “A big shot young master like him filters everyone before making friends. If we don’t show some of our power in Swallow Capital, do you think he’ll treat us as humans?”

“Don’t you have beef with Jasper? Good then, get him over tonight. We’ll destroy him in front of Mr. Law and at the same time, we can show him the power of the Combes.”

Hector’s eyes lit up as he lifted his thumb. He said, “Jacob, you’re the best. You’re killing two birds with one stone.”

Life at the Top Chapter 302

The Combe brothers were still mumbling when they heard Henry's impatient voice from behind them.

"Are you limping? Why are you so slow?"

The brothers responded and quickly jogged over. They were holding the Laws' suitcases and being eagerly attentive.

While following behind them, Hector was holding a big suitcase. Even though it was heavy, he was elated.

After all, this was Mr. Law's suitcase. Not everyone was allowed to carry his suitcase.

His eyes kept shifting mischievously. Hector was thinking about how he was going to humiliate Jasper tonight.

"That'll teach you a lesson for being so arrogant, you little idiot. Tonight will be the night you die!"

When Hector thought about his amazing fantasies, he let out a sinister laugh. He was so elated that he could not wait for tonight to come.

...

Jasper was in his hotel room looking at the report in his hand that Easy Media had handed over to him.

He was thinking about sending this report to Advent Entertainment Group over at Harbor City. After all, they were also in the entertainment industry, so they were experts compared to him.

Plus, as for the reorganization of Easy Media, he had to ask for advice from Advent Entertainment Group as well.

While Jasper was pondering about this, he received a call from Jim.

“Uncle Yapp, how is it? Did you get George’s company?” Jasper asked with a smile.

Jim answered, “Everything is done and I’m now reorganizing the staff. I owe you big time for this.”

Jasper got up and poured himself a cup of tea. He said, “Don’t be so courteous, Uncle Yapp. If I’m helping you, it means I’m helping myself. You have so many ways and information in Swallow Capital. Can you help me contact some headhunting companies? I need some professionals managing the entertainment company for me.”

Jim said, “No problem. I’ll contact you when I have news. However, I just got Hector’s call.”

Jasper lifted his eyebrow slightly. He had been waiting for a few days but Hector had been quiet this whole time. It did not seem like he was going to do anything but he had finally appeared now.

“He asked us to go to the Hoary Stock tonight. I know this place. It’s a small clubhouse founded by Hector and the members of the Residence. You can eat, drink, and have fun over there. It’s kind of like their base.

“So, I don’t think anything good is going to happen tonight since they’re asking us over.”

Jasper said insipidly after hearing what Jim said, "What else did he say?"

Jim smiled bitterly and said, "Indeed, I can't hide anything from you. He said if we don't show up, he'll attack my company first and then shut me out.

"People in my industry will certainly encounter some problems and we can't handle an inspection. I plan to find a few friends to see whether they'll help me muddle through this."

Jasper could understand the bitterness in Jim's words. He said, "Uncle Yapp, you don't have to find someone. I don't think your friends will offend the Combes for you. We'll just go."

Jim quickly said, "Jasper, this is different from last time. It's more dangerous now. If we go, we'll definitely suffer a loss. We can't go!"

"Uncle Yapp, we can't hide from this kind of people. The more we hide, the more they think we're scared and they'll become more intense.

"The only way to defeat them is to attack them back."

Jim was quiet for a while. He gritted his teeth and said, "Okay, I'll listen to you. Let's do it! Worst comes to worst, I'll just close down this company and go back to the province to live off your father-in-law!"

Jasper laughed and said, "I'll wait for you to come pick me up in the evening."

Around evening, Jim drove to the hotel to pick Jasper up.

This time, Jasper brought Julian who had nothing to do as well.

On the way there, Jim looked anxious.

“Uncle Yapp, how did you become friends with my father-in-law? He must have looked down on you.”

After interacting with each other these few days, the two had become close. As such, Jasper started making jokes with Jim.

Jim said unhappily, “I’m the one looking down on him! Who does he think he is to look down on me?”

“You two are completely different people. Uncle Yapp, you’re too cautious and it can be said that you’re a little timid and overly cautious. However, my father-in-law is bolder than you,” Jasper said.

Not much needed to be said about Dawson’s boldness. If not, he would not have hastily gone into investing and almost got all of his assets scammed off him.

Life at the Top Chapter 303

The fact that he was dabbling in the real estate industry was also because Jasper had given him the idea. After investigating and realizing its potential, he immediately started up a company for it.

In comparison to him, there was indeed much Jim had to learn.

Jim gave it some thought and realized that Jasper was right.

He smiled. “That’s just the kind of person he is. I can only attribute our years of tight friendship to fate. I must say that you two are very alike.”

Jasper smiled. "I'd like to think that we're more skilled at discerning. There are some things that you just can't give in. You take one step back and you'll end up taking more until you fall off the cliff when you run out of steps to take.

"No one's going to pity you right now if you're not willing to fight."

Jim fell deep in thought at that last remark and nodded in agreement. "Yeah... After meeting so many people of such influential family backgrounds in Swallow Capital all these years, I'm starting to feel a little lost as well. I'm always afraid that I'll accidentally offend someone."

"I think your profession plays a part in this too. You're a business consultant, after all. It wouldn't be good for you to offend your customers." Jasper smiled and gave Jim some kind words so that he would not feel embarrassed.

"Oh, Jasper! No wonder Dawson, that old fella, likes you so much. No one's ever been as successful as you at such a young age! I wouldn't say that your ability is any less than Dawson's back then. Yet I can't even find a tinge of an arrogant flame in you at all."

"This old fella has truly found himself a treasure this time!" Jim exclaimed enviously.

"Haha, you're too kind, Uncle Yapp. There's not much to me for me to be arrogant about, since there are definitely people much greater than me. They're just keeping an even lower profile, that's all..." Jasper stated with a slight smile.

It was not an act, for Jasper truly believed from the depths of his heart that he was just a speck of dust in the world right now. His goal was to become a worldwide conglomerate.

All he had accomplished up to this point was nothing in comparison to those conglomerates. After all, what these conglomerates controlled were the economies of multiple countries!

Those were the true big shots, and Jasper refused to live a simple and plain life now that he got to start all over again!

He had to grasp every opportunity there was so that he could make his way to even more sophisticated levels step by step!

“You’re too humble, Jasper. But it’s not a bad thing. It’ll do you youngsters no good to be so arrogant anyway...”

Jim nodded, sighing internally in admiration. He did not dare to imagine how much more sophisticated Jasper could get if he kept on going at this rate!

As they spoke, the two arrived at a luxurious-looking structure next to the Workers’ Stadium.

“We’re here, Uncle Yapp.”

The four-story building was not tall, but it did take up a large flat of land. There were three entrances and exits to the garden behind it. The mere building itself was extremely pricey.

On the door were the words ‘Hoary Stock’ and there were two servers at the door.

“The Hoary Stock is not open to the public, gentlemen. Please show your membership cards,” a server requested courteously.

Jasper glanced at Jim. There was no reason for him to have a membership card at all.

“Hector told us to come in,” Jim stepped up to speak.

The server was stunned for a moment before an eerie smile graced his features. His attitude was no longer as polite when he replied simply, “You must be Jasper and Jim, then. You can just go inside. Mr. Combe has already informed us of your arrival.”

Jasper did not delve into the change in the server’s attitude and entered the doors.

On the other hand, Jim glared at the servers who were looking down on them before he quickly followed Jasper inside.

“Jesus, why on earth are those two even pretending to be cool? They’re already dead men walking,” murmured the server who had been glared at with his head down.

Behind them, Julian suddenly halted and turned to look at the servers indifferently. He was smiling as he walked through the doors.

The server was about to speak only to be shocked when he found that the solid bronze handle had been bent out of shape from Julian’s abnormal strength.

His complexion paled, and the server was too taken aback to speak. All he could do was watch as Julian followed Jasper and walked farther away.

Jasper entered the doors only to come to a halt just as he entered the large living room.

A stream of water suddenly fell from above without warning and splashed the area just before Jasper’s feet.

Had Jasper not stopped in time, he would have been drenched by now.

Jasper looked upward unfeelingly and saw Hector with a hand on the second-floor railing and an upturned bottle of mineral water.

Hector laughed mirthfully as he threw the bottle right before Jasper. He spoke in neither a bright nor sinister tone. “You’re in luck today. Come on up, I can’t f*cking wait for you to present your head on a silver platter!”

Life at the Top Chapter 304

Julian looked up to glare furiously at Hector as he stepped on the bottle of mineral water that bounced onto the side of Jasper’s feet.

All it would take was a word from Jasper and Julian would dash upstairs to beat Hector up.

“What’s this? You brought a dog with you today?”

Hector scoffed at Julian’s fierce glare without a care.

Jasper motioned for Julian to calm down as he walked up the stairs to the second floor. Standing before Hector, he asked while unfazed, “Is that all you’ve got?”

Hector was infuriated by Jasper’s carefree expression and smiled wretchedly. “Who are you faking this strong facade for? You won’t even get the chance to cry later when I’m done with you!”

Jim was shocked when he witnessed how Jasper was a moment away from being drenched in water and he could not help but speak, “Watch your words, Hector. Know your boundaries.”

Hector merely glanced at Jim coldly and sneered, “What are you so impatient for, old man?”

“Relax. The two, no, the three of you are going to die tonight!”

“You’re not the only one who wants me dead, get in line. Not like any of you have ever gotten your wishes fulfilled, though.” Jasper chuckled lightly.

Hector squinted and stared at Jasper with a smirk. “Don’t worry. I’ll make sure you won’t get to see tomorrow’s sunshine.”

“That’s why people say that water runs deep in Swallow Capital. Don’t think so highly of yourself just because you’ve earned a bit of money. Even the toughest and fiercest bow down to me here at Swallow Capital. How many lives do you think you have, to act so pretentiously in front of me?”

Hector smirked when he finished speaking and turned to enter the largest private room.

Jim walked over and whispered to Jasper, “I have a bad feeling about this.”

“It’s okay,” Jasper replied calmly, “I’d like to know what tricks he has up his sleeve.”

With that, Jasper then followed Hector into the private room.

It was a large private room, big enough to host a party of more than a dozen people, but there was only one young man sitting in the middle of the sofa now.

Hector walked over and leaned down to whisper to the man with whom he shared quite a few facial similarities. “He’s here, Jacob.”

Jacob looked up and saw Jasper enter the room with the other two in tow.

He smiled and walked over to stand in front of Jasper and Jim.

Jim's heart squeezed at the sight of Jacob. Of course, he knew the man. He was Hector's older brother, and three, no four times more the trouble than his younger sibling.

"Jim Yapp, is it? I've heard of your name. You've worked quite a while in Swallow Capital, haven't you?"

Jacob smiled and continued to speak, "The business you do has no reason for you to provoke me, so why are you so impatient to get yourself killed?"

At that, Jacob lifted a leg and kicked Jim's stomach without warning.

Jim shouted at the pain and curled to wrap his arms over his stomach. Agony was written all over his face.

However, Jacob showed no signs of stopping as he continued to speak coldly, "You could've lived healthily just fine, so why the hell did you have to provoke my brother?"

He raised his hand to slap Jim.

The moment he raised his hand, Jasper grabbed his wrist with a death grip.

"You're going too far!" Jasper stated.

Jacob glared at Jasper coldly and flung his hand off with a sneer. "Who do you think you are? Who are you to interrupt me?"

Jasper ignored him and helped Jim stand. The man sucked in a cold breath at the pain. He asked kindly, "Are you alright, Uncle Yapp?"

Life at the Top Chapter 305

Jim shook his head and forced a smile. "I'm fine."

"Don't worry, I'll get them back for that kick," Jasper promised.

Before Jim could speak, Hector began to snicker by the side after hearing that remark.

"On what grounds? Don't you know that tonight's the night the three of you useless pieces of sh*t die?"

Hector smiled as well and spoke arrogantly, "The Combe family isn't one trash like you can afford to provoke."

"You're Jasper Laine, right? I hear that you're rich. Who knows if your money can save you tonight or not, hmm?"

Jasper looked at Jacob calmly and asked, "This is what you brothers prepared for me tonight?"

Hector mocked, "Still so arrogant even though you're a dead man. Just kill him, Jacob. These kinds of people won't know they're screwed until it's too late."

Jacob smiled and glanced at Jasper coldly. "Don't worry, we still have another distinguished guest tonight. You three dogs will be the entertainment I provide my extinguished guests."

He raised his hand to point at Jasper. "I want you to walk out that door on your knees later."

Jacob's phone rang right after he spoke. Looking down, his expression changed and he turned to tell Hector, "Stay here and watch them. The guests are here, I'll go bring them up."

Jacob then rushed out the door.

Hector grinned maniacally as he looked at Jasper. "I've been waiting for this moment the entire day today. Just you wait, you'll know very soon that you can be as arrogant as you want in front of me, but you're just a useless piece of sh*t in comparison to our honorary guest!"

Jasper ignored Hector and helped Jim to the sofa at the sight of the other's ashen complexion. "Should I send you to the hospital first, Uncle Yapp?"

Jim shook his head. "I won't be able to walk with my joints and bones like this, but I'm fine. I can still hold on."

Jasper nodded. "Just hold on for a little longer, then. We'll decide what to do after I'm done dealing with this."

Hector guffawed. "Motherf*cker! You're moments away from death and you still don't seem to regret a thing, do you? Deal with this? I'm the one finishing you three dogs here!"

At the same time, at the entrance to the Hoary Stock Clubhouse, Jacob courteously opened the door of a Benz that had stopped outside.

"Mr. Law," Jacob greeted with a charming smile.

Henry glanced at the clubhouse disdainfully and pursed his lips. "This is it? The place you said is going to be full of fun?"

Jacob quickly replied, "I'm sure you've seen your fair share of things since you grew up in Harbor City, Mr. Law. How would I dare one-up you like that? This is just a simple reception, as a host to his guest."

Henry scoffed. “Stop pretending to sound f*cking eloquent when you aren’t. I don’t like fake b*tches. Since you were attentive with my lodgings and stay here, I’m just returning the favor by taking a look.”

“Yes, yes, of course.”

Jacob led Henry through the doors. As they walked up the stairs, he spoke in a meaningful tone, “I found a few beauties for you, Mr. Law. They’ll arrive shortly. We can wait in the private room first. I still have a few stupid f*cks to deal with, but you’re welcome to stay and watch.”

Henry squinted and glanced at Jacob. “Showing off your strength in front of me now, are you?”

Jacob’s heartbeat faltered and he immediately disagreed. “You’ve misunderstood, Mr. Law. I wouldn’t dare.”

Henry scoffed. “I’ve seen enough of this behavior, but I don’t care about it. Stupid f*cks are everywhere. I’d like to know how you plan to deal with them, though. I suppose it’s entertaining enough, let’s go.”

Jacob was elated, and he politely pushed open the private room doors while speaking in a bewitching tone, “Don’t worry, Mr. Law, I’m sure you’ll be entertained.”

However, just as the doors were pushed open, Jacob suddenly realized that Henry was rooted where he stood by the door.

Jacob looked up in confusion to see Henry wearing an expression of utter fright as he stared at Jasper in the private room.

‘Does Mr. Law recognize Jasper?’

Life at the Top Chapter 306

Henry felt his scalp grow numb. 'Why was Jasper here?'

Jasper was the one the Combe brothers were dealing with!

Henry had not jumped at the sight of Jasper, but it was a close call.

His first thought was a reflection of how there were so many coincidences in the world.

Henry wanted to speak, but he saw the look Jasper gave him.

With a gulp, Henry forced the words on the tip of his tongue down his throat.

Jasper was stunned when he saw Henry as well.

The only difference between them was that Jasper reacted quicker and gave Henry a warning glance when he realized that Henry was the aforementioned distinguished guest the brothers spoke of. He hinted to Henry not to expose their relationship.

If the distinguished guest was anyone else, then Jasper might have had to put some effort into this.

Yet luck seemed to be on his side when Henry walked in. Jasper could not help but feel... that the Heavens wanted to teach the Combe brothers a lesson tonight.

The silent communication between Henry and Jasper went unnoticed by Jacob and Hector.

“What’s wrong, Mr. Law?” Jacob asked carefully.

Henry gave Jacob the weirdest look and pointed at Jasper. “This is the person you’re dealing with?”

Jacob’s heart dropped at the question and he subconsciously nodded. “Yes.”

“Good job!”

Henry chuckled gleefully and gave Jacob a big thumbs up.

Henry meant it. He was indeed impressed by Jacob at that moment.

Of all the people to offend, he just had to choose the most unfortunate one of all. Henry glanced at Jacob, realizing that he was indeed a mere mortal. Why was he so impatient for death?

Forget everything else, but even Mitch and Zane from Harbor City had yet to take a breather after Jasper forcibly dragged them under his feet.

Either Mitch or Zane alone was more than enough to completely overpower Jacob.

In face of Henry’s praise and the large thumb in front of him, Jacob could not help but feel that something was off.

Jacob’s heart shuddered as he thought back to how Henry had stared at Jasper for a long while outside the door earlier and he asked carefully, “Do you recognize him, Mr. Law?”

Blood drained from Jacob’s face in fear. He was utterly screwed if Jasper turned out to be Henry’s friend.

It was just like selling coffins in front of Hades himself.

Henry snickered and glanced at Jasper. Seeing how the latter did not react, Henry knew that Jasper was about to start ostentatiously tricking people again.

There was no reason for him to put a damper on Jasper's fun since past tragic experiences had taught him that he would be the only one suffering in the end.

"Nope, not at all."

Henry replied with a fake smile and moved to sit on the couch loudly. Crossing his legs, he pretended not to know Jasper at all.

Jacob's heart settled back in place at Henry's actions. He internally scoffed for spooking himself. He even almost gave himself a shock.

'Exactly, who's Jasper? How could someone like him be acquainted with Mr. Law?

'One of them is a divine being, and the other is the muck of the earth!

'There's absolutely no reason for these two's paths to cross.'

With his heart settled, Jacob glanced at Jasper sinisterly and smirked. "I'll give you a chance to beg for mercy, Jasper. How about that?"

Jasper glanced at Jacob calmly and replied in an unaffected tone, "Oh? Didn't you say you were going to kill me?"

Jacob laughed aloud and gave Hector a look.

Hector snickered and walked toward the coffee table in front of Jasper, putting his leg on it. Pointing to the space between his legs, he snickered and spoke, "Crawl between my legs and my brother and I will give you the chance to beg for mercy."

Life at the Top Chapter 307

Jasper looked at Hector, his gaze calm like a lake of dead water.

“What if I don’t want to crawl?” Jasper asked instead.

Jacob scoffed. “Do I look like I’m giving you an option to choose from? Stupid!”

“Either beg for mercy today, or I’ll call someone to close yours and Jim’s company down. Jim will have his license revoked! Trust me, I can easily do all of this and more!”

Jacob spoke with an arrogant laugh, “Your relationship with Jim is great, right? His wife and child are both in Swallow Capital, and I think his son’s doing his second year in a reputable high school. I’m afraid his wife and son will only suffer if I send word out!”

Jacob leaned into Jasper as he spoke and scoffed. “By then, not only will your company suffer, but Jim’s entire family will also fall apart because of you!”

Jim’s expression shifted as he roared, “Come at me, you coward! You think threatening my kids makes you so great?”

Jacob straightened his back and spoke coldly, “Why the f*ck would I care whether I’m playing fair or not when we’ve already made it clear that I won’t go easy on you guys tonight, you dumb f*ck? What, your brain’s f*cked over too now?”

Jacob then pointed at Jasper and asked, “So, are you crawling or not?”

“If you are, then f*cking get to it. Or you can choose to walk out of here on your knees and wait for me to take revenge!”

Jacob then turned to look at Henry and spoke, "You've never seen someone crawl between another's legs, have you, Mr. Law? You'll be able to see it soon, haha."

Henry clamped his mouth shut and shrugged, neither agreeing nor disagreeing with him.

Jasper did not say anything, so Henry would continue acting.

Even so, he really wanted to grab the wine bottle on the coffee table and swing it at the back of the two idiotic Combe brothers' heads.

"I did some investigating," Jasper started to speak while looking unaffectedly at Jacob.

"You Combes have produced quite the results when it comes to promoting through word of mouth, that's why both of you work in the media industry. You have quite the amount of media companies under your name and you earn quite a bit every year."

Jacob narrowed his eyes at Jasper and scoffed. "What's the point of saying all this now? What, are you afraid? You want to give the company back? Sure, but you owe my brother 20 million worth of compensation for moral damage. Then I'll let you go."

Hector's eyes shone and he immediately agreed. "Exactly. 20 million is already taking pity on you. Give me back my company and I'll let you go once my mood gets better. Or you can say goodbye to your only son."

Jasper sighed. "It'll be much easier for me to strike back when you've got your own businesses in the media industry. Just wait, okay?"

Jasper looked up to meet Jacob and Hector's eyes, and he spoke coolly, "Or you can also use your self-righteous ways to try and defeat me. Every man for himself."

Jacob and Hector's expressions darkened, and they spoke coldly, "You really don't know when to quit, do you?!"

"You think you can fight me in Swallow Capital? On what basis? It'd be easier for me to crush you than an ant in Swallow Capital! You're ridiculous. Go back and wait for your company to close down!"

"You're the one who's actively searching for death, Jasper. Don't blame me for leaving you with a remarkable lesson. I'll have you know that your tricks and your capital is nothing more than a fart to me!

"Or do you think you have the connections to deal with me? Let me tell you, people connect in circles and trash like you will only find friends that are equally trashy. As if you'd find someone who dares to stand up against me!"

"Pfft..."

Henry spat out the water he was drinking right at Jacob's face as the other talked big of himself.

Instantly, Jacob had his face drenched.

Henry stared at Jacob with dark eyes. 'Jasper's friends are trashy? So you mean I'm trashy too?'

With Henry's personality, there was no way he would endure this.

Had Jasper not given him a look when he first entered, Henry would have ended these two brothers on the spot!

"Mr. Law, what are you..."

Jacob wiped his face. As he was arrogant and proud, this was the last thing he expected. He asked reflexively.

Before he could complete his sentence, Henry had already sent a large slap across his face.

“Mr. Law your motherf*cking foot! How dare you call me trashy, you motherf*cker? F*ck you and your entire f*cking family, b*tch!”

Henry got up spitting expletives from his mouth. His gaze was ice-cold, and one slap across Jacob’s face was hardly enough to satiate his anger. Henry raised his leg and kicked Jacob onto the floor, bringing Hector down with him.

Following that, Henry turned to look at Jasper with an innocent look on his face. “Jesus, these two f*cking idiots. I really couldn’t hold it back anymore, Jasper, I’m sorry!”

Life at the Top Chapter 308

The room fell silent and the air seemed to freeze around them.

The atmosphere of the room turned extremely weird.

It took a while before Jacob and Hector, who lay dazedly on the floor, finally realized what was going on.

At that moment, even idiots knew that Henry and Jasper were acquainted!

Not only were they acquainted, but their bond was special too.

Otherwise, Henry would never apologize to Jasper with that temperament of his.

Jacob shivered, wondering just what kind of devil he and his brother had provoked. He was someone that even had Henry minding his opinion and emotions.

“Mister... Mr. Law, what...”

Jacob covered his face and stuttered.

Before he could finish his sentence, Henry kicked him in the face again.

It was a harsh kick, one that immediately gave Jacob a nosebleed.

“I f*cking told you not to call me Mr. Law!” Henry’s gaze was filled with anger.

Plopping down on the sofa, he spoke with a sneer, “How could I possibly accept such an honorary title from brothers as awfully great as the two of you?”

“Don’t you know who he is? What a good job you did there. Not even I dare to provoke him yet the both of you act like you’re some divine entity. One calls him a piece of trash and the other calls him a stupid f*ck. How about the both of you open up your f*cking eyes and look carefully who the piece of trash and the stupid f*ck actually are here?”

Jacob and Hector stared at Jasper in shock.

‘How could it be?’

‘Just who is this person?!

‘Isn’t he just some rich businessman?’

“What a couple of stupid f*cks.” Henry scoffed. “Has it never crossed your stupid f*cking minds how he even has so much money despite his age? You think people without skills can do that?”

“You two act like you’re on top of the world just because you’re from the Residence but do you honestly think that the money you have in your pockets can compete with his? Are you telling me it’s never crossed your mind at all?”

Henry’s words had both Hector and Jacob’s heart thumping erratically in their rib cages.

‘That’s true. If he had no skills at all, then how could he have pulled out 600 million at such a young age to buy Easy Media?’

That was a point that the two brothers had neglected to think about.

Jasper smiled and spoke, “Don’t listen to his bluff. I’m just a pretentious person whose company you’re going to close down. You’re also going to screw Jim’s family over, right? What else?”

Jacob shivered and glanced at Henry secretly. The sneer on the other’s face shot his fear and unease off the roof.

“Who are you?”

Jacob suppressed his fright and anger to ask.

His dignity did not matter at that moment, for he just wanted to know who Jasper was.

Hector looked at Jasper with the same frightened and unsettled gaze.

He felt as if this ant he could so easily crush in his hands had suddenly transformed into a powerful dragon.

It was too big of a difference for anyone to bear.

“Is my identity that important?” Jasper asked plainly.

Henry pursed his lips and turned to Jasper. "Why are you wasting so much time on these two stupid f*cks? As if they'll know who the f*ck you are. They're just ignorant idiots. I say, you should just end their lives straight away and move on."

Life at the Top Chapter 309

Jacob and his brother's complexion paled. The brothers would have just laughed it off if anyone else had said so, but this was Henry Law. The man had the ability to make his words become a reality.

Jacob evaluated the current situation and flipped himself over. Ignoring the blood on his face, he bent over and bowed to Jasper, apologizing in the most sincere attitude possible. "I'm sorry. My brother and I have offended you. I apologize for our actions! Please forgive us!"

Jasper looked at Jacob calmly and smiled. "Not bad, so you do know when to be humble. Well, don't you look sincere while apologizing? I'm sure you're scolding me to hell and back internally though, aren't you?"

Jacob frantically disagreed. "No, no, I wouldn't dare. You're a man of great virtue, Young Master Laine. How would you waste your time on being calculative with minor characters like me? Let alone would I dare stay angry at you."

Laughing, Jasper replied, "I'm not a young master at all. I'm just a simple man from an ordinary family. I can't possibly compete with you people, so don't call me Young Master Laine."

"Please forgive me and my brother, Mr. Laine."

Jacob turned to look at Hector who was still dazedly lying on the ground as he spoke. Fury suddenly surged through him and he raised his hand to slap Hector across the face.

“Are you stupid? Apologize to Mr. Laine right now!”

As if he had just awoken from a dream, Hector clenched his teeth and stared at Jasper. Indignance burned in his heart.

“I’m sorry!” Hector stood next to Jacob with his head down as he apologized unwillingly.

Jasper ignored the two who were bent over in apology and instead turned to look at Jim, the man who still had not snapped out of his shock.

“I promised I’d get them back for that kick, Uncle Yapp.”

Jim took in Jasper’s smile. He would have shot up in joy had his stomach not hurt too much to stand.

In less than three minutes, the entire plot had taken a harsh turn and changed the course of decades of history.

Having made his living in Swallow Capital for so long, he knew better than anyone how the caste system pressurized people within its social circles.

While Jacob and his brother were not prominent figures among the other members of Swallow Capital Residence, they were overwhelming and bossy kings when it came to anyone else.

‘Who’s Mr. Law? This man seems to strike fear into the two brothers.

‘What’s more terrifying is Jasper. A man who this Mr. Law treats so respectfully, just who is he?’

Jim found himself unable to see through his old friend's son-in-law.

"Jasper... I..." Jim was a little scared.

"Don't worry, Uncle Yapp. They won't dare do anything to you," Jasper replied calmly.

Seeing the calm expression on Jasper's face, Jim took a deep breath to control the excitement and fright he felt.

He turned to look at the Combe brothers who both sported uneasy expressions on their faces. Resentment and infuriation bubbled instantly within Jim.

Without anyone behind his back, Jim had to bend to everyone's will because he was not strong enough to stand on his own.

'Now that I have Jasper, what more do I have to fear?'

At the thought, new hatred added to old resentments and they overwhelmed Jim, who lifted his leg to kick Jacob in the stomach.

Jacob yelled painfully at the kick and staggered backward, only for his knees to wobble before he kneeled onto the floor.

Watching Jacob grab his stomach and crouch forward before his eyes, Jim realized that he had never felt as joyful in decades.

"You had fun when you kicked me, didn't you?!" With a wretched expression, Jim went over to deliver two more kicks.

Hector's complexion paled sickeningly as he watched how Jacob yelled in pain yet still refused to fight back. He turned his head and made way for the door.

However, Julian was standing by the door the moment he turned around, like a statue of a mythical God.

The strength was zapped from Hector's legs and the man fell on his knees with a thud before Jasper. "I'm sorry, Brother, please don't hit me... I'm sorry. It's my fault for being so blind, damn my stupid f*cking eyes. Please, forgive me!"

Life at the Top Chapter 310

Jasper crossed his legs and looked at Hector, his expression unfazed while the other continued to beg him for mercy.

Beside him, Henry opened a bottle of brandy and poured Jasper a glass.

The sight made Hector shudder.

Within their circle of trust fund babies, one did not pour alcohol for just any other person.

Henry's actions were a statement that Jasper held a higher position than he did.

Jasper, however, did not think much of it. If anything, Jasper only looked at the glass in distaste.

"I don't drink brandy."

Jasper would occasionally sip on red and white wine, but he preferred to keep a respectful distance from foreign alcohol.

Henry pursed his lips. "This bottle costs 160,000. I can't even afford this normally."

Jasper smiled. "I didn't know that there's alcohol even Mr. Law can't afford."

Henry's expression darkened. "You know very well how my old man likes to control my allowances. Not to mention that my sister refuses to help me financially either. I'm her brother!

"On the topic of alcohol, my old man has two crates of 30-year-old whiskeys from his boss when he came to Swallow Capital 30 years ago. There's no way he'd let me drink it just like that, but that's what we had when you came over for dinner those two times.

"I'm sure my old man will say yes if you remind him of it the next time you come over."

Henry's eyes shone as he schemed with Jasper, plotting how he could get his hands on his father's alcohol.

He had no idea that their exchange was causing shivers to run up Jacob, Hector, and Jim's backs.

'This old man Henry is speaking of.

'It has to be Zachary Law, the man of the Law family.'

Henry's words had given them information that would stun the entire circle of trust fund babies in Swallow City.

Not only was Jasper and Henry close, but the former was someone who could easily walk in and out of their house!

'The Law family had invited Jasper over to dinner twice!

'What does that mean, you may ask?

'That means that Jasper is more than just Henry's friend. Jasper is friends with the Law family!

'This is a completely different concept!'

Jasper's identity and status had instantly and infinitely shot up.

No one in their generation could enter the Law family's house as they pleased, or was even considered a family friend of the Laws.

Jacob and the other two's emotions were still in havoc when Henry spoke again.

"My sister came to Swallow City too. She's resting in her hotel room now. All she does every day is rush me to wrap my business up so I can bring her over to you and give you a surprise. How about you come back with me later? We'll give her a surprise this time."

" ... "

" ... "

" ... "

Jim, Jacob, and Hector all looked at Jasper with strange and complicated gazes. They finally understood who Jasper was.

He was the Law family's son-in-law!

Now everything made sense.

"She's here too?" Jasper exclaimed in shock. "Alright, let's wrap this up then."

With that, Jasper stood up and walked over to Jacob and Hector. The two's faces were drained of color.

“To be absolutely honest, I’m just a mere businessman. The main reason why I don’t want to come in contact with members of the Residence is because of how troublesome it is.”

Jasper’s words were met with weird expressions on the brothers, but the two had nothing to say.

“But trouble just like to look for me when I refuse to look for it. Say, for example, the two of you.

“Not that I’ll be afraid when trouble comes knocking at my door. Just because I don’t actively look for trouble doesn’t mean I’m afraid of it. That’s my motto.”

Life at the Top Chapter 311

At that, Jacob forced himself to speak, “Mister... Mr. Laine, this is indeed my and my brother’s fault. Please forgive us this one time. I promise that we won’t trouble you again.”

Jasper smiled.

“I believe you.”

Jasper’s words had Jacob and his brother breathing a large sigh of relief.

“That everything you say right now is the truth, but I can’t be certain that one day you won’t think back to the humiliation you felt tonight and come up with a plan to trouble me. I told you, didn’t I? I don’t like trouble.”

Jasper’s tone was getting progressively harsher.

Jacob wiped the blood from his face and begged again, “Please, Mr. Laine. I promise that we won’t trouble you again.”

“If I tell you to leave the media and entertainment industry, will you?” Jasper asked.

Jacob’s expression changed.

The industry was the Combe family’s main source of income. He earned tens of millions of profit annually from the few companies under his name.

This was not a question of whether he was willing to or not since it interfered with his family’s roots. He did not have the right to decide.

“Seems like you won’t.”

Jasper took in Jacob’s expression and stated faintly.

“Since you’re unwilling to leave on your own, I’ll just have to kick you out myself.”

Seeing Jasper’s firm attitude, Hector opened his mouth to protest by the side,
“You’re going too far, Jasper!”

Hector did not hold back. ‘So what if Jasper is formidable? He’s still an outsider and I refuse to believe that the Law family will sever ties with us just because of him.’

They would apologize if that was what he wanted, but there was no way the Combe brothers would agree when told to cut a source of their family’s fortune.

“I’m going too far?”

Jasper looked at Hector intriguingly and replied in an unaffected tone, “Out of everyone here, you’re the last person who has the right to tell me that I’ve gone too far.”

Jacob held Hector back before his brother could refute and turned to look at Jasper. “We’ll apologize if that’s what you want, but I cannot agree if you want us to exit the media and entertainment market.

“Leave the Combe family some dignity, Mr. Laine. Let’s just end this here before we pass the point of reconciliation. It’ll do no good to either of us.”

“Good, you’re alacritous. I like talking to alacritous people.” Jasper chuckled and pulled out his phone.

The first call he made was to Easy Media’s general manager.

“There’ll be a meeting at the conference room tomorrow morning at eight o’clock and I want all department deputy managers and above in attendance. It’ll be a video call with Harbor City’s Advent Entertainment Group, previously known as Gladness Movies. Contact the technical department in advance so they can set things up.”

With that, Jasper then made the second phone call without even a glance at the ugly expressions the Combe brothers sported.

“Ryder, it’s me, Jasper. There’ll be a video conference at 8 a.m. tomorrow with Mainland’s Easy Media that I’ve already bought. The meeting will discuss mainly the partnership between the two media companies to develop the entertainment industry in Mainland as well as canceling the three media companies in Swallow Capital.

Jacob looked at Jasper in utter shock.

That moment, he finally knew that Jasper was the hidden owner behind Harbor City’s Gladness Movies!

Harbor City’s entertainment industry was more than ten times more developed than Mainland, and Gladness Movies was one of the top four companies in Harbor City. Naturally, the fact had Jacob stricken.

While the three companies under Jacob’s name did require his family’s resources to develop the way it had today, to compare it to Gladness Movies would be comparing a village community to an urban group.

Incomparable.

That was not all, for Jasper then turned to ask Henry.

“More than half of Mainland’s media companies are in partnership with those in Harbor City, hoping to exchange a spot in the market with resources. Could you help me send the word when you return to Harbor City?”

Henry chuckled and replied, "Sure, their companies in Harbor City will definitely be at an impasse. But I don't think you need my help though, just having that Ryder dude of yours send word on your behalf should be good enough. Your name hits stronger than mine when it comes to the big shots in Harbor City."

Jasper laughed and turned his wrist to show the back of his hand. "Alright then. We're done here, let's go."

Henry got up and followed Jasper out. Jim quickly followed after as well.

Just as Jasper got to the door, he heard Jacob roar at him from behind.

"Do you really want to go that far, Jasper?! You won't get anything out of cornering the Combe family!"

Life at the Top Chapter 312

Jasper pulled the door open by its handle and turned to glare at Jacob and Hector with a wretched and fierce gaze.

"F*cking childish."

Then he turned and left.

The luxurious private room was suddenly empty, leaving Hector and Jacob to stand embarrassingly alone inside.

Hector glanced at Jacob's bloodied and pitiful face. He handed a few pieces of tissue to his brother and whispered, "Here, Jacob. Wipe the blood off your face first. Should we go to the hospital?"

Jacob could feel his face and body burning with pain.

“Motherf*cker...” Jacob wiped the blood off, his eyes flaring red with anger.

“And Jim f*cking riding on their coattails!” Thinking about how more than half of his injuries were caused by Jim, Jacob wanted nothing more than to drag Jim back and cut him to death.

“F*cking hell, Jim’s nothing more than a piece of trash! Hitting and kicking you just because Jasper and Henry were here, he must have a f*cking death wish!” Hector clenched his teeth and spoke.

Indignation flared within him, and Jacob spat out the words resentfully, “Jim’s just a nobody, we can deal with him however we want. The problem here is Jasper. There’s too much about him that we don’t know about. I didn’t expect him to be so strong!”

Fear flashed through Hector’s eyes. “What do we do now, Jacob? Jasper didn’t look like he plans to let us go at all... Not to mention that he still has Henry supporting him.”

“Let’s go home first. We’ll discuss this with Dad,” Jacob clenched his teeth and spoke.

Hector shuddered and replied with fear, “Dad’s going to kill me when he finds out.”

Jacob glared at Hector and growled. “We would never have gotten to this point had you not provoked the wrong people outside, you useless piece of trash!

“You heard the call Jasper made just now, didn’t you? Harbor City’s Gladness Entertainment Movies is his too. We have nothing to fear when it comes to Easy Media, but how long can my companies hold on if his company from Harbor City steps foot here?

“Does this look like a problem either one of us can deal with? I’d rather we confess now than confess when we’ve gone beyond the point of saving. Go home with me now!”

...

“Are you sure you don’t need to go to the hospital, Uncle Yapp? It’s better to let a doctor take a look.”

Jasper asked Jim kindly after descending the stairs in the clubhouse.

Jim shook his head and smiled. “It’s just a small injury. I’ll be fine after a bit of rest.”

Jasper nodded. “Alright then. I still have other things to do, so I’ll have Julian send you back.”

Jim hummed in acknowledgment and glanced at Henry not too far away carefully. “Jasper, about you and the Law family...”

Despite the truth written before his eyes, Jim still could not believe that Jasper was so close to the Law family.

Especially when it came to Jasper’s attitude. Jim could tell that they were more than just friends.

It was very unusual for the son of such a prominent family to treat Jasper with not an ounce of temperament but instead with respect and slight fear.

Jasper smiled and replied, “I spent some time in Harbor City and worked with the Law family before. It’s something Dawson knows about.”

Jim nodded in understanding and reminded, “Be careful then.”

Jasper gave him a small smile. "I know my limits."

Jim still wanted to ask Jasper what his relationship with the Law family's daughter was, but he sighed and swallowed his words back when he saw that Jasper was already walking toward Henry.

Despite without the qualifications to be a part of such a high social class, Jim had made a living in Swallow Capital for so many years now that he knew relationships of husband and wife were mere lies to feed the common folk.

All those truly with power and authority were surrounded by women.

Especially when it came to members of the Residence. If they came from a wealthy family, women were something they did not lack.

Life at the Top Chapter 313

Especially rich daughters who were flirty and had family backgrounds prominent enough to scare people to death.

For a young and rich man like Jasper who was skilled and mature in the ways he acted and dealt with issues, he was a promising talent worth the investment of these rich daughters.

Still, Jasper's love life was not something an outsider like Jim could give his two cents on.

Getting into the car with Henry, Jasper turned to ask him, "Why did you come to Swallow Capital?"

Henry did not hide it from him and instead leaned to chuckle by Jasper's ear. "We've got a big thing lined up this time. You know how Swallow Capital was approved to host the Olympics?"

Jasper nodded. There was no way he would not know about something when the entire country was celebrating it.

However... Jasper suddenly widened his eyes.

The Law family did more than real estate, for they also dabbled in the sports industry. The Law family had been the one to take on Swallow Capital's Olympic Village project in the past life.

It was a large project that cost 30 billion!

What mattered the most was not the size of this project, but how much one could potentially earn from it.

It was a national-level project and countless people had their eyes on it, probably everyone in the entire country did too.

The prestige and brand effect of its completion was enough to urge countless real estate businessmen to fight for it even at the cost of making a loss.

Now that he thought about it, after Swallow Capital was approved to host, there were only less than eight years before the Olympics.

It was indeed time to begin planning for Olympic Village.

"Olympic Village?" Jasper asked.

This time, Henry was the one whose eyes widened in shock.

“No way! All I did was tell you about Swallow Capital being approved for hosting the Olympics and you already thought of Olympic Village?!”

Henry really wanted to open Jasper’s skull to take a look at what was inside.

Before he came over, his dad Zachary had called him over to the study. It had taken him a long time before he understood what Swallow Capital being approved for hosting the Olympics had to do with his family.

Even then, he only understood because his dad had told him straight up.

Yet Jasper got the meaning in such a short amount of time. Henry could not help but suspect if his IQ was truly that low.

Jasper knew he guessed correctly by Henry’s reaction.

He smiled and replied, “Why did Uncle Law trust you with such an important project?”

Henry’s expression darkened and he replied disgruntledly, “What’s wrong with me? It’s not like I lost an arm or a leg. What’s wrong with me being the representative?”

Henry felt discouraged when he saw how Jasper looked at him with a shadow of a smile on his lips.

“Fine, fine. I’ll tell you the truth. I’m actually here to scope out the competition since the entire project is technically on paper but yet to be confirmed. When people are truly fighting for it, then Dad will come and secure the project himself.”

Jasper nodded seriously. “That makes more sense.”

“ ... ”

“It’s more than just the Olympic Village this time. There are still a few main stadium structures that we’re interested in. Like the swimming, track, and archery venues.”

Jasper shook his head. “I think you should put your focus on a few projects that you’re certain about. The entire Olympic stadium will be an immense project as a whole and there’s no way one person can finish the entire cake. You’d die from planteration, you know?”

Henry’s eyes widened in horrification when he looked at Jasper. “That’s literally what my dad said! How on earth do you do that?!”

Life at the Top Chapter 314

Jasper merely smiled at Henry’s shock and asked, “Do you think the Law family is the only one with their eyes on this project?”

Henry replied subconsciously, “Of course not. I already heard from some other families that are just as strong as the Law family.”

“Exactly my point. Cake is meant to be shared with everyone, be it the Law family or other families as well. Everyone will have to discuss and compromise for it to work. You take a slice here, and I’ll take a slice there.

“But if someone decides to be greedy and wants to monopolize the entire cake, then everyone else will be without cake. Who else but him would deserve the beating, then?”

At that, Jasper turned to Henry and spoke intently, “We don’t garner hatred of the majority.”

Thoroughly impressed, Henry gave Jasper a big thumbs up. “That’s what my dad said too. I’m impressed, man. You’re good with stocks and you also understand traditional business too.”

Jasper merely smiled but remained silent.

From what he remembered of his past life, the Law family had only gotten the Olympic Village project but not any of the other venues.

The Law family even had a big issue at the end with the Olympic Village project alone.

After racking his brain, he then remembered how there was a small rumor about a mismatched distribution of profits. A lot of people were disgruntled because of it, so they started sabotaging each other. They ended up fighting so badly and involving the higher-ups that it was only resolved by the leader on top.

From how it looked now, everyone seemed to have their swords out and were ready to fight before it officially began. Things seemed way more complicated than what he had heard in his previous life.

Now Jasper wondered how he too could get a slice of cake with the Law family’s help.

It did not matter even if the Olympic Village was out of the question, for being in charge of even a single venue was tremendous news.

A stadium was not to be underestimated, for these main stadiums had ended up being renowned locations in his past life. The Olympic Stadium, however, had fallen short of its expectations due to all sorts of reasons.

The track stadium, for example. Many might not know where one was referring to by that, but everything would change if you named it differently. Say... the Honeycomb Stadium!

The stadium for water-related competitions as well, also known as... the Aquatic Center!

Still, all of this required further planning.

...

At the Westin, Anna was very surprised and elated to see Jasper.

Yet with her character, there was no way that she would run over to hug him without care like a little girl.

Such was the case when they bade farewell at Harbor City's airport. A hug from behind was the most that she could bring herself to give.

This was the biggest difference between Anna and Wendy as well.

Perhaps it was due to their upbringing, so Anna was more introverted and could control her emotions better while Wendy was more extroverted and obvious when it came to her likes and dislikes.

"Why are you here in Swallow Capital?"

Anna pushed Henry out the door and closed it behind her with practiced ease, completely ignoring Henry's impatient knocking outside. Lifting her hand to tuck a strand of hair behind her ear, Anna asked gently.

"Would you believe me if I said I was waiting for you?" Jasper teased.

Anna pursed her lips and glared at the man's lack of self-restraint, but she did not reply.

Jasper immediately gave in at the sight of Anna's alluring and charming reaction. "I actually came here to buy Easy Media."

“I told you that I plan to buy an entertainment company in both Harbor City and Mainland, then develop both sides to enter the entertainment market together.”

Anna asked, “Did it go smoothly?”

“More or less. I’ve gotten everything done.” Jasper smiled.

Nodding, Anna suddenly pardoned. “Give me a moment.”

Then she rushed out the door.

Jasper had no idea what Anna went to do, but she had her reasons why. As such, he sat down on the sofa in the living room and waited for her to return.

Upon leaving the room, Anna went to knock on Henry’s door.

Life at the Top Chapter 315

Henry lay on the bed angrily and indignantly while bemoaning. He was Anna’s brother, and as her brother, he brought Jasper back only to be treated no more like a driver who said sister proceeded to get rid of once Jasper arrived.

Then he heard knockings on his door. Excited, Henry wondered if his sister had finally found her conscience and came to apologize as well as invite him to join their conversation.

‘Hmph!

‘Now do you remember what I’ve done for you?

'Now, you're sorry?'

He would stand his ground and make sure his sister knew that it would not be so easy to beg him for his forgiveness.

With that, Henry opened the door, his arrogance slightly slipping into his supposedly stoic facade.

"Are you here to apologize—"

"Where's the Lafite you brought over from Harbor City?" Anna fiercely cut Henry off and forced the other to swallow his words.

Henry's eyes widened as he asked warily, "What do you want? I saved that Lafite for myself!"

"Give it to me," Anna replied emotionlessly.

Henry's expression darkened. Had she no respect for her brother?!

"You wish!"

Henry decided that he would fight to the death for his dignity.

Anna smirked. "Are you sure? Dad told me to watch over you before we left. Or should I call Dad and tell him that you're spending every night drinking and have forgotten what you came here to do?"

Henry's lips paled in anger. "That's a lie and we both know it!"

"Do you think Dad's going to trust me or you?" Anna's lips quirked at a devilish angle.

Thinking about how this was the first time his dad had given him such an important job and how his sister's false accusation would easily screw him over... Henry's lips paled further.

"Screw you!"

Stuffing the bottle of wine into Anna's arms harshly, Henry's expression darkened. "You don't even drink alcohol, what do you want my Lafite for anyway?"

"Jasper likes red wine." Anna carried the Lafite in her arms and turned to leave with a chuckle.

Stunned, Henry stomped his feet angrily. "What the f*ck, you're doing it for him? Jesus Christ, at least invite me too! That's an '82 Lafite! I only have three f*cking bottles myself!"

Henry marched out of the room indignantly and followed Anna tightly.

Anna ignored him and returned to the room, waving the bottle of red wine before Jasper's eyes as if in wait for praise. "An '82 Lafite, wanna try?"

Then, she casually pointed to Henry for him to open the bottle.

Henry found the bottle opener, and he felt his heart cry silently.

'What the f*ck, how could she cheat my wine off me?!

'Then treat me like I'm her waiter!

'I'm your brother here! We're related! By blood!'

Jasper smiled. He took a look at Henry's extremely stormy expression and got a gist of what was happening. "Great, I'd like to discuss with Henry about securing the Olympic Village project."

Henry's ears perked up as he grinned.

With Jasper's help, his chance of success would now increase by more than 50%.

He wanted to ask Jasper, 'Would you like something to go with your wine, Brother-in-law? I'll buy it all for you right now...'

It must be known that Henry currently had no doubts when it came to Jasper's ability. He admired the man extremely and wished to become a man like Jasper!

"Quick, Jasper... tell me your thoughts!"

Life at the Top Chapter 316

In the hotel room, Jasper and Henry clinked their wine glasses.

“Logically speaking, with the news of being approved for hosting the Olympics still fresh, it should still be a while before the construction plans for the Olympic Village and the other stadiums begin. What else did your dad ask you to do?”

Henry nodded. “Nothing we know is certain yet, but we have to get in on it somehow. Dad says that since it’s such a huge project, it’d be better if I come over and give my stand earlier rather than too late.

“And for us who want in on it to hand a planning report to the people in charge of it all.

“The people in charge want to adopt as many ideas as possible since this is a huge stadium we’re constructing. It’s not a design a company or two can come up with from the top of their heads. Every stadium has to be the best of the best.

“That’s why every party is given the chance to hand in a report, suggesting the design, location, and even the name. Since all of this can be shown through a report. Even though the people in charge didn’t say it, everyone knows that it’ll bring great benefits if your proposal gets chosen.”

Jasper’s eyes glowed. “Do you have a proposal yet?”

Henry replied honestly, “Something this big must be designed by a professional team, but there’s only so many sophisticated designers in the country. There are too many people fighting for them and even though the Law family are close with a few of them, nothing’s been promised yet.”

Jasper nodded in understanding and added, "Tell me when you're starting. I might have a few ideas that can help."

The overall plan for the Honeycomb Stadium, the Aquatic Center, and the Olympic Village were all in his mind.

After a round of realistic suggestions, Jasper had the most suitable design proposal and the biggest grasp.

All he had to do was hand in the proposal with content from his previous life and it would definitely be chosen.

"You know about designing too?" Henry seemed suspicious.

Jasper smiled. "Not about designing, no, but I do have ideas."

Henry shrugged. He was about to speak when his phone suddenly rang.

Seeing that it was an unknown number, Henry did not want to pick it up at all. Yet every time he hung up the call, the other party would just call again.

"What do you want? It's the middle of the night here! You'd better have a good f*cking reason to be calling me so late or I'll f*cking kill you!" Henry roared into the phone angrily.

The other party must have said something, for Henry's brows arched slightly and his expression turned intrigued.

A short moment later, Henry's tone softened as he chuckled. "I wouldn't mind meeting you in person, of course not. But I have to tell you that all I'll be doing if I come, is watch. I'll still have to ask if the man himself is willing or not."

Henry then handed the phone to Jasper and mouthed.

'Combe!'

Taking the phone, Jasper greeted, "Hello, this is Jasper Laine."

The deep voice of a middle-aged man came through the speakers. Without an ounce of anger or arrogance, the man sounded very polite.

"Hello, Mr. Laine. This is Hendrik Combe, Hector and Jacob's father."

Jasper raised his brows slightly and replied in a faint tone, "How can I help you, Mr. Combe?"

Hendrik replied, "I believe that there has been a misunderstanding between you and my sons, Mr. Laine. They've told me the basic details of what happened when they returned home tonight.

"I only recently realized how arrogant and bossy my sons have been acting outside and I cannot be more remorseful about their actions. I hope that you can accept my apology, Mr. Laine, and forgive my sons for their ignorance."

Jasper gave a small smile and replied, "Hector and Jacob are both adults, Mr. Combe. It's only right that they bear responsibility for their own actions. You shouldn't trouble yourself to clean up after their messes."

Life at the Top Chapter 317

Hendrik replied sincerely, "It's my responsibility as a parent to teach my children what is right and wrong. Peace is important when it comes to us businessmen. Another friend is one less business enemy.

“You seem to be interested in developing in the media and entertainment industry, Mr. Laine. How about this. Since I do business in a similar field, we can agree on a time and talk about it in person?”

“We’re planning to hold a huge banquet in celebration of Swallow Capital being approved to host the Olympics. We could talk about this, Mr. Laine, and your company could host this banquet if you’re interested.”

Jasper gave it some thought, and Hendrik did not speak anymore. Instead, he waited quietly for Jasper’s reply.

It may seem like silence but in truth, Jasper and Hendrik were both testing each other. Basically, if Jasper responded, then it meant that he had no desire to fight the Combe family beyond the point of reconciliation.

This was the world of adults. Love and hatred did not exist, for everything was merely a transaction of benefits.

If I had more power, then you would have to give in.

If you had more power, then there was no one to blame but myself for my failure.

This was something both Jasper and Hendrik were very well aware of.

A short moment later, Jasper chuckled and replied, “I’d be an idiot not to take up your offer considering your compromise, Mr. Combe. How’s tomorrow sound?”

Hendrik smiled. “Alright then, tomorrow night it shall be. I’ll fetch both you and Mr. Law, then. What a coincidence that I’m attending a gala tomorrow night and most of the people in attendance are those within the industry. We can get to know each other better.”

Jasper gave a polite but noncommittal reply before hanging up the phone.

“What does Combe want?” Henry asked.

Jasper replied faintly, “To resolve the resentment, perhaps.”

“Perhaps?” Henry was stunned. “His attitude was great though. Didn’t he say he wants to write this whole thing off?”

Jasper laughed. “He plans to have me host the celebratory banquet for Swallow Capital hosting the Olympics in return for leaving his sons alone. It might not seem like much of a trick, but he wants to announce it at the gala tomorrow night of all time and places. Don’t you find it weird?”

Henry frowned. “Most people would beg to keep this under wraps, so why would he want to announce it at a gala? Has he gone mad?”

Anna interrupted, “From what I can tell, the host for the celebratory banquet has most likely already been decided. After all, this is a boon to both the host’s fame and fortune. Everyone’s going to be fighting for it no matter what. Especially when it’s about something as grand as Swallow Capital being approved for hosting the Olympics.

“The person who has already been decided will likely be present, and you’ll be targeted tomorrow night.”

Jasper nodded at Anna’s analysis. “That’s what I’m thinking as well.”

“What the f*ck?! The Combes’ old man is even more difficult to deal with than his stupid f*cking sons. How could he be so vile? I’m calling him and scolding the f*ck out of him.” Henry was pissed.

“Calm down.”

Jasper stopped Henry.

“This is still just a guess. Even if this is the truth, it’s still a hidden plan. Unless that is, we turn against him straight away and we meet the fight head-on.

“What Hendrik means is that they’re going to hand out the benefits, but whether we reap them or not will depend on our own ability. There’s no way he can take them back even if we don’t manage to reap them since the Combe family has already been kicked out of the equation with this incident alone.”

Henry’s expression darkened. “Isn’t this letting him off too lightly? We don’t even benefit from this at all then!”

Jasper narrowed his eyes. “The world is hardly as benevolent as we make it out to be. It’s not going to be that easy for him to shift the blame.”

Life at the Top Chapter 318

Inside a family compound in Swallow City.

Hendrik put down the phone, his expression calm.

Jacob and Hector looked at their father apprehensively. In the end, it was still Jacob who bit the bullet and asked, “Dad, did he agree?”

Hendrik answered calmly, “He agreed.”

Hector breathed a sigh of relief when he heard this. Nonetheless, he could not resist sneering, “And here I was, thinking he’s so capable. . Doesn’t this show that he’s afraid of falling out with us? We’ve given him a way out to save him any embarrassment and he’s accepted it, —at least he’s being sensible..”

Hendrik eyed Hector coldly and scolded him, "How did I ever produce such a mentally deficient son like you?"

Hector did not know where he had made a mistake with his comments. His face betrayed his dissatisfaction but he did not dare to provoke Hendrik.

"He's smart, that's what he is! You think he's afraid? If he was afraid, tonight he wouldn't have made a move to crush the several media companies that our family owns," Hendrik said angrily.

"He's already taken whatever revenge necessary on the two of you. Since that's over and done with, he isn't afraid of whatever we do next; he's confident he can handle it. However, he's conveniently taking this way out because we brought out benefits or exchange!

"Compared with giving vent to a moment of anger, it's the benefits you obtain that are the real deal. When will the two of you finally understand this? This is what people refer to as knowing when to advance or retreat, boldly and astutely! !

"Look at the two of you—what do you know? All you know how to do is to be jealous of each other and vie for favor like cats and dogs. And you still think you're such big shots?"

Jacob asked, "Then what should we do tomorrow, Dad?"

Hendrik lit a cigarette and took a long drag. He said solemnly, "I've relinquished the celebration banquet that's being held in honor of the successful bid for the Olympic Games."

Jacob's expression changed when he heard this. "Dad, this banquet is really important. Who knows how many of the big shots will be watching it? Besides, didn't we already ask the Turner family to host it? If we go back on our word, we're not going to be able to face the wrath of the Turner family."

Hendrik gave a cold laugh. “Since I have the right of approval, I have no opinion either way whether it goes to the Turner family or to Jasper. Whoever gets it—well, that will depend on how capable they are.”

Jacob pondered for a moment. The more he thought about it, the more he felt that it made sense. Pleasantly surprised, he exclaimed, “Dad, you mean you’re going to let them fight it out between themselves?”

With a mocking laugh, Hendrik scoffed, “You think it’s so easy to obtain benefits from the Combe family?”

“When the banquet begins tomorrow, both of you keep a low profile. Don’t act like big shots and don’t say anything you shouldn’t be saying. Tomorrow, we’re not the main focus—that should be the Turner family and Jasper, maybe even Henry... We’ll just be spectators.”

.....

The next day, Jasper went to Easy Media first to hold a video conference.

However, for this meeting, Jasper temporarily deferred his conquest of White Media Company. Instead, he focused on the integration of resources between the two companies.

Jasper’s initial plan was for the Mainland and Harbor City companies to develop side by side and advance together in the domestic entertainment market .

Particularly with regards to the Mainland market, he had the advantage of his memories from before his reincarnation. He was very much aware that the Mainland entertainment market would be an extremely large one in the future, worth hundreds of billions. Such a large slice of the proverbial pie needed to be prepared for in advance.

Although the film industry in Harbor City was now going into a decline, the entertainment industry consisted of more than just movies.

What was more, there were far more celebrities in Harbor City than in the Mainland, and their popularity was also significantly higher. An alliance between these two companies, therefore, would be able to achieve unheard-of results.

Furthermore, even when weakened, the strong were still strong. With the top four large film companies in Harbor City operating together, developing the Mainland market would be much easier..

Life at the Top Chapter 319

The meeting that was initially scheduled for three hours lasted the entire day.

At the end of the meeting, the two companies had drafted an outline for their development in the next two years. Besides, Advent Entertainment Group would also send out a management team to aid Jasper in seizing Easy Media in a death grip.

Although the top executives of Easy Media felt somewhat begrudging about their diminution of power, no one dared say anything as Jasper was now the big boss. They had to accept reality.

After the meeting ended, the car the White family had dispatched to pick up Jasper was already parked in front of the company.

Jasper realized there was only Henry inside upon getting in.

“Anna doesn’t like these elite gatherings. Some of her close friends back in university came to Swallow Capital for their development, so she has headed out today to meet her friends. She asked me to inform you that she won’t be going,” Henry explained.

Jasper nodded and thought for a moment. He then called Julian and told him to keep an eye on Anna and protect her.

Although no one in Swallow Capital had the guts to bully Anna, at the end of the day, this was not Harbor City. If any shallow local thugs wanted to cause Anna trouble, everything could be settled with Julian around.

Jasper and Henry arrived at a restaurant about half an hour later.

The gate looked ordinary and so was the quadrangle, but it was located in the central area of Swallow Capital. It was only a ten-minute walk from the imperial palace.

Even now in the year 2000, the housing prices here had already exceeded 100,000 dollars per square meter.

The housing in this area could not be purchased with money even if one was rich in the future. No housing property would drift into the market at all.

“When my grandfather and father came to Swallow Capital earlier on, they liked the dishes from Shallow Grass Hall the most, apart from the state banquet. It can be considered the true first-rate private kitchen.”

Henry moved closer to Jasper as he began to flaunt his insight.

“I heard that the dishes here are not priced at all and what you eat depends on the head chef’s mood. You only deposit the money to the head chef’s account after the meal. A dollar is not too small, one million is not too much. I heard that a boss once paid ten million for a six-course meal.

“However, most people who can afford to come here for a meal are not so high-profile. Usually, a few hundred thousand dollars as a token of thanks suffices.

“I reckon Hendrik has paid quite a price to organize the banquet here.”

Jasper nodded as he listened. The two of them crossed the tall door sill and entered the quadrangle.

A rubble wall came into view as soon as they entered. This kind of wall in the quadrangle was designed for a purpose. They were also called retaining walls and were used to block off the cold winds during winter and keep the space from freezing up.

After going around the rubble wall and along the glazed tile corridor that was carved with dragons and phoenixes, they walked through the twists and turns until they arrived at the inner section. The winding path led them to a quiet and secluded place. The uniqueness and ingenuity of the quadrangle were revealed for all to see.

“Find out later if there are any houses with quadrangles for sale in Swallow Capital. I can buy and keep them,” Jasper suddenly said to Henry who was beside him.

Henry looked at Jasper weirdly and asked, “The prices of houses with quadrangles in Swallow Capital are now outrageous. Even those smaller ones with poorer geographic locations have base prices of tens of millions. Are they worth it?”

Jasper smiled and said, “Don’t worry, no matter how high the prices are, it’s cheaper to buy them now. The prices in a few years will be even more outrageous and they’ll be even more highly sought after.”

Henry nodded. After going through so many things, he would rather doubt that the sun was square than Jasper’s insights in investments. He silently kept this matter in mind.

The two of them walked along the corridor and went around the rockery and pond. As soon as they arrived outside the door of a guest room, they heard the vigorous voice of a man from inside.

“Where did this sorry lot of people come from? The party will be arranged by the Turners. Whoever takes that away from me is disrespecting the Turner family. Who is so brave as to stop me from taking care of my business in Swallow Capital? Why don’t they cut their own coat according to their cloth?”

Life at the Top Chapter 320

Henry, who was outside, called out, “Hey!” He immediately pushed open the door when he heard the voice.

“Which idiot is making a ruckus here? Turner family this, Turner family that, what’s the matter? Is the Turner family so great that they can ascend to the heavens?”

Henry’s words drew everyone’s attention in the room.

Hector and Jacob were sitting obediently on the side. A middle-aged man with white hair and a steady presence whom Jasper did not recognize was sitting in the host’s seat. It seemed that the person was Hendrik.

On Hendrik’s left sat a young man in his 30s. He was dressed exquisitely, but obstinance was written all over his face. At this moment, he was staring at Henry with a flash of cold light in his gaze.

This person should be the person from the Turner family who was speaking before.

Upon seeing Henry and Jasper, Hendrik stood up with a smile and said, “Young Master Law and Mr. Laine, you’re here.”

Hendrik walked over as he spoke. He first reached out to Jasper and said, “Mr. Laine, I, Hendrik Combe, actually invited you two to the banquet today to bury the hatchet. I thank Mr. Laine profusely for showing up.”

Jasper shook hands with Hendrik and said coolly, “This banquet that you’ve so meticulously prepared is wonderful, Mr. Combe. Of course, I had to show up.”

Jasper’s words were meaningful. Hendrik smiled and pretended that he understood nothing.

“You’re very welcome, Mr. Laine, Mr. Law, both of you come here and quickly have a seat.”

As he led the two of them to have a seat, Hendrik approached Erik. He patted Erik on the shoulder affectionately and said, “This is the Turner family’s young master, Erik Turner. Everyone’s part of the same industry here. I’m sure there might even be opportunities for collaboration once we have a chat with one another.”

As soon as these words were uttered, Erik sneered and said, “Not every Tom, Dick, or Harry deserves to have a meal with me. I despise filth immensely.”

Upon hearing this, Henry immediately narrowed his eyes to reveal an ominous glint.

He had always been the one who said such comments to others. Since when was it someone else’s turn to turn the table against him?

“Aren’t you pretty f*cking insolent?” Henry sneered and said.

Erik darted a look at Henry and said indifferently, “Henry Law, don’t think that the Law family is all that great. The person who others respect is Old Master Law, a heroic figure. What does that have anything to do with you?”

“At the end of the day, the Law family only has some power in Harbor City, but you’re really taking advantage of their influence after coming to Swallow Capital. Who the hell do you think you are, Henry Law?”

“F*ck you!”

Henry nearly flipped the table on the spot. “Who the fuck do you think you are? Aren’t you still bearing the Turner family’s name when you come out of the house and put on an act? Who do you think you’ll be if you leave the Turner family?”

“Who I am isn’t up to you, a son of a b*tch, to tell me. Do it if you have the guts. If I wuss out, then I’m no longer a Law!”

Erik scoffed and said disdainfully, “How childish.”

With that said, Erik turned his head and said to Jasper without even glancing at the fuming Henry, “Are you the one who wants to snatch the Olympic celebration banquet from me? What’s the matter? Do you feel like you’re living too comfortably and are looking for excitement?”

Jasper chuckled and said calmly, “I don’t know whether it’s excitement or not. I only heard a mad dog barking non-stop.”

Henry instantly perked up. He taunted Erik, whose face took on an unsightly expression, “He’s talking about you. As a dog that can only bark, why don’t you bark a few more times for us to hear?”

There was a flash of dark gloom in Erik’s eyes. He sneered and said, “It seems that there really are people who look down on the Turner family, eh?”

Jasper said indifferently, “So what if it’s the Turner family? Has this dinner party been written down in a contract and given to the Turner family?”

Erik was taken aback when he heard this.

In Swallow Capital, all the Turner family had to do was give a notice about any project that the family had an eye on and no one would dare to make them look bad. Even more so, no one would fearlessly try to snatch the project away from them.

As such, how could there be a contract signed beforehand?

That was why Jasper's words had truly touched a weak point.

Erik turned his head to look at Hendrik. The former put on a false smile and said, "Young Master of the Combe family, how about we hurry up and draw up a contract?"

Life at the Top Chapter 321

When Hendrik heard what Jasper said before, he was already nervous.

He knew that Jasper could definitely see through his tricks, but he did not expect Jasper to strike back so soon.

The words that he so casually mentioned had placed him in a difficult position.

Hendrik smiled and replied to Erik, "Mr. Turner, let's take it easy. Didn't I call both parties over so that everyone can take a seat and discuss a solution together?"

Erik slammed the table and said coldly, "Stop bullsh*tting me! Combe, do you take others for fools?"

"I know you're planning not to offend either one of us and have the two of us fight it out before signing the contract with the winner. You won't have anything to lose this way. Are you trying to get smart with me?"

Hendrik looked calm, but he was extremely tormented on the inside.

Erik's words had driven him into a corner.

However, the one who instigated everything was Jasper.

Sure enough, one should not look down on people and treat others as fools. Sooner or later, one would be fooled as well.

Hendrik was somewhat regretful.

He could not afford to offend either Erik or Jasper. This was initially a game of sitting and watching in safety whilst the two of them fought, then reaping the rewards when one of them won. One misstep and he had drawn the fire upon himself. He had basically tied a noose around his own neck.

Just when Hendrik was about to break out in a cold sweat, Erik suddenly laughed. The latter stared at Jasper and spoke insidiously.

“Laine, I have a habit and that’s regardless if I want it or not, no one else can take away whatever I have my eye on!

“However, since you want to take it away, that means you’re the enemy!”

As he spoke, Erik stretched out his index finger and pointed at Jasper. “It’s been a while since someone dares to snatch something from me in Swallow Capital. Combe is nothing good, but you, maybe you’re nothing at all!”

Jasper looked at Erik plainly and said calmly, “So what if I want to take it?”

Erik laughed out loud upon hearing this. He then stared at Jasper ferociously. “Then, you should go to hell!

“The Turner family is not comparable to these pieces of trash like the Combes. If you offend me, I can make you suffer a pain worse than death!”

Henry clicked his tongue and sneered, “If I didn’t know any better I would’ve thought that you’re the king. How arrogant of you. Don’t be all bark and no bite. What do you wanna do? Come on, do you think I’m afraid of you?”

Erik gave Henry an insidious look. The former then stood up and said, “Sure. Come on, let’s see who’ll chicken out in the end.

“Mr. Laine, you’ve recently acquired Easy Media, yes? Consider it my defeat if your company is still in business tomorrow!

“Also, Combe, you played me for a fool. Just you wait, I won’t let you off the hook either!”

Erik smashed the cup and stormed out after he said that.

The atmosphere in the room fell into an unprecedented silence.

After a long while, Jasper looked at Hendrik who wore a gloomy expression. The former chuckled and said, “Do you know what it’s meant by tying a noose around your own neck, Mr. Combe?”

Hendrik gritted his teeth and said nothing.

Jacob could not help but say, “Don’t be so pleased. Erik won’t let you off the hook now. Let’s just see what will happen to you.”

Jasper chuckled and said, “I’ve offended all kinds of people since my debut. There aren’t over 100 of them in total, but there are at least 80 of them. Erik is not the first nor the last, let alone the strongest.

“I have a solution to my grievances with him, but the Combe family is done for.”

After saying this, Jasper got up and turned around to leave.

Henry also stood up and spat on the father and sons who were wearing unsightly expressions. “You three idiots, are mental handicaps also inherited? Scheming when you’re so incompetent yourselves, do you think of yourselves as Napoleon? What a joke. Just wait for your deaths!”

Life at the Top Chapter 322

Jasper asked Henry with a deep expression as they exited Shallow Grass Hall, “How much do you know about this Turner family?”

Henry’s expression was ugly as he said, “They’re difficult to deal with. The power of the old master in their family is no less than my grandfather’s.

“There’s this one thing he said that isn’t wrong. The main power of our Law family resides in Harbor City. In Swallow Capital, however, the Turner family can be said to be the stronger family.

“There are a total of three generations in the Turner family now and Erik Turner is the most brilliant of the third generation. They’ve been involved in business and politics since the second generation, basically combining the two.

“The Turner family is very strong especially in terms of capital. You know of Empire Bank, yes? Their family is their second-largest shareholder. Not to mention that the largest local media company in Swallow Capital, Motley Media, is also owned by the Turners. Erik Turner is primarily in charge of it.”

After reaching this point, Henry frowned and said, “The strength of their family is inviolable. Motley Media is a listed company and its market value is less than two billion dollars.

“But it was handed over to Erik to manage. On the one hand, Erik has the capability. On the other hand, it also shows that the Turner family’s capital is solid.”

Motley Media... Empire Bank... Jasper frowned. Motley Media was nothing, but being the second-largest shareholder of Empire Bank, this meant something.

The banking industry had always been an exclusive industry for those with large capitals. Ordinary people simply could not engage in it.

Thinking of the rumors involving the two companies from his previous life, Jasper suddenly asked, "Does the Turner family still have a holding corporation?"

Henry was surprised. "How did you know? Few people know about this. I only heard some news of it when my dad talked to me about it before. Navy Capital Holdings Group belongs to them.

"This Navy Capital Holdings Group is very low profile. Even within the same industry, not many people have heard of it, but their capabilities are simply outrageous. The group is involved in high-end industries, such as insurance, banking, and securities. They only engage in these big businesses."

Jasper exhaled and said, "This explains it."

"What's the explanation? What did you think of?" Henry asked curiously.

Jasper said with a smile, "It's nothing. I'm thinking of a way to deal with Erik and now I have an idea. Since Motley Media is a listed company, it's easy to deal with. It won't be a big deal since the market value is around two billion dollars or more."

Henry heard this and frowned, saying, "Motley Media may be nothing, but this is the Turner family's property. If you move against Motley Media, the Turners can mobilize huge funds to support it at any time. In the end, the ones who may fall into the pit may be us."

"A family like the Turners won't get into a full-scale war with us over trivial matters," Jasper said indifferently.

"And if they really do that..."

Jasper's voice was lowered as he clenched his fist lightly. His tone was gentle but forceful as he said, "I can raise at least ten billion in a week. If that doesn't work, we'll go to Harbor City. I'm confident we can at least get 30 billion in capital.

"With more than 40 billion in funds in this domestic plate of the industry, I have the confidence to be able to flip their table even if God is right in front of me."

Henry listened till his blood surged. He could not help say, "Rest assured. Even if it's 50 billion, much less 30, our Law family will definitely fork it out."

Jasper chuckled and patted Henry's shoulder.

Prosperity brought friends and adversity tested them. The Law family was definitely his most steadfast ally and Jasper knew this fact well.

"There's no need to be so pessimistic. Things have not reached that point. We have an ace in the hole so we need not be afraid of the other party raining an all-out war on us. But in any case, I will definitely move against Erik's Motley Media," Jasper said lightly.

Back at the hotel, Anna, who had already returned, quickly learned of the situation.

"Those Turners are intolerable bullies." Anna's expression was ice-cold.

"Do you want to go up against Erik Turner?" Anna asked Jasper.

Jasper nodded and said apathetically, "I've never been one not to return a favor."

Anna smiled and said, "Good. Wait for me for a while."

After saying this, Anna left to make a phone call.

On the side, Henry looked on and was shocked.

“My little sister doesn’t usually have a bone to pick with others but when she’s angered and does take action, her methods are more aggressive than anyone else’s,” Henry said to Jasper quietly.

Life at the Top Chapter 323

Puzzled, Jasper asked, “From what I can see, she’s not someone who starts a fight with others easily or uses underhanded means. Do you really need to be so afraid?”

“Damn, you may think that you’ve seen how she does things, but you don’t know that she has a really broad network. I don’t know how many resources she has, but she can basically settle the issue for me whenever something happens to me...”

As Henry said this, he seemed to have realized that saying so would greatly affect his reputation as the big brother.

He let out a dry cough before continuing, “Anyway, my dad even told me before that if Anna had been born before me or if she was a boy, then I wouldn’t have stood a chance at getting the Laws’ inheritance. I’m sure you know what this means.”

When they were talking, Anna came back and stared coldly at Henry. “Did you say something nasty about me?”

Henry quickly laughed dryly and said, “No, I didn’t. I was praising you.”

Anna snorted, then walked up to Jasper and said, “As Erik is involved in the media industry, he keeps close contact with those in Harbor City. I just contacted a person who was once in frequent contact with him and he holds compromising materials on Erik, which I think will be useful to you.”

Henry cocked his ears when he heard what she said. He asked curiously, “What compromising materials? Normal materials are useless when you’re dealing with a man like that.”

Anna sneered. “A material of him fooling around with a few ladyboys after taking drugs. Is this enough?”

Jasper, “...”

Henry, “...”

The usual news about corruption and bribery would have no effect at all on children from aristocratic families.

However, if the news of Erik fooling around with some ladyboys after taking drugs spread to the Turner family, Erik would be done for without needing Jasper to do anything at all.

Most of the time, the struggles and conflicts in a wealthy and distinguished family were particularly tragic. Even so, most of the seniors would be glad to see it happen. After all, this was just like the law of the jungle. The winner who survived the struggle would also be the strongest and the most capable of leading the family toward a glorious future.

It was precisely because of this that the compromising material on Erik was enough to have him consigned to eternal damnation.

Jasper looked at Anna with a bizarre expression. ‘She has really powerful means,’ he thought.

It only took her a few minutes to obtain such materials?

Anna blushed a little, and she explained in a low voice, “Actually, I don’t usually do things like this.”

As she was saying, she looked at Jasper uneasily. She appeared afraid that she would ruin her image in Jasper’s eyes.

Jasper coughed to clear his throat and said slowly, “I believe you.”

At this point in time, the esteemed and most ruthless queen of JW Consortium had exhibited her power for the first time.

In the future, there would be people in JW Consortium who would be brave enough to slam the table and argue with Jasper. There would also be people who would stick to their own principles and chose not to do things for Jasper’s sake.

However, no one dared to offend Her Majesty Anna Law... No one could compare to her ruthlessness.

In the blink of an eye, it was already the second day.

The sun was shining brightly when Jasper received a call from a senior executive of Easy Media, saying that the company had recently made a cooperative negotiative but their partner had breached the contract completely, causing them to suffer heavy losses.

No doubt, Erik had started taking action against him through Motley Media and the Turners’ powers.

In response to this, Jasper gave all Easy Media employees a holiday.

Now that he had a plan to deal with Erik, nothing he did would affect his plan.

He would let him enjoy himself first. It was also the perfect time for the employees to take a break. Then, he would reorganize!

He turned on the computer in the hotel room.

From this moment onward, the domestic stock market would set off another bloody storm!

Life at the Top Chapter 324

Following the good news of the Olympic Games, the domestic stock market thrived during this period with the stocks booming.

Jasper pulled out Motley Media's stocks and studied the short-term trend carefully, realizing that there were obvious signs of a dealer in Motley Media's stocks.

This dealer was different from the traditional dealers who would buy stocks at a low price and then raise the price and pull out.

This dealer in Motley Media was probably a long-term one. He was constantly absorbing the retailers' stocks. Seemingly afraid of being discovered, this was all done in an extremely subtle manner, hence there was no major stir in the market.

As time went by, Motley Media's stock price would gradually rise.

The stock investors had not noticed it yet because the dealer's movement was extremely subtle and done with enough patience.

When the stock investors finally realized the decreasing circulating stocks and increasing stock prices, that was when Motley Media would surge into a hot stock.

After living two lifetimes and accumulating more than 40 years of experience in the stock market, Jasper knew that this dealer could only be one person.

The Turners themselves were speculating this stock.

It was strictly forbidden for shareholders to speculate their own company's stocks.

Without hesitating, Jasper transferred one billion in funds into his security account, and he began to buy the retailers' stocks at a lower price.

Unlike other dealers that moved stealthily, Jasper placed a large buy order directly.

The entire tape of more than two billion surged up a bar after Jasper threw in a big order.

At the same time, Jasper gave a call to Jake Cullen, who was far away in Harbor City, and ordered him to enter the market with his traders at the same time.

Not only that, Henry, who had been displeased with Erik a long time ago, joined in as well.

However, to avoid the spread of this impact, Henry did not involve the Laws. Instead, he used his own network to build a team of traders with his own money and began buying Motley Media's shares.

All three parties attacked in unison, and Motley Media's stock price soared. In just half an hour, the dealers noticed something amiss and began to increase their efforts to acquire more stocks.

Unfortunately, they were too slow. Motley Media's stock price had hit the limit up before they could acquire any stocks.

“That’s the end of today’s battle.”

Jasper shut his computer, turned around to take a cup of hot tea that Anna made him, and thanked her with a smile.

Henry was a bit displeased. “Why is there even a darn limit up setting? We still need to wait several more days before we can buy enough stocks.”

Jasper laughed and said, “When two armies confront each other, they pay attention to pre-planning and the mobilization of resources. A few months is simply not enough for preparation. This is already considered fast enough.”

Henry curled his lips and stood up, saying, “I’m going to participate in a meeting about the construction of Olympic Village and several other venues today. Basically, it’s just to discuss with the higher-ups each of our opinions for reference.”

Jasper said, “Hold on.”

While talking, Jasper took out a folder and handed it to Henry. He said, “Take this with you. I pulled an all-nighter for this. It’ll probably help you in your meeting.”

Henry opened the folder curiously, and after taking a few glances, his eyes widened.

Although Henry did not understand architectural design, he, who grew up in the Law family, knew more things than most people. He could tell at one glance if a design was good or bad.

At the sight of the document that was in his hand at the moment, Henry could feel his scalp tingling.

Life at the Top Chapter 325

“Aquatic Center... Honeycomb Stadium... You designed these yourself!?” Henry said, looking at Jasper in astonishment.

Anna grew interested when she saw this and walked over to take a look.

She had a background in fashion design, and although it was a completely different concept from architectural design, she understood how this worked by analogy. Anna was relatively better and more professional at visual perception than Henry.

She could tell at a glance that this was the most creative design ever.

Not only did it carry a profound significance that many people in the country cared a lot about, but it was also a stroke of genius design in terms of aesthetics.

“This document is worth a lot of money,” Anna exclaimed.

Jasper smiled and said, “I guess you can say that I had a sudden burst of inspiration. This is just my suggestion. I have no idea whether this architectural design can be realized nor do I know anything about the specific design. We will need professionals for it.”

Henry said excitedly, “I’m quite confident now that I have this document. I’ll show this document to my dad later...”

“By the way, I told my dad about you last night and he said that he’ll come to Swallow Capital to discuss this with you. He wants to invite you to become a shareholder so that we can make a fortune together.”

As Henry spoke, he looked rather troubled, saying, “I thought our family will be the one to help you make a fortune this time, but with this document, I have a feeling that you’re the one helping our family instead.”

Jasper smiled and said, “Without the Laws’ resources, JW is far from qualified to participate in such a major project domestically. I call this mutual benefit.”

Jasper was not trying to sound polite either. Without the Laws, it would have been really difficult for him to have a finger in every pie.

It was a good thing that the Laws were willing to bring him along.

In business, apart from mutual friendship, profit was the most fundamental.

Being a freeloader once or twice was fine, but as time went by, it might not necessarily be good for the relationship between both parties.

In Jasper’s case, this document’s creativity that was adopted from the future had placed him in a win-win situation no matter who he worked with, and this was what made Jasper so valuable.

When both parties’ values were evident, only then would their cooperation be lasting and loyal.

When Henry got the document, he was really excited to carry his family’s huge burden. He walked out of the hotel to attend the meeting without stopping to rest.

Anna invited Jasper out for a walk as well.

Of course, Jasper did not refuse.

The two walked downstairs while talking and laughing. As soon as they walked to the hotel lobby, Jasper saw Erik sitting cross-legged while looking at him with a smug expression on his face. From the look on his face, anyone could tell that he was intentionally waiting there for him.

“Hey, I was wondering why Henry is so close to you. It turns out that you’ve moved in with the Laws eh, boy toy?” Erik said in a lukewarm tone. Looking at Anna’s face as she smiled like a blooming flower while standing next to Jasper, a touch of jealousy and greed flashed in his eyes.

As Erik spoke, he stood up and put his hands in his pockets. He walked over sullenly.

“Do you know how powerful I am now, kid? If I say that your company will go bankrupt, it’ll go bankrupt. All of Easy Media’s deals have fallen through, right? Hahahaha!

“This is only the first wave!”

Erik was both triumphant and arrogant. “Next, relevant departments will investigate your company. If they find something illegal, then you’ll have to face the consequences!

“It’s not too late to beg for mercy. Why don’t you get down on your knees and bark like a dog? If I’m happy with your barking, I might consider letting you off.”

Erik leaned over slightly, moved his annoying face toward Jasper, and said sarcastically, “Are you mad? That’s how powerful I am! No one can save you even if you die of anger, hahaha!”

Life at the Top Chapter 326

Facing Erik's aggressiveness, Jasper stepped back slightly while furrowing his brows. He looked a little disgusted. He even pulled Anna with him.

It was like he had bumped into a stinky beggar on the streets, afraid that he would get choked by the pungent smell.

Jasper's actions triggered Erik.

"What do you mean by that? What do you think I am? A beggar or a bug?" Erik said sullenly.

Jasper said mildly, "Looks like we're on the same page. Otherwise, why would you say words such as beggars and bugs?"

"Pfft." Anna could not help but laugh.

Erik's gaze grew darker and colder.

This was how it was with men's conflicts. When a woman was involved, the conflict between both men would intensify manyfold.

Besides, Erik hated Jasper's guts.

At this moment, Erik felt that Jasper had trampled on his dignity.

He was very upset. He clearly had the upper hand. He had even taken the initiative to come up to taunt Jasper, so Jasper should be the one to get mad instead.

“What are you so proud of?”

“You must be hopping mad inside but you’re pretending to look calm, huh?”

Erik sneered and said, “When Easy Media is destroyed, I’d like to see how you’re going to keep pretending!”

Anna looked at Erik indifferently and said, “We don’t even know who will win yet, why are you so eager to show off?”

Erik glanced at Anna, and for some reason, Erik would put away his vicious and arrogant aura when facing her. He was afraid that he would seem too presumptuous.

However, this was something he had never felt before when he faced Henry.

It was clear that Erik was more apprehensive of Anna than Henry.

“Anna, this is between Jasper and me. It has nothing to do with you,” Erik said in a deep voice.

Anna said coldly, “Jasper is the Laws’ ally. If you lay a finger on him, you’re laying a finger on the Laws. Who are you to say that this has nothing to do with me?”

Erik’s complexion changed slightly when he heard what she said. He pointed at Jasper and said, “He’s just a boy toy, no? You must be out of your mind, Anna. You can get all sorts of men with your family background and appearance, why choose this idiot?”

Anna’s expression sank as she said coldly, “Watch your mouth, Erik Turner! You’d better clean that mouth of yours!”

Erik’s face was as black as ink as he gritted his teeth, feeling wronged as resentment bubbled within him.

He could not believe that he was swallowing his anger like that, so afraid to even irritate Anna at this moment.

At the sight of this, Jasper could not help but look at Anna in a new light. After all, she had always been meek and obedient in front of him.

What earth-shattering things had this woman done before he met her?

She had her big brother completely wrapped around her little finger.

Now, even Erik, a fearless trust fund baby, revered her?

At this point, Erik's phone rang.

Erik quickly connected the call to get himself out of the embarrassing situation.

The person on the other end said something and Erik's expression started sinking at a rate that was visible to the naked eye.

After a while, Erik hung up and looked at Jasper coldly. "You're acquiring Motley Media's stocks?"

Life at the Top Chapter 327

Jasper said mildly, "I thought you received the news a long time ago. Are you only receiving the news now? Looks like things aren't going so well for Motley Media's chairman, eh?"

Erik gritted his teeth.

Indeed, although he was Motley Media's president, there were many people in the Turner family who were unhappy about this and often set up obstacles to hinder him.

This was such an important matter yet he was only informed about it now. Clearly, someone had put obstacles in his way.

Erik said with an ice-cold face, "How dare you attack Motley Media, Jasper Laine?! You must have a death wish."

Jasper said insipidly, "You should have thought of this when you attacked Easy Media. I was just taking necessary countermeasures.

"What's wrong? Only you can fight me and I'm not allowed to fight back? I didn't know this logic exists."

Erik was so furious he burst out laughing. "Do you think you're capable of fighting back? You can't even recognize what's good for you. You're simply seeking your own doom!

"How many people gave up resisting and knelt down to beg for mercy when they found out that I'm going to deal with them? Who the f*ck do you think you are, Jasper? How dare you fight back?!"

Jasper looked at Erik coldly and said, "I'm sorry, but I'm an unyielding man, so it's impossible for me not to fight back."

Erik flashed a sinister smile and raised his hand, pointing at Jasper while saying, "Okay, an unyielding man, huh? Sure, let's see who will be the last man standing!"

After saying these words, Erik turned around and left with a gloomy expression.

He was vigilant about the sudden jump in Motley Media's stock price but never would have thought that Jasper would be so bold to touch Motley Media. He did so with such decisiveness too. It seemed like he needed to go back as soon as possible to deal with this matter.

In addition to that, he must punish Jasper for his arrogance!

After walking out of the hotel's entrance, Erik's eyes shifted and he made a call immediately.

"It's me, Erik.

"I heard that Jasper is really close to Jim Yapp... Yes, teach Jim a lesson and let him know that he will face very serious consequences for following the wrong person."

When Anna saw Erik leaving in a rage, she said to Jasper, "This person is an extremist. He can do anything. He won't let this matter drop so easily."

Jasper said nonchalantly, "What can he possibly do? Does he think he can shut the domestic stock market down after what happened there? He can't stop this from happening. If he uses other means to deal with us, then we'll just endure it.

"When we have enough stocks in hand after a few days, that's when it'll be his doom."

Anna nodded in agreement.

...

In the evening, Jim was driving to the entrance of a reputable high school while humming.

It was his son's birthday today and he and his wife had decided to host a celebration for him.

In addition to that, Jasper had helped him tremendously during this period of time. He had successfully acquired George Powell's consulting company. With his company's smooth development, business was booming. Everything was moving in the right direction.

Therefore, Jim was in a good mood. He was wondering if he should invite Jasper over tonight as well so that his family could thank him themselves.

At the thought of this, he asked his wife who was sitting at the front passenger seat and holding a cake to keep an eye on the entrance of the school while he gave Jasper a call.

As soon as the call was connected, several burly men suddenly surrounded the car from all sides. Before Jim knew what was happening, both car doors were opened and he heard his wife yelp.

Anxious, Jim tossed his phone aside, and before he could say anything to those men, the clubs they held in their hands started raining down on the couple.

In a shopping mall on the other side of Swallow Capital, Jasper listened to the commotion coming from the phone. He heard the cursing and yelling of strangers as well as Jim's screams.

"Jim is in trouble!"

Jasper stood up abruptly, anger coursing through his veins.

Life at the Top Chapter 328

It was in the hospital when Jasper saw Jim again.

Covered in blood, Jim was lying weakly on the hospital bed. He had just regained consciousness after receiving emergency treatment.

When he opened his eyes and saw Jasper, Jim asked hastily, "Jasper, my wife..."

Jasper pressed Jim down and said, "Don't worry, she's fine. Her injuries are less severe than yours. They're just superficial wounds. The doctors are treating her wounds as we speak."

Jim breathed a sigh of relief.

"Dad!" A teenager squeezed through the crowd and walked over while choking with sobs.

Jim consoled his son and said, "I'm okay."

Jim spoke to his son for a while before sending him out to check on his mother. He then turned around to say to Jasper, "I'm sorry you had to make this trip, Jasper."

Jasper said, "I should be the one feeling sorry. You're in trouble because of me. I didn't know where you were, but someone called the cops in the end. It was only after the hospital called me that I rushed over."

Jim sighed and said, "I was about to pick up my son from school today and planned to invite you over for dinner. I didn't expect this to happen. It's the Combes, huh?"

Jasper did not intend to tell Jim about the Turners lest he felt more pressured.

“It’s not the Combes. I’ll take care of this for you. They won’t give you trouble anymore.”

Jim said to Jasper seriously, “I think these people are trying to warn you, that’s why they attacked me. These people can do anything. You must be careful.”

When Jasper saw how sensible Jim was, he said earnestly, “I’ll pay attention to that. The doctor said you need to be hospitalized, so while you’re recuperating in the hospital, I’ll ask Julian to take your son to school and pick him up after.”

Jim said in a hurry, “No, they aren’t bold enough to attack a child. That’s just plain cruel. Julian needs to protect you because you’re the one who is in most danger right now.”

Jasper said seriously, “I have my own means. Don’t worry about it.”

“Oh, what sort of means? Let’s hear them.”

A grating voice was heard.

The door of the ward was pushed open and Erik walked in grinning from ear to ear as he stared at Jim who lay on the bed with gauze and bandages wrapped all over him. He tutted.

“Tsk, ts, look how pitiful you look. You must be Jim, right? Does it hurt? Hahaha.”

Jasper stood up and looked at Erik, saying, “You’re more shameless than I thought.”

Erik roared with laughter and asked, “Are you angry?”

As he said that, Erik moved closer, looking carefully at Jasper and saying in surprise, “Are you really angry?”

“Then it’s really worth it. I did so many things and even came over in person just to see the angry look on your face.”

As Erik spoke, he laughed and said smugly, “The angry and helpless look on your face just makes me so f*cking happy!”

“Do you really think you’re capable of making me mad?”

Despite Jasper’s calm tone, his aura revealed that a storm was brewing.

Erik sneered. He was filled with contempt and disdain as he said, “I feel sick when I look at your pretentious face. I’m pissing you off on purpose. What can you do?”

Erik patted the hospital bed and sneered. “This is just a warning, kid. You’d better keep this in mind and be smart. Close position for all the Motley Media stocks you acquired today.

“Otherwise, no one knows who will be the next one lying on the hospital bed next time.”

Jasper said in a lukewarm tone, “Is that why you’re here? Just to tell me to sell off Motley Media’s stocks?”

Erik said sullenly, “What else? Of course, I’m also just dropping by to see you tremble in fear.”

Jasper smiled lightly. “Well, I’m not trembling in fear. You must be really disappointed, huh?”

“Oh, right, there’s even more disappointing news for you. I won’t sell off Motley Media’s stocks and will instead increase acquisition.”

Erik’s complexion darkened gradually. “So you’re going to fight me to the end, huh?”

Jasper pointed at Jim who was on the hospital bed with an edge in his gaze. “You’ll pay for his and his family’s injuries sooner or later!”

“Idiot!”

Erik sneered, “Who the hell do you think you are? Since I’ve done it, that means I’m not afraid of your so-called retaliation!

“Since you insist on fighting with me, sure, bring it on then. Don’t think I won’t touch you just because you bought some f*cking stocks of Motley Media. I won’t hesitate to end you!”

Jasper looked at Erik coldly. “I’ll be waiting for you to make a move then.”

With a sneer, Erik said, “Let’s hope you can still act so pompously in front of me the next time we meet!”

At this moment, Jasper’s phone rang.

It was a call from Anna.

“I’ve contacted several friends. Several domestic brokers who hold Motley Media’s stocks have agreed to transfer the stocks to us at about 15% premium, which will cost about 60 million in total.”

Jasper said calmly, “Take it. I’ll transfer the money to your account later. Make the deal as soon as possible.”

Anna said softly, "Okay, I'll get it done soon."

"Thanks," Jasper said.

Anna chuckled and hung up.

Erik stared at Jasper coldly. His instincts told him that the call Jasper received had something to do with him.

"Whose call was that? What did you do this time?!" Erik asked sullenly.

Jasper shrugged and said mildly, "Nothing. I just bought some shares of Motley Media from a few big brokers. My acquisition speed was too slow, so it would be easier if I acquired their stocks directly."

"Jasper, you have a f*cking death wish!" Erik roared.

Life at the Top Chapter 329

Erik was eager to end Jasper's life right now.

He was clearly at an advantage every time he came to Jasper. He would try to mock Jasper and then admire the exasperated look on his face so the man would regret going against him.

Toward the end, however, he would always be the one who ends up suffering a crushing defeat.

He had indeed gotten an exasperated reaction out of someone, but that someone was him instead!

He had been warned by the elders in the family today because of the unusual jump in Motley Media's stocks.

If news that Jasper had acquired Motley Media's stocks from these brokers spread out...

His family would no doubt be skeptical of his ability to continue leading Motley Media.

Erik never would have expected Jasper to act so quickly and decisively, going straight to the brokers to acquire stocks.

One must know that those brokers were blood-sucking vampires who would ask for more than 10% or 20% premium or they would not sell their stocks.

However, facts had proven that Jasper did buy them!

"Are you crazy? Do you have too much money with nowhere to spend?! Why are you spending several hundred million dollars to acquire Motley Media's stocks just to hammer the market?! Is it really necessary to cause destruction for the both of us in which you'll have to suffer heavy losses as well?"

Erik stared ferociously at Jasper and raged.

Jasper smiled and said slowly, "Is several hundred million dollars a lot? Will the young master of the Turner family even care about the loss of hundreds of millions? Well, I certainly don't. There are always ways to earn money, but not many opportunities to watch the fascinating expressions on Young Master Turner's face."

Erik gasped, feeling a malicious fire surging from the pit of his stomach. It made him feel so uncomfortable that it was like he was being pricked by needles.

If he could, he would certainly choke Jasper to death right now.

He had never loathed a person this much.

“Jasper, nothing good will come out of this for you. Why don’t we each take a step back?”

A flame of humiliation flickered in Erik’s eyes. In his opinion, he had saved Jasper’s dignity big time by saying those words.

“Each take a step back?”

Jasper smiled and pointed at Jim who was lying on the hospital bed. He said, “Sure, why don’t you pay back the injuries you inflicted upon him inch by inch, and when you’re done paying them all back, I’ll then discuss with you how we can both take a step back?”

Erik clenched his fist tightly, staring coldly at Jasper with a sharp gaze. “You really want to have a life and death struggle with me, huh? If all else fails, I’ll just go back and admit my mistakes then use the Turners’ resources! When the time comes, you won’t be able to end this even if you want to!”

“Erik,” Jasper said lightly, “I’m afraid that you still don’t understand. From the moment you sent someone to beat Jim up, the fight between us had already begun!”

Erik did not say any more. He glanced coldly at Jasper then turned around and left.

In the ward.

Jasper watched calmly as Erik left the ward, his eyes as cold as an iceberg.

“Who is he, Jasper?” Jim finally asked.

Jasper gave Jim a reassuring smile, saying, “The mastermind behind all this, but it’s fine now. I have ways to deal with him. I’m sorry for dragging you down with me.”

Jim shook his head and said, “I’m not afraid, but you, Jasper, have to protect yourself. These people will do anything.”

Jasper smiled and said, “I know my limits.”

Life at the Top Chapter 330

When Jasper returned to the hotel, Henry was seen boasting to Anna about his extraordinary achievements in the meeting today and how great of an achievement he had made.

“The magnate that presided over the meeting praised me three times in a row for the excellent plan I gave them and said that he’ll give careful considerations for it. Other families and all those idiots in the company are just a bunch of dumb geese. Oh, that was so incredibly cool, hahaha!”

As she drank her juice, Anna frowned at Henry who was standing in the center of the living room blabbering away. She said, “You’re blocking the TV.”

Henry walked away cursing and scolding.

Anna glanced at him with a lukewarm gaze and said, “You only got the chance to be in the limelight because of the creative design Jasper gave you. You must remember his kindness.”

Henry said enviously, “Oh, enough, Sis. If we both fart, then my fart will always be the smelly one while Jasper’s will be the fragrant one.”

Anna frowned and criticized him, "How vulgar!"

After thinking for a while, she said again, "You're right, though."

Henry nearly vomited blood out of anger.

Jasper came back at the right time, and Henry ran over with a serious expression.

"I heard that the idiot Erik came again today?"

Jasper nodded and roughly told him what had happened.

Henry roared with anger, "F*ck, he's so arrogant! Should I get some men to put him in a sack and toss him into the sea?"

Jasper was caught between laughter and tears. "You look pretty skilled. You must've used this method many times before, huh?"

For the first time ever, Henry was honest. "I've used it many times indeed, and it works every time."

Jasper waved his hand and said, "This is an underhanded trick used by kids and is better kept under the table. It's no fun, and they'll also have something to use against you."

"The Turners sickens me. They turned up at the meeting today as well. Damn, they're all the same, arrogant as if they're kings themselves. Like us, they're also trying to snatch the Olympic Village project."

Henry said with a sullen expression.

"They won't be able to snatch it away," Jasper said lightly.

Since learning about the Olympic Village project, Jasper had regarded this as something that was in his grasp. He would never let anyone touch it.

This was related to his business topology, so even if a much higher-level force came into the picture, Jasper would not give in to them—let alone the Turners.

...

In one of the villas in Swallow Capital, Erik slammed the wine glass in his hand down. The more he thought about it, the more upset he was. He walked back and forth with his hands behind his back and suddenly took out his phone.

“It’s me, Erik.”

“How can I help, Mr. Turner?” On the other end of the phone, a senior executive of Motley Media was heard saying reverently. This person was also Erik’s trustworthy confidant.

“There’s an unusual jump in the company’s stock price today and it has brought a terrible impact. Keep a close eye tomorrow. If the other party continues to acquire stocks, then we will sell the shares on hand. But if he sells his stocks directly, then we will use the company’s funds to take over,” Erik said in a sinister voice.

The senior executive said hesitantly, “Sir, taking over isn’t the main issue here. It’s illegal for the other party to buy and for us to sell. If the Securities Regulatory Commission catches us, then we will be in big trouble.”

Erik roared furiously, “This is my decision. I’m informing you, not discussing it with you. I, the chairman, am responsible for the consequences, so what are you afraid of?! Have you forgotten that I’m a Turner?! Who will have the audacity to control me?!”

Life at the Top Chapter 331

The next morning when the stock market opened.

Jasper was sitting in front of the computer with two other computers connected to Harbor City's trader teams that both Jake and Henry recruited.

At this moment, everyone's gazes were burning into Jasper as they waited for him to give orders.

"We currently have 29% of Motley Media's stocks in our hands, but they're still not enough, so our task this morning is to continue to acquire the stocks and get Motley Media's stock price to limit up within one hour."

Jasper's calm voice was heard, and the two professional trader teams from Harbor City entered at the same time.

At the same time, Jasper operated using his own account.

When the three parties entered the market at the same time, Motley Media's stock market suddenly surged.

Meanwhile, in Swallow Capital where Motley Media's headquarters was located, Erik was walking back and forth in the office with a sullen expression.

Not far away, three professional traders were staring at the market. Erik's confidant and senior executive, Kingston Pitt, stood nervously behind the traders while staring at the computer screen.

"They've made a move!" Kingston said suddenly.

Erik, who was already anxious to begin with, suddenly raised his head and strode over quickly.

“Which direction is it? Buy or sell?” Erik asked nervously.

Kingston grimaced and said, “There are three big orders at the same time, all of which are buying!”

“Buy!” Erik paled. Jasper had still chosen the outcome that he least wanted to see.

“That darn idiot. Where does he get his money from? Does he just throw tens of millions without blinking at all?!”

Cold sweat was seeping out of Kingston’s forehead as he stared at the market, saying, “Sir, the stock price has risen by 4%. What do we do now?”

Erik gritted his teeth and said, “What else? Sell the company’s shares. Since he wants to buy them so much, we’ll sell them then. Let’s see how much he can buy!”

Kingston looked bitter. They would be dead if they were caught by the Securities Regulatory Commission for carrying out such blatant violations.

Erik had the Turners to fall back on, but he did not. Perhaps, he might even be the scapegoat.

In any case, Kingston dared not disobey Erik, so he immediately ordered the traders to start releasing the company’s stocks.

At the same time, there was an unusual jump in Motley Media’s stock market.

“Mr. Laine, there are changes to the market. A big player has released stocks.” Jake’s voice could be heard from the computer, sounding a little intrigued.

“This large amount happens to be the number of stocks acquired by all three of our accounts combined. Looks like the other party is attacking with a target in mind, hoping to hedge our order.”

Jasper nodded and said lightly, “Erik is using his company’s stocks. Gather the evidence and hand it to the Securities Regulatory Commission.”

“Sure.” Jake narrowed his eyes and smiled.

Harbor City’s stock market had been recovering these days. Although it was great to have money coming in constantly, he simply had no chance to make a move.

Now that there was finally a chance for him to go to the ‘battlefield’, how could he not be excited?

The buyers headed by Jasper and the sellers headed by Erik fought fiercely on Motley Media’s stock market.

At this moment, all the flashy tactics were useless. They were simply competing to see who had more capital.

Erik was constantly selling while Jasper was constantly buying.

When the transaction volume between the two parties reached 200 million, Erik roared in the office.

“Where did this idiot get so much money from?! It has already hit 200 million and he’s still buying!”

Kingston wiped the cold sweat off his forehead and said, “Sir, Jasper already holds more than 35% of the shares. If this continues, your position as the largest shareholder will be threatened. It’ll all be over by then.”

Erik took a deep breath, and even his gaze was faltering.

Life at the Top Chapter 332

“F*ck, you think I don’t know that?!”

Kingston clammed up immediately, afraid to say anything more.

After walking irritably for two rounds, Erik murmured, “35% of the shares, huh? This idiot is already the second-largest shareholder in Motley Media. What exactly does he want to do?”

“Was he just trying to intimidate me when he said he’ll hammer the market but he’s actually just trying to acquire Motley Media?”

This thought frightened Erik so much that sweat was seeping out of his forehead and even his hair stood on end.

If Jasper was only trying to hammer the market, then the truth was that Jasper would suffer losses with the Turners as he was inflicting harm on them and himself at the same time.

Erik would only bring hundreds of millions worth of losses to the family.

However, if Jasper’s goal was to devour Motley Media whole, then the Turners would lose Motley Media’s ownership right. That would be Erik’s doom.

His family would definitely not forgive him!

Erik subconsciously wiped the cold sweat from his forehead. This had never happened before. He felt a trace of regret for provoking Jasper. This person was simply too difficult to get rid of.

At this moment, Motley Media's trading volume was enlarged infinitely due to the buying and selling contest between both parties.

However, the stock price continued to stabilize at a fairly reasonable value because Erik continued to sell regardless of the cost.

Ring...

Erik's phone started ringing.

After taking a deep breath, Erik connected the call.

The unflustered and thick voice of a middle-aged man could be heard coming from the other end of the call.

"Erik, what's going on with Motley Media's stock price?"

There was a trace of horror on Erik's face as he said, "Dad, it's Jasper. He's colluding with the Laws to attack Motley Media."

"Nonsense!" Brad Turner's voice was full of anger.

"Our main goal right now is to get our hands on the Olympic Village project and the Laws are our greatest enemy. I don't want any issues cropping up at this critical juncture!"

Erik said reluctantly, "But I can't just sit and watch Jasper snatch the qualification to host the celebratory banquet. My reputation in Swallow Capital will be greatly affected."

“Is your reputation more important or our family’s interests?!” Brad said solemnly.

Erik gritted his teeth, afraid to talk back.

“Alright, I want you to stop immediately. Don’t give yourself trouble because of trivial things, you hear me?”

As he listened to the voice on the phone, Erik let out a wry smile and said, “I’m afraid it’s too late, Dad...”

“Jasper now owns 35% of the company’s shares and is still buying. If this continues, Motley Media will change ownership.”

Brad was furious. “You own 70% of Motley Media’s shares, how did he get 35%?!”

As he said that, Brad realized what was going on and asked in a sullen voice, “Did you touch the company’s stocks?”

Erik’s lips trembled. He was too afraid to speak.

After a while, Brad was heard roaring from the other end of the phone, “You rebellious child! Get your *ss back here at once!”

After hanging up the call in a crestfallen state, Erik had yet to have the time to breathe when he heard Kingston’s hopeless voice saying, “The stock price has hit limit up!”

“Jasper... now owns 40% of the company’s shares!”

With a thump, Erik slumped to the ground. It felt as though the sky had become overcast as well.

Life at the Top Chapter 333

“The total investment is 1.25 billion. I invested one billion and you 250 million, Henry.”

Jasper closed the computer, got up, and smiled at Henry. “Soon, this 250 million dollars will double up to at least 500 million.”

Henry asked curiously, “Aren’t you going to hammer the market? Why are you only buying today?”

Jasper said, “I initially planned to hammer the market, but I had a feeling that Erik won’t give up so easily, so I tried to buy when the market opened. However, I didn’t expect Erik to actually operate illegally and use the company’s stocks to hedge against me.

“In that case, I changed my plan as well. I’d buy as much as he has and the increase in the equity ratio will directly threaten the Turners’ power over Motley Media. If I can control Motley Media, that’s when the Turners will feel the pain.”

Henry came to a sudden realization and then smiled while saying, “I’ve collected all the evidence you want and will soon submit it to the Securities Regulatory Commission.”

Jasper chuckled and said, “It’s better to pass it directly to the senior executives of the Securities Regulatory Commission via special channels. Otherwise, the Turners might place obstacles in your way.”

“Don’t worry!”

Henry said in a vicious tone, “Now that we have conclusive evidence, I’ll make sure Erik suffers!”

After Henry went out to carry out the task, Anna walked into the room with her hands behind her back.

“Like what you told me to do, I’ve asked someone to send Erik’s compromising materials to the Turners. My dad will talk to the Turners later,” Anna said softly.

Jasper laughed and said, “The Turners won’t be able to solve this without paying the price this time.”

Suddenly, Anna’s phone rang. After connecting the call, she said a few words before passing the phone to Jasper.

Jasper answered the phone and could hear Zachary’s voice.

“It’s me, Jasp.”

Jasper said in a hurry, “How are you, Uncle Zachary?”

Zachary laughed and said, “I know all about the things you did. Good job! You’ve done really well.”

Jasper laughed and said, “I’m grateful that you’re not mad at me because I’ve brought trouble to the Laws, Uncle Zachary.”

Zachary said sternly, “What nonsense, we’re a team now! There’s no distinction between us. What do you mean you brought trouble to us? It’s good to have multiple friends in the business field, but if they offend us, then tolerating them constantly will only make others look down on us.”

Jasper replied, “That’s right.”

Zachary joked, saying, “Initially, I sent Henry to Swallow Capital to train his ability to work alone.

“I didn’t expect this kid to be so lucky to meet you there too. With your help, things have gone very smoothly, but the goal of training him hasn’t been achieved.”

Jasper said helplessly, “It’s just a coincidence. There will always be opportunities to train him.”

“I’ll take your word for it. I’ll leave this to you, then,” Zachary said.

Realizing that he had been tricked by Zachary, Jasper laughed and said, “You’re really cunning, Uncle Zachary. I have no choice but to agree, huh?”

Zachary laughed and said, “Let’s talk business. Two things: I just received news from Swallow Capital’s higher-ups. They’re really happy with the idea you proposed.

“This will greatly ease the process of us getting the project, and it’s all thanks to you. Anna told me that the design you gave is simply genius and impeccable.”

Jasper said humbly, “I was just lucky. Actually, I know nothing about designing, but the construction of Olympic venues is of great significance, so the higher-ups not only need to consider the creative part of it but also the culture and tradition. I paid more attention and spent more effort in this.”

Zachary laughed and said, “In any case, what you did is truly outstanding and is beyond the reach of ordinary people. You don’t have to be humble.”

As he spoke, Zachary switched the conversation around and said, “What is the outcome you’re hoping to see for the Turners?”

Jasper said mildly, “Erik beat my friend and his wife to the point that they’re now hospitalized. I hold a deep grudge against him because of this. I want him to pay. An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth.”

Life at the Top Chapter 334

Zachary said in a deep voice, "Okay, I know now."

Jasper suddenly said, "Uncle Zachary, would you please tell the Turners that Erik must pay the price but I have no intention of becoming the Turners' enemy?"

Zachary was silent for a moment and praised him, "Jasp, sometimes I can't believe that you're only in your 20s. Your sense of propriety and your ability to make a correct assessment of the situation is proof that you're destined to reach a peak where others can only look up to."

...

In the Turners' courtyard.

Erik stood in the living room covering his red and swollen face. His head was hung low as he shuddered, too afraid to say a word.

Brad was sitting on the couch with a sullen expression while getting coaxed by a woman sitting beside him.

"There, there, Erik has learned from his mistake. Others will laugh at us when they see you hitting your son who's already in his 30s."

Brad snapped. "Look at what has become of your son because you spoiled him too much! If he's bold enough to violate the law so flagrantly, he'll turn the world upside down in the future."

The woman motioned at Erik with her eyes and said, "Hurry up and apologize to your father, Erik."

Brad snorted coldly. “Apologize to me? He has already messed up! Do you really think the Laws are that easy to deal with?”

“Someone from the Securities Regulatory Commission called me and said that the Laws refuse to let this matter drop. They insist on having Erik take responsibility. I’d like to see what you’re planning to do about that!”

Erik was taken aback when he heard what Brad said and yelled angrily, “Jasper is always turning to the Laws whenever something happens. How useless can he get?!”

“You never learn!” Brad was so mad that he raised his hand and slapped Erik on the face.

“If you weren’t so obsessed, would Jasper even have a handle on you? If he doesn’t have a handle on you, would the Laws complain about you with such righteous indignation?”

It was at this moment that an old man who looked like a butler walked in. He leaned over and spoke into Brad’s ear.

Brad asked in a deep voice, “Where’s the person who delivered the item?”

The butler shook his head and said, “He left after delivering the item.”

After speaking, the butler handed him a folder.

Brad said in a deep voice, “Play it. Let’s have a look.”

The butler responded and turned around to take out the CD from the folder. He brought a laptop over and started playing the contents of the CD.

At the sight of this, Erik had a premonition that something bad was going to happen.

“What is this?” Erik asked.

“It’s about you,” Brad glared coldly at Erik and said in a deep voice.

Erik quivered. He knew what he had done. He had committed countless crimes before. If someone had dug them all out, then it would be the end for him.

In no time at all, the computer started playing the videos on the CD.

The first footage was a surveillance video, and Erik could be seen sitting on a couch in a dimly lit room.

Soon after that, Erik started taking drugs. Then, a few people of unknown gender sashayed inside and Erik began fooling around with them.

Erik paled at the unsightly scene playing out on the computer, his eyes twitching furiously. Brad was so furious that he was shaking all over.

The butler hesitated for a while and said, “Master, the man said that he has not only given a copy to us, but he has also given a copy to the family as well. I think it has been delivered to Old Master Turner by now.”

Brad abruptly grabbed the laptop and slammed it on Erik’s head while roaring angrily, “Idiot! You idiot!”

Life at the Top Chapter 335

It did not hurt when the laptop hit him, but it did break Erik’s last line of defense.

He howled and screamed, “That’s impossible! This was years ago. How could they have taken this video?!”

“What else is impossible!?” Brad pointed at Erik, livid with anger.

“Were you still expecting to hide such a disgraceful thing after doing it?! Even Old Master Turner has received a copy. What are you going to do now?!”

Even his wife’s complexion had turned pale. She said in a hurry, “Brad, if Old Master learns that Erik took drugs and did such a disgraceful thing, he’ll drive us out of the house for sure. Hurry up and think of a way.”

Brad roared, “Think of a way? What can I possibly come up with? I’ll suffer too, not just this idiot!”

“You know how aggressive your uncles are at fighting with me. In order to promote you to Motley Media’s chairman position, I spent so much effort, paid a huge price, and this is how you repay me?!”

Brad raised his foot and kicked Erik on the stomach. The latter screamed and fell to the ground, wailing. “I know I was wrong, Dad. Save me.”

Brad stared coldly at the wretched-looking Erik, feeling extremely disappointed.

He would rather have Erik grow a spine at this moment because that would at least show that he still had the courage to accept the consequences of his actions.

However, Brad was both furious and helpless when he saw the unbearable sight of his son, one whom he previously had high hopes for.

He was not actually going to ignore his own son, but this problem was just so big that even he found it impossible to cope.

After going through decades' worth of life's ups and downs, Brad had not felt so lost in such a long time. Never in a million years would he have thought that he would experience it again, and because of his own son too.

At this time, the butler quietly walked over and stretched out a phone, saying, "A call for you, Master."

Brad said impatiently, "I'm not taking it. Tell them I'm busy."

The butler whispered, "It's from the Laws."

Brad's expression sank, and he answered the call.

"You're still busy as always, eh, Brad? You don't even have the time to answer my call?" Zachary teased.

Brad's expression was dark and gloomy. His smile did not reach his eyes. "Well played, Zachary. You have something on that incompetent son of mine, huh? What do you want? Spit it out."

Brad was insinuating that the Laws were really shameless for laying a finger on a junior like Erik, which was an indirect mockery against Zachary.

Zachary did not care at all, but instead, he grinned and said, "You've misunderstood me, Brad. This has nothing to do with the Laws. We're just running errands. Jasper, that young lad, is still the more capable one.

"I learned about the incident just moments earlier. Gosh, I feel good after hearing about it. What do you think about this young lad's tactics? Don't you feel embarrassed at all, Brad?"

Brad nearly crushed the phone in his hand and gritted his teeth while sneering. "Stop being so sarcastic, Zachary. Tell me what you want."

When Zachary heard how furious Brad sounded with nowhere to vent, he felt so refreshed it was like he was drinking a can of iced coke on a hot day.

Generals would fight against generals; soldiers with soldiers. Henry and Erik found each other an eyesore, while he and Brad had countless conflicts before as well.

Most of the time, he would have the upper hand, though only by a very small margin. He had never managed to make Brad so upset before.

Life at the Top Chapter 336

Zachary, who was feeling refreshed, said cheerfully, “The Turners must withdraw from the Olympic Village project. As for the other venues, we will compete based on our own capabilities.”

Brad flew into a rage, saying, “You’re making an unreasonable demand!”

Zachary said mildly, “You can’t say that, Brad. Listen, the CD that’s meant to be sent to Old Master Turner’s house is still with my men. You still have a chance to redeem the situation.

“It’s your decision whether you want to solve this between you and your son or cause a stir in the entire Turner family.”

Brad narrowed his eyes when he heard what he said.

If the materials were sent to Old Master Turner, then he would be doomed for sure. He would certainly not let Zachary get what he wanted, but there was now a glimmer of hope. He was hesitant to pelt a rat for fear of smashing the vase beside it.

As for the Turners’ pillar, Brad knew better than anyone what the upright and plainspoken Old Master Turner would do to his son once the materials reached his hands.

After taking a deep breath, Brad said in a deep voice, “This is the only condition you have?”

Zachary was not surprised by Brad’s compromise. He continued happily, “This is just my own condition. After all, this is still a grudge between Jasper and Erik. My nephew wants me to pass on a message to you too.

“The wrongful act that Erik committed will be returned. An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth. However, he has no plans of becoming the Turners’ enemy.”

Brad sneered when he heard what he said. “You can press Brad’s face on the ground and bash him up. Jasper is considered the best among his peers. Is that all he wants? To bash him up?”

“He doesn’t want to be the Turners’ enemy? Easy for him to say. Everything he’s doing shows that he’s going against the Turners.”

Zachary’s smile diminished as he said insipidly, “If this is the attitude you have, then I don’t think there’s a need to discuss this anymore. I must remind you that Old Master Turner is a hero whom I respect, but none of his descendants have the guts.

“Don’t underestimate others just because you’re born in Swallow Capital. Why don’t you go and find out what kind of reputation Jasper has in Harbor City and the things he has done?”

“If you want to fight, then bring it on. If you lay a finger on Jasper, then you’re laying a finger on me, Zachary!”

“Let me tell you one last thing. Old Master Law is very fond of Jasper. You can say that he thinks highly of Jasper. If worst comes to worst, my old man and I will make a trip to Swallow Capital and face the Turners personally. Who do you think will suffer the worse defeat when that happens?”

Having said that, he hung up the call.

Brad held the phone, gasping for breath.

There was anger, astonishment, and disbelief on his face.

He could not believe that the Laws would actually say things tantamount to starting a full-scale war with the Turners.

As the head of the Laws, Zachary would not joke about something like that.

If he laid a finger on Jasper, then the Laws would definitely start a war with the Turners.

At the thought of this, Brad smashed the phone in his hand.

“What the hell did you do to Jasper?!” Brad stared at Erik coldly and roared.

Erik stammered and said, “I didn’t do anything, really. I just hired someone to beat up one of his friends and got him hospitalized.”

Brad pointed at Erik furiously and yelled, “Go and apologize to Jasper immediately. If he wants you to eat muck, then you’d better eat it before you come back or even I won’t be able to help you with this!”

Life at the Top Chapter 337

Erik trembled all over, clutching his red and swollen face. He said unwillingly, “You want me to apologize to him? I would rather die.”

“Then die!” Brad roared and gave Erik a cold look.

“You idiot! That’ll teach you. Before you offend someone, find out who he is first!”

“Who else could he be? He’s just a boy toy clinging to the Laws. He’s just slightly rich.” Erik gritted his teeth.

Brad was so furious he laughed out loud. “Boy toy? Slightly rich? Do you think you have the ability to make the Laws start a full-scale war for you?”

When Erik heard what he said, he felt as though he had been struck by lightning. He said incredulously, “The Laws are starting a full-scale war with us because of him? Are they out of their minds?”

Brad sneered, “Zachary is an old cunning fox. A really sharp-witted one too. Do you think he’s crazy? He’s smarter than anyone!

“If he can speak on Jasper’s behalf and is willing to pay such a price, then that just proves Jasper is worth a lot to the Laws!

“What about you? Look at you, you’re already in your 30s and still can’t do anything right. I don’t expect you to accomplish anything great, but at least stay out of trouble!”

As he said that, Brad demanded while offering no room for doubt, “I want you to go and settle this dispute with Jasper at once. I don’t care what conditions he gives, you’ll agree to them all or I won’t be able to help you when your grandpa finds out about this.

“You know how your grandpa is. If he knows that you took drugs and messed around with those people, you’ll get kicked out of the house!”

Erik quivered all over. Although it was really humiliating for him to yield to Jasper, this was the only option he had at the moment.

He gritted his teeth and said, “Fine, I’ll go!”

...

In the hospital. Jim’s ward.

When Jasper walked in through the door with Henry, Jim quickly sat up. At the sight of the fruits Jasper was holding, he hastened to say, “Your presence is more than enough, why are you still bringing me things?”

Jasper smiled and said, "These are to replenish your vitamins. Do you feel better now?"

Jim smiled and said, "Much better."

Jasper introduced Henry to Jim, saying, "This is Henry, the son of the Law family in Harbor City. You've met him before. Now the Laws are doing investments in Mainland, so you may have the opportunity to work together in the future."

Judging from Henry's status and temperament in the past, Jim would normally be someone beneath his consideration.

With Jasper as the introducer, however, Henry did not mind having Jim's back in the future.

Henry handed out a business card and grinned. "Let's keep in touch."

Jim took the business card with both hands emotionally and said awkwardly, "I don't have a business card with me right now. I'll give you a call later and you can save my number. I'm pretty confident about running a business consulting firm. I'll need your guidance and help in the future."

Henry grinned and said, "Sure."

Jim knew that Jasper wanted to compensate him. Having a top resource such as Harbor City's Law family was better than giving him cash.

If he could just take a tad of resources that slipped out of the Laws' fingers, it would be more than enough to sustain his company.

If it were not for Jasper, it would be impossible for him to make contact with big shot young masters like Henry, let alone have the Laws take the initiative to give him a business card.

At the thought of this, Jim could not help but give Jasper a grateful stare.

As they spoke, there was a knock on the door of the ward.

Julian walked into the ward and said to Jasper, "Erik is here, Jasper."

Jasper nodded, indicating that he understood. However, he did not mention that Erik could come in.

Life at the Top Chapter 338

Julian understood what Jasper meant. He walked out the door and said to Erik who was standing at the door with a sullen expression, "Wait here."

Erik took a deep breath, feeling deeply humiliated. He was surprised that Jasper would put on airs and deny him entry even when he had personally turned up to apologize.

"How long am I supposed to wait?" Erik asked through gritted teeth.

Julian said mildly, "He didn't say. Just wait here."

"You!" Erik flew into a rage and glared viciously at Julian, eager to kick him.

While Erik grew impatient, the door of the ward opened and Henry walked out grinning from ear to ear.

He took out a cigarette and lit it with a lighter, exhaling a puff of smoke on Erik's face.

Arrogant and presumptuous!

“Sigh, this ordinary cigarette is dull and tasteless no matter how expensive it is. It must be cooler to take drugs, huh?”

Henry laughed.

Erik’s face was so dark that it could absorb all the light around it. “Stop being so proud, Henry. Who are you being sarcastic to?”

“Talking to you,” Henry said in a free and easy manner. “I’m nothing compared to you, though. How can you bring yourself to mess around with ladyboys? You’re f*cking dope.”

Erik glared at Henry with spiteful eyes. He gritted his teeth without a word.

He knew that the more he spoke, the possibility of him being humiliated would be even bigger.

When Henry was done smoking, he clapped his hands and said, “Go in then. My brother-in-law is waiting for you.”

Erik could not stand it anymore and flew into a rage. “Why didn’t you say it earlier!?”

Henry grinned and said, “You didn’t ask.”

Erik glanced bitterly at Henry, then drooped his head and walked into the ward.

Never in Erik’s wildest dreams would he have expected himself to stand outside the door ‘asking’ to meet Jasper, even more so in such a humiliating way when he was left to wait outside the door for more than ten minutes.

At the sight of Jasper sitting on a chair next to the hospital bed, the fear in Erik's heart overwhelmed his hatred.

After all, Jasper's means were simply too cruel.

In just a few days, Jasper had forced him every step of the way to a point where he needed to show up here and beg for mercy.

With his fists clenched, Erik threw caution to the wind and walked straight to Jasper, saying, "I was wrong, Jasper. I give up. Please forgive me."

Jasper was calm as if he did not hear what he said at all. Instead, he asked Henry who was leaning against the door with his arms crossed, "What are we having for dinner?"

Henry thought for a while and said, "We've been eating western food these days and the food just tastes so bland to me now. Should we have something more exotic?"

"Venison then. Venison barbeque," Jasper proposed.

Henry's eyes lit up. "Sure!"

Erik stood in place, his entire body going rigid. He did not know whether to leave or stay. He had never felt so humiliated in his life.

He took a deep breath whilst trembling, staring straight at Jasper. He said, "You've won, Jasper. I admit that I'm not your match and shouldn't have attacked you. What do you want to do to me? Be quick, why must you torture me?"

It was only then did Jasper look straight into Erik's eyes. He said mildly, "Young Master Turner, you have such an important and noble identity, why would I torture you? However, an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth. He and his wife are still lying on the hospital bed. Why don't we settle this first?"

Life at the Top Chapter 339

Erik turned to look at Jim as he lay on the hospital bed, his eyes twitching wildly.

He took a deep breath and said, "An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth? Why don't you ask someone to beat me up then?"

"That's a good idea," Henry said with a grin, "I meant to hire someone to put you in a sack and then soak you in the sea for a few hours to cool you down, but someone refuses to let me do it."

As he said that, Henry shrugged, looking as if it was a shame.

Erik gritted his teeth with a sullen expression. He had never seen anyone so arrogant, telling to his face that they planned to soak him in the sea?

This was simply a humiliation to Erik!

He looked up at Jasper, knowing that he was the person who would ultimately decide his fate.

Jasper, however, turned to Jim and asked, "Uncle Jim, what do you plan to do? If you want to return the punches then just say the word and I'll get it done immediately."

Erik gritted his teeth. He could tell that Jasper was serious about it. As long as Jim nodded, then he would not be able to escape the brutal beating he would get today.

Jim was lying on the hospital bed, feeling a little flattered.

He did not expect himself to one day have the power to decide Erik's life and death.

It might sound a little exaggerated to say life and death, but the brutal beating he had suffered was enough to leave anyone's life hanging by a thread.

He did not expect an insignificant figure like him to one day experience this high point in life.

For some reason, Jim had a sudden realization that nothing in this world was constant.

After thinking for a while, Jim smiled at Jasper and said, "Forget it, Jasper."

Jasper raised his eyebrows slightly. When he was about to speak, Jim spoke again.

"Jasper, this is what I really think. If revenge breeds revenge, will there ever be an end to it? That doesn't mean anything. It's only natural for us to retaliate after we're bullied, but we can always adopt other means.

"After all, harmony is the most important thing in the business field. I'll let you decide the specifics of what you want to do. I don't have an opinion on this."

Jasper nodded when he heard what Jim said.

On the one hand, Jim had considerations about his company in Swallow Capital. This was a small piece of land. If he pressed Erik's face to the ground and bashed him up, he would feel great about it but it would be difficult for him to guarantee his safety in the future.

What was more, even if he was not afraid, what about his wife and kids?

This was the most practical consideration for a middle-aged man who had experienced the harsh reality of society.

On the other hand, Jim might also have other reasons for not offending the Turners too much.

Jasper understood Jim's goodwill.

Erik breathed a sigh of relief after hearing what Jim said.

He could not help but look at Jim again. Well, he was not exactly grateful, though. Jim was already lucky enough not to be squashed to death by a prodigal son like Erik.

Jim's words had put out the thought in Erik's mind about striking him, though.

Jim was, after all, the most insignificant character in this ward—one that was beneath Erik's consideration.

"Five million," Jasper said.

Erik looked up at Jasper incredulously.

This huge affair could be solved with only five million?

Erik did not know if he should laugh at Jasper for being an idiot or if he was simply too lucky.

"Five million for the medical expenses. This is the compensation for Uncle Jim," Jasper said flatly, seemingly seeing through Erik's thoughts.

Erik gritted his teeth. The joy that had just surged through his heart was gone without a trace.

The medical expenses alone were five million bucks? He was simply demanding an exorbitant amount.

Erik could not care less about this bit of money, though. He simply wanted to solve the problem now. As for the rest, he would think about it next time.

Therefore, Erik nodded immediately and agreed.

Life at the Top Chapter 340

Jim looked at Jasper gratefully, knowing that the latter was helping him.

He had gotten five million as compensation for being beaten up.

Despite having a net worth of tens of millions, five million in cash still felt like a Godsent.

Such great benefits were scarce.

“So about the celebratory banquet...”

This time, Erik interrupted and replied, “It’s yours. I have no right to fight you for it.”

Everything had stemmed from this banquet, and Erik no longer wanted to fight for the right to host the banquet anymore. In hindsight, he should never have gotten himself into so much trouble now that he knew what would happen.

“Then all that’s left is Motley Media.”

Jasper glanced at Erik calmly, his gaze slightly intrigued.

“You have two options. One, I buyout Motley Media.”

Erik’s expression darkened at that. Motley Media was a company his family had given him. Any blunder he made would directly affect his position in the family.

Not to mention that Motley Media had a market price of two billion and was an important asset to the Turner family.

In addition, the past two huge wars had pushed Motley Media’s market value to almost three billion now!

No matter what, there was no way the Turner family would simply hand Motley Media over. This was a responsibility that not even his dad, Brad, could take up, let alone Erik.

Instead of running his mouth, Erik waited quietly for Jasper’s second option.

“The second option is that the Turner family buys the 40% stocks I have on hand for two billion.”

The second option forced Erik into an absolute corner.

“Two billion? That’s too much!” Erik exclaimed, aggrieved.

No matter how rich the Turner family was, there was no way they could just take two billion out like that.

Especially not when Erik was far from being a representative of the Turner family.”

Jasper replied calmly, “Is it? Two billion is nothing in comparison to your future, Mr. Turner.”

Erik clenched his teeth. "Please, Jasper. Give me a discount. I don't have two billion to take out."

Jasper replied calmly, "Sorry, no negotiations."

As he stood in place, Erik felt his scalp go numb. It was a frightening amount of money and he did not have the authority to give Jasper a reply.

Seeing Jasper's expression, Erik knew that there was truly no room for negotiations.

Taking a deep breath, Erik spoke grimly, "Give me some time. I have to discuss this with my dad."

"Go ahead." Jasper smiled. "I'm an understanding person most of the time."

Erik felt his legs give out and while he did not fall back onto the floor, it was a close call. Jaw tight, he walked out of the hospital room.

Erik closed the door behind him. Henry looked at Jasper with his eyes shining. "I thought you were joking when you told me that my 250 million investment would double to 500 million. You were serious?"

Jasper smiled. "What more are you waiting for when there's a perfectly plump sheep lying on the slaughter table waiting for you to slaughter?"

Henry guffawed. "You'd better not forget me when you've got these great deals again."

A few minutes later, Erik returned and handed Jasper his phone. "My dad wants to talk to you."

Jasper received the call and greeted, "Hello, Mr. Turner."

On the other end, Brad's voice drifted over calmly. "I didn't know that you're Harbor City's stock god and the host behind Harbor City's market rescue plan, Jasper. I'll take my disappointing son's loss against you in my stride, but I do hope that you can be the bigger person and forgive him."

Jasper replied calmly, "You're too kind, Mr. Turner. I've already stated my conditions. It's up to you whether you wish to agree to them or not."

"I agree. Two billion will be wired to your bank account tomorrow, and whatever resentment there is between you and my son gets written off."

"Thank you, Mr. Turner!"

Life at the Top Chapter 341

Hanging up the call, Jasper handed the phone back to Erik.

“Let’s move on from this incident, then.”

Jasper replied faintly, “Of course. But if you don’t think this is fair, you’re always welcome to keep handing me benefits, Mr. Turner. You’re always welcome.”

Erik gnawed his molars indignantly as his expression hardened. “Asking for two billion right off the bat, aren’t you afraid it’ll come to bite you back in the *ss?”

Jasper chuckled. “Bite me? Money that I dare to ask for has never come to bite me back.”

Erik glanced at Jasper intently and turned to leave without another word.

After Erik left, Henry narrowed his eyes and spoke, “I really want to kidnap that man right now. Something tells me we won’t be seeing the last of him.”

Jasper merely sighed. “We’ll just have to hope that he isn’t an idiot...”

Henry thought about Jasper’s meaningful words and asked, “You mean to say that Brad won’t just give up so easily?”

Jasper replied with a shocked tone, “You actually got it right this time!”

“F*ck you too, you b*stard! What am I to you, an idiot?” With a dark expression, Henry left the room in a huff for a smoke.

...

The incident with the Turner family had come to an end.

This time, Jasper earned one billion while Henry earned 250 million.

In addition, Jasper had also gotten the rights to host the celebratory banquet for Swallow Capital gaining approval to host the Olympics.

The biggest benefit of all was that the Turner family had withdrawn from competing for the Olympic Village project.

While this did not mean that the Law family was guaranteed to take over the 30 billion Somer Dollars project, at least one of their strongest competitors had left the competition.

While it hurt the Turner family to let go of the project, both the Turner and the Law families were well aware that the Olympic Village project was not a simple project any family could easily take on. No one knew what the future held.

Such a project definitely required the supervision of higher officials, and one's family's identity would only prove to be shackles instead of a boost when communicating with such high officials.

After all, the people in charge might not choose to split the entire cake with formidable families only. It was just another tactic to control the balance of benefits.

That was why the Turner family gave it up and moved on. From their understanding, even if they did not give it up, it was still unlikely for them to get the project.

If that was the case, they might as well put their focus on fighting for other stadiums.

All in all, it could be considered a huge win for Jasper and the Law family.

The following morning, Jasper held a conference meeting in Easy Media once he received the two billion from the Turner family.

He gave all the employees a few days worth of holidays, and the moral decline within the company was dramatic. All sorts of rumors began to fly around.

Most of them spoke of how their new boss, Jasper, had offended some big shots in Swallow Capital. Now, the entire company was going to close down with Jasper's impending bankruptcy.

It was a matter of their salary, so all the employees were waiting for Jasper to explain himself.

Yet in face of such rumors, Jasper did not clarify anything at all.

Instead, all Jasper did was release the news that he had gotten the right to host the celebratory banquet.

Everyone present was surprised, and the senior executives in the conference room looked at Jasper as if he was a divine god.

Life at the Top Chapter 342

The approval to host the Olympics was the biggest news within the country right now, and it would not be an understatement to say that the entire country was rejoicing.

Meanwhile, their boss had so easily gotten the right to host the banquet.

The fact that they had become senior executives of a media company meant that they were all veterans who knew this unique media industry like the back of their hands.

Naturally, they understood the value of hosting such a banquet, and that there was endless competition for the right to host.

To think that their boss had gotten the right among so many formidable forces, just how able was this man before them?

Once it clicked, everyone started looking at Jasper differently now.

The meeting proceeded with a breeze, for everyone was passionately discussing how to manage the banquet. Everyone fought to give ideas that would make a bang. It was because if Jasper was satisfied with them, it meant that their future in the company would be unlimited.

The stronger the company grew, the more the senior executives earned. It was a straightforward concept.

“I have an idea.” Jasper knocked on the conference table to get everyone’s attention.

Jasper began, “Since I’m not very familiar with the daily operations of the media and entertainment industry, I’ll leave most decisions to you instead of interfering with everyone. Let the specialists specialize, is my working motto.

“Therefore, instead of listening to my suggestion as an order from the chairman, it’d be better if you took it with a grain of salt like an opinion from an outsider. Perhaps consider it but don’t force yourselves to implement it.”

The vice president smiled and replied just as Jasper finished speaking, “Do tell, Mr. Chairman. Everyone here knows of your ability and I’m sure whatever suggestions you give will be great.”

Everyone’s envious gazes fell on the vice president just as he finished speaking.

Everyone wanted to apple-polish, but the vice president was quicker and had gotten the chance first.

Seeing Jasper smiling at the vice president, everyone was exceptionally envious... 'Indeed, all sorts of bosses like being fawned over!'

They were infuriated to know that a thief had stolen their chance.

"I suggest that we host this celebratory banquet in partnership with Harbor City's Advent Entertainment Group. Both companies are brother companies under my name, so there wouldn't be any sort of competition between them or the like. Even if there is, it would still be friendly competition."

Jasper spoke his thoughts, "Be it celebrity resources or experience in hosting large-scale banquets, Easy Media still needs to learn and borrow help from large companies in Harbor City.

"So with Advent Entertainment Group available for the taking at Harbor City, this is our best chance for both companies to partner up and host the banquet well.

"I don't think there's much I need to tell you about the importance of the banquet, but high officials all have their eyes on us. This is the company's top priority for the time being and all resources we have should be prioritized for this project."

The senior executives all agreed with Jasper's suggestion.

Ignoring Jasper's status, the mere suggestion itself was purely advantageous. Everyone seated was understanding men, and no one rejected his suggestion.

After the meeting, Jasper left Easy Media.

Such a sophisticated and large-scale banquet should require at least a few months' worth of planning, but its importance had resulted in the higher-ups advancing its date to as soon as possible.

Countless issues were involved, and Jasper could not follow up with each one.

All he did was decide the major direction it should take. He would leave the rest for the professionals in both companies.

Jasper returned to the hotel and entered his room, only to be stunned by the sight of someone he had never expected to see.

Wendy!

Sitting by the open bar in the living room and working on her laptop, Wendy looked up at the sound of the door opening and was faced with Jasper. He was completely shocked once he entered the room. She smiled beautifully, and the sight was enough to launch a thousand ships.

“Are you surprised?” Wendy closed her laptop and her snow-white wrists came to support her face. She blinked, like an adorable and cheeky little fairy.

Life at the Top Chapter 343

“I am... Why are you here?” Jasper asked.

Scrunching her nose, Wendy replied, “Dad rushed over right away when he heard that Uncle Yapp was admitted into the hospital. And since the nationwide supermarket industry conference will also be held in Swallow Capital, we decided to come here earlier.”

“Where’s Uncle Schuler?” Jasper asked, taking off his jacket and hanging it on the rack.

“He went to the hospital to visit Uncle Yapp. The two old friends were talking and since I’m not interested in hearing old men reminiscing about the past, I decided to come here first,” Wendy replied with a smile.

Jasper nodded in understanding before he suddenly realized. “How did you get in here? You don’t have a room card.”

Wendy gave Jasper a crescent-eyed smile as she replied darkly, “Miss Law opened the door for me.”

Jasper’s footsteps halted as he walked toward Wendy, and he felt his heart drop. He had a bad feeling about this.

It felt like something terrifying was about to happen.

From the guest room, Anna’s voice sounded.

“Who are you talking to, Miss Schuler? Is Jasper back already?”

Anna’s voice crushed the last shred of delusional hope in Jasper’s heart.

The scene he feared the most of two polar forces clashing against each other had finally occurred.

Jasper had begun to worry long ago what the scene of Wendy and Anna’s first meeting would look like.

He imagined it to be an exciting fight.

The biggest thing that Jasper had done since he started his road to the top of the world might have been the plan to save Harbor City’s stock market.

Hundreds of billions in funds had been taken out to fight Wall Street’s large investors who had a terrifying sum of wealth as well.

All he felt then was excitement but never fear.

Yet right now... the great Mr. Laine was afraid.

Truly, he was a little terrified.

It was because neither Wendy nor Anna was an ordinary everyday girl.

They each had their own tricks and were incomparable to one another.

Jasper rubbed the bridge of his nose and turned to look at the room.

Anna was donned in her favorite red one-piece dress, and she held a tray of tea as she walked over with a smile.

“Thank you for the trouble, Miss Law.” Wendy got off the open bar and approached Anna. Be it Wendy’s tone or her choice of words, she acted with the air of Jasper’s other half.

Anna smiled softly and replied, “Not at all. Jasper likes tea, so I tend to bring tea leaves with me wherever I go. That way, he’ll get to drink tea whenever he gets back.”

Anna shot back sharply, refusing to back down.

Seeing how the two women smiled, the sight alone was something so breathtaking that ordinary people might live their entire lives without ever getting to enjoy such a scene.

However, Jasper could not bring himself to enjoy it.

All he wanted to know at that moment was what Anna and Wendy had talked about and done while he was gone.

From how the two acted, it seemed unlikely that they would start a physical fight.

Jasper felt a little better at the knowledge of that.

Anna put down the tray and elegantly poured a cup of tea with practiced ease. She passed the cup to Jasper and spoke gently, "Earl Grey, made from the most superior black tea leaves that were plucked straight from a renowned place in Harvey City. It's said that they only produce around two kg of it every single year. Here, try it."

Jasper took the cup, and as he moved, he felt Wendy's faint gaze fall on him.

Clearing his throat, Jasper replied, "Thank you."

Wendy let up the pressure she placed on him at his understandingly polite attitude while he distanced himself from Anna.

Anna smiled and replied, "There's no need for thanks between us."

Jasper smiled bitterly. Anna was putting him in more trouble here...

As expected, Wendy frowned.

No woman would stand and watch as another woman provoked her.

It was the same logic as no man would ever let another man provide for his woman before him.

Life at the Top Chapter 344

It was the same idea.

At that moment, neither Anna nor Wendy cared how beautiful the other looked. They were both shameless witches in the other's eyes.

A flask of tea was shared between the three of them.

In a little less than half an hour, Jasper found himself fully understanding what people meant when they said 'minutes ticked on like hours'.

Wendy kept her cool the entire time, seeing that the last thing she should do as Jasper's other half was to cower in fear. She had to defend her position.

Meanwhile, Anna drank tea and began to search for topics of interest. Wendy would reply and give her own two cents without an ounce of fear.

Jasper, however, was completely isolated, for the two women had tacitly decided to ignore him.

Half an hour later, Anna finally got up and excused herself. "I'm a little tired, so I'll get back to my room now."

'You should've left long ago.' That was what Wendy thought internally, but she merely replied with a sympathetic expression on her face, "I've had a lot of fun talking to you, Miss Law. We should do this again sometime."

'How about we don't...'

Jasper wanted nothing more at that moment than to toss Wendy to the North Pole and Anna to the South Pole so the two would never meet again.

Anna gave a small smile. "Sounds great. I had a lot of fun talking to you today too, Miss Schuler. We should talk more in the future."

Anna then turned to Jasper and asked softly, "Won't you send me off, Jasper?"

Wendy clenched her fist angrily at her suggestion and bit her red lip, but she otherwise remained silent.

Jasper got up and smiled dryly. "I'll walk you out."

The two walked out the door in a line, and Anna slightly closed the door behind her to block Wendy's line of vision.

Wendy clenched her teeth and was overwhelmed with the urge to run over to look at what the two of them were doing, but she forced herself to maintain the air of 'generosity' around her.

At the door, Jasper was about to speak when an air of perfume ambushed him. Anna suddenly appeared in his arms.

With her hands wrapped around Jasper's neck, Anna blinked at Jasper. "Was it exciting?"

Jasper did not know whether to laugh or to cry as he pulled Anna's arms off. "Stop playing around!"

Ignoring the fact that there were surveillance cameras in the corridor, Wendy was just on the other side of the door. The last thing Jasper wanted to do was taunt Wendy's limits right under her nose.

"Coward."

Anna mocked and said, "I'm leaving for Waterhoof City tomorrow to attend a fashion show on behalf of my teacher. It'll be three to five days before I get back."

"Wait, really?" Jasper could not hide the surprise in his tone when he asked.

Then, he felt slightly regretful.

As expected, Anna was teasing him with her gaze.

"Okay, I'll stop. Go comfort your girlfriend."

Anna then turned and left.

Jasper rubbed his cheeks with both his hands at the sight of Anna's retreating figure and turned to push open the room door. He saw Wendy with her arms crossed while looking at him calmly.

Jasper felt a little guilty when he realized that Anna's perfume still lingered around his neck.

"Go take a bath. You must be tired after working all day."

It surprised him that Wendy did not question him at all, nor did she interrogate him about his relationship with Anna. Instead, what came out of her mouth was a caring suggestion.

Jasper looked at Wendy and asked, "Is there nothing you want to ask me?"

"Not really." Wendy sat back on the bar chair and opened her laptop with a blank expression on her face,

"There's no way a man like you would lack flirty women by your side, even my dad told me that."

Wendy smiled confidently and said, "But I trust you. I trust that you won't betray me, right?"

Despite Wendy's choice of words, Jasper still heard the slight hint of a threat in her tone.

At that, Jasper smiled dumbly and agreed, "Yes! Of course not!"

He turned without hesitation and left. Time to take a bath!

Life at the Top Chapter 345

It was evening by the time Dawson returned.

Anna had to prepare for the fashion show the following day at Waterhoof City while Henry had some family friends to entertain on behalf of the Law family.

As such, Jasper left them alone and went to dinner with Dawson, Wendy, and Julian in tow.

They found a simple restaurant and ordered their food. Dawson turned to Jasper, saying, "You must be exhausted with how busy you've been lately."

Jasper smiled. "I'd rather be busy now while I'm still young. Having nothing to do, on the other hand, makes me feel uncomfortable."

Dawson smiled. "Men at your age should indeed put their focus on work. That's how I started too. Don't worry, I'll watch over other things for you."

Jasper poured Dawson a glass of wine. "I feel pretty bad about what happened with Uncle Yapp."

Dawson waved his hand dismissively. "Don't worry about it. We've been friends for decades, I know what kind of person he is. Not to mention, if we're looking at this more realistically, he did suffer quite a bit this time but he has earned more from this.

"In this case, he should be thanking you instead... All he did was praise you when I visited him in the hospital. You might as well be some divine being to him at this point."

Jasper smiled. "I've already smoothed the incident over, and even if there are still some loose ends to tie, I don't think he'll be in the crossfire anymore."

Dawson nodded and spoke warmly, "Tell me if there's anything I can help you with. I might not be able to help much when it comes to contacts in Swallow Capital, but I promise I won't just stand by and watch."

Jasper did not reject his help and thanked him seriously. "I will."

After dinner, Dawson suddenly turned to Jasper. "There's a supermarket conference I have to attend tomorrow and people in charge of large chain supermarkets within the country will be there. It's more or less a chance to expand your circle of contacts, so how about you come with me tomorrow?"

Jasper nodded.

"Are you coming with, Wendy?" Jasper turned to ask.

Wendy shook her head. "I've applied for Swallow Capital University's MBA seminar and it's the opening ceremony tomorrow. I'll be busy the next two days."

MBA was also known as Masters of Business Administration. To have such a masters at this age was a great advantage.

However, it was also far from cheap. Especially when it was Swallow Capital University's MBA seminar. It cost almost one million a year for tuition fees alone.

Not that the cost mattered to Jasper and Wendy.

In addition, since seminars like this were expensive, those who applied for one had to go through a stern screening. Those who did get accepted were a new level of promising talents in society.

These 'classmates' were all undoubtedly valuable contacts to have.

Jasper exclaimed in shock, “MBA? I see. It’d be nice to sit in and listen, but you have to be careful. Some men like to sit in just for the sake of having something to brag about and you never know what tricks they have up their sleeves.”

Jasper’s stern expression did not look like he was joking. Wendy smiled and answered, “Don’t worry, I know what to do.”

The following day, Anna left for Waterhoof City early in the morning. Jasper wanted to send her off, but she had left long before he arrived and without a goodbye.

Henry stayed up late entertaining guests and was completely passed-out drunk. He continued to sleep past noon for he had more entertaining to do in the afternoon. As such, Jasper left him alone again today.

Such tasks were the rich kids’ version of ‘serious work’.

Jasper got Julian to follow Wendy as she went to enroll at Swallow Capital University, while he followed Dawson to the supermarket conference.

The conference was held on the executive conference floor in a five-star hotel.

As it was a conference for a nationwide industry, it had to be sophisticated enough.

A member of the staff from the organizing party led the entire way and Jasper got a grasp of Dawson’s status in the supermarket industry.

The two entered the hotel, and after Dawson’s identity was revealed, a man who appeared to be the person in charge immediately rushed over. He handed them the two qualification certificates for the conference. Then, he led Jasper and Dawson upstairs.

Life at the Top Chapter 346

Lights shone brightly in the conference hall, and there was a podium at the very front. Around the room were buffet-style tables for refreshments and there were waiters all around the hall for guests to request help from.

“Quite the number of people are in attendance for the conference this time. Even the owners and senior executives of private state-owned and joined venture chainstores like Kaymaroon, Carrefour, Somer Resources, TR-Mart, and Somer United Stores will be here today.”

Dawson turned to tell Jasper before they walked through the door.

“Is something big about to happen to the industry? Why else would there be such a grand conference?”

Jasper knew that for at least 15 years until online shopping completely monopolized people’s expenses, the supermarket industry had always been thriving.

Moreover, its unique business model guaranteed a large amount of cash flow to the supermarket industry. Supermarkets were the only business that had creditors but not debtors.

It was a promising industry.

However, Jasper did not want to dabble in this industry for now as every industry had its own specialized techniques and Jasper did not do things unless he was absolutely certain of its results.

All he felt now was pure curiosity.

Dawson smiled. "I heard that they're deciding to develop a standard within the industry for everyone to abide by."

While Jasper did not work in the supermarket Industry, he had dabbled in similar industries and immediately understood what this so-called standard referred to.

It was essentially a binding curse bigwigs wanted to give their industries so that they could benefit by gathering as many resources for themselves.

"They wish," Jasper replied faintly, not rooting for it.

Developing standards within an industry was something that required the discussion of the entire country. Competitors should not be allowed to play judge at all.

Dawson smiled noncommittally. "My thoughts exactly."

As they spoke, the two entered the conference hall.

Dawson's arrival had brought over a small wave of guests.

"You're finally here, Dawson. I heard that you've been doing great with your real estate business lately. I almost thought that you wouldn't come since the supermarket industry is on a way smaller scale," a middle-aged man who approached them laughed while speaking.

Dawson smiled and walked over. He reached out to shake the person's hand. "I started off with the supermarket industry, so how could I let go of it just like that? There's no way I'd miss this conference."

"Here, let me introduce you. This is Jasper, my daughter Wendy's boyfriend.

"This is Mr. Chris Quarles! He's one of the big shots in our industry, Jasper. You might want to acquaint yourself."

Under Chris' curious gaze, Jasper reached out humbly and greeted, "Hello, Mr. Quarles."

Chris reached out to shake Jasper's hand. "Not bad. You have promising talent, young man."

Jasper was a generation below his and still young, so Chris did not focus too much time on him. The fact that Chris greeted him politely already spoke volumes.

He turned to crack a joke with Dawson. "Your angelic daughter already has her marriage partner decided, Dawson? My son's still in high school, though. I'd ask you to reconsider him if he wasn't so young."

Dawson replied calmly, "I'll let the young ones decide this for themselves. Plus, Jasper fits right into my requirements."

Seeing how Dawson favored Jasper, Chris glanced at the latter again but changed the subject.

His smile fell as he leaned toward Dawson worriedly. "I got wind of what's happening, Dawson. It's not in our favor at all."

Chris had just finished speaking when a burst of powerful laughter boomed from behind.

"If it isn't Dawson from Schuler Group! I heard you almost got scammed by a few hundred million? I told you, didn't I? We've got to know how much we're worth and don't dabble in things we don't understand. Look at you, why won't you listen? What's with all this real estate business? No one's going to pity you when you make a loss, you know."

Life at the Top Chapter 347

By the time such targeting words were said, the person saying them had arrived in front of Dawson as well.

Dressed in a black suit from a sophisticated brand, his hair was slicked back without one strand amiss. One glance was all it took to tell that he was a very successful middle-aged man.

He had very prominent features, the most impressionable ones being the sharp and defined brows which added a tint of fierceness and frost.

Jasper did not need Dawson to introduce him.

This was Sebastian Walker, the owner of Kaymaroon.

Both TR-Mart and Somer Resources, renowned supermarkets in the future, had yet to make a big name for themselves in the year 2000. The largest supermarket during this time was Kaymaroon.

At the topic of Kaymaroon, Sebastian was indeed an able man.

Born a nobody, Sebastian single-handedly turned Kaymaroon into the country's biggest supermarket chain in the year 2000 from a mere city workshop.

Moreover, the popular commercial complex concept after 2010 was also first introduced into the country by Sebastian from abroad.

However, Sebastian's conceitedness had made him neglect the fact that the country and its citizens' spending was far inferior to what the situation overseas was. Thus, his advanced concept had only fallen short in the end.

The price he paid was Kaymaroon being the first supermarket defeated by online shopping.

According to history, Sebastian was currently at the pinnacle of his career, so it made sense that he was very proud of himself.

Against Sebastian's harsh words, Dawson showed no sign of a reaction.

"You seem to be very interested in my development, Chairman Walker."

Sebastian laughed aloud and replied, "Of course, you're my old rival. How can I not worry about whether a loser like you is enjoying the last years of his life?"

Dawson's eyes slightly narrowed as he replied calmly, "Thank you for your concern, but you should take care of yourself."

Sebastian's forced smile fell and he suddenly turned to Jasper. Realizing that there was nothing special about Jasper, Sebastian smirked mockingly. "What's this? Did Chairman Schuler bring someone new over as well?"

"Don't you know to greet people when you see them?"

Jasper looked straight at Sebastian. Evidently aware of the fight between the two men, Jasper merely replied, "My apologies, but I don't know you."

Sebastian burst into laughter. "I'm the host of this conference. What are you doing here if you don't recognize me, then?"

"Sebastian! Jasper is someone I brought over. If this is what you believe, then there's no need for us to be here at your conference!"

Dawson suddenly spoke and moved as if pulling Jasper out the door.

Chris, who had been chuckling bitterly by the side, suddenly persuaded by saying, “Dawson, hey, come on. Let’s not be so rash, okay? We’re here to attend a conference, it’s a good thing. Relax, okay, let’s calm down.”

Pulling Dawson to sit as he spoke, Chris then turned to say to Sebastian darkly. “How about you greet the other guests, Mr. Walker? We’ll talk later?”

Sebastian scoffed. “What big shot are you pretending to be in front of me when you’re just a loser who has been hiding for the past ten years?”

“How do you even have the shame to bring someone new here? Do you not have any dignity? Ever thought about how his impression of you will shatter when you make a fool of yourself in public again?”

Sebastian then turned to leave.

Dawson’s expression was blank, but his eyes were icy.

Chris smiled bitterly and comforted him. “You know that Walker is just arrogant by nature, Dawson. Just ignore him.

“A lot of people are for this industry standard and those of us against it make up the minority. There’s no way we can stop him if you leave.”

Jasper suddenly spoke, “We can stay to have a look.”

Life at the Top Chapter 348

Dawson slowly nodded his head after hearing Jasper putting it that way. He let out a sigh and said with a bitter smile, “Actually, ten years ago, I got into a fight with Sebastian Walker. It’s just that I ended up losing that fight.”

Chris Quarles backed him up by adding, “It wasn’t actually a loss. In that fight, you actually showed your imposing momentum.”

As he was saying, Chris spun around and said to Jasper, “Ten years ago, no one ruled over the supermarket industry in the southeast province yet. The Schuler family’s supermarket and Sebastian’s Kaymaroon, which were the only two supermarket companies that entered the southeast province at the same time, competed with each other for the top spot.

“Both of them wanted to take over this huge market and keep it to themselves. Hence, the two companies could not stop a fight from breaking out between them.

“The competition had been a cruel one. When it was very aggressive, both parties were basically losing in order to take control over the market. Your father-in-law was very kind and was a steady man in battle. He was very tolerant of the suppliers, and that’s why many people supported him.

“But Sebastian was different. He was more domineering. Basically, he’s the kind of person that says he’s the only one who can rule the world. Therefore, not many people supported him.

“When your father-in-law was about to emerge victorious, a big boss from Swallow Capital suddenly took out a huge sum of funds to support Kaymaroon. With this, your father-in-law could no longer win against them and lost that battle.

“It was very unfortunate for your father-in-law. Ever since that time, he had never shown up in the market within the province. If not, no one could say for sure who will be the head of the current supermarket business within the country.”

Dawson said with a smile, “Those are the old stories. Why bother mentioning them?”

Jasper spun around and asked Dawson, “Is it because Sebastian threatened you?”

Dawson sighed and said, "You can't say that he threatened me. I'll just put it this way. It was an agreement in a bet. Whoever lost the bet will not be allowed to expand their market."

"But such an agreement doesn't take effect under the name of law, right?" said Jasper, frowning.

Dawson said with a smile, "Of course not. But I'm a man of pride. Besides, I'm sick of it as well. Keeping the market going on within the province is more than enough to keep the Schuler family alive, and I also get to spend more time to keep Wendy company too."

Jasper nodded and said with his gaze looking dark, "I'll avenge you!"

Before Dawson even spoke a word, Chris laughed. "Young man, do you know what kind of person Sebastian is? Do you know about the huge support he has? Ten years ago, your father-in-law was already no match for him. Things are still the same now. Your father-in-law couldn't handle him back then, what more you?"

"It's a good thing to be ambitious, but young man, you should be more down-to-earth and hardworking."

Jasper could make out that Chris and Dawson had a very good relationship. Chris said those comments with kind intentions, but it was not pleasant hearing them.

Jasper was beyond the state where someone could persuade him with just words. At that moment, he merely let out a smile to show his gratitude to Mr. Quarles.

Chris had been doing business his entire life, and it was impossible for him not to realize that Jasper did not heed his words at all. He shook his head, feeling that the youngsters nowadays were way too arrogant. However, he did not want to waste a single breath talking about it.

After all, Jasper could be Dawson's son-in-law in the future. He had nothing to do with them anyway. He would not stop Jasper if he wanted to boast or get himself humiliated before Sebastian.

While they were talking earlier, the forum had officially begun.

Sebastian, as the leader and also the organizer, would naturally be the first to give his speech. The entire forum was centered around him.

After spewing a whole load of rubbish for nearly half an hour, Sebastian cleared his throat and said, "I believe everyone has already gone through the contents of the standard for the nation's supermarket industry that I gave out earlier.

"I dare say this standard will definitely be great news that will benefit the industry!

"In the standard, I've set up a department with a committee to manage our supermarket industry. I vote myself for the position of chairperson of the committee.

"Now, let us start voting. This standard is suggested by me, Sebastian Walker, and naturally, I should be the chairperson. Everyone, please vote for me, thank you!"

As soon as Sebastian was done with his speech, a huge group of people whom he had bribed earlier immediately voiced out their support.

The situation looked good for him.

Chris and his gang who did not support him all sat on their seats with awful looks on their faces. However, no one dared to take the lead.

Just when Sebastian felt that everything was settled, a clear voice was heard ringing across the entire scene.

“I object to it!”

Life at the Top Chapter 349

”Object?”

Once the voice of objection was heard, it immediately attracted everyone’s attention. Everyone was aware that Sebastian’s status in this industry was very high.

Only a handful of people dared to go against him when he spoke.

Including Sebastian, nobody expected someone to be so daring at that moment to jump out and object.

‘Isn’t this just like wanting to slap Sebastian on the face in public?’

Exasperated, Sebastian looked over only to find out the one who stood up to talk was the young man beside Dawson.

Suddenly, Sebastian’s expression became dark.

The scene at that moment was very quiet. Everyone was sneaking a peek at Jasper, including Sebastian who was wearing a very awful expression.

Most of the people were looking forward to seeing how things would turn out.

Amidst the crowd, Chris came to Dawson and said into his ear with shock on his face, “Is this brat out of his mind? Why don’t you stop him?”

Dawson smiled calmly, and said, “Why should I stop him?”

It was as if it was the first time Chris was getting to know Dawson. “Judging from Sebastian’s temper, do you think he’ll let Jasper off the hook? Isn’t he your daughter’s boyfriend? Are you just going to watch him dig his own grave?”

‘Even the Turner family was forced to step down by Jasper, what more Sebastian who’s alone?’

Dawson was feeling thrilled, but his face did not show signs of it.

At that moment, Sebastian spoke.

“Dawson is the one who brought you here, right? You’re just a brat who hasn’t even gone through puberty. Your seniors don’t dare say a word, yet you think you have the right to talk?”

His comment immediately exposed Jasper’s identity. Everyone was surprised, and following then, everyone’s gazes on Dawson became ambiguous.

The conflict between Dawson and Sebastian was not a secret in the industry. Those who were in the industry for some time would know about it. More so, those who could come to participate in this conference were all big bosses in the supermarket industry.

“I’m representing Schuler Group, so why is it that I don’t have the right to talk? Since it’s a conference for the industry, then as one of the companies in the industry, it’s only natural that Schuler Group has the qualification to express their ideas.”

Jasper raised his head and looked straight at Sebastian who was on the podium and said with an appropriate attitude.

“Could it be that Chairman Walker is so domineering that you won’t even allow anyone to talk? Since that’s the case, if you really succeed in being this so-called chairperson, aren’t you going to be a tyrant in the future?”

The words Jasper said had bruised his ego. Sebastian's expression changed drastically.

Initially, those who were against him were already not few, but at this moment, Jasper was still fanning the flames.

Subconsciously, he glanced over at the scene. Indeed, most of the people had a hesitant expression plastered on their faces.

Sebastian took in a deep breath and said through gritted teeth, "Don't go talking nonsense. Of course, I'll allow others to talk. Besides, I'll be glad to accept good ideas. As long as it's a good opinion, I'll accept it."

"Then please accept my opinion. I object to this industry's standard because I think it's not going to benefit the development of the supermarket industry. Besides, this is just a trick for you to monopolize this industry."

Jasper's voice could even make the ground tremble.

However, no one expected anything good out of him.

They all just thought of Jasper as a silly brat who did not think things through before making a move.

Chris also shook his head while smiling in mockery.

"This silly brat. Is he saying that we, who have lived almost half of our lifetimes, are not able to see through the scheme as thoroughly as a young lad like him?" Chris tilted his body and said to the chairman of another supermarket company beside him.

"Youngsters are that easily triggered. He's too impulsive." That person shook his head and agreed to Chris' words.

Life at the Top Chapter 350

”Sigh, soon, he’s going to pay the price for his arrogance and foolishness. Sebastian will definitely not let him off the hook,” said Chris calmly.

“Utter rubbish!” Sebastian slammed on the table hard. He stood up like a furious male lion.

Sebastian roared as he pointed at Jasper, “Who do you think you are? Back when I was running my business, you were still in diapers. Since when is it your turn to be pointing fingers at me and criticizing me?”

At that moment, Dawson stood up as well and said coldly, “Sebastian, please mind your words. I’m still standing here well and alive. I’ll not tolerate you bullying the younger ones.”

Sebastian laughed out loud and said, “Oh my, after blasting the young one, now it’s the elder’s turn to show up? Dawson, do you really think you’re some big shot? Even with that little capability you got there you weren’t my opponent ten years back. Just how courageous are you now to go against me?”

“Believe it or not, tomorrow, I’ll just enter the market in your province and drag the entire Schuler Group down. How difficult do you think it will be for me to do so, huh?”

Dawson’s icy cold gaze fell on Sebastian as he said, “Feel free to test it out. If I even frown, I’ll not call myself a Schuler!”

Sebastian sneered. He got down from the podium and walked his way to Dawson. He said coldly, “Hey Schuler, I guess you really haven’t learned your lesson. It looks like the lesson I taught you ten years ago wasn't terrible enough for you, right?"

As Sebastian was saying, he chuckled before continuing, "Do you know why your wife suddenly died of a heart attack ten years ago?"

His comment made Dawson's eyes burst with light as he kept staring at Sebastian. Judging from his body that was trembling slightly, Dawson's emotions were very much agitated at this moment. It was just that he was refraining himself.

Jasper, who was listening beside him, became serious as well.

All this while, he knew that Wendy was raised by a single parent. Regardless of it being his past life when they both had never communicated with each other or in this current life where they were both together, he had never heard Wendy mention a word about her mother.

Dawson had never mentioned his wife as well.

All he knew was that Wendy's mother had passed away a long time ago.

Jasper did not ask as well. After all, it was a very depressing incident for the father and daughter.

However, looking at the current situation, it seemed that the death of Wendy's mother that year was rather suspicious.

After letting out a burst of mystifying laughter, Sebastian said proudly and arrogantly in the ears of Dawson and Jasper with a voice that only the three of them could hear.

"Didn't you find it weird? All the while, your wife only had a mild cardiovascular malformation. Living up to 60 or 70 years old shouldn't be a problem, but then her illness deteriorated and ultimately, she passed away.

“That’s because I summoned a few men. Initially, I thought of just scaring her, but who knew she f*cking had a heart attack as well. Once she heard the fake news that I told her about you meeting with an accident during a job outstation, coupled with the fact that she was being kidnapped, she really got terrified and died on the spot!

“If it wasn’t for that, I think it wouldn’t have been so easy for me to win against you. However, even the gods were standing on my side, hahahaha!”

Sebastian’s words and laughter were like a spell, unlocking the puzzle Dawson had been struggling himself with for the past ten years. At the same time, it lit up the flames of rage within him as well.

“Sebastian!”

Dawson, who was so mad that he had lost all rationality, roared. He extended his hands vigorously and grabbed Sebastian’s collar. Raising his fist, he was about to swing his punch.

However, given that Sebastian was so daring to blurt out such a comment meant that he had come well prepared. The security guards beside him immediately rushed over and halted Dawson with all their force.

Dawson kept struggling. Due to the rage and agitation, his complexion was unusually red. Both his eyes were engorged with vessels. He opened them wide while staring at Sebastian as if he was about to engulf him.

Even though he was mentally well prepared, Sebastian was still shocked to see Dawson’s current look.

Subconsciously, he took a step back and ordered a few security guards to restrain Dawson. A few people then surrounded both Dawson and Jasper.

After adjusting his collar, Sebastian looked at Dawson and said with an arrogant smile, “Do you know why I’m only willing to disclose it to you now?”

“Because I want you to know that ten years ago, you couldn’t win against me, and right now, you’re still a piece of trash in my eyes!”

Sebastian raised his hand and pointed at Jasper as he was saying. He then added with a cold smile, “Young man, do you see that? This is what you call tactics. You’re just a brainless kid who stepped out without knowing anything. Don’t you know that you’re being used by your father-in-law?”

Jasper gave off a scary gaze. He glanced at Sebastian and tried his best to talk in a calm tone, “To be honest, you’re the first person to make me this mad. I’ll surely serve you well.

“I’ll make you wish you were never born!”

Life at the Top Chapter 351

Jasper's comment changed everyone's view of him.

In their opinions, Jasper, as Dawson's future son-in-law, would not even have the right to enter the conference if it was not for Dawson.

However, right now, even Dawson was unable to do anything to Sebastian. What more Jasper?

'Still being able to say such ruthless comments when both parties have demonstrated a huge gap in their capabilities only means that this is a brainless performance.'

Amongst the crowd, Chris shook his head. He thought to himself, 'Dawson has always been a clever person so why did he get himself a stupid son-in-law?'

As for Sebastian, his gaze was dark. He stared at Jasper and let out a creepy smile, looking just like an emperor on his throne listening to the provocation of a beggar.

"Hey b*stard, who do you think you are?" Sebastian smirked while saying it.

"Even your father-in-law is just trash in my opinion, let alone you? If I were you, I'd just advise your father-in-law to know his standing and not go against me. Or else, the golden cash cow you've searched so hard for might just be destroyed by me.

"You really don't fear anything. Isn't it better to stay in your house and guard that tiny piece of land of yours? You'll still gain tens of millions of profits annually. It's more than enough for you to live your life. Why do you insist on taking the limelight?!"

Dawson stared at Sebastian coldly. His eyes gave off a sense of franticness and revealed a grudge that went all the way deep into his bones. “Sebastian, I, Dawson Schuler, swear that I’ll make you wish you were never born! I’ll make sure to avenge Linda!”

Sebastian laughed out loud and said, “You’re just a f*cking piece of trash to me, yet you still want to seek revenge? It’s better if you use this opportunity and go back and pack your stuff. Ensure all the cash in your bank account is secure. Perhaps you’ll still be able to live your last days in a better way as well!”

“I, Sebastian Walker, will keep to my words. Once the industry standard is approved, the supermarket under you will immediately be the target of attack of the entire industry.

“Also, regarding your supermarkets within the province, even though I’m not interested in them, I believe others are. It just so happens that I can give them out to everyone as a gift from me.”

As Sebastian said, he shifted his gaze over to Jasper. He chuckled and said, “Do you see this, young man? Your useless father-in-law can only roar away, but what about it? With just a simple manner, I’ll be able to corner him to a state he can’t counter-attack.

“That’s all there is to your father-in-law, so what about you? Right now, have you come to realize just how cruel this community is? The world of the upper-class is way more dangerous than you think. The rich father-in-law in your eyes is nothing but a tiny ant.

“You’re even thinking of making me wish that I was never born? What a joke. How many years has it been since I met such a foolish person? Why don’t you look at yourself in the mirror? What a joke!”

As Sebastian was saying, he squinted his eyes and glanced at the surrounding crowd. He was using Dawson and Jasper as examples, punishing them so he could warn everyone.

Only in this way would he be able to take control of others, and in the meantime, he could proceed with his plan smoothly!

“You’re Dawson’s son-in-law, but don’t ever follow in his footsteps.”

Sebastian revealed an evil smile while saying it. He stared at Jasper and said thoughtfully, “Take good care of your wife, don’t let her follow her mother’s footsteps. If that time ever arrives, it’ll be too late to regret!”

After Sebastian finished talking, he lifted his head and laughed wildly. He was utterly arrogant.

The people surrounding them exchanged terrified looks with each other. They were all feeling depressed at the same time.

Even though they hated Sebastian’s dominance, they also pitied Dawson and Jasper for what they were experiencing. However, at this moment, they could only sigh internally.

It was because none of them dared step out and defend them both at that moment as it would also mean going against Sebastian.

Nothing good would follow it.

Chris also sighed. He looked at Jasper and noticed that the young man’s face did not carry a trace of remorse or any horrified emotions. His expression appeared calm.

“Could he be so mad that he’s gone crazy?” Chris shook his head. “He’s still too young. He needs to gain more experience.”

It was as if Sebastian was done showing off, so he said with a cold smile, “Still hoping that I’ll wish I was never born? Wait for a few more days and we’ll see who will have that wish! Stupid!”

After saying it, Sebastian spun around and returned to the podium for the meeting.

However, at that moment, Jasper suddenly pushed the few security guards who were blocking him with much force. He sprinted ahead, and his body pounced forth like a cheetah.

The distance between Sebastian and Jasper was only three to four meters apart. Jasper rushed over in a blink of an eye.

He raised his hand, clenched it into a fist, and threw his punch.

Life at the Top Chapter 352

All of the moves were done smoothly.

That heavy punch smashed right on Sebastian's terrified face.

Before Sebastian could even let out a shriek, his entire body moved backward and his face tilted to the side after getting punched. Blood spat out from his mouth, splattering on the people beside him and on their meticulously custom-made suits, leaving striking marks on them.

Sebastian dropped to the floor, and only then did he let out a terrible shriek and roar.

Chaos suddenly broke out within the crowd of people. A few security guards who had recovered from the shock quickly pounced and grabbed hold of Jasper with everything they had.

However, even with that measure being taken, Jasper still managed to land a few kicks on Sebastian's body.

The crowd was thrown into havoc, and amidst the noise, Sebastian's roar was heard. "You son of a b*tch, I want you dead so badly! I want you dead!"

Jasper freed himself from the restrictions of the few security guards. Seeing that they were still attempting to surround him, Jasper gave them a cold glare.

"Get lost!"

It was a low roar, yet Jasper had demonstrated his dominance. Ever since being reincarnated, his aura revealed that he was at the top of the hierarchy and asserted the power of his wealth that was worth billions.

In other words, one could easily feel the domineering aura from him even if he was not triggered.

What was more, Jasper was currently exasperated.

The few security guards looked at each other. They did not know why, but they felt frustrated even though they were dealing with someone who was almost the same age as them.

It was as if they would end up in deep trouble if they disobeyed him.

The security guards gulped their saliva and hesitated, not having the courage to move forth.

Jasper's icy cold gaze then landed on Sebastian.

Sebastian had been disgraced, his face covered with blood. His left cheek was swollen after being punched by Jasper, while the other side of his face was covered with a red bloodstain. He also had a posterior molar tooth that fell out after the beating.

From the few kicks Jasper inflicted upon Sebastian's body, his suit that he cared so much about was all full of shoe marks now.

Sebastian was currently looking even worse than a beggar who failed to snatch some food. At this moment, he was far from keeping his elegant composure.

Sebastian's body was fumbling. After entering the industry for tens of years, he had never endured such a beating.

It was done in the public's eye too! 'How am I going to face the public in the future?'

Jasper did not continue going forth to beat up Sebastian.

At the end of the day, the business world had its way of settling grudges and arguments. Brawling was just because of a spark of emotional agitation.

Jasper's intention was not to make Sebastian lose his pride nor suffer.

He wanted him to lose his fame and fortune as well as everything else he had!

At that moment, Dawson also pushed away the person who was yanking him and stepped into the scene.

Dawson looked at Sebastian delightfully and said to Jasper, "Let's go. About the issue that's coming up, we'll have a thorough discussion about it later when we return."

Jasper nodded, and together with Dawson, they spun around to leave.

The other people dared not block them.

As for Sebastian, he was staring at the back figures of the two men. His eyes were gleaming with deep-rooted cruelty and grudges.

“Just you guys wait and see! I’ll deal with you guys till you’re dead! I’ll make you both kneel before me and beg me!”

Life at the Top Chapter 353

After exiting the hotel, Dawson pulled Jasper over and casually found a stall to have supper.

Just like that, the father-in-law whose net worth was over tens of billions and his son-in-law casually sat at the stall selling supper and started drinking beer. They ate cheap grilled meat too.

Jasper knew that Dawson was not in a pleasant mood, so he did not say much and got the boss of the stall to serve some peanuts and pickles that need not be cooked. He also ordered a dozen bottles of cold beer.

Accompanying the father-in-law and getting drunk together was one of the things a qualified son-in-law should do.

They opened up the beer and gulped down half of the bottle. Dawson held onto the bottle and hit it hard on the oily table.

He loosened up his necktie and unbuttoned one of the buttons on his shirt collar. Dawson lifted his eyes and said to Jasper with a bitter smile, “Was I really that embarrassing today?”

Jasper shook his head and said seriously, “Not at all, you’re the man!”

Dawson smiled and said, “Wendy’s mother, Linda, had followed me since she was 19 years old. She was the daughter of a lecturer in a university. Back then, I was just a poor brat from the village with nothing.

“But it was nothing like those stories. Her whole family supported her decision and treated me very well. Besides, the very first fund I had for my business was also provided by her dad. He took out the money with his salary and savings to aid me.

“Even though Linda was born with congenital cardiovascular malformation, it wouldn’t affect her daily life. The doctor mentioned that there was no cure to this disease but she could at least be able to live up to 70 years old.”

At that time, the boss of the stall served the grilled meat. Jasper took two bites of it. Then, he lifted his bottle of beer and clinked it with Dawson’s before drinking. “It’s a wonderful story.”

Dawson drank all of the remaining beer in one shot and let out a long sigh before saying, “Yeah, it’s wonderful. Even though Linda’s parents were very supportive of us, their relatives and Linda’s pursuers and friends all looked down on me.

“With Linda’s status, she could definitely find a better husband. For the first few years after our marriage, all of her friends were living much better lives than us.

“In order not to let Linda feel that she was having it worse than others, I worked my *ss off to earn more money. It was then that I started to neglect her.”

Dawson’s hand was clenching the bottle of beer. His fingertips became white because he was exerting too much strength.

“Ten years ago, at the most crucial time when I was competing with Sebastian, I lost everything in a single night. All the outsiders were saying it was because Sebastian obtained the financial support of a big boss from Swallow Capital.

“But I know that it was only part of the reason. The most important thing is that Linda got a heart attack and she just passed away without any prior symptoms, leaving behind me and Wendy who was only very young at the time.”

Dawson’s gaze was filled with sufferings and remembrance. “Ever since Linda married me, she had never once lived a happy day. In the end, she just left the world like that. It was because of her passing’s impact on me that I failed to win against Sebastian.

“I’ve thought it through. As a man, we shouldn’t have the right to be talking about our careers if we can’t even take good care of our wives and children. Hence, I’m now placing more of my attention on Wendy. She’s my only hope.”

Dawson’s body slightly trembled when he was saying that. His tone started to sound like he was choking. “All this while, Wendy and I thought that the heart attack was just an accident that occurred coincidentally, but now I know that it’s all because of Sebastian. He was the one behind this entire incident!

“He ordered people to kidnap Linda. Linda, who was already frightened, was then told that I was met with an accident. How could she have accepted such a huge shock? It was no wonder that at the time, Linda’s main attending doctor said that before she died, she had suffered from a huge shock and torture. I couldn’t think things through at that point!

“But now I understand. I’ve thought through it. It was all because I was a fool who wanted to find success in my career, who self-proclaimed to be smarter than others, and who boasted about having never been defeated!”

Smack!

Dawson raised his hand and gave himself a tight slap.

Subconsciously, Jasper wanted to stop Dawson’s hand. When he raised his eyes, however, he saw the man who would never furrow his brows and always looked like nothing was able to defeat him with his face covered in tears.

It was not an embarrassing thing for a man to cry.

He was strong. It was just that the incident had triggered him to be depressed.

Seeing Dawson in such a miserable state, Jasper's heart was dwelling with a sense of respect for him that he never had before.

He was a man who had lost his wife ten years ago, a man with a net worth of billions but never showed off.

He was a man who was able to feel regret and suffered because of his late wife who passed away ten years ago.

Life at the Top Chapter 354

Regardless of anything else, Jasper felt it was all worth showing some respect for.

“That is why, Jasp, you have to remember. As a man, you must protect your family well. Regardless of how tired you are or how you're suffering, having a complete family and making your wife and children happy is what defines a successful man. Don't be a failure like me!

“I'm leaving Wendy to you, so you must treat her well.

“Uncle Schuler, I'll take revenge on your behalf. About your daughter, I'll treasure her forever,” Jasper looked at Dawson with a serious look and said softly.

Dawson started at Jasper, absent-minded. After some time, he suddenly laughed out loud. He wiped off his tears and said, “Let's drink!”

“Let’s drink!”

Jasper discarded his bottle and picked up a new one. The two men held their bottles of beer like they were holding glasses and drank.

That night, Dawson got drunk and was a mess after their drinking session. He passed out cold.

It was Jasper who piggybacked him all the way to the hotel room.

Wendy, who came back early, was puzzled. Seeing Dawson drunk and in that state made her anxiously run to him to look after him.

“Did you guys go for a conference or for a drinking session? My dad’s drunk to this state and why do you carry a strong scent of alcohol as well?”

Wendy took a warm towel and wiped Dawson’s face as she tilted her head to lecture Jasper.

Jasper spun around and headed toward the washroom to wash his face. After feeling slightly refreshed, he said, “We met a few old friends and our dad got excited, so he drank quite a lot.”

Jasper purposely emphasized the words ‘our dad’ with a teasing expression.

Wendy’s little ears twitched when she heard the words ‘our dad’. Her cheeks noticeably flushed red.

“What nonsense are you muttering about?!” Wendy took the towel and jumped up, glaring at Jasper as if she was blaming him.

After what had happened that day, Jasper’s emotions were unstable as well. At that moment, he saw the gentle Wendy under the lights. He suddenly stretched out his hands and held the shy lady in his arms, hugging her.

Wendy's body was stiffened. Even though she was shy, ladies were born with a much more sensitive sense. Instinctively, she noticed that Jasper had something going on in his mind.

Wendy let down her guard and tried her best to use her gentleness to comfort Jasper. She said gently, "Is something troubling you? You can tell me."

Jasper smiled and shook his head.

He did not want to reveal the truth to Wendy. That was the agreement he had made with Dawson.

After all, ten years ago, Wendy had already endured a huge shock once. Now, if he were to tell her that it was all an evil scheme and her mother's death was caused by someone else, it would be too big of a burden for her to endure. It would be too cruel to her.

"You should take care of things around here first. I'll head back for a moment," said Jasper softly as he released Wendy.

Wendy blinked her eyes and nodded.

She was a bright lady and did not question any further. Every man would have their own burdens. All she had to do was provide him with warmth when he needed it and not pester him with questions.

As he walked out of the room and locked the door, Jasper's smile on his face suddenly vanished. It was replaced with a quiet yet cold expression. Flames of rage were dwelling within him.

Julian, who was guarding outside the room, came over with a cold gaze. As a professional, it only took him one glance to know that Jasper was all set to lay a finger on someone.

"Who is it, Brother Laine?" Julian asked calmly, giving off a murderous aura.

Jasper tapped on Julian's shoulder and said with a smile, "You don't have to make a move for now. It'll only soil your hands going against scumbags, and that will just make them look like someone of a higher status."

Life at the Top Chapter 355

After returning to the room, Jasper thought it through.

'It's not going to be easy going against a supermarket company like Kaymaroon.

'The important thing is its size which places it in a very cumbersome position.

'If it was smaller, then I could just squash it immediately.

'If its volume is any larger and is listed, then by just using capital means and a few days of tradings, it'll be enough to take them down.'

However, Kaymaroon was not lacking in any cash. Besides, the supermarkets could be found in many other cities and the only way to defeat them in the shortest time frame would be by using an unusual method.

Jasper's first call was made to Jim.

Even though Jim was still in the hospital, he had almost recovered.

After understanding Jasper's intention, Jim did not give it another thought and immediately gave his word that he would present all the business information regarding Kaymaroon in front of Jasper.

“Actually, with such a huge company, it’s easy for us to investigate because their territory is very wide and they’ve communicated with lots of people. It’ll be a piece of cake to check on them. One night’s time is all I need.

“On the other hand, those small companies from small areas will be much more troublesome because they’re not famous and have only communicated with a limited amount of people.”

After listening to Jim’s explanation, Jasper nodded in astonishment.

Even though he possessed the memories from his previous life, it was just an advantage. At the end of the day, he was still a human and not some kind of god. There were still lots of industries that he was not familiar with.

For example, the industry of a business consulting company was very important, but in Jasper’s previous life, he was not involved in it at all. On the other hand, Jim was very familiar with the industry.

Jasper suddenly felt that he had made the right choice by investing in Jim. In the future, following the development of JW Real Estate, there would definitely be more enemies who would show up. Having Jim’s strength would allow him to have miraculous effects when handling most of the cases.

Besides, Jim had earned lots of money now and even taken over George’s company. It would only be a matter of time before he occupied the top position among similar industries in Swallow Capital.

The next morning when Jasper woke up, he was informed by Julian that someone from Jim’s company had been waiting for some time.

Jasper had the hotel serve breakfast and met up with the assistant chairman of Jim’s company while he was at it.

“Nice to meet you, Mr. Laine.”

The assistant chairman had a very polite attitude. It was obvious that he had been reminded by Jim beforehand.

Jasper nodded and said, "Let's hear about the situation."

The assistant chairman presented a very thick folder of documents. After Jasper took out the documents from inside, he glanced through the information while listening to the assistant chairman's report.

"According to the information that we found, Kaymaroon currently has 123 supermarkets throughout the nation, excluding the six supermarkets that are under renovation and two other supermarkets that are undergoing a negotiation regarding investments.

"All these supermarkets are mostly located in the first and second-tier cities. Among them, 60% of the supermarkets are operating very well, 33% have a monthly revenue of more than 20 million, and only about 15% are making a loss.

"According to our professional estimation, the overall market value for Kaymaroon won't be less than four billion while the company's current financial flow is around 1.5 billion. Their monthly profit is about 40 million."

Jasper looked at the information, nodded, and said, "Not bad, the report is very professional and detailed."

Life at the Top Chapter 356

The assistant chairman wore a delighted expression and dared not delay a single moment.

“However, it’s not that Kaymaroon doesn’t have any problems. We found out that they’re facing a very high risk of getting themselves involved with a huge debt.

“First of all, each of their supermarkets closes their cyclical accounts with their suppliers every six months, which is four months more than the standard compared to other businesses of the same industry. Changing the period of each cycle to half a year is still in the midst of being approved by the public. Regarding this point, because of their large sales volume and strong ability to conduct sales, all the suppliers can only go along with it.

“Every half a year, they will have to spend at least two billion for the payment. According to our investigation, it’ll be time for them to make their payment after another half a month, at most.”

Jasper tapped on the documents while listening and said, “You’re saying that currently, the assets in Kaymaroon’s account are actually not adequate to make the payments to the suppliers? Even after taking into account all of the income from all the supermarkets for this coming half a month, they’re just barely managing?”

The assistant chairman nodded and said, “Basically that’s it. Also, they got a 600 million loan from Commercial Bank, which they have three years to pay back. Beginning next year will be their last term to pay back the remaining amount which is 220 million including interest.

“According to the data from the investigation, Kaymaroon also has a very serious debt to bear from the private loans they took. The total amount of it is still under investigation, but we can be sure it's more than 800 million, which is a very heavy burden."

"A company which has a market value of four billion turns out to have a debt of 1.4 billion, and from this amount, at least 800 million were taken from private loans with high interests. Sebastian really is one daredevil," said Jasper calmly.

"Initially, Kaymaroon was just a huge company with a strong ability to gain profits, but the main issue with the company lies with the person named Sebastian. He's a gambler. He's famous for being a brazen boss in Owl City. He goes to Owl City once a month. Each trip he makes, he either wins or loses billions of dollars."

Jasper's brow was slightly raised, and he circled the word 'gamble' on the information sheet.

"I remember he has someone backing him up back in Swallow Capital. Did you manage to look that up?" asked Jasper calmly.

Ten years ago, during the battle between Dawson and Sebastian, someone from Swallow Capital offered a helping hand to Sebastian by providing funds at the eleventh hour. Jasper would be sure to include that point in as well.

"I've looked into it."

The assistant chairman did not let Jasper down and said with a low voice, "It's mentioned on the very last page."

Jasper immediately flipped to the very last page of the document. He looked at the contents on it and an expression that no one expected to see was plastered on Jasper's face.

"The Combe family?! Hendrik Combe?!"

The assistant chairman nodded and said, “Hendrik and Sebastian have a relationship that no one is aware of. They’re brothers-in-law. Sebastian’s wife and Hendrik’s wife are siblings.

“Also, it was Sebastian’s nephew, Hector, who introduced him to Owl City. They both don’t just share a simple nephew-uncle relationship but they’re also gambling buddies. Or else, how would a brat from the village come to know about places like Owl City?”

After more than ten minutes, the assistant chairman left the hotel suite politely. After closing the door cautiously, he left the scene joyfully.

In the suite, Jasper gradually squinted his eyes and dialed Hector’s number.

After half an hour, Hector, with a perturbed look on his face, and Jacob slowly made their way to the entrance of the hotel room.

“Brother, Jasper is looking for us, but what’s the reason behind it? Haven’t we settled the grudge between us?”

“Even Erick Turner was squashed by him. I heard that it was Brad Turner who showed up in the end and paid huge compensation to Jasper. Only then was the issue resolved. I’m really scared of him now.”

Hector said with a teary face.

Jacob was calm and said, “You’re the one who he called. How am I supposed to know when you don’t even know the reason? Anyway, let’s just go in. Remember, we need to behave appropriately later. Don’t go around calling him by his name. You must greet him as Mr. Laine!”

As the brothers were talking, the sound of the hotel room door being knocked on was heard.

Life at the Top Chapter 357

Julian opened the door and the Combe siblings bowed to Julian with smiling faces.

As the second generation of a rich family, they were well aware that it was easy to meet up with the lord but the assistant beside the lord would be difficult to deal with. If they were to offend Julian, this bodyguard of Jasper's could easily speak ill of them in front of Jasper from time to time. That would be the worst case that they would be regretful of.

"Come in, Brother Laine is waiting for you guys."

Julian said it calmly and did not bother with the two of them.

Hector and Jacob dared not waste a single second and ran into the waiting area. They stood politely in front of Jasper and asked, "Nice to meet you, Mr. Laine."

Jasper spun around and looked at the siblings. 'I haven't seen them in a few days. They don't seem to be different but their attitudes have changed drastically.

'They suddenly have the desire to live now.'

"Are you guys so scared of me?" said Jasper playfully.

Hector smiled awkwardly and said, "To tell you the truth, Mr. Laine, we're slightly afraid."

Hector also added in a better manner, "Previously, us siblings, especially me, did not know our standings and offended you, Mr. Laine. Fortunately, Mr. Laine was generous enough to forgive us and let us off the hook. Now that we're meeting you again, we do feel a little scared."

Jasper smiled but did not doubt the sincerity of the two siblings.

“That’s right. As children of rich families, you have your targets set high up and are able to trample over others with the authority of your family background, but it’s also because of this that you’ll feel fear more than the ordinary person. You’ll even be able to see through things better.

“I have a small favor to request from you two. I believe you’ll be able to get it done properly.”

After listening to Jasper’s comments, both Hector and Jacob were delighted and sorrowful at the same time.

They were delighted because they were able to get on Jasper’s good side. Regardless of the consequences to themselves or their family, it was definitely a good thing.

At the same time, they were sorrowful because Jasper had requested them to do him a favor. ‘Regardless of how small the favor is, I don’t think it’ll truly be such a small favor?’

Given Jasper’s capability, they no longer dared to be suspicious of him.

It was just like what Jasper said. They would fear outstanding figures like Jasper more than the average person because they were very well aware of the authority possessed by the likes of Jasper. They could easily crush the Combe siblings.

Hector and his brother were feeling anxious. After hesitating for a long time, it was Jacob as the elder brother who took the lead and spoke, “Please name your order, Mr. Laine. As long it’s within our capabilities, we brothers will be sure to settle the matter for you.”

Jasper sat on the sofa and pointed to the opposite, beckoning Hector and Jacob to have a seat.

Jasper asked while looking at Hector, "Do you know how to gamble?"

Hector was dumbfounded. Subconsciously, he nodded. "I know a bit of the game."

"Do you know how to set up a gambling event?" asked Jasper.

Hector reacted to his words. Jasper wanted him to set up a gambling event to set others up.

Regarding the issue of setting others up, as long as one had spent quite some time gambling, they would come to realize it as well. 'As long as it involves gambling, there will definitely be set-ups.'

It all depended on how large the bet was and the tactics of the banker.

"I do!" Hector said ruthlessly through gritted teeth.

Jasper snapped his fingers and Julian walked over while presenting a copy of the documents. From the documents, he took out a sheet of information and threw it on the coffee table in the middle of the three people.

That sheet of information was the biodata of Sebastian with his picture on top of it.

Upon glancing at Sebastian's name and picture, Jacob and Hector's pupils immediately shrunk.

"Your uncle will be the target of the set-up this time," said Jasper calmly.

Hearing Jasper pointing out their relationship made Hector reply with a bitter smile, "Mr. Laine, I wonder what my uncle has done to offend you? Can I apologize to you on his behalf?"

Jasper raised his hand to stop Hector from talking and replied calmly, “This is not a matter of me taking offense. It’s something related to revenge, involving someone’s life. You guys can’t afford to be the middleman for this. The same goes to your dad, Hendrik Combe.”

Hearing the comment made Hector and Jacob exchange looks at each other. Both of them felt a chill crawling up their spines, all the way to the depths of their souls.

Life at the Top Chapter 358

”From what I know, the relationship between you guys is not that good, right?” said Jasper calmly.

The corners of Hector’s eyes twitched, and he said with a dry smile, “Well, we did have a huge fight two years ago, and it ended with an unpleasant outcome. But after all, as someone of the younger generation like us, to be so calculative with our own seniors seems to be rather—”

“I won’t make you guys do it without any rewards. I’ll give you 20% of shares of Jim’s business consulting company. I plan to develop that company aggressively in the future, so don’t think that the 20% of shares look trivial. Once it develops in the future, it’ll grow to be much better than those trivial products you guys make.”

Jasper raised one of his fingers, and after he was done saying, he raised a second finger.

“After you’ve settled this issue, whatever amount Sebastian loses from this set-up, you guys will take away 30% of it.”

After saying it, Jasper looked at Hector and Jacob calmly with a composed expression.

Hector and Jacob exchanged looks with each other. They could no longer reject the temptation of the huge profits.

The cash was the second reason. It was way more meaningful to them to be able to have shares in Jim's company.

'What does this even mean? It means that Jasper is willing to take us for a ride with him.'

Regardless of it being Jasper or Henry, with these two mighty beings here, Hector and Jacob would have a bright future. They would gain benefits whenever they were any leftovers from them.

"Mr. Laine, can I give my dad a call?" Hector said.

Jasper extended his arm, showing that he could leave to make the call.

Hector bowed with the utmost respect. Then, he filed out the room.

After a few minutes, Hector returned. He took in a deep breath and said to Jasper with a deep voice, "Mr. Laine, when are we going to start?"

Jasper smiled and got to his feet, saying, "The earlier the better. Also, I admire the fact that you guys know what's the right thing to do now. The Combe family will be sure to have a bright future if it's in the hands of you two."

...

After seeing the Combe siblings off, Jasper came to Dawson's room and briefly explained the entire incident.

"You've already contacted Jim?" He could not help but ask after hearing from Jasper that he had promised to give out 20% of the shares of Jim's company to the Combe siblings.

Jasper said with a smile, "Yes, I've already contacted him. Uncle Yapp is very satisfied with it. You might think that he's on the losing end because of the 20% of shares, but in the future, it'll be guaranteed as insurance in Capital City. The Combe family will never let him be on the losing end."

"You have your point. After all, you won't have the time to keep an eye on him. This plan might just work out," said Dawson while nodding his head.

Dawson praised and looked at Jasper while adding, "You're getting the hang of it. I'm relieved."

Jasper said calmly, "One should be flexible at using tactics. There are lots of methods to go against someone like Sebastian. But in order to achieve the greatest effect in the shortest amount of time, I will only have to resort to using methods that he can't see coming.

...

At another hotel, Sebastian was frantically calling his underlings in his company.

"Hurry and come up with a plan for me. I want to take over the market that belongs to that b*stard, Dawson Schuler!

"I don't care what price I need to pay! Within half a year, I want Schuler Group to go bankrupt!

"Contact all our resources. We have to crush the supply route of Schuler Group. Whichever supplier dares to supply to the supermarkets of Schuler Group will be going against Kaymaroon!"

After putting down his phone, Sebastian loosened his necktie. His face revealed a scary smile.

"Dawson Schuler, you're 100 years away from challenging me!

“Also that brat named Jasper. You two sons of b*tches, I’ll see just when you’ll come to kneel before me and plead with me!”

Coincidentally at that moment, his phone rang.

After looking at the incoming call, a smile was plastered on Sebastian’s face. His tone was extremely gentle as well. “Oh Hector, are you looking for me to head over to Owl City with you? I’m rather busy these two days.”

“Uncle, I know you’re very occupied but I’ve got a spot for a game in Swallow Capital. They’re all big bosses and they’re betting a very huge sum. I’m asking to see if you’re interested to join?”

Life at the Top Chapter 359

Sebastian’s eyes were sparkling after hearing Hector’s comment.

He had not been gambling all because of the conference and the issue of going against Dawson. He had been itching to gamble that he could barely hold it any longer.

Even though he had a serious gambling addiction, he was still considered to be quite rational.

“That doesn’t sound like a good idea with everyone there being a stranger.”

Sebastian’s tone was slightly hesitant. He was not a fool who had just entered society. He was aware that even family members would also end up arguing when it came to gambling. As such, he thought he should be more cautious when gambling with strangers.

Hector said with a smile, "Uncle, we all know each other very well. We'll be doing it at my villa on the outskirts. It's extremely safe. It's just that we lack a player. That's why I'm asking to see whether you're interested. If you're not, then forget about it."

Hearing it made the hesitancy in Sebastian's heart vanish into thin air. He quickly replied, "I'm interested!"

At seven in the evening on that day, Sebastian arrived at the villa in the car Hector had sent with one million in cash.

"Uncle, only one million? Won't you embarrass yourself here?"

Hector greeted Sebastian at the entrance of the villa. He looked at the box in his hand and said disdainfully.

Sebastian burst into laughter and said, "It's just to play for fun. I don't plan to gamble with a huge sum. I'll return once I've lost it all."

Hector chuckled and said, "Alright then. My brother is also inside. Let's go in, everyone has arrived."

Hector let out a cold smile when he saw Sebastian's back figure that was entering through the door eagerly.

Sebastian was still being cautious with Hector, and the latter noticed it. However, Hector knew best what sort of attitude Hector would have on the gambling table.

This time, he had gotten the top 'actors' in the industry to help him out with this set-up and he was fully confident in it.

Sebastian entered the villa. The gambling table was set up, and three men were sitting on the sofa chit-chatting.

There were also a few gorgeous ladies who were in charge of serving drinks.

“Allow me to introduce you. This is my uncle, the boss of Kaymaroon.”

Jacob immediately got up and said with a smile when he saw Sebastian entering.

“Uncle, this is the boss of Hayes Mining Company from the Southwest Province, Hayes Lawson. There are tens of coal mines under him. He’s truly a big boss.”

“This is the boss of an investing company, Jordan Zinn. There are two listed companies under his name.”

Hearing the introductions sent Sebastian’s heart pumping hard.

‘These two people have a net worth that’s comparable to mine.’

He then looked at the chips that they brought. Each of them was starting with five million as the minimum bet.

At that moment, Sebastian regretted bringing so little cash and felt as if he had lost his dignity.

Hayes urged with his southwest slang. “Let’s begin since everyone has arrived.”

Hector came over as well and the four of them went to sit at their respective seats.

Each of them brought their boxes, opened them, and placed them at the side of their legs. With the four boxes combined, there was a total of 150 million in betting funds. When piled up, the money was stacked into a few piles and was eye-catching.

Hector waved his hand, and a middle-aged man who looked like the dealer walked out. He was in charge of distributing the cards.

Hector leaned on the chair and giggled while saying, “The old rules. We’ll be starting with 100,000. There’s no limit to winning, and those who have lost everything will withdraw. Who wants to check the cards with the dealer?”

Jordan immediately raised his hand and said, “Young Master Combe, you’re the one organizing this gambling session, so of course, there won’t be any problem with it. There’s no need to check.”

Hector noticed that Hayes and Sebastian were not saying anything. He then said with a smile, “Old rules, we’ll change the cards after every ten rounds. Even though everyone is friends here and no one will pull any tricks on each other, but still, we have to follow the rules.”

After talking, Hector gave the dealer the signal to distribute the cards.

Jacob sat on the sofa and took his sweet time to make himself a cup of tea. He squinted his eyes and witnessed the gambling session unfold with a calm expression.

...

It was the next day and the sky was slightly bright. The villa was misty, and the floor was full of teacups and cigarette buds.

However, the four men were still very energetic.

Hayes was exasperated and shoved the cards in his hands away. He said unsatisfactorily, “What the f*ck, I’m so unlucky today! Three players losing to one player?!”

Hector and Jordan’s expressions looked awful.

Only Sebastian was laughing out loud.

At that moment, the boxes beside the three men's legs were empty except for Sebastian's. The bundles of cash could not fit in his box and were scattered all over the floor by his feet.

He had won 16 million in cash.

Sebastian did not expect himself to be this lucky. That night, he got whatever card that he desired. Even if he occasionally got fewer points, it was either his opponents had even fewer points than him, or they dared not bet with him and immediately forfeited that round.

"Oh my, I'm just lucky today. It's been a while since I've had a good time gambling." Sebastian had a delightful expression and looked refreshed.

"Well, we've lost everything. Why don't we call it a day for today?" Hector said calmly.

Jordan got up and said in an unpleasant tone, "End it, end it. I've long ago been feeling sleepy. Next time, I'll be sure to win against you!"

Sebastian also got up and smiled. He said, "You're always welcome."

As they were talking, the gambling session came to an end.

At the entrance, Hayes and Jordan's cars had already left. Hector was slightly envious as he looked at Sebastian ordering his chauffeur to move the money. He said, "Uncle, you really are lucky."

Sebastian smiled proudly and said, "Those two fools don't even know how to play. Even though I only had a few points, they still didn't have the guts to bet with me. I got lucky a few times."

"It's all because you're great at it, Uncle," Hector said with a smile.

At that moment, all of the cash was moved to the car. Sebastian got in and stretched his head out, saying to Hector, "Next time, remember to invite me."

"Sure, will do."

Hector squinted his eyes as he smiled while watching Sebastian's car drive away.

He spun around to enter the house. Jacob was already awake and having his breakfast. He had one of his legs over the other.

"Has he left already?" asked Jacob.

"Yeah."

Hector nodded and said with a cold smile, "Right now, he must be looking forward to the next gambling session."

"Even though Mr. Laine is not here, it's like he has predicted that Sebastian will have a change in mindset. His confidence in human psychology is way too creepy."

Jacob shook his head and said, "Hurry and give Mr. Laine a call. Report the current situation to him. We have to take the next step soon."

...

In the office of Easy Media, Jasper was on his phone as he threw a dart right at the bullseye. He said calmly, "If you want to fish, obviously you have to give the fish some bait. In the afternoon, I'll get someone over to deliver another 300 million."

"This 300 million..."

Jasper pulled out the dart on the red bullseye and continued calmly, "...is the hook to kill Sebastian."

After hanging up the call, Jasper spun around. Someone was already standing behind him politely.

"Mr. Laine, you ordered me to get in touch with those private loan companies who loaned to Kaymaroon. They've already given us a reply.

"As long as we can pay one million to each of the companies, they'll immediately ask Kaymaroon to pay their debts.

"The debt is theirs in the first place. We're spending money to make them ask for their debts in advance. In this world, no one will reject such a great offer, let alone these vampires who give out loans with high interest."

Jasper sat on the boss' chair and said calmly, "Give them the money. Once they receive the money, they should bear in mind what they're supposed to do!"

Life at the Top Chapter 360

On the third day, Sebastian was subconsciously looking at his phone.

There was no message on it.

He was feeling slightly frustrated.

Winning money through gambling could be addictive. Besides, the addiction was a very wonderful experience.

Ever since he won that 15 million during the previous gambling session, Sebastian had been waiting for Hector's call every day.

However, in these two days, it was as if Hector had gone missing. He had not received any news from him.

This made Sebastian anxious.

Even though he kept telling himself that it was great enough to have won 15 million and it would be best to stop now as he had earned this amount effortlessly.

However, Sebastian kept thinking that if he were to continue gambling, he would have won more.

The last time, the capital he brought was way too little, which made him scared when placing his bets. I made him unable to feel the thrill of the game.

Just as he was thinking about it, Sebastian's phone rang.

It was from Hector!

Sebastian immediately felt joyful and quickly answered the call.

"Uncle, Hayes and Jordan lost a lot of money during the last gambling session and they're not satisfied with it. They've accumulated some funds during these few days. Same old place this time, and they're saying that it's to be a revenge game. But this time, their capitals are a bit too high. They're determined to win their money back. Are you coming?"

Sebastian laughed out proudly and said, "Would I be scared of them? They're just people who have lost to me!"

...

It was still in the same villa. The gambling session had started, and the game was heating up.

It was just that this time, Sebastian was not that lucky.

It had just been an hour since the start of the gambling session and he already lost two million.

Even though it was just a small figure when compared to the 15 million he had won previously, it was still a bad start.

“Eight points, big,” the dealer said calmly. He seized all the chips from Hayes and Jordan, passing them on to Sebastian.

Seeing that he was able to win a round made Sebastian let out a sigh of relief.

With just one round, he had won 400,000.

The degree of excitement in the game could be seen.

“What the f*ck, this is ridiculous! You’re able to win this as well?” Jordan frowned and said unpleasantly.

In the previous round, he only had seven points. He barely made it but still lost the round.

Sebastian chuckled and said, “You can’t stop it when luck just decides to rush to you.”

“Better not be too full of yourself,” said Jordan with a stony look.

The gambling session continued. After three hours, Sebastian did not just win back the money he had lost previously, but he also made more than ten million.

“Today’s the day I make a fortune.” Sebastian laughed arrogantly as he managed to gobble up all the cash.

Hayes slammed the table and said through gritted teeth, “Son of a b*tch! I don’t believe I’ll continue being unlucky. Change the damn cards!”

Hector raised his eyelids and said calmly, “Mr. Lawson, you can’t do this. We’ve already agreed on the rules to change the cards every ten rounds. This is just the eighth round and you’re requesting to change the cards? Are you suspecting that I’m pulling a trick on you?”

Hayes said with his eyes reddened, “You both are uncle and nephew. How can I be sure that there are no tricks up your sleeves?”

Hector squinted his eyes and stared at Hayes, saying, “Mr. Lawson, you’d better talk with facts. If we wanted to set you up, we wouldn’t have exposed our relationship at the beginning. I let you know about it to prove that we’re innocent. You shouldn’t play if you can’t afford to lose!”

At that moment, Jordan came to take control of the situation. He said, “Please refrain from getting violent. You two, please calm down. Well, it’s unavoidable that we’ll be angry since we’re losing money during this session. Anyway, Mr. Lawson doesn’t mean it that way.”

“How about this, Young Master Combe? Just change the deck of cards. There’s no big deal about it.”

Hector snorted and said, “This will be the only exception.”

After he spoke, he ordered the dealer to open up a new deck of cards that was still sealed up.

Life at the Top Chapter 361

Sebastian watched the entire incident unfold before his eyes. He silently mocked Hayes for being a sore loser. Nevertheless, he was now completely relieved about this round. All traces of doubt in his heart had completely disappeared.

The round continued till late into the evening. Throughout this period, the expression on Sebastian's face gradually darkened.

What goes around comes around. He was starting to lose money now.

It was as if a spell had been cast on him. All the cards he had were all low-ranking. He hardly had any high-ranking cards. His opponent could either have higher-ranking cards than him, or completely give up on the game.

Meanwhile, the money by his side continued to dwindle. He had more than 20 million dollars during his peak, and now there was only a measly 100000 dollars left.

"Oh, my good luck is here," Hayes chuckled. He spread out his cards. His cards were of the highest rank; He had won the round.

Sebastian lost all the remaining money that he had.

Hayes lit a cigarette in satisfaction. "Chairman Walker, are you out of money? What do you say, should we just end here?" He asked Sebastian.

Sebastian unbuttoned the buttons around his collar harshly and said in distaste, "I'm just having a spat of bad luck. What are you being so proud of? I won all this money from you guys a few days ago, don't you remember? I'm just returning some of it to you right now!"

Sebastian then pulled out a cheque book from his coat. He filled in a cheque and slammed it onto the table. "Here's a 20 million dollar check! I'll exchange it with someone that has cash!" He announced through gritted teeth.

Hector Combe responded cheerily, "This is my villa. Of course I have cash. Someone come over and give my uncle 20 million dollars in cash."

Hector proceeded to take the cheque after speaking.

After ensuring that the money by his side had been replenished, Sebastian hollered in determination, "Let's continue!"

He lost this 20 million dollars within 30 minutes.

Even Sebastian, who had experienced all sorts of situations, was a little short of breath.

He had lost 20 million dollars in 30 minutes. This was a humiliating loss.

"F*ck, it's so hot in here. Why is the air conditioner set at such a high temperature? Can't bear to pay the electricity bill?" Sebastian turned around impatiently and cursed at a waiter.

Despite his aggravation, the waiter did not dare to utter a single word. Instead, he lowered the temperature of the air conditioner in a hurry.

"Chairman Walker, don't throw a tantrum even if you lose money. Don't be a sore loser if you can't bear to lose," Hayes remarked as he burst out into laughter.

"Shut up!" Sebastian yelled, eyeing him coldly. He filled in another 50-million-dollar check. "Let's continue!" He said through gritted teeth.

Sebastian, who was beyond humiliated by his loss, seemed to have gone mad. He persisted till the end regardless of the rank of his cards.

In a situation like this, he kept losing more and more.

By the time midnight arrived, he had already written cheques worth up to 500 million dollars.

Hector had cashed in all the cheque on the spot through a special channel and had transferred all the money to a secret account.

Once again, Sebastian filled in another 50-million-dollar check. Hector knew that it was time to stop when the portal indicated that the cheque could not be processed.

“Uncle, this cheque cannot be processed.”

Hector’s words caused a wave of shock to pass through Sebastian, who felt like he had just woken up from a trance.

“How is that possible? There is around 500 million dollars in the account!” Sebastian shouted out in a shrill voice.

“You’ve already transferred out more than 500 million dollars. The cheque can’t be processed as the balance in your account is insufficient,” Hector said with a shrug.

Sebastian, who had been grumpy due to the heat, felt an icy sensation wash over him from head to toe. He felt like he been struck by lightning.

“What?!”

Sebastian’s voice trembled as he exclaimed, “I lost... 500 million dollars?!”

Right then, Jordan suddenly glanced at Hector and voiced out, “Since Chairman Walker has used up his money, shall we call it a night?”

Before anyone could reply, Sebastian got up in anger. “No! I lost such a f*cking large sum of money! My company will be in trouble! You guys intend to leave after winning all the money? Don’t even think about it!” He yelled in rage.

“I still have stocks! I will use the stocks for Kaymaroon registered under my name as collateral! I must turn this around!”

“Uncle, you’re going overboard,” Hector said with a chuckle.

Sebastian slammed his fist on the table and roared out maniacally, “What do you know? Without the 500 million dollars, I won’t be able to pay for my goods or repay my loans! If that happens, I’ll be doomed!

“I have extremely good luck! I’ll surely win all the money back! I want to turn this around! Which one of you dares to kick me out?!”

Life at the Top Chapter 362

“Uncle, nobody has ever leveraged the company’s shares. Furthermore, how do we estimate this valuation? This isn’t appropriate. Owning the shares won’t be of any use to us either.”

Jordan and Hayes both agreed with Hector’s words.

Sebastian turned around immediately and glared at Hector. “Hector Combe, have you gone mad? How can you speak for them at a time like this?!” He asked in infuriation.

“Uncle, that was basic reasoning. I’m not taking sides here,” Hector said calmly.

Sebastian gritted his teeth and tried his best to suppress his anger. "In that case, lend me a few million dollars for this emergency," he said.

Hector's expression remained calm and collected. "Uncle, I don't have that much money. I can't withdraw a few million dollars for you to lose it all. You should think about how to handle your upcoming problems," he said.

No matter how incoherent Sebastian's thoughts were, there was no way that he would not finally realize that something was not right.

The three people seated at the gambling table, and Hector in particular, were acting exceptionally odd right now.

Taking in a deep breath, Sebastian suppressed the uneasiness in his heart. "What do you mean?" He asked in a low voice.

He could not believe that Hector was bold enough to team up with an outsider just to go against him.

He was going against his father, Hendrik, by doing so.

"What do I mean?" Hector laughed. He took out a small black box from the portable air conditioner in the room and turned off a switch on it.

"I have blocked everyone's mobile phone signal in order to allow us to play cards in silence. Excuse me for pulling this small trick.

"Uncle, take a look at your phone at once. A lot of people should be looking for you right now."

The uneasiness in Sebastian's heart continued to grow. Just as he was about to say something, his phone rang loudly, as if on cue.

The caller was a close associate of his from the company. Without thinking much, Sebastian picked up the call.

“Chairman Walker, where did you go? The company is in a total mess. I have been calling you for four hours straight, but you didn’t pick up your phone!”

Sebastian spoke in a low, authoritative tone after listening to the anxious voice on the other end of the phone. “What is all the panic about? Tell me what happened immediately!”

“We’re done for, Chairman. All the private loan companies that we borrowed money from suddenly came over to ask for their payment. However, the company’s account doesn’t have your signature, so we couldn’t withdraw the money. Moreover, the finance department told us that the funds in the account kept declining. There are only a few hundred thousand dollars left in the account.”

Sebastian felt like he had been struck by lightning. He had turned all of the funds in the company account into cheques and had gambled it all away. The money was gone now.

However, the oddest thing was that the debts he owed the private loan companies had not yet expired. Why were they collecting the debts now?

“Aren’t the debts due in a few months’ time?” Sebastian asked, his throat dry. It felt like dark clouds were looming above his head, coming together to form a net that he could not escape from. The net was about to fall on him and consume him whole in the very next moment.

“I don’t know. They are disregarding the interest and demanding us to repay the principal right now. Since we couldn’t find you, they went to the supermarket to spread the news.”

“A dozen of employees are in charge of each supermarket. There are still dozens of people at the company headquarters. The incoming calls are about to blow up my phone!”

Cold sweat beaded Sebastian’s forehead as he listened to the news.

While his palms heated up, a chilling sensation washed over his head.

Sebastian hung up on the call while ignoring his close associate’s dire pleas for help.

He fixed a stony gaze upon Hector. “Hector Combe, what is going on right now?!”

Hector ignored Sebastian, who was on the verge of exploding from rage, and walked toward the door. He opened it straight away.

Sebastian’s gaze veered past the door and landed on the sofa in the villa. Jacob Combe, who was seated on the sofa, was having a cup of tea with a young man in a courteous manner.

Life at the Top Chapter 363

“Jasper Laine?!”

Sebastian’s heart lurched in shock. He felt like all the blood in his body was running cold.

He had never once expected Jasper Laine to appear here.

Hector walked out of the room immediately. He stood sturdily in front of Jasper and bowed to him courteously. "Mr. Laine, everything is completed," he said.

Jasper took a sip of his tea and chuckled. "Not bad,"

A look of satisfaction and happiness appeared on Hector's face after being praised by his master. These were the values of a treacherous b*stard like him.

Sebastian's temple throbbed at the sight of it all.

Jasper raised his head to look at Sebastian, who was overcome with mixed emotions. "Long time no see, Chairman Walker. Are you that surprised to see me here?" he asked indifferently.

Sebastian ground his teeth as he tried to suppress the overwhelming uneasiness in his heart. "Jasper Laine, how dare you appear before me when I haven't even bothered to look for you. Aren't you afraid that I'll kill you?" he asked in a voice that was totally devoid of warmth.

Jasper put down his cup with a chuckle. "With your IQ, I really wonder how you managed to operate a large-scale business like Kaymaroon. As to why I'm bold enough to show up here, don't you understand by now?"

Hector sighed as well. "Uncle, out of everyone in the world, you just had to get on Mr. Laine's nerves. I had no choice. I'll give you a piece of advice, hurry up and beg Mr. Laine for mercy. Maybe he'd let you off alive," he said.

Sebastian burst out in anger. "What f*cking bullsh*t are you going on about?!" He yelled while pointing at Hector and Jasper. "What on earth are the two of you up to?! What do you mean?!"

"You're asking me to apologize to this idiot? Have you lost it, Hector Combe?!"

"You're the one who's lost it!" Hector retorted matter-of-factly. "Uncle, you've offended someone that you shouldn't have offended. You're bringing about your own destruction. Stop yelling now. Come over and admit your mistakes to Mr. Laine at once,” he said.

“Don’t call me your uncle! You f*cking teamed with outsiders to go against me! Do you still have the audacity to call me your uncle?!” Sebastian roared angrily.

Hector sneered. “Well, you’ve still offended Mr. Laine, Sebastian Walker. Why don’t you come over to apologize?” he asked.

Sebastian pinned a scorching glare upon Jasper. He gritted his teeth and exclaimed, “What is going on right now? Jasper Laine, give me an explanation at once!”

“Explanation? What explanation?” Jasper asked coldly.

“Kaymaroon has long been facing a major financial crisis. I just triggered it in advance. It would have happened sooner or later anyways. The sooner it happens, the sooner it’ll be resolved. I’m offering you a helping hand.

“As for all the gambling, you were a willing victim to my whims. You were the one who lost all your money through gambling. How can you blame that on me?”

Sebastian’s head buzzed as he pieced together everything that had happened over these past few days. Eventually, he realized that everything came together to form an elaborate scheme.

Feeling suffocated, Sebastian’s vision grew dark as his head spun. He widened his eyes and stared at Jasper. “Everything was part of your scheme?!” He asked in a shrill voice.

Jasper chuckled and said, “How can you call it a scheme? It was just a few of my business tricks. When it comes to schemes, you’re the true master here, Sebastian Walker.”

He had lost all of the company's liquid funds, and the private loan companies that the company had borrowed hundreds of million dollars from were all forcing them to repay their debts. After the news about this breaks out, the suppliers would surely go against them. Eventually, the bank would terminate their loans and request them to repay their debts after noticing the terrible situation that they were in.

This series of incidents would occur one after another...

Kaymaroon was on the brink of death!

Sebastian felt his scalp grow numb.

He had been coming up with an intricate plan to bring Schuler Corporation down. However, his own company had been stolen in the blink of an eye!

"Jasper Laine! You should f*cking die!"

Life at the Top Chapter 364

Overcome by immense shock, Sebastian was on the verge of collapsing.

He rushed forward in an attempt to pounce onto Jasper; He wanted to bite off a piece of his flesh so badly.

Jasper watched Sebastian rush toward him with a cold gaze.

However, Julian appeared in front of him before Sebastian could even reach him. Julian held his throat in a vice-like grip and raised him into the air single-handedly as if he were holding onto a dead dog.

Hector and the others gulped as they watched the scene unfold. They all stared at Jasper in fear without daring to utter a single word.

Sebastian was being choked, while Julian bore the weight of his entire body with just the arm that he was using to choke him. Sebastian suddenly felt breathless, his face flushing red at once.

“Let go of him,” Jasper said calmly.

Julian released his grip and Sebastian fell to the ground like a worthless, dead dog. Clutching at his throat, he took in large gulps of air.

Fortunately, Sebastian managed to calm down after going through such a ruckus.

He knew that there was no use in throwing a meaningless tantrum right now. Thus, he tried his best to raise his head and looked at Jasper. “Aren’t you just Dawson Schuler’s son-in-law? What gives you the right to order the Combes around?” He asked angrily.

Jacob shook his head and sighed. “You’ve really lost it. Don’t you understand by now? Shouldn’t you take a look at your opponent before going against them? Uncle, the amount of power that Mr. Laine holds is beyond your imagination,” he said.

“Forget the Combes. You heard of what happened to Brad and Erik Turner some time ago, right? They offended Mr. Laine and look what happened to them. They had to pay a compensation of a billion dollars. In the end, Erik Turner had to resign from his position as the chairman of Motley Media.

“Even the Turners have conceded. What can you do?”

Sebastian’s face instantly turned pale.

He stared at Jasper in disbelief. His gaze filled with shock. He looked like he had just seen a ghost.

“Who...who are you?! Why didn't you tell me that you had such a powerful background?!”

“Actually, you know everything about my identity. As for my background, I'm different from everyone else. I am my own strongest background,” Jasper said calmly.

Sebastian's expression changed at once. Finally, he seemed to have lost all of his energy. He lowered his head before Jasper and asked, “What do I need to do for you to let go of me?”

“Let you go? The thought never even occurred to me,” Jasper said, feigning a look of surprise.

Sebastian was stupefied. “Do you really want to have a battle of life and death?” He asked in infuriation.

“You don't seem to understand your current circumstances. What do you mean by 'battle of life and death'? You're already a dead man. There's no way you can come out of this alive,” Jasper said with a suppressed laugh.

Sebastian tried his best to control his rage and unwillingness. “How would you benefit from defeating me? Why are you being so unrelenting and cruel?” He asked, seething with anger.

“To be honest, defeating you doesn't bring me any benefits.”

Jasper said matter-of-factly while staring at him.

“However, since the grievances between us are many, I should seek the vengeance that I deserve, don't you think?”

Sebastian trembled upon hearing what he said. “Do you intend to take revenge for Dawson Schuler?” He asked stiffly.

“You killed the wife of my future father-in-law. Do you think that I’ll let you go?” Jasper asked.

Sebastian clenched his hands into fists. His body trembled slightly due to all his pent-up rage and overwhelming emotions. “What do you intend to do?”

“I want to see you lose everything that you have. That is the price that you should pay!”

Jasper stood up and slowly walked before Sebastian. Although his voice was calm and collected, his gaze was as frigid as an iceberg.

Life at the Top Chapter 365

“People like you think that they can do anything you want just because they’re rich. Your wealth is the source of everything you possess. Therefore, to you, money is even more important than your own life.

“That’s why the best way to deal with people like you is to have you watch yourself become a poor beggar. The pain and torture of something like that is a much more horrifying thought than death to you.”

Jasper then chuckled softly in front of Sebastian, who was quivering uncontrollably.

“You lost all of your liquidity, so you can’t pay off the debts that you owe the private loan companies. Those people will try to get back their money from Kaymaroon as soon as possible.

“Running out of money isn’t a problem. You can sell your goods as there are plenty of goods in the supermarket anyway. Hence, you’ll surely be able to recover some of your loss.

“After that, the bank will take note of Kaymaroon’s debt crisis. I’m sure they will immediately sue you and bring you to court.

“All of this will take place one by one after the sun rises tomorrow. In other words, your life is over.”

Sebastian stared at Jasper with a terrified gaze. He trembled in fear. “No, you can’t do this! This is impossible!” He shouted out.

All of a sudden, Sebastian got on his knees and kneeled on the ground. He grabbed the hem of Jasper’s shirt with both hands. “Jasper Laine, no, Brother Laine, Mr. Laine. You can’t do this to me, Mr. Laine. I know what I did was wrong. I deserve to die. I’m an idiot. I shouldn’t have gone against you!” He pleaded.

“I beg of you. Please let me go this once. I really can’t lose Kaymaroon! My competitors won’t let me go so easily, Mr. Laine. I beg of you, please spare me!”

Jasper fixed an icy gaze on Sebastian, who had started sobbing pitifully. “Ten years ago, there was a woman who had begged piteously in front of you as well. However, did you spare her life?” He asked stonily.

Sebastian’s voice quivered as he pleaded with Jasper. “I was blinded by my lust and greed back then. I really didn’t know that things would turn out this way. To be honest, I had no intentions of killing her at all back then. I just wanted to scare her,” he said.

“Who would have thought that she would suddenly get killed? Even if I was bolder, I wouldn’t have dared to kill somebody.

“I’m willing to take out half of Kaymaroon’s assets. No, make it two-thirds. I’ll give you two-thirds of Kaymaroon’s assets in exchange for my life. At least let me keep some of my assets. Mr. Laine, I was wrong. I was really wrong!”

Overcome by extreme terror and threat, Sebastian kneeled down on the ground and pressed his forehead to the ground repeatedly.

The sound of the forehead continuously banging against the ground echoed through the room. After a while, Sebastian’s forehead was matted with blood.

Jasper continued looking upon his actions coldly. He did not encourage him to keep going on nor reach out to stop him.

Sebastian’s fate had already been sealed. Even if he jumped and cursed, or knelt down to beg for mercy, nothing would change Jasper’s mind.

“Julian,” Jasper called out.

“Brother Laine,” Julian responded as he came forward.

“Take him outside. I don’t want to see him.”

Julian grunted a noise of affirmation before turning around to drag Sebastian, who was wailing in fear, to his feet. He then pulled Sebastian toward the door.

Initially, Sebastian pleaded with Jasper desperately. However, since begging had no effect whatsoever, he simply let go of all his restraints.

“Jasper Laine, you deserve a painful death! Remember what I said! I will never let you go even after I turn into a wandering ghost! This is a reminder of what will happen to you in the future! Don’t be satisfied just yet. Eventually, there will come a day when you’ll be trampled upon by someone else!

“You deserve a painful death!”

Julian threw him out of the villa with a loud crash. He then closed the door tightly.

“I can finally have some peace,” Jasper let out a soft sigh. He then turned around to look at Hector and Jacob Combe.

Fear and respect flashed across the two brothers’ gazes. They immediately stood up straight and displayed an obedient demeanor when they noticed Jasper looking their way.

“You guys did pretty well!”

Life at the Top Chapter 366

After hearing Jasper's words, Hector and Jacob felt rather touched.

Flattered, Hector immediately plastered a smile across his face. "It's all thanks to your detailed plan, Mr. Laine. We were just doing as you said. We didn't do much," he said.

Jasper smiled and replied, "Although I was the one who prepared the script, you guys needed to act your part well for this to work. Otherwise, this act wouldn't have succeeded.

"According to our agreement, you guys can take 30% of the 500 million dollars that Sebastian Walker lost tonight, and the rest will be transferred to the account that I have given you guys by tomorrow."

Hector and Jacob felt their eyes twitch after listening to what Jasper said.

They were not shocked because the sum was too small. Rather, it was too large.

They had previously thought that it would be good enough if they managed to squeeze out a hundred million dollars from Sebastian Walker via his gambling. In that case, they would get 30% of it, which would amount to thirty million dollars. It was not a large sum.

However, they had obtained 500 million dollars now. 30% of the sum was more than a hundred million dollars. They did not dare to ask for such a large sum of money.

"Mr. Laine, that's way too much. We didn't do much. Why don't we take 10%..."

Jasper interjected Hector while he was speaking. “There’s no need for this. I told you that I’d give you the money. No matter how much the amount, I’ll give you the share that we agreed upon. This is what the two of you deserve. Jim Yapp will send someone to contact you for the transfer of his company shares tomorrow.”

Jasper then stood up and walked toward the door. “Wrap up everything nicely over here. I’m busy with other stuff, so I’ll be going first,” he said.

Jasper led Julian out of the villa suavely.

Hector and Jacob met eyes. The excitement in their gazes was evident.

This was more than a hundred million dollars!

For a young man from a wealthy family like Hector Combe, this was an extravagant sum. Although the Combes were wealthy, Hector’s personal assets did not even reach a hundred million dollars!

However, he now had everything in the blink of an eye!

Hector felt like he was caught in a fever dream.

“Is this what it feels like to ride someone else’s coattails? This is f*cking amazing,” Hector mumbled.

Jacob gave their tasks more thought. He told Hector, “We should contact the two trustees that you found and tell them about the remaining tasks. After that, we’ll give them more money so that they can leave Swallow Capital and go overseas immediately. It’ll be best if they never returned for the rest of their lives.”

Hector immediately nodded. “Right, this is an urgent matter!”

...

Morning sunlight filtered into the restaurant through the tall floor-to-ceiling windows. Jasper and Dawson were chatting about the order of incidents that had occurred over these past few days.

“Sebastian Walker is done for,” Jasper said matter-of-factly.

Dawson was dazed after listening to what he said.

Dawson knew how hard it was to go against someone like Sebastian Walker. Strictly speaking, although there were many unknown factors surrounding the battle ten years ago, it was a known fact that he had lost to Sebastian.

However, Jasper had managed to defeat Sebastian in just a few days' time.

Dawson played out Jasper's plan in his mind repeatedly as Jasper briefed him about his entire scheme.

“Your plan was actually not that complicated. You succeeded because you managed to grasp the fatal flaw in Sebastian's nature. In the eyes of someone that has experienced it firsthand in the past, this scheme wasn't exceptionally complex.

“However, you did something that most people wouldn't. You centered your plan around the contextual circumstances and conditions. You came up with a plan that was tailored specifically to Sebastian Walker's unique characteristics. It would have been hard for him to not to fall for it. Excellent. This is simply excellent.”

Dawson praised him from the bottom of his heart.

Previously, he was just satisfied with Jasper. After all, Jasper was still a little too young and needed more real-world experience.

Life at the Top Chapter 367

Unknowingly, Jasper's achievements had already surpassed his own.

Dawson was both amazed and delighted. It seemed as if the heavens were not treating him too bad as they had delivered an impeccable future son-in-law like Jasper to his side.

Jasper laughed. "In truth, I had used some shady tricks. I could only resort to unscrupulous methods since I wanted to defeat him effectively within a short period of time. Alas, it was a disreputable plan, so it's nothing worth being proud of," he said.

Nevertheless, Dawson shook his head and said, "You're wrong. Regardless of the method that you used, the only criterion that determines success is the ability to achieve your goals.

"Winners all reach the top by stepping over the dead bodies of those that they have defeated. When that happens, people will just see their brilliant glory. Not many people would bother to look into their past."

Jasper nodded. Just as he was about to say something, a middle-aged man walked into the restaurant.

The man glanced at the table where Jasper and Dawson were seated at, then rushed toward them immediately.

Jasper knew this person. He was Chris Quarles. He seemed to get along with Dawson pretty well in the industry forum some time ago.

"Dawson, did you hear the news?!"

Chris sat down at their table with a shocked expression on his face. He turned around to face Dawson and spoke in a direct manner.

“Sebastian Walker is doomed!”

Dawson chuckled. “Has everyone found out?” He asked.

Chris smacked his thigh and said, “How can such a big issue be hidden from us? Sebastian Walker said that he wanted to hold another meeting today in order to specify the industry standards and the details regarding the election of the chairman of the board.

“Alas, we waited for a long time, but he didn’t show up. After that, we received the news regarding the closure of all of Kaymaroon’s supermarkets. The news also said that a lot of suppliers and private loan companies were looking for Sebastian Walker! “

Chris’s eyes glazed over in admiration. He lowered his voice and said, “You guys may not know about this. It is rumored that Sebastian offended a powerful man. That man was the one who caused him to go bankrupt.”

Jasper chuckled upon hearing what he said. News sure spread quickly within the business world. “Who’s this powerful man?” He could not help but ask him.

Upon hearing Jasper’s question, Chris spoke in an elder’s tone, “We don’t know either. We only heard that he is an extremely powerful man whose authority extends to the ends of the world. Thinking about it, if he didn’t have a strong background, how could he destroy Kaymaroon in just a few days’ time?

“That’s why young people like you should act humbler and keep a low profile outside. Don’t get on anyone’s bad side, because you’ll never know if the person that you’ve offended has the support of someone powerful. By then, you won’t even have the chance to feel regret. Do you hear what I say, young man?”

Just as Jasper was about to say something, Julian walked into the restaurant. “Brother Laine, Hector Combe is here. He wanted to ask you if you’re interested in Kaymaroon. If you’re interested, he can obtain full acquisition of Kaymaroon and hand it to you as a gift,” he told Jasper in a hushed voice.

Jasper pondered upon it for a while. “Should I give you a present?” He asked Dawson with a grin.

Jasper did not wait for Dawson to give him a reply. He held up a piece of tissue and dabbed at his mouth. After that, he got up and spoke to Chris, who was sitting down with a stupefied expression etched onto his face. “I have something to do, Mr. Quarles, so I’ll be leaving first. Your advice is absolutely right. I’ll make sure to remember it always,” he said.

After speaking, Jasper followed Julian’s lead. They went to meet up with Hector.

Chris felt like a fool afterward. He sat there and stared blankly into space for some time. He then turned around to look at Dawson, who was slowly enjoying his breakfast, with much difficulty. “It was Jasp...” he uttered slowly.

“He was the one who did everything,” Dawson chuckled. He loved looking at the expression on Chris’s face right now. “It’s a blessing to have such a capable future son-in-law,” he said in satisfaction.

Ring ring ring. Chris and Dawson’s phones rang simultaneously.

They picked up their phones. They had both gotten the same message from the person on the other at the end of the call.

Sebastian Walker committed suicide by jumping off a building.

He had breathed his last by the time people discovered his body.

Chris's mind buzzed loudly. He visualized Jasper's kind and warm face in his mind. He felt like he had just come face-to-face with God himself without knowing it.

"I... I've lived my life in total vain!"

Life at the Top Chapter 368

Jasper met Hector, who was waiting for him patiently in the hotel reception room.

"What happened?" Jasper got straight to the point.

"Sebastian Walker is dead," Hector said in a courteous tone.

Jasper was only just learning about this news. He frowned and asked, "He died just like that? Was it suicide?"

"Yes, I received the news half an hour ago. His body must have been transported to the morgue by now," Hector replied

"What a weak man," Jasper remarked. "Since he's dead, let it be. What does this have to do with what you told me?" He asked.

"I didn't expect for him to commit suicide just like that. I guess he didn't want to feel tortured. After receiving this news, I realized that we could do a lot in this situation," Hector replied hurriedly.

"Previously, Sebastian Walker held all the company's shares under the name of a distant relative last year in order to avoid loan risks. I know that relative. He listens to our orders well. Now that Sebastian is dead, Kaymaroon is fully owned by him in a nominal sense."

Hector's gaze flashed with glee as he lowered his voice and said, "I can transfer all those shares to your name, Mr. Laine."

Jasper sat on the sofa and looked at Hector with a small smile on his lips. "Kaymaroon's market value is around 4 billion dollars. Although it is now debt-ridden, there will be at least 2 billion in assets left after paying off the debts. Are you going to give it away just like that? Are you not tempted yourself?" He questioned.

Hector immediately explained, "We believe that maintaining a long-term cooperative relationship with Mr. Laine will bring much greater benefits than Kaymaroon."

Hector then continued to speak in an awkward tone, "Besides, to be honest, the two of us may be able to operate a company in the entertainment and media industry due to our family relations. However, we have no idea how to operate a company in the supermarket industry. Furthermore, Kaymaroon is such a large-scale company."

Jasper stared at Hector without responding. He seemed to be gauging the legitimacy of his words.

Hector's heart lurched as he felt Jasper's intense gaze fixated on him.

The truth was, before they came over, the Combe brothers and their father had discussed how best to deal with Kaymaroon.

The brothers had initially proposed taking the entire company for themselves. Even if they did not know how to operate it, they could still earn a large sum of money by selling it off.

However, this proposal was firmly opposed by Hendrik Combe.

From his perspective, this was an investment, or an entry permit. It was a ticket to board a big ship in the form of Jasper Laine!

The Combes would obtain greater benefits than this in the future.

Hendrik was quick to reject their proposal as he had way more experience than both of his sons. Furthermore, he was in a sensitive position, thus he had access to a lot of information that others did not.

Therefore, he understood just how terrifying the power that Jasper wielded was.

Hector also did not tell Jasper about something more important.

Jasper simply wanted to bring down Sebastian Walker. However, nobody knew about his true intentions when it came to Kaymaroon.

If the Combes angered Jasper by keeping Kaymaroon for themselves, what could they do?

Hector had thus decided to look for Jasper due to his worries and considerations.

“I’ll give you two choices,” Jasper said.

Hector raised his head to look at Jasper. The heaviness in his heart gradually vanished. It seemed like he had made the right move this time.

“Firstly, I could invest 1 billion dollars to acquire Kaymaroon’s shares. Although its market value is at least 2 billion dollars, it won’t be easy to sell the company off. Since this is the case, you guys won’t lose any money.

“Secondly, you can merge the entertainment company under the both of your names into Easy Media, and I will allocate 30% of the shares of Easy Media to the two of you.”

Even a fool knew that it would be wiser to choose the first choice. It was a cash transaction whereby they would gain both money and goods.

Nevertheless, Hector responded without hesitation, “I choose the second choice!”

If he chose the first choice, it would be a one-off transaction between both parties. After the transaction, they would both go their separate ways.

However, things would be different if he chose the shares. The Combes appeared to have lost out if they took the second choice, but Hector knew that Easy Media would become one of the country’s largest entertainment companies in the long term.

When that time comes, owning 30% of the company’s shares would be beyond valuable.

Life at the Top Chapter 369

Most importantly, this meant that the Combes would be in a mutually beneficial relationship with Jasper. They would become allies.

Hendrik had advised him to do this repeatedly before he left the house earlier.

Even so, Jasper was not surprised by Hector’s choice.

Given the Combes’ stable position and their copious amount of property, they were definitely not a short-sighted family.

Jasper could tell this from the way they went against Sebastian, who was their relative, without the slightest hesitation, and chose to work together with Jasper.

Profits were their main priority.

People like this were extremely sly and smart. Nevertheless, they were the easiest to control as well.

As long as he showed them sufficient benefits and the horrors of betrayal, they would remain his most loyal subordinates.

Jasper laughed as he stood up and extended his hand toward Hector. "To be honest, I wish that you'd chosen the first option, but since you've made your choice, let's work together," he said.

Suppressing the excitement in his heart, Hector clasped Jasper's hand with both of his hands. "Definitely!" He exclaimed.

.....

After Hector left, Jasper returned to Dawson's room. To his surprise, Chris was still there.

"Mr. Laine... Nice to meet you, Mr. Laine."

Chris bounced off his chair the moment he saw Jasper enter the room. He proceeded to greet him cautiously.

"You're being way too polite, Mr. Quarles," Jasper grinned.

Chris laughed along with him while he secretly gave Jasper a once-over.

He looked at his face and contemplated his personality.

No matter how he looked at him, Jasper looked like a completely ordinary person to him.

He was simply incredible. He managed to end Sebastian's life in the blink of an eye.

What kinds of skills did one need to have in order to do such a thing?

How old was he?

Jasper could not care less about the rich emotional drama that was playing out in Chris's mind. "Uncle Schuler, I intend to acquire Kaymaroon so that Schuler Corporations can take over its market. That way, you won't have any competitors in the national supermarket industry," he told Dawson.

Dawson frowned and said, "Kaymaroon is larger than Schuler Corporations. If we take over their market, we may not be able to operate well."

Jasper chuckled. "It's alright, we can just spend more time and allocate funds to sort out the matter," he said.

"Sure, but only under one condition," Dawson said after thinking about it for a bit.

"Uncle Schuler, there's no need to come up with conditions with it comes to the two of us. You can just tell me directly," Jasper said.

"Have JW Capital acquire 50% of Schuler Corporations' shares," Dawson suddenly said.

Jasper was stunned. He would never have expected Dawson to make such a request.

"Uncle Schuler, it seems like you're regarding me as an outsider," Jasper remarked.

Dawson waved his hand and said in a solemn voice, "Putting our personal relationship aside, business is still business. I'll have a big advantage if I exchange 50% of Schuler Corporations' shares for Kaymaroon.

“In any case, this will all belong to the two of you in the future. I’m just giving you some of it in advance. I’ve already made my decision,” Dawson said.

“Sure. In that case, I’ll let Wendy hold onto part of these shares in my stead,” Jasper said while sighing.

Dawson smiled as he poked Jasper. “This kid. You’re so slick,” he said.

Chris, who was seated beside them, did not dare to utter a single word. He had unintentionally witnessed the birth of the leading company in the domestic supermarket industry.

Life at the Top Chapter 370

Although there were some changes to the plan, at its core, it was still very much on track.

Schuler Corporations started as a company in the supermarket industry. Although, its acquisition of Kaymaroon was as though a small snake were swallowing an entire elephant, both companies were still from the same industry. Therefore, there would be no need for acclimatization.

Furthermore, Kaymaroon did not have a leader now that Sebastian was dead. In a situation like that, Schuler Corporations’ acquisition of Kaymaroon would not be faced with any problems.

In order to maximize Kaymaroon’s strength, Jasper and Dawson would be carrying out a joint investment to pay off Kaymaroon’s total debt, which amounted up to more than a billion dollars.

The merger between the country's leading supermarket company and Schuler Corporations caused an uproar within the industry.

After all, there had been no news of the merger previously. Sebastian committed suicide all of a sudden during his peak, while Kaymaroon's debt crisis soon followed suit. After that, Schuler Corporations announced that they had obtained all of Kaymaroon's shares and were going to formally acquire the company.

Before everyone could wrap their heads around this, both companies had already begun the handover process.

People now looked at Dawson Schuler differently.

Some even suspected that the man had something to do with Sebastian's death. Nevertheless, nobody had any evidence.

After Sebastian's death, Dawson became the leading figure in the domestic supermarket industry. However, he did not mention the establishment of industry standards, nor did he intend to become the chairman of the board.

As a result, the noise around the matter eventually quietened down. It was as if nothing had ever happened.

All that remained was to come up with the details regarding how the merger between Kaymaroon and Schuler Corporations should take place, and how to operate both companies to their fullest potential within the shortest possible time. In this regard, Jasper did not intervene much anymore.

"Why do I keep having the feeling that the two of you are hiding something from me?" Wendy asked while staring at Jasper suspiciously.

Jasper laughed. "You're so smart. How can I hide anything from you?" He asked.

Wendy was not fooled by Jasper's sugarcoated words. She huffed and said, "Although my father has been extremely busy these past few days, he has been exceptionally energetic and passionate. He seemed so much happier than he was in the past. He was smiling in front of everyone!”

“Isn’t that a good thing?” Jasper joked. “You wouldn’t want to see him moping about everyday, right?”

“You’re so annoying!” Wendy exclaimed, glaring at Jasper. Since he kept avoiding the topic and seemed reluctant to tell her more, she did not bother trying to get to the bottom of it.

Thus, Wendy changed the topic. “Are you really going to send me to school today?” She asked excitedly.

“Yes, I’ll send you since I’m free today. I’ll be busy from tomorrow onward,” Jasper replied.

It had been half a month since Schuler Corporation acquired Kaymaroon. He had received some news from the Combes yesterday.

They told him that the higher-ups had decided to hold the gala in advance, and so, this task naturally fell on shoulders of Easy Media as they were the main organizer.

As a result, this made it even more difficult for him to cope with their tight schedule. Without much choice, Jasper resorted to asking Advent Entertainment Group to send most of their staff over to help out.

The venue confirmation, venue decoration, gala program arrangement, and the lineup of invited guests all had to be reported to the higher-ups for approval and for their consideration.

Those in lower positions were not qualified to make important decisions. Even so, Jasper had to be there to watch over the proceedings, and so he make provide the final say and compile everything into a plan report that would be submitted for approval.

The next day's agenda consisted of determining the list of invited guests. The higher-ups would also send someone over to participate in the meeting. Therefore, Jasper had to be prepared.

While they chatted, the car arrived at Swallow Capital University.

Life at the Top Chapter 371

After ordering Julian to wait for him in the car, Jasper walked Wendy into the campus of Swallow Capital University.

“A prestigious university with more than a century of longstanding history is indeed different,” Jasper remarked as he surveyed the pleasant surroundings and looked at the students, who were either walking by in a rush or strolling along while chatting away happily.

With Wendy walking beside him, the two of them easily attracted everyone’s attention. Anyone who passed by, regardless of age or gender, would glance at Wendy and do a double-take.

Wendy was evidently used to receiving such treatment. She told Jasper, “I’ve been studying here for a few days, and I think that the teachers in my classes are all extremely good. They’ve given me plenty of inspiration. Why don’t you come here and take an MBA to further polish yourself?”

Jasper shook his head and chuckled. “I can’t obtain the knowledge that I need here. Besides, it’s sufficient to have you here. I’d rather not come and waste my time,” he said.

Others polished themselves by obtaining a diploma to show to their bosses. If he obtained a diploma, who would he show it to? Therefore, Jasper had never considered doing such a thing.

Universities only taught students theoretical knowledge. However, you needed to have practical experience in the business world.

No matter how skilled one was in terms of theory, they could only be a capable manager at most. In reality, it was different if you wanted to be a good boss.

None of the powerful bosses out there had paved their way by being good in their studies.

Jasper had just finished speaking when a scoff rang out from beside them.

“There aren’t many people who dare to speak so boldly in the Swallow Capital University Campus. You said that you can’t obtain the knowledge that you need here? Given your bold words, I wonder which globally renowned university you graduated from?”

Jasper turned around to see two people. A young man and a young woman walked toward them.

The young man was dressed casually. His clothes and accessories were all of great value. Anyone could tell that he was not from an ordinary family at just a glance.

There was a beautiful and graceful woman standing beside the haughty and imposing young man. She exuded a good temperament, and was not dressed gaudily. According to societal standards, she was a girl with looks that were above average.

However, her beauty was overshadowed by Wendy’s presence.

Anna Law was the only person that Jasper knew whose aura did not diminish in front of Wendy.

Upon seeing Wendy turn around, the man voiced out, “Wendy, I offered to walk you to your classes before this, but you didn’t want me to. How did you meet someone like that?”

Wendy frowned slightly. “Ben, we’re just classmates. I don’t need to trouble you by asking you to walk me to my classes. Also, he’s my boyfriend. He’s not just ‘someone like that’. Please be more polite,” she said.

A slight furrow formed on Ben's brow once he heard what she said. He fixed an icy gaze upon Jasper.

He thought that Jasper was simply one of Wendy's pursuers, much akin to him. He had never expected for him to be her boyfriend.

Ben Hull, who was enrolled in the MBA course as well, had been crazily obsessed with Wendy ever since he first saw her.

He had seen plenty of pretty girls and all sorts of beautiful faces, but he had never once met a woman that moved his heart as much as she did.

Ben had done everything that he could to win her heart these few days, but Wendy did not show any form of reciprocation.

Her phone number was also in the address book of the class, which everyone had access to.

Nevertheless, the harder it was to obtain something, the more Ben wanted to get his hands on it.

However, Wendy Schuler suddenly had a boyfriend?

"You're really something, my friend. You even managed to win the heart of our class belle. However, you haven't replied me. Since you said that you don't like the courses provided on the campus of Swallow Capital University, which prestigious university did you graduate from? Please enlighten me."

Life at the Top Chapter 372

“I didn’t graduate from a globally prestigious university. I’m from an ordinary domestic second-rank university.”

Jasper did not shy away from the question regarding his academic qualifications.

He did not think that it was something to be embarrassed about.

One’s academic qualifications could only reflect one’s learning abilities when they were young. It could not determine one’s final achievements.

This was one of the criteria set by Jasper in the recruitment processes of all of the companies under him. His companies were not allowed to use academic qualifications as a mandatory requirement for recruitment.

Ben and the woman beside him instantly burst out into laughter after Jasper spoke.

“You were right about people nowadays, Ben. The less capable they are, the more they like to boast about themselves.”

The girl beside Ben remarked.

She looked at Jasper with a gaze full of disgust. It was as if Jasper exuded a terrible stench that would infect her if she so much as gave him a glance.

Ben chuckled and replied, “That’s why I told you that you have to be more careful when you go out next time. Some people are capable of doing anything just to get on the side of the rich and powerful. They love to brag in front of others and act all high and mighty despite being completely incapable.”

“Take me for instance. Although I graduated from Evergreen University through a full undergraduate course, I have never dared to say that the knowledge we obtain from university isn’t important. Only some people that have never experienced studying in a top university would be shameless enough to say that the syllabus taught in universities is useless.”

Ben grinned at Jasper while speaking. “I’m not talking about you, so don’t take it personally,” he said, feigning a look of compassion.

Unlike his words, there was a satisfied and mocking gaze in his eyes. He did not even bother to hide it.

“I value a person’s abilities and achievements after entering society more than a graduation certificate. Be it Swallow Capital University or Evergreen University, the school mottos of both these top universities are centered on the value of virtue over fame and fortune.”

Jasper’s tone did not waver in the slightest in the face of their overt mockery and taunts.

Ben’s expression darkened after he heard what Jasper said.

He had never expected Jasper to counter him using the words from the mottos of his two institutions.

Nevertheless, there was no way for him to refute Jasper.

The school motto of Evergreen University: Be virtuous and strive for self-improvement.

Did it not mean that one’s moral character was the most important thing?

A wise saying like that stood true in any given circumstance.

“You certainly have a way with words,” Ben said stonily with a smirk plastered on his face. His smile did not reach his eyes.

Ben’s cousin, Lisa Gardner, frowned. “You’re simply distorting the facts to justify yourself. I’ve seen a lot of people like you. People like you just want to gain attention by talking about morals and principles, when in fact, you’re just a dimwit,” she said impolitely.

“Even if I’m a dimwit, that has nothing to do with the both of you, right?” Jasper asked.

Feeling suffocated, Lisa choked on her words.

Wendy almost burst out into laughter at the sight of the unpleasant expressions on both of their faces.

Jasper had never been at a disadvantage when facing rude people like these.

“Jasp, let’s go. We have nothing more to say to them,” Wendy told Jasper.

Jasper nodded. He glanced at the two of them before attempting to leave with Wendy.

Life at the Top Chapter 373

Lisa, however, was unwilling to concede. She had never suffered such mistreatment before, so she stood right in front of the two and blocked their paths.

“What do you want?” Wendy was slightly annoyed and she frowned as she spoke. Her tone was no longer as polite as it was when she had tried to keep their relationship neutral before. Rather, it was fierce now.

“Look, Miss Wendy, we’re all classmates here, so I’m telling you that the man beside you isn’t worth your time! I’m only telling you this for your sake because I can’t bear to witness it anymore.” Lisa huffed arrogantly.

“Not everyone can enroll in MBA, and those who do are all formidable in either their academics or familial background. But look at that nobody next to you? All he has is talk—you’re just degrading yourself by being with him.”

“Don’t say that, Lisa. We have to respect Wendy’s decisions.” Ben laughed as he spoke, his expression polite.

“Perhaps Wendy hasn’t met many people before this, and her limited social experience is why she’s an easy target for others to trick. She’ll know that there are more outstanding people outside after broadening her experience, and she’ll soon know better than to be with some ignorant idiot.”

Lisa replied calmly, “It’d be too late then.

“My cousin’s liked you for a long time, Wendy, so how about you give each other a chance? Date each other for a while and I’m sure you’ll realize that he’s very outstanding. At the least, you’ll realize he’s much better than a nobody that’s all talk.”

Lisa sounded sincere, as if she truly believed that she was doing the right thing and was trying to save Wendy from disaster.

Yet, this only fueled Wendy’s displeasure and anger.

Right then, Jasper patted the back of Wendy’s hand to calm her down.

“Why am I the nobody that’s all talk?” Jasper asked.

As a man, there was no way Jasper would stand still as someone degraded him to this extent.

“We turn a blind eye and let you lie as you please, but you’re dead wrong if you think this makes you worthy to contribute to our conversation. If this is how you’re going to act, then I may as well make myself clear then. A nobody that’s all talk—that’s exactly what you are. Or are you telling me that I got it wrong?”

Lisa pointed at Jasper and interrogated him disdainfully, “Do you even know how much one year of MBA tuition costs? Do you know what kind of people the class is made up of?”

“You should know that, or you wouldn’t stick to Wendy so shamelessly, would you? You just like the fact that she’s pretty and rich. Did you think we couldn’t tell?”

“At least look at the mirror first. Do you think you have the ability to give Wendy happiness and the life she wants to live? It costs a million per year for an MBA, so forget everything else, can you even pay her school fees?”

Lisa scoffed. She looked down on Jasper just because she was from a higher social class and somehow that made her better than him. “You can’t even imagine how much money that is, but it is a different story for Ben. The President of the Haddock Chamber of Commerce is Ben’s father, and Ben is the heir to the QC Group!”

“Ben started in a position that nobodies like you could ever imagine ever since the moment he was born, so what makes you think you can fight with him?”

Then Lisa pulled out the car keys to a Maserati from her LV purse and spoke calmly, “Do you see this? A top-level Maserati Quattroporte, with an on-the-road price of 3.8 million. If you weren’t born with it, then you’d never have it no matter how hard you tried. You poor beggar.”

Jasper smiled and pulled out his car keys from his pant pockets and spoke, "And here I thought that it was something special. A car key, right? I have one too."

The huge Bentley logo, with angel wings spreading out on both sides of the letter B, was a symbol of wealth and dignity.

"It's no Maserati, but a Bentley has an on-the-road price of 5 million. A little more expensive than yours. What a shame that I didn't have it when I was young, but it's mine now."

Then Jasper shrugged and glanced at Ben and Lisa, who were both shocked and mortified. He reached out to wrap an arm around Wendy and smiled, his expression gentle and calm.

Ben stared enviously at the arm Jasper had wrapped around Wendy's small waist and clenched his fists. He had never felt so humiliated before in his life.

"Benny, is that... real?" Lisa asked embarrassedly.

"No way! Look at that nobody, even his clothes are cheap pieces you could buy from the streets. None of what he wears is over 200 bucks, yet you tell me he drives a Bentley? We saw them get out of an ordinary Buick at the gates!"

Lisa brightened at the memory, thinking that she had been played. She huffed angrily. "Exactly! Even if it was a Bentley, that'd still be Wendy's Bentley!"

Life at the Top Chapter 374

“Whatever helps you sleep at night, then,” Jasper replied plainly.

“But I’d appreciate it if you stopped pretending that you’re better than everyone else. You look immature.”

Jasper’s words infuriated Lisa.

“What did you say?!” Lisa screamed.

“I think you’re just humiliated because we saw through your lies.”

Then, Lisa sneered. “That has to be it, or how about you show us your driving license as proof?”

Jasper replied calmly, “You’re just going to suspect that I’m living off Wendy’s money when you see my name on my driving license, won’t you?”

“I could show you my bank account balance, but then you’d suspect that I faked that too. Or perhaps I had photoshopped it.”

Smiling, Jasper spoke plainly, “I don’t have to prove anything to you at all. You acting like you’re better than everyone just looks childish and stupid to me.

“I won’t deny that you have a great family background, but that does not make you nobles who are better than everyone else.

“People are people, and if you think being rich gives you the right to look down on people, then people richer than you will only look down at you in the same way. That’s karma.”

Ben replied coldly, "What are you trying to say, then? Lisa's right, you're just guilty."

"I don't need to hear your opinion or what you think about him," Wendy suddenly spoke, turning to look at Ben and Lisa indifferently.

"My relationship with him is our own matter, and I don't need, nor is it up to, you to interfere and decide on what should happen in it. Thank you for caring, but your so-called care has only made me feel uncomfortable. How about you take care of yourselves first?"

Wendy then turned to Jasper and said in a soft tone, "Let's go, Jasper. I'm a little tired."

Jasper nodded and left with Wendy, his arm around her waist.

Envious and furious, Ben's gaze was filled with fury and jealousy as he stared at the two exiting figures.

Especially the hand Jasper rested on Wendy's slim waist. It almost seemed like he was doing it on purpose to piss him off as, instead of letting go, Jasper immediately held her tighter.

"B*stard!" Ben clenched his jaw and growled.

Lisa tugged at Ben's shirt and whispered, "Don't worry, Benny, we still have time. We'll find a way to get him back for this."

Ben scoffed. "People like him will never have the right to be compared to me. It'll only be a matter of time before I make Wendy understand that I'm the one who's right for her."

Lisa nodded. "Yeah, I believe you."

Ben's expression smoothed out and he smiled. "Enough about me, how has your relationship with Mr. Erik Turner been lately? The family's been really eager to know how you're doing. It'll be great for the family if a marriage union with the Turner family is set in place."

Lisa smiled proudly. "It's going smoothly. We need the Turners, and the Turners need the support from the business people of Haddock as well."

"I don't know what happened but he doesn't seem to be in a good mood these days. He looks ready to kill someone every time I saw him. I'd say he got his d*ck cut off if I didn't know any better."

"It shouldn't be anything big though, Erik asked me out for dinner tonight."

Ben nodded, pleased by what he was hearing. "If you and Mr. Turner can take things a further step in your relationship, I'd say it'd be worth this MBA in Swallow Capital. Since we did all this just so you would have a reason to get closer to Mr. Turner."

Life at the Top Chapter 375

"Oh, and Benny, about the celebratory banquet for the approval to host the Olympics, our dads will definitely attend as representatives of the businesspeople of Haddock. Did you tell Uncle to add you to the list of attendees yet?" Lisa asked.

Ben sighed. "It's a very high-scale banquet, and our dads are only invited because they're the president and vice president of the Haddock Chamber of Commerce. I'm not at that level of importance yet, so my dad said he'll apply, but fingers crossed for results."

“I think we should still go as long as there’s a way, even if we’re only going to be sitting at a corner behind. Considering its scale, everyone in attendance will be from rich families. It’ll do us good to meet a few powerful people here and there.”

Ben looked even more despondent when he heard Lisa’s words. “Theoretically speaking, yes, but it’s still a very high-class banquet and our statuses haven’t reached such a level yet. All we can do now is apply and see if fate will be kind to us or not.”

“Or I could tell Mr. Turner about it tonight during dinner? He might have a way considering how powerful the Turner family is in Swallow Capital. It shouldn’t be too hard for him to get our names on the attendance list, right?” Lisa suggested.

Ben’s gaze brightened as he nodded. “Yeah, that sounds like a great idea. Good luck tonight, then!”

Lisa smiled confidently. “As long as Mr. Turner has a say in this, then I’m sure I can convince him to help us.”

...

While dropping Wendy off in her classroom, Jasper became stressed.

“Don’t interact with boys so much, especially Ben. Don’t get too close to him, and call me if he bothers you again.”

After giving it some thought, Jasper added, “Maybe I’ll get Julian to follow you wherever you go. That should do the trick.”

Wendy looked at Jasper exasperatedly, and she immediately declined after realizing that many other classmates were looking at them curiously. “You’re starting to act like my mom. I know how to protect myself, so don’t worry, okay?”

“I should still have Julian follow you, though. You’re out and about all the time. You’ll be meeting all sorts of people outside too.”

Jasper smiled. “Don’t worry, as long as I don’t actively provoke someone, no one’s going to want to bother me here in Swallow Capital. I’m safe for now.”

Jasper was not lying. Now that the situation with the Turners was over, the Combe family had turned into his most loyal underlings. He had completely devoured the entirety of Kaymaroon. Jasper did not have any enemies in Swallow Capital for now.

Even if someone wanted to screw him over, they would not dare to do it now when Jasper was currently in charge of the celebratory banquet. Everyone was fighting to fawn over him and apple-polish the man.

Nothing was more important than the celebratory banquet!

This was more than a mere business gala, for it was an important event that would speak for the country’s might.

The higher-ups had told him yesterday of some big shots whose attendances were confirmed, and Jasper felt his heart shake in fright at the mere sight of their names.

Jasper was an outstanding person himself, but these bigwigs were all of formidable statuses. They were people Jasper had only ever seen on the news in his past life.

Outsiders could not possibly imagine the true meaning of the banquet and how aristocratic it was.

“Then I’ll get going first. Call me if you need anything, okay?” Jasper spoke.

Wendy nodded. Suddenly remembering something, she asked, “Oh, Jasp? Can I bring a few friends to your banquet? They’re good friends of mine and they’re hoping they can attend.”

Worrying that it would put Jasper in a tough spot, Wendy backtracked and said, "It's alright if they can't. I didn't tell anyone about it yet so they don't know that you're the host."

Jasper smiled. "That's fine. Hand me a list of their names later and I'll add it to the attendance list. It's just a few extra invitations, so don't worry about it."

"Okay!"

Wendy smiled at Jasper sweetly. She was in a wonderful mood considering how her boyfriend could so easily deal with the issue of being invited when an invitation to the banquet was something the upper-class outside was pleading to receive.

Life at the Top Chapter 376

Exiting Swallow Capital University, Jasper returned to the hotel to rouse Henry from his sweet dreams.

“Hey! What the f*ck man, f*ck you! I was having a nice f*cking dream there!”

Henry growled, angry and bleary-eyed.

Jasper took a look at the hickey left on his neck and huffed. “You’ve been spending these few nights drowning in women, haven’t you? The moment Anna left, you completely let go and do whatever you want.”

Henry’s pissed expression froze and he immediately denied. “Hey, I’m innocent, okay! I didn’t...”

Then as he spoke, he watched Jasper pick up a black bra with a trendy design by the bed with two fingers...

Henry immediately shut his mouth and tried to recall his memory. ‘Who did I bring over last night? Was it the innocent Annie, the sexy Angela, or the intellectual Catherine?’

‘F*ck! That’s too many women, I can’t even tell them apart anymore!’

As such, Henry decided he would not think about it and just block all of them. He could not believe he made a fool of himself in front of his future brother-in-law.

Jasper ignored the embarrassed expression Henry wore and decided to ask in seriousness, “Do you have a way to contact your grandfather?”

Henry was stunned. “My grandfather? I mean I have his assistant’s phone number, but why do you want to contact my grandfather?”

Jasper smiled. “I was hoping to invite him to the celebratory banquet next week.”

Henry shuddered, and the thick drowsiness muffling his mind immediately vanished. He instantly became filled with vigor as he roared, “Calling my grandfather over? Do we need to kill someone? The Turners? Yeah, man, let’s do it! I knew you wouldn’t just let the Turners go so easily. We’ll f*ck those motherf*ckers up so bad! The moment my grandfather is involved in this, they can kiss their wealth and status goodbye!”

Jasper took Henry’s phone and spoke exasperatedly, “Is your every thought just filled with bullsh*t like that? I might as well admit my loss if I have to involve Old Master Law just to fight someone.”

Henry was stunned. “Not at all. That’s how we all do things. We go to our parents when people bully us.”

As he dialed the number, Jasper spoke, “Seems like you’ve bothered him quite a bit for things like this, then.”

Henry looked embarrassed as he scratched his head. “No way. Others like to ask their parents for help, but I just turn to Anna instead. It’s embarrassing... but you know how it is in my family. My dad would break my legs and I don’t want to imagine what my grandfather would do.”

While Henry spoke, Jasper’s call with the old master’s assistant was connected. The phone was then passed to Old Master Law.

“Old Master Law. It’s me, Jasper,” Jasper greeted politely.

Old Master Law’s bright laughter echoed through the speakers. “You’re calling about the banquet, aren’t you, Jasper? Zachary told me about it yesterday. I was just about to have him tell you when you called me yourself.”

Jasper replied sincerely, "I've been thinking about it, and I realized that even though it's only right I tell Uncle Law in advance, I should still discuss this with you myself regarding inviting you to the banquet."

Old Master Law was extremely pleased with Jasper's detailed thoughtfulness and smiled. "Don't worry, I'll be there. One, to support you so that people won't look down on you, and two, there are also some things about the family that I have to talk to them about in Swallow Capital."

Jasper knew that he was referring to the Olympic Village. 'It seems like Old Master Law is planning to take the project for sure.'

"Alright then. I'll pick you up from the airport," Jasper replied happily.

Old Master Law chuckled. "No need. We'll get there ourselves. You don't need to fetch us at all. Aren't you busy enough right now? Just focus on your own things and push everything else to the side."

"I've already put a word in with Spencer, Joe, and Wallace for you. They'll be there too, so you don't have to call them," Old Master Law spoke gently.

Jasper was stunned. Old Master Law was doing more than just standing on his side. He had also gotten the rest of Harbor City's major rich families to support him.

Life at the Top Chapter 377

At the same time, Jasper was well aware that the more support he received, the more careful he had to be.

After all, while he and Spencer Boyle were acquaintances, he and Joe were practically strangers. The gap in their statuses was too large.

As for a big shot like Wallace, Jasper had never once spoken to the man at all. The only impression he had was of Kennedy, and even then it was not great. If anything, Jasper found Kennedy an extremely selfish hero.

None of them were easy to talk to.

With his own ability, there was no way Jasper would have gotten all four families to attend.

The fact that they were attending was all thanks to Old Master Law.

“Thank you.” Jasper gave his heartfelt gratitude.

Old Master Law smiled warmly. “What for? You’re being too polite to an old man like me.

“The four of us will be in attendance because we think you have promising talents. You helped the four of our families during that stock market war in Harbor City back then, so they’re just returning the favor.

“And at the same time, the celebratory banquet for gaining the right to host the Olympics is a large event. It’s good news for the country and its citizens. There’s no way we’d miss this out.”

Then, Old Master Law advised in a meaningful tone, “You’ve always had a good grasp of what kind of future you want for yourself, but remember that as much as this is a chance for you, it’s also a test. The smallest details can affect the majority, so be very careful and attentive.”

Jasper’s mind lit up at the advice. There was no reason for Old Master Law to say meaningless things considering his status and identity, so there had to be something more to his words.

He remembered how he had suggested to Zachary the possibility of a mole within the four rich families during Harbor City’s stock market havoc.

Hearing Old Master Law, it seemed like he had an inkling but was not certain yet.

‘Could it be Spencer Boyle?’

‘Joe Langdon?’

‘Or Wallace Langdon who always kept a low profile?’

Jasper shook his head and did not delve deeper into the issue. He turned to the phone and replied, “I understand, Old Master Law. I’ll keep a closer eye out.”

The old master smiled. “Don’t think too much about it. You’re still young, still in the developmental stage. Growth is a process, so give it some more time and no one will be able to hold you back.

“Henry didn’t cause you any trouble there, did he?”

At that, Jasper glanced subconsciously at the hickey on Henry’s neck and the woman’s undergarment on the floor before replying with slight embarrassment, “He’s still the same, but it could be worse.”

“This child.” Considering who Old Master Law was, he understood what Jasper meant immediately and had Jasper pass the phone to Henry so he could speak to his grandson.

Henry immediately felt goosebumps across his skin when he saw Jasper passing the phone to him instead of hanging up after they were done with their conversation.

He stared at the phone in Jasper’s hand in fright as if it was a bomb.

Still, he did not dare to make the Old Master wait, so he stuttered as he took the phone and wailed as he greeted his grandfather.

Jasper had no way of knowing what the old master told Henry over the phone, but seeing how wilted the man looked after he hung up, Jasper knew that Henry had been taught a lesson.

Henry felt Jasper’s gaze and shrugged, not embarrassed in the slightest. “You get used to it. After all, I’m in Swallow Capital now and it’s not like I’ll get physically hurt from a scolding.”

Life at the Top Chapter 378

The following day, Jasper arrived at Easy Media half an hour before the scheduled meeting was about to begin.

Ryder, who had arrived long before him, brought his team and a few senior executives over to greet him.

“How’d it go? Was it smooth?” Jasper shook Ryder’s hand and asked with a smile.

Ryder looked exhausted, but his expression was one of excitement. “It was very hectic, to be honest. The people in Easy Media can’t really do much since they don’t have experience in hosting large-scale banquets like this.”

At that, the face of the vice president of Easy Media flushed as he stood by the side.

There was not much he could say since Ryder was the president of the company in Harbor City. There was no way he would come after his spot in Easy Media if he wanted to make money.

Plus, everyone had seen the strength Ryder’s team had.

No matter the place, people tended to be impressed by people with true skills.

“Mr. Lawrence is right. We’ve realized how much we lack in that sense and we’re embarrassed.”

Thinking Jasper would scold them, the vice president was shocked to hear Jasper reassure them instead. “Don’t worry about it. Everything starts from nothing before it can grow into something. With your experience now, you’ll know what to do next time.”

Jasper then turned to the vice president seriously. “Easy Media should learn from Mr. Lawrence and their team humbly. This is an opportunity any other company could only wish to have, understood?”

The vice president immediately brightened up and replied, “Understood, Mr. Laine!”

Jasper nodded then walked toward the meeting room with the large group of people in tow. “Has the representative the higher-ups sent reached yet?”

The vice president shook his head. “We’ve sent someone to fetch them, but they’re not here yet.”

Jasper glanced at the time. 'The meeting is in less than ten minutes and they're still not here yet?'

Just then, Jasper received a call from Jacob.

"Mr. Laine, the representative sent to attend the meeting with Easy Media this time is my dad's absolute rival. He thinks that you only got the right to host because we teamed up, so he might cause you some problems."

Jasper finally understood. That explained why the other party was being so high and mighty.

"Alright, I'll keep an eye out. It's already set in stone right now and no protest is going to change anything. Unless you're telling me he has the ability to make me give up my right to host?" Jasper spoke plainly.

Jacob smiled. "The invitations have already been sent out and the banquet is in less than a week. There's no way he can make you give your rights up, nor does he have the right to host the banquet even if he manages to.

"The most he can do now is supervise the meeting, especially the list of guests in case the company tries to play dirty. Not that he has the say over who should or should not attend, since he'll have to hand the list to the higher-ups too. Basically, he's just here to be unreasonable and cause trouble. Don't take it to heart, Mr. Laine."

Understanding the deeper meaning underneath, Jasper smiled. "Alright, thanks for the intel."

Jacob hummed happily before he stuttered, "Uh, Mr. Laine? I was wondering if it'd be okay for me to go too?"

The Combe family had performed very well this time, and this mere phone call from Jacob had already reduced a lot of Jasper's issues. Naturally, he would not be calculative regarding such small matters.

“Sure. I’ll put you and your brother’s names on the list as well. As Easy Media’s shareholders, I see no problem in you attending a banquet hosted by your own company,” Jasper replied.

The mere fact that Jacob could attend was already something great and something that boosted his ego greatly. After all, the entire upper-class in Swallow Capital would be there, and everyone was proud to have their own ways to obtain an invitation.

However, since the guest list had yet to be finalized, most people who claimed to have been invited were just bluffing. Now, Jasper had not only promised his place in the guest list but his brother’s as well.

Jasper was being very nice to them.

Amidst Jacob’s repetitive thanks, Jasper hung up the phone.

It was time for the meeting to begin.

“It’s 8:30, Mr. Laine. They’re still not here yet. Should I urge their arrival?” the vice president asked carefully.

“No need. We’ll start on time. It’s not our fault he’s not here,” Jasper replied.

Life at the Top Chapter 379

Jasper did not entertain people who thought the world revolved around them just because they were of higher status.

Jasper had just finished speaking when the meeting room doors were pushed open and a middle-aged man entered the room with two other staff in tow.

The middle-aged man leading them was Jon Foxx, a man the higher-ups sent to go over the guest list.

“For a man so young, you sure have quite the temper, Mr. Laine. What’s this? I arrive right on the dot and you’re already so displeased. Who knows what you would’ve done if I came late?” Jon sneered at Jasper.

“Ted!”

Jasper suddenly frowned and shouted.

Ted was the name of Easy Media’s vice president. The man was wiping his sweat when Jasper called his name and it startled him. He quickly replied, “Present, Mr. Laine!”

“Why is there an unknown outsider in the company’s meeting room?” Jasper asked calmly.

Ted’s pupils constricted, and his complexion paled. His eyes darted toward Jon who was fuming. He bemoaned internally and bitterly. He wondered why he had to be caught in the crossfire.

“What are you saying, Jasper? I’m the team leader the higher-ups sent over to supervise the guest list. How dare you chase me out?!”

Jon pointed at Jasper as he roared, “Can you even bear the responsibility if anything goes wrong with the banquet?!”

Jasper smiled before he replied calmly, “Oh, so you’re the person the higher-ups sent to join the meeting. How am I supposed to know who you are when you just charged into my meeting room out of the blue and started reprimanding me about my temper without even telling me who you are?”

Jon's gaze turned cold as he scoffed. "Are you telling me I'm wrong about your temper? Don't think that because you're the host here that you can ignore the higher-ups' wishes. You're still too young to fight with them!"

Jasper merely replied, "I do respect the higher-ups. I just don't like pretentious people."

"What did you say?!" Jon clenched his teeth.

He had planned to make a fierce entrance and show Jasper his power. At the same time, it would be an attack on his own enemy, Hendrik Combe.

As far as he was concerned, there was more to the fact that Easy Media was given the right to host the banquet, and neither would Easy Media dare to step out of line.

However, Jon had not expected to go speechless from Jasper's chides before he could begin.

At that train of thought, Jon's fury flared.

"The company already informed you of the time and location of today's meeting three days ago. We also sent someone to fetch you and that's enough respect as it is. Yet you decided to take your own sweet time and be late, so tell me why do I have to wait for you?" Jasper asked calmly.

Jon replied coldly, "Can't there be traffic?"

"Sure." Jasper smiled and ignored him, turning to announce to everyone else in the room, "Let's start."

Eyes wide and speechless, Jon brought the two other employees with him inside. 'Jasper's just going to start the meeting when we're still standing at the door? He's not even going to ask us to sit?

‘What does he take me, Jon Foxx, for?’

His face was flushed red from being infuriated. Jon had never respected businessmen considering he had always found work with big shots.

He had always been at the receiving end of businessmen’s pleasantries, and he had never found himself at a loss of whether he should enter a businessman’s conference room or not.

“You’ve gone mad, Jasper Laine!”

Jon barked out angrily.

“Without me, any guest list you come up with is useless! They’ll never be approved!”

“And what kind of influential guests can you invite anyway? Who do you think will entertain a rascal like you when it comes to a banquet of this scale? You’ll need the officials to back you up anyway! You won’t get a single guest in attendance if you offend me, I’m telling you! You’re just f*cking yourself over!”

Life at the Top Chapter 380

The entire world would have their eyes on this banquet.

Firstly, it was of exceptional meaning and status, so it was only right that people paid attention to it.

Secondly, many were waiting to see how Jasper was going to make a fool of himself.

While Jasper would not have to bear any responsibilities if anything went south, there was no chance any media company under his name could work together with the higher-ups and officials in the future.

Within the country, a media company might as well close down if they got blacklisted by the officials.

Not to mention that there was still the guest list to worry about.

Without question, ambitious youths like Jacob Combe would do everything they could to get a spot on the guest list and Jasper could do nothing to hold them outside.

These youths had been asking around their contacts for a potential way in.

It was because this banquet would turn out to be a great chance to show their faces and broaden their contacts.

However, a banquet of such class could not possibly be made up of youths like Jacob.

That would be a joke.

To put it bluntly, they were not formidable enough.

As such, top-level big shots must attend as well.

Yet there was no way these big shots would ask to be invited themselves, so it was left to Jasper and the higher-ups to invite them.

Still, their attendance was not absolutely guaranteed.

Especially when it came to people of Old Master Law's fortitude. The officials could invite them, but if Old Master Law claimed that he was too tired and old to move, then there was nothing they could do.

Essentially, underqualified people would beg the hosting party for an invite.

While the hosting party would beg the true bigwigs to attend.

Jon's words were not baseless.

He did not believe that a youth like Jasper, a little brat he had never heard of, would be able to invite any big shots at all.

He would need the higher-ups' help in the end anyway.

By then, Jon would be able to tattle on Jasper to the higher-ups as he pleased.

Scoffing, Jon sneered at Jasper while waiting for the other to sob and beg him for forgiveness.

However, he only heard Jasper speak plainly.

"Whether I manage to invite them or not is my business. I don't need your input on the matter. Taking a step back, what makes you think you can invite guests that I cannot?"

Jon's eyes widened immediately and he stared intently at Jasper, wondering if he had heard the man wrongly.

After a while, Jon guffawed. "Fine! You think you're so great, huh? Well then, if you think you're so fine on your own, then I don't think the three of us need to sit in on this meeting, do we? I'd like to see what kind of guest list you can come up with!

“I won’t be the one getting the brunt of it when it turns out your guest list consists of just a couple of small-timers! I’d like to see how you plan to save yourself then!”

Jon spoke and turned to leave with his subordinates with the flick of his hand.

“Leave then, goodbye,” Jasper replied, unfazed.

Jon slammed the door angrily behind him as he left, and Jasper glanced at the senior executives in the room who all wore strange expressions on their faces.

Excluding Ryder’s team that came from Harbor City, Easy Media’s senior executives all looked worried and did not dare to voice their concerns.

“Don’t worry, everyone. I won’t make fun of such a big deal.”

They had no other choice but to believe in Jasper after the man’s reassurance.

After all, Jasper should be the one under the most pressure. He would be the one taking the brunt of it when everything came crashing down, not the subordinates.

“Show me the drafted guest list first. Let’s take a look at it,” Jasper instructed.

Ted, the vice president, was the person in charge of the list, so he immediately had someone display the drafted list on the large screen in the conference room.

Life at the Top Chapter 381

It was a guest list with more than 100 guests, most of whom Jasper did not recognize. Fortunately, their identities were stated beside their names.

It was just like Jon had expected. There were only a couple of small fries and no one formidable on the guest list at all.

Ted felt a little embarrassed. “Mr. Laine, these are all we could contact. They’re mostly presidents from chambers of commerce here and there, and some of them had also applied for an invite with us. After sifting through, these are who we have left.”

Jasper glanced at the screen and suddenly raised his hand to point at two names. “Ben Hull and Lisa Gardner, how did they get in?”

Ted immediately replied, “The Turner family brought them in.”

Watching the change in Jasper’s expression carefully, Ted asked, “Should I remove them?”

Jasper gave a small smile. “Leave them, they’re the children of the president and vice president of the Haddock Chamber of Commerce in the Waterhoof City branch. I’d say they borderline qualify.”

Ted let out a sigh of relief.

After reading the guest list, Jasper then spoke, “It’s mostly alright, but there are too many of them. Excluding the people we’ve all decided should remain on the list, cut down two-thirds of everyone else and leave around 70 to 80 of them.”

Ted was stunned. “Isn’t that too little people, Mr. Laine?”

Jasper then pulled out two sheets of paper. “Then add the names on these two papers.”

Ted took the paper and projected the first list to the screen.

It was still quite an ordinary list with Jacob, Hector, Wendy, and a few of her classmates’ names. They were all children of renowned families and were considered outstanding if compared to the others on the main list.

The entire meeting room fell silent for a few seconds when the other list was projected, and everyone gasped in shock. Ignoring the fact that their big boss, Jasper, was present.

A shocking list of names appeared on the screen.

“Old Master Law, his son Zachary Law, and his grandchildren Henry and Anna Law!”

“Spencer Boyle and his son Eustass Boyle!”

“Joe Langdon and his son Kayden Langdon!”

“Wallace Langdon and his son Kennedy Langdon!”

In addition to the four household surnames were more than a dozen other densely packed names underneath. The fact that they appeared after the four rich families meant that the rest all held some form of high status in Harbor City.

One might even think that this was a national leaderboard of rich families within the country if they did not know better!

Everyone knew that those first four surnames belonged to the four rich families in Harbor City.

Even though it had only been three years since the handover of Harbor City, the other three families, excluding the Laws, had already done much business with the Mainland.

That was to say the three families had their eyes on the Mainland and were uncertain whether it was worth their trust and investment.

Yet Jasper was planning to invite all four families?

It was something that had never happened since the handover.

It would be earth-shattering news should it come true.

Everyone was speechless as they looked at Jasper with utter surprise in their eyes.

Ryder was the only one grinning silently. Having come from Harbor City, he was well aware of how influential Jasper was in Harbor City.

The mere fact that he had saved the city had put Jasper at a spot where he was worthy of inviting the four rich families.

“Mister... Mr. Laine. Won't the higher-ups tell us to redraft the list if we hand those names up?” Ted asked carefully.

He did not believe that Jasper would be able to invite people of such caliber, so he assumed that Jasper merely suggested these names in hopes that the higher-ups would invite them.

That was the only way it made sense.

The other senior executives let out sighs of relief. ‘Exactly, that makes much more sense. Or this would be an utter exaggeration.’

“Why would they tell us to redraft it? I’ve already contacted everyone, so just hand the list over to them.”

Jasper’s words struck everyone again.

“Just follow as I say and it’ll be fine.”

Life at the Top Chapter 382

Jasper did not plan to explain too much.

The only reason why no one had slammed the table and swore, calling Jasper a madman, was because Jasper was their boss.

‘The Laws, the Boyles, and the two Langdons!

‘Harbor City’s four main families are people with huge influences in the entirety of Terra, let alone Somerland.

‘And Jasper says that he has already confirmed their attendance?’

Everyone’s initial reaction was disbelief.

The gap in statuses was just too large.

While no one wanted to admit how lacking their company was, the reality was that in comparison to the four rich families, even the above par Easy Media was no more than a speck of dirt.

“Compile the list as fast as possible and hand it over.”

Jasper had set in stone the most important topic for the meeting and left no room for protest.

“We don’t have much time left. How’s the progress looking for everything else?”

The following few hours had Jasper participating in the preparation of the banquet.

While he did not understand the specifics, he had still reincarnated with the memory of what was going to happen in the next 20 years into the future, after all.

He had seen a considerable amount of large-scale banquets in his past life. Both the concept and creativity from 20 years later would certainly end up at the forefront right now.

Therefore, most of Jasper’s suggestions had enlightened Ryder and Ted quite a bit.

The atmosphere in the meeting room slowly returned to normal.

Ted immediately brought people to hand over the newly drafted guest list after the meeting was over.

Jon was waiting in the office when the higher-ups called him to tell him that the guest list had been sent over. Ecstatic, Jon ran over to their office.

“Mr. Williams, I heard Easy Media has sent the guest list over?” Jon asked the moment he walked through the door.

Mr. Williams was a majestic man over the age of 50. Jon saw him holding the list in his hand when he entered.

Meanwhile, Hendrik was laughing about something beside him.

“Yeah, it’s here.” Mr. Williams glanced at Jon calmly and spoke, “I heard you left before the meeting even started?”

Jon glanced at Hendrik, who looked unfazed, and knew that it was his rival who had tattled on him. His expression immediately darkened, but he forced a smile and replied, “It’s mainly because of that Jasper. That young man is too arrogant. He has no respect for anyone else at all.”

“Enough. Do you take me for an idiot?” Mr. Williams spoke plainly.

“I already know what happened. You’re the one who didn’t respect him first. They already told you the time and place a few days in advance. They even sent someone to drive over and pick you up. You’re the one who deliberately took your own sweet time and arrived on the dot. I wouldn’t let you in the meeting room either if it were me!”

Hearing Mr. Williams’ harsh tone, Jon was stunned for a moment and immediately replied, “Mr. Williams, I—”

Mr. Williams dismissively waved a hand to interrupt Jon’s explanation and placed the guest list before him. “Take a look at this.”

Jon took it and looked through it. A moment later, his eyes widened as he burst into laughter.

“Is this Jasper Laine crazy or something? He really put Harbor City’s four rich families and all these other rich families’ names on it. What, is he asking us to invite them?”

“I told you this Jasper Laine is still too young and immature, Mr. Williams. Just look at this! Does he even know what he’s doing?”

“He talks big and he’s expecting us, the higher-ups, to clean up after him? How on earth are we supposed to invite these people? What a mess!”

“We should deal with this problem sternly, Mr. Williams. This Jasper Laine will remain ignorant forever if we don’t teach him a good lesson.”

Life at the Top Chapter 383

Hendrik chuckled and spoke, “Don’t jump to conclusions so quickly, Foxx. Mr. Williams hasn’t even said anything yet.”

Jon halted mid-grumble and looked at Mr. Williams reflexively, only to realize that the other was frowning and looking at him with displeasure.

Jon immediately lost all bravery to speak, not knowing where he had made a mistake.

“The people from Easy Media have made it very clear when they sent over the list that we don’t have to invite a single person on the list. Easy Media has already contacted them and confirmed their attendance,” Mr. Williams spoke calmly.

Jon instantly paled and shouted in shock, “No way! There’s no way someone like Jasper could invite the four rich families!”

Mr. Williams replied coldly, “Are you suggesting that my eyesight and my hearing are horrible because of my age, or are you implying that Jasper is so gallant he’s making a joke about something like this?”

Jon sputtered and was lost for words.

With a scoff, Mr. Williams replied, “The older you get, the more close-minded you are! Leave! You don’t need to follow up on the banquet’s preparations anymore!”

Jon walked out of the office despondently and muttered under his breath with his teeth clenched fiercely and resentfully.

“Just wait and see, Jasper Laine! I won’t let you get away with this! There’s no way you’ll be able to invite all four rich families to the banquet! I’d like to see how you plan to save your dignity when you make a fool of yourself!”

...

At Swallow Capital University, the doors to the MBA refresher course.

Jasper was currently waiting for Wendy’s class to end.

The two of them had agreed to go out for dinner together.

The banquet was in two days and all the guests on the list had already received their invitations.

This MBA class was made up of formidable students. Four to five of them received invitations thanks to Wendy.

The rest of them had also received invitations thanks to their own contacts and ways.

Everyone was currently bragging about the invitation they had, leaving those without invitations embarrassed and disappointed.

In Swallow Capital right now, being invited had become a symbol of their strength.

Wendy walked out of the class excitedly and turned to Jasper happily. “My classmates are very grateful. They keep asking me how I did it but don’t worry, I didn’t sell you out.”

“How are you going to thank me, then?” Jasper chuckled.

Wendy took in Jasper’s gentle smile and her mind was filled with rather indecent thoughts.

She must have thought of something for her cheeks suddenly flushed lightly and she averted her gaze while muttering, “You rascal!”

Jasper felt very wronged considering the ‘rascal’ was completely unwarranted and he was about to speak when he saw Ben and Lisa walking over.

“What are you doing here again?” Lisa asked Jasper distastefully.

Jasper simply replied, “Fetching my girlfriend.”

Lisa scoffed. “I’ve never actually seen someone as shameless as you. You’re even calling her your girlfriend, did you not hear a word I said that day?”

“Sorry, I don’t have the habit of listening to flies whizzing around my ears,” Jasper replied.

Lisa turned slightly pale due to being infuriated and spoke angrily, “Who are you calling a fly?”

Ben spoke calmly, “There’s no need to be angry at the lower class, Lisa. You should take good care of your skin. You’re going to the banquet with Mr. Turner in two days, after all. People from the lower class like him will only get to watch it on TV.”

Lisa scoffed. “You can never be sure. With how good Miss Wendy’s connections are, who knows? She might even manage to get him an invitation.”

Life at the Top Chapter 384

Ben chortled at the suggestion. “So what if he shamelessly finds a way in? Think about the setting.

“Who’s going to pay him any attention, hmm? He can’t possibly introduce himself as Wendy’s boyfriend every time someone talks to him. The host will just think that he’s an idiot and throw him out! Hahaha!”

Lisa covered her mouth as she snickered. “Maybe no one will even talk to him at all? He’s just going to stand in a corner and take a few pictures so it’ll prove that he managed to smuggle into the upper class.”

Jasper calmly watched the two cousins’ performance and asked, “So you’ve been invited too? You’ll definitely be going, right?”

Lisa replied arrogantly, “Mr. Turner and I are close. We might even get married in the future, so what are two invitations? Of course, we’ll be going. Why, are you scared? Or are you upset that Miss Wendy didn’t get you an invitation at all, hmm?”

Jasper replied unaffectedly, “Neither. It’s nice to know that you’ll be going. It’d be a shame if you weren’t.”

Ben was sharply aware that Jasper’s words held more meaning to them than it seemed, but Lisa spoke before he could say anything, “Stop playing around. Oh, how I wish Wendy didn’t get you an invite this time.

“Then at least you’ll truly understand what the upper class actually is. It’s not something a nobody like you can pretend to be part of. You’ll only look like some cheap replica and make a fool of yourself!”

“The upper class?” Jasper asked and huffed a laugh. “Then I shall anticipate understanding what this upper class you claim is.”

Lisa scoffed. “Of course, you’ll anticipate it. What a shame that you can only dream of becoming a part of it one day.”

Lisa then turned to Wendy and chided even though the latter’s expression was completely indifferent. “I’ll say this again, Miss Wendy, but you should really consider it. Ben is more outstanding than that nobody in all sorts of ways imaginable. Why can’t you just understand such simple logic?”

“That nobody can’t do anything else except gloat baselessly. He’s just going to cling to you and feed off you. He’s not worth your time at all. Someone as outstanding as my cousin should be your correct match here.”

Wendy stared at Lisa coldly and suddenly sighed.

“To be honest, this is the first time I’ve met someone like you. Everything you talk about, you try and drag the upper class into it. Do you really think that you belong in this so-called upper class with your resources and ability?”

“The real upper class don’t act like you.”

Wendy’s words made Lisa’s expression turn sour. The woman glared at Wendy and spoke angrily, “I’ve been polite to you this entire time. What are you trying to say here?!”

Wendy scoffed. “All you do is mock my boyfriend and there’s only so much I can endure before you piss me off. Humiliating him is no different than humiliating me, and you expect me to welcome this, why?”

“You keep acting like you’re better than everyone else as if everything you say is for my sake. Let’s be blunt, what does my relationship have to do with you?”

Lisa was irked with humiliation. "I'd ignore women so easily deceived such as you had it not been for the fact that Ben likes you!"

"Then please ignore me." Wendy took Jasper's hand and spoke, "Let's go, Jasp. There's no point in talking to ignorant people like this."

"Hold on."

Ben called out after the two who were turning to leave.

Looking at Jasper calmly, Ben spoke, "Do you have the guts to take up my challenge for a fair fight? I won't hold my familial background over you, but I will make Wendy change her mind and choose me within three months."

Lisa scoffed. "You don't need a woman who won't admit to her mistake until it's too late, Benny. What fair fight? As if he's worthy of it."

"Enough, Lisa. I know what I'm doing," Ben spoke calmly.

Ben then turned to look at Jasper arrogantly and sneered, "Do you dare?"

Jasper laughed and replied, "A fair fight?"

Life at the Top Chapter 385

He waved his and Wendy's interlocked hands before Ben as he spoke, "Wendy isn't a piece of property. She's not something anyone can just buy over just because they're willing to propose a higher price. Plus, why would I need to take up a fair fight with you when I've already won?"

Jasper then pulled Wendy away. She had wanted to leave long ago.

A pair of cold eyes watched the duo leave, and Ben flushed in humiliation and fury. His molars ground together as he shouted, "You're just too much of a chicken, Jasper! Admit it!"

"You'd take on my challenge if you were a man!"

Jasper did not even look back as two words drifted over to them, "F*cking stupid."

"You're just afraid! You just don't have the guts to take me on!" Ben clenched his teeth and roared.

Jasper did not even reply this time and walked farther away.

Lisa saw the irritation on Ben's face and consoled him, saying, "Don't waste your time getting angry at people like them, Benny. From what I see, Wendy's just a stupid girl. She's not worth your effort."

Ben harrumphed, but there was indignance in his cold eyes when he spoke, "The more unattainable she is, the more I want her! I'm Ben Hull. Since when has anyone dared to humiliate me like this?!"

Lisa gave it some thought and spoke, "The banquet is in two days, Benny. We could contact a few friends then so that you can show off how capable you are in front of Wendy. Even if Jasper's there, what can a useless nobody do?"

Ben nodded in agreement and scoffed. "People with contacts and ability will always rise above in a society like this. He's dead wrong if he thinks bluffing will get him anywhere. We'll wait these two days out!"

"We'll leave the matter be if Jasper doesn't show up. We just need Wendy to understand that I'm the only one who's a proper match for her. But if he does come, hmph! I'll make him pay for trying to force himself into this circle he doesn't belong in!"

...

Swallow Capital was known for its roasted duck.

Wendy was not a fan of French cuisine, nor did she like dishes that included a lot of deep-frying. As such, the renowned restaurant offering roasted duck became the best choice for the two's dinner date.

"Don't you find it weird? Coming to this renowned shop for roasted duck and a bowl of noodles instead of going to a romantic or grand restaurant? I'm on a date with my girlfriend here." Jasper chuckled.

Wendy merely pursed her lips and scoffed lightly. "But I like these dishes. What's so good about French or other high-class restaurants anyway? A simple dish of vegetables here boosts my appetite way more."

"That's fair," Jasper agreed.

Many customers were walking about as the two ate, most of whom were from foreign lands. There were quite a few TVs in the shop as well.

Be it the tourists or the news on the television, everyone was talking about the same thing.

Mainly, the celebratory banquet for gaining the right to host the Olympics. It was in a few days.

Under the vicious publicity of its citizens and government, the fact that Swallow Capital had been approved to host the Olympics had now turned into big news even within the country. In extension, its specially prepared celebratory banquet had also become an opportunity to show the world the country's prestige and might before the Olympics began.

“They’re all talking about the banquet you’re hosting,” Wendy whispered.

Jasper smiled. “Yeah. What a capable boyfriend you have, am I right?”

Wendy’s beautiful eyes shone as she glared at him. “Is everything prepared? This is something big. Be careful of any potential blunders, okay?”

Jasper chuckled. “Don’t worry. I’ll surprise everyone.”

Life at the Top Chapter 386

As expected, the celebratory banquet for gaining the right to host the Olympics had become a large event involving the entire country.

Entertainment, for citizens right now, was a far cry from the diverse options that would appear in the future. All they had were a few ways to have fun here and there.

The nightlife was mainly dancing at the disco or eating and drinking beer by barbeque stalls. Some larger cities might have karaoke rooms and people would drop by to sing a few songs.

That was all.

Thus, the moment news of the banquet was released, it instantly became a household topic within the country considering its link to the approval to host the Olympics.

Its influence could be considered second to only the annual New Year's Eve countdown on national television.

Still, the countdown was annual, but there was only ever this one celebratory banquet for having gained the right to host the Olympics.

It made the banquet much more special.

The following day, Jasper and Henry arrived at the airport together.

All the guests from Harbor City would be arriving at Swallow Capital today, so Jasper definitely had to pick them up.

However, Jasper was not the focus when he arrived at the airport.

Considering all four rich families would be arriving together, including a formidable senior like Old Master Law, Swallow Capital immediately resolved to give the highest standard of welcome once they got wind of it.

Disregarding the rest of the welcoming team, the mere fact that both Swallow Capital's mayor and deputy mayor were present meant that Jasper had to stand aside.

However, no one present was taking him lightly either. After all, the higher-ups were well aware that Harbor City's four major families and its top rich businessmen were here not for them but for Jasper.

Jasper had done something in Harbor City, and it was hardly a secret to the higher-ups.

As such, Jasper's arrival was also met with the mayor and his deputy's enthusiastic greetings.

As Old Master Law's grandson, Henry naturally joined in the conversations with a few of the big shots there.

"Jesus, just look at how enthusiastic they are with you. I'd say they all look like they want to lock you up in a little cage."

Henry spoke enviously when the two returned.

Jasper did not know whether to laugh or to cry. "What does locking me in a cage have anything to do with them being enthusiastic?"

"They'll lock you up so you'd work with them, of course! They've realized your capabilities and your influence," Henry explained.

Jasper smiled, but there was no shift in his expression when he replied, “They’re here because it’s your grandfather they’re welcoming. There’s no way I’d be able to speak to such big shots if I was on my own.”

Henry looked at Jasper’s calm expression and grinned. “Sometimes I really wonder if you’re a wise old man who has reincarnated into our timeline. We’re both youths, so how are you so outstanding, hmm?”

Henry would never have expected that a mere joke of his was actually the truth. Sure, Jasper was physically in his 20s, but his soul was of a wise old man who had experienced more than half a lifetime of events.

Less than ten minutes later, the special plane landed on the tarmac. Jasper and Henry followed behind the two major figures and were followed by the welcoming group.

With Old Master Law in front, the other heads of the four major families walked down the staircase. Swallow Capital’s two mayors stepped up to welcome them, enthusiastically greeting Old Master Law.

Despite this being the first time everyone was meeting each other, the older generation seemed to have a tacit understanding to all act like old friends and began to chat about.

Old Master Law excused himself and walked over to Jasper, patting his shoulder in an extremely familiar way. “We meet again, Jasper.”

Jasper greeted him politely. “I’m thrilled to see you still as bright and lively as the last time we met, Old Master.”

The old master chuckled aloud. “It’s still too early for me to rest when I see the citizens living better lives and our nation’s strength and influence growing each day.”

Life at the Top Chapter 387

Among the four families, the Laws were the most special and with the highest status in the Mainland.

He was no longer a mere businessman. In terms of status, his might be in an even higher position than both of Swallow Capital's mayors.

Regardless of whether his status was above or below the mayors', it was destined for his every action to be under public scrutiny.

Not only were the two Swallow Capital mayors confused seeing how close Old Master Law and Jasper were, but even the other three families out of the major four seemed intrigued at the sight.

Then, Spencer and Joe came over to greet Jasper.

Followed lastly by Wallace Langdon who he had never met before.

The stern and meticulous old man was followed closely by his son Kennedy. Now Kennedy, Jasper was acquainted.

"You're quite the outstanding young man," Wallace smiled and praised.

"Thank you, Mr. Langdon, but there's still a lot I have to learn from all of you." Jasper was still very attentive and detailed when it came to greeting people. His words were smooth in a way that made him seem much older than the 20-something-year-old he was.

Wallace chuckled. "Harbor City really is too small, especially in the past two years. I don't like how heavy and dead the air is. I'm glad there are youths like you to liven it up. We've got to let them know that there'll always be someone better.

"I've also realized that the Mainland seems to be flourishing much more than we thought, considering how it managed to produce such promising youth like you. I'm certain that the Mainland market will be in for a great future.

"You should come in contact with more Mainlanders these days, Kennedy. Don't simply believe that the Mainland is behind us. Know that your roots and our ancestors were all from the Mainland. Not to mention the Mainland has a boundless future, and it'll only be a short amount of time before it surpasses Harbor City.

"With such a big market here, we can follow the Laws' footsteps and start investing in the Mainland as well."

Kennedy replied courteously, "Yes, Father."

Wallace's words had easily brightened up the two mayors' moods. The four families' approval of the Mainland was in extension approval to them as well.

It would be beneficial to the country and its citizens if they managed to use this opportunity and persuade Harbor City's four families and other important businessmen to invest in the Mainland.

With that being said, Swallow Capital's two major figures found themselves more fond of Jasper. They thought this young man was very capable, and under their nurturing, could turn out into a great asset.

Following the four major families were renowned rich men of Harbor City.

Among them was Bob Lancaster, the Smith brothers, Tenson Davis, and other names that he knew from his past life.

He had seen some of them before, but there were also those he never had the fortune of meeting.

Still, everyone was polite with one another.

After all, this was a situation where even true enemies had to force a smile at each other, or they would only be seen as unreasonable.

Not to mention that Harbor City did, in a way, owe Jasper, so even the Smith brothers who were a competing rival in the media and entertainment industry were very polite with Jasper. After a long conversation, they exchanged contact information.

After the short welcoming ceremony, everyone proceeded to get into their own specified cars before heading to the hotel.

Arriving at the hotel, Jasper then spoke with Old Master Law again. However, the old master was far from young and the long flight had taken a toll on him. Plus, he also had other important people to meet that afternoon.

As such, Jasper did not overstay his welcome and excused himself after a short chat.

Zachary was the one who sent Jasper out the door.

“How’s the preparation for the banquet going? It’s starting tomorrow, isn’t it? Is there anything I can help with?” Zachary asked.

Jasper smiled. “Everything’s prepared. I don’t think there’ll be any issues.”

Zachary nodded and smiled, looking pleased. “That’s great, then. We’ll talk more after the banquet is over. This is a grand event, so do your best and make sure it’s perfect!”

Life at the Top Chapter 388

The celebratory banquet for the right to host the Olympics was held the next day.

At this moment, Honeycomb Stadium still did not exist in Swallow Capital. As such, the place with the biggest stage would be Workers' Stadium.

The renovation for Workers' Stadium was stopped temporarily for an entire month because of this. After an intense round of preparation, they finally completed the entire layout for the renovation.

The event would be broadcasted live by CTV and 18 satellite channels at the same time. A lot of media personnel from within the country and overseas would arrive at the scene to carry out interviews and reports.

Swallow Capital would dispatch professionals to oversee the security and safety of the event.

Twilight shrouded this ancient city. There were blue and red lights shining everywhere, coupled with the flashes from the cameras of various journalists.

Workers' Stadium was filled with people. More than 10,000 spectators came here on account of its reputation, and they were making the stadium impenetrable.

After everything was ready, at 6 p.m., all of the esteemed guests with invitation cards arrived one after another.

On the two sides of the red carpet were numerous passionate citizens and journalists who were snapping photos furiously. All of the esteemed guests with invitation cards felt like celebrities. They walked with their heads high and chests puffed along the red carpet amidst the thunderous cheers. They felt that the life on top was so ordinary.

“What a huge scene.” After getting out of the car, Lisa mumbled to herself and looked at the scene in front of her with a shocked expression as she walked across the red carpet.

At this moment, the people next to her were her father and uncle. Ben was next to her as well.

“This host is pretty great.” Lisa’s father, Norman Gardner, experienced the same shock as he said that.

“Remember guys, just look and listen but don’t speak. This is not our house where we can run amok.”

Ben’s father, Ian Hull, said solemnly.

“Got it.” Ben nodded carefully. Suddenly, he pointed at a group of people in front of him and said, “Dad, Uncle, isn’t that the president of the Haddock Chamber of Commerce? Should we go and say hi?”

Ian and Norman looked at each other. They went over and started exchanging conventional greetings at the same time.

Behind them, Ben asked Lisa, “Where’s Mr. Turner? I don’t see him anywhere.”

“Mr. Turner and the rest went in earlier. I’ll go find him directly later,” Lisa said softly.

Ben let out a sigh of relief. He mumbled, “Someone who can host an event like this is the true big shot. His background and power are so exceptional.”

When Lisa was about to say something, she suddenly saw a familiar figure from the corners of her eyes. She grabbed Ben quickly and said, “Benny, look. Isn’t that Jasper? Wendy’s boyfriend?”

Ben looked over immediately after he heard that. Indeed, he spotted Jasper who was speaking to Henry.

A smirk appeared on his face. After telling Ian and Norman, he grabbed Lisa to walk over to him.

At this moment, Henry was complaining to Jasper with reluctance on his face. He was the young master of the Law family, so it need not be said how big of his influence was. However, with his personality, he did not even want to interact with those big shots. He also resented these kinds of solicitous inquiries about someone's well-being to pander to someone.

"My brother, I really don't want to be at my father's side. There are big shots all over the place and I don't even dare to breathe too loud, so how will I ever have the chance to speak? Why can't I stay with you?"

"You have to go even if you don't want to. You're in your 20s. Are you going to stay a child forever?" Jasper said insipidly.

"You'll get used to these kinds of events sooner or later. If you really can't, get Anna to go. I wonder who you're going to cry to when Anna is the one who gets all of the family's property in the future."

After Henry heard that, he chuckled while shifting his eyes. "That works too. I'll be more than happy if you can get Anna to promise me enough pocket money every year."

After Jasper heard that, he looked at Henry and said seriously, "You're able to become a fully grown man because your father is reluctant to beat you to death. The love of a father is so amazing."

Henry's face fell. When he was about to say something, he heard a voice from behind him.

Life at the Top Chapter 389

“Oh, Wendy seriously got you an invitation card? And you have the guts to show up?”

Ben brought Lisa along. The two of them attended this banquet dressed in their fanciest attire and were looking at Jasper with contempt and disdain. Ben mocked, “I didn’t expect you to be so ballsy!”

Lisa covered her face and giggled. She said, “You’re even donning a suit. How ugly. Indeed, any low-ranking person would look like an insurance agent after wearing a suit. Did Wendy buy these clothes for you as well?”

The suit Jasper was wearing right now was the one Anna designed herself back then. Jasper had worn this back in Harbor City and this was the second time he wore it.

Young Master Law was already feeling pissed. When he heard the two of them saying Jasper’s clothes were ugly, a fire of rage immediately surged in his heart.

“Where did these two idiots come from? Don’t you have the ability to make discerning judgments? Can’t you see that I’m speaking to this man? F*ck off!”

Ben and Lisa were stumped for words after they were yelled at.

Ben looked at Henry with malevolence on his face. When he saw that Henry had an extraordinary temperament and a flamboyant, bossy aura, he knew this was not something that an ordinary person would have.

As such, he suppressed his displeasure and grunted. “Who are you? I don’t think I know you. Aren’t you going a little over the top for screaming at me for no reason?”

“And you’re not over the top for speaking like that, you bellend?”

Henry was thrilled. These two were obviously mocking Jasper just now with the way they spoke. As such, Henry smirked and said, “I want to scream at you, so I will. When I want to beat you up, I’ll directly put a sack over your head and throw you into the sea to feed the fish. Who do you think you are? Is it even your turn to spew bullsh*t in front of me?”

Ben’s face was flushed white.

He had never seen someone so arrogant before!

Henry immediately yelled at him after a disagreement and even said such horrendous things.

In the face of Henry’s arrogance, Ben thought his temper was considerably kinder and more virtuous in comparison.

When he was about to say something, Lisa said, “Benny, let’s not stoop down to his level. Just think about it, how good can a low-level person like Jasper be? One is of low worth and one doesn’t even have inner quality. Aren’t these two the perfect match?”

While she said that, Lisa smiled and said arrogantly, “We’re people on the high-level. These poor people only know how to yell at others, but they’ll never be able to get to the level where we’re at.”

Jasper burst out laughing after he heard that.

If they said Henry was someone from the low-level, then there would not be a lot of high-level people here at the scene currently.

This time, Henry was truly amused. Rather, he was so angry he was amused.

Henry lifted his finger and pointed at his nose. He looked at Lisa and said, "I've been living in this world for so long and this is the first time I'm being called a low-level person with no inner quality."

"B*tch, I'm giving you three seconds to tell me what your father works as, what kind of company the richest elder in your family has, and who do you have in your family."

Lisa's expression went cold. She scoffed and said, "Why? Are you going to compare your family background with mine? Do you even think you're worthy?"

"Compare with you? Are you worthy?" Henry pointed at Lisa's face and yelled, "You have a pretty face but you have such an exaggerated opinion of your own ability."

After he said that, Henry turned his head to look at Ben. He said frigidly, "And you, how about I castrate you and have you undergo a sex change?"

Ben and Lisa sucked in deep breaths. Their eyes turned red from anger.

"Damn it, what did you say?" Ben growled immediately.

"I said, I'm going to have you undergo a sex change! Then, I'll sell the woman next to you to a remote jungle somewhere! Do you understand?" Henry smirked. He had been feeling miserable earlier, but suddenly, these two wretched-looking tramps appeared and started acting like fools in front of them. If he was not going to teach them a lesson, who would?

Life at the Top Chapter 390

Ben and Lisa were so mad they were shaking.

They never had someone attacking them so wildly before in their entire lives.

Henry's top-notch arrogance and overbearingness that exuded from his body as a hedonistic son of rich parents managed to subdue them.

However, Ben was not able to endure this extraordinary shame and humiliation.

Ben looked straight at Henry and said coldly, "Stop yapping. Do it if you have the guts! Who do you think you are? If God's the boss then you're his second in charge? You don't know for sure who's going to kill who when that happens!"

Henry narrowed his eyes and smiled evilly. He said, "Alright, try it then. I don't know if I'm the second in charge if God's the boss, but I'm sure I can step on your face and spit on you!"

"Damn, we have a male and female dumb*sses here. If I don't kill you today, then my surname is not Law!"

Who was Henry Law?

He was the number one hedonistic son of rich parents in the country. If he were to act like a thug, even God would tremble under his feet.

Ever since he started to understand the world, the children from rich parents who had been bullied by him were enough to form a line.

Low-ranking people like Ben and Lisa were not even qualified to make a peep if they were arranged according to seniority.

Jasper patted Henry's shoulder when he saw that he was infuriated.

"Alright, don't make a scene. You can do whatever you want when we go out."

The only people in the world who could stop Henry aside from Old Master Law, Zachary, and Anna was Jasper.

There was no other reason apart from that Jasper used his own ability and power to truly make this young master surrender to him.

After Henry heard what Jasper said, he curled his lips. He used a dangerous gaze to look at Lisa and Ben before laughing eccentrically. "I'll listen to my brother-in-law today as a show of respect. However, we're not done yet. Just you two wait, dumb*sses!"

Ben scoffed. "Whoever chickens out is the coward!"

Lisa crossed her arms across her chest and looked arrogantly at Henry. She smirked and said, "I'll kill you whenever I want after I say hello to Mr. Turner."

"Mr. Turner?"

Henry scoffed. "Erik Turner? You think that fool dares to act up if you call him over in front of us? It just so happens that I'm pissed with him, so get him over if you have the balls!"

Lisa's expression changed. When she heard Henry's arrogant tone, she sensed that something was wrong. She asked, "Who are you?"

Jasper looked at the time and realized it was almost time. He interrupted their conversation and said to Henry, "We should go."

Henry grinned at Lisa. "My surname is Law. Go ask around how many people among the tens of thousands here tonight have Law as their surname."

After he said that, Henry and Jasper strutted away.

After the two of them left, Lisa turned to Ben in confusion. "Benny, he said his surname is Law, do you know him?"

However, Lisa did not get Ben's answer after a very long while. She turned around to look at him in confusion, but what she saw was Ben's pale face.

"Law? Could it be that he's one of the Laws? How is that possible? The Laws are one of the four rich families in Harbor City. Why are they here?"

When Ben said this, his entire body was shaking.

Life at the Top Chapter 391

Initially, he would not relate anyone with Law as their surname to one of the four rich families in Harbor City. After all, this was a rare surname but it was not so rare that it was non-existent.

There were a lot of people with the same first name and surname, let alone the same surname.

However, before he came here, Ben had heard his father saying that this event was extremely high-class. There was a possibility that the four rich families would be here.

After connecting the two, a horrifying thought appeared in Ben's brain.

"No. It can't be." Lisa's face was also white from terror.

"Don't overthink for now. Think of a way to contact Mr. Turner to ask whether the Laws are here. If they really are, then we have to think of a way," Ben said with a horrible look on his face.

...

At this moment, in the inner area.

Erik was sitting in his seat. Brad just got back after socializing with a few of his friends who were close to the family.

"We've underestimated Jasper." Brad sighed ruefully.

Erik grunted and said, "He's just lucky."

Brad glared at Erik and said angrily, "Why aren't you that lucky? Luck is also a kind of ability. You're several ranks lower than Jasper just by saying that!"

Erik said while feeling unconvinced, "Dad, why are you always diminishing my prestige by using someone else's ambition? Jasper used to step on our heads and ride roughshod over us. Are you going to treat it as if it never happened?"

Brad said coldly, "I'm teaching you how to grow. Do you know that Jasper got almost all of the aristocrats in Harbor City over to this event this time?"

"He got everyone from the four rich families. Everyone in those families is here. Old Master Law, Wallace Langdon, Joe Langdon, and Spencer Boyle. These four are all here. Your grandfather doesn't even have the power to invite them over let alone the two of us."

Erik was shocked when he heard that. "How is that possible? For what reason? Even if he has a close relationship with the Laws, Zachary Law showing up should already be the limit, right?"

"Old Master Law is not the only one who's here but the rest of the heads of the four rich families too? Dad, you're joking, right?"

Brad smirked and said, "I don't have the time to mess around with you. Didn't you see that your grandpa is here as well?"

"He didn't want to come, but if the heads of the four rich families are here and a lot of the big shots from the higher-ups have even decided to show up at the last minute, what more your grandpa?"

"The higher-ups have a very good impression of Jasper. You have to know that the four rich families represent Harbor City! Even though it has been three years since the handover, aside from the Laws from the four rich families, the rest of them have very ambiguous relationships with the Mainland."

“What can this prove now that Jasper is able to invite all of them over at once? It means that the four rich families are willing to work closely with the Mainland through Jasper. Don’t you understand what this means?”

Erik sat on the sofa limply. He muttered, “How is that possible... How old is he? What did he do... I don’t believe this...”

Brad sighed after looking at his dispirited and unconvinced son. He said, “I know you have a knot in your heart, but if you want to become stronger, you need to acknowledge that your enemy is also strong. Your progress will only stagnate if you keep looking down on your enemies.

“Back then, Jasper hosted a hundred billion market rescue plan in Harbor City. The entire upper-class of the city owes him a big one. This is the antecedent.

“Old Master Law admires Jasper. He’s so old yet he still used his status to help Jasper take hold of the situation. He even ran around and pulled strings for him.

“Jasper only has what he has right now after a combination of different elements. It’s not something that can simply be earned by luck as you said.

“That rascal is such an outstanding man. I wonder if you’re lucky or unlucky to have been born at the same time as him,” Brad said insipidly. There were sighs and laments in his tone.

Life at the Top Chapter 392

Erik’s face turned white. He never expected that he would hear such an extremely outstanding compliment for Jasper from the mouth of his respectable father.

“Mr. Turner, a woman named Lisa Gardner outside says she wants to see you.”

A man knocked on the door of the private room before coming in. He said respectfully to Erik who was looking anxious.

Erik frowned and looked slightly pissed.

He did not have time to get entangled with these women.

“Go. These businesspeople from Haddock might be useful for us,” Brad said to Erik.

Erik nodded gloomily and walked out of the door.

When he walked in front of Lisa, Erik had already put on a gentle and cultivated smile on his face.

“Anything I can help you with, Lisa?”

Erik suppressed his temper and asked gently.

Lisa’s panic was greatly eased when she saw Erik.

To her, there was no one and nothing Erik could not handle in this world. If he could not, then the Turners could!

Who dared to cross the Turners?

“Erik, I heard... the Law family from the four rich families in Harbor City is here, is that true?” Lisa asked.

Erik narrowed his eyes and did not answer her. He asked, “How did you know?”

Lisa's face turned white as she said, "Benny and I ran into someone with Law as his surname, we—"

Before Lisa could finish her sentence, Erik interrupted and asked, "Did you guys have a conflict?"

There were only three men in the Law family—Old Master Law, Zachary Law, and Henry law.

It was highly unlikely for Old Master Law and Zachary to have a conflict with people like Lisa and Ben. The only other possibility would be Henry.

With Henry's temper... Erik gritted his teeth. If he could not fight Henry, that son of a b*tch, then he wanted to skin him alive. However, he could not do that because his family did not have that ability.

Lisa bit her lip and nodded.

"That Law person was so arrogant. Benny couldn't bear it anymore so he scolded him. Is he really one of the Laws from Harbor City?" Lisa asked.

After that, Lisa pulled Erik's sleeve and said pleadingly, "Erik, you have to help me and Benny. That guy said he's going to sell me and send me to some remote forest and have Benny undergo a sex change. Judging from his expression, I don't think he's joking."

Erik did not have the mood to deal with Lisa courteously anymore. He flung Lisa's hand away angrily and pointed at her nose. He roared, "You're a f*cking dumb*ss! Do you think you're all that? You're just causing trouble left and right every day! And now you want me to fix this mess for you?"

"Do you f*cking know what kind of person Henry Law is? He's a lunatic. Everyone who crosses him won't have a good ending. How powerful do you think I am?"

“I can’t settle this matter with him, but even if I could, I wouldn’t! I already have a lot of things annoying the f*ck out of me and you two are still causing trouble for me? F*ck off!”

After Erik yelled at Lisa, he turned around and went back to his private room.

Lisa was dumbstruck and completely stunned.

She did not expect things to turn out like this.

The huge panic and humiliation caused Lisa’s expression to change.

She was extremely humiliated, and she contemplated for a very long time. She did not care anymore as she grabbed Erik’s hand hurriedly. She begged while sobbing, “Erik, you have to help me. We didn’t know who he was. How would we know things would become like this?”

“If you help me, I’ll let you do anything you want with me.”

When Erik heard this, his expression turned gloomy.

After contemplating in his heart, he was clear about Lisa and Ben’s power as businesspeople from Haddock. They were exactly what his family needed now.

As for Lisa, he was interested in her too...

If he just threw her away, all of those things he did back then would be in vain and it would be such a shame.

Life at the Top Chapter 393

“I understand. You should go back first. I’ll bring you to talk to Henry after the event to see if we can put an end to this.”

In the end, Erik gritted his teeth and said.

It was as if Lisa had grabbed a life-saving straw. She quickly nodded. “Okay.”

...

After Jasper’s involvement, not only did Dawson, Chris, and Jim get the invitation cards, but they even got a loge that was at the very front.

After bringing Wendy into the loge, Jasper said to her, “I still have a lot to take care of. You should stay here, I’ll come to you when I am free.”

Wendy said softly, “You should go handle your business. I’m fine here. I need to see a few of my friends later too.”

Jasper smiled and said, “Look at the sky ten minutes later. I have a little surprise for you.”

Wendy blinked curiously and asked, “What surprise?”

“I told you it’s a surprise, so of course, I can’t tell you what it is now.” Jasper pinched Wendy’s nose lovingly.

After he said that, Jasper greeted Dawson and the rest of them inside the loge.

“Dad, Uncle Yapp, Mr. Quarles, I’ll be going now. If you need anything, just tell the staff outside.”

Dawson nodded.

Chris quickly stood up. He nodded and bent his waist before saying respectfully, “Mr. Laine, just go ahead with your matters. We’ll be fine here.”

Jim was more relaxed. He chuckled and said, “Go on.”

Jasper smiled. After looking at Wendy, he left the loge.

After Jasper left, Chris was slightly relieved. After he sat down, he lamented to Dawson, “Dawson, your future son-in-law... is really something else!”

Dawson guffawed. His face was glowing and he was extremely honored.

“Of course! Who am I? Do you think I’ll find a bad future-son-in-law?”

Wendy blushed slightly. She said while feeling displeased and annoyed, “Dad, what are you talking about? Why do you keep calling him your future son-in-law? And what’s up with Jasper too? Why does he keep calling you ‘Dad’ as well? He called you that as a joke last time in front of me. Don’t you think he’s taking advantage of your daughter?”

Jim chuckled and said, “I want to have a daughter so I can get him to take advantage of her too. Unfortunately, I’m not blessed like that.”

“Uncle Yapp, you’re not setting a good example as an elder!”

...

6:59 p.m.

The event would start in one minute.

More than 10,000 people in Workers' Stadium went silent. They were waiting for the start of the event quietly.

At this moment, countless people who had worked tirelessly for months for this event were overwhelmed by emotions. This was the time to see the results of their hard work.

The audience who were in front of the televisions and the spectators outside the stadium were feeling excited and expectant as well. They were all waiting for the final minute to pass.

In the most honorable core area.

Old Master Law and the rest of the heads of the four rich families were chatting with some big shots.

"I wonder what kind of event Jasper has prepared. He's making an old fart like me so excited," the old master chuckled and said.

"I heard he has meticulously prepared a lot of segments. I think it should be great," one of the big shots said with a grin.

"A young man like him should train himself in situations like this. After all, the future depends on them," said another big shot.

Joe and Spencer looked at each other while laughing. "If this were someone else, they might not be able to handle this well. However, since it's Jasper, we're confident in this young man."

"Oh?"

The few big shots looked at each other. One of them chuckled and said, "I heard this young man did great during the financial crisis in Harbor City. We could only look at the reports while you guys were there to experience it firsthand. Why don't you tell us how it went?"

Life at the Top Chapter 394

At this moment, Zachary, who was sitting in a corner, was given a look by Old Master Law. He quickly got up and started telling them everything that happened back then.

After the big shots heard that, they nodded and said, "Not bad indeed. He's able to handle the pressure from the west. This young man has a great performance."

Old Master Law chortled and said, "Exactly what I thought. Since us old farts are still around, we have to check on these excellent young people and give them more responsibilities. That way, it'll be beneficial to the long-term plan in the future."

Kennedy was sitting in a corner. While listening to the big shots praising Jasper non-stop, he chuckled coldly in his heart.

'Praise him more. It's even better if you praise him to the heavens. The more he climbs, the harder he'll fall. He'll die an even more horrible death that way!'

The more expectations he had on him, the more pressure he would have. Jasper was in his 20s, not even in his 30s yet. Would he be able to handle such a heavy burden?"

Plus, there would always be people who did not like him.

For example, the two other big shots. They were smiling this entire time without saying anything.

...

“Sir, 30 seconds left.”

Ted Swanson said to Jasper respectfully.

Jasper nodded and told Ted, “We have to start on time. We can’t be late or early even for one second.”

Ted patted himself on the chest and said, “Don’t worry, sir. We’ve matched our watches beforehand so I can promise that we’re accurate to the second.”

“The people from Harbor City are amazing. The effects later will be so exceptional,” Ted said while grinning.

Jasper smiled and took a deep breath. He lifted his head to look solemnly at the night sky above Workers’ Stadium.

After today, no one else in this country would be able to compete with Easy Media.

After the last second, at 7 p.m. on the dot, the celebratory banquet for Swallow Capital gaining the right to host the Olympics officially started.

Boom boom boom!

A string of loud explosions came from nearby the Workers’ Stadium. A lot of citizens who did not know what was going on looked at each other. They had no idea what was happening.

“Look! Fireworks!”

An observant person pointed at the sky and yelled excitedly.

At this moment, on a piece of land that was covering tens of thousands of square meters nearby the Workers' Stadium, an array of fireworks that had been meticulously planned and arranged were firing at the sky at the same time.

Countless bright and splendid fireworks soared into the sky, exploding in mid-air and turning into incomparable huge fireworks. They were bringing the ultimate visual feast in the world to everyone.

These fireworks were specially ordered by Jasper by contacting the top domestic fireworks and firecrackers manufacturers.

There were a total of 100,000 fireworks, which cost Jasper more than six million Somer Dollars.

Everyone was immersed in this huge show.

At this moment, the array of fireworks that shocked the world during the opening ceremony of the Olympics in 2008 did not exist yet. Tens of thousands of live audiences and millions of audiences in front of their televisions watching the live broadcast were in awe of what Jasper had planned.

One could see the splendid fireworks no matter where one was in Swallow Capital. Plus, it was a sight to behold if one was near the stadium.

It was so shocking and even shook everyone's souls.

Then, the loud and clear national anthem played.

When everyone saw this scene and heard this sound, they could only feel their blood boiling and roaring in their bodies like never before. Then, an unspeakable sense of shock and pride emerged spontaneously from within.

Everyone was silent as they lifted their heads to look at the sky.

Suddenly, the fireworks stopped for a while.

Everyone was feeling excited and now they were all staring blankly at the sky. They were all wondering if the fireworks show was over.

It ended when everyone was at the height of their emotions?

Everyone was feeling dissatisfied.

However, before this dissatisfaction could spread to their bodies, strings of loud explosions sounded all of a sudden.

Now, they could only see fireworks soaring into the sky one after another. After precise planning, a fire dragon that was about 1,000 meters long appeared after the fireworks exploded in mid-air.

That was a dragon!

That was the totem for the Somer descents!

It was the mythical creature that was carved into the bones of all of the descendants of Somerland and it was the creature that protected their people for more than 1,000 years.

Now, in Swallow Capital, the mythical creature appeared once again!

The realistic and gigantic dragon spanned for a few thousand meters. It looked as if it was blessing the nation that would eventually stand tall on the top of the world after experiencing countless challenges in the storm.

Everyone's emotions skyrocketed to the peak at this moment.

A lot of people were shouting. They were cheering and in high spirits.

Not just them, but even the big shots were exclaiming in the core area of the Workers' Stadium where the four rich families were.

“Marvellous!”

One of the big shots who was sitting in the middle with Old Master Law on his left side exclaimed one single word after not speaking for the entire time.

Old Master Law was satisfied. There was a constant grin on his face this whole time.

At this moment in Dawson's loge, Wendy covered her mouth and was looking at the gigantic dragon in the sky in shock and disbelief.

Other people might not be able to see it, but she could see it clearly. On the tail of the dragon was a letter 'W' that was crafted with the utmost care.

This was the surprise Jasper was giving her.

This was the gift that he was giving her in the full view of thousands of eyes as the entire nation celebrated.

At this moment, Wendy felt her heart melting. She wanted to immediately look for Jasper and then pounce on him.

The fireworks show gradually came to an end, and the top four hosts in the nation went on stage. The banquet officially started with their impassioned voices.

With the top hosts and all of the top celebrities in the Mainland and Harbor City gathering in one place, this banquet was destined to be remembered by a lot of people.

After the entertainment segment, the mayor of Swallow City went on stage to say a few words as the next to last item on the program.

On the other hand, Jasper stayed under the stage quietly. As the organizer, he would need to appear on stage later to make a speech in front of everyone in the nation.

The mayor of Swallow Capital ended his speech while holding the microphone amidst everyone's cheers. Then, he said, "Now, let's welcome the organizer of this banquet to say a few words on stage!"

Everyone was craning their necks longingly. They wanted to see who was the person who had presented them with such an incomparable visual feast.

Especially the fireworks show that was unforgettable for the entire nation. It could be said that not only did the organizer successfully organize a banquet that was meaningful, but he also pushed this banquet to a peak that had never been reached before.

The spotlight was shining down on the entrance of the stage where a young man walked up the stage confidently and energetically.

His steps were steady. Even if countless eyes were focusing on him, he was still unflustered this entire time.

When Wendy, who was in the loge, and Anna, who just got here, saw his figure, their eyes twinkled. It was as if their love for him was going to overflow from their eyes.

At this moment, they wanted so badly to announce to the world that this was the man they had their eyes on!

This was the man who was destined to be the center of attention anywhere in the world!

Life at the Top Chapter 395

At the same time, Lisa and Ben, who were worried about offending Henry, saw Jasper's figure as well.

They felt their scalps getting numb as if they had just been electrocuted. They cried out in surprise and disbelief involuntarily.

"It's him!"

"Do you guys know him?"

Ian and Norman asked quickly when they saw Ben and Lisa's reactions.

Putting aside the rest, the organizer of this banquet was destined to flourish after this.

If their children were able to have some connections with someone on this level, would it mean that their family was in luck?

Ben and Lisa looked at each other and saw each other's pale faces.

How would they dare to tell the truth? They had a connection with him, but it was a horrible one.

Lisa was beside herself when she remembered that she had called Jasper a low-level person and a hillbilly in so many different ways.

Yet, she was the low-level person now!

Perhaps the reason they were able to show up was not because of how powerful the Turners were, but it was that Jasper, the organizer, wanted to see their expressions after they knew the truth.

Lisa wanted so badly to crawl into a hole.

Ben also could not take this. He was almost drowned by fear and regret.

If he knew Jasper had such a scary background and identity, he would not have had the courage to pursue Wendy.

Now, these two had not even settled the matter of them offending Henry when it was suddenly revealed that Jasper was powerful and had such a huge background. They felt as if they were in a dream.

“This time... we’re in huge trouble,” Ben gritted his teeth and said with no color on his face.

Lisa thought about it and comforted him, saying, “Benny, don’t worry. There’s a way to turn this around.”

“What do you mean?” Ben frowned and looked at Lisa.

Lisa took a deep breath, and her eyes were twinkling wisely. She appeared to be farsighted at this moment. She said, “Actually, the person who’s the most difficult to handle is Henry. The rest will be easy once we settle him.

“Even though Jasper is much more powerful than we thought, so what? He’s not one of the four rich families. He’s just a person who’s trying to make connections with them at most. Even if he’s not the low-level person we thought back then, I don’t think he’s that powerful, right?”

Ben frowned and thought about it. He was not saying anything.

“Mr. Turner promised that he’ll help us talk to Henry. When that happens, do you think Jasper will be able to do anything when Mr. Turner shows up and warns him?”

Ben nodded slightly when Lisa said that.

“If that’s the case, Jasper is nothing. However, I saw earlier that he might be friends with Henry. I’ll go talk to Jasper later and you should go look for Mr. Turner. As for the rest, we’ll figure out what to do when the time comes,” Ben gave the final verdict and said.

...

At this moment, Erik was looking at Jasper who had the spotlight on him. Everyone’s eyes were on him as well. Erik’s face was pale, and he only felt his throat getting bitter and dry.

Even though he had been defeated by Jasper back then, he never accepted his fate and kept wanting to seek revenge this whole time.

However, at this moment when he was looking at Jasper, Erik felt a huge sense of helplessness.

‘We’re both young, but how can you be so much better than me?’

‘How am I going to seek revenge on you?’

He clenched his fists, and his heart was filled with unwillingness.

Everyone had always been jealous of him, and this was the first time he was jealous of another person the same age as him. Plus, this jealousy was bone-deep.

“Did you promise Lisa that you’ll help her talk to Henry?” Brad averted his unreadable gaze from Jasper and asked nonchalantly.

Life at the Top Chapter 396

Erik nodded and said seriously, “This is about the family’s collaboration with the business people from Haddock, so we can’t give up easily. If not, all that we’ve done back then would be in vain.”

“We can try. Your concerns are fine, but you have to be careful. If this is just about Henry, he’s just a hedonistic son of rich parents. If you can smooth-talk him, this will pass easily. However, if it’s related to Jasper, then you have to remove yourself from it quickly.”

When Erik heard what Brad said, his face looked bitter. He said miserably, “Is Jasper even scarier than the Laws?”

Brad said indifferently, “Henry is just a hedonistic son of rich parents and he values his image a lot. If you give him that, then everything will be dandy. However, how is Jasper the same? If he’s involved in this, this might not be a problem of showing him dignity or not.”

After a sigh, Erik slammed his fist down on his knee. His expression was gloomy.

...

Whether he was on good terms or bad terms with someone, at this moment, no one was able to stop Jasper from walking to the center of the stage.

After shaking the mayor’s hand intimately, he took the microphone. He thanked the mayor humbly before the mayor turned around to leave. Now, he was facing tens of thousands of audience members.

He had a confident and charming smile on his face. His alluring voice floated into everyone’s ears.

“Was the banquet tonight fun?”

In an era when people still gave solemn speeches on stage and no one was concerned about having interactions with the audience, Jasper’s opening words that were not a traditional greeting immediately made the audience members incomparably excited and refreshed.

“Yes!”

Resounding answers sounded from all corners, and Jasper almost drowned in the noise.

The smile on his face became brighter and brighter.

It was no wonder all of the main characters of the web novels he read before he got reincarnated would want to become a celebrity after they transmigrated or reincarnated. This was a pretty good feeling.

However, Jasper still felt that he did not like living under the spotlight. It would be fine to experience it once in a while.

He was more suitable to be the head of a financial group.

Handling wealth was even more meaningful than being a celebrity.

...

Jasper’s speech later was much more formal. After all, this was an official and formal event. It would backfire if there was too much entertainment.

Up until now, this banquet had reached Jasper’s expectations.

After his final line, the banquet ended perfectly amidst countless rueful sighs.

The live audience and honorable guests left the place in an orderly fashion. After Jasper ordered Ted and Ryder to assist the people exiting the place, he turned around and saw Anna who was standing not far away from him.

“You’re the most handsome one here tonight.”

Anna looked at Jasper and said with a sweet smile.

Jasper approached her and smiled. He said, “You said the press conference for your fashion line was delayed and you had to stay longer in Waterhoof City, so I thought you wouldn’t be able to make it today.”

Anna lifted her hand to tuck her hair behind her ear. She said, “Today is such an important day for you, so I’ll definitely come. I didn’t waste my time coming. It was amazing.”

“Thanks,” Jasper said with a smile.

At this moment, Anna heard footsteps coming. She turned around and saw Wendy. She smiled at Jasper and said, “Alright, go have fun with your girlfriend. I’m going to look for my dad.”

“Alright, I’ll call you later,” Jasper said.

Anna chuckled lightly before turning around and walking away.

After Anna left, Jasper turned around and felt his vision getting blurry. He took in a sweet smell and felt a soft body in his arms.

The sweet-smelling wind caressed his face and then, the beautiful woman said with joy and a slight hint of jealousy, “You looked happy talking to Anna.”

Life at the Top Chapter 397

Jasper hugged the woman in his arms and chuckled softly, "Did you spot the little surprise I prepared for you?"

Wendy raised her head from Jasper's arms. Her eyes were gleaming like stars and they looked as if they could talk. She said, "If you hadn't done this with such sincerity, I wouldn't let you off so easily."

Wendy ignored the astonished gazes of the staff coming and going next to them. She just rested her head on Jasper's shoulder with peace of mind. She closed her eyes slightly and murmured, "Sometimes, I think that I'm so lucky to have met you."

Jasper lowered his head to look at this woman's unmatched and incomparable pretty face. He said warmly, "I'll give you the best, no matter what. I already decided the moment I first saw you. Thankfully, God gave me another chance."

Wendy only thought that Jasper was talking about them meeting again after many years of graduating from high school. As such, she was unconcerned.

However, she would never know that the second chance Jasper spoke of spanned across two lifetimes.

"Will you go back with us later?" Wendy asked.

Jasper said, "I still have something to do and it'll be pretty late after I'm done. You should go back first."

Wendy nodded, and the two of them walked out of the hall together. However, they spotted someone standing restlessly on the other side of the corridor from afar.

Ben.

After seeing Jasper and Wendy walking out together, Ben quickly walked over despite the embarrassment and panic on his face.

“Mr. Laine, Miss Schuler, h-hello...” Ben greeted.

Wendy did not want to pay attention to this person, so she snorted and turned her head.

Seeing Wendy’s reaction, the corners of Ben’s mouth twitched.

“Can we help you?” Jasper asked lightly.

Ben heard the words and looked at Jasper’s expression seriously. He actually came to test Jasper’s background and attitude. If he took the initiative to apologize and Jasper did not embarrass him, it would prove that Jasper was just an organizer.

Perhaps, Jasper might not even dare to offend him at all. Then, he could let Lisa use her relationship with Erik to teach Jasper a lesson.

“I’m here to apologize for my ignorant words and deeds before, Mr. Laine. I really didn’t know who you were... so please forgive me for being ignorant and narrow-minded.”

Ben’s attitude seemed very sincere, but the gloomy expression in his eyes had revealed that he was not apologizing sincerely.

“Mr. Laine, forgive me for being ignorant. I committed such a gaffe before. I really didn’t know you had such an honorable status.”

“What status?” Jasper asked.

This question made Ben speechless.

At the same time, a fire of anger was rising within him.

Actually, he was not afraid of Jasper but Henry.

After Lisa's reminder, Ben eventually understood. What did it matter if Jasper was the organizer of the banquet? He was just someone trying to worm his way to forging a relationship with the big shots. It was likely that Jasper was not even capable enough to invite those big shots. It must be all thanks to the official authorities.

Otherwise, Jasper was a nobody. How old was he? Was he really able to have such a good relationship with the four rich families?

Ben would not believe it even if he was beaten to death.

'Damn, you're even putting on airs now!'

Ben cursed in his heart. He just felt so extremely pissed that he could not hold it in anymore.

At this moment, Lisa ran over angrily with another man.

She said loudly to Ben, "Benny, he really thinks he's all that just because we show him some respect. Isn't it just a banquet? What's so great about it? No matter how powerful you are, can you compare to Mr. Turner?"

Life at the Top Chapter 398

When she said this, she did not realize that Erik was shaking next to her upon seeing Jasper.

Erik had thought Lisa was asking him to help her deal with a small character.

Except for Henry and Jasper whom Erik did not want to provoke, he did not care about anyone else.

As such, Erik had responded positively and came straight over with Lisa.

However, before he even got close, he saw Jasper.

Before he could speak, Lisa, who was next to him, had already spoken.

Seeing Jasper's playful gaze, Erik just wanted to strangle Lisa and then turn away.

"What are you looking at?"

Lisa thought that Jasper was looking at her and sneered while folding her arms across her chest. "Were you looking forward to seeing our shocked and regretful expressions? Sorry, although we are surprised that you're the organizer, it's not a big deal.

"It's just a banquet. Do you really think you're all that? Those big shots showed up because of the officials. Do you think we'll be scared by you using powerful connections to intimidate us?"

"Can you shut the f*ck up?"

Lisa shuddered from shock after the loud roar.

She panicked and looked at Erik in disbelief. He looked like he was about to swallow her with those red eyes. At that moment, she felt like her whole brain was malfunctioning.

Why was Erik looking at her like she had just killed his father?

Erik truly wanted to kill Lisa now.

“Is this the small character you were talking about?” Erik asked and pointed at Jasper. His expression was blank, but his eyes looked sinister.

Half of Lisa’s soul had left her body after Erik looked at her. She nodded subconsciously and said cautiously, “What’s the matter?”

“What’s the matter?” Erik was exasperated and suddenly raised his hand to slap Lisa across the face.

Lisa’s earring flew away from the slap. Her meticulous hairstyle was also completely ruined, and she looked like a ghost with disheveled hair.

One could only imagine how powerful that slap was.

Lisa covered her face. She screamed and fell to the ground after getting slapped.

Erik was still pissed. He lifted his leg and kicked Lisa. While he was kicking her, he roared, “Did I tell you to f*cking cause trouble? Why don’t you f*cking look at yourself first? So many people can crush you to death and not get blood on their shoes. Who do you think you are?”

Lisa kept screaming while avoiding Erik’s foot challengingly.

Suddenly, Ben rushed over. He did not dare to stop Erik, so he could only stand in front of Lisa. He said while wailing, “Mr. Turner, what’s going on? Even if you want us to die, you should at least let us know why.”

Erik took a few deep breaths, pointed at the two of them viciously, and said, “If you want to die, do it yourself! Don’t f*cking involve me! I’m not tired of life yet!”

While he said that, Erik turned to Jasper.

Until now, Ben and Lisa were still dumbfounded. They did not know why their biggest supporter was suddenly attacking them so viciously.

“Jasper, I really didn’t know about this before.” Erik’s complexion was not looking too good. His face was flushed because of the fierce movements from before, but he tried to say this in the most tactful tone he could muster.

Jasper said insipidly, “I know. You’re not stupid enough to provoke me at this time.”

Erik took a deep breath, bowed his head respectfully to Jasper under the horrified gazes of Lisa and Ben, and said, “Thank you for your trust and understanding. I have no intention of being your enemy.”

After seeing this terrifying scene, Lisa even forgot about the pain on her body. She screamed, “How is it possible? Mr. Turner, who does he think he is? You’re actually bowing to him?”

Life at the Top Chapter 399

Erik did not even turn his head, but he wanted to go back and trample Lisa to death!

Was this dumb woman tired of living?

However, someone helped Erik to do what he wanted to do.

Henry brought two people over and waved his hands. Then, the two people skillfully took out a roll of tape. They directly sealed Lisa and Ben's mouths and tied their hands and feet before throwing them aside.

"Don't cause any trouble." Jasper frowned.

Lisa and Ben had always been clowns who could not make it anywhere. Now that the banquet had just ended, it was not Jasper's style to make a huge fuss about this at this critical moment.

Henry leaned against the threshold, lit a cigarette, and said with a smile, "Don't worry, I've done a lot of these things before."

As he said that, he swaggered over to Lisa and Ben, blowing a puff of smoke on their faces.

He raised his hand and patted their heads. "I did tell you guys that I wanted to get rid of you. Instead of running away immediately, you're still frolicking in front of me. Do you think I'm made out of clay?"

Lisa and Ben's eyes were filled with terror. They were struggling and whimpering constantly, but the tapes sealed their mouths and made it hard to hear what they were saying.

Ben was smarter, after all. He turned over and knelt on the ground. He kept groveling at Henry while pleading with his eyes.

Henry stood up straight, sneered, and said, “You know to beg for mercy now? What were you doing before? I’m a low-level person. I don’t have inner quality, so I can’t accept this.”

While he was saying that, Henry did not even look at Ben. He walked over to Jasper, narrowed his eyes, and looked at Erik with a serious expression. He said sternly, “Why don’t we settle this kid while we’re at it?”

When Erik heard these words, the hair all over his body stood up on end.

He genuinely did not doubt whether Henry was a man of his words.

Right now, Old Master Law was in Swallow Capital. If Henry really did something to him, the Turners might not be able to avenge him.

Now, the only one who could decide this matter was Jasper.

When he thought about this, Erik hurriedly said to Jasper, “Mr. Laine, I have nothing to do with them.”

He immediately changed from calling him Jasper to Mr. Laine.

The subtle change in the way he addressed Jasper reflected Erik’s desire to survive.

Jasper had a smile on his face. He was refined and elegant, so there was no hostility on his face.

“It’s getting late. You still have a lot to do, right, Mr. Turner?”

Erik breathed a deep sigh of relief when he heard Jasper’s words.

“Yes, I still have some things to take care of, so I’ll go first.”

Erik, who got a way out, took a deep look at Jasper. He then turned his head and walked away without looking back.

He did not even look at Lisa and Ben who kept asking him for help with their eyes while whining.

“The old master and the rest are waiting for you outside. They seem to have something to tell you,” Henry said to Jasper.

“Okay, I’ll go and meet them.”

Jasper said. Even with Henry’s presence, Jasper directly took Wendy’s hand and walked outside.

Lisa and Ben looked desperately at Jasper’s back. They were begging him to help them out of their predicament.

However, what they saw was the door opening and nearly 100 staff members outside standing respectfully in two rows. They were all bending over and bowing to Jasper.

“Hello, Mr. Laine.”

Life at the Top Chapter 400

This show of extravagance directly widened Lisa and Ben’s eyes. They were staring in disbelief.

Outside of the crowd, many honorable guests who were invited but had not the time to leave the scene were all on their toes. They were craning their necks to look at Jasper. It was as if they could reflect their status if they got closer to that grand show of extravagance.

Jasper was accompanied by Wendy. He had an elegant smile on his face and was calm and unhurried. His gaze would not change even if a mountain collapsed in front of him. It was as if nothing would be able to move him anymore.

“Everyone has worked so hard. Finish up early so you can go back and rest. Everyone will be given an extra three months’ salary as a bonus.” Jasper’s words caused hundreds of people to cheer and applaud.

Everyone looked at Jasper fervently with smiles on their faces.

Since ancient times, wealth had been able to move people’s hearts. In this regard, Jasper had never let his subordinates down.

Ben and Lisa’s faces were gray like ash. This time, they really understood what kind of person they had offended.

“See? This is the person you were looking down on,” Henry sneered.

He was also looking at Jasper’s figure, making no secret of his jealousy. “Damn it, even I feel inferior to him, let alone you two little shrimps.”

“Do you think that just because your parents are powerful that you can oppress and tyrannize everyone? How hilarious. Do you think your parents are better than my parents?”

“And Jasper got himself to this point without comparing himself to anyone. Even my parents treat him politely.

“Yet you little shrimps still looked down on him all day long even when he has such accomplishments. You have no idea that you two are just clowns to him. He doesn’t even bother to care about you.”

Henry’s words gave Lisa and Ben a huge blow. They lowered their heads deeply with gloomy eyes. They did not dare to speak and were also unable to speak.

“But I’m different.” Henry’s voice suddenly sounded like he was full of zest. He looked at the two with a smile and said, “I love to quibble with you. After all, I have no inner quality.”

Lisa screamed and looked at Henry in despair, her eyes full of pleading.

“Henry,” Jasper suddenly turned his head and called out.

Henry looked up.

“Be careful,” Jasper ordered.

Henry’s face darkened, and he said impatiently, “Yeah, yeah. Don’t be like a nagging mother.”

After the order, Jasper did not care what Henry would do to Lisa and Ben.

Just because Henry was a fiend in human form, it did not mean he was not smart in his own way. Although he was a little hedonistic, he never went all the way when he did something.

The most he would do was teach these two people an unforgettable lesson.

After passing Wendy to Dawson, the group exchanged a few words with Jasper before leaving in their cars.

Meanwhile, Jasper walked toward another passage. Old Master Law was still waiting for him and Jasper would not let him wait a long time for him.

As soon as he got there, Jasper saw Zachary and a middle-aged man who was about the same age as Zachary talking happily with each other. Beside the middle-aged man stood Erik with his head down.

“You must be Jasper. This is the first time we’re meeting each other but the second time we’ve dealt with each other.” After seeing Jasper, the middle-aged man walked up to him with a smile. He had cultivated a majestic temperament from being in a high position for a long time. Now, he was deliberately trying to get close to Jasper.

This voice sounded familiar to Jasper.

The Turners. Brad Turner.

“Jasper, let me introduce you. This is Mr. Brad Turner.” Zachary’s explanation confirmed Jasper’s guess.

Jasper smiled and stretched out his hand to shake hands with Brad. Jasper said, “Mr. Turner, it’s an honor to meet you at last.”

Brad laughed and said, “The new is constantly replacing the old. After seeing you, Jasper, I felt that I’m getting old and will soon be defeated by someone from the younger generation like you.”

Jasper narrowed his eyes when he heard the words that sounded unkind.

Life at the Top Chapter 401

As soon as Brad said this, the atmosphere between the four fell into an awkward moment of silence.

Brad smiled, but his eyes were full of profound meaning when he looked at Jasper as if he was waiting to see how he would respond.

Zachary had no expression on his face and was looking at Brad with a slightly pissed look in his eyes. However, he had always respected Jasper's image.

It seemed that as soon as Jasper spoke, Zachary would be able to say something to counterattack Brad.

After all, regarding how hedonistic Henry was, it was also passed down from Zachary.

Although the current patriarch of the Laws had, on the surface, withdrawn himself from this for many years, it could be said that the Law got rich because of the old master. Zachary was the second generation of the Laws in the true sense.

If this Mr. Law became ruthless, his methods would be countless times superior to Henry's.

As for Erik, there was no way for him to speak.

Erik just relaxed and looked at Jasper from the corners of his eyes, waiting for him to respond.

This awkward silence only lasted for a few breaths. Jasper smiled, saying, "No matter how strong the second generations are, they will always follow the trajectory and experience of their predecessors. So, there's still a lot to learn, but the younger generation is also separated into different kinds, that's all.

"If I were to compare myself to Uncle Law, I think I still have a lot of room for improvement."

As soon as his words came out, Zachary was beaming with joy. Brad laughed along with him, but his laughter sounded a little awkward.

With that statement, Jasper had humbled himself, lifted Zachary, and made a comeback at Brad.

"Not bad. Very good."

Brad's words were full of significance. He turned his head and said to Erik, "See? I always tell you that there are people better than you out there and it's people like Jasper. You're about the same age, but there's such a huge difference between the two of you. You need to learn from Jasper."

Erik said respectfully after hearing the words, "I know, Dad. I will humbly learn from Jasper."

"Mr. Turner, you're over-praising me. I just have better luck and don't really have a lot of talents. You'll make me lose my sense of modesty if you praise me too much," Jasper said unenthusiastically.

Brad laughed and said, "You have accomplished such achievements at a young age, so it's alright even if you lose your sense of modesty because it is as it ought to be.

"However, Jasper..."

Brad's tone faded as soon as he switched the conversation to another subject.

“Our country is vast and rich, filled with outstanding people with great talents. We must always keep in mind the principle that there is always someone better than us in the world just like how I taught Erik. Don’t look down on everyone in the world just because of some achievements.

“Your generation is still young and has insufficient experiences, so making too many enemies is not a good thing.”

Jasper said insipidly, “Thank you for reminding me, Mr. Turner. I’ll keep it in mind.”

Zachary also spoke up at this time. He said, “Turner, I don’t like to hear that. Are young people still young if they’re not impulsive and have a pioneering spirit? It’s fine if they cause trouble, just treat it as gaining more experience. The people from the older generation like us will just bear it for him.

“If we can’t bear it, the old man is still around, don’t you think?”

Upon hearing Zachary’s words, Brad’s expression suddenly became serious. He looked at Zachary deeply and smiled faintly. “It seems that you Laws really admire this young man named Jasper so much that you’re even letting out such words.”

Zachary said calmly, “This is not my intention only, but also my father’s.”

Life at the Top Chapter 402

Brad looked at Zachary seriously. After a long while, he smiled. “Okay, very well.”

“No matter if you think it’s good or bad, this is how it is. The reason is very simple, you and I were once young and vigorous before, and we also caused a lot of trouble. Back then, we asked our parents to solve those issues for us. Now that we're parents, we naturally have to take care of our younger generation. We can't keep letting our younger generation get bullied, at least."

Zachary looked at Brad directly, chuckled, and said coldly, "Turner, don't you think so?"

Brad took a deep look at Brad and Jasper before suddenly saying insipidly, "Erik, say goodbye to Uncle Law. We'll be leaving now."

After Erik heard that, he immediately said goodbye to Zachary respectfully.

"If you have something to do, go ahead. It's late and my old man is still waiting to say a few words to Jasper," Zachary said dully.

Brad snorted before turning around to leave with Erik.

After the two left, Zachary patted Jasper on the shoulder and said magnanimously, "Don't worry. Just attack Erik back if he dares to try and do something to you. If Brad has the nerve to go into court and deal with you personally, I'll go head-on with him. I've disliked him since the very beginning."

Jasper smiled bitterly. "Uncle Law, this was originally a matter between me and them. It's not worth involving the Laws in this."

Zachary said seriously, "You're wrong about this. Now everyone knows that you're an ally of the Laws. If you lose to Erik, then there's nothing to be said. You're just not capable enough. However, what do Brad's words mean?"

"He's 12 years older than you and keeps using his family's power to pressure others. Does he seriously think that you don't have support? I said that the younger generation should resolve their own grievances themselves. Does he think that I'm dead by putting his foot in as an elder?"

Jasper was also moved by Zachary's domineering words.

Ordinary people would not say such a straightforward statement so easily if they did not have a family that was as huge and powerful as the Laws.

Now that it had been said, it was final. Zachary would definitely support him to the end now.

“Okay, don’t think too much. Brad is not a fool. He’s smarter than anyone else, so you need to be more careful in your actions in the future and don’t let anyone get their hands on something that they can use against you. Let’s go now, the old man is still waiting,” Zachary said to Jasper warmly.

After Jasper heard that, he nodded. As they were walking and chatting, they reached a car.

The car the old master was sitting in was parked by the roadside, waiting for Jasper to come over.

Jasper opened the car door and apologized to the old master who was looking at him with a smile. “Old Master, there was a delay just now. Sorry for making you wait.”

Zachary, who followed him, saw Jasper being so tactful and added, “Brad just threatened Jasper.”

Old Master Law ignored Zachary and smiled gently at Jasper. “It’s okay, you can just go on with your business first. I just wanted to have a casual chat with you. If someone is using seniority to oppress you, you can look for Zachary. If he can’t solve it for you, come and find me.”

Jasper suddenly felt his scalp turning numb.

Sure enough, Henry’s fiery temper was inherited.

The old master was so old now, yet he was also a person who refused to admit defeat.

“Uncle Law and Old Master are speaking so highly of me. So, of course, I won’t impetuously rush headfirst into everything myself. When it’s time to ask for help, I won’t be courteous.” Jasper laughed.

The old master chuckled a few times and said with satisfaction, “Yes, this is the spirit that young people should have. Don’t be afraid of anything, and don’t go looking for trouble. If you think it’s right, do it.”

Jasper said, “Speaking of what should be done, I really have one thing I need to do and I need your help for that, Old Master Law.”

Life at the Top Chapter 403

Jasper’s words intrigued Old Master Law.

Although the two were decades apart and their position and status were also greatly different, the things Jasper had done so far proved that what he wanted to do next was not going to be easy for him.

“What is it that’s able to make you so serious? I’m interested,” Old Master Law said warmly.

When Old Master Law said these words, he actually believed that Jasper had probably encountered a difficult opponent and needed to use the power of the Laws to solve the issue.

The old master did not think there was anything wrong with this.

In his opinion, the better a person was, the more enemies they would have. If there were no enemies, it was either that person was invincible, or the person was simply a pile of mud and nobody had any interest in dealing with them.

Old Master Law himself only got to where he was now through dealing with one enemy after another.

However, what Jasper said next made Old Master Law's white eyebrows tremble.

"Old Master, regarding the burst of the dot-com bubble and the plummet of Harbor stocks, it's obvious that the Western capitalists have entered the market and are the ones responsible for these behind the scenes.

"Just like the year of the handover, their evil intentions are still alive. They're always trying to steal our economic results through such despicable means.

"This is equivalent to the Western capitalists viewing us as the livestock they've raised in captivity. When we grow fat and strong, they can open our doors at any time to take away all our hard-earned money."

The gentle smile that Old Master Law displayed in front of Jasper disappeared. Those eyes that had gone through countless vicissitudes of life were now full of resentment and unwillingness.

The Laws could stand out among the many wealthy families in Harbor City because Old Master Law was truly a patriotic businessman at heart.

He had shown his patriotism through practical actions. He had given up or even harmed his own huge profits for the collective benefit instead of just verbally expressing his patriotism like how some rich people clamored to do every day.

It was because whether it was the year of the handover or the financial crisis earlier this year, Old Master Law had long hated the Western capitalists.

"Jasper, you can even see through this scheme at your age. It's great." Old Master Law opened his mouth, but apart from his appreciation of Jasper, his tone was also full of helplessness regarding the reality they were facing.

“However, whether it’s Harbor City or the entire Mainland, the actual situation is that we’re still weak and poor. In the face of those with power, we have no way to fight back, and we can only endure this resentment for the time being.

“Only when we’re strong enough and have enough capital and power, then no one will dare to bully us.”

Jasper heard those words and said, “I can’t say for the others, but I can’t bear it.”

Old Master Law laughed. Instead of striking Jasper down, he praised him. “Yes, young people should have such vigor and energy.

“Us old people will be tolerant because we have to proceed based on the overall situation, but you’re still in the stage of developing yourself, and learning to hide your light under a bushel too early may not be a good thing.”

“Old Master, I’m going to do it,” Jasper said suddenly.

The smile on Old Master Law’s face froze for a moment. Although it was only for a few breaths, the uncontrollable emotions that were apparent on Old Master Law’s face was enough to show the impact of Jasper’s words on him.

“Jasper, don’t be too impulsive.” Old Master Law frowned.

A second ago, he was still complimenting Jasper for being an impulsive young man, but now, he had to stop him from being too impulsive...

“Old Master, I’ve thought it through. Even though it seemed that I had protected Harbor Stocks the last time, I actually know very well that I still lost a lot while fighting with the other party. Otherwise, the result would not turn out the way it did.”

Jasper’s expression was very calm. Ever since his debut, everything had gone smoothly for him, but this did not mean that he was invincible.

Life at the Top Chapter 404

He had also lost before. He lost to a trader behind the scenes during the fight between Harbor Stocks and the Western capitalists.

The opponent's advantage was too great and they got a decisive opportunity. If it had been someone else, they might only get a crushing defeat.

However, in Jasper's view, all of those were not reasons for denying failure.

If you lost, you lost. It was fine to admit it.

On the contrary, this would only arouse his fighting spirit.

Old Master Law looked at Jasper deeply and said, "Jasper, don't be too demanding of yourself."

Jasper shook his head and smiled. "No, Old Master, I'm not being demanding with myself. I know very well that there are people better than me out there. It's not shameful to lose once or twice.

"However, I need to get back this reputation whether it's because of my position as a person of Somer descent or my personal point of view."

Old Master Law frowned slightly and said nothing.

Jasper continued, "Old Master, you need to start from the present conditions, and your position and status as the elder generation are too sensitive. A slight move in one part may affect the situation as a whole, and it may become an international event, so you can't rashly take action.

“But I’m different. If you throw me to the west, how many people will know who I am? I’m still young. This is my advantage and my protection. If I go to the western capital market to do something, no one will take me to the international level to deal with me.”

Old Master Law said with emotion, “However, you have to be clear that once you do it, us old people can’t help you directly because of many complicated reasons.”

Jasper smiled and said, “This is my own matter, why would I need help from others?”

These words sounded plain, but in fact, they were overbearing.

Even Zachary, who was silent next to him, looked at Jasper in surprise.

Ever since knowing Jasper, Zachary had to constantly refresh his inner evaluation of Jasper, but after improving it time and again, Zachary still found that he had still been underestimating Jasper.

If Jasper’s life was not cut short, with this kind of aggressiveness, what would he achieve in the future?

Zachary felt that he did not dare to think about it.

Old Master Law was silent for a long time before asking, “What are you going to do?”

Jasper told him the plan that he had already reviewed countless times in his heart. He said, “What I’m doing now is to accumulate my own capital. The money I have right now is enough for me to live my life comfortably and it’ll be more than enough for generations to come. However, it’s still not enough to move Wall Street.

“So, I plan to accumulate more and when I have at least more than ten billion US dollars in cash on hand, then it’s time for me to start to carry out my plan to take down Wall Street. I’ll let them get a taste of having their riches ‘harvested’ by others in the market.”

Ten billion US dollars!

Was it a lot?

It was an astronomical number for most people.

However, in Jasper’s opinion, it was just a prerequisite for the execution of the plan.

Then, how big was his ambition?

Old Master Law looked at Jasper intently and could not help asking, “Do you really want to do this? Once you fail, you may get a crushing defeat and there will be no chance for you ever again.”

Jasper smiled and said, “For the sake of justice and self-interest, it must be done. Once I succeed, then it’ll be time for Jasper Laine to get a taste of being the richest man in Terra.”

Life at the Top Chapter 405

“Pretty ambitious.” Old Master Law smiled and praised.

Jasper chuckled and said, “Being the richest man in Terra is just a mid-term goal. I have a bigger vision. It’s just that those things seem to make me look like I’m biting off more than I can chew now.”

Old Master Law did not think so. He said in a warm voice, “A person should always have a short, medium, and long-term plan for his life and career whether they’re working or have a business in order to make money.

“A life without a plan will have no goals, and it’s also the easiest way to get lost and lose your heart. Only by knowing what you want all the time, you can concentrate more on achieving it.”

As he said that, Old Master Law looked at Jasper with encouragement and said, “Can you talk to me about your long-term goals?”

“Actually, I’ve asked Zachary to know more about your industry. I found that what you’ve done the most up to this point is investing in the industry. Also, you’re operating in the financial market and you’re not involved in any substantial industries?”

“This kind of approach is somewhat similar to some angel investment funds in the west.”

The old master was the old master indeed. His vision and manner of operating from a strategically advantageous position were really not comparable to that of the general public.

When ordinary people looked at Jasper’s current industrial layout, they might think that Jasper’s assets were too scattered. It would seem that he was involved in too many industries but he was not proficient in any of them.

This was taboo for people in business.

Since Jasper never had a core pillar industry, this meant that his comprehensive strength and anti-risk ability would be very low.

However, the old master had spotted something different.

Jasper sorted out his thoughts after hearing the words and then said, “I do plan to take this path, but it’s not comprehensive because to be honest, angel funds will be my core business but won’t be everything.

“My idea is to build JW into a series of groups. As long as it’s a leading industry, it’ll be involved. This will then involve all aspects of social development and people’s livelihood, so we still have to look at it as we go.

“At the end of the day, my idea is to build a modern and comprehensive commercial carrier so that JW will become a system and a global consortium that spans across different fields.”

In fact, Jasper’s idea came from the later generations where people were already familiar with many business concepts.

Take, for example, opening up the upstream and downstream industrial chains of high-end industries to achieve the industry’s ecosystem.

However, these concepts were too advanced. At this moment, even in the west, these concepts were still in their infancy. Even Old Master Law might not be able to understand it, so Jasper did not tell him about that.

However, with just what he had said so far, Jasper’s words were enough to shock Old Master Law and Zachary.

They knew that Jasper had great ambitions, but they did not expect them to be so big.

If it were someone else who said something like this in front of them, Old Master Law and Zachary would probably only think that the person was crazy.

However, Jasper was different.

Also, Jasper was the only one who could receive this treatment.

It was because they had watched with their own eyes how Jasper went from a little-known nobody to where he was now step by step.

“If this is successful, not only will you be the richest man in Terra, you might even be the richest man in the world,” Zachary exclaimed.

Jasper chuckled and said, “I don’t care about those false reputations, but when I can fight for that position, I will definitely fight for it!”

Old Master Law smiled and said, “We’ll talk about the future when the future is here, but your plan is very good. If there’s anything you need in the future, just tell us.”

...

“Preposterous!”

Life at the Top Chapter 406

Brad slammed his teacup heavily and spat out that one word in a deep voice.

Ever since coming back from the banquet, Brad's complexion had not looked good. The servants in the house dared not come close and only stayed away from him.

Erik stood at one side without saying a word.

Actually, he dared not say a word.

He saw with his own eyes how Jasper had echoed with the Laws to savagely mock his father.

At this time, Erik wanted so badly to hide so that his father would not take his anger out on him.

However, it was destined that he would be unable to escape.

"You're a bit older than Jasper but why are you like a piece of trash when you stand next to him?" The more Brad thought about it, the angrier he became. He pointed at Erik and berated him.

Erik smiled bitterly and said while biting the bullet, "Dad, how many people my age can compare to him?"

Brad's face was gloomy from dissatisfaction as he said coldly, "I only thought that this kid had amazing tactics before, but he's able to advance and retreat so tactically. But tonight, it seems that all of us had been fooled by him! It turned out this kid was hiding so many things up his sleeves!

“In the past, it was said that there were two people from your generation who made it big, one was from the south and one was from the north. At the age of ten, the heavens punished the first son of the first wife of the Browns from the north because he was an evildoer. In the end, he was wheelchair-bound for the rest of his life. Meanwhile, in Waterhoof City in the south, it was a little prince who was also the grandson of the supreme emperor.”

“These two people could carry out the resurgence for your generation, but now it seems that you need to add Jasper as the third person.”

The expression on Erik’s face suddenly changed when he heard these words. He said in surprise, “Even if Jasper is all that, he’s still a kid with no background at the end of the day. What qualifications does he have to compare with those two?”

Brad said coldly, “Do you still think he has no background? The Laws are enough of a background for him! What’s more, which of the four rich families in Harbor City did not show him respect?”

“And that was before tonight. After today’s banquet, the big shots in the loge were complimenting him non-stop. Although he did not declare his position, at least his name will be remembered.

“Who else can achieve this?”

Erik said with a jealous expression, “I still don’t think he can compare to the evildoer from the Brown family and the little prince from Waterhoof City. He’s still miles away.”

Brad snorted coldly. “Give him some time and it’s not impossible for him to become the third person.”

“Dad, look at his attitude toward us tonight. When he really becomes somebody in the future, I’m afraid he’ll make us suffer,” Erik said with a horrible expression.

Brad said gloomily, "Why wait until the future? Do you think Old Master Law came over just to cheer him on and show him support? An old fox of this level will have a purpose even when he's blinking."

"I received news that this time, the Laws intend to kick us out from the sharing of profits from the construction of Olympic venues."

Erik was shocked when he heard this. "What can we do?"

Brad became more and more impatient with his son who only knew to ask him what to do. "You're not a kid anymore, can't you think of a solution by yourself?"

Erik said helplessly, "So many people and things are involved in this and I don't have the ability for that."

"If you know that you don't have the ability, just study hard! Stop doing trivial things all day long. You're one of the Turners and you'll have far more rivals!" Brad said while feeling resentful toward Erik for failing to meet expectations.

After taking a deep breath, Brad continued, "Our old master will not stand by and watch this as it happens. The entire Turner family will do something about this."

"However, this time, not only have the Laws entered the game themselves, but the other three of the four rich families are also very interested. Presumably, the Laws did a lot of work in the middle. As you know, Harbor City is a very special place. People from the upper-class really hope to have closer ties with Harbor City."

"For this reason, the Turners won't be fighting alone. We can't let people from Harbor City devour all the benefits, but if this is the case, Jasper won't have the energy to solve it. As such, this matter is left for you to handle."

At this point, Brad was staring at Erik with his eyes burning. He said in a deep voice, "Even if you can't kill him, you have to hurt him so that he won't be able to recover from the damages for at least five years."

Life at the Top Chapter 407

With just a few words, Brad explained clearly the current treacherous situation of Swallow Capital.

No matter which country you were in, the Olympics was a big event.

What was more, it was being held in a country that was in urgent need of improving its international status.

In order to show the greatness of their great country and let people all over the world see their achievements, the Olympics would be the best opportunity to showcase this.

Therefore, this matter became the current major domestic event under global attention.

It was because of this that all aspects of the Olympic Games, from the venue construction to the theme design, would be treated with special care.

At this critical moment, Jasper was able to pull strings and make connections. Then, with the Laws mediating from within, he was able to introduce the top rich families of Harbor City to put in their funds.

This was a great thing since the big shots wanted the Mainland and Harbor City to merge more deeply.

As such, local citizens like the Turners were panicking.

They naturally did not want all the cake to be eaten up by Harbor City, so grouping together had become the best solution for this.

After listening to Brad's words, Erik also realized that in this situation, even a family as big as the Turners could not stay calm during a tense situation.

If they were careless, they were very likely to be overturned.

However, when Erik heard Brad asking him to deal with Jasper, he started feeling queasy.

"Dad, I-I'm not his rival."

Although it was too embarrassing for Erik to mention this, he thought about the consequences and felt it would be better to be honest.

After being struck down several times, Erik had lost the courage to face Jasper.

Brad was not surprised by Erik's reaction. He was not even angry. Instead, he said flatly, "Who said I want you to do it yourself?"

Erik pondered carefully. Then, he felt a flash of light go off in his mind, but he did not fully understand what it meant.

Upon seeing this, Brad's face became gloomy again.

He sighed deeply. He used to think that even though his son was not that outstanding among his peers, at least he was still excellent.

However, why did he look more and more mentally challenged after Jasper's appearance?

"You can use Lisa and Ben," Brad reminded helplessly.

Erik's eyes lit up when he heard this.

If he utilized these two people well, this matter would be much easier to handle.

“Besides, Ben’s second uncle is not easy to deal with. Go back and figure it out for yourself,” Brad said lightly.

The more Erik thought about it, the more interesting it became.

As long as he did not show up when executing this plan, even if he failed in the end, Jasper would not be able to trace this back to him.

The most important thing was that he would be hidden in the dark, while Lisa and Ben would be in the light. Erik could not think of how he would lose if he combined the power of the Turners with the Haddock businesspeople from the Waterhoof branch to handle Jasper.

“I got it!” Erik said with his eyes shining with excitement.

...

Although the banquet was over, Jasper had only started getting busy.

As long as he ordered someone to handle the finishing touches, his subordinates would naturally help him do it.

However, he could not find someone to help him socialize.

Life at the Top Chapter 408

Whether it was the four rich families of Harbor City or other local factions of Swallow City, they all suddenly became enthusiastic about Jasper.

For the next two days, Jasper rushed between various social occasions, most of which he would come back smelling like alcohol.

However, no matter what the occasion, Jasper always kept himself sober and did not get himself drunk.

Otherwise, he would make a laughing stock of himself.

In addition to socializing, Jasper put most of his energy and time on Wendy and Anna.

It was like these two women were magical. It was as if they had discussed with each other to take turns appearing next to Jasper.

As long as Jasper had one of them by his side, the other would never show up.

This situation only ended when Wendy was called back to the province by Dawson.

“Are you reluctant to leave your girlfriend?”

In the international airport, Jasper, who had just sent Wendy and the others off, got into the car and heard what Anna said.

“I’m having a headache.” Jasper rubbed his temples, pretending not to hear.

In the past few days, Jasper had to socialize every night. Even though he was able to handle his alcohol well now, the sequelae were also severe. The throbbing in his temples left him with no energy all day.

“You have to rest for a while now.” Anna sat next to Jasper and let Jasper lay down on her lap. She reached out and gently rubbed Jasper’s temples.

Jasper rested on the woman’s soft, supple, and smooth thighs. While he was enjoying the sweet fragrance pouring into his nose, he opened his eyes in surprise. “Your skills?”

“Your girlfriend taught me.” Anna chuckled. She looked down at Jasper and reached out to help him close his eyes.

“You’ve been drinking so much these days and can’t decline invitations. The four rich families are taking turns to invite you, and the huge families in Swallow Capital are all lining up to call you over as well. You’re a big hit now.”

“It’s important to socialize and it’s inevitable, but at the end of the day, your body is your capital, so that’s why I learned this skill from her. Is it okay?”

“Very good.” Jasper lay down comfortably and smiled.

“I’ll go back to the province soon. Swallow Capital is not my place, after all,” Jasper murmured.

Anna chuckled. “Just in time then. I was going to tell you that I’m going to Boston to study this Friday and won’t be back for a few months.”

“Why didn’t I hear you mention it before?” Jasper frowned. Hearing that he would not see Anna for a few months, Mr. Laine was a little unhappy. “Don’t further your studies. I’ll support you financially.”

Anna smiled and said, “You’re saying you want to support me the minute your girlfriend left. Don’t you feel guilty?”

“Why should I be? You’re studying fashion design, so I’ll just set up a company for you to manage,” Jasper said.

“All men are trash indeed.” Anna snorted. “Do you think I need you to support me? You keep saying things that don’t require capital while knowing that I won’t agree to it.”

Jasper was about to talk when the phone rang.

It was from Zachary.

Jasper did not dilly-dally and immediately picked up the phone.

“Jasper, are you busy?” Zachary asked.

Jasper did not dare to tell him that he was lying on his daughter’s lap while enjoying himself. As such, he said with a dry smile, “I just came back from the airport and I’m still on the road. Is there anything I can do for you, Uncle Law?”

Zachary said straightforwardly, “Come directly to the hotel where we’re staying later. The four families are here. We want to compete with the local faction to see how much we can get for the construction of the Olympic venues.”

Jasper said with a serious expression, “The local factions won’t let this matter go so easily, right?”

Zachary smiled and said, “That’s why we need your advice. The higher-ups are very happy with the Honeycomb Stadium proposal you submitted earlier. Everyone wants to hear your opinion.”

As he said, Zachary lowered his voice and continued, “The three other families are not so easy to deal with either. I proposed to let you in as well so we can count this as five stocks but none of them said anything. This time, you have to use your strength to convince them.”

Life at the Top Chapter 409

After Jasper hung up, Anna saw him slightly knitting his brows together as if he was thinking about some important things.

As such, Anna was sensible and did not speak as to not disturb his thoughts.

She just gently massaged Jasper's temples while letting him feel as relaxed as he could.

"What do you think about the other three from the four rich families?"

Jasper suddenly opened his eyes and asked Anna.

Anna knitted her black eyebrows together. After a little thought, she said, "To be honest, the relationship between the four families is very complicated. Most of the time, they're competitors. After all, Harbor City has limited space and there will be overlaps when it comes to their businesses.

"Among the four rich families, the Boyles are steadily deteriorating and their situation is very bad. As such, they're also eager to find new investment opportunities. But they're still making some profits because of the rebound in global trade in the shipbuilding industry this year.

"As for Joe, he's known as Half-the-Harbor Langdon, so you can imagine how huge his wealth is. However, his strength is the weakest among the four rich families and his foundation is also very shallow. He started from nothing and he got to where he was right now all by himself. For a long time, people from Harbor City actually didn't recognize him as one of the four rich men because of his lack of experience.

"However, I have a good feeling about him and my grandpa thinks so too. It's because he's different from the rest of them. He has an ambitious and ruthless spirit. He has a good eye. Plus, his ideas in business are not the same as the rest. They're more radical and suitable for the current business model.

"He has another big advantage and that's his age. He's 20 years younger than my grandpa and the others. Plus, he's not much older than my dad and that's his biggest advantage."

Jasper nodded appreciatively while he was listening to Anna's words.

Sure enough, none of the four rich families was easy to handle. Even Anna's vision was far beyond the one of an ordinary person because of the influence of her family's environment and education.

In the future, it would take just ten years for Joe's wealth to skyrocket. Once, he even got the highest status and position among the other three. This was the best proof.

At this time, it seemed that Joe, who had the weakest foundation, was actually the person with the most potential among the four rich families.

"What about Wallace?" Jasper asked.

Anna's expression became very strange as she said, "To be honest, us juniors hardly ever come into contact with Wallace. We just know that he's very low-profile, and he's very powerful in the Golden Peninsula. He's one of the heads of the rich families who conceals himself the most.

"Speaking of which, Grandpa and Wallace had beef for a few decades. It was the kind that can't be resolved," Anna said to Jasper with an extremely rare nosy expression on her face.

Jasper suddenly felt intrigued. "What happened?"

"My grandma... was Wallace's first love. I heard from my dad that my grandpa strapped explosives on his body and snatched grandma away from Wallace during their engagement ceremony."

Jasper's eyes widened, and there was a look of surprise on his face.

This was the first time he has heard of such secrets after living two lives.

Now that he thought about it, Old Master Law had also been a ruthless man in his early years. He was born negligible. In that chaotic era, he once monopolized the firearms business in Harbor City, Auma City, and Nawait.

In the earliest days, this old man, who was already showing first signs of his outstanding talent, had done a lot of transporting supplies and munitions to the Mainland.

Otherwise, Old Master Law would not be so respected by the higher-ups in the Mainland.

That was why!

It was also because a word from Old Master Law was all it took for Auma City's King of Gambling to no longer dare step foot into Harbor City for 20 whole years. He only dared to come after the old master died. This small detail was able to reflect the old master as a whole.

Life at the Top Chapter 410

As such, Jasper did not doubt Anna when she said that Old Master Law had snatched someone from the altar before.

"Um... I don't think it's too much to fight to the death for that matter," Jasper commented.

"At that time, my grandfather was only a commoner, but Wallace was a son of a rich family. Besides, Grandma and Grandpa really loved each other!" Anna could not help but side with her grandpa. "To me, Grandpa is the real man."

"But I saw Wallace smiling while chatting with the old master?" Jasper asked.

Anna replied, "That's nothing. Wallace personally came to deliver his gifts at Grandpa and Grandma's wedding."

"Heh." Jasper narrowed his eyes and smiled. "Wallace is such a character."

Anna's words raised Jasper's vigilance against Wallace to the highest level in his heart.

A person who, for decades, could endure the hatred of someone snatching his wife was either a fool or a peerless hero.

Would Wallace Langdon, who was once the richest man in Terra, be a fool?

He could only be a peerless hero.

...

The lounge of the hotel suite where Old Master Law stayed was filled with smoke.

In addition to Old Master Law, Wallace, Joe, Spencer, Zachary, and Kennedy were also here as the second-generations of the Laws and Langdons respectively.

When Jasper entered the room, everyone stopped talking and looked over at the same time.

"I'm sorry, everyone. I spent some time on the road," Jasper apologized.

"It's okay, we're just chatting, but there are some things that I want to ask for your opinion," Spencer looked at Jasper with a smile and said kindly.

Jasper just pretended that he did not know anything. He found a place to sit down and asked, "You're all my seniors while I'm just a little kid with little experience. How can I be qualified to give you advice?"

Spencer laughed and looked at Old Master Law. He said, "Law, this young man of yours is so incredibly humble. If the same thing happened to my child, they might have their nose up in the air already."

Old Master Law smiled slightly and said, “If you can’t provide advice, it’s good to give some new ideas. We’re just a bunch of old guys and all of our thinking has been solidified, so we can’t be as flexible as you young people.

“We intend to form an alliance, and the goal is the construction of Olympic venues. This project is worth trying whether it’s for fame or economic benefits.

“It’s just that there’s a problem now. The local factions in the Mainland don’t want us to participate. What do you think of this matter?”

While listening to Old Master Law’s words, Jasper raised his head and saw the encouragement in the old master’s eyes. He smiled and asked, “May I humbly ask whether you’re planning to devour this entire project?”

Spencer raised his hand and touched his head. He said domineeringly, “It’s fine if the four of us don’t make a move, but if we do, we naturally have to take all of it. There aren’t many venues in the first place. We don’t have enough to share internally, so how will there be any leftovers for others?”

Jasper raised his eyebrows slightly when he heard the words. After weighing the pros and cons inside his heart, he said something that emotionally moved everyone in the lounge.

“If everyone thinks that way, I think that a counterattack from the local support groups will definitely happen. When that time comes, our hope of winning will be almost zero.”

Life at the Top Chapter 411

When Jasper said that, Zachary, who had already informed him about the situation, felt his eyebrows tremble. Unexpectedly, Jasper's opinion was so direct and pessimistic.

Were the four rich families in Harbor City so weak even after joining forces?

Zachary felt that Jasper was underestimating the influence of all of the big shots in this room.

The other four heads' expressions did not change, and one could not tell how they were feeling.

After a long time, Spencer said, "Why do you say that? You must know that we're much stronger than the locals in the Mainland, whether it's capital or experience we're talking about it. We'll still have a great advantage, no?"

Jasper laughed and said, "We can't simply calculate this sort of thing based on the advantages we have in our accounts. Naturally, I believe that the strength of those locals can hardly compare to the four rich families. However, the problem right now is that since this is such an important matter. It would be such a headache even for the higher-ups to distribute the profits.

"You must know that the way we do things in the Mainland is different. A lot of things cannot be summed up based on experience in doing business abroad. Moreover, once commercial interests are sufficiently involved, political forces will also leave the playing field. This happens even in the west.

"Regardless of whether it's the local groups or the four rich families of Harbor City, whoever wants to dominate this huge profit will inevitably attract dissatisfaction from the higher-ups."

Jasper's fingers made a circle in front of him and then he cut it from the middle, saying, "The technique of checks and balances is also the technique of the emperor."

After hearing these words, Joe laughed and said, "Your opinion is the same as the result of our previous discussion."

Jasper looked at Joe. He did not think that Joe was forcibly acting like a poser with his remarks.

Would the four rich families be fools if they had status and wealth of this level?

Each of them was smarter than anyone else. Naturally, there was no need to say more about this kind of unsound truth.

Jasper knew that the truly intractable problems for the heads were yet to come.

Sure enough, Joe immediately said, "So in your opinion, how do we approach this and how much is reasonable?"

Jasper sighed in his heart. This was a difficult problem, and it would be difficult to predict no matter who answered it.

If it was just the Laws, then it would be easy to solve.

However, the problem now was that there were four rich families and there were many problems within this unformed alliance.

What was more, they were talking about sharing this with the locals now.

This was what the higher-ups had to consider, so how could it be Jasper's turn to rack his brains about this?

However, this question was brought to Jasper now and he could not pretend that he did not hear it. After a moment of silence, he said, “My opinion is to take less.”

The words ‘take less’ caused the heads of the four families to frown.

Jasper’s answer was obviously not in their interest.

However, everyone stayed calm and was waiting for Jasper to explain.

“Now our greatest advantage is the wealth in our accounts or so-called experience. These people are not lacking in those as well, at least the gap is not too big to be considered incomparable.

“Our real advantage is that the higher-ups hope to establish a good cooperative relationship with us so that we can return to the Mainland to invest. On one hand, it’s to drive the economic development of the Mainland. And on the other hand, it’s also to accelerate the integration of the two places.

“This is our real advantage, and to maximize this advantage, what we need to do is not to compete with others, but to take what we can and then put more energy into other regions and industries in the Mainland.”

With a confident smile on his face, Jasper said, “As long as we reveal this, we will gain a favorable impression from the higher-ups and the local faction will owe us a favor.”

Life at the Top Chapter 412

“The most important thing is that investment in other regions and industries in the Mainland is very promising. Our vision should encapsulate the whole country and not just the next Olympic venue.”

Joe's eyes flickered as if he was thinking about something.

Meanwhile, Spencer frowned and said nothing.

Only Old Master Law and Wallace still had no expressions on their faces, nor did they display their attitude toward Jasper's words.

Jasper sighed and said, "This is a choice of short-term and long-term interest. The construction of Olympic venues can of course get the greatest benefits in the shortest time. But in the long run, if we have an acrimonious falling-out with the local factions and excessively overdraw the favorable impression of businesspeople from Harbor City, it'll only be killing the goose that lays the golden eggs."

"Jasper, you're a bit of an alarmist."

The person who said this was Kennedy who had stayed silent this entire time. He looked at Jasper cheerfully and said calmly, "At the end of the day, the businessmen will solve the business problems by themselves. How will the higher-ups be bothered with so many things?"

"Of course." Jasper shrugged. "However, it also depends on when and where. You want to take down the construction of the Olympic venues so badly because it's of great significance, no? Since it's of great significance, how can you guarantee that the higher-ups will not personally split the profits themselves?"

Kennedy smiled coldly and said, "Jasper, who in this room has less experience than you? The reason we called you here is to flatter you. Don't take yourself too seriously."

Jasper said lightly, "Then, do I need to thank you, Mr. Langdon, for your support? Why don't you think about whether I need this or not?"

Kennedy's face darkened as he said calmly, "You're so hot-tempered, young man. Do you really think you're the chosen one just because you achieved some success during this period?"

"I dare not be the chosen one, but if you don't want to listen to me, you can leave." Jasper looked directly at Kennedy, not giving way.

"You!" Kennedy stood up suddenly, and the atmosphere between the two of them instantly became a state of mutual hostility.

"Ken."

Wallace interrupted Kennedy. After he called Kennedy by his name, Kennedy did not dare to say more.

After taking a deep breath, Kennedy smiled coldly at Jasper and sat back down.

"Okay, I think that's all for today," Wallace said insipidly.

"If we have any new ideas in the future, we can sit down and talk again."

Wallace's words ended this informal meeting.

After everyone left, Old Master Law called Jasper into the study alone.

"Jasper, how sure are you about what you just said?" Old Master Law asked.

"From my point of view, there's nothing wrong with the advice I gave," Jasper said confidently.

After nodding thoughtfully, Old Master Law said, "Then it's settled. The Laws are determined to get the construction project for Olympic Village. We estimate that the entire construction will be between 20 to 30 billion Somer Dollars and I plan to divide this into three parts.

“The Laws will account for 40%, Joe accounts for 30%, and you will account for 30%.”

Jasper raised his eyebrows and said, “30%?”

Old Master Law smiled and said, “Too little?”

Jasper smiled wryly. “It’s a bit too much. This project takes too much money and I need the money somewhere else.”

“The Laws will help you pay in advance in terms of the funds,” Old Master Law said in astonishment.

Life at the Top Chapter 413

Jasper hurriedly said, “No. If I take this offer, won’t I be getting this advantage in vain?”

The old master laughed and said, “Jasper, don’t you understand? Whether it’s the venue construction or Olympic Village, the Laws can’t devour them alone. Moreover, the construction of the Olympic Village is too large. As businessmen from Harbor City, Joe and I have already taken 70% and it’s already a lot.

“Meanwhile, you’re the local representative we elected.”

Jasper frowned and said, “I’m not in any faction.”

Jasper knew too much about how fierce the conflict between factions was. He did not intend to get involved unless it was the last resort.

“Jasper, you’ll find yourself to involuntarily be in many things when you reach a certain position. You’re from the Mainland, so you’ll naturally be regarded as being in the local faction.

“Plus, this is also to protect you. The others regard you as a local faction, but now you have a better relationship with us. When the time comes, you’ll be caught in the middle with enemies coming at you from both sides.”

Old Master Law cleared up the confusion in Jasper’s head.

“The surrounding of the local factions see me as an innate local faction, but in the eyes of their core, such as the W. Langdons, I’m on the side of Harbor City businessmen.”

Jasper frowned, his face thoughtful.

Old Master Law looked at Jasper with a faint smile. He did not disturb his thoughts and was waiting for him to continue his analysis.

“Caught between enemies... Who among the four rich families wants me dead? Is Kennedy so anxious?” Jasper suddenly looked up and said.

Old Master Law was really interested this time. “Why do you say Kennedy instead of Wallace?”

Jasper smiled bitterly. “Old Master, no matter how conceited I am, I’m not arrogant enough to think that Wallace needs to deal with me cautiously.

“On the contrary, it’s Kennedy. Ever since I met him, we haven’t been able to get along. Plus, judging from his attitude toward me tonight, he has tolerated me for a long time.

“As long as he has the opportunity, he certainly wouldn’t mind hitting me when I’m down.”

Old Master Law laughed and said, "Smart."

"In fact, this so-called alliance was initiated by Spencer by mediating and pulling strings in the middle of the proposal. The Boyles' focus has always been on the shipbuilding industry, but this industry relies too much on international trade. If there's turmoil, they're the first to be ruined.

"Spencer is now anxious to find other ways, but his ability falls short of his wishes. He wants to do it but he dare not try, so he proposed to make such an alliance. However, Joe and I are actually not optimistic about it.

"And you've analyzed the reason why just now."

Jasper sighed. "In that case, Spencer is probably also very dissatisfied with me as I broke up the alliance just now."

"If you're in our position, there's no satisfaction or dissatisfaction when you treat a person. It's nothing more than interest." Old Master Law waved his hand, and he was not bothered.

"I've discussed with Joe about the matter from just now. As long as you nod your head, it'll be done." Old Master Law smiled.

Jasper laughed and said, "I'm not in a hurry. After all, the whole plan doesn't even have a proposal. Besides, I don't think the locals will be willing to give up the Olympic Village."

"I'll let Zachary and the others follow up on this matter."

The old master got up and patted Jasper's arm. He said warmly, "Just do anything you want to do boldly. Young people should not be afraid of making mistakes. It's precisely that they have to make more mistakes while they're young so that they won't make any huge mistakes when they're old later."

Jasper got up and smiled. "Old Master, you should rest earlier. I'll remember your words."

Old Master Law smiled and nodded to Jasper before he walked out of the study.

At the entrance of the hotel suite, Zachary sent Jasper out.

"Uncle Law, you should go back too. You don't have to walk me out," Jasper said.

Zachary nodded. Then, he frowned suddenly and said, "Is Henry, that b*stard, doing something again?"

The image of Henry giving Lisa and Ben an evil smirk appeared in Jasper's head suddenly. He said embarrassingly, "He knows when he needs to stop."

"If he truly knows that, I wouldn't have to worry about him so much!"

"Their parents even complained to me, saying that Henry was carrying their son to the room where he stayed and threatened to mess their whole family up!

"What nonsense!"

Looking at the furious Zachary, Jasper silently wished Henry good luck in his heart. However, it was not strange for Henry to do such a thing judging by his temper.

"It has something to do with me this time, so you can't put all the blame on him." Jasper exculpated Henry.

Zachary frowned. "It has something to do with you? Then it seems that this kid is not completely useless. At least he knows who's close to him and who isn't now. Is he avenging you?"

If Henry were here, he would definitely wonder who was Zachary's biological son just from the difference in treatment.

"That kid still needs more training. You need to put in more work in this regard," Zachary said to Jasper.

Jasper nodded and smiled. "I'll treat him as my biological brother."

Zachary grinned. He was very satisfied with the answer.

While watching Jasper leave, Zachary suddenly said, "Be careful with the Langdons."

Jasper paused, nodded to Zachary, then turned and left.

In the car going back, Jasper was looking pensive.

Zachary's reminder sounded extremely unusual.

It was not about Kennedy, but about the Langdons.

Among these four families, there were two Langdons.

The other Langdon family was also cooperating with the Laws to develop the Olympic Village... This was going to be interesting.

When he was back in the hotel, Jasper had just stepped into the lobby when he saw Julian walking toward him. After Jasper saw his face, he sensed that there seemed to be an emergency.

"Jasper, I couldn't get through to you after calling you repeatedly. Something bad has happened," Julian said to Jasper when they met.

Jasper frowned and said, "I was in an important meeting and turned off my phone. What's the matter?"

"It's Henry, but I don't know what happened specifically... He just told me to find you as soon as possible. Jasper, hurry. Go up and have a look," Julian said.

During this time, the relationship between Henry and Julian was strangely well.

A top-notch young master and a top-notch master.

The two who were originally completely unrelated to each other actually had a common topic. Henry also liked this person who was ruthless but not talkative. The two had a good relationship in private, otherwise Julian would not be so worried about Henry.

"Let's talk upstairs."

Jasper said and walked into the elevator.

He had a hunch that his enemies had already begun to take action against him, and Henry might just be their attempt... However, who was so courageous to use the Laws as a touchstone for himself?

Life at the Top Chapter 414

After coming upstairs, Jasper saw Henry in the room. He was sitting on the sofa with a frown on his face.

"What happened?"

Seeing that Henry still had the mood to be mad, Jasper was a little relieved. It seemed that it was not a big deal, at least.

Upon hearing Jasper's voice, Henry raised his head. Only then did Jasper see his blood-red eyes.

"I got into huge trouble."

Henry gritted his teeth while feeling both regretful and angry. There was also a trace of inexplicable grievance.

"Do you think that you haven't been causing huge trouble already? In Anna's words, you grew up in trouble. What are you afraid of? Tell me what happened and I'll help you solve it." Jasper frowned.

Henry clenched his fists and punched down on his knees heavily. He then said in an extremely angry tone, "After I messed with Lisa and Ben a few days ago, I was in a good mood. So I went out to drink with my friends last night.

"However, I don't know what went on. The alcohol yesterday was particularly intoxicating so I got muddle-headed and I think I signed a few contracts... In Swallow Capital, I serve as the general manager of my family's branch here. The more I think about the contracts, the more I think there's something not right with them."

Speaking of this, Henry lifted his head to look at Jasper with fear and anxiety in his eyes. "The family's qualification for the application of the construction projects of the Olympic Village and the Honeycomb Stadium is all dealt with in this branch, and there's more than one billion in the account for the preparation of the project.

"If I had gotten confused and signed a contract that shouldn't be signed, my family will definitely suffer a great loss this time. I can't make a mistake at this critical moment."

While listening to Henry, Jasper's expression also gradually became serious.

If Henry had really, as he thought, stepped into a trap set by others, this matter would be very troublesome.

"The signature of the person in charge is only one of the prerequisites on the company's formal contract. They need the official stamp as well for it to take effect." Jasper frowned.

After finishing speaking, Jasper saw Henry rubbing his face in pain.

"Did you take the official stamp with you? Did you stamp it too?" Jasper asked.

Henry nodded with difficulty. His expression looked horrible, and he said with a lack of confidence, "According to the rules, the company stamp cannot be taken out of the company unless a special application is made. However, in some curious coincidence, I brought the official stamp out yesterday.

"I remember that I seemed to have stamped it..."

Henry finished speaking. His face was as horrible-looking as ash.

Jasper fell silent, pacing back and forth in the living room with his hands on his back.

Although his movements were slow, his brain was spinning fast.

He did not blame Henry. Although this kid really failed to live up to expectations, it had already happened. Even if Jasper chopped Henry into pieces, they still would not be able to change anything.

The top priority right now was to find a way to make up for it immediately.

"Where did you drink yesterday?" Jasper asked.

“The Dynasty in Santos,” Henry immediately replied. As he said that, he raised his head and looked at Jasper with hopeful eyes. “Do you have a way?”

“No.” Jasper shook his head, causing Henry’s eyes to go dark.

Life at the Top Chapter 415

“However, the most important thing now is to make sure whether you signed the contract last night, what contract you signed, and whether the bar has security cameras. The surveillance footage will be much more accurate than your memories. Let’s figure out what happened before we do anything.”

With the bar’s address, Jasper immediately picked up the phone and called Hector.

A local bully like Hector would be much more useful than any other person in this situation.

...

In a private club in Swallow Capital, Erik raised his eyes to Lisa and Ben who walked into the room while trembling all over.

These two people still had wounds on their faces. It was obvious that they had been beaten by the people Henry hired before.

“Did you get the stuff?” Erik asked.

Lisa nodded hurriedly. She took out a thick stack of documents from her bag and handed them to Erik.

After doing all this, Lisa took a step back and stood by Ben's side. The two looked at each other and noticed the panic in each other's eyes.

Erik took the documents and looked at the contents of the contract. As he flipped through the pages, the joy on his face became more obvious.

"I thought it would be just an attempt at best. I didn't have much hope for this but I didn't expect you two to actually succeed!" Erik said excitedly. Even the look he gave Lisa was much better now.

He stood up and touched the bruise on Lisa's face. He said softly, "How are you? Does it still hurt?"

Lisa shook her head. She was feeling aggrieved and sad. Then, she choked and said, "Erik, this is too serious. We really don't dare to get involved in this."

The smile on Erik's face grew brighter when he heard the words. He shook the contract in his hand and said, "You're already involved in this even if you don't want to. Yesterday, you took the drug I gave you, asked someone to get Henry drunk, and then made him sign this contract.

"So now, we're on the same boat. You have no choice but to do this with me to the end."

Lisa looked at Erik incredulously and said, "You told me yesterday morning that as long as we do this for you, we'll be able to get out of this and you'll get engaged to me too!"

Erik had a look of disgust in his eyes, but it was fleeting before a gentle smile appeared on his face. He said, "Of course, I'll get engaged to you. After all, you've helped me so much. Why would I abandon you?"

"However, you also know that we now have a common enemy. If we don't get rid of Henry and Jasper, we won't have a good life in the future. If you help me, it'll also mean that you're helping yourself."

As he said that, Erik chuckled, his eyes full of coldness. He looked at the contract in his hand and said coldly, “Now, not only have we obtained the Laws’ proposal for the Olympic Village, but we also got this stock transfer agreement!

“This is our biggest trump card. As long as we’re willing, we can completely crush the Laws’ entire plan. At that time, even my father will personally thank you two, let alone me.”

Lisa murmured, “Erik, are you giving this contract to your family?”

Erik narrowed his eyes and said coldly, “What’s the hurry? Now that we have the initiative, I also hope to use this contract to play with Henry and especially Jasper. Who does he think he is? How dare he climb up the ladder by stepping on my head?!

“This time, I want the two of them to pay for their arrogance from before!

“After squeezing their value clean, I’ll give this contract to my family. When that happens, Swallow Capital will only have my name while Jasper will be destined to be a poor little worm!”

Life at the Top Chapter 416

Santos. The Dynasty Bar.

At this time, it was approaching the evening and it was the peak hour for office workers to get off work. Meanwhile, the night owls were still sleeping, so the bar was very deserted.

At the entrance of the bar, Jasper and Henry got out of the car. Hector was waiting respectfully with a middle-aged man in a suit.

“Mr. Laine, Mr. Law.”

Upon seeing Jasper and Henry coming together, Hector hurriedly approached them and greeted them respectfully.

Henry was in a bad mood now, so he simply ignored Hector.

On the other hand, Jasper nodded and said, “Have you talked to them?”

Hector said hurriedly, “Yes, it’s done. This is Jared Wade, the owner of the bar.”

After hearing Hector introducing himself, Jared hurriedly bent over and said, “Mr. Laine, Mr. Law, hello. I’m the owner of this bar. If you need me for anything, just tell me and I’ll do it for you.”

If Jared was able to open a bar that covered such a large area in Santos of Swallow Capital, he already had more status and identity than most people in this society. He also drove a seventh-generation Mercedes S-Class, W140 series which was rarely seen in the Mainland nowadays. It was apparent that he was rich and powerful.

Yet, everyone would be afraid of comparisons whether it was money or power.

Jared tried his best to cling to Hector for his influence and status because Hector's status could help him operate his business smoothly.

However, Jared finally saw the true big shot today. After seeing Hector's careful and respectful look, Jared knew that these two young men in front of him were definitely not people he could afford to neglect.

"Thank you, Mr. Wade. What happened was my friend spent the night at your bar last night and something happened halfway. Now, we need to see your security footage. I wonder if it's convenient for you?" Jasper asked politely.

Jasper's code of conduct was not to be a flatterer when he was weaker than others, and not be cocky when he was stronger than others. As such, when he was facing Jared, his words made the other party feel comfortable.

Jared was taken aback and then said hurriedly, "Of course, it's convenient! Please come with me, sirs!"

They entered the bar and went straight to the surveillance room. Being the boss, Jared's instructions were immediately implemented. Soon, Jasper and Henry saw the entire bar's surveillance footage from last night on the monitor screens.

To be honest, the lighting in the bar was already dim and there were a lot of people dancing, so it should have been difficult to find Henry.

However, they did not expect that after the footage was released, everyone in the room discovered Henry immediately.

It was because this guy was too eye-catching.

Henry was standing on the sofa in the VIP deck. While on the soft sofa, he was surrounded by two girls as they held his waist while they shook theirs.

Meanwhile, Henry was holding a wine glass in one hand while pinching the chin of one of the girls with the other. He laughed maniacally and drenched her face with the wine.

Not only was the girl not angry, but she had a drunken expression on her face as she stuck out her tongue and licked the alcohol at the corner of her mouth as if she was intoxicated.

Next, Henry drew a large stack of cash from the wallet he carried with him. He then raised his hand and scattered the bills all over. In an instant, colorful banknotes began to rain down around him.

On the screen, the people around Henry were cheering wildly and scrambling for the money he was throwing out while he cackled maniacally. While looking at Henry through the screen, Jasper felt that Henry needed a good beating.

The expressions of the people in the room looked weird.

However, they forcibly held back their expressions.

Hector's eyes widened. To be honest, he felt that he and Henry were the same kind of people. Both of them were also second-generation young masters.

However, his idea of entertainment was like children playing house compared to what Henry did for entertainment.

He scattered money directly once there was a disagreement. Was this how the second-generation young masters of Harbor City had fun?

Life at the Top Chapter 417

Hector felt as if he had fallen behind the ranks and was dishonoring the reputation of second-generation young masters in the Mainland.

The expression on Henry's face looked a bit awkward. Although the sight of him acting this way was normal to him, he was not drunk now and was still sober after all.

The most important thing was that the death glare from Jasper was making him uncomfortable.

"Damn it, the f*ck are we looking at this for? Fast forward!"

Henry scolded the staff playing the surveillance footage with a dark expression on his face.

The staff quickly fast-forwarded the footage. As the footage jumped forward, it switched to Henry sitting on the sofa while holding a woman in his arms. They were feeding each other alcohol with their mouths...

Henry wanted to yell at someone.

He wanted to swear, Harbor City-style!

When Henry could not take this and wanted to continue fast-forwarding, they saw the woman who was in Henry's arms taking out a thick stack of papers before handing it to Henry.

"Pause."

Jasper and Henry said at the same time.

The footage stopped, and they could see that Henry's expression on the monitor was strange as if he was drunk but not really. It seemed as if he had fallen into a psychedelic state.

Meanwhile, they could vaguely see that there was a lot of content on the papers in the woman's hands. However, it was not clear what was on it.

"Can you zoom in?" Jasper asked.

Jared said awkwardly, "Mr. Laine, our surveillance cameras just provide a general view and there's no way to zoom in."

Jasper frowned slightly and motioned them to continue playing the footage.

In the footage, Henry did not read the contents of the contract at all before signing his name directly with a big stroke. When he was done, he took out a stamp and rubbed it against the woman's lips. With a touch of the woman's gorgeous lipstick on the official stamp, he slammed it down on the contract heavily.

After Henry had done all this, the woman passed the contract to a waiter. After the waiter took the contract, the two of them turned around and disappeared immediately.

"Who's that waiter?" Jasper looked at Jared.

Jared said hurriedly, "That person is called Mark Doyle. He came to work with us last month."

"Bring him over to me," Jasper said solemnly.

Hector was afraid that Jared would carry out his task sloppily after seeing Jasper's horrible expression. As such, he said, "Wade, hurry up and get him. Don't delay for even a minute or you'll be in serious trouble."

How would Jared dare to dilly-dally? He hurriedly ran out of the surveillance room.

Henry looked embarrassed. He sighed and said, "It's so f*cking weird. Even if I were to play around, I wouldn't have drunk so much. Why does it look like I saw a ghost last night?"

"You were drugged," Jasper said calmly.

Henry suddenly raised his head and stared at Jasper. He said, "Now that you've said that, I think it's really possible. I got up today and was so confused. What happened last night felt like a dream. I can't remember many details. I even forgot what the woman looked like."

"This was a conspiracy that was carefully arranged against you. The other party came prepared, so naturally, they would use some means." Jasper sighed.

Henry gritted his teeth and cursed, "If I find out who's behind this, I'll kill them!"

More than ten minutes later, the door of the surveillance room opened. Then, Jared kicked a young man into the surveillance room.

"Mr. Laine, Mr. Law, he's here," Jared said, pointing to Mark who fell on the ground with a look of horror.

Life at the Top Chapter 418

Jasper seated himself on the sofa. He was about to give Henry a meaningful look to ask him to go and inquire about the situation when he saw Henry already walking over with an expression as black as thunder.

Henry grabbed Mark's collar and hauled him bodily up from the ground. Fixing his attention on Mark, he growled "Boy, I'm not going to threaten you or intimidate you.

"But whatever I ask you after this, you'd better give me an honest answer. If you so much as keep even the smallest detail from me, I'll drag your whole family into the mountains and bury them alive!"

Mark was so terrified he almost wept in fear. What did Henry mean, that he would not use threats or intimidation?

Was this not the most f*cking barefaced, direct attempt at threat and intimidation?!

Under interrogation from everyone in the room, Mark did not keep anything back at all and readily revealed everything that he knew.

"Brother, boss, all I really know is this—honest. A young man informed me that in the evening, a woman would order a Pink Lady cocktail with double mint and sea salt. Guests who usually drink Pink Lady cocktails won't add sea salt to them, so that was considered to be something like a secret signal.

"After getting the signal, I was supposed to head over and she would hand me something. I was then supposed to bring it to the back door and hand it over to that young man. I don't know who either of them were, the man or the woman."

Mark trembled as he spoke, regret filling the pit of his stomach.

If he had known that he would end up like this today, just from earning that extra 1000 dollars, he would not have dared to take on the job even if he were beaten to death.

He had thought that he had made some easy money, but alas, there was no such thing as a free lunch, so to speak.

“Brother, that person gave me 1000 dollars. How about this—I give you the money and you don’t give me any more trouble? I’m just someone who came here from abroad to work. I can’t afford to offend any of you,” Mark pleaded with Henry as he swallowed and took the money out from the pocket of his trousers.

Henry’s expression was ominous. Cursing, he snarled, “The f*ck. Do you know that you helped someone to swindle me out of over a billion dollars yesterday? And in the end, you’re just giving me back 1000 dollars? You think I’m only worth that much !?”

“Let it be.” Jasper patted Henry on the shoulder and said, “It’s useless now even if you tear him to shreds. He’s just an errand boy. In the end, you’re still the one who’ll be disappointed.”

After pulling Henry away, Jasper asked Mark, “Would you be able to recognize the man you saw last night if you see him again?”

Mark seemed to sense that Jasper was the only ‘good guy’ present. Nodding his head as if kowtowing, he replied “I’m really good at identifying people—I’ve been that way since I was a child. I’ll definitely be able to recognize him!”

“Very well. For the next few days, you’ll stay here then. Don’t go anywhere. I may send someone to pick you up at any time.” Jasper gave Mark a smile.

Jasper then got up and glanced over at Jared. In a warm, amiable tone, he said, “Mr. Wade, this employee of yours is still useful to us. For the next few days, let him rest and not go to works. We’ll pay his salary. What do you think?”

Jared nodded hurriedly and bowed slightly, protesting, “Mr. Laine, please, what are you saying? He is my employee—of course I should be the one paying his salary. You mustn’t talk like that. I really don’t deserve such kindness from you.”

As he spoke, Jared turned to Mark and said pleasantly, “Markie, I won’t assign you to any of the shifts for the next few days, so you can have a good rest. Once you’re done helping Mr. Laine out, I’ll promote you to a foreman’s position, so work hard, alright?”

Mark, who had just received a blessing in disguise, looked both surprised and pleased. He nodded hurriedly in agreement.

Upon exiting the bar, Jasper’s party got into the car and left under Jared’s incomparably cordial and courteous eye.

On the way back to the hotel, Henry curled his lips and said, “Why did you treat them so politely? Look at that Wade—he couldn’t wait to lick your boots.”

Jasper said blandly, “Dealing with others can be as simple or as complicated as you make it. Previously, Mr. Wade helped you handle some business because he was under pressure from Hector Combe.

“However, if you really treat him like an underling and boss him around, he won’t cooperate with you, or he might even sell you out to others. Who do you think will be on the losing end then?”

Life at the Top Chapter 419

Henry raised an eyebrow and said, “Does he dare? Coincidentally, I’m so pissed and don’t know where to direct my anger. If he dares make any small moves, I’ll tear him down together with the bar.”

Jasper said as he rubbed his temples, “That’s the reason why you get into trouble easily. You can mess with the leader with no problem but it’s the uncooperative subordinates who will be difficult to deal with. Even if you tear him down after things are done, we would still have made a loss. Can you make up for it if you tear him down? You’ll only be able to give yourself a breath of release.

“If you were more courteous with him, he would respect you even more. He must definitely be thinking now about how he can help us handle things and protect our secrets. So, if things are successful, we wouldn’t even have any trouble with anyone. It’s a win-win situation.”

Henry did not respond to Jasper’s remarks. Hector, who was driving, instead looked thoughtful and seemed to understand from experience.

Henry said sullenly, “You people, your heads are full of twists and turns. I don’t understand it and don’t want to figure it out. I just want to get my hands on the person who messed with me and turn them into ashes!”

“I already have an idea,” Jasper said.

Henry’s eyes widened. If he were not in a car, he would have jumped.

“Then, what are you waiting for? Let’s go straight to his door and f*ck him up!” Henry shouted.

“What’s the rush?” Jasper glared at Henry. “If they dare do something like this, they would be prepared for the aftermath. If you go up to their door so recklessly and without any evidence, they’ll instead be the ones who have information against you. Who’ll be the one to lose their reputation and dignity then?”

Henry asked through gritted teeth, “First, tell me who it is.”

Jasper said lightly, “There are no few people in Swallow City who hate either you or me. At the same time, there are only a few who hate the two of us. Consider those who have the guts and capability to act, who do you think it is?”

Henry thought for a moment before asking, “Are you saying it’s Erik Turner?”

“It’s a 90% probability,” Jasper said calmly.

“Damn, I knew this kid and all his tricks would not be easy to deal with. To think that he backstabbed me two days ago, pretending to be all pleasing and nice but was already secretly conspiring! I will kill him one day!” Henry said angrily.

Driving in the front, Hector’s hands jolted till the point he almost could not hold onto the steering wheel firmly.

He had thought that he was just helping Jasper handle a small matter. He did not expect that he would become involved in a fight with Jasper, Henry, and Erik.

His small body would not be able to stand this battle of the titans.

“Hector.” Jasper’s voice sounded, causing Hector to immediately collect his thoughts.

“Yes, Mr. Laine, what are your orders?” he asked.

Jasper smiled and said, “I don’t have any orders but I would like to ask you for help. You heard everything at the bar previously. Please use your contacts and check the surveillance around the back door of the bar. Work with Jared and locate the person he made contact with as soon as possible.”

After Jasper said this, Henry turned to look at Hector and patted his shoulder as he drove with a grin, “We had a misunderstanding in the past. But we’re all friends now that this misunderstanding is resolved. I’ll be the host the next time you and your brother come to Harbor City.”

Hector was taken aback for a moment before an unhindered smile broke upon his face.

This was a good opportunity to connect with Henry!

He did not bother about the battle between titans anymore and hurriedly said, “Okay! I’ll do it!”

Jasper chuckled and said nothing. Henry had used his wits well enough.

Life at the Top Chapter 420

If one could comprehend something when other people had guided them, that was being savvy—it was cleverness.

If one could subconsciously learn while actively applying something after another’s guidance and then immediately turn it into one’s own means of conducting everyday life, then that was wisdom.

As a first-rate heir, Henry had received the most elite education ever since he was young. Whether it was the influence of his family or his environment, he would only be smarter and have more advantages than ordinary people.

Not every heir or heiress was feeble-minded.

Henry was a little stubborn and mischievous, but it was undeniable that he was indeed a diamond in the rough.

He could shoulder great responsibility with a little carving and polishing.

Therefore, Jasper was very satisfied with Henry's performance now.

At the very least, Jasper finally had some confidence in Zachary and Old Master Law's expectations in letting him coach Henry.

A harsh beating from the real world was the best teaching material. Jasper reckoned that it might not be a bad thing to let Henry suffer a big loss this time.

After returning to the hotel, Hector rushed to work relentlessly while Jasper and Henry returned to the room to discuss the next strategy.

Fortunately, after Old Master Law came, Anna went to stay in the same hotel as Old Master Law to take care of him. Meanwhile, Henry stayed behind because he was afraid of getting lectured.

If Anna were still here, this matter could not be kept hidden for long.

"Right now, we can only locate the person first and see if we can follow the clues to come up with some evidence. The current situation is very disadvantageous for you and me. The main thing is we don't know what exactly they made you sign and how they're going to use these things."

Jasper analyzed as he sat in the study, pouring a cup of tea for Henry and himself.

Henry said with a grimace, "It feels like there's always an invisible bomb by my side."

At this moment in the hotel's parking lot.

Lisa and Ben were sitting in the car, and the atmosphere was somewhat heavy.

"Lisa, I feel like Young Master Turner is sending us to our deaths," Ben said with a dissatisfied expression.

Lisa took a deep breath. She stared at the tall and glorious hotel building in front of her and said, "What are you afraid of? We now have Henry's fate in our hands. What else do they still dare to do to us?"

Ben said with a frown, "But why didn't Young Master Turner come by himself to fish for information about Jasper and Henry and have us come instead?"

Lisa said through gritted teeth, "Didn't you hear Young Master Turner say that he has other matters to attend to? Cousin, don't think too much. Now that we've already gotten involved with this matter, it's impossible to pull out even if we want to.

"Do you think Henry and Jasper will let us go after everything has been exposed? If we don't do a good job for Erik, he won't even care about us when the time comes. We'd really be tethering at the end of our ropes then."

Ben made up his mind upon hearing this. With a deep voice, he said, "You're right, we have no choice now. Think about how Henry treated us before. Not only us, but even our parents were thoroughly disgraced! We must avenge them!"

The two of them got out of the car and entered the hotel after finishing their discussion.

Ben took a deep breath as he came to the door of the room. Just when he was about to knock on the door, the door opened from the inside.

Looking at the expressionless Julian, Ben said coldly, "Are Jasper and Henry here? I want to meet with them."

“Wait here,” Julian uttered the two words coolly, turned around, and entered the room.

Jasper’s voice came from the room after a moment, “Come in.”

“How arrogant,” Ben sneered and brought Lisa into the suite.

Jasper sat on the sofa in the living room of the suite, looking at Ben and Lisa who walked in.

“Where’s Henry?” Ben asked when he did not see Henry after sweeping his gaze around upon walking in.

“He went out to run errands,” Jasper said playfully, “I initially thought it was Erik behind the scenes, but I didn’t expect the two of you to be meddling in this too. Now that I think about it, Erik must be afraid to be exposed and criticized. He doesn’t dare to get involved in some dirty business, so the two of you are his best tools.”

Ben and Lisa’s complexions changed. The latter stepped forward and said, “I don’t understand what you’re saying.”

“It doesn’t matter if you understand or not. Anyways, you two have to make the purpose of your presence clear. If you have anything to say, just say it,” Jasper said indifferently.

Ben sneered as he stared at Jasper and said, “The way you pretend to be all dignified is really disgusting.”

“Your attitude was much better when we met backstage during the banquet a few days ago than it is now,” Jasper said playfully.

Ben was overcome by anger when he suddenly recalled the time he had apologized to Jasper humbly but still got humiliated.

“Don’t think that you can be so haughty just because you have power. I’m telling you, there are way more people in this world who have better means than you. Who do you think you are? Have you heard of the phrase ‘pride comes before a fall’?” Ben berated.

Lisa sneered and spoke up immediately after, “Yeah, I can’t stand people like you the most. Pretending as though you’re the most amazing person, aren’t you disgusting?”

“Erik asked you two to come to talk about this nonsense?” Jasper asked.

Lisa scoffed and said, “Of course not. We’re here today to inform you and Henry that Young Master Turner will get the stock transfer procedures done soon. When the time comes, everything you and the Laws did in Swallow Capital will be accredited to Young Master Turner.

“And the money... The Laws are really rich, huh? The account of the branch company in Swallow Capital contains more than a billion.

“Young Master Turner is also very interested in the Olympic Village project proposal. He asked us to send word to thank you for putting forward your plans and ideas, increasing Young Master Turner’s certainty in seizing the Olympic Village project.”

Jasper looked at both of them and said flatly, “Both of you tricked Henry into signing the contract with underhanded means, but that can be completely invalidated. Don’t you know the law?”

Ben let out a loud laugh and said, “File a lawsuit if you have the guts. We have time to engage in this lawsuit with you. It’s written in black and white with the company seal. Do you think the foul play can cover up the fact? Do you think the court will listen to your one-sided statement or look at the evidence?”

Lisa sneered and said, "Are you angry? I bet you must be so angry now, right? After all, you're about to lose such a big project, and that's more than a billion dollars worth of loss. If I were you, I might as well go and jump off a building."

"Haha, this is the consequences of going against Young Master Turner. Before this, you really thought that you were so great when Young Master Turner fell back a little bit. But you don't know that once he strikes, there'll be no room for you guys to even defy him!" Ben said proudly.

At this moment, the door was pushed open.

From outside the door, Henry sullenly threw in a man he had caught.

The battered man rolled and crawled his way into the room. As soon as he looked up, he suddenly locked eyes with both Lisa and Ben.

"It's you!"

"It's you!"

"It's you two!"

The three of them exclaimed simultaneously, their faces filled with horror.

Life at the Top Chapter 421

Jasper did not recognize the man Henry threw in.

However, seeing the furious look on Henry's face, Jasper knew that this man must be the one who had made contact with Mark last night.

Mark was first tracked down through the surveillance footage at the bar. Mark then identified the man who had made contact with him with the surveillance footage of the road outside.

Jasper had previously thought that this man was personally set up by Erik, but now it seemed that Ben and Lisa were the ones standing in between all this.

These two were the ones who had executed the plan.

"Why are these two idiots here?" Henry saw Lisa and Ben with their horrified expressions. He narrowed his eyes and asked.

Jasper smiled. He pointed at the man Henry threw in and said, "You'll have to ask him to find out then."

The man was also sharp. It was obvious that he had witnessed Henry's greatness before, so he did not keep anything from him at this moment. He just cried and said, "Sir, please spare me, sir. I'm just an errand boy, I don't know anything."

"It's the two of them!" The man pointed at Lisa and Ben and shouted, "These two found me the day before yesterday and told me to look for two suitable individuals, saying that they were going to set them up. So I went to look for people according to their plan and instructions."

“Although I was the one who found them, I don’t know anything about this, much less about them going against you, sir. Please forgive me. I was wrong, I know I was wrong.”

The man said while weeping bitter tears. He turned over and knelt on the floor. He groveled profusely to Henry and begged for mercy.

It was somewhat unbearable to look at this appearance of his.

However, Henry sneered and said, “Do you take me for a fool? When I f*cking grabbed you off a woman earlier, you had four to five thugs working for you. That’s not what you said back then. What’s the matter? Are you scared now that you’ve seen me mad and after I beat you up?”

Jasper had roughly guessed that after looking at the injuries on the man kneeling on the ground and the tattoos littering all over his exposed arms that this man was probably no good.

After Lisa and Ben found him, the three of them had also hit it off.

To say how much this thug knew would be overestimating him. In this case, however, he was the main culprit who set up Mark and the two girls. At least there was no denying that one of them was an accomplice.

At this moment, the expressions on Lisa and Ben could be described as spectacular.

They had never expected to be played like this when it was a situation that was supposed to be them showing off due to having the upper hand.

God knew how Henry suddenly caught the thug that they found.

The two were regretful. They should have cleared the traces and clues they left in the bar before.

“What the f*ck are you talking about?!”

Ben reacted immediately. He pointed at Kane and cursed, “I think you’re crazy, or are you tired of living? How dare you slander me?”

Fear flashed across Kane’s face when Ben said that, but compared to confronting Henry at this moment, Kane obviously found Henry to be more terrifying.

As such, Kane spoke through gritted teeth, “Ben Hull, don’t blame your pal for betraying you. I had already asked you guys if you wanted me to disappear for a while, but you guys were not willing to pay me 100,000 dollars in allowance for me to settle elsewhere. Now that I’m caught, I have nothing to say. Either way, you guys ordered me to do this.”

Ben turned pale and was so incensed he almost coughed up blood.

Life at the Top Chapter 422

Kane had indeed asked him earlier about whether he should get out of the country to lie low until the fuss died down, but he needed 100,000 dollars in funds to settle down.

Ben had thought that Kane was deliberately trying to blackmail him and when he thought of Erik who was still their backing, he ignored Kane entirely in the end.

Who would have thought that the outcome now would be Kane getting caught by Henry and Jasper?

At this moment, Ben not only felt angry and annoyed but also a little embarrassed.

“You f*cking shut your trap!”

Seeing that the matter had been completely exposed, Ben might as well throw caution to the wind. He sneered at Jasper and Henry while saying loudly, “So what if I used some tricks? Now that the matter is done, it’s useless even if you make a fuss about it!”

“On the other hand, I’d really like to see you both have a meltdown knowing that you won’t dare to do anything to me, hahaha!”

“Why is a Law like you so stupid? Taking the bait with just a few tricks and two women. You really think you’re all that with this kind of conduct? Let me tell you this, Law, if it weren’t for the Law family, you would’ve been done for early on being as stupid as you are!”

After Ben said this, he pointed his finger at Jasper and sneered, “The same goes for you. Don’t think of yourself as some maverick. There are many people in this world who are stronger than you. This bit of ability of yours is nothing.”

“Think you can act all high and mighty just cause you hosted the banquet? What in the f*cking hell? Those big shots at the party were all aiming for those at the top. How influential do you think you are? Let me tell you this now. You, Jasper Laine, are just a piece of trash in my eyes!”

After saying all this only did Ben feel the weight lift from his shoulders. All the frustrations and grievances that had been accumulating and repressed for so long were all vented out at this moment.

He felt light from head to toe, and it felt good beyond belief!

Just as he was about to admire Jasper and Henry’s unsightly faces, he heard Lisa shout in surprise beside him. Before he could turn his head to look, a fist had already hit him in the face.

The punch knocked Ben to the ground. Henry went over, raised his leg, and stomped on him several times.

Henry's ashen face looked really angered this time and he was nearly beating Ben to death on the ground.

Ben screamed miserably while Lisa panicked. She wanted to go over and hold Henry back, but Henry sent her flying with a slap.

"Fool, you have sh*t for brains! Go die on the street!"

"F*ck you!! Don't think that just because this is the Mainland that I wouldn't dare throw you into the sea to feed the fish! You even tried to set me up, I'll kill you!"

"Eat sh*t!"

Seeing that Henry was almost killing Ben, Jasper motioned to Julian who was grinning beside him to go up and pull him back.

Only then did Julian walk over and grab Henry who had gone almost mad

Henry, who was being pulled away by Julian, was still pointing to the ground at Ben who could not get up anymore. He cursed, "F*ck your mom! You're just a dog and you dare fight me? I even dare to tie your boss Erik up and feed him to the fishes, much less you!"

Jasper got up and walked in front of Ben. Seeing the other's bloody face and how he was struggling hard to get up, he slapped him on the shoulder.

Jasper took a paper towel and wiped the blood from Ben's face slowly, saying warmly, "Bring this message back to Erik. Since he's tired of living, I'll kill him now."

If he has any tricks, he should use them up fast because I'm afraid he won't have much time and won't be able to enjoy the gift that I'll be giving him."

Life at the Top Chapter 423

Ben looked at Jasper in horror.

Henry had given Ben quite the fright earlier, but when he looked at Jasper's calm and tranquil expression, he suddenly realized that the most terrifying person in the world was not the one who would hit you with a fist.

Instead, it was someone like Jasper, one who was clearly talking to you in an amicable manner yet could send chills down your spine.

Ben regretted provoking Jasper.

He also felt a great sense of remorse for seeking revenge after he was humiliated by Henry. Why did he not just grit his teeth and let this matter drop?

Now, he had not only turned into Erik's pawn, but he had also offended Jasper greatly.

If Erik won this battle in the end, then he would have nothing to worry about. If Jasper won, however, then Ben could not even begin to imagine the horrible consequences he would face.

It would definitely be more terrifying than death itself!

While gritting his teeth, Ben wiped the blood on his nose and stood up with Lisa's help.

“I’ll definitely pass on your message!” Ben spoke between clenched teeth.

“Hopefully you will,” Jasper said lightly.

Ben and Lisa dared not say another word. No one could tell for sure if Henry would rush over and beat them up again.

If they got beaten by Henry here, then there was simply nothing they could do because they could not return the punches at all.

The two held each other and walked to the door. As soon as they opened the door, they heard Jasper’s voice.

“Many times, you will only have one chance. I hope you make the right decision because the consequences will be really serious if you don’t.”

When Ben and Lisa heard what Jasper said, they trembled at the same time for some reason.

After taking a deep breath, Ben endured the pain in his body and said, “Thanks for the reminder, but the humiliation I received today will soon be returned to you twofold! Just wait and see!”

Having said that, Ben pulled Lisa out the door.

“Damn, he still has quite the guts to provoke me, huh?” There was a fierce and sinister look in Henry’s eyes. He looked as though he was about to rush over and beat Ben up.

However, it was at this moment that Jasper waved his hand and said, “Forget it, you’ve already beaten him once. If you beat him to death, things will not only get more difficult to deal with. It’s also not going to help either.”

“What should we do now?” Henry looked at Jasper.

Jasper did not answer Henry but instead looked at Kane and asked, "What's written in the document you gave Ben?"

Kane was frightened out of his wits by the way Henry hit Ben earlier. Although Kane was a hoodlum who had experienced street fights more ferocious than this, it still boiled down to who the other party was.

If it were an ordinary ruffian, then he would not even care if Henry beat him up or not, and if Henry crippled him, then Kane could just pay the fella some money.

However, the man that Henry bashed up was Ben!

Kane knew that Ben was a really wealthy trust fund baby. A young master like him could easily find someone to kill a gangster like himself, let alone someone like Henry who could easily trample Ben to the ground till he could not even move a hair.

Kane did not know Jasper and Henry's identities specifically, but after the incident earlier, he knew that these two were surely not people he could provoke.

"I..." Kane avoided eye contact, stammering for a very long time while unable to say a word.

"I don't know who you are," Jasper said in a calm and direct manner, interrupting Kane's stammering.

"But I can tell that you're not a good citizen who abides by the law. Trust me, if you upset me, then I have many ways to throw you in prison. You're not going to have an easy life either."

After hearing what Jasper said, Kane's complexion changed. When he recalled Ben's tragic end, the last bit of hesitation in his heart dispersed completely. He said, "When I handed the things over to Ben earlier, I took a few photos in secret."

As Kane spoke, he took out his phone.

Jasper took the phone while Henry quickly leaned over to take a look.

Life at the Top Chapter 424

Even though this was a pretty ordinary-looking Nokia, it was worth a great deal of money in this era.

Though the pixels were awful, the pictures Kane took were really clear, so the contents were still pretty visible.

“The stock transfer agreement and the proposal for Olympic Village.”

Jasper had already made guesses when Ben arrived, and the contract written in black and white that was presented before their eyes confirmed his speculations.

“Darn it!”

Henry was livid, and there was a flash of panic in his eyes. He gritted his teeth and hissed. “He’s tricky alright! He’s taking out his ultimate move already, huh?!”

“They’ve not only taken away the stocks, but they’ve also taken away the project proposal!”

“Never mind the stocks. Worst comes to worst, we’ll just lose a little over a billion, but we can’t afford to lose this project. This concerns the Laws’ business topology in decades to come. Even my dad can’t handle this, let alone me.”

Kane was frightened out of his wits when he heard what Henry said.

What family did he come from?

They did not even mind losing billions?

Kane would have thought that the duo was filming a movie had he not known that this was impossible.

“What happens now?”

In just a few minutes, Henry had already asked Jasper this question twice.

Henry did not even notice that he was completely regarding Jasper as his strongest backing.

His first reaction when something major like this happened was not to go to Zachary or Anna to discuss countermeasures, but instead, it was to ask Jasper for help.

Jasper pondered while frowning before saying, “We’ll wait.”

“Wait!?” Henry stared at Jasper with his eyes wide open. “The fire is already burning my bum and we’re still waiting? Are we waiting for this fire to burn me alive?”

“Impatience isn’t going to solve anything.” Jasper sighed. “Frankly speaking, we’re in an unfavorable situation right now. Erik has the upper hand, so we can only wait for him to make a move and think of a way to deal with it.”

Henry’s mouth twitched as he snarled. “We have nothing to lose anyway. Worst comes to worst, I’ll just go back and come clean about this to Grandpa. We’ll fight it out with the Turners. Let’s see who will beg for mercy first!”

Jasper smiled and said, “If the Turners intend to fight it out with you, they wouldn’t have sent Lisa and Ben at all.

“Erik did so of his own accord. His family probably doesn’t know about it yet. We can still save the situation.”

Henry sighed, then sat down on the couch dejectedly. He said in frustration, “It’s all my fault.”

Jasper patted Henry on the shoulder and said, “There’s no use in being depressed when things go wrong. First find a way to solve the problem, wait for it to pass, then look back and see what you’re lacking. Learn from your mistakes, and even if you paid a hefty price for it, it will not be for naught.”

As Jasper spoke, his phone rang.

He did not recognize the number.

When Jasper connected the call, Erik’s calm and relaxed voice was heard. “Mr. Laine, I heard that Mr. Henry has plenty of energy now, eh? I’m surprised he still has the energy to beat someone up.”

Jasper replied mildly, “Looks like Ben did a really good job passing on my message as soon as he left the door.”

Erik chuckled softly. “Of course. It’s just one sentence. It’s not that difficult for him to do.”

Jasper replied, “It’s not hard to pass on a message. What’s hard is how we’re planning to solve this.”

Erik laughed and said, “Don’t play dumb riddles with me. Let’s have a talk at 5:30 in the afternoon in the InterContinental Hotel, how’s that?”

“I’ll be there on time.”

Life at the Top Chapter 425

When Jasper hung up the phone, Henry asked him in a hurry, "Erik?"

Jasper nodded. "He invited us for dinner at the InterContinental Hotel at 5:30 in the afternoon."

"Hehe, looks like we're in for a negotiation," Henry said calmly.

"He holds the bargaining chip, so it's only natural for him to maximize his profits. Let's see what he says," Jasper said.

Henry exhaled deeply and said in a deep voice, "There's no need for us to humble ourselves either. I was the one who started this mess, so I'll take responsibility for it. Like I said, worst comes to worst, I'll just go back and come clean to Grandpa.

"We may be at fault, but Erik broke the rules first. Our family won't let this matter drop so easily. Do you think Erik has the guts to make the Laws start a full-scale war with the Turners?"

"No." Jasper shook his head and narrowed his eyes slightly.

"Things are very complicated in Swallow Capital right now. The local faction and Harbor City's businessmen all have their eyes on the Olympic construction project. A minor change can affect the entire project. If we can't handle this properly, then we'll be in big trouble. Therefore, we must keep the situation under control.

"We can't lower our guard either. Look, why don't you go and get a few things sorted out first?"

“First, transfer out all the funds in the company.

“Secondly, prepare an alternate project proposal for the Olympic Village construction plan.

“Thirdly...”

...

At 5:30 in the afternoon, Jasper, Henry, and Julian appeared at the InterContinental Hotel’s Imperial Ballroom on time.

The ballroom was big enough to accommodate more than 20 people dining in at the same time, but tonight, there were only six people in this vast area.

Lisa, Ben, Erik, Jasper, Henry, and Julian.

When Erik saw Jasper walking in, he laughed and got up to greet him, “Ah, our most distinguished guest. Please, come in.”

Henry looked coldly at Erik, who was full of smiles, and curled his lips. He said, “Stop pretending, Turner. We’re all the same, so why bother putting on a phony show? Who are you putting on a performance for? Seeing a hypocrite like you sickens me.”

Erik was nonchalant and continued to wear a smile on his face, saying, “I heard that you’re in a really bad mood these days, Henry, and they were right. Winter is slowly coming to Swallow Capital and the air is getting drier. Don’t get too angry or it’s going to be bad for your health.”

Henry almost lost it and was eager to hurl a punch at Erik’s face. He said through clenched teeth, “My mood has never been better. It’s so good that I can’t help but want to trample on your stupid face when I see you.”

“Are all people from Harbor City so low class?” Lisa stood up and said sarcastically.

Henry turned around abruptly and stared coldly at Lisa. “Looks like you’re itching for a beating because I didn’t beat you up earlier, huh? Do you really think I won’t hit ladies? Make me mad and I’ll hit you regardless.”

Lisa’s expression changed. Despite her anger, she was quite apprehensive of the madman that was Henry. She had just witnessed the horror this man could cause when he was infuriated.

However, Erik was present at the moment, so Lisa, who was fueled with a considerable amount of confidence, retorted, “What else do you know aside from hurling punches? Only incompetent people hurl punches.”

Henry snorted. “You witch! You must have a death wish, huh?”

At this moment, Ben pulled Lisa aside, motioning her to stop talking. He said coldly, “Sit down, Lisa. It’s no use talking to people like that. The angrier he is, the more guilty and fearful he is. Don’t you find it really interesting to see the look on his face right now?”

Life at the Top Chapter 426

As he had just gotten beat up by Henry during the day, Ben's nose was still wrapped in gauze. His voice sounded muffled when he spoke, but his gaze carried bone-deep bitterness.

Erik smiled slightly while looking at Jasper and saying, "I'm so glad you're here today, Mr. Laine. We can finally make negotiations. After all, negotiations are key to solving problems. If our negotiations don't work, only then we'll display our own ability. What do you say?"

Jasper said calmly, "Get straight to the point. Stop using two mediocre and insignificant characters to breed enmity. That's just plain boring. Make your offer."

Jasper's words were tantamount to the punches Henry hurled at Ben during the day.

Ben and Lisa's expressions changed immediately.

From Jasper's words, anyone could tell that he did not regard them as humans at all. How could they possibly stand the humiliation when he called them mediocre and insignificant characters?

With a bang, Lisa screamed at Jasper while pointing at him, "Who do you think you are, Jasper Laine? What are you so proud of? Don't forget that we still hold a bargaining chip that can cost you dearly. Aren't you afraid that this negotiation will fail and all your plans will fall apart?"

Jasper looked at Lisa and smiled. "Sounds good."

Sounds good?!

Everyone was dumbfounded.

They all looked at Jasper in astonishment, not knowing how those two words came out of his mouth.

Lisa was even more astonished. Jasper should have flown into a rage after hearing what she said, no? Perhaps he would even show humility. However, what did he mean by 'sounds good'?!

“Frankly speaking, Erik is the one who orchestrated this. You have neither the brain nor the guts. The only reason why you two are able to participate in this is that Erik doesn't want his plan to fall through or be exposed, nor does he want to stain his hands. You guys are just his gloves.”

Jasper smiled and continued calmly, “A pair of blood-stained gloves can be thrown away at any time. You must know your worth.

“If all fails, then I can just turn around and walk away, no big deal. Feel free to deal with the Laws yourself. Think about it, when that happens, do you think Erik will let you off? Or will the raging Laws let you off?”

A strange air lingered over Lisa, Ben, and Erik following Jasper's words.

They were swayed by the things Jasper said, and their distrust for each other intensified.

Lisa and Ben looked nervous as they stared warily at Erik.

Erik, however, looked calm. He stared at Jasper and said, “You're really great at sowing dissension, aren't you, Mr. Laine? Oh, I concede defeat.”

Jasper looked at Erik coldly and said, “I don't think it's necessary for us to eat this meal together. Tell us your conditions straight away. I'm a busy man. I don't have time to waste blabbering nonsense with you here.”

Erik smiled and said, "Since you want me to get straight to it, I'll dive right into it then. My request is simple. I can return everything to you but at a price of five billion. Also, I want you and Henry... to get down on your knees!"

The smile on Erik's face vanished abruptly when he said the last six words, his expression turning cold and sinister instead. He looked like a demon that had ripped its mask apart and was finally baring its fangs.

Lisa and Ben laughed wildly as soon as he said those words, gloating.

In comparison, Jasper and Henry's expressions sank deeply.

As for Julian, his entire being was enveloped in a murderous aura. As long as Jasper gave him the command, he would not hesitate to pounce on Erik and rip him apart.

Julian had now regarded Jasper as his lifesaver. When he started striking someone, he could not care less if the other party was a young master or if they had a noble status. In his opinion, it was just a matter of a click and twist.

Life at the Top Chapter 427

"Jasper Laine and Henry Law, you don't know what to say anymore, huh? Hmm? Are you still pleased with yourself? Still so full of yourself?"

Ben covered his sore nose and said bitterly, "Let's see whether you can keep being so arrogant. I'd like to see who goes down first!"

"Can't you hear? Are you deaf or are your ears full of sh*t? Young Master Turner asked you to get down on your knees!"

Lisa looked extremely complacent, eager to jump up and stare straight into Jasper's face. She said, "You were so full of yourself earlier, no? Weren't you all smug and self-righteous? You're really good at pretending, aren't you? Go on then, I'd like to see how you can keep pretending!"

"Wendy must've been blind to have fallen in love with you. I'd love to see the look on your face when you get down on your knees. I'll let Wendy know so that she'll realize what a wuss her man is. Hahaha!

"I bet Wendy will give up on you after that. Only I, Ben Hull, can be her Mr. Right—only I am worthy of her!"

Ben had gone almost completely insane, his anger and frustration exploding all at once at this moment.

He looked at Jasper and Henry ferociously then let out a burst of wild laughter. "I've waited for this moment for so long! When you go down on your knees, I'll take Wendy away and make you watch!"

Erik crossed his arms and said indifferently, "Looks like both of you aren't getting along very well, huh? So what's it going to be? When you're done figuring it out, I want you to get down on your knees and apologize to me.

"Oh, by the way, you said they're my gloves, didn't you?"

"I'd like to add one more condition. Not only do you need to kneel down to me, but you also need to kneel down to my gloves. If I'm in a good mood, then I'll return the things to you."

Erik was truly in a good mood. He hosted this banquet tonight especially to humiliate Jasper and Henry.

In his opinion, these two had no chance of making a comeback.

They had no choice but to do as he said.

Ben and Lisa looked at Erik gratefully.

“Thanks for giving us a chance to hold our heads up high, Erik,” Lisa said to Erik sweetly.

Ben also said emotionally, “That’s right. It’s all thanks to you, Mr. Erik. Hehe. Only a man like Mr. Erik is worthy of being a true magnate. You’re nothing compared to him!

“The only reason why you could be so complacent before this is because Mr. Erik didn’t want to argue with you. Well, he still managed to use his tactics to get you on your knees in the end, didn’t he?”

As soon as Ben finished his sentence, he felt an icy gaze on him. He looked at Henry, saw the latter’s gloomy expression, and took a step back subconsciously.

Ben was probably traumatized after Henry’s beating.

However, Ben quickly realized that he had the upper hand now. Henry would not have the guts to lay a finger on him at all, hence he went back to becoming bold and self-confident again.

“What are you looking at? If you think you’re so great, why don’t you try and hit me one more time?”

Henry took a deep breath and clenched his fists.

He had never felt so infuriated before.

Due to excessive force, his knuckles cracked like popping popcorns.

Nevertheless, he endured it all.

He gritted his teeth and swept his gaze across Erik, Lisa, and Ben coldly.

Just as Henry was about to speak, Jasper spoke.

“Julian, since he wants to be beaten up so much, we will fulfill his request.”

As soon as Jasper’s words left his lips, Julian, who could no longer stand it, rushed out like a tiger charging out of its cage.

It was a distance of seven or eight meters with a large round table that could seat more than 20 people in between.

Julian was seen taking large strides before leaping on top of the huge round table. He was extremely agile despite his tall and sturdy frame. In the blink of an eye, he had rushed over to Ben.

It was only at this moment that Ben had the time to react with a horrified expression.

However, Julian had already grabbed him by the collar, whirled him around, and slammed him on the dining table.

A loud crash.

The tableware shattered, and even the surface of the table cracked.

Ben let out an ear-piercing scream while lying amidst the shattered glass and a pool of blood.

Life at the Top Chapter 428

Everything happened so fast that Lisa only had time to let out a scream.

Erik's eyes twitched. He was feeling tremendously shocked on the inside but remained composed on the outside.

Even Henry was astonished.

He was surprised that Jasper, who had always played it safe, would suddenly choose to become more violent than him and do such a thing.

The most he had done was beat Ben up, but when Jasper asked Julian to do it, he was probably hoping that Ben would be beaten half to death.

"You're crazy, Jasper!" Erik chided with a stern expression.

"I'm crazy?" Jasper chuckled slightly and turned to look at Henry.

"When dealing with people, I told you before that you must use profit to lure the people beneath you so they will do things for you wholeheartedly."

As Jasper said that, he patted Henry.

"I will now teach you one more thing, one more way of dealing with people. When facing your enemies, never be softhearted and hesitant! Most importantly, don't give your enemies something to use against you. Worst comes to worst, fight them to death!

"When you're not supposed to give in, don't give in! Never stoop to compromise!"

Jasper narrowed his eyes at Erik whose expression was changing slightly.

“Otherwise, even if you manage to get through this entire ordeal, you’re not going to have peace of mind.

“A man can be beaten, scolded, or even have someone roll their eyes at him, but his knees and forehead must never touch the ground for anyone other than his own parents or ancestors.”

Henry looked at Jasper in a daze, realizing how different Jasper was at the moment.

Usually, others would see Jasper as a scholar holding the pearl of wisdom in his hands. He was always so calm and breezy, acting like nothing in the world could change his expression.

Right now, however, Jasper had turned into a mighty and powerful god of war. Although his aura was not too strong or vigorous, he was like a lofty mountain, standing in between heaven and earth like a point of navigation for sailors.

It was as if his presence could hold up the sky when it was falling down.

Henry, a male adult and a big-shot trust fund baby who had gotten himself into countless troubles in the past, actually felt an unprecedented sense of security in Jasper.

As long as this big guy Jasper was around, even if he poked a hole in the sky, Jasper would still be able to help him clean up the mess.

At this moment, Erik suppressed the astonishment and the trace of fear in his heart that he refused to acknowledge. He gritted his teeth, saying, “Jasper, are you trying to go down with me?”

Jasper said calmly, "You've overestimated yourself. This is just a company. I can easily get Henry to register another 17 or 18 companies. As for the project proposal, if you like it, then take it. You think I can't do a better one?"

Erik stared fixedly at Jasper, then suddenly raged. "Fine! Since that's what you said, I don't think this negotiation can go on.

"No more negotiations!"

Jasper suddenly raised his volume. "The Laws can afford to bear this loss, but after this, I can tell you clearly that the Turners and these two clowns will be the number one enemy of the Laws and all of Harbor City's business groups!

"Harbor City groups and me, Jasper Laine, will attack all industries of the Turners at all cost! From this moment onward, we will begin a full-scale war!

"Only one of us can win this battle. No peace will be made!"

His voice echoed in the magnificent hall.

There was central air-conditioning in this five-star hotel private room, so naturally, the air should be extremely cooling and refreshing.

Erik, however, felt a stifling feeling in his heart. It was as if he could not breathe.

Henry was so excited his blood started surging and boiling. He was eager to scream out at the top of his lungs to release the pent-up emotions inside of him.

Domineering!

Jasper was simply too domineering!

The amount of pomposity he had!

Henry stared at Jasper with bright eyes and thought, 'If I can one day be as pompous and domineering, I'll be sure to die with no regrets!'

Life at the Top Chapter 429

Erik's head began ringing.

He was puzzled.

He could not figure out why he had been forced to a dead end, unable to advance or retreat even though he clearly had the upper hand at first.

Had the script changed?

Erik was puzzled.

He thought he had received blessings from the heavens and the next thing he had to do was to humiliate Jasper and Henry before sending the documents to his family.

By doing so, not only would he reap the benefits, but he would also gain recognition from his family. This was simply killing two birds with one stone.

Though when he looked at Jasper at this moment, Erik had a sudden feeling that he had been too naive.

He could tell that Jasper meant what he said and would put his words into action.

However... there was no way he was going to miss out on such a Godsent opportunity!

“Who do you think you are, representing Harbor City’s business groups?” Erik sneered, still putting up a last-ditch struggle.

“I was the one who invited the four wealthiest families over. If it were the Turners, do you think they would entertain you at all?” Jasper said mildly.

Erik gritted his teeth, feeling as though he had been slapped hard in the face by Jasper’s words.

He was still struggling.

Jasper was right.

As a Turner himself, Erik had been hearing the elders in the family talking about this matter these days.

The four wealthiest families in Harbor City had gathered in Swallow Capital because of Jasper. This alone had left the tycoons extremely impressed and happy with Jasper.

This was because in a sense, this was the first time Harbor City’s top-notch elites in the business world had friendly contacts with their Mainland counterpart since the handover.

This was a strategic event involving figures from the highest level.

In other words, Jasper had made contributions to helping the country.

No matter how insignificant something was, anything that involved the country was a huge deal.

“Hah, Harbor City’s businessmen are really smart. Even if they came to Swallow Capital out of respect for you, you still have no right to say you represent them because this involves going against the Turners. This is no small matter at all.” Erik forced a sneer, suppressing the anxiety and unease inside of him.

Jasper shook his head and said indifferently, “I don’t need to explain to you how I did it. But if you don’t believe me, you’re always welcome to have a taste of it.”

Erik clenched his fists, took a deep breath, and said in a deep voice, “What do you want then? How do you plan to solve this matter?”

“Simple, just return the documents to us and we won’t hold you accountable,” Jasper said flatly.

Erik was so furious he laughed. “Are you saying that I’ll return everything to you without getting a single benefit from it after all the efforts I’ve spent? Who do you think I am?”

“You know better than anyone how you got these documents. You stole my things and I’m being generous enough by asking you to return them without holding you accountable, yet you still want to walk away with benefits? Are you dreaming?” Jasper returned the question.

Erik said resolutely, “If you’re going to behave like that, then you might as well just forget about it. Let’s see who will have the last laugh.”

Erik knew that he must never agree to Jasper’s terms. Otherwise, he would forever be a laughing stock.

Also, if word got out in the future, how would his family think of him?

Regardless of what Jasper would do in the future, he would first hand over the documents to his family because at least that way, he would still have made a contribution.

Erik did not believe that Jasper actually had the ability to touch the resources of Harbor City’s business groups.

He was simply exaggerating.

Who did Jasper think he was?

He was nothing but a fellow with some stinking money.

In comparison, Harbor City's four richest families were all super-rich people.

Would they listen to a young junior like Jasper?

This sounded very much like a fairytale to Erik.

Jasper was not surprised by the choice Erik made either.

Life at the Top Chapter 430

This was within his expectation.

In fact, Jasper had already known from the start that he and Henry would not be able to handle this themselves.

He was only doing so much because he had other plans in mind.

Therefore, at this moment, Jasper did not say a word and only turned around to leave.

Henry seemed to have moved on as well. He glanced coldly at Erik before walking out.

Julian was the last to leave. Before he left, he even grinned at Erik.

“Hurry up and send that glove of yours to the hospital. He could be crippled for life if you send him too late.”

Having said that, Julian swaggered away without bothering to look at the abrupt change in Erik’s expression.

As soon as Jasper and his group left, Lisa shouted to Erik, “Erik, come and take a look! Ben has... He passed out. There’s so much blood!”

Erik’s expression changed. If Ben died here, then this whole affair would turn into a huge mess.

“Hurry up and call an ambulance!”

...

In the car on their way back.

“You killed Ben, Julian?” Henry craned his neck and asked Julian who was driving the car.

Julian said with delight, “I wouldn’t dare. Jasp only told me to beat him up, so I broke his tailbone. If he receives timely treatment, then half a year will be enough for him to recuperate. If his treatment is delayed, then he could be crippled for life.”

“Ouch...”

Henry gasped.

“Teach me this move someday, it’s so darn cool.”

Jasper thought that Henry had learned his lesson but he realized that he had underestimated this young man's spoiled nature. He did not take this matter seriously at all and was even eager to learn a new move.

"You won't be able to stand it, Young Master Law. Martial arts training is really hard," Julian said honestly.

"Do I look like someone who can't endure hardships?" Henry asked, unconvinced.

"Yes," Julian replied sincerely.

"You!" Henry was furious, then sighed and said, "You're right."

After making jokes with Julian, Henry turned to Jasper and said, "I've decided."

"What?" Jasper asked with a smile.

"I'll go straight to Old Master Law and confess everything." Henry sighed.

"You've thought it through? You're not afraid anymore?" Jasper asked curiously.

Henry said grumpily, "You think I can't tell that Erik, that idiot, isn't going to return us the things? He even tried to get us to go down on our knees! I'll f*cking feed him to the fish sooner or later.

"I can't keep this a secret for long. I may be afraid to go back and confess, but you've done so many things just to let me know that I have to pay a price for the trouble I've caused."

Henry's remarks made Jasper look at him in a new light.

"Not bad. I did so many things just to help you understand that there will be innumerable underhanded tactics in the ever-changing business world.

“Your grandfather will grow old, and your father can’t protect you forever. They will leave before you no matter what. You need to learn how to walk through the storm yourself.”

Henry nodded with a gloomy expression. Staring dazedly at the busy night scene of Swallow Capital and the endless stream of cars, he said, “Yeah, it’s time I learn something.”

Jasper was just about to console him by saying things like a prodigal who turned over a new leaf was more precious than gold or something along the line when the man’s face lit up a split second later.

“You can protect me forever, though? You’re younger than me, so you’re not going to die before me, right?”

“Julian.”

“Yes!”

“Stop the car and throw this idiot into the sea.”

Life at the Top Chapter 431

“C’mon, don’t do that! I was just joking. Besides, I’m usually the one who throws others into the sea. You’re my brother-in-law, you’re not going to throw me into the sea, are you?”

Henry said at once. He used to be and still was fearless, but when he was facing Jasper, he felt a sense of admiration and apprehension.

In fact, Henry always had a really simple outlook on the world.

He would strike anyone who was an eyesore to him, then go to his elders if things went south.

He had been guided by this logic for over 20 years of his life and the tactic worked each time.

Though many times, Anna was the one who played the role of Henry’s elder.

In fact, Zachary knew about all the trivial things he had done.

Old Master Law was equally troubled, but since he went through the same thing when he was young, with his son getting even better than him at this, there was simply nothing he could do.

Otherwise, he would not have handed the important task of educating Henry to Jasper either.

Anyway, when Zachary saw Henry walking through the door in the middle of the night and sitting on the couch dejectedly, smoking without a word, he felt his temples throbbing.

He knew his son all too well. Normally, when Henry behaved like that, he knew that he had done something so bad that even Anna could not solve it.

Zachary glanced curiously at Jasper. He did not understand why Jasper could remain so calm all the time.

He found a cigar and lit it before sitting down across the duo. He said, "Go on then, what did you do?"

Henry sighed. He looked at his father but hesitated to speak. He wore a sheepish look on his face, looking extremely sorry yet at the same time was too embarrassed to tell his elder.

Zachary's temples throbbed even harder now.

"Spill it!" Zachary roared impatiently.

"Sigh..." Henry sighed, his face full of bitterness. "Here's what happened..."

Half an hour later, Zachary and Jasper, as well as Henry with a slap print on his face, sat dejectedly opposite Old Master Law and sighed at the same time.

The three long sighs made Old Master Law frown.

After Zachary told Old Master Law the whole story, he rubbed his face and said with a wry smile, "Dad, I know it's inappropriate for us to trouble you when it comes to things like this, but it's different now. If the Turners send forth their old master, then with my identity, it'll be really awkward for me. So I have no choice but to ask you to step in."

"I was the one who cleaned up your messes when you were young. Now I also have to clean up your son's messes when I'm already so old. Do I owe the both of you something?" Old Master Law sulked.

Zachary, "..."

Henry, "..."

Jasper nearly burst out laughing.

After that, a solemn air hung over everyone in the room.

The most important thing at the moment was to solve the problem.

"Henry, you've disappointed me greatly this time," Old Master Law said, looking at Henry.

This time, the guilt on Henry's face was genuine. He stood up and said, "I know, Grandpa. I'll learn from my mistakes."

"Hmph." Zachary harrumphed, saying, "That Turner junior is really despicable. If he's already resorting to such dishonest practices at such a young age, I can't imagine what he'll do in the future."

"No matter how despicable he is, your son is the one who gave him something to use against him this time. You must admit defeat. Don't complain," Old Master Law said mildly.

As he spoke, Old Master Law glanced at Zachary and continued, "This is your son. The problem has to be solved, but the punishment will be carried out nonetheless. What do you plan to do?"

Life at the Top Chapter 432

Zachary gritted his teeth and said, "I'll dismiss Henry from all his duties and positions inside and outside of the company. I'll also suspend all his credit cards and property for half a year."

Henry's complexion changed. He was just about to beg for leniency when he saw the look in Jasper's eyes. All of a sudden, his resentment was swallowed back in.

He whimpered for a very long time and eventually squeezed out the words, "Got it!"

Henry's hatred for Erik had reached an unprecedented level.

Old Master Law nodded, satisfied with the outcome.

"Henry, give me a recount of the things Jasp did in the hotel earlier," Old Master Law asked suddenly.

Henry suppressed his annoyance and recounted Jasper's domineering and pompous actions earlier. He grew emotional all of a sudden. He narrated the things Jasper did with radiance and delight.

When Henry described the part where Jasper said that only one of them could win the battle and no peace would be made, Old Master Law slammed the couch's armrest and said, "Marvelous!"

"All young people should be this domineering and aggressive! You did a marvelous job, Jasp!"

Jasper laughed and said, "I was quite worried that you would blame me for being pompous just to intimidate him."

Old Master Law said, “Pompous? I told you that you’ve long been an ally of the Laws, and in the future, you’ll still be the Laws’ son-in-law. If you chicken out when you’re supposed to be tough, then I’ll scold you for sure.”

The word ‘son-in-law’ sent Jasper’s heart thumping wildly.

Had Old Master Law found out about the ambiguous relationship he and Anna shared?!

Jasper was a little guilty.

He was just about to speak when Old Master Law continued with a deep voice, “This problem isn’t going to be easy to solve.”

Zachary nodded as well and said, “The Turners are hard to deal with. Besides, Brad is a really cunning old fox. Then there’s also Old Master Turner. If things get out of hand, then the loss we’re going to suffer will be great.

“Even though this situation is difficult to handle, we must get it done immediately or we’ll be at a disadvantage if this goes out to the public.”

Old Master Law looked at Jasper and said softly, “What do you suggest we do, Jasp?”

Jasper mulled it over and said, “The Turners probably won’t fight us to the end. Harbor City’s business group is a sensitive topic at the moment and many tycoons are watching. They won’t take extreme measures during this critical juncture.

“I think we can still negotiate.”

Henry sulked. “What’s there to negotiate? Just start a war straight away. The Laws have never feared anybody. In Harbor City, even the three other families don’t have the guts to provoke us. If I do it, I’ll hire two men to drag Erik to the back of the mountain and bury him—”

“Shut up! Who said it’s your turn to speak?” Zachary shouted.

Henry clammed up and sat down grumpily without a word.

“Jasp,” Old Master Law said suddenly.

Jasper stood up and said, “I’m here, Old Master Law.”

Old Master Law said, “I need you to make an arrangement tomorrow. Send an invitation to Old Master Turner under my name and invite Brad as well as those involved in this affair this time. I’ll treat them to dinner but I want you to be the host.”

Jasper pondered and nodded, saying, “Okay, I’ll get it done tomorrow.”

Old Master Law nodded with a smile and patted Jasper’s arm amicably, saying, “Henry has failed to live up to my expectations, so I will need your help in many things. This child is perceptive, but before he’s enlightened, I’m not sure he’ll realize all the hard work you’re putting in.”

Jasper glanced at Henry and smiled. “Don’t worry, Old Master Law. He’s not so bad.”

Old Master Law waved his hand and said, “Okay, you should all go. Get it done tomorrow and remember, even though you’re sending out the invitations under my name, you must be the host. You’re the person in charge.”

Jasper nodded slightly.

Old Master Law was planning to lend him his prestige to intimidate the other party!

Life at the Top Chapter 433

Early next morning.

Turners' residence. Brad's house.

The scent of cigars permeated the air. Brad listened quietly as his son Erik retold the story of what happened.

"This is how it happened..."

Erik clenched his fists, and even at this moment, he still felt a stifling sensation in his chest.

"Jasper and Henry are too arrogant. They flipped the table straight away even when I held a trump card. They don't respect me at all!

"Where are we? Swallow Capital! Not Harbor City where they can throw their weights around as they like!"

Erik gritted his teeth and raged. "Dad, I must teach them a lesson this time."

Brad's face was clouded in smoke and his expression was hazy, but his voice could be heard. "Why didn't you tell me earlier?"

Erik paused and said guiltily, "It was already late at night yesterday. Plus, you just came back from working outstation, so I didn't—"

"What about before that? You should've informed me first thing when you got your hands on the documents!" Brad's voice was deep. "If this were something else, then forget it, but look what you got?"

“You got the Laws’ stock shares in Swallow Capital’s branch and their Olympic Village project proposal. These two things are of utmost importance. Did you think both of them will keep this between themselves and solve this with you in private? How naive could you be? I can’t believe you even turned up at their door.”

Erik said, unwilling to take it lying down, “I don’t think I did anything wrong. I never planned on returning the things to them anyway. I was just trying to swindle them before handing the things over to our family. What I didn’t expect, however, is that their heads are strong as steel. I can’t believe they want to fight me to death!”

Brad said coldly, “Why do you think you’re able to swindle them?”

Erik replied subconsciously, “That’s because these two things are extremely important. How can they possibly shoulder such a huge responsibility...”

At this point, Erik’s expression sank abruptly.

Noticing that Erik had finally gotten the point, Brad sighed and said, “You’re just getting it now, huh? This is what sets you and Jasper apart.

“I don’t care whether you’re trying to swindle them or whether you plan to hand the stock shares over to us. As long as you didn’t transfer the ownership first thing itself, they can evacuate the company and withdraw the funds at any time. What’s left for you will just be an empty shell.

“If I’m not mistaken, Jasper must’ve already ordered Henry to do so yesterday.

“Therefore, the company’s stock shares mean nothing. The most important thing right now is the project proposal, and confidentiality is the crucial element in a project proposal. Since you have already taken it away and read it, as far as the Turners and Laws are concerned, this proposal is already a piece of trash.

“Just with this point alone, do you think you still hold a card that’s powerful enough to intimidate them?”

“Therefore, the Laws are not actually going to suffer as much of a loss as you think they are, but due to the vile nature of this incident, they won’t let this matter drop so easily.”

As Erik listened to what Brad said, he recalled the various actions Jasper had taken. His face turned extremely gloomy.

He felt as though he had been fooled by Jasper completely.

“It’s precisely because of the vile nature of this matter that things are out of their control, so it must be resolved by the Laws’ elders.

“That little fox Jasper is really cunning. Do you think he would’ve dragged himself into this quagmire for no reason?”

“He wins both dignity and vanity, becoming more likable in the Laws’ eyes as well. When he abandons the entire mission, he’s not going to hate you, but instead, he will thank you for creating such a good opportunity for him.”

Life at the Top Chapter 434

Brad sighed, then looked at Erik with great disappointment before saying, “I thought you would learn from your lesson after what happened last time, and if worse came to worst, I figured you wouldn’t underestimate Jasper. That’s why I appointed you to handle Jasper’s affair.

“Looks like you’re still too immature. If you had handed over the documents to me as soon as you got them, then I would’ve locked the Laws’ branch account immediately. A few hundred million would've been enough to bring pain to the Laws for a period of time."

The more Erik thought about it, the angrier and more regretful he became. He said, "I'll get it done now!"

"It's too late! The moment you invited Jasper and Henry for dinner, all the company's funds had been exhausted," Brad said flatly.

Erik said, unwilling to take it lying down, "What should we do now? We didn't even get any benefits and still need to be put in a tight spot?"

Brad said lightly, "Well, you can't say that we didn't get any benefits at all. Families like us and the Laws pay great attention to reputation. That's worth more than billions of dollars.

"If the news that you took all the shares from the Laws' Swallow Capital branch spreads, then Old Master Law's reputation will drop to at least half of what it was before. That will be our bargaining chip."

Erik's eyes lit up when he heard what he said and asked eagerly, "What do we do now, Dad? We must teach Jasper a lesson this time. If I don't trample him to death this time, it'll feel like a bone is stuck in my throat. I won't be able to sleep at night!"

Brad was about to speak when someone knocked on the door.

Erik frowned and grudgingly said, "I'm discussing urgent matters with my father, don't interrupt!"

Outside the door, the butler said reverently, "Master, a young man called Henry is here to send you an invitation."

As soon as those words were heard by those in the room, both Brad and Erik's expressions changed at the same time.

“Take him to the reception room, I’ll be there soon,” Brad said in a deep voice.

When the butler left, Erik said eagerly, “Dad, that brat is such an insufferable bully. How dare he come to our house?!”

Brad said solemnly, “The Laws have probably started taking action. Let’s see what they’re up to.”

Soon, Brad and Erik were at the reception room.

As soon as Erik entered the door, he saw Henry staring at him. His eyes were narrowed, and he was crossing his legs while shaking one of them.

He was like a jackal admiring its prey.

A wave of anger surged from the depths of Erik’s heart for no reason.

“Why are you looking at me like that?!” Erik asked with a roar.

Henry grinned. He was leisurely leaning on the couch and said, “Oh, so your face isn’t meant for people to look at?”

Erik’s eyes turned cold. He was just about to speak when he noticed Brad darting an indifferent gaze at him.

Erik gritted his teeth, swallowing his words grumpily and resentfully.

“Why are you here today, Henry?” Brad asked flatly.

“We’re hosting a banquet tonight and would like to extend an invitation to you, Uncle Turner.”

Despite addressing him as 'Uncle Turner' politely, Henry was not polite at all. He pulled out an invitation with a gold stamp on it and tossed it directly onto the coffee table.

The atmosphere in the reception room condensed following Henry's snobbish act.

Life at the Top Chapter 435

Erik looked at Henry's smirk and felt as though his chest was about to explode.

"This is Swallow Capital, Henry Law! You're at the Turners'! Not in Harbor City or the Laws' house! You'd better show my father some respect!" Erik raged.

"How am I not respectful?" Henry curled his lips and stretched, saying, "It's just because I'm a casual person. What's wrong? Can't stand it?"

Creak... Erik could not wait to punch Erik's annoying face right now.

Erik's face was flushed due to anger and grievances. It was really hard to hold back.

Henry was gloating even more when he saw Erik's expression. "Hey, Mr. Turner, you have a really ruddy complexion. Looks like you've been in a pretty good mood lately?"

Those words sounded so familiar.

Erik had said something similar to him just last night, a little over ten hours ago.

This alone made Erik feel as though his fury had burned off the last bit of sanity he had left.

“The Turners are not people you can disrespect. Do you think we will accept your invitation just because you delivered it to us? I’ll kick you out!”

After hearing Erik’s remarks, Henry sneered and said, “You’re really brainless, indeed. Can you take a look at the name inscribed in the letter before you speak?”

Brad had opened the invitation by now.

[Brother Jason Turner, it has been more than a decade since we last met and I can’t wait to see you again. Today, I specially invite you, Brother Jason, as well as your good nephew Brad and grandson Erik to have dinner together at six o’clock in the evening at Swallow Capital’s InterContinental Hotel’s Imperial Ballroom.

[Sincerely, Tom Law and Jasper Laine.]

When Brad saw the invitation, his face grew tense.

Jason Turner was Old Master Turner’s name.

Tom Law was Old Master Law’s name.

This was an invitation letter from Old Master Law inviting Old Master Turner to a banquet.

Brad had no right nor the guts to decline an invitation of such scale, let alone Erik.

What upset Brad the most was immediately after Old Master Law’s name was Jasper Laine’s name.

What was this supposed to represent?

It meant that Old Master Law had pushed Jasper up to a level that was much higher than Brad.

Erik walked over to take a look at the invitation, and just a mere glance was enough to turn his complexion ghastlier than if he were to swallow iron.

He was shocked, horrified even, by the fact that Jasper's name was able to follow closely behind Old Master Law's name. At least if Henry's name appeared here, he would not feel as conflicted as he did at the moment.

There was another thing that he found it hard to accept—the banquet was being held in InterContinental Hotel's Imperial Ballroom!

This was where Jasper had humiliated him last night.

Did Jasper choose the location, perhaps?

To humiliate him deliberately?!

Erik's head started ringing, and he felt a surge of blood rising in his chest, making him feel extremely uncomfortable inside.

However, Erik knew that neither he nor his father had the right to decline this invitation, hence he had no choice but to endure Henry's arrogance.

Clenching his fist, Erik glared bitterly at Henry. No one knew what he was thinking about.

"I'll take this invitation and inform my father at once. Please send my regards to Old Master Law, Henry," Brad said calmly, closing the invitation. His expression had returned to normal.

Henry chuckled and said, “Sure. I’ll definitely send your regards, Uncle Turner. Since I’ve delivered the invitation to you, I’ll leave now.”

With that, Henry stood up and swaggered toward the door. When he walked past Erik, he suddenly stopped in his tracks.

Henry leaned closer to Erik and smiled, saying, “Idiot, just wait and see. I’ll end you! Weren’t you so proud of yourself? C’mon then, let’s call our parents over and see whose parents are more dope!

“Old Master Turner may be really powerful, but you’re not his only grandson. My grandpa only has one grandson. How can you compare to me? Silly.”

Having said that, Henry walked off while laughing boisterously.

Erik paled abruptly, unable to hold back his rage any longer. He smashed his fist on the coffee table.

With a thump, Erik’s fist bled like a flowing river. The pain numbed his nerves, and his gaze grew even more bitter.

“I can’t take this lying down, Dad!” Erik roared.

Brad looked equally sullen, chiding him, “If you can’t even stand this, how are you supposed to achieve great things in the future? If you have anything to say, then we’ll talk after the banquet tonight. Don’t say anything, don’t do anything—just watch!”

...

In the evening at Swallow Capital’s InterContinental Hotel.

A Mercedes-Benz slowly pulled over in front of the hotel lobby. Immediately, a waiter trotted forward and opened the door respectfully.

The ones who got out of the car were Norman Gardner and Ian Hull's families. Ben was not present today because he was still being treated at the hospital.

"I'm sorry, sirs, InterContinental Hotel has already been booked today. Did you make a reservation? Didn't you receive our call?" the waiter said politely.

Norman frowned. He, who had been apprehensive for a day after receiving the invitation, grew confused. "Is there a mistake? The invitation states that the dinner is being held here, in the Imperial Ballroom."

The waiter was pushed away by the manager before he could speak.

"Looks like you're the distinguished guests here to attend the banquet. Come in. Mr. Laine has booked the entire hotel today so that we can serve you properly."

Under the manager's almost flattering and obsequious behavior, Norman and the group entered the hotel feeling quite confused.

Although Norman and the rest were also from wealthy families, they were only in charge of a branch of the Haddock Chamber of Commerce. Though they were capable, there was simply no way they could manipulate their way into Swallow Capital.

What was more, a large and renowned hotel like InterContinental Hotel could choose to ignore them completely.

They had never been received so respectfully by InterContinental Hotel's manager before either.

"Who did you say? Mr. Laine?" Lisa's heart clenched as she held the manager and asked.

The manager nodded and said, "Yeah. Didn't you already know that? Mr. Jasper Laine booked the entire hotel."

The group had already arrived at the lobby by now. Before they could express their astonishment at the fact that Jasper had booked the entire InterContinental Hotel, they were already greatly astounded by more than ten gorgeous waitresses who were standing reverently on both sides waiting to serve them.

Lisa stared blankly at the grand scene before her eyes. Although she was a trust fund baby herself, she had never seen such a grand scene in InterContinental Hotel.

Life at the Top Chapter 436

InterContinental Hotel had been operating for nearly a decade now and had received a lot of big shots in the past, but never had anyone booked the entire hotel for an entire day.

This was not just a question of money, but a question of status and identity.

At this moment, both the Gardners and Hulls felt a mixture of emotions.

Norman and Ian exchanged glances with each other, noticing the regret and unease from each other's faces.

When they received the invitation today, they had been so frightened that they nearly ran away from Swallow Capital.

That invitation was sent by Old Master Law himself!

If this invitation had come some other time, then it would no doubt be a great honor. Even the invitation card would be worth being framed and mounted to the wall.

Now was not the time, though!

The Turners and the Laws, both representing the local faction and Harbor City's business group, were currently fighting each other!

All the other magnates had hidden for fear that they would suffer, not to mention both of them who were only a tad bit bigger than a shrimp at best!

"Sigh, we really shouldn't have meddled in this in the first place."

In the elevator, Norman sighed with an obscure expression.

Norman felt a deep sense of powerlessness when faced with the two behemoths, the Turners and the Laws. He did not have the slightest courage to go against them at all.

However, now that he had chosen to stand with the Turners, Norman simply had no idea how he was going to respond to the banquet invitation.

“It’s too late for that.” Ian was calmer than Norman.

“Whatever happens later during the banquet, we will both remain transparent. Don’t make your stance easily no matter what both parties say later!”

After hearing what Ian said, Lisa said nonchalantly, “You’re making a fuss, Uncle Ian. The Laws must’ve deemed us worthy and that’s why they sent us an invitation. There’s no need to be so careful around them.

“Besides, you know how close I am to Erik. The Turners won’t just stand on the sidelines and watch the Laws bully us.”

Lisa’s words made Ian frown. He said flatly, “If the other party is really afraid of the Turners, then Ben wouldn’t be lying in the hospital right now.”

When he mentioned that Ben was currently lying in the hospital, Lisa’s expression sank. The fury in her eyes flashed as she gritted her teeth and said, “Ben is injured and I won’t let this matter drop so easily!”

As she spoke, the elevator door opened.

They were swept by a tense atmosphere.

Norman, Ian, and Lisa looked up and saw Erik and Brad confronting Henry and Zachary.

Although they had no idea what had just happened, everyone present on the scene was no fools and could easily tell that the air hovering over their heads was extremely tense.

“Erik!” Lisa called out to him, eager to show everyone that she shared a unique relationship with Erik. She rushed up to Erik and took his arm, asking softly, “Are you okay? ”

Erik was extremely annoyed, but he found it inappropriate to remove Lisa’s hands in front of Norman and Ian, hence he said with a cold expression, “I’m fine. I just bumped into an annoying man, that’s all.”

Lisa turned to look at Henry and sneered, “Look, you invited us and we came. Is this how you treat your guests? By blocking them at the door?”

Henry glanced at Lisa. “Shut your stupid mouth, witch. Know your place. Who says it’s your turn to talk?”

Lisa’s face changed abruptly. With the Turners as well as her elders around, Lisa was filled with a surge of confidence that she had never experienced before. She said at once, “The Laws invited me, so why can’t I speak?”

“Your grandfather sent the invitation, so who are you to criticize me? You’d better stop putting on airs and talk to me nicely. Otherwise, when I see your grandfather later, I’ll ask him what went wrong with his family education!”

As soon as she said those words, the expression of everyone on the scene changed abruptly.

Especially Norman and Ian. They knew that Lisa was in trouble and were eager to cover her mouth.

Was this the kind of thing that one could say casually?

Even Erik and Brad looked at Lisa as though she was an idiot.

Brad, especially. In order to gain support from Norman's Haddock Chamber of Commerce, he had even planned to make Lisa his daughter-in-law, but right now, it seemed like this woman was too risky to be married into the family.

Zachary looked at Lisa. Judging from his status and identity, nothing Lisa said could infuriate him, let alone make him strike or lecture her himself.

That did not mean that Zachary could tolerate it when Lisa insulted the Laws.

"There's something wrong with the Laws' family education? I suppose the Gardners have really good family education then?" Zachary asked mildly, looking at Norman.

Norman's complexion paled abruptly. He had already grown accustomed to all kinds of storms out there, yet even so, his legs still continued to shake and quiver.

"I can explain, Mr. Law. I've failed to discipline this young lady. I will teach her a lesson right away. I kindly ask you to let this matter drop. Take no offense at a child's babble—"

Before Norman could finish his sentence, Lisa said loudly, "You don't need to apologize, Dad. Do you remember how Henry treated us when he came to our house? He infuriated you so much and nearly put you in the hospital. He's even more arrogant out there!

"Since the Laws' elders are here today, I will say it!"

Henry narrowed his eyes at Lisa and asked, "I'm arrogant? How?"

Having said that, Henry raised his hand and struck Lisa's face without warning.

The slap came down so hard that half of Lisa's face nearly twisted out of shape.

There was a loud and crisp sound, followed by Lisa's ear-piercing scream.

Henry stared at Lisa and said coldly, "You witch! Do you really think I won't drag you to the back of the mountain and bury you alive, huh? You think I won't lay a finger on you just because your father and Erik are here?"

After the slap, there were strings of blood hanging on the corner of Lisa's mouth. She covered her face, her head ringing. Under the tremendous humiliation and pain, she felt as though she was about to go crazy.

"You're hitting me again, Henry Law? Are you going to put me in the hospital after hitting my cousin?"

"You witch! I guess you're not that dumb after all!"

Henry lifted his leg and kicked Lisa's stomach, cursing and roaring, "I don't usually hit women. But you're really something, aren't you? You forced me to make this exception for once. Motherf*cker, how dare you say that the Laws are uneducated?" InterContinental Hotel had been operating for nearly a decade now and had received a lot of big shots in the past, but never had anyone booked the entire hotel for an entire day.

This was not just a question of money, but a question of status and identity.

At this moment, both the Gardners and Hulls felt a mixture of emotions.

Norman and Ian exchanged glances with each other, noticing the regret and unease from each other's faces.

When they received the invitation today, they had been so frightened that they nearly ran away from Swallow Capital.

That invitation was sent by Old Master Law himself!

If this invitation had come some other time, then it would no doubt be a great honor. Even the invitation card would be worth being framed and mounted to the wall.

Now was not the time, though!

The Turners and the Laws, both representing the local faction and Harbor City's business group, were currently fighting each other!

All the other magnates had hidden for fear that they would suffer, not to mention both of them who were only a tad bit bigger than a shrimp at best!

"Sigh, we really shouldn't have meddled in this in the first place."

In the elevator, Norman sighed with an obscure expression.

Norman felt a deep sense of powerlessness when faced with the two behemoths, the Turners and the Laws. He did not have the slightest courage to go against them at all.

However, now that he had chosen to stand with the Turners, Norman simply had no idea how he was going to respond to the banquet invitation.

"It's too late for that." Ian was calmer than Norman.

"Whatever happens later during the banquet, we will both remain transparent. Don't make your stance easily no matter what both parties say later!"

After hearing what Ian said, Lisa said nonchalantly, "You're making a fuss, Uncle Ian. The Laws must've deemed us worthy and that's why they sent us an invitation. There's no need to be so careful around them.

"Besides, you know how close I am to Erik. The Turners won't just stand on the sidelines and watch the Laws bully us."

Lisa's words made Ian frown. He said flatly, "If the other party is really afraid of the Turners, then Ben wouldn't be lying in the hospital right now."

When he mentioned that Ben was currently lying in the hospital, Lisa's expression sank. The fury in her eyes flashed as she gritted her teeth and said, "Ben is injured and I won't let this matter drop so easily!"

As she spoke, the elevator door opened.

They were swept by a tense atmosphere.

Norman, Ian, and Lisa looked up and saw Erik and Brad confronting Henry and Zachary.

Although they had no idea what had just happened, everyone present on the scene was no fools and could easily tell that the air hovering over their heads was extremely tense.

"Erik!" Lisa called out to him, eager to show everyone that she shared a unique relationship with Erik. She rushed up to Erik and took his arm, asking softly, "Are you okay? "

Erik was extremely annoyed, but he found it inappropriate to remove Lisa's hands in front of Norman and Ian, hence he said with a cold expression, "I'm fine. I just bumped into an annoying man, that's all."

Lisa turned to look at Henry and sneered, "Look, you invited us and we came. Is this how you treat your guests? By blocking them at the door?"

Henry glanced at Lisa. "Shut your stupid mouth, witch. Know your place. Who says it's your turn to talk?"

Lisa's face changed abruptly. With the Turners as well as her elders around, Lisa was filled with a surge of confidence that she had never experienced before. She said at once, "The Laws invited me, so why can't I speak?"

“Your grandfather sent the invitation, so who are you to criticize me? You’d better stop putting on airs and talk to me nicely. Otherwise, when I see your grandfather later, I’ll ask him what went wrong with his family education!”

As soon as she said those words, the expression of everyone on the scene changed abruptly.

Especially Norman and Ian. They knew that Lisa was in trouble and were eager to cover her mouth.

Was this the kind of thing that one could say casually?

Even Erik and Brad looked at Lisa as though she was an idiot.

Brad, especially. In order to gain support from Norman’s Haddock Chamber of Commerce, he had even planned to make Lisa his daughter-in-law, but right now, it seemed like this woman was too risky to be married into the family.

Zachary looked at Lisa. Judging from his status and identity, nothing Lisa said could infuriate him, let alone make him strike or lecture her himself.

That did not mean that Zachary could tolerate it when Lisa insulted the Laws.

“There’s something wrong with the Laws’ family education? I suppose the Gardners have really good family education then?” Zachary asked mildly, looking at Norman.

Norman’s complexion paled abruptly. He had already grown accustomed to all kinds of storms out there, yet even so, his legs still continued to shake and quiver.

“I can explain, Mr. Law. I’ve failed to discipline this young lady. I will teach her a lesson right away. I kindly ask you to let this matter drop. Take no offense at a child’s babble—”

Before Norman could finish his sentence, Lisa said loudly, “You don’t need to apologize, Dad. Do you remember how Henry treated us when he came to our house? He infuriated you so much and nearly put you in the hospital. He’s even more arrogant out there!

“Since the Laws’ elders are here today, I will say it!”

Henry narrowed his eyes at Lisa and asked, “I’m arrogant? How?”

Having said that, Henry raised his hand and struck Lisa’s face without warning.

The slap came down so hard that half of Lisa’s face nearly twisted out of shape.

There was a loud and crisp sound, followed by Lisa’s ear-piercing scream.

Henry stared at Lisa and said coldly, “You witch! Do you really think I won’t drag you to the back of the mountain and bury you alive, huh? You think I won’t lay a finger on you just because your father and Erik are here?”

After the slap, there were strings of blood hanging on the corner of Lisa’s mouth. She covered her face, her head ringing. Under the tremendous humiliation and pain, she felt as though she was about to go crazy.

“You’re hitting me again, Henry Law? Are you going to put me in the hospital after hitting my cousin?”

“You witch! I guess you’re not that dumb after all!”

Henry lifted his leg and kicked Lisa’s stomach, cursing and roaring, “I don’t usually hit women. But you’re really something, aren’t you? You forced me to make this exception for once. Motherf*cker, how dare you say that the Laws are uneducated?”

Life at the Top Chapter 437

No one stopped Henry from slapping and kicking Lisa.

Even Norman himself could do nothing but suppress his heartache and fury.

After all, Lisa was the one who said the wrong things first, and Harbor City's top-notch aristocrats were right in front of him. Norman had neither the qualification nor the guts to go against Zachary.

Though when he noticed that Henry was planning to kick her a few more times, Norman had no choice but to step in regardless of his fear of the Laws.

He stepped in front of Henry and begged for leniency with a smile on his face, saying, "Calm down, Mr. Law. Calm down. My daughter doesn't think before she speaks. Don't argue with the likes of her.

"It's a great day today, let's not ruin our moods for trivial matters like this, shall we? I will apologize on behalf of my daughter."

When Henry saw how Norman was relentlessly apologizing, he sneered and said, "If your daughter was half as smart as you, things wouldn't have gotten to this point either."

Norman gritted his teeth in secret. The anger in his heart was boiling, but the smile on his face remained. "Please forgive my daughter, Mr. Law. Look, why don't we all go in first?"

Henry narrowed his eyes a little unwillingly. He had planned to use this opportunity to teach Lisa a lesson.

Henry had done many evil deeds since childhood, hence it was impossible for him to feel sorry for a girl, let alone appreciate her.

When fury tore through him, he did not care who the other party was and would hurl punches first thing itself.

What was more, Lisa had provoked and annoyed him over and over again.

Henry had tolerated her for a really long time now.

Just as everyone thought that this was all over, Imperial Ballroom's door opened.

Jasper and Anna walked out while talking and laughing.

"Why are you guys standing here and not going in?" Jasper swept his gaze across the scene and could roughly guess what was going on. Yet, he still asked the obvious.

When Lisa saw Jasper, her eyes turned scarlet.

In her opinion, Jasper was the culprit for all the things that had happened.

If it were not for Jasper, she and her cousin would not have provoked Henry, let alone be dragged into this series of events.

Now, her cousin was lying in the hospital unconscious while she was humiliated in public. Even her father was insulted by Henry.

Jasper was the culprit of all these things!

When she saw how intimate Jasper and Anna were, Lisa stood up immediately and screamed at Jasper's face, "Jasper Laine! Why are you still flirting with Anna when you're already dating Wendy? What kind of a man are you?"

Jasper frowned slightly, staring at the wretched-looking Lisa who had gone insane. He said indifferently, "Ms. Gardner, I don't think you should attend the banquet tonight in this state. I don't want you to startle both old masters or you'll be committing a huge sin."

Lisa sneered. She pushed away Norman whose face had changed as he made attempts to stop her. She screamed, "Stop pretending! Do you think I don't know that you're seducing women to climb the social ladder?"

"You approached Wendy in Mainland and Anna in Harbor City, both of whom are daughters of aristocrats. You're pretty smart, aren't you?!"

"I feel sick to the stomach when I see shameless men like you. Who are you trying to show, acting as if you're morally better than other people?"

"When a woman has fallen, we call her a loose woman. Do we have a term for a fallen man? A loose man?"

Lisa's sharp and maniacal voice reverberated throughout Imperial Ballroom's corridor.

Everyone fell silent.

Even Henry was staring at Lisa as though she had gone crazy.

Life at the Top Chapter 438

If he put their grudges aside, Lisa impressed him, actually.

She must have a death wish to speak to Jasper like that.

The last person who spoke to Jasper like that was probably buried in a grave with grass that was three feet high by now, right?

Lisa seemed to have gone all out.

She cared for nothing and pointed at Anna, saying, "Do you think this man is really that outstanding? It's all just for show!"

"I'm sure you don't know this, but he's dating another woman other than you and her name is Wendy Schuler! You? You're just a spare!"

Lisa's face was filled with maniacal resentment and thrill. It seemed as though she would never grow tired of smearing Jasper's name.

"How ridiculous! I can't believe that you, the Laws' daughter, actually got deceived by a man from the Mainland and don't even know you're an intruder in someone else's relationship. Don't you feel embarrassed at all?"

Norman's face was ashen, and even Ian looked ghastly pale.

They knew that this was all over now.

Anna looked calm. There was a bone-piercingly cold frost in the depths of her eyes.

“Are you a dead man, Henry?” Anna said faintly.

Henry quivered and pushed Norman away without a word, choking Lisa by the throat while sneering, “You really know how to seek your own doom.”

Knowing that things were going in the wrong direction, Norman pounced forward and yelled, “Don’t, Mr. Law! Please don’t. Stop for my sake.”

Henry pushed Norman away and sneered, “Do it for your sake? Who do you think you are? If you have the energy to beg me for mercy, why didn’t you use it to educate your daughter properly instead?”

Suddenly, Erik spoke, “Know when to stop, Henry.”

Henry turned around while narrowing his eyes, looking Erik up and down. He then grinned from ear to ear. “Are you trying to defend her?”

Erik’s mouth began twitching. He had no intention of intervening actually, but his father Brad gave him a look just now so he had no choice but to step forward.

“The Laws are the host for this banquet tonight and we’re just your guests. As the host, I think it’s a little too much for you to beat your guest. If you have anything to say, we can always talk after our meal, don’t you think? The old masters are waiting,” Erik said.

Henry sneered and said, “Stop talking nonsense. Why should I wait just because you tell me to? Who do you think you are?”

Erik’s expression sank. He was infuriated. Staring coldly at Henry, he said, “Our elders are here, it’s not your place to teach me what to do!”

Henry was just about to retort when Jasper walked up and patted him on the shoulder, beckoning him to let go.

Although Henry was displeased, he was willing to listen to Jasper and let go of Lisa's neck.

However, only seconds after Henry let go of her, a slap landed on Lisa's face.

Jasper was the one who hit her.

Lisa cried out. Henry had slapped the left side of her cheek, and now Jasper slapped the right side of her cheek. All of a sudden, her face was so red and swollen that it looked like a pig. Her gaze when she glared at Jasper was vicious.

At the sight of Jasper's cold eyes, however, Lisa was forced to swallow her resentment back in.

"This slap is to stop you from saying nonsense," Jasper said flatly.

Having said that, he did not spare Lisa another glance at all and turned around to say to Zachary and Brad, "It's almost time. Why don't we enter the Imperial Ballroom first?"

Life at the Top Chapter 439

Jasper's words eased up the tense atmosphere a little.

Zachary smiled, leading Henry and Anna into the room first.

Brad and Erik followed closely behind.

When Brad walked past Jasper, he stopped in his tracks and sized Jasper up and down. He suddenly said with a smile, "Would you like to come to the Turners' to have tea some time?"

Everyone else put on a skeptical expression as soon as Brad said those words.

What was that supposed to mean?

Was he trying to draw Jasper over to his side?

Was he trying to mess with the Laws?

Zachary, who had not walked too far yet, smiled without a single care. He then walked straight into the Imperial Ballroom.

If Brad's method was that useful, then he, Zachary, would have been doomed a long time ago.

Besides, the relationship between the Laws and Jasper was not a simple partnership that outsiders thought it to be. After going through so many trials and errors together, the Laws and Jasper had already become one.

Among the three other richest families in Harbor City, it was common knowledge that if anyone laid a finger on Jasper, then that person was also going against the Laws.

In other words, 'I, Zachary Law, have a gorgeous and outstanding daughter like Anna. What the f*ck do you have, Brad?'

Norman and Ian both looked at Jasper with a complicated expression.

They did not expect Jasper to be so outstanding that even Brad would extend an invitation to him.

This qualification was so rare that even the two of them who were from the same generation as Brad had never enjoyed such privilege before, let alone their peers.

When Brad finished his sentence, he stared fixedly at Jasper, seemingly looking forward to his answer.

Jasper was not surprised. He smiled and said, "Thanks for the invitation, Uncle Turner, but I have too much to do lately. If I can find the time to make a visit, I would love to drop by and have tea with you."

He was not disrespectful when he said those words.

It was enough to not make it too embarrassing for Brad as his 'elder', but at the same time, Jasper was not accepting the invitation either.

Speaking was an art, and Jasper had clearly gained full proficiency in this art.

Brad was not surprised when Jasper declined his invitation. He had even prepared himself for Jasper's curt rejection.

On the contrary, he now saw Jasper in a new light because his words did not leave him feeling humiliated at all.

He then smiled and patted Jasper amiably on the shoulder, saying, "Not bad. You're pretty outstanding compared to your peers. I'll be waiting for your good news then."

Brad left after saying those words.

He was, after all, at the same level and status as Zachary, so there was no need for him to be too affected by Jasper.

In Brad's opinion, Jasper and Erik's quarrel earlier was nothing more than a fight between children. It was not worth mentioning at all.

Generals would fight against generals, soldiers with soldiers. There was no reason for him, a general, to deal with a soldier like Jasper himself.

Following behind Brad, Erik twitched his mouth before walking ahead. He then said in a low voice, "You don't know how to appreciate what's good for you."

Jasper was still wearing a faint smile on his face as though he did not hear what Erik said.

When the Laws and Turners had entered the Imperial Ballroom, only Norman, Ian, and Lisa were left at the scene.

"Please enter," Jasper said to Norman and Ian flatly.

Life at the Top Chapter 440

Norman's expression shifted, and he stared at the embarrassed expression on his daughter's face with heart-wrenching pain. He took a deep breath and decided. "We won't be joining you for dinner later."

Jasper replied calmly, "Why not come in for a seat since you're already here anyway?"

Norman had a complicated expression on his face. "Benny's still in the hospital and he has an operation waiting for him. My daughter doesn't seem up for it today either, and I wouldn't want to make a fool of myself in front of the two old masters."

Jasper looked at Norman indifferently. "It's too late for you to regret it now that you've already chosen your stand. Did you think that retreating now will keep you out of the problem?"

Norman growled. "What do you want, then? A fight to the death?"

Jasper smiled. "Your words are a little too harsh for my liking. I much prefer peace, and I'm sure there's nothing that we cannot negotiate."

Just then, Ian walked over and stared intently at Jasper. "What do we have to do for you to leave us alone?"

Jasper smiled. "Isn't it too late to ask me this question? Plus, say that I let you off, what makes you think the Turners will too?"

"Then that is still a problem between us and the Turner family. What I'm talking about right now is your attitude!" Ian bellowed.

Jasper turned to Lisa and saw the utter resentment in her eyes before he suddenly spoke, "No room for discussion then."

Jasper never had the urge to bully people unwarrantedly, for he had always lived with the motto 'peaceful unless provoked'.

Yet that did not mean he was some saint.

He knew that if he did not completely destroy people who bore grave distaste for him, they would only cause him more trouble in the future.

Especially when it came to people like the Gardners and the Hulls. These people had both money and power and could create issues for him at any turn.

He knew that Lisa and Ian would not thank him for his mercy if he kindly forgave them but would only take advantage of it to recover and take revenge.

To prevent further complications, Jasper had to make sure that he completely removed any ability they had left to fight back or take revenge.

A flurry of expressions flashed through both Ian and Norman's faces when they heard Jasper's words.

There was regret, indignation, and most importantly, fury.

They felt that Jasper was looking down on them.

"If you think that you've already crushed both our families, then leave." Ian's expression calmed as he looked at Jasper coldly.

Jasper smiled and turned to enter the Imperial Ballroom.

Pushing open the door, everyone could be seen sitting scattered on the sofa in the magnificent and shimmering Imperial Ballroom. The round table had already been repaired after the fight last night, and there was no sign of any damage.

Once everyone was there, Jasper then notified the rest.

There was no way the old masters would wait for others at the hotel, so they would only arrive once they knew that everyone else was there.

More than ten minutes later, Jasper received a notification and relayed it to Zachary and Brad. Then, the three of them went downstairs together.

Jasper and Zachary conversed happily along the way, leaving Brad to glare at the two coldly and silently.

The three waited for a quick moment downstairs before two cars arrived, one closely behind the other.

Old Master Law and Old Master Turner alighted their cars at almost the same time. Both Zachary and Brad went to greet their fathers.

This was the first time Jasper had seen Old Master Turner. Age-wise, he appeared to be six to seven years older than Old Master Law. However, the man would live a long life. From what he remembered of his past life, Old Master Turner only passed at the age of 105 years old.

Now in his 80s, Old Master Turner was still a very lively man and there was no sign of senescence despite his head that was full of white hair.

Old Master Turner was the epitome of 'old but vigorous.'

Old Master Turner smiled and walked toward Old Master Law, reaching a hand out. "It's been over a decade since we last met, Tom. How have you been?"

Life at the Top Chapter 441

Old Master Law smiled, his expression lamenting as he took Old Master Turner's outstretched hand and replied, "You're right. Time flies. I can't believe it's already been more than a decade.

"We're both growing old and it's getting difficult for us to move about. With you in Swallow Capital and I in Harbor City, who knows when we'll meet again if not for this?"

Old Master Turner smiled. "Any extra day we have is a blessing considering our age, and every time we meet is one less time for the future. Who knows when the last time we meet will be? We've lost quite a number of our friends since we last met."

Old Master Law then pulled Jasper over and smiled. "In that case, then we've really got to thank this young man here. I wouldn't have had a reason to come to Swallow Capital if not for the beautiful celebratory banquet he hosted. He's the one hosting this dinner as well."

Old Master Turner turned to Jasper, and before the former could speak, Jasper immediately greeted him courteously, "Hello, Old Master Turner. I'm Jasper Laine."

Old Master Turner smiled and nodded before replying enthusiastically, "Good, very good. I've heard of you before. It was a very beautiful banquet you hosted. It's a shame that I was still in treatment and couldn't come to see it for myself, but a few of my old friends told me about you. You've done well, young man."

Jasper smiled. "The banquet was indeed a success, but I can't take all the credit. It was a joint effort with my colleagues, and I wouldn't have been able to host it so successfully without the higher-ups' help and leadership. There's still a lot I have to learn. I wouldn't dare take all the credit myself."

Old Master Turner chuckled. "A young man like you should've gone to work for the government, not in business."

After a little more small talk, Jasper found an opportunity to suggest, "The wind's a little strong tonight, old masters. Perhaps we could move this conversation upstairs?"

Both Old Master Turner and Old Master Law easily agreed.

The small group made their way into the hotel, and not even the manager of the InterContinental Hotel had the level of importance to approach them. They had no choice but to maintain a distance from the group of stern strong men in black.

They shuddered internally at the identities of the two old masters, knowing that each of these seemingly normal bodyguards was palace guards. Specifically, they were the kind one could not push against, for they could very well legally kill you on the spot.

Looking past the guards' shoulders, they saw the two old masters laughing and joking as they walked in front. They left the formidable figures like Brad and Zachary to walk behind them as their juniors.

However, speaking with the two old masters was a young man like Jasper.

This scene had the managerial level of the InterContinental Hotel remembering Jasper's appearance and name deeply in their hearts. This man was the last person they could offend.

The two old masters conversed deeply throughout the way and there were no signs of any potential conflict between the two families at all.

There were no mocking undertones or targeting subtexts at all.

If anything, the two seemed like old friends catching up with one another.

Jasper listened quietly beside them and added a few comments from time to time when given the opportunity. The atmosphere around them was harmonious.

Between Zachary and Brad who were following behind them, they did not share looks, scoff, turn away, or anything of the like even though the two were not given any chance to join in their fathers' conversation.

If anything, Brad merely looked at Jasper's back with slight uncontrolled envy seeing as how the youth could easily join the two old masters' conversations.

'How did Zachary find such treasure?'

Brad felt his chest clench thinking about how disappointing his son was despite being the same age as Jasper.

It was a relief that Jasper was a Laine and not a Law, or that would give him a true headache.

Entering the Imperial Ballroom, everyone inside collectively stood to greet the two old masters.

Especially Norman and Ian. The two felt their hearts thump erratically when they saw how Jasper stood beside the two old masters when Zachary and Brad could only follow behind them.

'The importance of those two old masters...'

'No one would oppose to considering them national treasures!'

'So just what had Jasper done to be so adored by both old masters?'

"I see that everyone's already here."

Life at the Top Chapter 442

Old Master Turner smiled widely and spoke. Turning to Ian, he suddenly asked, "You're Ian Gardner?"

Ian had not expected Old Master Turner to call out his name and took two steps forward in surprise before replying courteously, "Yes, Old Master Turner. I'm Ian Gardner."

Old Master Turner nodded. "Haddock's Chamber of Commerce has been developing rather well these years. You've contributed a lot to your local economies. Especially the Waterhoof Branch, I heard that you pay hundreds of millions for tax now?"

Ian hurriedly replied, "Thank you for keeping an eye out for us, Old Master. It's thanks to having a good environment and policies from the higher-ups that we're allowed to develop."

Old Master Turner pointed at Ian and smiled at Old Master Law. "See? These people are the backbone of our country's business world. Not bad, right?"

Old Master Law asked intently, "Who's Gale Hurlbutt to you?"

Ian's expression turned solemn as he quickly replied politely, "Old Master Hurlbutt is the spirit of Haddock's Chamber of Commerce. He has already retired because of old age but he'll always be the honorary president of Haddock's Chamber of Commerce nationwide. He's my teacher."

Old Master Law nodded and ignored Ian's politeness, opting to turn to Old Master Turner instead. "Hurlbutt is a very sly man. He promised to send me some superior grade rosemary tea long ago but I haven't received it yet. You ought to ask him for me the next time you meet."

Old Master Turner smiled. "I didn't know you two had such a past."

Old Master Law ushered Old Master Turner to his seat. "It's already been years since then. He was doing business with foreigners and ended up getting kidnapped all the way there. I paid his ransom."

Old Master Turner replied intently, "You saved his life. Hurlbutt isn't being very kind then."

Ian, by the side, and Norman, who could not add to the conversation, felt their knees go weak at the words.

'This was Gale Hurlbutt they were talking about!

'Haddock's first rich businessman!' Both Ian and Norman were still children when the man dominated the business world.

Even though Gale had already retired, the man's students were all over the world. Ian and Norman were just two unremarkable students among all the others.

After the two old masters took their seats, everyone else began to take theirs according to their statuses and identities.

People could not randomly sit as they wished on such an occasion.

The two old masters sat in the middle, with Zachary, Henry, and Anna on Old Master Law's right.

Meanwhile, on Old Master Turner's left was Brad and Erik respectively.

Ian and Norman went to sit with the Turners without another thought.

This left Jasper to take the furthest seat from the old masters despite being the host.

As such, he had Anna on his left and Lisa on his right.

Seeing such a seating plan, Lisa suddenly stood up and said coldly, "I don't want to sit with a broke beggar!"

Lisa did not seem to have registered the dark void-like glares Norman and Ian were giving her.

After all, envy could turn a man crazy while hatred blinded all rationality.

She turned to Old Master Law and spoke, "You're a very respectable senior, Old Master Law, and it's precisely so that I must tell you. You and your family have been deceived by Jasper! He's a liar!"

Lisa then pointed at Jasper and shouted, "This man! While he flirts amorously with your granddaughter, he also has a girlfriend! How could someone like him appear here?"

"He's dating two girls at once. He's treating the Law family like they're a bunch of fools!"

"Wise as you are, Old Master, how could you be deceived by the likes of him?"

Life at the Top Chapter 443

The banquet's atmosphere immediately turned extremely weird.

Brad and Erik, the father-and-son duo, were looking at Lisa with complicated gazes.

Brad glanced at Lisa, then at Jasper, and suddenly felt the urge to thank the man.

Had it not been for Jasper, Erik and Lisa's wedding might have become a reality and he would end up having this thoughtless and brash woman as his daughter-in-law. It would wreak havoc on his peace.

'Thank goodness, thank f*ck!'

Brad let out a sigh of unexpected relief.

Meanwhile, Erik looked at Lisa as if she was a goddess.

Ignoring the words that she had said outside, it was a different story to claim that a wise man like Old Master Law had been deceived by Jasper and before two old masters too, no less.

Frankly speaking, Erik was not brave enough to do so.

Yet Lisa had done so and very clearly too. She seemed to be going all out, hoping to pull Jasper with her as she screwed herself over.

Norman felt the urge to slap this daughter of his, but he could not nor did he dare do so here.

In such a situation, no one dared to speak before Old Master Law spoke.

There was only one sole exception.

Anna.

Everyone watched as Anna slowly turned to look at Lisa and asked casually, "Who are you?"

Lisa stared at Anna, thinking that she had moved the other. She replied excitedly, "I'm Lisa Gardner. I take the same MBA class at Swallow Capital University with Wendy. That's how I know what kind of disgusting things Jasper, this b*stard of a man, have done!

"You would all have continued to be deceived by him had it not been for me! I'm helping you expose his true character!

"This man's just a playboy. He doesn't deserve your affections at all!

"Who is he to deserve them?"

Lisa's rapid-fire accusations came so fast one would think she said it all in one breath. Then, Lisa turned to look at Jasper, hoping to see humiliation and anger on his face.

Yet all there was on Jasper's features was serene calmness, and perhaps a bit of mockery one would have when they watched a clown make a fool of themselves.

Anna spoke, "I just asked you for your name. What's the point in telling us all of this?"

Lisa's maniacal expression froze, and she looked at Anna in disbelief. "Aren't you furious? He's cheating on your relationship!"

“What relationship?” Anna asked.

Lisa’s expression changed drastically.

Anna and Jasper had never once claimed to have an amorous relationship.

All of this was merely Lisa’s intuition and deduction as another woman.

However, she believed her gut feeling for her eyes told her that Anna definitely had feelings for Jasper.

Lisa was a woman, so she was certain of how women looked when they stared at a person they fancied.

That was precisely how Anna looked at Jasper.

She appeared focused and smitten. It was a sign of a woman deeply in love!

Yet she had never thought that Anna would argue with her in front of everyone.

“Jasper and I are just good friends. Wendy is his girlfriend and I knew that long ago. Wendy and I are great friends too, she’s a nice girl.”

Life at the Top Chapter 444

Anna’s voice slowly rang out.

“While I’m very grateful for your enthusiasm, I can’t possibly see how your attitude and actions are supposed to be in my favor. In fact, it seems to me that you’re just using this to attack Jasper. What right does a narrow-minded person like you have to sit here?”

Anna's words made Lisa feel utterly distressed.

Still, there was not a word she could say to refute Anna.

Anna had managed to corner Lisa from all sides.

She looked to Erik hopelessly, hoping her boyfriend could help her.

However, she only saw the man staring at the cutleries before him as if he was not involved in the matter at all.

Brad no longer hinted at Erik anymore either.

After causing such ruckus in front of the two old masters, it would no longer be acceptable for him to pull Norman and Ian to his side.

In fact, doing so might even make Old Master Turner suspect his ability to discern and choose teammates.

Erik's silence broke the last thread of Lisa's hope.

Her heart sank, and she looked at Anna's calm expression as well as Henry's mocking one. It was at that moment Lisa knew that she had pushed herself into the abyss.

Fear, regret, indignation, and anger surged within her, overwhelming Lisa and causing her to tremble.

Both Norman and Ian had gone pale as they sat on their seats. There was not a word they could say.

Just then, Old Master Law finally spoke. His tone was calm, but it was no longer warm and caring but frigidly cold instead.

“This child’s face seems to be injured. Perhaps you should bring her to the hospital to get her checked.”

That was his way of chasing her out.

However, Norman and Ian took it as mercy and quickly stood up. “You’re right, Old Master Law. My daughter really should get her injuries checked at the hospital. We’ll get going first then, goodbye.”

Norman then dragged Lisa toward the door.

Lisa struggled against him maddeningly. “No! I’m not going anywhere! Why do I have to leave? Jasper’s just a b*stard! Who is he to step over me, huh? Because they’re rich and powerful?! I’m not leaving!”

Slap!

Norman raised his hand and slapped Lisa across her face, his gaze looking chilling when he told her, “Shut up!”

Lisa wailed, her snot and tears dripping everywhere as Norman and Ian dragged her away.

It was only until they had left the hotel and sat in their car that Norman and Ian’s taut shoulders finally relaxed a bit.

Norman gave a long sigh as he glanced at his daughter who had broken down in tears. He thought of Ben who was still waiting for surgery. “We should never have come to Swallow Capital!

“Now my son’s lying in bed like a crippled man. Meanwhile, your daughter has gone mad and we even got ourselves into some big trouble!”

Ian clenched his teeth, his gaze filled with cruel fierceness as he growled. “It’s all Jasper Laine’s fault! Things wouldn’t have gotten so screwed if not for him!”

Norman had given up. “So what, Ian? What can we do? Jasper has the Law family supporting him. Didn’t you see how Old Master Law treats him? Not even his own grandson Henry gets that kind of treatment. What are we supposed to do?”

Ian clenched his teeth and spoke, “The Law family can’t protect him all the time. He’s still in the Mainland and the Laws are based in Harbor City. They’re too far away to do anything most of the time.

“And so what if it’s the Law family? There are enough problems for them here in Swallow Capital. The Turner family isn’t easy to deal with either.”

Norman’s eyes lit up as he whispered, “What are you thinking?”

Ian looked intently at Norman and replied deeply, “What, so you’re just going to move on and let him get away with it?”

Norman’s eyes were filled with heartbreak and fury as he glanced at his daughter who had completely broken down. With clenched teeth, he agreed. “Tell me your plan, then!”

Life at the Top Chapter 445

“The Law family is still in Swallow Capital. Besides, an intense struggle is taking place between Harbor City’s business groups and local companies. We must not get involved.

“Not only should we not get involved, but we should get out of Swallow Capital as quickly as possible because Zachary Law might come after us. That old dude was rich and famous 20 years ago, but his son isn’t even half as accomplished as him.”

Ian’s eyes glinted sinisterly as he continued saying, “We’ll return to Waterhoof City for now. The Law family can’t do anything to us while we’re there because it’s in the Mainland and not Harbor City, where they hold immense power.

“There are plenty of ways to deal with Jasper Laine. We won’t attack him directly for now. However, Benny previously tried to get the one named Wendy Schuler to date him. I’ve run a background check on her too. We know everything about her.

“Wendy has already left Swallow City, but Jasper is still there. We can take advantage of this opportunity to go after Wendy!”

Norman’s eyes brightened as he listened to Ian speak. He thought it was a good idea.

“One more thing. What’s Wendy’s background?” Norman asked carefully.

Ian smiled as he said, “She’s the daughter of the richest man of a province. Her father is Dawson Schuler. We would normally never dare to provoke someone of such a powerful background, but desperate times call for desperate measures. Anyway, we’re not afraid of him!

“Moreover, we’ll use some tricks from the dark side. How would he find out if he weren’t already paying attention?”

...

In InterContinental Hotel’s Imperial Ballroom, the banquet’s atmosphere regained some of its warmth after Ian and company left.

The two old men were still reminiscing about their sufferings in the past while Zachary spoke to Henry and Anna. Brad and Erik were also whispering to each other.

The party seemed lively, but everyone was only talking to those who were in their inner circle.

Except for the two old men, both Zachary and Brad seemed to think there was nothing to say to the other party.

As for Jasper, he ignored both parties and focused his attention on servicing the two old men.

He had brought along two bottles of aged 30-year-old brandy with him tonight. It was good alcohol and not the kind that anyone could get their hands on.

However, they were nothing to both Old Master Law and Old Master Turner.

Jasper poured the two men some brandy. If that tiny cup had been placed in front of him in his past life, it would be worth at least 2,000 dollars.

The two men were elderly and did not take much alcohol.

“This is good wine,” Zachary praised as he took a sip of the brandy.

“It has a mellow aroma and a fragrant taste. No wonder it’s been deemed the pride of Harbor City.”

Jasper smiled as he said, “This brandy is a good thing indeed. I’m feeling optimistic about the market outlook for alcohol and am planning to buy some shares for brandy in the secondary market. I think it’s one of the few shares worth holding on to for a long-term investment. Would you like to join me, Uncle Law?”

In Jasper's past life, the market price for brandy increased by 40% in just three months. With a horrifying share price of 1,400 US dollars per share, not only had it become the most expensive A-share, but it had even overtaken the Industrial and Commercial Bank of Somer to become the number one A-share company with a market capitalization of 1.8 trillion US dollars.

Yet, how much did a share for brandy cost now?

It had just entered the market and did not cost more than 31 US dollars for a share!

Not to mention the fact that it would drop to 20 US dollars per share next year.

In 19 years, its profits would increase by 70 times. That was enough for Jasper to enter the market.

Zachary's eyes lit up.

Even Old Master Law had praised Jasper's intuition in investing. The Law family was not strapped for cash now, but they lacked the opportunity to invest.

Thus, what Jasper deemed feasible was definitely a business that could earn a lot of money.

"Sure. Let me know when you're going to invest and I'll invest in some shares too," Zachary said as he smiled.

If an ordinary person said they were going to invest in shares during this age, they would probably only invest several million dollars. At the very most, they would invest several hundred thousand dollars.

However, Zachary looked at numbers no less than a billion when he decided to invest.

It was impossible to get hold of private capital for brandy when considering the special nature of its market, but it was still possible to get hold of shares worth several million dollars.

Erik, who was sharing a table with them, laughed coldly. The two seemed to be putting on a show for him.

Life at the Top Chapter 446

Investing in every single thing that came around?

Brandy?

They must be joking.

How much profit could a share in alcohol earn even if it were deemed the nation's pride?

If they had that much free time, they might as well start a business. That would earn them even more money.

Jasper was indeed the kind of person who walked on air after achieving a tiny accomplishment.

When Erik thought of that, he said, "I have a little knowledge regarding investments too. Brandy is a new addition to the stock market, and it's not performing well even though it's new. Its share price has been weak for some time.

"The stock market is in the early stages of becoming a bull market. Every share you see is profiting, and brandy is the only one that's not. Even so, you're saying it's worth investing in? What a joke."

Erik was very pleased with what he had said. He felt as if he had stolen some of Jasper's limelight for himself.

He could not let Jasper take all the credit. He, Erik Turner, had real talent too!

Jasper said calmly, "Every person has their investment strategy. Don't invest in it if you feel it's not worth it. No one's forcing you to."

Erik scoffed. "I think you're embarrassed. To be frank, you're quite good at hosting banquets, but you should give up on investing. It's a complicated place where not even I have the confidence in securing profits, let alone you?"

"Preposterous!" Henry tapped his fork against his glass and said mockingly, "Erik Turner, do you know what it means to show off your mediocre skills before an expert? How dare you say Jasper Laine knows nothing about investing in shares? The people of Harbor City would laugh their heads off if they heard what you just said."

The expression on Erik's face darkened as he said, "Did I say anything wrong? The share price of brandy has been dropping, but he said it's worth investing in. What's that if not bullsh*t? I dare say he knows nothing about investing just by that one sentence."

Henry was even more amused as he said, "I can't bring myself to expose your stupidity when I look at how foolish you seem now."

"Did you know he organized the Harbor City billion-dollar shares rescue plan some time ago?"

"Did you know he made his fortune from the stock market?"

"Did you know he earned several billion dollars in a night through crude oil trading?"

"What the hell does he know? If he knows nothing, you would know even less! You wouldn't know anything at all, you f*cking maggot!"

The expression on Erik's face turned into a gloomy, exasperated one after hearing what Henry said.

He knew Jasper was good, but he never knew that Jasper had made his fortune from the stock market.

Henry could not speak without thinking, given his identity and the current occasion.

Thus, what Henry said must be true.

This meant that he had indeed just shown off his mediocre skills to an expert in the most embarrassing way possible!

Erik's face was grim. He was in a sticky situation now.

However, he was also secretly surprised at the same time. Was Jasper so good in investments that he earned several billion dollars just through crude oil trading?

What was even scarier was the Harbor City billion-dollar shares rescue plan. He had heard about it even though he had been at the Mainland when it happened.

It was a huge event that caused huge stirs in the global financial market some time ago.

Jasper was the host for that?

What the f*ck, was he a god?

Was there anything he could not do?

Just then, Old Master Turner spoke up and helped him out.

“It's good that you young people are good at this, but you should also dabble in other industries. After all, money might travel quickly in the financial market but it doesn't do much in actually boosting the economy or creating more job opportunities in the market.

“You youngsters should be more open-minded. The only way to become rich and benevolent is by giving back to the community.”

That light-hearted sentence Old Master Turner uttered was enough to put Jasper, who had been glorified throughout the entire banquet, in a precarious position.

Life at the Top Chapter 447

Everyone stared at Jasper. They seemed to be waiting to see how he would react.

Not even Old Master Law spoke as he was also gazing meaningfully at him.

Anna's eyes twinkled, and there were several times when she seemed to want to speak up and help ease the pressure Jasper was receiving from Old Master Turner. However, a strict look from Zachary stopped her.

Only Jasper could answer Old Master Turner now.

If anyone else spoke, it would mean they were disrespecting Old Master Turner.

The corners of Erik's lips turned upward into a mocking smile.

He had long since been annoyed watching Jasper be praised by everyone.

However, he now understood what it meant by 'the higher you climb, the higher you fall'.

Old Master Turner was still the best!

“You’re right, Old Master Turner.”

Jasper spoke as everyone stared. He was submissive from the very first sentence.

The crowd could not help but be slightly disappointed.

Erik’s disappointment stemmed from how Jasper had decided to be a goose. If Jasper had dared to go against Old Master Turner, he would have had the chance to not only reprimand but slap Jasper in front of everyone. That would have been so fun.

However, without waiting for anyone else to speak up, Jasper continued saying, “But as the greats who have come before me said, it’s permissible for a small portion of people to gain richness first, as they’ll be the ones who lead the majority population to shared prosperity in the future. It’s also one of the guidelines for the development of our economic policy.

“Financial activities can stimulate the economic market. When enterprises receive investments, they will increase the scale of their productions. Won’t that increase job opportunities? The activities in the market accelerate when it receives funds. Won’t that boost the economy as a whole?

“Thus, in my opinion, no matter what methods are employed, they should be valid as long as they’re both legal and logical.”

InterContinental Hotel’s Imperial Ballroom fell silent after the people present heard what Jasper had to say.

No one imagined Jasper would dare refute Old Master Turner to his face.

Old Master Turner had a serene expression on his face. No one could guess what emotion he was feeling.

However, Erik could not bear it and bellowed as he stood, “Jasper Laine! You should know your place. How dare you refute my grandfather?!”

“You said I should know my place?”

Jasper immediately retaliated by saying, “I’m just your average citizen. My parents were farmers, and I’m nothing more than a businessman. However, I must say what I think is right!”

Erik scoffed as he pointed at Jasper and said, “Hey, you’re making things more complicated than they need to be, aren’t you? You were still a nobody when my grandfather was out fighting on the battlefield. What makes you think you can go against him?”

“I’m trying to make matters clear because I respect Old Master Turner. In other words, if you were the one who had said such things, I wouldn’t even bother refuting you.”

Erik’s temper nearly erupted when he heard what Jasper just said!

“What the f*ck do you mean by that? Are you looking down on me?!” Erik gritted his teeth as he asked.

“Yes.” Jasper nodded calmly as he admitted it casually.

It was simple and straightforward, and its effects were immediate.

Erik completely lost control of his temper as he glared at Jasper and said coldly, “Don’t think you can be cocky just because you’ve gained temporary power. You’re still far from families like us who have been around for decades!”

“That’s the difference between you and me,” Jasper said calmly, “You open your mouth and speak only of your family, but I represent myself wherever I go!”

Creak...

Erik's eyes were bloodshot as his anger increased tenfold.

"Erik!" Brad said in a low voice. Erik was once again the loser in this conflict. He could not allow his son's big mouth to continue embarrassing him.

Otherwise, things would not end well for everyone.

Erik took a deep breath and laughed coldly as he said, "Let's see how long you can continue running wildly."

Life at the Top Chapter 448

Eric sat down after saying that.

Finally, Old Master Law spoke. He smiled as he said to Old Master Turner, "Brother Jason, it makes me happy to see how energetic these youngsters are. Don't you agree that these youngsters will be the ones who will further the development of our country in the future?"

Old Master Turner said softly, "I'm just worried that some will take the wrong path and find it difficult to turn back in the future."

The smile on Old Master Law's face gradually disappeared as he said, "Paths are created by man. Some might think that it's a cliff, while others view it to be a highway. We're old now and are no match for these youngsters in terms of vitality."

Old Master Turner glanced at Old Master Law as he said calmly, "Tom, I'll let you know my bottom line now that we're talking. We're all old men now, and I hope everyone can evolve at their own pace without getting into arguments over the tiniest things.”

Old Master Law replied, “I agree wholeheartedly with this. Whether it be in the business field or anywhere else, every person has a place where they belong. One should not let go of what naturally belongs to them.”

“So, you’re going to fight till the end?” Old Master Turner frowned slightly as he gazed at Old Master Law.

Old Master Law might be old and skinny, but he was showing that he had gone through a lifetime’s worth of legendary ups and downs. He might seem like a skinny old man sitting at the head of the table, but the aura he emanated was as tall and majestic as a mighty mountain.

“I, Tom Law, would have starved to death on the streets if I had not fought!”

That was a heavy claim to make.

Not even Old Master Turner could brush it off.

As such, the frown on Old Master Turner’s forehead deepened.

No one could tell what he was thinking.

After a long while, Old Master Turner said, “We’re old now. Shall we let the younger generation deal with some things themselves?”

This statement intended to limit the severity of an unavoidable battle.

At the very least, influential old men like them did not need to enter the battlefield themselves.

Otherwise, the situation would worsen even more.

Coincidentally, this was what Old Master Law wanted.

He nodded as he said, "Alright, that's what I meant too. We should enjoy our retirement now that we're old. We should take care of these creaky bones and live an extra two years to take care of these youngsters."

When the two finally came to an agreement, Old Master Turner smiled as he stood and said, "In that case, I'll be taking my leave now. Thank you for your hospitality."

Old Master Law also stood. "Zachary, please send the guests off on my behalf."

Zachary stood and said politely to Old Master Turner, "After you, Old Master Turner."

Old Master Turner nodded and gave Jasper a meaningful look before he slowly walked away.

Brad and Eric followed right behind him.

Before leaving, Eric gave Jasper a murderous look. His gaze seemed as sinister and poisonous as a venomous snake.

As Zachary sent the Turner family off, Old Master Law called Jasper to him.

"Based on my understanding of your character, you would never have directly contradicted Jason Turner the way you just did," Old Master Law said gently.

Jasper smiled bitterly as he said, "Old Master Law, there are some things that no one will be able to do if I don't do them."

Old Master Law nodded in understanding as he patted Jasper on the arm, saying, "It's alright. Jason isn't so petty that he'll harbor a grudge against you because of this. Do whatever you need to."

Henry blinked and asked curiously, “What are you talking about? Why can’t I understand it? What does Jasper need to do?”

Old Master Law glared at Henry as he said angrily, “This is the difference between you and Jasper!”

Henry, who had ended up making a fool of himself, grumbled as he sank back into his seat.

Then, Old Master Law turned to Jasper and asked him a question that made his hair stand on end.

“That girl named Wendy Schuler, is she really your girlfriend?”

Life at the Top Chapter 449

Jasper felt awkward.

That was a difficult question to answer.

After all, Anna was sitting right there.

However, no matter what, Jasper had never thought of denying things.

This had to do with his principles.

Thus, Jasper nodded as he said, “Yes, we were classmates in high school before later going on separate paths before university. By chance, we managed to reconnect after graduating this year.”

Old Master Law smiled and said, "Not bad. Fate is the most important thing in a relationship between a man and a woman. If fate won't have it, they won't have a future together even if they see each other every day."

Anna interrupted and said, "They have a great relationship. I already knew about this back when Jasper was still in Harbor City."

Jasper gave Anna a grateful look.

Tonight was not the first time Anna had helped him out in regards to this matter.

Henry dangled a toothpick from his mouth and leaned against the back of his chair as he said nonchalantly, "Who cares if you have a girlfriend or not? My grandfather has three mistresses. And if we're talking about my dad, I think we all can guess whether he has a mistress or not..."

The things Henry said were so shocking that Anna immediately gave him a murderous glare.

"Why do you seem to hope that Jasper will have mistresses as well?" Anna smiled coldly as she asked.

Henry was stunned. It seemed unreasonable that his sister was choosing to direct her attacks on him.

Jasper was the one with a girlfriend, not him. If he brought up the topic of mistresses now, would that not give Anna leeway to butt into things as a mistress?

Yet, not only was she not grateful, but she was also glaring at him?

"Do you know what era you're living in now? Aren't you worried about being laughed at when you bring up the topic of mistresses?" Anna asked with a cold expression on her face.

Then, Old Master Law spoke up, “What Henry said makes sense. Both men and women should hold on to the relationships they cherish. Live your life for yourself, not for others.”

That statement seemed to have a deeper meaning to it. However, it was hard to tell if it was directed at Jasper or Anna.

However, the topic of conversation soon changed. No one brought it up again.

Old Master Law’s age could not be denied. When Zachary returned, arrangements were made for them to return to the hotel.

When they were in the hotel lobby, Anna smiled at Jasper as she said, “I’ll go back with my dad and grandpa. The two of you should get going too.”

Jasper nodded as he gazed at the woman before him and said sincerely, “Thank you for today.”

The corners of Anna’s lips curled upward. “What are you thanking me for?”

“...” Jasper was speechless.

He could not thank her outright for helping him cover up and smoothing things over, could he?

As if she could sense Jasper’s hesitance, Anna smiled slightly and said, “Alright, I was just teasing. I understand.

“Besides, this has always been something between the three of us—you, me, and Wendy. It has nothing to do with anyone else, and they have no right to use this to stir up trouble even if they’re family!”

At that moment, Anna was domineering like no other person.

When she finished speaking, Anna gazed bemusedly at Jasper as she said, “Indeed, many people in Harbor City have mistresses. The same thing happens in Mainland, just that they’re much more quiet and private about it over there. Most people are very open to having mistresses in Harbor City. Back in my grandfather’s day, it was legal to have concubines.

“What are your thoughts?” Anna asked meaningfully.

“I think what Old Master Law said makes sense. Let fate decide matters between a man and a woman. We should live our lives for ourselves and not for others. It’ll be fine as long as we think it’s fine.”

Jasper had thought twice about every word and spun them around his mind several times before he uttered them.

Anna glared at him as she said angrily, “I knew men were all b*stards! I knew you would never be able to satiate your appetite!”

Jasper hurriedly said, “I didn’t mean it that way. I’m just stating facts as they are.”

Anna burst into laughter when she saw how frantic Jasper was and said, “Alright, I’m not blaming you. I grew up in that kind of environment and have witnessed quite a few things myself. In terms of grandmothers, I already have three just from my dad’s side of the family.”

Then, Anna gazed meaningfully at Jasper as she said, “But times are different now. Don’t let your imagination run away from you. I might not be willing to do such things for you.”

While the two talked, Henry was wise enough to walk away and go for a smoke.

He had actually wanted to eavesdrop, but Anna’s glare was enough to scare him off.

As Henry smoked, he thought sadly to himself how his dignity as an older brother was diminishing day by day. It was not a good sign... even though he never really had much dignity as an older brother.

Zachary frowned as he sat in the car and watched his daughter speak to Jasper.

“What are you looking at? Anna’s growing up now. You can’t control her anymore. Did you think you could tie her by your side forever?” Old Master Law asked nonchalantly.

Zachary smiled bitterly as he said, “Jasper was originally the most suitable candidate, and I approved greatly of them. However, the problem is that he already has a girlfriend.”

“You’re holding that against Jasper? Perhaps you should introduce us to your mistress, Blair Callow,” Old Master Law said calmly.

The expression on Zachary’s face changed as he hurriedly asked, “Dad, how did you know?”

Old Master Law glared at Zachary as he said, “Did you think you could keep it from everyone and anyone? Anna’s mom simply can’t be bothered to get involved, and she knows she can’t do anything about it either. Either way, what gives you the right to judge Jasper when you’re the same?”

Zachary said indignantly, “How is that the same? Anna is my daughter and your granddaughter. How could she become someone’s mistress?”

“That’s not up to you to decide, nor is it up to me to decide. The decision is hers to make. What’s more, Anna has a fiery spirit. She might not want to be one even if you allow it. She has a mind of her own.”

Old Master Law said softly, “I won’t allow you to interfere with their relationship. No matter if it ends well or not, it’s up to them how they wish to proceed.”

Zachary said rather reluctantly, “But Dad—”

He had not finished speaking when Old Master Law interrupted, “You think Jasper doesn’t know what he’s doing? The worst thing you can do now is intervene. If Anna is okay with it, we don’t need to offend Jasper regarding this matter. Once a grudge over something like this is created, it can be held on to for life.”

Zachary sighed as he said, “I don’t feel good about it, but how can I separate the two lovebirds? I can’t bring myself to do that.”

Life at the Top Chapter 450

“I have to go now. See you.”

Jasper sighed as he watched Anna’s car drive off.

Since olden times, only beautiful women would not be disappointed.

However, Jasper got a headache when he thought about Anna who was always calm and kept a delicate distance from him. She had such a good gauge on their relationship that they never felt too distant or intimate with each other.

That woman was like poison, plucking at his heartstrings when he was not paying attention to her.

Most importantly, she knew what to do or say at the right time. She always had a good grasp of the situation.

She would make you think that she would do anything for you.

At the same time, she would make you think she would leave you at any time. It was how she kept you on your toes.

“Holy sh*t, did you drug my sister or something?” Henry asked as he leaned toward Jasper.

Jasper glanced at Henry before he asked exasperatedly, “Don’t you think the question should be asked the other way round?”

Henry’s lips twitched as he said, “That’s because you didn’t know what she was like before. I’m not one to brag, but have you ever met a man who’s at the right age but doesn’t want to date my sister? But she’s never given any of the men as much as a smile.

“Everyone says I’m stubborn and obstreperous, but if we were to actually take things seriously, I’m nothing compared to my sister.”

Then, Henry stroked his chin and said, “Sometimes, I think she’s a machine programmed to not have any feelings for men. Or maybe she’s a lesbian, and that’s why she doesn’t seem interested in men.

“But do you know how much she’s done for you ever since you two met? There’s so much you don’t know. Would she be this bewitched by you if you hadn’t drugged her?”

Jasper’s eyes followed the vehicle until it disappeared into a sea of flashing car lights. He smiled and said, “Do you think a relationship between a man and a woman is more like a battle or a game?”

Stunned, Henry had a serious expression on his face as he said, “Everyone has to strip naked before they fight, so I would say it’s a battle?”

Jasper, “...”

...

After the banquet that ended the night before, the situation in Swallow Capital began its turbulence the next day.

It was as if both the local faction and Harbor City's business groups had realized that a battle was inevitable.

Thus, within a single day, four branch offices of Harbor City's four richest families submitted their registration forms.

Their registered capital was all no less than a mindblowing 100 million dollars.

They were not only showing their attitudes, but it was also a declaration of war.

As for the local faction, they did not resign to their fate even as they faced the aggressive business groups from Harbor City.

They began continuous research and gathered the brains of each industry together as if they were determined to fight to the death with Harbor City's business groups.

However, even though the situation was tense, both the local faction and Harbor City's business groups maintained basic restraint and calmness. At least they had not begun fighting openly yet and were only flexing what they had at the moment. They were only showing off their assets and determination.

With the tacit understanding established between them, even if a fight broke out, it would be contained within a limit. At the very least, people on Old Master Turner's level would not be dragged into this.

It was what the top management had wanted.

It was an agreement all three parties could accept for the time being.

As for the Law family, they had fallen right into Erik Turner's trap.

That was undeniable.

However, the Law family's losses had been lowered to their very minimum after Jasper got involved.

The branch company's assets were all transferred elsewhere, and the project proposal was nullified.

This meant Erik had gotten nothing more than the shares of a shell corporation. They were worth nothing at all.

Life at the Top Chapter 451

The Turner family seemed to understand that too, which was why they had not even bothered to transfer the accounts.

They had also kickstarted the registration process for their newest company, which would be approved shortly.

“Both the local faction and Harbor City’s business groups have their eyes on the construction project for the Olympic stadium. However, the project has not been formally established yet. The most anyone can do now is wait.”

Jasper and Zachary were sitting in the study, exchanging their views on the current situation in Swallow Capital.

Zachary nodded and said, “Not bad. That’s what we considered too, which is why we’ve only just registered our company. There’s no need for operations yet. When the project is formally established and tenders are open to the public, that’s when conflicts will erupt.”

Jasper sighed. “It’ll take at most one year and at least half a year. That’s when things will start to get interesting. The year is quickly approaching an end, and there shouldn’t be anything else happening.”

Zachary smiled as he said, “We plan to return to Harbor City tomorrow.”

Jasper asked in surprise, “What are your plans for here?”

Zachary answered, “Not much is happening here now, but a lot is going on in Harbor City. Many things can’t function if I’m not present. Besides, Old Master Law is getting old now and is no longer accustomed to spending long periods away from home.”

Jasper smiled and said, "You're right. The air quality in Swallow Capital is not great. It's not a place suitable for Old Master Law to spend long periods in."

"I'm planning to have Henry take over the investments I made in the Mainland. Old Master Law, Anna, and I will take a plane back tomorrow. The three other families will be doing the same," Zachary said.

Jasper smiled. "He should have matured quite a bit after what happened this time."

Zachary lowered his voice and said, "I know Henry. He's not stupid, but his heart's just not in the right place. I deliberately did not place pressure upon the Turner family this time round so Henry can remember his lesson!

"We'll have to fight against the Turner family in either a year or in six months, whenever the project goes public. However, I can't deal with Erik personally. This is something Henry has to take care of himself.

"It'll be good for him if he can get revenge, but if he can't, he'll have to admit his shortcomings and return to his life as a rich kid in Harbor City. He won't be allowed to embarrass himself publicly anymore."

Jasper said seriously, "The Turner family don't have much to talk about in terms of benefits either. All Erik got were garbage shares worth absolutely nothing in a shell corporation. As for the project proposal, it was rendered useless the minute it got leaked. Neither we nor the Turner family will be able to use it again.

"This is merely to comfort them psychologically."

Zachary nodded and patted Jasper's shoulder. "Luckily we had you around this time. Else, the Law family would have embarrassed themselves thoroughly."

Jasper said sincerely, "It's my responsibility. In both love and reason, I will never abandon or ignore the family."

...

The next day, the Law family had a plane to catch in the afternoon. Jasper spent the morning talking to Old Master Law and left when he began to grow tired.

Jasper had just left the room when he met Anna.

"I'm going abroad for further training next week and might not be back for New Year's," Anna said softly as she stood in front of Jasper. She lifted strands of hair off her face with her hand.

"I'll go visit you," Jasper said.

Anna laughed softly. "You're not scared that your girlfriend will be jealous?"

"I'll bring her along," Jasper said after a moment's thought.

Anna stared at Jasper in shock. "You've got some nerve. Do you find it particularly exciting to cheat on your girlfriend when she's right in front of you?"

Anna had just finished speaking playfully when the man in front of her took a step forward and got even closer to her.

The height difference between them was immediately highlighted. Anna had her back against the wall and had no room to retreat. Jasper was merely a few inches away from her.

The man's strong body and steady breathing caused Anna to become flustered.

They were so close that she could even hear not just her heartbeat but also his heartbeat.

Their hearts were so close to each other.

She felt her chin being lifted upward flirtatiously. Anna was forced to raise her head, her gaze directly meeting Jasper's eyes.

Jasper's gaze was domineering as he stared at Anna and said slowly, "Did you think I can't make you submit to me?"

Life at the Top Chapter 452

Jasper's unexpected movements caused Anna to unconsciously tense her body.

She tried instinctively to push Jasper away, but when she put her arms on Jasper's chest, she realized that the little strength she had was not enough to push the man away.

Their warm breaths caused Anna to become even more flustered. Instinctively, she lowered her eyes and did not dare to make eye contact with Jasper.

"What, what are you doing? Let me go!"

Anna was mortified at how soft and tender her voice sounded.

It was supposed to be a strict statement, but it sounded weak and helpless when she said it. Conversely, it even sounded as if she was only pretending to resist.

"Are you scared?"

When he noticed the dramatic changes in Anna's mood, Jasper leaned over slightly and chuckled as he whispered into Anna's ear.

Anna felt Jasper's warm breaths envelop her ear as he whispered.

The man's burning aura made its way right into her ear.

When she felt his aura, Anna felt her limbs turn into jelly. There was no strength left in them.

Anna felt her heart racing as her entire body, particularly her face, turned warm. She did not need a mirror to know she was burning red.

Then, without knowing where she had gotten the courage from, Anna pushed Jasper away.

Jasper took two steps backward and smirked as he gazed at Anna.

The latter was panting as if she had suddenly gotten fresh oxygen again after being deprived of it.

Her cheeks were rosy, and her eyes reflected light like a lake at sunset.

She was so stunningly beautiful that the whole world stopped to look at her.

That was how Anna looked like now.

"Do you have a death wish?!" Anna glared at Jasper, but she knew she looked anything but threatening right now.

For some inexplicable reason, she had lost her dominating edge. Not only had Jasper managed to take advantage of that, but most importantly, she had failed to live up to her expectations.

He managed to break through all her defenses, and she was unable to even fight back.

It was a source of annoyance for Anna.

Anna turned and ran off after giving Jasper one last glare.

She seemed as if she were escaping from him.

Jasper watched her run off before he raised a hand to his nose. Hmm, her smell was still on it.

He had not suffered major losses this time!

He had to make sure the little vixen learned her lesson sometime soon.

Else, she was going to climb right over his head.

He could treat a woman with wholehearted kindness, but he would never be a lapdog.

That was Jasper's motto. He had enough of being a lapdog in his past life. After being given a second chance at things after losing everything he had due to being a lapdog, Jasper was determined to never take the same path as in his past life.

...

It was not clear if it was because she was embarrassed or angry, but Anna refused to meet Jasper's eyes even when it was time for her and her family to board the plane.

Jasper sighed as he watched the plane carrying the Law family soar into the clouds.

Regardless, matters at Swallow Capital had come to an end.

The Turner family had not yet been taken care of, however. Erik Turner was still eyeing them covetously.

Life at the Top Chapter 453

However, this was inevitable. The Turner family of Swallow Capital could not be compared to other smaller families. They had way more tricks up their sleeves than Jasper currently did.

Thus, if one wanted to get rid of Erik Turner, they would not be able to do that within a day.

All they could do was take their time laying things out.

Jasper had the advantage of reincarnation on his side. The rate at which his wealth increased was bound to exceed everyone's expectations. It would not take long before Jasper no longer needed to pay attention to these families.

"Will you continue staying at Swallow Capital?" Jasper asked Henry.

Henry's face radiated delight as he said happily, "There are still a few processes the newest branch office has to complete, so I'll be here for a while longer. I can only leave when everything has been taken care of."

"I'll be returning to Southeast Province soon. Come meet up with me once you're done with business here. The Southface River project we collaborated on is almost done but I need you to look over some developmental details before we can wrap things up," Jasper said instructively.

Henry pouted as he said, "Can't you make the decisions? I don't understand anything anyway. I sort of want to spend a few more days in Swallow Capital—"

"Swallow Capital is a messy place. Not only should you leave as soon as possible, but you should ensure you don't get into any trouble during the time you have to stay here. Both Old Master Law and your dad have left, so no one can protect you anymore,” Jasper said as he frowned.

Henry raised an eyebrow as he said disdainfully, “So what? Since when has Henry Law required protecting when he goes to hang out?”

“How wonderful of you. Should we pay the Turner family another visit? I heard you were very high and mighty the last time you delivered them the invitation,” Jasper said calmly.

“...” The corners of Henry’s mouth twitched before he grumbled, “F*ck, it’s hard for me to deal with that idiot Erik when we’re in his homeland. I’m not being a coward this time, I’m just making a strategic decision to back off.”

“It’s good that you know to back off,” Jasper answered calmly.

“By the time you arrive at Southeast Province and do the last bit of work for the project, the year will have ended. When the New Year celebrations end and spring arrives, we can encash the project. We’re pressed for time, so not a single second can be wasted.”

“When are you leaving?” Henry asked.

Jasper thought for a moment before answering, “Probably tonight. There’s nothing left to take care of here and I haven’t returned to my company in the province for months. There’s a ton of paperwork waiting for me.”

Henry clicked his tongue as he said, “I don’t understand what you people are thinking. What’s the point of earning so much money when you don’t enjoy life and work yourself so hard that you can’t tell the days from the nights? You should enjoy life while you still have the time to do so!”

Jasper could not be bothered to pay any attention to the fool with twisted views.

...

After bidding farewell to those he had connections with in Swallow Capital and taking care of everything else, Jasper took a plane and left Swallow Capital.

Erik received that piece of news the minute Jasper left.

“What about Henry Law? Has he left too?” Erik asked.

The confidant who had come bearing the news answered respectfully, “No.”

Erik laughed coolly as he said, “Ignore Jasper for now since he has left. Someone will naturally cause trouble for him. As for Henry, arrange for someone to spy on him 24/7. Report to me immediately if anything happens.”

“Yes, Young Master Turner,” the confidant replied before leaving.

When silence returned to the room, Erik picked up the phone.

“Mr. Hull, it’s me, Erik.

“I just received news that Jasper has left Swallow Capital. You should set any plans you have in motion as soon as possible.

“Don’t worry, I’ll do my best to assist you in any way you require. However, this is still a grudge that’s between you and Jasper in the end. It’s not suitable for the Turner family to make a direct appearance for various reasons. I’m sure you understand.

“Alright, I’ll await your good news.”

Erik laughed loudly after he hung up the phone.

He had received a call from Ian and Norman last night indicating their intentions to launch an attack against Jasper.

This was right up Erik's alley. Naturally, he supported them fully.

Jasper was going to suffer major losses if he got these two powerful puppets to do his work for him.

Erik narrowed his eyes slightly as he mumbled, "Just wait and see, Jasper Laine. Soon you'll have to kneel in front of me and repent for everything you've done!"

Life at the Top Chapter 454

The plane landed smoothly at Province Airport.

Jasper had not informed anyone of his return this time. On one hand, he did not think Wendy needed to travel to the airport to pick him up. On the other hand, he wanted to give Wendy a surprise as well.

Jasper hailed a cab and traveled to the villas at Thornton Park. Jasper was going home.

"Mom, I'm back," Jasper said tiredly as he entered the house.

"Why didn't you tell me in advance? Hurry, go take a rest." Sally came to the door and took Jasper's luggage from him. When she placed it aside, she asked warmly, "Have you eaten yet?"

"I just got back from Swallow Capital. I ate on the plane," Jasper smiled as he answered.

Sally immediately turned and walked toward the kitchen when she heard that. She said, "That must mean you haven't had a full meal. I'll cook you some noodles."

Jasper knew his mom's personality. She would nag him endlessly if he did not eat that bowl of noodles, which was why he did not bother stopping her.

Jasper followed Sally to the kitchen and stood at the door, asking, "Where's Dad?"

"A distant relative of his passed away, so he went to attend the funeral. He won't be back for another two days," Sally answered while she bustled around the kitchen.

Jasper smiled. "Are you used to living here?"

"It's fine here, but I don't know that many people so it's kind of quiet," Sally sighed as she spoke.

"Even though I got to know a couple of tenants my age around here, they have to take care of their grandchildren and don't have much time to talk to me and ease my boredom. I feel so envious when I look at their grandchildren. They're so tiny and cute."

There was a hidden meaning in Sally's words.

As she spoke, she glanced at Jasper, trying to convey what she was not saying in words.

Jasper said with difficulty, "Well then, you'll have to continue being envious. I don't plan to have kids anytime soon."

Jasper's career was taking off now, and he was growing busier and busier by the day. He needed to focus all his energy on his work.

Furthermore, he was not even that old. He had not even begun considering marriage, let alone children...

Sally scowled as she said, "You're not that young anymore. Wendy is a good girl. You two should hurry up and tie the knot and have kids soon. I can take care of the child while you two work on whatever you need to. Isn't that a good idea? How long are you going to drag this on for?!"

"Are you going to wait until I'm so old that I can't take care of the children anymore?"

Jasper answered, "That's fine. We'll just get a nanny."

Sally nearly threw her spatula at Jasper's head. "Nonsense! Do you think a nanny can take better care of a child than me? I'm the kid's grandma. How could I let someone else take care of my grandchild?"

Jasper smiled bitterly. "We haven't even begun talking about that. I'll try my best, alright..."

After he wolfed down his noodles, Jasper immediately bounded out of his chair and ran out the door. He crept over to the villa where Wendy stayed.

Jasper had been planning to give Wendy a surprise, but he had not expected Wendy to not be at home today.

She had gone over to Dawson's place.

"My dad's blood pressure has been rather high lately and he hasn't been feeling well. I came over to take care of him." Wendy chuckled as she held the phone to her ear and spoke to Jasper.

"You silly thing. You should have just told me you were coming back."

Jasper sat in the empty villa and sighed as he said, "I wanted to surprise you... Is your dad alright?"

“He’s fine. The doctor said it’s caused by extreme stress and an irregular sleep schedule. He just needs to rest,” Wendy said gently.

Jasper massaged his forehead as he said, “He’s been really busy lately. The supermarket had a large expansion recently, and he’s in charge of the real estate business too. I’ll hire some people to assist him when I have time so that he can relax.”

“I brought it up before, but he refused. He said he doesn’t trust anyone to take care of the business while it’s still in the early stages. He’s been doing everything himself. Besides, I think there’s been some trouble going on in the Southface River project,” Wendy sighed as she said.

Life at the Top Chapter 455

“What sort of problems?” Jasper asked as he frowned.

Not only were the provincial government and its higher-ups in the department paying close attention to the Southface River project, but it was also currently the most important local project JW Real Estate had ever taken on. It did not make sense that there would be any problems.

“I think a real estate company from Waterhoof City is interested in developing the north bank of Southface River, and they’ve been in contact with Nauritius City’s government lately. The city hall is tempted by the favorable conditions they’re offering.”

“I’ll go check on them tomorrow,” Jasper said in a low voice.

The Southface River cut through the province. Its south bank was a wide, open area that was situated in a core area of the New City project. That naturally made it an important area.

However, the north bank was filled with mountains and would be a difficult piece of land to develop. Thus, it was not worth much.

However, a real estate company from Waterhoof City suddenly appeared and claimed to have an interest in developing the north bank. Without a doubt, that meant that they were challenging Jasper.

Jasper recalled his past life and confirmed that nothing like that had happened. This only further solidified his feeling that whoever was in the real estate company from Waterhoof City would not be a friendly face.

JW Real Estate had currently invested roughly 800 million dollars in the Southface River project. Nothing could go wrong with the project. Otherwise, the company would immediately collapse.

The next day, Jasper first went to sort out some documents at JW Company.

Jasper realized that although he had not been here, the office was in tip-top shape thanks to Wendy and Jack who had also been at Swallow Capital albeit for a short while.

The various departments were starting to fill up with employees and no longer looked like empty shelves. Instead, they had each started to function in their ways.

JW Company was now in control of various companies, including Terizone and Sena in Swallow Capital. Moreover, they also had a real estate company and an investment sector in the Mainland's stock market under their name.

All this needed large amounts of manpower and physical resources to operate.

Thus, the villa, which used to be spacious, was now starting to become a little cramped.

It was time to consider constructing an office building just for JW Company.

Jasper pocketed that thought as he drove to Dawson's house.

The smile on Wendy's face had not left from the minute she spotted Jasper's car parked downstairs.

All her love was on Jasper, who had just gotten out of the car.

"Tired? Come on in, my dad's waiting for you. We can eat shortly after," Wendy said gently as she took Jasper's jacket from him.

Jasper smiled and took Wendy's hand in his. "Come on, let's go in first."

Jasper's worries lessened considerably when he saw the healthy glow on Dawson's face.

"How's your health?" Jasper asked.

Dawson smiled and said, "It's just an old problem. I'll be fine after a couple of days of rest."

After they finished exchanging pleasantries, Jasper addressed the elephant in the room. "Tell me more about the real estate company in Waterhoof City."

The expression on Dawson's face darkened slightly as he answered, "Haddock Chamber of Commerce."

One simple name was all it took to clear the confusion from Jasper's eyes.

Ian Hull and Norman Gardner were the president and vice president of the Haddock Chamber of Commerce branch in Waterhoof City. If the real estate company was from Waterhoof City and belonged to the Haddock Chamber of Commerce, then it was clear who was behind the scenes.

“Of course, it’s them,” Jasper said calmly. He had a neutral expression on his face that did not give his emotions away.

“What do you plan to do?” Dawson asked.

Jasper smiled as he said, “Of course, I’m going to fight. Have I ever been scared?”

Life at the Top Chapter 456

Dawson nodded in satisfaction when he saw how confident Jasper was.

“If you’re in the business world, you’ll meet all sorts of people, including royalty and smugglers. Competition among your peers is inevitable.

“It might be healthy competition among businesses, or it might be malicious competition with intent to suppress. There’s no way you’ll be the only person in an industry. Competition exists as long as you have peers.

“Competition itself is not scary, but you should always ensure you never underestimate your enemy and confuse yourself. No matter who the competition is, you must make sure you have a thorough understanding of them before fighting against them. Your mindset is the most important thing here.”

Dawson gave his diligent advice and said kindly, “If you’re going to take matters into your own hands, I can help by contributing ideas, but most of it will be up to you to handle.”

Jasper understood that Dawson was giving him a chance to gain more experience in fighting business battles, which was why he did not modestly decline. He smiled and said, “Alright, you should take this time to rest up. I’ll come to you if I face any further problems.”

Dawson smiled and said, “You’ve already proved your ability and vision in making money. You’re much more powerful than anyone I’ve ever met, but you still need a little practice in business battles. I’ll help keep an eye on things while I still can. You don’t need to worry.”

Dawson’s phone rang while he was still talking.

It was a phone call from the executives at JW Real Estate.

A moment later, Dawson hung up the phone. He had a grim expression on his face.

“The people from Waterhoof City are quite aggressive.”

Wendy hurriedly asked, “What’s wrong? What did they say?”

Dawson said, “The person in charge from Nauritus City’s government just called. Something about how the company that wants to develop the south bank intends to have contact with me because they plan to build a bridge across Southface River that will connect the south and north banks.”

“Build a bridge? Isn’t that what the city government is supposed to do? Since when were companies in charge of that? Our main goal as a real estate company is to earn money, and a bridge would cost a billion dollars at least. Why should we fund this?” Wendy asked indignantly.

Dawson smiled as he said, “Nauritius City’s government thinks it’ll definitely be a good thing if the south bank is developed as well. Not only will it build a better image for themselves, but they’ll also be able to boost the economy on the north bank, which is relatively backward as of this moment. There’s no reason why they wouldn’t want us to collaborate.

“This bridge is probably one of the things the real estate agents at Waterhoof City used to tempt the city hall.”

Jasper laughed lightly as he said, “How calculating of them. They’ll be the only ones gaining benefits from this bridge, but they want us to fund a portion of it as well. In the end, we’ll have paid for nothing while they get all the credit. Do they think everyone else is a fool?”

Dawson nodded. He was deeply impressed.

He said in a low voice, “But either way, developing the north bank is a project that neither Nauritius City’s government nor the Southeast Province City’s government can reject as it will boost their economy. We’ve already gotten the shorter end of the stick.”

“It doesn’t matter. They can approach us all they like. When will that happen?” Jasper asked.

If Ian and Norman were going to drive up to his door, there was no reason for Jasper to cower behind the door.

Thus, Jasper had never considered rejecting the approach.

“This afternoon at the conference room of Nauritius City’s government,” Dawson answered.

Jasper thought for a brief moment before he raised his head and said, “I’m fine with the time, but I get to decide where we meet.”

Dawson raised an eyebrow slightly.

Jasper continued saying, “We’ll set the location at the development site at the south bank of the Southface River. If we’re going to discuss the development of the south and north banks, we should do it where it’s happening. What can we discuss in an office?”

Dawson smiled and said, “Alright, that’s a good idea. That’s settled then!”

“I’ll have someone return the call immediately and inform Nauritius City’s government of our decision. Let’s eat now.”

...

Dawson was a well-known figure in Southeast Province, a territory that covered Nauritius City. When the call was made, the city hall only hesitated for a brief second before agreeing.

Jasper spent some time with Wendy before getting into the car and driving toward the development site.

Wendy did not follow along. Dawson had assigned the vice-president from the real estate company who was in charge of the Southface River project to go along with Jasper. The main reason was that an executive familiar with how the project was progressing needed to be there if any operational issues came up.

“Pleased to meet you, Mr. Laine.” The vice president was named Sean Tucker. He was an executive who Dawson had paid a hefty sum to hire from a state-owned real estate company.

Jasper smiled as he shook his hand and said, “Nice to meet you, Vice President Tucker. I’ll need to trouble you in answering any questions there might be regarding the business today. I’m not too familiar with that aspect.”

Jasper rarely made an appearance at JW Real Estate, but Sean knew the existence of this most powerful boss.

Dawson was only the CEO of the real estate company on paper. In actuality, the shares were all under Jasper’s JW Investment Company and Wendy’s name. Thus, Jasper was his actual boss in practice.

As such, Sean put on a respectful attitude as he hurriedly said, “That’s my duty. I’ll do my best.”

Dawson’s chauffeur was in charge of driving them. Usually, Jasper would have Julian act as both his bodyguard and chauffeur whenever he went out. However, Jasper had allowed Julian to take care of his sister during this time.

A bone marrow match had been found for Julian's sister, and she would be having her operation in two days. Jasper had not only paid for everything, but he also used Dawson's connections to form a team of the best specialists in the country to conduct the operation.

Jasper had also given Julian an additional sum of money to use to take care of his sister, Cathy.

Jasper was never stingy when it came to his subordinate's welfare.

An employee would only be steadfastly loyal to their employer if the employer helped solve their worries. Jasper, who had been an employee for the entirety of his past life, understood that thoroughly.

The Southface River south bank project was the largest investment Southeast Province had made since its establishment. The developmental funds required for the entire project were estimated to be around 15 to 20 billion dollars. Jasper had already invested eight billion dollars into the project. He had not included the Law family's investment of four billion dollars in that.

Even though they had not arrived yet, Jasper could see the development site in full swing as he listened to Sean's report in the car. The site was spread across 900,000 square feet across the entire south bank.

Life at the Top Chapter 457

"The whole south bank of Southface River will undergo development. The site is about 900,000 square feet. After meeting with the planning department, our current plan is to build an integrated city center right in the center.

“That includes a Central Business District, a CBD. The CBD will include two 20-floor commercial buildings and one 40-floor office building. These three buildings will serve as the core of the district. The remaining buildings will surround it.

“In terms of lifestyle, we plan to build four neighborhoods. One high-end neighborhood, two on the poorer end of the spectrum, and one for those in the middle. There will also be two large shopping malls, two kindergartens, and one elementary, junior, and high school each.

“Other supporting facilities such as hospitals, municipal offices, and bus lines have all been allocated into the budget.”

Sean could not help but become excited as he reported to Jasper. He said, “Mr. Laine, to be honest with you, I used to work at a state-owned real estate agency where I thought I had a lot of experience.

“However, our understanding of real estate used to be nothing more than the construction of a few neighborhoods or business buildings. At the very most, we would be contracted for multiple-use buildings.

“I only realized how much one can do as a real estate agent when I saw JW Real Estate’s proposal for the Southface River project. We’re constructing a miniature city!

“The person who came up with this concept must be a genius! He’s the epitome of what it means to be in real estate. All the other real estate agencies in the country seem like small fries and not worth even a glance to me now!”

Jasper chuckled when he heard that. Naturally, he was the one who had come up with the project concept.

Literally every city in every country in the world would look like that in the future. There would not be any surprise anymore. However, when such a concept was introduced in a world 20 years before that time, Jasper would be the pioneer in the real estate industry. It was only natural that Sean was shocked.

Jasper smiled as he said, "There are still many talented individuals in this country. I merely drew on some experience I gained overseas and combined it with what the locals want to come up with this design.

"However, I'm still an amateur. This design was redone several times when it was delivered to the design institute before it got approved. You professionals will definitely have better ideas than mine once you gain some experience."

Sean was stunned. "Mr. Laine, you designed this?!"

"Yes." Jasper nodded as he acknowledged it.

Sean was convinced now as he said, "I finally know what it means when they say there's always someone better than you. My old friends in the industry have been asking me who came up with the design for Southface River for the longest time. It turns out it was you, Mr. Laine.

"Mr. Laine, JW Real Estate will become famous for sure once this project is completed. The entire country will learn about us!"

As they spoke, the car pulled to a stop at the development site.

Sean had already gotten in contact with the person in charge at the site.

When the car pulled to a stop, a line of engineers and their supervisors were at the car door, fighting for the chance to open the door for Jasper.

"Greetings, Mr. Laine."

"Welcome to the site, Mr. Laine."

“Please come on in, Mr. Laine.”

As they all spoke to him with respect, Jasper waved his hands and said, “I just dropped by to take a look. Are the people from Nauritius City’s government here yet?”

“They’ve arrived and are having a tour of the place now,” a supervisor said.

“Bring me over,” Jasper said calmly.

...

Ian was standing with his back to the Southface River. Inwardly, he was deeply shaken as he gazed at the huge site which stretched beyond where the eye could see.

Life at the Top Chapter 458

He was not the only one. Norman, who was with him, also had a tense expression on his face.

The person standing beside them was the person in charge from Nauritius City’s government, and he sounded somewhat delighted and proud as he introduced the two to the site.

“Excluding Swallow Capital, Waterhoof City, and Cavern City, the Southface River project is the most advanced and modern city construction project in the country.

“Furthermore, it’s also currently the most important project in the province. Once this project is completed, it’ll help enhance the province in terms of the level of influence and competitiveness!

“It’s currently about 40% completed, and we estimate it’ll be fully completed by the first half of the next year!”

Norman felt annoyed as he listened to him talk.

He and Ian had not made the trip from Waterhoof City to listen to people praise Jasper’s ability!

“I would never have believed a 20-year-old boy was in charge of such a massive project if I hadn’t witnessed it with my own two eyes.”

Norman spoke in a heavy tone.

“I always thought Dawson was in charge of this. Who would have imagined that Dawson is just a supervisor while the actual mastermind is Jasper! Seems like we’ve grossly misunderstood the dynamics between Jasper and Dawson.”

Ian spoke after a long pause, “Impressive.

“If Jasper goes on like this for another ten years, I’m guessing that not even we will have the guts to challenge him anymore.”

Norman huffed as he said, “I admit that he has potential, but he’s still not that powerful compared to us now. Most importantly, look at how old he is. What tricks could he have witnessed in his lifetime? We’ll have him running circles around us if we just put a little more thought into things!”

Ian smiled. He had the same thoughts as Norman before he arrived at the site.

However, for some inexplicable reason, he had a bad feeling now as he stood with his back to the Southface River. He looked at the construction site, which was slowly revealing its majestic aura like a giant beast.

The south bank was a pearl of great price. However, was it a wise choice to develop the north bank just to get back at Jasper?

Ian's emotions were turbulent. He felt as if he had boarded a train that had left the station and it was too late for him to get down.

Just then, the person in charge said, "Here come the people from JW Real Estate!"

Ian and Norman glanced over. They saw a crowd of people walking toward them, and among them was a young man they would recognize even if he had been burnt to crisps. He was surrounded by the rest of the people, just like how stars surrounded the moon.

Jasper strode toward them. His posture and movement conveyed his confidence.

Ian suppressed his emotions. There was no point in shying away now. The only thing he could do was fight to the death!

When Ian and Norman glanced at Jasper, he also noticed them.

Their gazes met mid-air. Electrical sparks seemed to crackle and flare in the silence.

When Jasper and his companions got nearer to them, they heard Jasper chuckling as he said, "Mr. Hull! Mr. Gardner! Why didn't you let me know in advance that you would be making the trip here from Waterhoof City? If word got out, people would accuse me of being disrespectful and mistreating my seniors who've come as guests."

Jasper's opening statement was nothing but respectful, and he had a friendly posture as he spoke.

However, Ian and Norman were experienced. They could sense the hidden sarcasm behind Jasper's speech.

Life at the Top Chapter 459

"This is an unfortunate misunderstanding. I initially thought Southface River was worth developing and had the south bank as my first choice. Unfortunately, luck wasn't on our side, and the developmental rights for the south bank have already been claimed. Thus, we can only go for the second best choice now and develop the north bank.

"I never thought that you would be in charge of developing the south bank, Jasper."

Ian had a slight smile on his face as he replied.

Jasper chuckled. "I think it's quite a good thing. I was just thinking about how unbalanced it would be if the north bank were to be a desolate area while the south bank became a modern city after the project is finished. It's a good thing now that your company has come forth and expressed interest in developing the north bank."

"It's good if you think about things that way. However, please don't think we're targeting anyone by coming here. We don't mean it that way," Ian said as he smiled.

Jasper laughed. "Of course not."

As the two chatted and laughed, everyone else spectating could sense the hidden edge in the peaceful, jovial atmosphere.

Including Sean, everyone from JW Real Estate had a hostile look in their eyes as they looked at Ian and Norman.

It was obvious they were here to take their business away from them and launch a fight against them. How could they have come with good intentions?

The atmosphere started turning weird too.

Just then, the person in charge from Nauritius City's government smiled and said, "Mr. Laine, you're one of the up and coming young entrepreneurs in the province. Now that Mr. Hull and Mr. Gardner have set their hopes on the future of the north bank, it would do both parties good to cooperate."

Jasper glanced at the person in charge and smiled slightly as he said, "We're all just going about our own business. Of course, I would never say no to anything that would help boost the province's economy."

The person in charge's face lit up when he heard that and said, "Mr. Hull and Mr. Gardner came up with a proposal some time ago. They plan to connect the north and south banks of the Southface River. A bridge will have to be built across the river to make that happen. What are your thoughts on that, Mr. Laine?"

Jasper said appreciatively, "That's a good idea! Once the bridge is built and open for access, the north and south banks of the Southface River will be connected. That will greatly boost the economy of the north bank. Of course, I approve of it."

Everyone's expression changed the minute he said that.

Everyone with a clear eye could tell that Ian and Norman had suggested building a bridge so they would also receive a share in the profits earned from the development of the south bank of Southface River.

The north bank was desolate because of the Southface River. It restricted the development of the few districts there.

Even an idiot could tell that the south bank would become the new province capital once the project on the south bank was completed. It would outshine all the other areas in the province.

Thus, if the bridge was constructed, all the north bank needed to do then was sit back and look pretty to receive a share of the profits.

It did not make sense for Ian and Norman to walk away with such benefits after Jasper had invested so much money into the project.

Thus, even those from city hall were ready to watch Jasper strongly oppose and even get into a fight with Ian and Norman over the proposal.

However, Jasper surprised everyone by immediately agreeing to the idea.

“Mr. Laine, is that what you really think?” the person in charge asked.

Jasper smiled and said, “I’m from Southeast Province, and I feel responsible for the development of the province. Why would I reject a plan to further develop the province? Of course, I’m being sincere about this.”

The person in charge sighed. “Alright, alright. The heroes are becoming younger and younger. No one can match the amount of generosity you have, Mr. Laine.”

Jasper chuckled as he glanced at Ian and Norman before saying, “However, I have two tiny requests and suggestions.”

Ian and Norman, who had not spoken a word since, glanced at each other. Their hearts skipped a beat.

They knew Jasper was no idiot and there was no way he had not realized why they proposed building the bridge.

Life at the Top Chapter 460

Jasper's straightforward attitude was causing them to feel uneasy.

However, now that Jasper had mentioned his two requests, it meant he was about to retaliate.

Ian and Norman made sure they were on high alert. They were interested in what Jasper would do.

"Please go on, Mr. Laine," the person in charge from Nauritius City's government waved a hand as he spoke jovially.

'Persuading Jasper' had been one of the items included in the task list their superior gave them. That was no easy feat.

It would be alright if the person was an average businessman as these people never dared go against the city hall. However, Jasper Laine was no ordinary businessman. Even though he was the person in charge from Nauritius City's government, he did not have the guts to act cocky to Jasper either.

However, he had not needed to say anything before Jasper indicated his interest and cooperation. How could he not feel happy? Jasper seemed like the most handsome man in the world to him right now.

"It's simple. Building a bridge is a good thing, and although I intend to support it, I currently have a project that requires several million dollars of payments every single day. Thus, I won't be able to support the project financially. That's my first request."

Jasper had a bashful smile on his face. He looked like a young apprentice who was bashfully telling his master that he was still inexperienced and needed much more practice.

“The second one is a suggestion. My suggestion is that this bridge extends to where the Southface River meets the sea. Not only will we be able to connect the north and south banks, but we’ll also be able to reach several islands.

“You should give it your all if you’re trying to do good. The people on the islands rely on ferries to travel, and they have no roads that lead to the outside world. How are we going to boost the economy that way? You’ll benefit more people if you extend the bridge to reach the estuary.”

Norman nearly started cursing when he heard what Jasper said.

That little b*stard Jasper Laine, he was throwing them under the bus!

Norman struggled to stop himself from punching Jasper as he watched the latter smile and talk.

The main reason for constructing the bridge was to milk the popularity that the south bank would accumulate. This way, they could attract some people over to the north bank, which was a desolate, backward place.

However, it would cost a lot to build a bridge. Ian and Norman had only mentioned paying for the construction of the bridge themselves to get into the city hall’s good books.

The problem was they could not bring themselves to fork out a fund of several billion dollars from their pockets.

Thus, they had found a loophole. They would get Jasper to fund the project as well.

Norman had been so pleased with himself after coming up with that plan.

If Jasper rejected his proposal, he would be placed in a bad light with the city hall as he would seem stingy.

It would be the best if he agreed to it, like someone who drank poison to quench their thirst. It would equate to him helping develop the north bank as well.

It was a plan designed to put Jasper in a sticky situation.

Norman never imagined that Jasper would be able to resolve the situation so easily.

Not only did he refuse to fund the project, but he even proposed they extend the length of the bridge to the estuary 40 miles away? Would that not mean he and Ian would be the butt of everyone's jokes if they failed to construct the bridge?

Would that not mean he and Ian would become the two idiots from Waterhoof City who came all the way to give the citizens of Southeast Province free benefits?

The expressions on Ian and Norman's faces turned even uglier as Jasper finished speaking.

The person in charge from city hall also fell silent as he glanced repeatedly at the two men. He seemed to be waiting for their response.

No matter what, it was undeniable that by pulling the carpet from under their feet, Jasper had caused Ian and Norman intense pain.

Life at the Top Chapter 461

“This is getting interesting.”

Norman said coldly, breaking the silence. He got angrier the more he thought about it.

“You’re not paying, but you’re deciding on the address. You have nothing to lose, yet we are still supposed to listen to you? What kind of logic is this?”

After hearing what he said, Jasper replied matter-of-factly, “Well, you guys want to build this bridge in front of the South Bank, yet I’m still supposed to welcome you guys happily? What kind of logic is that?”

Norman flared up in rage as his expression morphed into one of anger. “Jasper Laine, don’t be an ungrateful wretch. The construction of the Southface River Bridge has been approved by the city government due to the benefits it’ll bring to the people. Does it not hurt your conscience to reject this project because of your own personal interests?” He questioned.

“I don’t understand what you mean,” Jasper said calmly. “The construction of the Southface River Bridge is a good thing. I expressed my support for it as well. However, I suggested a location that’s more suitable for the construction. Am I going against my conscience by doing so?” He asked.

“Alright, if that’s the case, then don’t mention the construction of the Southface River Bridge in front of me ever again. Even if you are going to build it, don’t even think of touching a piece my land on the South Bank. Do you think that you can construct this bridge without my approval?” He added.

Norman’s expression darkened. “Jasper Laine, you’re just making things harder than they need to be. Do you want me to force you to do so?” He spat angrily.

“Do you think that you’re capable of forcing me to do such a thing?”

The expressions on both Norman and Ian’s faces changed after registering his words.

Ian smiled and said, “We are all associates. There’s no need to ruin our relationship over a small issue like this. Why don’t we forget about the construction of Southface River Bridge for the time being? We can proceed after you guys settle on a set of conditions that everyone agrees on.”

“There’s no need to discuss things any further. Don’t think that you can monopolize everything here, Jasper Laine. Don’t assume that I will find it impossible to destroy your project in the South Bank,” Norman said in infuriation.

“So, you want to destroy my project?”

Jasper narrowed his eyes at Norman and said in a controlled voice, “In that case, show me your capabilities. I really want to see what other tricks you can come up with other than the shady business that you’re currently involved in.”

“Jasper Laine,” Ian called out. “Young people like you shouldn’t be so hot-tempered. No matter the circumstances, Norman is still a few decades older than you. You should be more courteous toward him. Otherwise, it’d make you seem like an overbearing person,” he advised.

“You’re right, Mr. Hull.”

A faint smile tugged at Jasper’s lips as he said, “However, I’m afraid that some people might have lived their few decades in vain. He seems to think that he’s the smartest person out there, so why should I bother with courtesy?”

His words caused Ian’s expression to darken as well.

On the surface, Jasper’s words were directed at Norman. However, he was chiding Ian implicitly as well.

Beyond angered, Ian smiled. "Alright, let's meet again then. I believe that the chance to meet will arise very soon. The project in South Bank will commence tomorrow. We will become neighbors!" He said in a frigid tone.

"In that case, I wish you prosperity," Jasper told the both of them.

Ian and Norman snorted and left in distaste.

After they left, the person in charge of the project from the neritic zone city government smiled bitterly at Jasper. "Mr. Laine, we are in a difficult position between both parties. Please understand that our jobs aren't easy either," he said.

Jasper smiled and spoke to him with utmost courtesy. "Of course I do. The higher ups are in a tough position as well. All that we can do is try our best to share some of their burden," he said.

"How about this? I'll go back and look into it. The construction of a pedestrian greenway along the south bank of Southface River in conjunction with the government's greening project would be a good thing for the environment and image of the provincial government. JW Real Estates will assume full responsibility on this project."

The person in charge's gaze lit up as he stared at Jasper in admiration.

He had seen many capable young people. However, it was his first time seeing a young man like Jasper who did things with a certain degree of constancy and pride, but not to the extent of arrogance.

He thought that Jasper would completely disregard him due to the prominence of the project on the South Bank. He could even refute some of the things the city government had decided on during his relatively hostile interaction with Ian Hull and Norman Gardner.

Life at the Top Chapter 462

However, Jasper did not do so.

He knew how to grasp the overall situation well and pinpoint exactly what the city government wanted.

A person like this was a true talent.

“Alright, I’ll tell everyone the good news at once. It’s getting late, so I won’t take up any more of your time.”

Jasper smiled. “Work is the priority. I’ll arrange for someone to drive you back,” he said.

Without the need for further instruction, Sean Tucker immediately gestured at a few of his smart-looking subordinates, and someone accompanied the person in charge out at once.

After the person in charge left, Sean told Jasper courteously, “Mr. Laine, you have such powerful methods of handling things. Take that person in charge for instance, I thought that you wouldn’t treat him nicely even if you chose not to point out that they were being greedy by trying to gain all the benefits without offending us.”

“They’re just doing it because it’s their job. He plays a minor role—the higher-ups are the ones who made the decision. Besides, the higher-ups tend to consider things from a holistic perspective, so they naturally wouldn’t care much about our benefits. It’ll be alright as long as we’re clear about what we can and cannot concede,” Jasper replied in an even tone.

“But Ian Hull and Norman Gardner were clearly targeting us this time around. Despite this, the city government still decided to give them the right to develop the north bank. I can’t help but get pissed off!” Sean complained angrily.

Jasper narrowed his eyes and looked at the undulating slopes of the north bank opposite the river. He suddenly smiled and said, “That may not be a bad thing.”

.....

Inside the hotel.

Crash!

Norman Gardner smashed a wine glass against the ground. His face was flushed red due to his extreme rage.

“F*ck it! Jasper Laine, that b*stard! Does he really think that he’s that important?!”

“What did he mean by that? I lived a few decades in vain? How can an immature b*stard in his twenties say something like that?!”

Ian Hull looked at Norman, who was beyond agitated, and spoke calmly, “That’s enough, Norman. Being angry serves no purpose. Jasper Laine’s move was indeed something that we didn’t consider. Your anger won’t change the fact that we lost to him in today’s exchange.”

Norman unbuttoned the top button of his shirt. He took a few breaths before saying, “That’s why I’m mad about it. This b*stard is way too sly!”

“It’s alright. He just used some small tricks. We had never expected that he would agree to the construction of the bridge in the first place.”

Ian sneered, his gaze cold and hard. "We should just carry on with the original plan. Commence the development of the north bank immediately. On the other hand, find a way to mess with the South Bank!" He said.

"What about the person that I asked you to contact?"

Norman's anger seemed to reside as he thought of something. A smile formed on his lips. "I looked into it. Hero Company, which is owned by Mr. Cook, is JW Real Estates' cement provider, whereas Stellar Company is their steel provider. Meanwhile, they obtain other masonry and building materials from distributor companies in Andros," he announced.

"Stellar Company's steel and Hero Company's cement are both top brands within the industry. Jasper Laine is really willing to splurge on his project."

Ian chuckled. "Mr. Cook is from Haddock as well. I'll talk to him later on. As for Stellar Company, I recall that the vice president there is one of your associates, right? Can you talk to him?"

"We are as close as brothers. I can convince him easily!" Norman snickered.

"That's great. We should talk to all the other distributors in Andros as well," Ian said in satisfaction.

"I'll take away all of Jasper Laine's construction materials this time. Even if he gets his hands on something, they'll all be defective goods. Let's see how he intends to carry on with the construction after that!"

Life at the Top Chapter 463

“In Swallow Capital, Jasper Laine relies on the Laws’ support to show off in front of us. Let’s see how he intends to do so in the province! Without the Laws, there is no way that that b*stard and Dawson Schuler, that old scoundrel, is able to beat us!”

A hint of coldness flashed in Ian’s gaze as the corners of his mouth lifted slightly to reveal a devious smile.

“That’s right. This time, we must let Jasper Laine know that no matter how powerful he is, there’s always someone greater than him. Besides, he must pay several times over for everything that he’s done to us!” Norman responded.

.....

Meanwhile, Jasper met up with Dawson to tell him about the order of events that took place today after returning from the construction site.

“This is interesting,” Dawson said with a smile. He made a cup of tea for Jasper.

“My thoughts are the same as yours regarding the construction of this bridge. At best, this was just one of their tests. They never expected for us to agree to it in the first place.

“Besides, it’s impossible for the construction to take place without our agreement. They just wanted the Nauritus City Government to form a bad impression of us.”

Jasper replied calmly, “That’s why I proposed building a pedestrian greenway. The budget of the entire project should be around 10 million dollars. We can spend this money to get on the city government’s good side. After all, Nauritus

City is the provincial capital. We can't break off our relationship with the Nauritus City Government.

"Furthermore, this will effectively enhance the attractiveness of the entire project."

Dawson nodded and said, "That's right. You considered everything thoroughly. However, there's no need to pay it too much heed. After all, business is business. Anyone with a discerning eye can clearly tell that there is no reason to condemn us even if we disagree to it."

"I'm considering their backup plan," Jasper said while taking a sip of his tea. "They won't let this go so easily," he added.

"It's better to lay low for now.

"Although they're taking action now, we have a larger chance of winning. They should be more anxious than we are. It would be the best if we didn't do anything right now," Dawson suggested.

"After the construction ends in a few months, it'll be too late for them to do anything."

Jasper nodded. Dawson's thoughts coincided with his.

.....

In the Province General Hospital, Wendy brought some fruits into the intensive care unit ward.

Julian, who was looking after Cathy, got up once Wendy entered the room. "Ms. Schuler, why are you here?" He asked.

Wendy chuckled. "I was busy during Cathy's surgery, so I didn't have time to visit then. I came over to visit her now that her surgery is over," she said.

Wendy put down the fruits and took a seat on the chair that Julian had pulled out. Cathay opened her eyes weakly to look at her. "How are you? Are you feeling alright?" She asked Cathy.

A bone marrow transplant was a major operation. Cathay had just woken up not too long ago. She still could not speak, so she could only nod her head slightly or use her gaze to express her intentions.

"The doctor told us that the operation was a success. She can be discharged from the hospital after being hospitalized for observation for around half a month," Julian explained to Wendy.

Julian's eyes were red-rimmed. He bowed deeply to Wendy. "Ms. Schuler, you and Jasper are our saviors. Nothing we do will ever be enough to repay your kindness," he said.

"Don't say something like that. Jasp and I both truly admire your capabilities, Julian. I still need you to take good care of Jasp on my behalf," Wendy said, implying that there was no need for Julian to act so courteously.

"Furthermore, Cathy has been helping out in the company all this while. I'm well aware of her capabilities. Her work efficiency was simply affected due to her health problems. After Cathy gets discharged, she can officially join the company. I've already prepared a position for her," Wendy said.

Julian nodded gratefully. Although he was full of gratitude, he did not know how to express it due to his introverted nature. He then caught sight of the apple beside him. "Ms. Schuler, wait for a minute. I'll wash an apple for you," he said immediately.

Just as Wendy was about to say that it was not necessary, Julian picked up the apple and ran out of the ward.

Wendy smiled and shook her head. She knew that this was Julian's way of expressing his gratitude. If he rejected him, he may feel hurt.

Soon after, Julian returned empty-handed. His expression was slightly solemn.

“Ms. Schuler, did you offend anyone lately?”

Life at the Top Chapter 464

Stupefied, Wendy responded, “No, I’m always either at the company or at home. My life revolves around these two places. How could I offend someone? What happened?”

Julian’s expression became more serious. However, he was a smart man. He knew what he could tell Wendy, and what he could not. He smiled and responded, “It’s nothing. I was just asking. I dirtied the apple just now, so I’ll take another one. Wait for a moment.”

Julian picked up another apple. He then turned around and left the ward.

Wendy’s mind wandered as she watched Julian’s silhouette.

After walking out of the ward, Julian pulled out his phone and called Jasper immediately.

“Jasper, it’s me, Julian.

“Ms. Schuler came over to the hospital to visit my sister...Yes, her surgery is over...Yep, it was a major success. Thank you for your concern, Jasper...

“Jasper, I discovered that someone was stalking Ms. Schuler just now. That person was extremely alert. He ran away once he noticed me. I was worried that they had something else up their sleeves, so I didn’t go after him and came back to ensure Ms. Schuler’s safety.”

Jasper had just bid Dawson goodbye when he received Julian's call. He was on the way home at the time.

After listening to what Julian said, Jasper asked the driver to head over to the Province General Hospital immediately. "You made the right choice. Don't do anything for now. I'll head over right away. Let's talk after I arrive," he told Julian.

When Jasper arrived at the hospital, Julian was guarding Wendy closely in the ward.

"Jasper," Julian called out as he walked in front of him.

Jasper nodded as he patted Julian on the shoulder. He turned around to smile at Wendy and then walked in front of Cathy.

"Don't say anything. Just lie down and rest," Jasper said. He leaned down to press her back onto the bed after seeing her struggle to say something.

"You don't need to think of anything else. Julian is working by my side now. We have a pretty close relationship. Wendy told me that you have quite the talent in management as well. After you recover, I intend to let you lead the company's logistics department.

"This position comes with grueling responsibilities, so you must get well soon."

Jasper told her this in a joking manner. He then turned around to face Wendy. "Why are you here?" He asked.

"I should be asking you that, right?" Wendy asked as she cast a glance at Julian. Julian must have discovered something. He must have hid it from her and told Jasper instead.

"I just stopped by on the way to pay someone a visit," Jasper said with a smile.

“You’ve been so busy these past few days. I was afraid you’d forget, so I came over to pay Cathy a visit on behalf of the both of us,” Wendy explained.

Jasper nodded and said, “Wait for me here. Julian, let’s go out for a smoke.”

After speaking, Jasper attempted to walk out of the ward.

“Stand right there,” Wendy said, wrapping her arms around him. She looked Jasper in the eye and said, “You rarely smoke. If there’s something, you should just tell me face to face. Am I not allowed to know about this?”

Jasper smiled at her bitterly. He knew that there was no way he could hide something from the brilliant Wendy Schuler.

Although Wendy rarely expressed her opinions in front of Jasper, she was the one who made most of the company decisions when he was not around.

She was skilled in business management. Since she was capable of running a large company well, it went without saying that she was not someone that could be fooled easily.

After flashing a meaningful glance at Julian, Jasper took his place by Wendy’s side. They were not going to talk outside anymore.

“Ms. Schuler, I just found out that someone was stalking you. There were at least three people. They exhibited a high degree of professionalism, and they seemed to be imbued with a strong sense of purpose,” Julian said.

“They exhibited a high degree of professionalism?”

Jasper’s brows knitted together once he heard what Julian said. He replied in a low voice, “Tell me exactly what happened.”

.....

Life at the Top Chapter 465

In a hotel within the province.

Ben Hull was resting on the bed in a suite that had been converted into a temporary ward.

His complexion was terrible after undergoing two operations. However, his gaze was even more terrifying.

Lisa Gardner and a man in his thirties, who looked a lot like Ben, were in the room as well.

This man was Hans Hull. He was Ben's uncle.

Hans' parents bore him at a relatively older age, so he had been spoilt since he was young. He had started looking for women when he was a teenager, and now that he was in his thirties, he had achieved nothing except for establishing himself as a renowned playboy.

Hans' complexion was pale due to his constant indulgence in debauchery all year long. His body had long been a hollow shell that was dominated by women. His gaze shone as he stared at the photographs of Wendy Schuler in his hand with a lustful gaze.

"Are you all rubbish?" Ben yelled at a man standing by the door.

"The Hulls spend so much to keep the lot of you alive. If it weren't for the Hulls, you would all have died from hunger on the streets. However, you can't even manage to follow a normal woman. You even got discovered by them. Why are you so useless?!"

Ben started coughing violently after yelling at the man due to his overwhelming rage. He had a hideous scowl etched on his face.

Lisa sighed. "Don't get all worked up, Benny. The doctor said that you have to control your emotions now," she said.

A spiteful and vicious expression formed on Ben's face. "This bunch of rubbish can't even follow a mere woman around. How could I not be angry?" He asked.

The man standing by the door looked extremely guilty. "Sorry, Young Master. We didn't expect a professional to appear in the ward. That person is really skilled. He saw through my disguise almost immediately. I had to leave first in order to not alert them," he explained.

"Aaron, you've been with the Hulls for a decade, right?"

Just then, Hans finally lifted his gaze away from the photograph of Wendy Schuler in his hand unwillingly. He raised his head to speak to the man standing by the door.

Aaron nodded and replied, "Yes, Second Master, it's been exactly ten years."

Hans snickered. "You know me. I can't let them get away with bullying my nephew. Moreover, I really like the woman of the man that bullied my nephew," he said.

"That's why I don't want to listen to any of your excuses or explanations. I'll give you one more chance. I want to see this woman lying on my bed in three days' time. Can you do that?"

The horrifying image of Julian flashed across Aaron's mind. Although the two of them had never gone against each other before, he knew a master when he saw one.

Aaron could tell that Julian was definitely a powerful fighter just from his physique and gaze.

He knew that he could not win against a master like him if he went against him alone.

However, Hans' frigid gaze caused Aaron to grit his teeth harshly. "Don't worry, Second Master. This time, I definitely won't make any mistakes!" He exclaimed.

Hans nodded after getting a satisfactory response from Aaron. "That's a good attitude. I don't care about the method, I only care about the results. You'd better not disappoint me," he said.

After speaking, Hans sneered coldly and gestured for Aaron to leave the room.

Hans stared at the photograph in his hands after Aaron left the room. "Ian and Lisa, the both of you have bestowed a huge gift upon me this time around. The moment I saw her, I felt like I had fallen in love," he said.

Lisa cast a disgusted glance at Hans. Any woman with a decent mind would stay as far as possible as they could from a man like Hans Hull.

Nevertheless, in name, Hans Hull was still her "distant relative". Therefore, she could only bite the bullet and tell him, "As long as you like it, Uncle."

Hans guffawed loudly. "I like it! I like it way too much! I've had my way with so many women that I'd thought that no woman would be able to shock me anymore. However, the first time I set my eyes on her, I felt that all the women that I've had in the past were all garbage!" He remarked.

Ben smiled. He did not seem to mind at all.

Life at the Top Chapter 466

Although Hans was Ben's biological uncle, he had a larger age gap with his father, Ian, than he did with him.

Therefore, in all honesty, the two of them could be regarded as birds of a feather.

Furthermore, Hans was the one who had brought Ben to his very first hook-up.

"Uncle, I wouldn't recommend someone of a subpar quality, would I? She's a woman of excellent quality. This is just her photograph. You are yet to see her in real life. Even I fell for her when I saw her in person."

As Ben spoke, a sinister smile formed on his face. "However, that man called Jasper Laine is Wendy Schuler's boyfriend. He's sort of difficult. As you know, my father and uncle have been going against him lately. Therefore, we will have to resort to tricks to kidnap her," he said.

Hans waved his hand at him. "What are you afraid of? Even if he's that powerful, he's just a young boy. With your father and uncle personally going against him, he'll be defeated for sure. How dare he go against the Hulls and Gardners?" He questioned indifferently.

Ben laughed and exclaimed, "You're really confident, Uncle! We just have to wait for the good news from Aaron now. When I picture the expression on Jasper Laine's face once he discovers that his girlfriend has slept with another man, I get all excited! Hahahaha!"

A vicious and venomous smile appeared on Lisa Gardner's face as well. "Once he realizes that he's been cheated on, let's see how high and mighty he'll be." She added.

Hans snickered as he gazed at the two photographs in his hand greedily. He then tucked them into his coat. It was as if he could feel pleasure by doing so.

His thoughts were now fully consumed by Wendy Schuler. As for Jasper Laine, he could not care less about him.

He was just a minor character. He could get away once or twice, but what was the use of that?

Throughout the years, he did not stop himself from setting his hands on someone else's girlfriend or wife right before their very eyes. Hans did not feel an ounce of guilt when he did something like that. Conversely, he felt beyond thrilled.

.....

Inside the ward.

After hearing Julian go through the entire incident in detail, a list of all the possible candidates who had sent someone to follow Wendy flashed across Jasper's mind.

It could not be Erik Turner. He was in Swallow Capital, so it was impossible for him have such a far reach. If he had done something like that, he would not have had such great progress in Swallow Capital.

Ian Hull and Norman Gardner?

These two people were the most suspicious as of now.

However, Jasper felt like there were still some problems that he was yet to discover.

Nonetheless, there was too little information at hand. There was no way for Jasper to pinpoint the perpetrator with complete certainty.

Despite this, he had inwardly increased his level of caution toward Ian Hull and Norman Gardner.

There were people who certain people who wanted to bring harm to Wendy. The Zions from Brac County were the perfect example.

This time, Jasper would make the people who wished to harm Wendy suffer more despair than the Zions did!

“Why don’t you rest at home for a few days, Wendy?”

Letting out a soft sigh, Jasper suggested to Wendy.

Wendy frowned slightly and said, “I still have a lot of tasks on hand at the company. I’ve been following up and handling a lot of the company matters. If I stayed at home, how would I be able to work?”

“There are so many people in the company. We will still be able to operate without you. Besides, I’ll be there,” Jasper said.

“We shouldn’t hide from them. They’re just following me, right? Let them follow me all they want. What can they do to me? If a small issue like this scares me to the point that I don’t dare to leave the house, what would I do in the future?” Wendy said in a tough, domineering tone.

Life at the Top Chapter 467

Jasper felt that Wendy made some sense.

Moreover, he did not want to force Wendy to stay at home in light of her insistent stance.

Wendy was one who could be persuaded by reason, but she definitely would not yield to a forceful approach.

After learning that someone was stalking her, there was no way that she would hide at home just because of it.

Dawson had previously told Jasper about an incident that took place when Wendy was sixteen years old. Back then, one of Dawson's business competitors intended to hire someone to kidnap Wendy in order to threaten him.

However, sixteen-year-old Wendy Schuler had insisted on continuing to attend classes with a taser and a knife in her bag.

At that moment, Jasper knew in his heart that although this young lady looked soft, gentle, weak, and appeared like an easy target for bullies, she was definitely not an ordinary woman who could be easily provoked.

If he were to draw a comparison between Anna Law and Wendy Schuler...

Anna Law was just like a poppy flower—she was beyond enchanting and charming. However, she had her means of poisoning others when they least expected it.

On the other hand, Wendy Schuler resembled a rose. She was breathtakingly beautiful, but there were thorns concealed under the fragrant scent of her petals. Anyone who dared to approach her without thinking twice were likely to get pricked till blood ran down their hands.

Jasper felt that he was a pretty lucky man. In front of him, Wendy had always hidden away her thorns and transformed them into a soft and silent layer of gentleness.

“No problem. Julian, you should stay by Wendy's side for the time being. Don't let her out of your sight,” Jasper ordered.

“Alright, Jasper,” Julian agreed with a nod.

However, Wendy had a different opinion. From her point of view, Jasper was in a position that was much more dangerous as compared to her.

If someone was following her around, it was likely that those people would make a move on Jasper as well.

However, just as she was about to express her thoughts, she caught sight of Jasper’s stern gaze, which was directed at her. She instantly swallowed all the words that she had intended to counter him with.

She knew that Jasper would listen to her most of the time. However, once he made a certain type of decision, nobody was allowed to question it.

“Alright,” Wendy said in exasperation.

After deciding on the plan, Jasper left together with Wendy.

Julian left with them as well.

Although Cathy needed someone to look after her during her recuperation period, Julian knew his priorities.

At the hospital, Jasper had arranged for a team of experts to observe and oversee the entire process of Cathy’s recovery. In addition to this, a few of the best nurses in the hospital were looking after her 24 hours a day.

Therefore, Julian did not need to worry about Cathy at all.

The three of them left the ward and soon returned home. Jasper and Wendy did not tell Dawson about this incident.

There was no need to add to his worries.

Jasper now had the ability to handle all the impending problems and crises that he faced. He did not need someone else's protection anymore.

On the contrary, he now needed to bear the brunt of all the problems in order to protect the people by his side.

The next day, Jasper and Wendy were just about to leave the house after having their breakfasts when Jasper received a call from Sean Tucker.

"Mr. Laine, we have a problem!"

Jasper frowned upon hearing what he said.

Sean then proceeded to explain the situation to him. There was a problem with the supply of building materials.

"I'll head over to the company at once."

Jasper arrived at JW Real Estates. The real estate company was yet to have a formal independent working space. Therefore, it currently worked from a temporary office that occupied two floors of Schuler Group's office building.

Life at the Top Chapter 468

As soon as Jasper walked into the company, he invited Sean and a bunch of executives that had rushed over from the construction site to gather for a meeting.

"Mr. Laine, we had originally agreed on the shipment of a batch of cement with Hero Company today morning. However, they didn't send out the shipment. We tried to contact them by calling them, but they told us that the manager in charge of handling us had gone on a business trip and can't be contacted for now."

A person in charge stood up and announced. There was an unpleasant look on his face.

"Hero Company is one of the country's top large-scale cement suppliers. How can a single manager be in charge of handling the entire shipment? What about the other people?" Jasper asked.

"We couldn't get in contact with them. Meanwhile, the managers that that we did manage to contact after numerous tries told us that the company was facing a production shortage right now. Therefore, they have limited all of their distribution channels, and have no idea when they'll be able to distribute the supplies to us"

Jasper rapped his fingers against the table. His expression was dark and overcast. "Are there any problems with our payment for the goods?" He asked.

The person in charge reported, "There was absolutely no problem with the payment. We adhered to the contract strictly. We pledged two batches of goods, and paid for the first batch of supplies after the third batch was sent to us. There has been no problem until now."

Jasper nodded and said, "In that case, this isn't about money. What about the steel supplies? Are there problems with that as well?"

Another executive let out an audible sigh. "The situation at Stellar Company is pretty similar. We can't get in contact with the person handling our supplies. However, Stellar Company faxed us an official letter," he said.

"The letter said that several of the boilers at Stellar Company are under maintenance, so they are currently shut down and cannot be used for production. They are unsure as to when they can continue distributing the supplies as well.

“That’s right. There are no problems with the payment on this either. We fulfilled all of the criteria mentioned in the contract that has been agreed to in accordance with the market conditions.”

Jasper fixed his gaze on the person in charge of the procurement of materials for the Southface River project.

The person in charge, who was in his forties, did not dare to meet Jasper’s gaze at all. His forehead was beaded with sweat. With a bitter expression on his face, he said, “Not only are there problems with the cement and steel supplies, but our supplies of paint, thermal insulation, waterproof concrete, brick, stone and most of the building materials have almost all been cut off.”

No matter the reason, the procurement manager would be the first to be held responsible if there was a problem with the supply of building materials.

The procurement manager felt like burying himself in the ground right now.

Following his words, the atmosphere in the meeting room fell into a state of heavy, sinister silence.

Everyone directed their gazes at Jasper, who was seated at the head of the table, as they waited for him to come up with an idea.

Right then, Sean decided to bite the bullet after pondering it for some time. “Mr. Laine, it’d be reasonable if there were problems with procuring one or two of the building materials. However, the supply of all our building materials, regardless of the shipment size, have been cut off at the same time. It’s obvious that someone from the upstream supply chain is messing with us,” he said.

Jasper did not reply.

Anyone could understand something simple like that.

This move was not really very smart. In fact, it was rather barbaric.

However, it was still effective.

It was a trick that utilized a predatory pricing strategy to buy up the supply.

If they did this to a weaker opponent, their opponent would have lost all resistance instantly. They would be at the mercy of everyone else.

Previously, Jasper had used a similar method to defeat the Zions back in Brac County.

“It’s Haddock. Ian Hull and Norman Gardner are behind this,” Jasper announced in an even tone.

They were the only ones who go to such lengths in order to disrupt the Southface River project.

Jasper knew that they were about to unleash all their moves on him one by one.

Sean let out a heavy sigh, “Mr. Laine, what should we do now?” He asked.

“How long will the remaining building supplies at the construction site last?” Jasper asked.

Being the competent vice president that he was, Sean answered almost immediately. “The other building materials should be able to last for some time since we still have quite a number of supplies in the inventory. We should have enough to continue for up to ten or fifteen days. However, we use a lot of cement and steel supplies on a daily basis. As of now, our inventory of those will only last another four days,” he said.

“If we don’t receive a new supply of building materials in four days, construction will have to be temporarily suspended.”

“Under no circumstances can construction be suspended. If construction is suspended, a series of harmful chain reactions will occur, alongside drastic financial losses. This is exactly what our opponent wishes to achieve,” Jasper said decisively.

Life at the Top Chapter 469

Sean and a few of the executives looked at each other.

They all understood the reasoning behind their opponent’s actions.

The development of the Southface Riverbank was an enormous project. They would lose millions if they stopped the construction for a single day.

Nobody would willingly want to stop the construction unless the situation was dire.

However, their supply of building materials had all been cut off. It would be impossible not to suspend the construction site under these circumstances.

Nevertheless, Jasper did not leave them waiting for too long. He drew up a plan immediately.

“There’s a building material supplier called Ambition Corporation in Brac Country. The boss of this company is named Xavier Johnson. He’s one of my associates. Later on, the head of the procurement department will have to get in contact with him and ask him to supply us with building materials from the Brac County market.”

The head of the procurement department was overjoyed upon hearing this. “Don’t worry, Mr. Laine. I’ll handle this task well,” he said immediately.

Jasper massaged his temples and said in a frigid tone, "I've found the person that you need, and I'll give you his contact information later. All you need to do is make a few phone calls and assess the quality of the supplies. If you can't even do something like that, I'll need you to pack up and go home."

The procurement manager instantly flushed a bright red. Overcome with awkwardness, he could not say a single word.

"There's something else as well."

Jasper did not give him another glance. Although it was not his fault that the supply of building materials had gotten cut off, this issue had revealed that JW Real Estates' procurement department was seriously inadequate.

They did not even plan to look for another supplier after the original source cut off their supplies. This was the main responsibility of the department head.

However, this was not the time to penalize them. That would have to wait until everything was resolved.

"Since Stellar Company cut off our supply of steel, we should get in contact with Fortress Iron and Steel Co. Ltd. They are one of the largest steelmaking plants in the country as well. Even without Stellar Company, we can get our steel supplies all the same."

The procurement manager hesitated before saying, "Mr. Laine, we had to get quotations from both of these companies when we were selecting the suppliers. The quotation from Fortress Iron and Steel Co. Ltd. was 20% higher than that of Stellar Company. They didn't give us any room for negotiation either. Therefore, we eventually chose Stellar Company."

"If they find out that we were looking for them after having our supplies cut off by Stellar Company, I'm afraid that it will be hard to get a good price."

Jasper waved his hand and said, "It's alright. Agree to it as long as the price isn't too outrageous. If you aren't sure, you can discuss the matter with Vice President Tucker. Our current priority is to resolve the issue we are facing with our building materials. As for money, or difference of a few million dollars will not have much of an impact."

"Also, is the head of the legal department here?" Jasper asked.

A middle-aged woman, who was wearing glasses, quickly stood up. There was a cold and hard expression on her face. "Mr. Laine, I'm Sarah Lund, the manager of JW Real Estates' legal department," she said.

Jasper nodded. Among the several department heads, he was the most satisfied with Sarah Lund's performance. She had always acted in a calm and collected manner.

"We will go through the proper legal procedures when examining the contracts that we've signed with the original suppliers, regardless of the length of these contracts. There is no need to send them a lawyer's letter. The other party will not care at all, and there is no need to discuss it further. We will sue them, and reject all out-of-court settlements."

"Due to the cut-off of supplies, the losses faced by our company will have to be recovered from their compensation. This lawsuit is going to be a major battle. Don't refrain from causing a huge ruckus. The bigger the ruckus we cause, the better it'll be for us."

After registering what Jasper said, Sarah replied, "Mr. Laine, if we carry out our actions according to your conditions, these lawsuits will be delayed for a long time. We will accrue a relatively large cost as well."

"The lawsuit will just consist of a first hearing, a second hearing, and the final judgment. I have a lot of time on my hand. I have tons of money as well. Through these lawsuits, I want to tell all the companies working together with us that JW Real Estates will never give in to such rogue and lowly methods.

“Anyone who dares to breach their contract with JW Real Estates will have to be prepared to face our lawsuit till the very end.”

After the meeting ended, Jasper returned to his office.

Dawson had allocated an office room to him in JW Real Estates. It was usually empty except for the times that the cleaners would come in to clean up the room. However, the room was furnished with extensive facilities. There was even a brand-new television inside.

He turned on the television. The provincial news channel was playing right now.

As expected, the new content revolved around the development of the north bank of the Southface River.

Norman Gardner was on screen. He was standing with his back to the venue of the foundation laying ceremony, which had just ended. “The main goal we would like to achieve through the development of the North Bank is to revitalize the poor economic areas on the north bank of the province,” he announced with a cheerful smile on his face.

“Besides that, according to our plan, the North Bank will be transformed into a central city that will integrate daily entertainment, and leisure. It won’t lose out to the South Bank!

“I believe that the North Bank will definitely shine brilliantly in the near future.”

The landline phone on the office table suddenly rang.

The call was from the reception.

“Mr. Laine, Mr. Ian Hull said that he’s here to visit you.”

Jasper raised his brow. He had originally intended to shut off the television. However, he changed his mind and put down the remote control. "Let him in," he said.

Not long after, Ian Hull entered Jasper's office under the guidance of an employee.

Ian entered the room with a joyous smile splayed across his face. After catching sight of the news being broadcasted on the television, his smile instantly grew broader. He extended a hand toward Jasper and said, "Mr. Laine, are you interested in our North Bank project as well?"

Jasper laughed. "I was born and bred in the Southeastern district of the province. Meanwhile, you have come a long way from Andros to develop the relatively underdeveloped North Bank here in the province, Mr. Hull. Since you're bringing benefits to the Southeastern district, I have no reason not to turn a blind-eye to the project," he said.

Ian smiled cheerily and gave him a thumbs up. "As expected of you, Mr. Laine. You're a generous person indeed," he remarked.

"Mr. Hull, you didn't come here just to tell me this, right?" Jasper asked.

Ian sat down on the sofa and patted the armrest. "You sure do know how to enjoy yourself, Mr. Laine. This sofa must have been imported from overseas. It isn't cheap," he commented.

Jasper looked at Ian calmly without uttering a single word.

Ian laughed upon realizing that Jasper was not playing along with him. "Actually, I came here today to ask if you were interested in selling me your project on the South Bank, Mr. Laine," he told Jasper.

Jasper raised his brow and chuckled. "You have a pretty large appetite, Mr. Hull."

“After all, business is business. At first, I came over just to survey the scene without any other intentions. However, the more I looked around, the more I realized that the South Bank project really has large commercial value. In any case, it’d be difficult for your construction site to proceed with its construction work now,” Ian said indifferently.

“Why don’t you sell the project to me instead of holding on fruitlessly?”

“What makes you think that it’ll be difficult for my construction site to proceed with its construction work?” Jasper asked in an even tone.

Ian guffawed loudly. “Mr. Laine, we’re both smart people. Let’s speak in a straightforward manner. Without the building supplies, does your construction site intend to carry out the construction with rocks collected from the roadside?” He questioned.

“Mr. Hull, so how much do you plan to acquire my project for?” Jasper asked.

Ian thought for a while before replying, “300 million dollars.”

Life at the Top Chapter 470

300 million dollars.

At first glance, it sounded like a lot.

It would be considered a lot even twenty years into the future in the era Jasper had been living in before his reincarnation.

300 million dollars was enough for a family to achieve financial freedom. They would be viewed as admirable millionaires in everyone’s eyes.

Nevertheless, however he looked at it, the price of 300 million offered by Ian Hull sounded like a huge insult.

“I won’t say much about the value of the project’s development rights. Putting that aside, I have already invested 800 million dollars in the project alone, and I’ve made a follow-up investment of more than 1.5 billion dollars. Despite all this, you telling me that you’re going to buy this project for 300 million dollars. Mr. Hull, you have such immaculate decision-making.”

Ian chuckled at Jasper’s words. “Mr. Laine, I’m much older than you are. At first, I thought that you were really capable and wouldn’t need many tips on what to do. However, I’d have to teach you a thing or two today,” he said.

“The value of a commodity often isn’t based on its monetary value alone. Some things will end up being a bad project when placed in your hands. You simply don’t have the ability to make it work.

“In that case, it’ll be worthless burden to you.

“However, it’d be different in my hands. I can make it work. This is my personal ability. This is my capital. You can’t include this in the value of a commodity.”

Seated behind his office desk, Jasper fixed a calm and heavy gaze upon Ian.

After Ian finished speaking, Jasper questioned him in an indifferent tone, “From your perspective, is there no doubt that I’ll screw up this project, Mr. Hull?”

Ian let out an inward laugh as his gaze gradually hardened. “Stop being so pretentious, Jasper Laine. Isn’t it meaningless to do so? Your supply of building materials have been cut off, and I’m telling you that you won’t be able to purchase any building materials no matter where you go or who you look for!” He said.

“This is the definition of networking! This is what you call a resource pool!

“After all, I’m regarded as a prominent individual in Andros. Besides, given the reputation of the Haddock Chamber of Commerce, who would dare to get on my bad side? Who would choose to supply you with building materials under the risk of offending Haddock?”

“How is the construction site going to proceed with its construction work without the building materials?”

Ian chuckled lightly. He looked at Jasper with a satisfied expression on his face. “In this world, you can’t do whatever you want just because you have the potential and have once received a few words of praise from others,” he said.

“If I gave a young man like you ten or twenty more years, or once you’re at my age, you may really become more powerful than me.

“However, you’re still way too young right now. You haven’t gone through the torments of society. You wouldn’t know how high and mighty the outside world can be. This incident should teach you a lesson.”

Ian got up as he spoke. He placed his hands on the office desk and stared down at Jasper from above. “You can only blame yourself for being way too reckless in Swallow Capital. You may not have thought about this, but although I may not have the ability to go against the Laws, it’s beyond easy for me to defeat you,” he said while snickering.

“Admit your wrongdoings in front of me, and apologize to my son. After that, hand this project over to me. I will let you keep your other businesses. Otherwise, I’ll make sure to take away everything that you have and turn you into a penniless loser!”

“Your threats are rather frightening,” Jasper remarked in an even tone.

“Young man, it’s important to know your own limits. Do you really have the ability to go against your seniors in the industry?”

Ian chuckled as he stood up and looked down at Jasper.

“Don’t be so conceited to the point that you forget your last name just because you’ve received some praise in the past. This type of behavior is dangerous. You’ll be faced with a huge problem sooner or later.

“You’re lucky that you met me. I tend to appreciate talented people, so I’m willing to give you a chance. Otherwise, do you think that you’d still have the opportunity to talk to me right now?”

Life at the Top Chapter 471

“That’s why I’m here to give you a final chance. Here is 300 million dollars. If you’re willing to bow to my conditions, take the money and hand the project over to me. If you’re unwilling to do so, the province may soon find itself left with only the Southface River north bank in a few months’ time. Haha, the south bank might just cease to exist.”

Jasper got up too. He looked Ian in the eye directly and said, “In that case, I’ll announce my stance here today as well.

“Since you’re not playing by the rules, let’s go against each other with the best of our abilities.

“I don’t have other abilities except being able to earn money fast. Even if I lose a few million or a few billion dollars, it won’t matter much to me!

“Since you’re so much older than me, I hope that you’re able to maintain the haughty sense of superiority that you currently possess, Mr. Hull. If you keep it up, you won’t lose too uglily when the time comes.”

Ian’s expression darkened. He glared at Jasper and growled, “Do you really intend to go against me till the very end?”

“I’m operating my business well, but you just had to go around causing trouble. You even resorted to using dirty tricks to cut off the supply of building materials to my construction site. Am I really the one going against you?” Jasper asked firmly.

“In any case, it’s good to phrase it that way as well, because I genuinely will go against you till the very end!”

Ian let out an angry bark of laughter. “Well, well, well, young people are hot-headed and stubborn indeed. I truly admire this attitude of yours. You won’t repent till you face total failure. Let’s see how this goes!” He exclaimed.

“I’m giving you a chance right now. You’re the one who rejected my act of kindness. When the time comes, you won’t even be able to find a corner to cry in peace!”

After Ian finished speaking, a knock suddenly rang out from Jasper’s office door.

“Come in,” Jasper said.

Sean Tucker entered the room with an overjoyed expression splayed across his face.

He was just about to say something when he caught sight of Ian Hull standing in Jasper’s office.

Being someone that was extremely observant, Sean could tell that the two of them had just been engaged in an unpleasant conversation at just a glance.

Just as he was questioning whether to discuss the news or not, Jasper told him, “If there’s anything to report, say it in front of Mr. Hull. There’s nothing that can’t be said anyways.”

Sean smirked and glanced at Ian with a satisfied gaze. “Mr. Laine, the company that you previously mentioned has agreed to our request. They promised to do their best to find building materials for us at cost prices.

“Furthermore, this company is really quite capable. Although it isn’t large in size, it’s deeply involved in the local market. The building materials that it can provide are enough to meet 80% of our needs.”

Since Ian was there, Sean was glad to announce the news before him in order to strike him with a blow.

However, Sean wasn't a fool. He wisely hid the key information, which were the names of Brac County and Ambition Corporation, so that Ian could not tamper with their plans.

Jasper was extremely satisfied with Sean's sensibility. He smiled at Ian, who had an unpleasant expression on his face. Mr. Hull, it seems like everything isn't under your control after all," he said.

Ian's face twitched in anger. His skin felt hot to the touch.

He did not expect Jasper to have come up with a plan so soon after he had cut off the supply of building materials to his construction site. This was right after he had told Jasper that nobody would provide building materials to him at the risk of offending himself.

"Right, Mr. Hull. I have a suggestion for you as well. I hope you take it into consideration."

Jasper looked at Ian and spoke in a slow and controlled tone, "I can acquire all of the businesses under your name for 3 million dollars, Mr. Hull. This proposal is effective in the long term. You can come to me and kneel down before me for 3 million dollars in cash on the day when you find yourself in a situation with no way out."

Life at the Top Chapter 472

Jasper's words caused Ian to launch into a fit of rage.

"F*cker, what did you say?!"

Ian glared at Jasper. His face was flushed red with anger.

He had gone through thick and thin in the business industry over the past few decades, and this was the first time someone younger than him had humiliated him to such a great extent.

“Just now, you offered me 300 million dollars in return for acquiring my South Bank project. At the end of the day, courtesy requires reciprocation. Since your family has a huge business, of course, you’d offer such a large sum of money. However, I’m not that generous since I’m just operating a small business. To me, 3 million dollars is enough.

“Of course, I can tell that the day that you’ll take me up on this offer will soon arrive. Rest assured that I will keep my word,” Jasper told Ian in a calm and composed manner.

Ian was about to explode with fury.

He raised a finger and pointed it at Jasper while letting out an angry bark of laughter. “Well, well, well! I’ve never been so humiliated in my entire life. Jasper Laine, you’re really one of a kind!” He shouted.

“Let me end things with this—I’d like to give you a piece of advice. Don’t act rashly just yet. I will immediately track down the company that dared to supply you with building materials. I hope your connections are strong enough to withstand this! Let’s see how it goes!”

Ian left the office with a grim expression on his face after speaking.

The outcome of this discussion was that both parties had completely fallen out with each other in the open. There was no need for false pretenses right now.

Despite this, Jasper could not care less about him. He simply asked Sean, “When will Ambition Corporation begin supplying us with the building materials?”

“They will begin tomorrow. Ambition Corporation is really a righteous company. Once they heard that the company was owned by you and that it was facing a dire situation, their boss, Xavier Johnson, immediately offered us the most highly favorable terms,” Sean reported in excitement.

“Besides, instead of taking advantage of us when we were in a state of emergency, they charged us cost price. At most, they’d just earn a small sum for handling fees. What a rare opportunity.”

Jasper laughed. “Alright, noted. You can head out for now. Get in contact with Fortress Iron and Steel Co., Ltd as soon as possible, and inform me if there are any updates,” he told Sean.

After Sean left, Jasper called Xavier Johnson.

“Mr. Johnson, it’s me,” Jasper said with a chuckle.

“I heard about everything. Thank you for your help.”

The art of human interaction states that others will only help you out during emergencies due to compassion. It was not mandatory for them to help you out. Other than your own parents, nobody else was obliged to aid you in times of need. Therefore, Jasper sought to remember this favor.

Xavier Johnson’s clear, loud voice rang out from the other end of the phone. “Haha, you’re being way too courteous, Mr. Laine. I didn’t have the chance to thank you for everything that had happened back in Brac County previously. Now that I have the chance to repay you, of course I have to do my part,” he said.

Xavier’s words were sincere as well.

With Jasper’s help, Xavier now controlled the market for building materials in Brac County. Furthermore, he was on a roll as his business was gradually expanding beyond Brac County.

Even so, he did not have many opportunities to express his gratitude toward Jasper.

Jasper chuckled and said, "According to my subordinates, you're providing us the supplies at cost price, Mr. Johnson."

"I'm someone who values friendship over business. Besides, I'm indebted to you. How could I profit from you when you're in a tight spot? Moreover, it'll be beneficial for my business if the stock is sold off quickly. I can just sell off a large quantity of goods at a low profit margin," Xavier said proudly.

"In that case, I won't act all sentimental in front of you. Let's just say that Ambition Corporation will have the priority supply rights over all future real estate development projects in the Southeast district of the province that JW Real Estates handles," Jasper suddenly suggested.

"If we need building materials, we will contact you first. If you have any stock available, we'll purchase it from you. We'll only work with other companies if you're out of stock."

"Take a trip down to the province when you're free, Mr. Johnson. Let's discuss the details when we meet then."

Xavier's gaze lit up upon hearing what he said.

JW Real Estates was an up and coming company in the provincial real estate industry. The company was in charge of real estate projects in various counties within the province. However, the projects were all of different scales.

There was a locally renowned high-end residential area with a sea view under construction in Brac County. Currently, Ambition Corporation was also the main supplier of said construction site's building materials due to Jasper's help in the past.

Life at the Top Chapter 473

The most famous one would be the Southface River South Bank project in the province.

Xavier worked in the building materials industry and kept himself up to date on the happenings in the real estate industry. He and his business partners had also reached a consensus.

When the development project on the south bank of the Southface River was completed, JW Real Estates had a high chance of soaring through the ranks to become the leading real estate company in the province!

Ambition Corporation had a high chance of rising in its ranks rapidly if it got on JW Real Estates' good side now.

Completely caught by surprise, Xavier hurriedly said, "Thank you so much. I'll make sure to pay you a visit in the province once I've taken care of matters on my end."

Jasper smiled and replied, "You're welcome any time."

.....

While Jasper was still taking care of matters at the real estate agency, Wendy arrived at a spa retreat in the province.

Spas were still a novel and fashionable concept back in the 2000s. Most people did not even know what one was supposed to do in a spa.

Thus, a single visit to the spa was not cheap.

Its starting price of 3000 Some Dollars meant only the richest of the rich in the province could visit such places without any scruples.

Naturally, Wendy was among those people.

However, the reason Wendy had come here today was not to have a beauty treatment.

“Julian, you can’t come in with me.”

Wendy gazed helplessly at Julian, who was standing in front of her with a wooden expression on his face.

Julian frowned slightly as he gazed at the opulent spa.

He did not know what it was, but he could tell this was a place that women frequented.

“Ms. Schuler, I must protect you during these unstable times. Jasper has ordered me to remain near you.”

“We’ll have to take our clothes off inside. Everyone in there is a woman, and they won’t let a man inside.”

Wendy smiled as she spoke.

Julian frowned slightly and said, “Ms. Schuler, can’t you just not go in?”

Wendy shook her head and said, “We’ve lost our supplier for the site, and it’ll be particularly difficult to deal with the issue regarding our steel supply because there are only two manufacturers in the country who produce high-quality steel. We can forget about Stellar Company, and it’s not that easy to secure a deal with Fortress Iron and Steel.

“A university friend of mine owns this place. Her uncle is a general manager at Fortress Iron and Steel. I plan to meet and talk to her today.”

Julian pondered, “Couldn’t you have invited her somewhere else?”

Wendy glared at Julian and said, “We can’t be so high and mighty when we’re asking them for a favor. Besides, she’s an extremely busy person, and it’s hard to schedule a meeting with her when we’re in such a rush. I haven’t told Jasp about this yet, but I’ll let him know once I have more news about the matter.”

“Alright, it’s time. I can’t talk to you anymore, so wait for me outside, I’ll be fine. This is much safer than other places.”

When Wendy finished, she left Julian at the entrance and went inside.

Julian loitered around the entrance for a long time and glanced at the two gorgeous female receptionists who were staring at him. Sighing, he dutifully returned to the car and sat inside to wait.

The only thing he could do now was remain on high alert and keep an eye on any suspicious targets nearby.

Just then, in a ramen shop across the street, Aaron put down his fork and held a walkie-talkie to his ear as he said calmly, “Our chance has come. The target has strayed from her bodyguard and entered Heartland Spa Centre. Initiate mission, go!”

Life at the Top Chapter 474

Once Aaron finished speaking, he immediately got up and paid his bill. Then, he snuck over to the back entrance to Heartland Spa Retreat.

Two men who could only be described as having a shrewd aura were already waiting inside.

“Mr. Aaron,” one of the men walked up to him and greeted.

Aaron nodded and glanced at Heartland Spa Retreat’s outer walls. When he saw a water pipe snaking down the wall to the ground, he said calmly, “This is such an easy break in.”

“Is Fiona and everyone else ready?”

“Ms. Fiona has already entered Heartland Spa Retreat in her disguise. She should be locating the target right now.”

Aaron nodded and said, “Alright, we’ll stick to the plan. You two wait here and I’ll go in. Keep in touch constantly.”

Once he finished speaking, Aaron leaped upward and grabbed the pipe that was two and a half feet of the ground with both hands. He clambered up onto the ledge onto the second-floor window with the nimbleness of a monkey.

Then, he nimbly twisted and turned a couple more times before jumping into Heartland Spa Retreat through the half-open window on the third floor.

Once he climbed in, Aaron saw a woman wrapped in a plain towel lying on the bed.

The woman’s first instinctive reaction was to scream when she saw a large man jumping in through the window.

However, Aaron’s reflexes were quick. He immediately jumped over to the woman and covered her mouth with his hand. As he stared at her, he smiled and said, “Don’t make a sound, or you’ll die. Got it?”

The woman's eyes widened in fear as she hurriedly nodded.

Aaron smiled in satisfaction before giving the woman a sudden strike to the neck with the heel of his palm. Her eyes instantly rolled into the back of her head as she passed out on the bed.

After adjusting the woman's limbs so that she seemed to be asleep, Aaron strolled out of the room.

At that very moment, Wendy was chatting happily with a beautiful woman in an office on the second floor.

"Carol, business seems to be booming," Wendy said as she glanced around the lavish office.

Carol Murphy smiled as she said, "My husband is always busy with his business, and I needed to find something to do. I opened this retreat for fun, but never expected it to achieve such popularity.

"Queen Bee Wendy, you never visit me unless you need my help. Tell me, is there anything I can help with this time?"

Wendy looked slightly sheepish as she listened to Carol gracefully highlight half the reason why she had come to visit her.

"You make me sound like a mercenary when you put it like that."

Carol covered her mouth and giggled, "Imagine if I returned to uni and said that Queen Bee Wendy is a mercenary. Your suitors would be able to drown me with just their spit.

"Alright, alright. No need for such formal talk between us. I know you've been busy with your company recently, and don't have time for any unnecessary visits. Just tell it to me straight."

Wendy did not bother with formalities once she saw how direct Carol was, and immediately said, "Well, it's like this. I know your uncle is a general manager at Fortress Iron and Steel. My family has recently gotten into the real estate industry, and we require a large supply of steel. That's why I need your help."

Carol asked curiously, "If you need good quality steel, we've got Stellar Company and Fortress Iron and Steel in the country. These two companies are both open for business. Why didn't you get in touch with them via the typical methods? They wouldn't turn away a chance to do business, would they?"

Wendy sighed and said, "You don't understand. This entire thing is really complicated and involves competition in the business world. We no longer stand a chance of working with Stellar Company, which is why we've turned to Fortress Iron and Steel.

"Moreover, we're in a rush now and require a large supply. It wouldn't be possible to strike a deal with Fortress Iron and Steel in such a short time, which is why we've thought of asking if you could pull any strings."

Carol had a thoughtful expression on her face as she listened to Wendy.

Although she was curious as to what Wendy meant by "competition in the business world", she did not ask any more questions and merely replied doubtfully, "You know that my uncle is growing old now. He's planning to retire and doesn't have that much of an influence anymore."

However, when she saw the disappointed look on Wendy's face, she said, "How about this? Wait for me for a while, and I'll help you call him."

Wendy smiled and nodded. "If that's the case, let me thank you in advance."

Life at the Top Chapter 475

As Carol stood, she waved a hand and said, "No worries, I'm just making the call. It's up to my uncle to decide what will happen next."

As she lowered her head to look up his number, Carol opened the door to her office.

Carol had just stepped out of her office when a woman brushed past her.

While waiting for the call to be answered, Carol glanced at the woman who brushed past her and was walking toward her office. Frowning slightly, she said, "Stop."

The woman paused in her steps.

"What's your name? Why have I never seen you before?"

The woman stood with her back to Carol. She did not move nor speak.

A bad feeling washed over Carol as suspicion arose in her.

She was just about to go forth and interrogate the woman when a hand clapped down onto her shoulder.

Aaron's smiling face loomed near Carol's cheeks. He used his fingers to stroke Carol's smooth, beautifully maintained skin as he whispered, "Don't say anything. I don't plan to hurt anyone, alright?"

Carol's heart was racing as she felt overcome by fear. However, she managed to retain a shred of her rationale and strength, saying shakily, "Who are you? What do you want? Is this a robbery?"

Aaron chuckled and said, "This is a kidnapping. But don't worry, we're not kidnapping you."

Then, Aaron slung his arm around Carol's neck and walked back into the office with her. The distance between the two was intimate.

However, Carol's body was as stiff as a stick. She was basically half-dragged into the office.

Wendy, who had been waiting for updates from Carol, stood instinctively when she saw Carol being forced back into the office. She asked in a stern voice, "You are..."

The woman Carol had stopped earlier placed a dagger at Wendy's throat. Her ordinary-looking face was expressionless as she said, "Don't say a word or I'll kill you!"

Wendy took a deep breath and forced herself to calm down. She gazed coldly at the woman and at Aaron, who was holding Carol hostage.

"You really are beautiful." Aaron's eyes shone as he looked at Wendy. "You're the most beautiful woman I've ever seen."

Wendy curled her hands into fists and remained silent. She merely glared coldly at Aaron.

She understood that she was a lone, weak woman who stood no chance against two thugs with weapons. It was impossible to fight back against them, and the best thing she could do now was remain calm. She could not afford to lose her cool.

“You’re very smart not to scream and make a fuss. I’m not a patient person, you see.

“You might be beautiful, but that’s a shame because someone already has their eyes on you.”

Aaron shook his head regretfully as he spoke. Then, he used a karate chop to knock Wendy unconscious.

Wendy wavered and nearly collapsed to the ground. The woman hurried forth and grabbed her.

“Let’s go,”

Aaron said in a low voice and was just about to knock Carol unconscious when she let out a blood-curdling scream.

The expression on Aaron’s face changed slightly.

When the sound traveled down the stairs and into Julian’s ears, it was already a weak scream. However, it was enough to make Julian jump as if he had been electrocuted.

Eyes blazing, Julian seemed to transform into a human dragon as he barrelled straight into Heartland Spa Retreat!

Life at the Top Chapter 476

No one in the spa retreat could stop Julian.

In a few breaths' time, Julian had already raced to the second floor where the scream had sounded.

Ignoring the surprise and anger on the faces of the female customers and employees upon seeing him, Julian barged through the half-closed door to the office.

When Julian opened the door and saw an unfamiliar woman on the floor, he immediately raced toward the open window.

Looking down from the window, Julian saw a woman getting into a car. She was holding Wendy in her arms.

Aaron, who was sitting in the passenger seat, met Julian's eyes through the window.

Smiling, Aaron made a finger gun and directed it at Julian before pretending to shoot it.

He was being deliberately provocative.

The next second, the car's engine started and it raced out of the alleyway.

Julian's aura was like a wave crashing over the rocks.

Grabbing hold of the window ledge, he flipped out of the second-floor window. Julian did not seem to care that the window was seven meters above the ground as he landed with a thump.

However, the car had already rushed out of the alley and seemed to be escaping.

Julian was just about to run after them when two shrewd men surrounded him. Without saying a word, they started attacking Julian.

Julian was confident that he could defeat these two, but it would take up some of his precious time.

With his rage fueling him, Julian roared like an angered dragon and took out all his anger on the two men.

These two men had been placed there to delay Julian, acting as human shields.

Although they had mentally prepared themselves for this, the two still felt as if they were a boat stranded amid turbulent waves. They were about to break into countless pieces as they faced Julian's rapid attacks.

The two soon fell to the ground with blood dripping from their mouths as they stared at Julian with fear in their eyes.

They knew he was powerful, but they had not expected him to be this powerful.

...

At Schuler Manor in the province.

Julian landed on his knees with a thump.

When he knelt, the impact was so great he managed to create two craters in the ground. Cracks that looked like dense spider webs spread out from his knees.

The sharp stones grazed Julian's skin, and blood seeped through his pants before dyeing them red.

However, Julian did not seem to feel it.

He only lowered his head to Jasper and curled his hands into fists as he said in a quivering voice, "Jasper, I'm so sorry!"

Jasper did not have any expression on his face as he stared at Julian. He did not say anything.

Julian did not come up with any excuses for himself and only said, "Jasper, I know that not even my life can be used in exchange for Ms. Schuler's safety. I'll head out and look for her right now. I would much rather die outside if I can't find her! I'll come back and repent when I find Ms. Schuler!"

Then, Julian got up and was just about to head out.

"Stop."

Jasper's calm voice rang out.

"You're only one person. There are millions of people in the province. How much area could you cover alone? Stand here!"

Jasper's voice rose in volume.

"I didn't say I wouldn't blame you, but nothing will change even if you die now. What you should do now is remediate this with me!"

Jasper suppressed his rage and annoyance. His eyes were frosty as he took a deep breath and said, "Investigate! Investigate it for me! Look up all the license plates in the province, and more importantly, look up the hotel the Hull and Gardner family were staying in! I want a report within half an hour!"

Life at the Top Chapter 477

After Julian went out, Jasper took a deep breath and sat on the chair. There was a deep look on his face.

Nearly a year since his reincarnation, Jasper had grown accustomed to having everything under his control.

There were rarely situations of things happening beyond his expectations.

Today, Jasper suddenly realized that he was not a god and he had not done enough in many things.

Keeping Wendy safe was one.

Why did he allow Wendy to go out and run about when he had already discovered that someone was following her?

Even if it meant hiring bodyguards, he should have hired a few more female bodyguards to protect her!

At this moment, Jasper was extremely upset. He felt a surging wave of resentment and regret in his chest that were roaring like sea waves.

Successive victories had caused him to lose himself and become overconfident.

Right now, the question remained, where exactly was Wendy?

If the Hulls and Gardners did it, what would they do to Wendy?

Jasper was afraid to delve deeper into his thoughts. He was a little flustered now.

At that moment, the door to the study opened and Dawson walked in.

“Uncle Dawson.” Jasper stood up, looking guilty.

“Sit down.” Dawson waved his hand and sat down across from Jasper.

“I already know what’s going on and have sent someone to investigate it. You must not be thrown into confusion at this time. Remember, no matter who the other party is, they have their reasons for doing this. Before they reveal their purpose, we know that Wendy is safe.”

Jasper took a deep breath and blamed himself, saying, “Actually, there have been signs, but I was too careless.”

Dawson said in a rather understanding manner, “I know my daughter all too well. She doesn’t like being restrained and disciplined. Besides, she’s an adult who has hands and feet. What could you possibly have done? Tie her up?”

Jasper said in a deep voice, “I shouldn’t have been so careless at least. It’s all my fault!”

Dawson got up, walked around to the back of the desk, and patted Jasper on the shoulder. He said softly, “I understand how you feel. When Wendy’s mother had an accident back then, I sank into immense self-blame and agony for a very long time.

“As a man, this is the price you have to pay in order to protect your family and woman. Unless, of course, you’re willing to be an ordinary person who lives an ordinary life.

“However, how can you just be resigned to circumstances your whole life even when a storm strikes?

“I don’t blame you, nor will Wendy, but you must cheer up and use your fist to show those who have offended you that certain things can cost them their lives!”

Jasper raised his head and looked at Dawson. At this moment, Dawson's eyes were full of trust and encouragement. There was no hint of blame or criticism at all.

Jasper stood up and took a deep breath. Clenching his fists, he said, "I know what to do now."

Pleased, Dawson nodded and said, "Now that's the Jasper I know. Remember, no matter what you encounter, don't throw yourself into confusion because as soon as you do that, the enemy will have succeeded by more than half."

At this moment, there was a knock on the door.

A servant walked in with a folder and said, "Mr. Schuler, Mr. Laine, someone put this at the door just now. He said that you need to take a look at it and left after that."

Jasper took the folder and saw a compact disc in it.

He inserted the CD into the computer and clicked on the video file inside.

The screen flashed. It showed a room with a drowsy woman lying on the bed. That woman was none other than Wendy.

Ben's face emerged in front of the camera, and he was smiling triumphantly.

"Surprised, Jasper?"

"I don't know what you're feeling right now, but I can tell you that I'm enjoying myself a lot! Hahahahaha!"

Life at the Top Chapter 478

When Ben was done laughing, his expression abruptly turned cold.

He stared sternly into the camera lens as if he could look at Jasper across the screen.

“Don’t blame me for being mean, Jasper. You can only blame yourself for being too arrogant and too full of yourself. Who do you think you are?! I have many ways to teach you a lesson!

“I don’t have the time to slowly have fun with you, though. That’s why I’m using the easiest and harshest way to let you know that provoking me will be the worst mistake of your life!”

Ben’s expression grew darker with his words.

He then took out a piece of paper with a series of short numbers on it. His expression grew increasingly overbearing.

“Hurry up and add this KK ID number. Quick, I can’t wait anymore. I’m so excited to have a video call with you, to see you kneeling in front of me, crying and all snotty!

“Remember, you don’t have much time. Also, don’t try and find out my physical address. I’m hiding in a place where you can’t find me. I’m also not that stupid to meet you. This is your territory after all, no? Hahaha!

“But at the same time, I really want to see you get down on your knees and apologize to me. I’ll record it to admire it slowly once this is all over. So, add this KK ID number. You only have ten minutes!”

The video ended after that.

Jasper's eyes lit up gradually as he stared at the KK ID frozen in frame.

Was God helping him?

The video function was a new function that KK released recently.

Although the current network bandwidth was extremely poor, it was still usable.

Ben was so pleased with himself that he had lost his sense of measure. What he did not know was that he had just dug his own grave when he exposed his KK ID in an attempt to humiliate him.

Next, Jasper immediately did two things.

First, he summoned Julian back to wait in the room.

Secondly, he gave Hudson a call right away.

Hudson answered Jasper's call in no time at all.

"Hud, I need you to do something really important. I'll be having a video call with someone later. Can you retrieve the other party's IP address in the shortest possible time?"

Time was running out, so Jasper went straight to the point without having the time to exchange greetings with Hudson.

Hudson did not ask any questions and instead replied straight away, "This is technically easy and can be done, but do you need the IP address or the physical one?"

Jasper was delighted. "Can you get the physical address too?"

Hudson laughed and said, "Have you forgotten how powerful our technical team is now? As long as we can get the IP address, then we can find out the physical address in just a few minutes, provided that the other party isn't a master hacker, of course. Otherwise, it'll be more troublesome to track them down."

Jasper said, "The other party is bad at computer technology. Start locking on my KK and when I start the video call, I want you to track down the other party's physical address immediately!"

After contacting Hudson, Jasper logged in to his KK and added the other party's ID as stated in the previous video.

Soon, the friend request was approved.

A request for a video call was sent.

Dawson got up and walked out of the range of the webcam. He exchanged glances with Jasper, and they both nodded their heads. Jasper accepted the video call request.

Ben was seen alone on the screen.

He was sitting in a chair, looking expectantly at the screen.

Jasper saw Ben, and Ben obviously could see Jasper on his own computer screen as well.

Life at the Top Chapter 479

At this moment far away in Cavern City, Hudson picked up his phone and called Theo.

“Theo, call your technical mainstay to come to my office immediately. I need them to do something really important!”

A few minutes later, Theo brought several of Terizone’s most professional technicians to Hudson’s office.

Once Hudson explained what was going on, everyone switched on the laptops they brought with them and got to work immediately!

Theo smiled and said to Hudson, “Don’t worry, Mr. Theo. A rookie who has studied computer technology for two years can do stuff like that, let alone us.”

Hudson nodded with a smile and then said sternly, “This is the first time Mr. Laine has asked us for help to handle his private affair, so we must do our best.”

Theo gestured to show that he understood before getting to work.

The atmosphere in the office was tense.

“Start establishing a connection!”

“Scan the IP connected to the target’s KK account and server!”

“We have obtained the other party’s IP address successfully. Start tracking him down!”

At this moment in the province, Jasper and Ben had started their conversation.

Ben looked at his watch and chuckled. “Not bad. You’re more efficient than I thought. There are still two minutes before the scheduled time. Looks like you’re really anxious, huh?”

Jasper said coldly, “Cut the crap. I will not negotiate anything with you until I can confirm that Wendy is safe and sound.”

Ben’s expression gradually turned cold and sinister. He looked at Jasper and said arrogantly, “Do you think you’re qualified to make terms with me now?”

Jasper replied calmly, “I only saw a side profile from the video just now. How can I be sure that it’s Wendy? I must make sure that Wendy is in your hands and that she’s safe and sound and can speak to me. Otherwise, I’ll exit the video call!”

Ben’s expression turned cold. He then smiled in a sinister manner and said, “Okay, I’ll fulfill your request so you can die willingly.”

Having said that, Ben waved his hand.

The scene changed and Jasper saw Wendy with her hands and feet tied up. She was already awake and sitting on the bed guarded by a woman.

Wendy seemed to know that Jasper was looking at her. She was eager to speak, but her mouth was taped, hence she could not express herself at all.

“Let Wendy talk to me,” Jasper said coldly.

Ben popped up on the screen and sneered. “Don’t be so insatiable. I’m the one who holds the power right now!”

“I said, let Wendy talk to me!” Jasper raised his tone.

“Otherwise, I won’t agree to any of your conditions. I want to make sure that you didn’t do anything to harm her.”

As Jasper said those words, he looked at Ben coldly and continued, “Since you’re cautious enough to negotiate with me using video call and are making sure that you won’t be located, why are you afraid to let Wendy talk to me? Do you feel guilty?”

Ben roared with laughter and said, “Me? Guilty? I’m the winner! And you’re just a humble garbage insect. Fine, I’ll fulfill your final request.”

Ben waved his hand after saying those words, and the woman standing beside Wendy immediately reached out to remove the tape from Wendy’s mouth.

When Wendy was able to speak again, she did not yell or have a hysterical emotional breakdown. Rather, she said to Jasper calmly, “Don’t worry, Jasp. They just knocked me out and brought me over. They didn’t do anything to me. You must never agree to any excessive demands they make!”

At this moment, Jasper’s eyes flickered.

On his KK, Hudson had sent him a message and he was notified through the system.

[We found the address. Number 303, Building A, Warsaw Community, Habersham East Road, Southeast Province, Province!]

Life at the Top Chapter 480

Ben was being extra careful indeed.

He seemed to know that Jasper would check all the hotels' check-in records in order to track him down.

As such, he checked out of the hotel he was staying in and moved into a residential building.

To some extent, this had increased the difficulty level for Jasper to track him down.

What Ben did not know was that Jasper was Terizone's controlling shareholder, hence he could trace his physical location with his IP address.

After writing down the address quietly and handing it over to Julian calmly, Jasper said to Wendy affectionately, "Don't worry. I know what to do. Don't be afraid. I'll pick you up as soon as possible."

Jasper had just finished saying those words when Ben stood in front of the webcam.

"Alright, Jasper, stop playing out romance dramas in front of me. I'm not in the mood to watch. Now that you've seen her and talked to her, can we begin our negotiation now?" Ben said to Jasper eagerly.

Jasper looked at Ben calmly and said, "Go on then. Your conditions."

Ben laughed and said, "Simple. Get down on all four and apologize to me. Beg me for mercy. This is the first condition!

"As for the second condition, I want you to sign a project transfer agreement. Transfer the Southface River project to me at once!

"The third condition is, I want a compensation of one billion!"

As he spoke, Ben stared at Jasper on the screen with a grim expression before continuing haughtily, “All three conditions must be fulfilled. I’m not negotiating with you, I’m informing you of the things you must do.”

When Ben finished speaking, Wendy was already starting to resist by making a lot of noise before Jasper could even speak.

However, she could not say a word because the woman had sealed Wendy’s mouth with duct tape.

Jasper said calmly, “I need time to prepare and fulfill the second and third conditions.”

“That’s your problem!”

Ben raised his voice. “I don’t care what you do, but I must see results within two hours. Otherwise...”

Ben clapped his hands at this point.

In the room, Hans, who was eager to act, finally appeared.

“Let me introduce you to my second uncle.” Ben looked at Jasper and laughed wildly. “I don’t think I can even count the number of women my uncle has slept with. Would you like to watch my second uncle having fun with Wendy live on screen for you?”

Hans looked at Jasper on the screen smugly and curled his lips, saying, “So you’re Jasper?”

“How dare an insignificant character like you offend my nephew and the Langdons?”

Hans raised his voice abruptly, full of hostility and viciousness.

“How dare you? Believe it or not, I’ll dig your ancestors’ grave!”

In a place where the camera could not capture, Jasper clenched his fists firmly. His nails were digging into his flesh, and blood was flowing out of his wounds.

Despite that, Jasper seemed to have lost all sense of pain as he continued to cut deeper into his flesh. Blood had stained his palm, yet he still refused to let go.

It seemed as though only intense pain like this could help him suppress his emotions and avoid an outburst.

“Trust me, Ben, if any one of you dare to lay a finger on Wendy today, I’ll make sure you regret being born.”

Every word that Jasper said was squeezed out of his clenched teeth.

Not far away, Dawson looked at Jasper with an extremely complicated look.

He was furious and equally anxious too.

However, this was the first time he saw Jasper behaving like that.

As a businessman, or even a scholar, Jasper had always been calm, unhurried, and gentle.

Life at the Top Chapter 481

This was a quality in Jasper that Dawson was most impressed with.

It was because Jasper was different from everyone else.

The aura of a scholarly businessman he carried could not be cultivated. It could only come naturally.

Right now, however, Jasper resembled a lion that had been completely infuriated. He no longer paid attention to being elegant and easy-going. What was left in him was bloodthirsty fury and resentment for his enemy.

“Hahaha!” Ben looked at Jasper with great delight.

“You know what, Jasper? I’ve been longing to see this expression of yours even in my dreams. This look on your face gives me so much pleasure!

“It feels good to see you so furious like you’re about to rip me apart!

“It sure is worth it to have done so many tedious things. Hahaha!”

As Ben said those words, he sneered maliciously. “But you don’t seem to get it, do you? Right now, I, Ben Hull, have the final say!”

Ben then turned his head to say to Hans, “Uncle Hans, don’t you want to get intimate with our gorgeous lady? Why don’t you show Jasper that we are men of our word.”

Hans laughed, his eyes gleaming with a lustful glow. He said as though he had been thirsting for some action for a very long time, "I was already impatient. I would've pounced on her a long time ago if it weren't for you!"

After saying those words, Hans turned around and approached Wendy, revealing a greedy and obsessed expression.

He was almost drooling.

Ben stepped aside with a laugh so that Jasper could see what was going on.

Wendy was quivering all over. She kept backing away into a corner, her eyes filled with horror and despair.

Hans laughed wildly, and while walking toward Wendy, he said, "You're the woman of my dreams. Seeing you now makes me realize just how vulgar other women are. Only a woman like you is worthy of me.

"Give yourself to me, gorgeous. I'll give you a great time!"

At this moment, Jasper roared abruptly, "Ben, Hans, I agree to all of your requests!"

Hans wore a disappointed look on his face, but he still turned to look at Ben.

Ben, whose eyes were gleaming with greed, looked at Jasper and said, "You will get it done within two hours! Remember, you only have two hours!"

Jasper took a deep breath and said, "I've signed the project transfer agreement. How do I give it to you? If I were you, I would want to see the papers signed with my own eyes. Otherwise, I could always just sign a fake document, right? When that happens, all your effort will be wasted, don't you think?"

Ben stared at Jasper, sneered, and said, "Are you trying to pull tricks on me?"

Jasper said coldly, "You can send someone to me and watch me sign the papers. You don't have to come forward on your own."

Ben's eyes flickered. He was seemingly considering whether there were any pitfalls in this proposal.

Jasper said calmly, "If you want to take a bite, then you will have to take some risk. If you can't even bear the risk, then don't even think about getting my project."

Ben sneered and said, "Go out right now and someone will contact you on the South Street Flyover.

"Remember, don't play tricks with me or I'll make sure you watch me and my uncle toy with your woman."

Jasper looked at Ben coldly and said, "I'll keep my word, but before that...

"If you lay a finger on her, I'll make this a living hell for you even when I die."

Although Ben was extremely rampant because he was holding the winning ticket at the moment, he could still feel a cold chill running down his spine when he heard Jasper's words and saw the look in his eyes.

He felt as though the God of Death had locked eyes on him.

A moment after, Ben sneered. "Why don't you worry about yourself first?!"

Having said that, Ben ended the video call straight away.

Life at the Top Chapter 482

The video call ended.

Jasper stood up suddenly, looked at Julian without a single expression on his face, and said, "Do you remember the address?"

Julian nodded and said, "Yes I do."

"Bring more men with you."

Dawson said suddenly.

Julian shook his head and said, "No, too many people can startle the enemy away. I have the confidence to subdue them all immediately."

When Jasper saw Julian's fiery gaze and how he stared at him as if seeking his permission, Jasper spent a few seconds mulling it over.

He believed and understood that Julian was trying to make up for his mistake, but this involved Wendy's safety.

Jasper had let his guard down once, so he must not attempt this a second time while putting Wendy's life at stake.

"Uncle Dawson, send a few of your men. They will stay outside to offer defense. Julian and I will go upstairs," Jasper said.

Dawson nodded and said, "That will be the best option."

“You can go straight away. I will send out the orders and they’ll follow behind you. They will know what to do.”

As Dawson said those words, he patted Jasper’s shoulder and said in a deep voice, “Take care of yourself. I’ll wait for your victorious return.”

Jasper nodded, pursed his lips, and took Julian out of the study with a blank expression.

Jasper did not say a word because he was suppressing his emotions.

He was afraid that his emotions that were on the brink of exploding could burst out completely if he said too much.

This was something that he wanted to leave for Ben’s and Hans’ enjoyment...

...

“South Street Flyover? Benny, are you really planning to return such a fine woman to Jasper?”

Hans blurted out after Ben switched off the webcam.

He did not care about Ben’s plans. He was only concerned about Wendy, the woman of supreme quality.

If Ben was truly going to make a proper deal with Jasper, then all the thoughts and desires he had over the last few days would be for naught, no?

Ben smirked maliciously before standing up and coming to Hans’ side, saying, “Uncle Hans, since I’ve invited you over, I don’t think it is appropriate to send you back without giving you anything in return.

“I want those three conditions fulfilled. As for Wendy, we must get a taste too, of course.”

Ben stared at Wendy who was cowering in a corner, staring at him in fright and fear. He laughed hysterically.

At this moment, Ben could not see how contorted his expression looked. Like a psychopath, he was no longer the elegant man he used to be.

Hans laughed after hearing what Ben said. He patted Ben on the shoulder and said, “Not bad. It would be a shame to return such a beauty to him for no reason.”

As he said those words, Hans stared at Wendy with extremely lustful eyes. He said, “It’s a shame that we can only toy with a woman like this a few times. I was hoping to lock her up and play with her for a period of time until I got tired of her.

“But I don’t think I’ll ever grow tired of a woman like that, though?”

As Wendy listened to the obscenities and looked at the lustful faces of the men when they stared at her, she was flustered and panicked.

Wendy was just a woman, after all. Any woman would instinctively feel panic and fear in situations like that.

Wendy, however, did not let fear overcome reason. She worked hard to calm herself down.

Screaming and begging for mercy were useless at this moment. Wendy found it beneath her dignity to beg Ben and Hans for mercy. In her opinion, that was more painful than death itself!

Life at the Top Chapter 483

Wendy watched for an opportunity as Ben and Hans laughed triumphantly. When the woman guarding her was in a daze, she charged toward the window abruptly.

Ben and Hans had yet to react when the woman called Fiona, who was in charge of watching over Wendy, noticed that something was wrong.

She was about to chase after her when Wendy ran with all her might and at lightning speed before arriving at the window in the blink of an eye.

“Don’t come near me or I will jump off!”

Wendy shouted at Fiona.

As she spoke, Wendy threatened to jump off the building. Fiona halted in her steps immediately and said to Wendy, “Don’t jump! I won’t come near you!”

At this moment, Ben and Hans finally realized what was going on.

Everything happened so fast and no one expected that Wendy, who had initially lost all power to resist, would suddenly have such an outburst of energy.

When Ben saw Wendy standing by the window and a turn of her body could send her falling off the building, his eyes twitched. He asked coldly, “Must you do this, Wendy?”

Wendy sneered. “I will not be tainted by you even if it means that I have to die!”

Hans let out a crude peal of laughter, saying, "How can you call this tainted? This is obviously something that you and I will feel very good about, don't you want it?"

Wendy felt sick to her stomach. "You pervert! You don't deserve to be a man! The sight of you sickens me!"

Hans stared at Wendy with a malicious grin. "Well, well, little witch, aren't you a spicy little pepper? I wonder if you will be as spicy when we're in bed together in a while?!"

"The fierier you are, the more I will like it!"

Wendy looked at Hans coldly and said, "I told you, I would rather jump off the building and die than let you succeed!"

Wendy's eyes were filled with determination when she said those words.

She knew that she was not in a situation where she could fight back. If the men in front of her rushed up to her, then she would most certainly jump.

In her opinion, she would rather die than let any other men aside from Jasper touch her.

She was dead serious about this.

While Hans was talking to Wendy, Ben secretly darted Fiona a glance.

Fiona received Ben's hint and stealthily took two steps toward Wendy.

At this moment, Wendy was fully focused on Ben and Hans for fear that they would rush up to her without warning, hence she did not notice Fiona's movements.

In just a moment of inattentiveness, Fiona seized the opportunity.

Fiona was born a martial artist, so she was much faster than Wendy. In just the blink of an eye, she grabbed hold of Wendy's wrist and dragged her away from the window.

Wendy screamed and was just about to put up a struggle when a slap landed on her face.

The slap sent Wendy crashing to the ground, and a trace of crimson blood flowed from the corner of her mouth.

Wendy turned her head and stared at Fiona with frosty eyes.

"Oh, look at this face. It's such a pity." Hans sneered maliciously and walked over.

He bent over and was about to touch Wendy's face that was imprinted with five bright red fingerprints.

"Touch me and I'll bite off my tongue."

Wendy did not sound emotional at all. Surprisingly, she was calm.

That same calmness exuded a strong determination and will, leaving no room for anyone to doubt the authenticity of her words!

Life at the Top Chapter 484

Hans' hand froze mid-air.

He could tell that Wendy was serious.

If he touched her, she would actually bite her tongue off and kill herself immediately.

Hans found himself in an awkward position.

He coveted Wendy's beauty, but he did not want to sleep with a corpse.

Also, if Wendy died here, it would pose a huge problem.

"Uncle Hans."

Ben did not want Wendy to die here, hence he patted Hans on the shoulder to help him out of the awkward situation.

"Let's not irritate her too much. We have all the time in the world anyway. Watch how I'll deal with her."

Hans was able to get out of the awkward position he was stuck in with Ben's help. After pulling his hand back, he sneered and said, "How spicy! I've never played with a woman as spicy as you!"

Ben smiled and pulled out a small plastic bag from his pocket, which he took out a pill from. He said, "I've already made preparations earlier. I bought this thing at a huge price."

“When a woman takes this pill, she will remain conscious, but she’ll lose strength in her limbs. Her entire body will be so soft it’s like she doesn’t have bones.

“When that happens, you will have no choice but to watch how we toy with you. Also, it’ll increase the sensitivity of your nerve receptors manyfold. That’s like taking ecstasy!”

Ben laughed and said.

Hans’ eyes lit up, and he sounded pleasantly surprised. “Why didn’t you take out this good stuff earlier?”

Ben sneered. “Good stuff should only be taken out in the end, Uncle Hans. Don’t you think it’s fun to make her go through the despairing process by giving her a bit of hope and then dashing it completely?”

Hans patted Ben on the shoulder and laughed. “Not bad. That’s why I always say I like you the best compared to all the other Hulls.”

Ben sniggered. “Of course. How am I supposed to survive out there if I don’t have any tricks up my sleeve? Do you really think I’m just a puppet?”

As he said those words, Ben laughed strangely. “Uncle Hans, I’ll let you go first. Once this woman takes the medicine, her body will be softer than a snake. You can pick any position you like. She’ll be extremely sensitive and can open her mouth to speak and scream but not resist.

“Think about it, behind those murderous eyes is a flushed face and contemptible expression. She may hate your guts but she has no choice but to let you do anything you want to her. Isn’t that enjoyment at its best?”

Hans’ breathing quickened when he listened to Ben’s words. He nodded his head, his entire body heating up as he said, “Not bad! What are you waiting for? Give her the pill!”

There was a touch of horror in Wendy's eyes. She knew that Ben was serious when it came to things like that.

Now that he had taken out the pill, she knew that the pill's efficacy would only grow stronger, not weaker.

At the thought of this, Wendy stopped hesitating. A touch of sadness and despair surged in her heart.

The next moment, she made a firm decision to bite her tongue off.

Fiona was seemingly prepared for this and raised her hand to pinch Wendy's chin, preventing her from closing her mouth.

"Want to die? You must be dreaming!" Ben roared with laughter and walked over with the pill. He leaned over to stare at Wendy, his expression contorted like a demon's.

"If you want to die, you will have to wait after both of us have had our fun with you!"

"You can only blame yourself for following the wrong man. This is all Jasper's fault!"

Wendy stared at Ben with ice-cold eyes. As her chin was being pinched by Fiona, it was difficult for her to speak. Despite that, she still said word by word, "Jasp will not spare you!"

Ben let out a burst of wild laughter after hearing what she said. "Your Jasp will get down on all four limbs before me in a while! Don't worry, I'll make sure to record it and show it to you. We can enjoy it together!"

Ben stared at Wendy's beautiful face, his entire soul quivering. He said gently in an almost perverted manner, "Say, you may be pretty and fine, but why must you act so high and lofty in front of me? Why did you choose Jasper?"

Ben's voice rose sharply. He was almost screaming hysterically.

"He's nothing but a piece of junk! He's just a bug! A bug that I can crush to death easily!

"None of this would've happened if you had chosen me. So don't blame me for all that's happening to you now—blame yourself!"

After saying those words, Ben stared fixedly at Wendy, his gaze revealing a touch of obsession. He suddenly smiled like a psychopath.

"Now that things have gotten to this point, I'll destroy you if I can't have you. Do you know why I invited my uncle over?"

"That's because I want to destroy you completely from top to bottom, from head to toe, completely and thoroughly. I want to become the nightmare of your life. Since you don't love me, I'll make you hate me. At least you'll never forget me that way. Hahaha!"

Wendy looked at Ben and said, "You've gone mad. You've gone completely mad! You pervert!"

Ben laughed arrogantly. "Yes, I've gone mad. Yes, I'm a pervert! But so what? I'm in control of you. This lunatic and pervert will do whatever he wants with you!

"Why don't you enjoy the next few hours to come? Trust me, this will be a nightmare that you will never forget. Similarly, Jasper will sink into endless pain in the next few hours. Hahahaha!

"I'd like to see if Jasper would still want you once he learns that you've been toyed with by my uncle and me in all sorts of ways.

"As for you, I'd like to know if you'd think back to how shameless you were underneath me when you see him after this? Hahaha!"

As Ben spoke, he had already impatiently pulled out the tiny pill from the plastic bag. He raised his hand to pop it into Wendy's mouth.

Wendy struggled desperately and resisted. She knew that everything would be over for her if she was fed the pill by force. A nightmare that was more painful than death would come!

Hans stood behind Ben and watched the scene unfold with a sneer. The passion in his heart was almost reaching a boiling point. He was eager to pounce on Wendy and have the time of his life.

Boom!

At this moment, the door of the room was smashed into pieces by a figure!

With a bang, there was a loud crash.

Life at the Top Chapter 485

The door was blasted into pieces, and the figure smashed its way in fiercely.

Coincidentally, the figure crashed into the back of Hans, who was already impatient from waiting.

Hans was completely caught off guard. He felt as though he was hit by a truck from behind and rolled to the ground from the strong force.

After rolling on the floor like a bottle for quite some time, he finally let out a tragic scream.

This turn of events was too abrupt!

The place was seething with tension.

Ben turned around subconsciously and saw Hans lying on the ground screaming. On the other hand, Aaron's limbs were twisted like ropes, and blood was spilling out of his mouth!

Aaron was the one who smashed the door in just now!

A surge of unease rose in Ben's heart. He turned around and saw Julian charging in from outside the door like a demon.

Standing behind Julian was a darker figure.

At the sight of Jasper appearing behind Julian, the first thought that popped up in Ben's heart was, 'No way!'

How did Jasper pinpoint his location in such a short period of time?

However, as soon as the thought arose and before he could order Fiona to pick Wendy up to use her as hostage, Julian had already whizzed over after letting out a furious roar.

At this moment, Julian was charging over with endless fury. He resembled a humanoid beast, so how could Ben possibly be his match?

Ben could not even catch Julian's shadow when he felt a sharp pain in his mandible. He felt his world spinning as he flew more than a meter into the sky. His head hit the ceiling hard before he crashed to the ground abruptly.

Ben's eyes dulled as he lay on the ground, unable to get back on his feet.

Fiona was heard screaming hysterically. Ben turned his head to look with much difficulty and saw Julian grab Fiona's hand that was on Wendy's chin forcefully before twisting it 360 degrees like a rope.

Fiona had slender arms, but it was not a problem when dealing with three to five burly men. However, at this moment, it went without saying that her arm formed an extremely weird-looking and horrifying shape.

The bone on her elbow had broken through her flesh, the bone exposed. Blood was dripping from her pale white bones.

Julian then grabbed Fiona's throat with his other hand and lifted her entire body.

Fiona wanted to scream because she was being strangled but could not. The intense pain simmered in her chest, making her feel as though she was about to faint.

This was not over yet.

Jasper hurried in, turned a blind eye to the hellish execution ground, and rushed straight to Wendy.

He reached out and held Wendy firmly in his arms.

It was like he had found a lost treasure.

When he saw Wendy safe and sound, Jasper could finally put his mind at rest a little.

"Sorry I'm late. You must've suffered greatly."

Jasper said with a trembling voice.

As soon as Wendy saw Jasper, she felt as though all the pain she suffered was worth it.

“I was right. I knew you’d do your best to find me and protect me.” Wendy’s sobs sounded extremely weak.

After going through all the mental turmoil, Wendy felt as though she was put in a trance. Her entire body was worn out.

Had she not held on, she would have fainted a long time ago.

Jasper looked at the frail-looking Wendy. God knew what torment or suffering she had been through in just a few short hours.

He raised his trembling hand and covered the palm print on Wendy’s face. Jasper’s gaze was dark and cold. Like a frosty and treacherous spirit, he wanted to destroy everything.

Life at the Top Chapter 486

Despite that, he sounded extremely gentle. “Who did this?”

Wendy did not answer, but instead, she raised her arms and wrapped them around Jasper’s neck tightly.

Wendy had always been pampered since childhood and never suffered any hardships in life. At this moment, she finally shed all pretenses and cried out bitterly.

This woman might look soft and weak, but she could be strong and tough too—much tougher than any girl her age.

She would try and solve everything herself no matter what happened instead of going to Dawson and Jasper first thing itself.

This was her first time being kidnapped, and even though she was nearly ruined by Ben and Hans, both of who were extremely vicious and almost sadistic men, she knew when to advance and retreat without losing a sense of propriety.

When she saw Jasper, however, she could not hold herself back anymore.

She was just a girl in her 20s after all and would experience fear and terror just like everyone else.

Wendy trembled like a frightened little rabbit in Jasper’s arms, and her extremely aggrieved cries made his heart quiver.

Guilt and regret washed over him like a tide.

From the day he was reincarnated until now, fear was nonexistent even when he first started investing. He had used up all of his savings and one and only house loan, putting all of it into the futures market. He risked having his reputation swept away if he was not careful enough.

In Harbor City, fear was nonexistent even when he hosted a 100-billion-dollar rescue plan, running the risk of losing everything if he took one wrong step. Everything he fought so hard for would go down the drain.

In Swallow Capital, fear was nonexistent when he faced the Turners and the oppression of the aristocrats.

Right now, however, fear had washed over Jasper.

He feared that something would happen to Wendy.

He feared that irreversible things would happen.

Wendy was crying. After experiencing emotional turmoil and finally being able to vent out her feelings, she passed out.

“Guards!” Jasper held Wendy in his arms and shouted outside the door.

Two female bodyguards standing outside the door rushed in immediately.

“Mr. Laine,” the female bodyguards called out to him.

“Take Ms. Wendy into the car to get some rest. Has the doctor arrived?” Jasper said solemnly.

“The doctor has arrived and is waiting downstairs,” the two female bodyguards answered, carefully helping Wendy up.

Jasper stood up once the female bodyguards carried the unconscious Wendy downstairs.

He looked at Hans and then at Ben.

After taking a deep breath, he asked softly, "How do you wish to die?"

Hans was sweating profusely from the pain, but he sneered when he heard what Jasper said, paying no heed to it.

In his opinion, Jasper did not have the guts to lay a finger on him.

Ben, on the other hand, stared fixedly at Jasper and exclaimed, "How is this possible?! How did you find this place?!"

Jasper pretended as though he did not hear what Ben just said. He walked up to him, lifted his leg, and stepped on Ben's palm while muttering, "Was this the hand you used to slap Wendy?"

As soon as he said those words, Jasper stomped on Ben's palm and began grinding his foot hard.

"Arghhh!"

A bone-piercing pain gushed forth from the palm of Ben's hand and shot straight to his heart. He opened his mouth and let out a heart-wrenching scream.

The shrill cries could chill the hearts of those who heard it.

Life at the Top Chapter 487

The flesh of Ben's palm was ground vigorously by the heel of the leather shoe.

This degree of pain was one that hardly anyone could stand.

Ben's palm was lacerated and bloody at once.

Fresh crimson blood pooled around his palm on the floor, followed by the sound of cracking bones under the crushing and grinding of Jasper's leather shoe.

Ben subconsciously put up a fierce resistance, his other hand hitting and scratching Jasper's trouser leg frantically. He was trying to get Jasper to loosen his foot.

Despite that, Jasper's eyes grew even more sinister and colder as he stared at Ben with a blank expression. It was as if he was staring at a corpse. "Not this hand? Is it the other one?"

Julian tossed aside Fiona, who had now lost her ability to resist, and walked over. He raised his leg and kicked Ben's shoulder blades.

Ben let out a blood-curdling scream, his other hand going limp as well. Jasper raised his leg to step on that palm too.

Ben's face was filled with horror.

"No, I wasn't the one who slapped her!"

Ben spoke faster than ever before. He said frantically, "It was Fiona! That woman did it!"

“Wendy tried to jump off the building earlier so Fiona slapped her. I didn’t do it!”

Jasper looked at Ben without an expression on his face. He waited for him to finish before saying calmly, “Julian.”

Julian understood what he wanted at once.

Like Aaron, Fiona was simply a thug. A person like that was not worth having Jasper take action himself.

“Cripple both her hands.”

When Jasper’s voice fell, Julian had already walked up to the horrified-looking Fiona. Before she could say anything, Julian raised his hands and grabbed her arms.

Click!

Comminuted fractures of the shoulder blades on both sides.

That was not enough for Julian to release his pent-up anger. He grabbed Fiona’s slightly intact right hand and said indifferently, “This is the hand, right?”

Having said that, Julian crushed Fiona’s fingers one by one as she let out a horrible shriek.

Although her shoulder blades had comminuted fractures, her pain nerves were still intact, hence Fiona could feel the intense pain of her fingers being crushed little by little.

The pain nearly knocked Fiona out. She tried to resist, but her left hand was already twisted, not to mention her crushed shoulder blades. She had lost all ability to resist.

She could only watch as Julian crippled her.

Fiona had given up on all hope completely. She knew that it was all over.

Under the dual stimulation of her mind and body, Fiona spat out a mouthful of blood and fainted on the floor.

Ben saw the tragic state Fiona was in and felt fear enveloping her.

“What are you doing, Jasper?!” Ben screamed.

Jasper did not say anything. He bent down and grabbed Ben by the collar, lifting him from the ground. He then made a fist with his right hand. He exhausted all of his strength and hurled a punch on Ben’s face.

It was an extremely powerful punch.

Jasper had not practiced martial arts before, but he was now in the prime of his life. He had been exercising since his reincarnation, hence his punch was not one that ordinary people could stand.

Ben did not scream when he took Jasper’s punch. Instead, he fell backward.

Before he landed on the ground, blood spurted out of his mouth first.

Several white teeth were scattered on the pool of blood on the ground. The contrast of crimson and white had formed a ghastly sight.

“Huff... Huff...”

Ben lay on the ground, breathing hard.

His mouth was filled with blood, half of his face was numb, and every time he breathed, he would take in air that smelled strongly of metallic blood.

Ben raised his eyelids and saw Jasper walking toward him. With his mouth full of blood, he suddenly let out a smile.

He was no longer afraid or terrified at this moment.

Ben's smile looked like a blood bag that had been zipped open, horrifying and blood-chilling.

"Do you know what I regret the most, Jasper? I regret not taking action earlier and having a good time with your woman—what a f*cking regret!"

His words turned Jasper's expression dark and gloomy, though it was already blank to begin with.

"You will soon begin to regret more things, such as why you even came into this world." Jasper's voice was bone-piercingly cold.

Ben rolled over and lay on his back as blood flowed out of the corners of his mouth. He laughed with much difficulty to express his nonchalance and arrogance.

"Bring it on then! Let's see what you've got. Do you think I'm afraid!? Well let me tell you something, I'm not afraid at all! Why don't you try and kill me? Do you think you're bold enough to do it?"

"If you kill me, you'll have to pay with your life!"

Ben seemed to be certain that Jasper would not be bold enough to kill him, hence he laughed wildly. "You can only beat me up, then what? I can always find another chance!"

"This is the price you have to pay for offending me!"

"I want you to live under my shadow, forever!"

“You... Mm... Arghh!”

Ben was halfway through his sentence when Jasper kicked him in the mouth, kicking all the words back in.

This kick nearly sent Ben off the ground. His head was leaning backward and more blood spurted from his mouth. This time, even more of his teeth came off.

The intense pain contorted Ben’s face with blood dripping from it. He clung to the ground with all his might, glaring ferociously and bitterly at Jasper. His eyes were filled with madness.

“Jasper.”

Hans had no choice but to speak. He struggled to his feet and stood in front of Jasper.

Hans took a deep breath, gritted his teeth, and endured the pain on his body. He said to Jasper while gasping for air, “I’m sure you’ve vented out your anger by now. I advise you to stop. If something happens to my nephew, then even the gods can’t save you!”

Having said that, Hans narrowed his eyes slightly and stared at Jasper before sneering. “You can’t deal with the Hulls alone.”

Jasper looked at Hans coldly and said, “You once said that you’ve messed with many women before, right?”

Hans smiled triumphantly and said, “That’s nothing. I haven’t had the chance to mess with real women of fine quality yet, though. It’s okay, I still have plenty of chances in the future.”

The threat in Hans’ words was evident.

He stared at Jasper and said, “You should stop. I know we’ve crossed the line this time, but what can you do? Worst comes to worst, we’ll compensate and make negotiations with you. If you refuse to let this drop, then you will only suffer losses in the end!”

Life at the Top Chapter 488

After the initial panic, Hans was no longer afraid.

He had experienced similar things before.

Hans had plenty of experience getting caught on the spot when he tried to use dirty tricks to mess with other people’s wives or daughters.

So what?

He was a Hull.

He was Ian’s younger brother.

The Hulls were an integral component of the Haddock Chamber of Commerce.

He had experienced many things and settled all of them with money and authority.

As time passed, Hans understood how things worked.

It was no big deal for him to mess with women, not when he had attained equal status such as the Hulls...

The punishment he would receive was nothing more than compensation and compromises.

When the other party had received benefits, they would know better than to fight the Hulls to the end.

In Hans' opinion, the incident today was no exception.

This was Jasper Laine, but so what?

If a businessman wanted to survive in this field, he would know better than to fight the Hulls to the end for the sake of a woman.

Hans knew that he held the winning card.

The Hulls could just compensate them for everything that happened today in the follow-up negotiations.

He did not realize that Jasper's gaze was getting increasingly colder as he stared at him.

"Julian!"

Jasper let out a low growl.

"Yes!"

Julian's nerves were taut, ever ready to take action.

As soon as Jasper gave his orders, he could not care less who the person standing in front of him was.

Even if it was a man of high esteem, he would kill that man first before anything else.

The viciousness in Julian's heart was no less than that of Jasper's.

In Julian's opinion, this was all a result of his negligence.

He was even mentally prepared to kill everyone present and surrender himself to the authorities after that.

This was all to repay Jasper and Wendy for their help and to make up for his mistake!

"Castrate him."

Jasper's words were like a steel knife, piercing deeply into Hans' heart.

Hans' complexion changed for the first time ever. He took a step back in horror and raged, "Don't you dare, Jasper Laine!"

Up until now, he still thought that Jasper was only intimidating him. Once he had forced himself to calm down, Hans softened his tone slightly.

"Don't act on impulse, Jasper. The Hulls will not spare you if you do this. This means vengeance! Is it really necessary for you to do this for a woman? Think about it!"

Jasper looked at Hans and said coldly, "I'm a man who will not attack unless I'm attacked. If I'm attacked, I will certainly return the attack tenfold. Unfortunately, both of you have infuriated me completely.

"I didn't even know that I could come so close to losing my mind getting so furious about one thing..."

"Benefits? Compromise? They can all go and f*ck themselves!"

“The Hulls are not worth making compromises with. Even if a man of high esteem is the one standing before me today, I will still cripple you first!”

Jasper seemed to be talking to Ben and Hans, but at the same time, he seemed to be talking to himself.

A man needed to learn how to submit to reality.

A man would lick the dust before society.

A man would yield in exchange for a meal on the table.

In order to survive.

In order to live.

It was because he needed to bow down for his family, and only by doing so could he keep them safe.

Life at the Top Chapter 489

Just like how Jasper would talk and laugh with the Turners and pretend to be polite with Kennedy, someone he had a constant dispute with, even though they both wished to trample each other to death.

This was the adult's world, where interests were paramount. The higher one's opponent's level was, the less likely it was for them to tear each other apart.

If his family was no longer around, why would he still need to f*cking compromise?

Today, Jasper wanted the whole world to know...

That if anyone offended him, he would flip the table straight away and bring everyone down with him!

“Are you deaf, Julian?!”

Jasper’s roar brought Julian back from his reverie.

Julian growled and rushed up to Hans.

Hans was filled with horror. At this very moment, he finally realized that Jasper was serious and not just trying to intimidate him.

He was serious about doing it.

“Don’t, Jasper! No!”

Hans only had the time to say this before getting kicked on the lower abdomen by Julian.

It was an extremely forceful kick.

Hans’ stopped begging for mercy immediately as if someone had pressed the pause button.

His eyes widened, his mouth dropped open, and his wide eyes dulled.

In pitch darkness, he felt a piercing pain in his groin area.

The bone-piercing pain rose from his lower abdomen, spreading all over Hans’ limbs in an instant. There seemed to be a chord in his head, and under the intense pain, it snapped at once.

The pain was indescribable. He firmly clenched his injured groin area with his hands, his entire body arching in pain.

Hans' mouth was wide open. He tried to scream to express his pain, but no matter how hard he tried, he could only make huffing sounds from his throat.

Hans crashed to the ground on his side, his body twitching as though he was having epilepsy.

His face was flushed, his veins were throbbing, and huge beads of sweat filled his face.

Compared to the physical pain, Hans found it much harder to accept the fact that he could never use his lower body to commit sin again.

This realization was more painful than death for Hans who found pleasure in messing with women.

Jasper watched Hans pass out with a cold gaze and turned to look at Ben.

"It's your turn now."

Jasper murmured, squatting down in front of Ben whose face was now covered in blood. He said flatly, "The hatred in my heart has finally dissipated a little, but I still won't spare you so easily or it'll be a shame to waste all your effort in putting this show together."

Ben looked at Jasper and laughed hysterically.

His laughter echoed in the empty room, sounding eerie and terrifying.

Ben laughed to the point that he could hardly breathe before saying, "Bring it on. C'mon, kill me. Hurry up. Kill me. Hahaha..."

Julian walked up to Jasper, stared at Ben, and said in a deep voice, "Let me do it, Jasper."

"Are you planning to kill him?" Jasper asked calmly.

Julian said solemnly, "I'm not afraid of going to prison or shooting myself with a gun. I will bear all of it."

"It's not your turn to take responsibility for this," Jasper said flatly.

"Do you think that by doing so you can make up for your mistakes? Let me tell you that it's far from enough. You'd better stand there. Don't do anything without my command!"

Julian's body quivered as he looked at Jasper.

This big man's eyes turned pink, and he felt a lump in his throat. He clenched his fist firmly, unable to utter a word.

He knew that Jasper was trying to protect him. Jasper did not want him to go to prison for this.

Murdering someone could cost him his life.

What more if that person was Ben?

The Hulls were typical despots.

If Ben was murdered here, punishment would be carried out no matter who did it.

"For many people, killing him is the most merciful thing in the world, so how can I possibly let him have it easy?" Jasper said indifferently.

“Whereas for Ben, he has enjoyed the sense of superiority that came with being the son of an aristocrat his whole life. Don’t you think it’s relatively thrilling to see him lose everything and live on the streets one day rather than killing him?”

“Call Ian. Ask him to get here within half an hour.

“Even if the gods take the Hulls’ side, I will still tear them apart and throw them into chaos!”

Life at the Top Chapter 490

At the entrance of Warsaw Community, two cars slowly pulled over on the side of the road.

Sitting in the second car, Ian glanced calmly at a few cars that were parked not far away.

These cars had uniform sequential number plates, and each car was heavily guarded by several well-trained and serious-looking men.

Norman, who was sitting next to Ian, frowned slightly. He said solemnly, “Now that’s a tiger’s lair!

“What is Jasper trying to do? Why did he ask you to come to such a strange place?”

Ian said with a sullen expression, “I don’t know, but I have a feeling that something really bad is about to happen.”

Norman sneered and said, “What? You think he’s going to kill us? He won’t do that unless he wants to kill himself.”

Ian said flatly, “I don’t think he will. No matter how fierce competitions get in business, there’s always a rule. Even if we are openly trying to give him trouble, we will eventually find ways to solve it using business solutions. The same goes for him if he wants to give us trouble.”

Norman said with a frown, “But from the look of this place as well as the men in the cars, I don’t think he’s going to play by the rules. I think I should lead the bodyguards in front and go up with you.”

Ian shook his head and said, “No, that will only cause us to sink lower. Since he wants me to arrive within half an hour, I’ll go up and see what kind of tricks he’s trying to pull.

“Okay then. I’ll wait for you here. Give me a call if something happens and I’ll lead our men upstairs. I don’t think Jasper is that bold,” Norman said.

Ian was just about to get out of the car when he thought of something and dialed a number after taking out his phone.

However, the cold and consistent voice of the operator made Ian frown.

“Still can’t get in touch with Benny?” Norman asked, knowing who Ian was calling.

Ian nodded with a sullen expression and then suppressed the unease in his heart. He said, “Not just him, but even Hans isn’t picking up his phone. It’s like the two of them have disappeared.”

Norman said with a smile, “You still don’t understand Hans’ character, do you? They must have gone somewhere to party and have fun. They’re probably still lying on top of women right now.”

Ian snorted, saying, “They’re uncle and nephew too—how ridiculous!”

Having said that, Ian pushed the door open and walked toward Warsaw Community.

As soon as Ian appeared, he immediately attracted the attention of the bodyguards Jasper had brought.

They knew the situation well. One of the bodyguards walked up to Ian and said with a faint smile on his face, "Mr. Ian, Mr. Laine wants us to show you the way when you arrive."

"I'd like to see what sort of tricks you're trying to pull this time," Ian sneered and followed the bodyguards into the community.

Ordinary communities built before the 2000s were not equipped with elevators, so Ian followed the bodyguards up the stairs.

When they arrived on the second floor, Ian heard a shrill cry coming from upstairs.

The cries sounded extremely distinct because they came straight from the top of Ian's head on the third floor.

It was precisely of its clarity that Ian could tell it was his brother's voice!

What followed the scream was crying and cursing as well as begging for mercy.

Ian could vaguely hear his son's voice as well.

At this moment, Ian was suddenly flustered.

He started running, pushing aside the bodyguards who were standing in his way and rushing upstairs with a sullen expression.

Door 303 was closed, but Ian was able to push the door open easily and see what was going on inside.

What he saw made him gasp.

There were bloodstains everywhere, and the place looked like a massacre site.

Both Aaron and Fiona, the bodyguards he was familiar with, were thrown in one corner like two balls of meat. Crimson blood constantly flowed out from underneath their bodies.

If it were not for the rising and falling of their bodies from their breathing, Ian would think that they were already dead.

This was not the most horrifying of all.

The most horrifying thing of all was that he saw a stranger currently stepping on his brother without a single expression on his face.

Hans' face was bruised and swollen. He was holding onto the man's leg desperately, begging for mercy.

Although it seemed as though Hans had not suffered any trauma, his pale face and expression told Ian that Hans had suffered some sort of inhumane torture.

Most importantly, Ian saw his son Ben lying on the ground with his hands badly mangled and bloody. His body was trembling and convulsing constantly.

The strangest thing of all was that even though Ben had suffered such horrible treatment, he did not cry or scream, but instead, he was laughing hysterically.

On his blood-filled face was a ferocious smile, and the glint in his eyes revealed a deep-seated madness.

“Hans! Benny!”

Ian screamed.

Ian was just a wealthy businessman, after all. He had never seen anything as horrifying as this his whole life.

Had it not been for the challenges he faced in the business world all these years, which had helped toughen his heart, his legs would have turned to jelly the moment he saw this hellish scene.

Hans, who was being tortured so badly that he was eager to die immediately, turned his head around with much difficulty. The moment he saw Ian, the man in his 30s cried out immediately.

“Save me, Brother. Ask him to stop torturing me. Just kill me already. Hurry up and save me!”

Although Ian had always hated it when his brother committed all sorts of outrages, blood was still thicker than water. At the sight of the miserable condition Hans was in, as well as the state his son was in, Ian could feel himself going mad from the rage.

He turned his head abruptly, staring at Jasper who was sitting on the couch. The man was looking at him calmly and unhurriedly. Ian roared, “How dare you play dirty, Jasper Laine?! If I don’t make you pay for this today, then I swear that I, Ian Hull, am not a man!”

Life at the Top Chapter 491

Jasper was all the calmer when faced with the furious Ian.

Although Jasper had vented out a portion of his anger on Ben and Hans, that did not mean Jasper would let this matter drop just like that.

Who gave Ben and Hans the right to touch Wendy?

Just because they were born into the Hull family, they felt secure in the knowledge that they had the Hulls to fall back upon, hence they could do anything they wanted without consequences.

Like what Jasper said earlier, this time, he would tear the Hulls apart and throw them into chaos.

It was only by doing so would he be able to impede a future disaster.

He could also use this punishment as an example to warn his past, current, and future opponents.

If they wanted to deal with him, sure. They should just be blunt about their actions and intentions and take the gloves off.

However, for anyone who tried to touch his woman and cross the line, then Jasper's craziest revenge would await them!

Jasper still could not let it go, and he would not stop until he ended the Hulls!

"Make me pay?"

“Your brother and son are currently paying the price, and in my opinion, this is still far from enough.”

Jasper sounded calm and indifferent, not even remotely stirred by Ian’s infuriated roar.

Ian stared at Jasper with eyes full of anger and hatred. He pointed at Ben and Hans lying on the ground. At the moment, they looked nothing like humans. Ian was so furious that he laughed aloud. “Can you at least give a more decent excuse? What did they do to deserve this?”

“Do you even know the rules, Jasper? Business matters stay in the business field. If you’re bold enough to attack them today, I will use the same method to retaliate against you tomorrow!”

“You broke the rules first, so don’t blame me for not warning you!”

Jasper did not intend to have a meaningless argument with Ian. He motioned to Julian with his eyes.

After taking Jasper’s hint, he lifted Hans from his feet, tossed him to Ian, and said in a low voice, “Tell him all the things both of you have done!”

Julian’s words sounded like the curse of a devil at the moment, so how could Hans possibly defy him?

Almost immediately after Julian finished speaking, Hans made a clean breast of all the things he and Ben had done.

Ian’s expression grew grimmer and more sullen as Hans spoke.

Ian gritted his teeth, glaring at Hans and Ben while saying incredulously, “You... You!”

“I can’t believe you did something this serious behind my back!”

When he heard that Hans and Ben had colluded to kidnap Wendy and even nearly raped her, he felt as though he was about to have a heart attack.

Actually, the incident itself was not terrifying.

The most terrifying thing of all was that they had done something wrong and even got caught red-handed by Jasper.

If Hans and Ben had succeeded in carrying out the deed, Ian might be furious, but he would not do anything to punish them.

In a sense, the two of them would have successfully dealt a heavy blow to Jasper.

If that was the case, what Ian had to consider next was how to deal with Jasper’s revenge.

However, things were different now.

They had failed to carry out their evil deeds.

Similar to burglary, they were caught red-handed by the owner before they could even steal anything. The burglary had now turned into a robbery.

It was a completely different concept.

At this moment, even the astute and scheming Ian felt a little flustered.

However, Hans could not care less anymore. He crawled on the ground and held Ian’s thigh firmly. His face was all snotty and teary as he said, “I know I was wrong, Brother. They’re no humans. They drove Benny crazy and castrated me! You must save us.

“I’m your brother, and Benny is your son. You can’t just stand there and do nothing!”

As Ian listened to Hans, he raised his head abruptly only to see blood and flesh on Hans’ lower abdomen.

What was more horrifying than that was that from the moment he stepped in through the door, Ben had only been laughing the whole time. Not only was he laughing, but his gaze was also turning duller and duller.

Ben’s reaction made Ian feel as though his heart had been hit by a boulder.

Anger had set his sanity on fire.

Ian raised his head and glared at Jasper with bloodshot eyes, roaring in a hoarse voice, “Jasper Laine, you should have come to me regardless of the things they did! How could you attack them in private?!”

“You even castrated my brother and drove my son crazy?!”

“You have committed an unforgivable crime!”

“I have committed an unforgivable crime indeed!”

Jasper stood up suddenly, staring at Ian while raising his voice as well.

“So what if you’re the Hulls? Do you really think the Hulls own the whole world?”

“If your brother and your son have the guts to do this to my woman, then I don’t mind turning the Hulls upside down!”

“Do you think I called you here to hear you lecture me? I’m here to tell you, Ian Hull, that this isn’t the end yet!”

Ian's chest rose and fell sharply as he glared at Jasper. There was nowhere to vent out the pent-up anger inside of him, and the congestion nearly had him spitting out a mouthful of blood.

"You want to turn the Hulls upside down, do you? Bravo!

"You're pretty gutsy, eh, Jasper? I wonder if your ability even matches up to your words?!"

"You'd better listen up then. The Hulls will not let this matter drop! My brother has been castrated, and if anything happens to Benny, I will make sure to bury you alive!"

After hearing Ian finishing his sentence with a blank expression, Jasper suddenly let out a chuckle.

From the huge contrast in Jasper's expression, Ian felt as though something very bad was about to happen.

He would rather see Jasper roaring insanely than to see him so calm all of a sudden.

An opponent who had lost his mind was far easier to deal with than an opponent who could remain calm in the face of anger.

At this moment, Ian suddenly wondered if he could even walk out of Room 303 intact.

The idea of it had made Ian's nerves extremely taut.

If Jasper could bring himself to torture Hans and Ben to this extent, then he would have no scruples about leaving him with a 'gift' either.

At the thought of this, Ian quietly stretched his hand into his pocket and grabbed his phone. He had decided to notify Norman immediately when something happened so he could send someone over to rescue him.

Soon after that, however, the words Jasper said made Ian realize how wrong he was.

How very wrong indeed.

He had underestimated the terror that Jasper was capable of causing.

“Say, how many years of prison sentence do you think your brother and your son would get if I call the cops now?”

Life at the Top Chapter 492

Killing was always the most low-class solution to a problem for truly ambitious and ruthless characters.

Compared to killing, torturing was a more effective way.

Take for example, Jasper knew very well that when dealing with Hans and Ben, killing them would only help him vent out his anger momentarily.

After a moment of thrill, he would then face endless problems.

There were not many heroes today that could rob the rich to help the poor unlike in ancient times. It could cost him his life if he murdered someone.

Moreover, this was not in line with Jasper’s idea of putting them through utter misery.

This was the same for Ian.

Jasper could easily order Julian to cripple Ian.

What then?

The Hulls would still exist.

Ian would still carry out his revenge after that.

Therefore, Jasper had not planned to lay a finger on Ian from the beginning.

Ian was different from Hans and Ben. He was not a direct participant in this incident, nor did he have any knowledge of this incident before it happened.

Jasper was not trying to give Ian a way out, but instead, he wanted to rain blows on the Hulls via Ian.

It was only when the Hulls had nothing left that Ian and his family would finally feel pain and regret.

After hearing what Jasper said, Ian was abruptly stunned. He stared fixedly at Jasper and sneered. "Call the cops? Are you bold enough to call the cops after what you put them through?"

Jasper said calmly, "We're all adults, so stop having childish thoughts like that. Did you see me do these things with your own eyes?"

"No one died. This incident could very much turn into a scene where my men saw an unlawful act and bravely stepped forward to help out. That led to both parties getting injured. Maybe my men would even be awarded for their bravery?"

Jasper's words sent deep chills down Ian's spine.

He must admit that Jasper was capable of doing so.

Southeast Province was Jasper's stronghold after all.

More importantly, Dawson was there to back Jasper up.

That old fox had not shown up, but he had been in the Southeast Province for decades. Who knew how powerful he actually was?

Ian, who had been expanding his business in Waterhoof City for a long time, was very much aware of this.

No one was deliberately distorting the truth. What Hans and Ben did was an obvious fact, and a bit of investigation was enough to verify their crimes.

This was where the Hulls suffered the most disadvantage.

After weighing the pros and cons for a few seconds, Ian took a deep breath. He looked at Jasper coldly and asked, "What are you planning to do?"

He knew that there was still room for negotiations seeing how Jasper did not call the cops the first thing itself.

This so-called 'negotiation' was sure to cost the Hulls greatly.

In the face of Jasper's overt plot, Ian had no choice but to jump inside despite knowing that there was a trap in front of him.

Unless he was able to bring himself to watch his brother and son getting tortured then later thrown into prison.

"Within three days, the Hulls will get lost from Southeast Province."

Life at the Top Chapter 493

Jasper stated his conditions.

Ian nearly fainted from the lack of oxygen when he heard what Jasper said.

“I’ve dumped 500 million into the Southface River Project, and after adding the penalty fee for breaching the contract, my loss will stand at one billion at least. I have to leave just because you asked me to?!”

Jasper said calmly, “That’s your problem. You can most certainly ignore me, but one thing for sure is that I’ll throw your brother and your son into prison.”

“You!”

Ian was furious. He pointed at Jasper, almost wishing he could skin the man before him alive.

Jasper looked at Ian calmly and said, “This is just the first step. If you can’t even take this, then I advise you to dissolve all of the Hull family’s industries and hide far away.”

Ian was so furious he laughed aloud. “Ha! You want to drive us away and exterminate all of us, huh? Don’t forget that the Hulls are based in Waterhoof City, Jasper Laine. Your petty little trick isn’t enough to get rid of the Hulls!”

Jasper said impatiently, “I will only ask you once. Can you or can you not get out of the Southeast Province in three days?!”

Ian gritted his teeth, his body trembling slightly from excessive anger and agitation.

He really wanted to yell at Jasper's face and then turn around to walk away.

However, Hans, who was on the ground begging for mercy, and Ben, who had now stopped laughing but was sitting on the ground dazedly, made it impossible for him to walk away.

After a long silence, Ian gritted his teeth and said, "Okay, I agree to your condition!"

Ian endured the great humiliation and grief when he said those words. He stared at Jasper and said, "But I will not let this drop so easily! Soon, I will make you regret everything that you've done!"

Jasper sneered. "You and your son have said similar things many times. Aren't you sick of it at all?"

"I hope you keep your word because I will not let this matter drop so easily either. When I say that I will commit an unforgivable crime against the Hulls, I will make sure to do it in a clear-cut manner. I will be happy to see you put up a fight because the more you struggle, the more satisfied I will be. How will I put you in despair otherwise?"

Jasper walked off with Julian immediately after saying those words.

Ian stood alone in the room, so furious that he nearly spat out blood.

He looked at Hans and Ben lying on the ground with an exasperated expression. He wanted so much to lecture them for spoiling everything and being unable to achieve anything, though when he saw the wretched states they were in, the words simply hung at the tip of his tongue.

He knew that it was useless to complain now. It was better for him to think of what to do next instead.

"Benny, wake up. Can you recognize me?"

Ian walked up to Ben, knelt down, and shook Ben's shoulders while speaking to him.

There was finally a reaction in Ben's sluggish gaze as it slowly focused on Ian's face.

Ian was about to speak when Ben pushed Ian away abruptly, screaming, "Jasper! You're Jasper! I won't spare you! I'm going to kill you!"

As he said those words, Ben charged forward.

At this moment, Ben's bloodstained face looked extremely eerie. He seemed to have mistaken Ian for Jasper and wanted to kill him.

Ian was astounded, and it was also at this moment that he heard a bunch of footsteps. Norman had run upstairs with his men.

Norman was taken aback when he saw the scene in the room.

He quickly ordered the bodyguards to pull the maniacal Ben away, helped Ian up, and said with a trembling voice, "What... What happened?"

Ian's eyes were filled with tears as he watched the guards keeping Ben under control as he continued to struggle. His voice quivered when he said, "Hurry, send them to the hospital. Benny... Benny has gone crazy."

Norman's heart started beating wildly. He ordered his men to call the ambulance and turned his head to say to Ian, "I saw Jasper leading his men away. What happened?"

Ian gritted his teeth, a malicious glow glinting in his eyes. He growled, yelling, "That brat destroyed my brother and my son! He has destroyed them completely! I want him dead!"

Life at the Top Chapter 494

Jasper did not go anywhere nor did he do anything for the following two days, opting to stay by Wendy's side instead where he channeled all his focus on her.

He relayed the details of what had happened to Dawson after he returned.

Out of all the details was his plan on how to deal with the aftermath of the problem.

At that, Dawson merely told him to leave the matters of the Hull family in the Southeast Province alone.

It then dawned on Jasper the power his future father-in-law had in the Southeast Province.

It was just as Ian had worried. Dawson's power had been running deep in the Southeast Province for decades, and while he did not flaunt it all the time, his power was beyond imagination when he decided to use it.

"Jasper, according to the latest news, all of the Hull family's power and funds have been pulled out from the market in the Southeast Province."

Julian reported to Jasper in the backyard of the villa.

Jasper was focused on peeling the apple in his hands. The smooth apple continued to turn in his hand while the long strip of its skin fluttered in the air. The peel seemed moments away from breaking, but it did not happen even after he had completely skinned the apple.

After the apple was skinned, Jasper then cut it into small slices and fed them to Wendy before he replied, "This future father-in-law of mine sure is powerful."

Wendy had completely recovered after two days of rest.

The slap was the only physical injury she suffered, and she had spent the two days recovering from the emotional shock she received.

After all, Wendy was not just any woman. She had already readjusted and recovered from her emotional trauma as much as she could in the shortest amount of time.

Hearing Jasper, she chewed the apple as she replied nonchalantly, "My dad didn't do anything at all yesterday. All he did was sit in the office of the city's government for an entire day and the results are seen today."

"The Hull family has invested quite a bit in the Southeast Province. So with them pulling out, not only would the Hull family lose everything, but the Southeast Province will also be unable to come out of this unaffected.

"Ignoring everything else, the projects that have already begun are doomed to halt indefinitely. Even though the groundwork for the construction in the North Bank has just been completed, that's as far as its progress will go. So there's no way the city's government will allow such a thing to happen.

"That's why someone has to stand up to give the city's government a direction. The city's government no longer has the right to decide what happens anymore, and since there's no way the conflict between our families can be resolved, their only option left is to choose one of the two families to remain.

"In comparison to the Hulls, after weighing our odds against theirs, it's not a difficult choice the city's government has to make."

Jasper analyzed it clearly.

After speaking, he then saw Dawson walk in.

“Uncle Schuler.”

“Dad.”

Both Jasper and Wendy greeted at the same time.

Dawson nodded and smiled at his daughter before asking kindly, “How are you feeling? Any better?”

Wendy nodded. “Much better. I didn’t really get injured or anything. It shocked me more than anything.”

“That alone is enough to warrant the Hull family’s death,” Dawson replied indifferently.

Dawson turned to Jasper. “What will you do next now that the Hull family has pulled out of the Southeast Province?”

Instead of replying, Jasper asked, “The Hulls pulled out really hastily this time. It must be an effect of the pressure you put on them. I heard they took a flight out without even packing their luggage and things?”

Life at the Top Chapter 495

Dawson replied plainly, “They already had no choice but to throw away one billion of investment funds, so what’s a bit of luggage?”

Jasper commented indifferently, “At least they fled fast.”

The Hulls had managed to truly infuriate both Jasper and Dawson.

Jasper and Dawson would have no issue with others as long as they played according to the rules.

Yet the Hull family had ignored the regulations and overstepped their boundaries!

Not to mention that this overstep by the Hulls had been a trigger to both Jasper and Dawson.

“This is only the beginning. A loss of one billion is just a surface injury to them, it’s not detrimental enough. I’m going to break them apart next and thoroughly remove them from the market forever!”

Jasper’s unfazed tone was filled with determination.

Dawson nodded in agreement. “Deal with them thoroughly or you’ll be in for future complications. There’s no way the two families can reconcile anymore, so there’s no point in showing mercy at such a crucial time. Whatever you do next, make sure you do it quickly.”

Jasper smiled. “Don’t worry. I already have a plan and it’ll be set in motion very soon.”

Dawson pat Jasper’s shoulder in relief. “I’ve never questioned your work... but there’s something that I have to discuss with you about.”

“Now that the North Bank is deserted, the city’s government is being very ambiguous about their plans with it. As far as they’re concerned, since they’ve already given the land out, the advertisement that’s already published will be seen as a huge joke if they take the land back due to the Hull family pulling out from the contract.

“There’s no way the decision-maker in the city’s government will allow such tarnish. Especially not when the development of the South Bank is completed and everyone can see the situation in the North Bank.

“We wouldn’t be having this problem if the North Bank had never been put on the development agenda in the beginning, but since it’s already there and its groundwork is already completed, there isn’t much of an option left.”

Dawson’s words were very ambiguous, but Jasper could hear the intent behind them.

“So the city’s government wants us to take over it?”

Dawson smiled. “Correct.”

Jasper frowned. “You’ll need to invest 1.5 times of what’s been invested in the South Bank if you want to develop the North Bank. That’s not very beneficial.”

“Duality is present in everything. If you look at it from a different angle, the North Bank might not be as worthless as you think,” Dawson reminded.

Jasper arched an eyebrow. “Or perhaps, we could develop the North Bank with a completely different plan?”

“Say, for example, a villa district? There are a lot of mountains and trees there, and it’s just by the Southface River that’s surrounded by a few old villages. The economy isn’t flourishing there, but that’s also why it has maintained most of its natural ecological appearance. We might end up with a completely different effect if we develop it into a villa district for the rich.”

Dawson looked at Jasper in approval. “Good job, you’ve got a sharp and clear mind there. It took me an entire night to think of this.”

Jasper smiled. “I wouldn’t have thought of it if you didn’t remind me... but what about transport?”

Dawson smiled. "We'll charge it at a tenth of the normal price, just for formality's sake. Since the Hull family has already paid for it for us."

Jasper's eyes shone. "Then it's completely possible. Instead of business development, a villa district would greatly lower our costs and still complement the South Bank. With the North and South Bank together, we'd reap much greater rewards."

"And we'll be making it easy on the city's government." Dawson smiled.

Jasper nodded. "Alright. JW Real Estate will take this project, then."

Life at the Top Chapter 496

At most, the Southface River's North Bank project was an unexpected win for Jasper.

With it, he would attract more attention to the South Bank project, and the villa district in the North Bank would also be greatly anticipated in extension.

One could imagine that once the South Bank became the economic center of the province, the North Bank's villa district on the other side of the river would thus become a place where the top wealthy people in the area, or even the entire Southeast Province, would gather.

It was the same piece of land, yet it churned out completely different results in the Hull family's and Jasper's hands.

Not that the Hulls had not thought of turning the North Bank into a villa district. Since the Hulls had managed to make a name for themselves among Haddock's businesspeople and even found their footing in Waterhoof City, Jasper had never taken the Hulls to be idiots.

"The main thing is that both our families have different goals. The Hulls plan to develop the North Bank mainly to pick on our development in the South Bank. That's why they decided on a business center plan like the South Bank to compete with us. They were only trying to overwhelm our project in the south.

"But with the North Bank's development also up to us, we can have a business district in the south and a wealthy residential area in the north, so to shift the focus onto the Southface River. With developments on both left and right of the river, we'll create a high-end district within Southeast Province."

Jasper and Dawson came to a tacit agreement.

The North Bank project had thus fallen into JW Real Estate's pockets.

"But the most important thing right now is to completely destroy the Hull family," Jasper spoke calmly as he looked at the lush green land in the villa's backyard.

"I'm afraid that's something we can't do on our own."

Wendy had already retired for the night, and Jasper had sent Julian out on an errand. Dawson was the only one by his side.

Hearing Dawson, Jasper replied calmly, "Undoubtedly. After all, our power only goes as far within the Southeast Province, and our influence will only lessen once we're outside.

"To completely crush the Hulls, we'll need to get into Waterhoof City. That's where they've set up camp. They'll be the hosts there while we'll be their guests. It'll be much more difficult to follow out with our plan over there."

Dawson furrowed his brows. "With the information that we have now, the Hulls have completely given up their traditional business of tea-making within the country these two years and are focusing all their manpower into import and export trade."

"The economy of the country has been flourishing these years and there's a lot of goods with more demand than supply. They've earned a lot more from that, but there's still no increase in the supply of said goods. That guarantees the wealth of people working with import and export trade," Jasper spoke calmly.

That was the truth. According to his memory from his past life, the following eight years since the new millennium were classified as the golden eight years of the country's import and export trade.

As long as one had the connections to import goods from overseas, then even idiots could earn money without doing anything else.

Such a profitable business was then greatly sought out and its wave only receded when the Mainland started to use the real estate industry and railway-like foundational developments as its pillar to divert attention to domestic demand, bringing the country on a path of infrastructure frenzy.

“I don’t think there would be anything I could do if they’re making a fortune in a different industry, but I might have an idea if this is the import and export trade we’re talking about,” Jasper replied.

Dawson looked at Jasper in surprise but did not comment on it.

After a series of events, he knew that Jasper was no longer the humble stock genius he knew before.

The man now had his forces and secrets, and this was all the necessary development a business hero had to go through.

Even this fight with the Hull family was an experience he had to go through.

If it were not the Hulls, it would just be another family by another name. If it were not because of Wendy, then it would be due to some other reason of the sort.

No hero made a name for themselves with peace. The birth of a new force came with the downfall of a few, if not many, old forces.

“As long as you have a plan, then I won’t give too much input on it. Like I said, do what you think is right, and ask if you need it,” Dawson told Jasper.

Jasper nodded seriously. “Got it.”

Smiling, Dawson clapped Jasper’s shoulder and stood to leave.

Dawson had a change of heart after this incident for he realized that he did not have many opportunities to spend time with his daughter.

Perhaps it was to make up for it, or perhaps so that he could watch over Wendy as she recovered from her emotional trauma, but as long as he was free during these two days, he would spend time with Wendy.

By doing so, he had also managed to find time for Jasper.

Jasper was deep in thought for a moment after Dawson left. He decided to call Zachary who was far away in Harbor City.

With Zachary, there was no need for Jasper to speak too politely or apple-polish. He went straight to the point. "Uncle Law, would you be interested in doing a business in the Mainland that guarantees at least 500 million Somer Dollars per year?"

Dawson was right. They were not strong enough to completely destroy the Hull family themselves.

This was not called having an inferior complex but rather having a clear understanding of reality.

Not to mention that it was no easy feat to destroy the Hull family in such a short time while ensuring that the Hull family had no chance to fight back.

Jasper never had the plan to fight them alone with his bare hands.

It would be a shame not to use the resources the Law family could provide.

"What's the plan?" As expected, Zachary's interest was piqued by Jasper's proposal.

"As of right now, the Harbor City Group is fighting both openly and in secret with the local factions in Swallow Capital. It's going to be a long war, so there won't be any sign of wins or losses for a while.

“The part where Harbor City lacks the most is that they have no roots in the Mainland, so I’ve come to provide you a place where you can set foot in the import and export trade. Do you remember the Hull family, Uncle Law?”

Jasper smiled brightly and confidently.

Jasper alone was enough to pull the Law family into a partnership.

However, Jasper was still very aware that the Law family was not his. He could not take advantage of all the help they provided if he wanted to maintain this working partnership with them.

Everyone would only be satisfied and happy if both sides reaped benefits and rewards from the partnership.

Zachary smiled. “Of course, I do. What do you have in mind?”

“By getting rid of the Hull family, there’ll be an empty spot in the import and export trading market. The Law family can take all of that since I’m not interested in that industry. But I want all of the Hull family’s wealth!”

Life at the Top Chapter 497

Why was the import and export industry so profitable within the country now?

Firstly, it was because there was a lot of demand in the Mainland, and there was no worry that the imported goods would not be sold out.

Secondly, it was because of the unique policies stemming from unique national conditions.

Due to issues in the past, most of Harbor City's goods were duty-free. After the handover, the Mainland had then written Harbor City a very generous tariff treaty.

Thus, most businessmen in the Mainland who profited off import and export trade would have their goods shipped to Harbor City first and then sent into the Mainland as Harbor City goods."

By doing so, exploiting such a loophole of a righteous policy resulted in a 15-25% discount in taxes.

"The Hull family has placed most of their focus into the import and export trade, and the method they use is more or less what everyone else is doing too. They import the goods to Harbor City and then ship them to the Mainland. Doing this, they've managed to dominate the Mainland's market while paying an extremely low amount of taxes."

Jasper had known the inner working of the Hull family like the back of his hand.

"To get rid of the Hull family, attacking them from the Mainland would only give adverse results. The easiest way to do it would be to attack them in Harbor City, and I believe taking goods from a few ships in Harbor City shouldn't be too big a problem for the Law family, right?" Jasper smiled.

Pacing in his office, Zachary began to believe that Jasper's plan was doable.

"Not at all. But I'll have to look into how the Hulls deal with customs here in Harbor City before I can decide on a more solid course of action."

Jasper smiled. "It'd be nice if you could do it and give me an update as soon as possible. I'm ready to act anytime on my part. We should coordinate our attacks so that the Hull family are at loss as to who they're supposed to defend against."

Zachary fell silent for a moment. "What did the Hulls do to offend you, Jasper?"

Jasper replied calmly, "I won't stop until I've completely defeated this mortal nemesis of mine."

Zachary's footsteps came to a halt. Jasper had always been a gentle and humble man, so it was extremely rare to hear such ferocious words from him.

However, it helped Zachary understand Jasper's determination. In his mind, he increased the importance of this fight.

"Alright, I'll work with you on this. I'll update you right away once I've investigated things on my end. Oh, and I'll send Henry over to you as well, then. He should be done with his work over in Swallow Capital. It's best if you have one of us with you."

Jasper gave it some thought and replied, "Okay, then. I'll contact him directly after."

Zachary smiled. "You're not just representing yourself here, Jasper. You have the Law family behind you ready to move together. You can be a little braver, Jasper. Since us Laws have already invested in you, then there's no way we'd change our stand just like that."

Jasper smiled. "With your assurance, Uncle Law, then I see no need for me to worry about it anymore."

...

Waterhoof City, in the Hull family's house.

Pungent smoke swirled within the study that was much larger than any bedroom with nowhere to go.

Ian's expression was livid as he sat in the study. There was a cigarette between his fingers, burnt halfway through.

The ashtray beside his hands was already filled to the brim with cigarette buds.

Sitting opposite him was Norman, who was also fuming with anger.

“That little brat! He has no respect for people at all!”

Norman slapped his hand against the study desk heavily, his expression dark and sinister.

“That’s a whole loss of one billion Somer Dollars! That’s a good few years of hard work even if we split the loss between both our families!”

Life at the Top Chapter 498

“There’s also been news from the Southeast Province this afternoon, saying that JW Real Estate has officially taken over the developmental rights in the North Bank from the city’s government!”

“He did what? Who the f*ck does he think he is?!”

“We spent so much money to take over it and we even did the groundwork but now you’re telling me we’re just going to give it to the f*cking brat for free?!”

Hearing Norman’s continuous complaints, Ian clenched his teeth and shouted, “Enough!”

“What, do you want me to watch Hans and Benny go to prison even though they’re mentally unstable and crippled now?!” Ian glared at Norman indifferently and questioned coldly.

“If this is about your 500 million loss, then I’ll just pay you back in the future!”

Norman was stunned. Seeing how Ian’s gaze was void and devouring, he immediately suppressed the ire within him. He pushed his displeasure away to speak, “You know that’s not what I meant.”

With a harrumph, Ian spoke, “I know that you’ve lost a lot of money, but there’s nothing we can do about this. He got ahold of Benny’s and Hans’ Achilles heel. Don’t forget that the Southeast Province is their base. Pulling out was our only option.”

“So we’re just going to forget it like that?!” Norman asked indignantly.

“No way! Ignoring my dignity and the money we lost, I’m still going to take revenge for what he did to Hans and Benny if it’s the last thing I do!” Ian clenched his teeth and stood up, extinguishing the bud of his cigarette harshly on the ashtray.

“What do you have in mind?” Norman asked.

Ian walked over to the window and opened it with one hand.

The fresh and cool wind blew into the study and immediately cleared the stuffy atmosphere inside.

“I’m using every single resource I have on hand, and I only have one objective—Jasper’s company. Then, I’m making a trip to Suesville.”

Ian’s words lifted Norman’s spirits.

Suesville was right beside Waterhoof City, and most importantly, it was where Haddock Chamber of Commerce’s spiritual leader, Old Master Hurlbutt, resided.

“Do we need Old Master Hurlbutt just to deal with Jasper?” Norman asked.

He thought that Ian had lost his mind. Old Master Hurlbutt was Haddock Chamber of Commerce's only remaining veteran. He was their true spiritual leader.

Not to mention that Old Master Hurlbutt was an old man who had retired long ago. There was no way Gale would help the Hull family deal with Jasper.

Ian scoffed. "Do you know why our plan to target Jasper failed?"

Norman frowned and replied hesitantly, "Because Hans and Benny... were too rash?"

Considering Ian's feelings, Norman did not dare to speak his true inner thoughts.

He could not say aloud that those two idiots were morons doomed for failure!

"No. Disregarding the two of them, do you remember how fast it took and how easy it was for Jasper to deal with us targeting his building materials? Since that moment, our plan had already failed," Ian replied darkly.

Norman pulled out a cigarette slowly and lit it, falling silent and into thought.

"I've been thinking about it over and over. I realized that the reason why our plan to target Jasper failed is that we had been taking him too lightly! We didn't expect Jasper to deal with our tricks so quickly, and Hans and Benny were just a fuse at most.

"Had we not taken him too lightly, we wouldn't have to retreat from the Southeast Province overnight even with what the two of them did. We wouldn't have had to lose one billion either.

"So the very base of our problem is that we had underestimated Jasper's strengths! All past events have shown us that he's way stronger than we expected!

“Which is why this time, we’re going to launch a precise attack and end him once and for all! We’ll kill that f*cking brat!”

Life at the Top Chapter 499

Norman was stricken by Ian’s words.

“I’ll admit that you have a point, but are you really going to ask Old Master Hurlbutt in Suesville for help just like this?”

“This is too unrealistic. Old Master Hurlbutt retired a long time ago. There’s no way he’d help you for such a small issue.”

At that, Ian scoffed. “Of course, there’s no way Old Master Hurlbutt is going to personally lend me a helping hand. What I need is the old master’s influence. I want to gather everyone from the Haddock Chamber of Commerce!”

Ian’s eyes shone as he looked up at Norman. “Under those circumstances, just how difficult could it be to crush Jasper?”

Norman’s expression changed. “Say Old Master Hurlbutt gives the green light and we manage to borrow most of Haddock Chamber of Commerce’s strengths, still... We’re owing too many favors here.”

Ian’s expression turned wretched as he roared, “So what? I don’t care about anything else! I can repay the favors I owe and I can give whatever benefits they want, but there’s no way in hell that I’m going to forgive Jasper without taking revenge!”

No longer recognizing the familiar partner he once knew, Norman sighed.

To be absolutely honest, Norman was beginning to feel afraid considering how Ian's actions now were detrimental to himself as well.

Sure, they were all businesspeople from Haddock, but Norman was too aware of how the others worked.

Even if Old Master Hurlbutt gave the green light, it was unlikely that the others would do anything unless they were certain of a win.

They were not the kind to do anything without benefits.

As such, it was destined for the Hull family to suffer greatly this time.

However, Ian was currently blinded by his hatred and cared for nothing else. All he wanted was to get rid of Jasper once and for all. He was willing to pay whatever price for it to happen.

As such, Norman made the rational move and remained silent.

At the same time, Norman could not help but admit internally that he wanted to see such a scene play out... After all, the one suffering losses would be Ian.

No matter how close their families were, the Hulls would still be the Hulls and the Gardners would still be the Gardners!

...

The following day, Jasper appeared at the airport.

At the arrival hall, Jasper saw a tall and handsome man walk out casually from afar. He had a bounce in his steps, and there was a beautiful lady deeply immersed in a conversation with him by his side.

The two walked over to Jasper, and the girl bade Henry farewell before leaving with light steps when she saw Jasper.

“Bye, Mandy. I’ll call you.”

Henry waved the girl goodbye with a casual smile.

He then wrapped an arm around Jasper’s shoulder and boasted, “How’s that? I met the girl on the plane, a fourth-year student in Southeast Province Teaching Academy. She’ll be my source of entertainment while I’m here.”

Slapping Henry’s hand away, Jasper replied, “I’ll have to disappoint you then because you’re going to be busy very soon. Don’t think you’ll have the time to meet and have a relationship with that Mandy girl.”

Henry followed Jasper out of the airport and threw his backpack to the backseat of the car once he got close. He then stretched his body and laid on the Bentley’s passenger seat. With a grin, he asked, “My dad said you made enemies here. What happened?”

“I won’t stop until I’ve crushed them. Exciting, isn’t it?” Jasper spoke plainly as he drove.

Henry shuddered and sat up. “I thought my dad was kidding. How do smart and sly youths like you make enemies? I thought you were kind to everyone and don’t backstab people at all.

“Ah well, whatever. Just tell me where that f*cker is and we’ll go look for him right now. I’m going to kill that motherf*cker!”

Jasper glanced at Henry and smiled. “He’s in Waterhoof City, and he has his own forces. It’s likely that he has a lot of people helping him. Are you sure you want to go up to him and demand his death just like that? Just the two of us?”

Henry waved his hand dismissively. "So what? You remember Mitch Langdon? I fought that stupid f*cker seven, eight years ago. F*cking moron asked me to meet him at St. John's Road to negotiate and it was me against six to seven of them. I'm still right here, aren't I?"

"Why are you being so polite with me, man? We're closer than that. We'll just kill the f*cking idiot who thinks he's better than us! Helpers? Hah! I just need to make a call to Harbor City and I'll have trucks full of gangsters up here for you anytime."

Jasper smiled. "It's enough for me to know that you're willing to help. But I might actually need your help with a few things this time."

Henry grinned. "Finally, a time when you're the one asking me for help. Alright, just tell me what you need me to do. Who are we screwing over?"

"Ian Hull," Jasper replied.

Stunned, Henry gave it some thought. "Is this f*cking idiot related to the stupid f*cker, Ben Hull?"

"You've met him before. It's Ben's dad," Jasper replied.

"Good job, man. You're already targeting your elders now, huh? Hell yeah! That's my brother. I knew you wouldn't forget me when you're doing something like this. Though to be honest, I'm no longer interested in f*cking over those morons who are the same age as us," Henry chatted excitedly.

Jasper replied plainly, "I've already driven Ben crazy."

"..." Henry turned to look at Jasper in shock. "What the hell did you do? How do you even drive a person crazy?"

Jasper did not hold any details back as he told Henry what had happened.

Midway through retelling, Henry was already infuriated.

“F*cking hell! What f*cking brave idiots those two are! Is it so hard to follow the goddamn rules and not attack women? They’re even worse than me. They f*cking had it coming for them!”

“If anything, I’d say you went easy on them. I’d have killed those f*ckers and buried them in the mountains for good if I were you.”

Jasper replied, “What I want to demolish is the entire Hull family. That way, those two will also die with the rest of their relatives. What I did before was just collecting a little interest.”

Henry was excited. “Wonderful. So what next? I didn’t come all the way here to watch you f*ck people up. You’ve got to let me join you.”

“I still need to meet someone first and then we’ll head to Waterhoof City,” Jasper replied, his eyes slightly narrowed.

“Then you can make as much of a fuss when we get to Waterhoof City. You have the green light even if you want to wreak havoc.”

Henry’s eyes shone brightly as he started flushing in excitement.

“This is so f*cking up my alley. Who are you meeting tonight? Do you want me to come with you?”

“No, it’s okay. I’m just meeting an old friend, you don’t know him.” Jasper smiled.

The person he was meeting tonight was none other than John Jackson.

If history proved him right, then contacting John would provide Jasper with a trump card strong enough to rid the Hull family once and for all.

Life at the Top Chapter 500

That night, in a coffee house in the province, Jasper met with John after a long time.

“You’re finally back. I’ve called you to meet up so many times but you weren’t in the province.”

John laughed as he spoke, pulling Jasper into a hug when the two met.

Jasper chuckled. “I was working on something in Swallow Capital for a while, so it took me some time to get back... But I have to say that I was surprised to hear that you’re also in the province when I called. I thought you were still over in the towns.”

At that, John smiled. “Thanks to you, I got transferred to the city branch as their vice president in charge of the credit system. I just came back to the province to participate in the provincial ICBS presidential study meeting.”

“You got promoted? That’s got nothing to do with me. I’m pretty sure it’s all your hard work.” Jasper smiled.

John shook his head. “You know how it is with banks, we’re evaluated by deposit indexes. The accounts you opened with me alone already doubled, tripled our outlet’s indexes.

“Had it not been for such a great client like you, it’d be another five to six years before someone my age could ever be a vice president in charge of the credit system in the city branch.”

Jasper chuckled. “Tell me if you need to raise more deposits. I can easily get it done.”

Jasper's words were implicit, for he could indeed move at least ten billion worth of cash. Even if he had invested in something and it took up quite a bit of his funds, he still had Schuler Group which was a huge source of liquid funds.

With currently ten billion in his personal account, Jasper could easily meet the city branch's annual target.

John replied gleefully, "You've already done a lot for me and I don't want to bother you about this. Plus, you know how it is with target indexes, they change it every year. If we meet it this year, then they'll just raise it for the year after. I'd much rather it go slow and easy."

Jasper smiled. "Let's get back on topic. I came to look for you today because there's something I'd like to ask."

John immediately turned serious at that and replied, "How can I help you? Tell me and I'll do my best to help."

Having learned how the social system worked, John had long learned to speak according to the person he was talking to.

When it came to Jasper, John had no plans to hide anything.

If this was at the very beginning when the two were still using each other for mutual benefits, then the difference in their social standings and identities would now be miles apart with the rapid and continuous increase in Jasper's wealth.

However, Jasper had not once looked down on John even when the other was no longer useful to him. If anything, Jasper would still take the initiative to contact John every three to five days and catch up.

Plus, just as John said, Jasper had played a huge role in his promotion, though it was not by putting in good words for John. The bank's system worked by focusing on the deposits gathered.

Jasper's personal account had a few billion sitting inside, and John was well aware that with such a large deposit, there would definitely be other banks and other bankers trying to ask Jasper to deposit his money with them.

John might not even be able to provide the same amount of services those other banks could.

However, Jasper had never once withdrawn his money to deposit anywhere else. This was an achievement under John's name.

If anyone wondered what a favor was, then this was it.

Perhaps because he had seen enough of lies and deception, John exceptionally treasured his friendship with Jasper.

Jasper was not privy to the thoughts that ran through John's mind and smiled. "I remember you said something about having an old colleague who works as the office manager in ICBS' Waterhoof branch? I think it was during a dinner quite some time ago."

John was stunned and asked, "I do. Why are you asking now, though? Did something happen?"

Life at the Top Chapter 501

Jasper smiled. "This is of great importance. Tell me the truth, how's your relationship with him?"

John patted his chest and spoke, "I was the one who helped his daughter enroll in school. We've been friends for over 20 years. It's no problem if you're asking about something normal."

"That's great, then. Could you help me ask if their branch is intending to sell a piece of land around Pearl Tower?" Jasper chuckled.

In his past life, the ICBS branch in Waterhoof City had made a loss trade.

By the shore of Harpoon River, right next to Pearl Tower, was a piece of commercial land owned by ICBS' Waterhoof City branch.

With the piece of land next to Pearl Tower, which was a significant structure in Waterhoof City, an awkward situation emerged because no one dared to buy it despite their praises on how nice that plot of land was. Mainly, it was because no one could predict Waterhoof City's future.

Therefore, the ICBS decided to shift and sell the land to a state-owned real estate company at an extremely low price in the year 2002.

One may ask how much it was sold for.

230 million Somer Dollars.

This was the renowned Z3-2 land.

Construction to build the country's tallest high-rise building began in the year 2008. In Jasper's past life, everyone who went to Waterhoof City would undoubtedly take a look at the magnificent skyscraper.

It was Waterhoof City Financial Tower, which had a height of 632 meters and a whopping 119 stories.

There it stood, in Waterhoof City, looking at the opposite shore while rooted on the other shore of Harpoon River. It had Pearl Tower on its left and the building in a shape of an upward spiral on its right.

The building, before Jasper reincarnated, had collected up to a few million Somer Dollars worth of rent annually.

One would be an idiot to see an advantage and not take it.

Not to mention that Jasper had always wanted to build a large building for JW Company.

There was nothing more suitable than Waterhoof City's significant structure and what would be Waterhoof City Financial Tower in the future.

In addition, Jasper had asked about the plot of land at such a time for another important reason.

While that piece of land had yet to be sold off, it was still a plot of land next to Pearl Tower in Legends District. It was far from an unwanted plot of land.

There were also a few office buildings on it.

Those buildings were, coincidentally, Ian's and Norman's office buildings as well as the base for Haddock Chamber of Commerce's Waterhoof City branch!

As long as he successfully got hold of that plot of land, then he could easily uproot the Hull family and the Gardner family of Waterhoof City. He could also break up Haddock Chamber of Commerce's Waterhoof City branch.

He would earn a fortune while completely crushing the Hull family. This was Jasper's innermost intention.

Just then, John's call to his old colleague was connected.

A few minutes later, John looked at Jasper confusedly. "I've asked him, and there is a plot of land like you said. But my old colleague was curious since their branch had only just held a meeting deciding to sell it out. How did you know about this?"

Jasper smiled. "I have my ways, John. if you could help me all the way, I'd like you to come with me to Waterhoof City tomorrow and meet with this old colleague of yours. If possible, I'd like to sign that contract as fast as possible."

John grinned. "No problem. The branch has been wanting to sell that piece of land long ago, but you know how it is with systems and protocol. Now that they've finally had a meeting and decided to sell it, I'm pretty sure you can even negotiate for a lower price if you're adamant about buying it. I'll come with you tomorrow!"

Life at the Top Chapter 502

In Suesville, while Jasper and John were meeting.

As one of the two renowned older cities in Riversloth, Suesville's air of grace was a quality that most other cities did not possess.

In a gray-bricked manor hidden within the mountains and rivers in the outskirts of the city, Ian stood courteously in the middle of the traditional-styled main hall.

A few servants were waiting soundlessly at the hall's corners, waiting for orders.

Soon later, footsteps approached and were followed by a strong-looking old man who entered the hall from a room inside. The man had a head full of white hair and was wearing traditional clothes.

The man who seemed no different than any other old man who did daily morning exercises was Gale, the spiritual leader of the country's Haddock Chamber of Commerce

Despite being in his 80s, Gale was still very lively and full of vigor. While he did need a cane to walk, his pace was not slow at all.

"Mr. Hurlbutt..."

Ian felt his body become taut at the sight of Gale. He nodded and bowed courteously when he greeted.

Gale nodded and sat on his grandmaster's chair. He pointed at an empty chair beside him and spoke, "Come, sit and speak."

However, Ian did not move and only clenched his teeth to continue speaking. "Mr. Hurlbutt, forgive me for my shameless behavior, but I've come to ask you to get justice for me!"

Gale's white brows furrowed slightly.

While Gale had retired, his students could be found all over the world.

Ian was merely one of his many students, and as hardworking this student was, he was not one of the outstanding ones in comparison to the rest.

Yet to see Ian, a man in his 40s, tattle to him like a mistreated child, Gale immediately realized that something was wrong.

“What happened? Sit first and speak slowly,” Gale spoke gently and notified a servant to bring coffee over.

Ian finally sat and told him what had happened.

However, instead of Ian screwing with Jasper’s building materials, the story had changed to Jasper being arrogant and cornering them.

Then, it turned to the Hull family begging for mercy and giving in every time.

Ian had very rationally hidden the relationship between Jasper and the Law family since it was a significant relationship. After all, Gale might not wish to offend the Laws.

Ian also did not say anything about what Ben and Hans did to Wendy.

He claimed that he had started a small project in the Southeast Province and Jasper had stolen it from him with sheer dominance since they were in his territory.

“Not only that, but he also tortured my brother and my son. Now one of them is crippled while the other has gone mad!

“Oh, my poor son, Ben. Sure, he’s not some handsome youth, but he was still a polite, humble, and understanding boy. Now, he’s been driven mad!

“And my brother too! That Jasper just destroyed any chances my brother has of having children!

“Mr. Hurlbutt, he’s ending my Hull family bloodline here!

“And he still doesn’t plan to stop. He said he’ll come to Waterhoof City and crush all of us Hulls to death.

“I’m a man in my 40s. How am I supposed to just let him do what he wants? But Jasper and Dawson Schuler are very powerful while I’m all alone with no one to hang on to. I had no other choice but to come to you, Mr. Hurlbutt.”

Facing Ian’s agony, Gale remained silent as he heard the tale and did not comment.

Life at the Top Chapter 503

Having lived for more than 80 years, Gale had seen too many of such power struggles ever since he began to do business in the last era.

He did not need to think into it to guess that there was more to the story than Ian claimed.

While he did not know what kind of people the rest of the Hull family were, he knew very well what kind of person Ian Hull was.

“You are my student, Ian. You followed under me for seven to eight years before you made a name for yourself. I would like to think that I know you well.

“Perhaps in this incident, this young man called Jasper and Dawson Schuler have done you wrong, but can you be true to your conscience and claim that you were in the right this entire time?”

In face of Gale’s question, Ian clenched his teeth and replied, “I was doing my business properly, Mr. Hurlbutt. If I were to have offended them, then it would be taking that project in the Southeast Province and taking their benefits.

“But that’s just normal business competition. If I lost, then, of course, I wouldn’t be saying anything about it. I’d accept my failure.

“But they’re not following the rules here and they’re even using dirty tricks. Not only did they use their resources and power in the Southeast Province to pressure me, but they even crossed the line and hurt my family. They’ve ended the Hull family’s bloodline.

“This is more than just disrespect to me! They’re disrespecting all the businesspeople from Haddock!”

At that, Gale only laughed and looked at Ian intently. “So you are forcefully dragging the Haddock Chamber of Commerce into this?”

“You mean to say that if I do not help you today, then it will be the fault of everyone in the chamber? That it will be my fault?”

Ian immediately stood. “That’s not what I meant, Mr. Hurlbutt...”

Gale waved a hand dismissively and sighed. “I think I know very well whether that was what you meant or not, but I have decided that I do not wish to care so much about such matters anymore.

“Many of your classmates and seniors have come to me when they found themselves in trouble over the past few years, but when have you seen me helping them?”

“You must understand that I’m a retired old man. I no longer involve myself in business, nor do I wish to care so much about matters of the later generations.”

Ian felt his heart sink along with Gale’s words.

Finally, Ian clenched his teeth and turned to Gale. “Mr. Hurlbutt, my father told me before he passed that you owe him a favor.”

Gale's expression darkened.

The entire atmosphere in the hall froze along with his words.

Ian felt his heart clog his throat.

In front of his old teacher, Ian was well aware of how powerful this old man was.

One mere command from him was enough to turn Ian into a street rat the moment he walked out of those manor doors. Everyone would shun him.

Unless necessary, he did not want to threaten Gale.

After a long while, Gale spoke, "In specific, I owe your father two favors. The first was repaid when your father asked me to take you in as my student. The second favor, I never had the chance to repay him. Are you certain that you wish to use it?"

"Think carefully, for I will help you should you decide to use the favor, but you will no longer be a student of mine after this is over."

Ian's threat had evidently angered Gale, but an old man like him seemed to consider a promise heavier than his own life. As such, he let Ian make the decision.

Ian did not think too much of it and looked up at Gale with his jaw set. "Please help me, Mr. Hurlbutt!"

Gale did not seem surprised by Ian's choice. Both his eyes closed partially as he asked indifferently, "Very well. What do you want me to do?"

Life at the Top Chapter 504

Excitement and glee flashed through Ian's expression at Gale's words.

"I know that you've already retired for many years, Mr. Hurlbutt, so I wouldn't dare to request that you deal with this in person. Not to mention that Jasper's just a mere junior. He isn't worth you entering the business world again just to deal with him.

"Which is why I hope that you could ask a few of your students, my seniors, to spread the word so that they can support my next move."

Ian's understanding attitude slightly smoothed Gale's expression.

After all, considering his age, Gale was no longer as enticed by the prospect of money or benefits after experiencing so much of life.

However, his reputation mattered a lot to him.

Otherwise, he would not change his mind just because he owed someone a favor.

At the same time, the last thing Gale wanted to happen was for Ian to threaten him to reenter the business world.

Otherwise, Gale would truly turn into a huge joke in the business world. An old retired man in his 80s reentering the business world just to deal with a young man in his 20s.

"What is your plan? Tell me what you have in mind first, then I will think about who I should help you contact," Gale spoke calmly.

Ian took a deep breath to suppress the bubbling excitement within and replied, "Mr. Hurlbutt, I originally planned to use commercial tactics to win Jasper, but that method takes too long. When dealing with vile scum like Jasper, the only option is to match his vile tricks.

"I've thought about it, and what I need first is three billion Somer Dollars worth of funds. These funds will be used to attack Jasper.

"We have to account for Jasper's father-in-law, Dawson Schuler, as well. According to what I know, Dawson's Schuler Group is currently the largest supermarket chain group in the Southeast Province. Schuler Group has been expanding exponentially lately, and it has even acquired the largest supermarket business in the country.

"That means their supermarket company will currently be tight on cash flow. I remember that one of my senior classmates also works in the supermarket business. I can use the funds and the help of my senior to crush Schuler Group!

"Jasper will be even easier to deal with. With enough funds, I'll be able to get rid of all his assets in less than half a month.

"After all, there's too big a difference between his and Dawson's foundations. He's just a young brat in his early 20s. How could he have any backup plans or connections?"

Ian's words were filled with hefty amounts of confidence and pride.

However, he kept the most important plan to himself.

With the funds and support from the businesspeople of Haddock, he would be able to use all these connections to dismantle Jasper's capital chain in the shortest amount of time.

By then, both Dawson's and Jasper's businesses would suffer attacks from all sides. Their capital chain would rupture. After that, he would appear and forcefully acquire all the businesses and assets under their names at the cheapest price.

In other words, he was planning to make the Haddock Chamber of Commerce into his weapon and pierce Jasper with it in the most heinous and abominable way. Then, he would sit and reap the rewards of others' hard work.

Ian did not feel an inch of guilt with his plan since he truly believed that he was entitled to these rewards and Jasper deserved these consequences.

Gale neither agreed nor disagreed after listening to Ian's entire plan.

Gale did not know, nor did he care, who Jasper was.

All that mattered to him was to go through with whatever Ian had planned so that he could return the favor he owed the Hull family.

Gale did not care who would end up suffering losses in the process, let alone the fact that Ian's plan was abominable and sinister.

"I will get you the three billion in funds you need and contact the people you require for this plan of yours."

Life at the Top Chapter 505

Beneath Gale's pure white brows were a pair of wise and experienced eyes. He looked at Ian indifferently and spoke.

"Like I said. After this, you will no longer be my student."

Ian replied calmly, “But you’ll always be my most respectable teacher, and I will continue to be a member of the Haddock Chamber of Commerce.”

“Haha...”

Gale smiled ambiguously and picked up the coffee cup by his side before speaking faintly, “The help you require will appear by tomorrow.”

Ian secretly clenched his fists to hide the excitement in his heart.

However, he could tell from the way Gale drank his coffee that he did not want to entertain him as his guest anymore.

Now that he had gotten what he wanted, Ian did not dwell and courteously bade Gale farewell. He quietly exited the century-old manor.

Returning to the car, Ian turned his head back to see the subtle silhouette of the old manor hidden away in a land of green. His expression was no longer courteous but rather wretched and fierce.

“Just wait, Jasper. Tomorrow, I’ll show you how stupid your actions are in the cruelest way possible!

“I’m going to make the three of you—you, that Dawson, and his daughter Wendy—kneel before Benny after I snatch everything from you, Jasper. I don’t care if Benny has gone mad and won’t be able to understand you, but you three are going to apologize and repent!”

He had already contacted the people for hire for that.

After he had prepared everything on his side, Ian would immediately attack Jasper’s and Dawson’s properties from all sides.

“You think you’re vile? You’re too young to know what’s truly vile!”

Taking a deep breath and closing his eyes, Ian shook excitedly at the thought of his impending victory.

Just then, Ian's phone rang.

The urgency of his ringtone broke through the silence in the car and Ian's brows furrowed slightly at the sound.

Seeing the display, he realized that it was from his company's second-in-command.

Ian accepted the call without thinking too much.

"It's me. What is it?" Ian asked straightforwardly.

His current priority was to get rid of the b*stard, Jasper. As for happenings within the company, he could push off whatever he could.

"Something big has happened, Mr. Hull. Two of our cargo ships were seized by customs inspectors in Harbor City!"

Ian's eyes widened as he heard the words from his confidant.

"How could it be?! Our import and export trade has been steady this entire time, and the people in Harbor City have never come to trouble us before. Why did they suddenly detain our ships?!"

"Our people in Harbor City have already asked around, but the customs seem very adamant this time. They claim that they've found illegally smuggled goods on our ships.

"They're refusing communication and even issued a restraining order on our people there. No one's allowed to leave Harbor City until the incident has been fully investigated so they can be subpoenaed."

Ian felt his scalp grow numb as if he had been struck by lightning.

Life at the Top Chapter 506

“How could that be? We’ve been importing and exporting all this while and it’s always been through Harbor City! We’ve never had this problem before so why now?!”

“Did you contact the leaders we have there? What did they say?” Ian frowned and asked sternly.

The Hull family had already shifted their entire business focus from real estate in the Mainland to the import and export trade.

While it may not sound like a big deal that only two of their cargo ships were detained, those two ships carried hundreds of tonnes worth of goods. It was accumulated to a backlog of 600 million of the Hull family’s funds!

If something happened to this batch of goods, the Hull family would not be able to sustain such a huge loss no matter how wealthy they were. After all, there was still 500 million of the one billion Somer Dollars they had lost in the Southeast Province to account for.

“The same thing, Mr. Hull. The leaders aren’t willing to pick up our calls at all, and we don’t even have the opportunity to meet them... Excuse me for speaking excessively, Mr. Hull, but I think there’s more to what’s happening here.”

Ian’s expression darkened. He suppressed the unease and anger within him. “Tell me what you think of this.”

His confidant on the other end replied, “Ignoring our goods, Mr. Hull, there are no businessmen within the country in this industry who don’t smuggle at least some sort of goods. Ours are minuscule in comparison, and it’s an unspoken rule that both the Mainland and Harbor City’s customs are very well aware of.”

“But it’s because of this that we’ve never forgotten to tip them every month. This time, our ships are the only ones being detained and without us getting any wind of it at all. Aren’t they just targeting us here?”

Ian quickly calmed down after the initial panic. He snapped back to reality with his confidant’s reminder.

Indeed, this incident was too unexpected and there was no way it was pure coincidence.

However, Harbor City’s customs and their inspectors...

Ian came to a realization and hammered his balled fist onto his thigh. With his jaw set, he replied, “I know who did it!”

Ian had not expected Jasper to retaliate so soon, and straight at his weakness as well.

Having two ships detained when doing import and export trade came with huge losses.

Ignoring the 600 million worth of goods, all of which Ian had to shoulder, he also had to pay at least 200 million in compensation for the breach of contract in this partnership.

The most horrifying part was that once he was charged with smuggling, Ian’s name would then appear on the wanted list.

‘Jasper himself may not have the ability to influence Harbor City’s customs and customs inspectors, but what about the Law family?’

‘All the Law family need to do is put in a word for this to happen.’

At that moment, Ian realized that he was screwed.

“Alright. Make a trip to Harbor City right away... Actually, never mind. There’s nothing you can do even if you went over anyway. Instead, contact the corresponding people and see if you can try and get our men back.

“Bribe who you have to. We’ll be executed and shot the moment they have our men and everything gets confessed!”

After giving his instructions, Ian hung up the phone abruptly.

The unease and distress remained in Ian’s eyes even after he hung up the phone. After pondering for a moment, Ian decided that he would sound Jasper out. As such, he stepped on the pedal back to Waterhoof City and took the initiative to call Jasper.

The call was quickly connected.

“I hope you die in a ditch, Jasper!” Ian ground his molars and roared.

Life at the Top Chapter 507

Jasper’s calm tone echoed from the other end of the line.

“And here I thought you called to beg for mercy. I thought you’d call to ask for an easier and more painless death, but it seems like I misunderstood.”

Ian raged and growled. “Don’t think that I’d be afraid of you now just because you did something in Harbor City, Jasper. I’ve seen these tricks before. Do you think they’ll stop me?”

“Of course not.”

Jasper's tone was laced with deeper intent.

"It'd be too easy if I kill you off in one go. That'll be too painless, no? I'd much like to play with you slowly."

Ian scoffed. "So it really was you!"

"I know you're calling to sound me out, but I never had the intention to hide it from you anyway. I would've come looking for you at your house even if you didn't call me. It would only be a matter of time before you knew anyway, so you might as well just ask me straightforwardly."

Ian was stunned and he immediately caught on. He questioned Jasper coldly, "Come looking for me at my house? What do you mean?!"

Sitting at the rooftop bar on the 14th floor of the Peninsula Hotel in Waterhoof City, Jasper stared at the calm Harpoon River beneath his feet and the bright Pearl Tower on the opposite shore of the river. He chuckled. "I don't think I need to explain what I mean for you to understand, hmm?"

"I still have guests here, Mr. Hull, so I'll have to cut our conversation short. But tell your driver to drive a little slower and steadier on your way back from Suesville, Mr. Hull. It'd be a shame if you died in a car accident and missed out on the large play I'm putting on for you."

Jasper hung up the phone and stood to walk toward the entrance of the rooftop bar, approaching the man who was entering with John.

"This is Jasper Laine, the friend I was talking to you about, Vita. The youngest millionaire entrepreneur within our country," John introduced as the middle-man.

"Jasper, this is my old colleague, Vita Layne. The office manager of ICBS Waterhoof City branch. He's in charge of the branch's asset management office."

"Hello, Mr. Layne. I've heard a lot about you."

Jasper reached out to shake Vita's hand with a smile.

Vita was a slim and highly capable man in his early 40s, and it was evident that he had heard of Jasper on the way here from John.

ICBS was the first of the country's top four major banks, and as a senior executive of the branch in a financial center like Waterhoof City, Vita had seen his fair share of wealthy businessmen. It could be said that Vita's clients were all society's elites.

Still, Vita could not help the shine in his eyes when he first saw Jasper.

After all, Jasper was too young. The wealthy businessmen whom Vita met on the daily were all in their 40s and 50s.

If one wanted to start from scratch and accumulate a wealth of billions of Somer Dollars, it would take the average person a decade or two, if lucky. Growing rich overnight was a rarity that only existed in myths and novels.

However, Jasper was different from all the other wealthy businessmen he had met. Jasper was young and gentlemanly. Instead of a businessman, Vita felt that Jasper seemed more like a university student from a scholarly family.

Vita reached out to shake Jasper's outstretched hand and replied, "What a promising youth you are, Mr. Laine. I didn't believe it when John told me such an outstanding person existed. I almost thought that he deceived just to make me come."

Jasper smiled. "You're too kind, Mr. Layne. I just realized how similar our surnames are. No wonder I felt such a sense of familiarity when I first saw you, Mr. Layne. How about we sit down to talk?"

...

At the same time on the highway back to Waterhoof City, Ian found himself in a huge internal conflict triggered by Jasper's offhand comment. Meanwhile, the man in question was happily immersed in a conversation with Vita, oblivious to the effect of his own words.

Life at the Top Chapter 508

On the highway between Suesville and Waterhoof City, Ian told his driver to stop the car just as they arrived at the southern entrance of Suesville. His expression was cloudy.

The man was wondering what Jasper meant by his last words.

"But tell your driver to drive a little slower and steadier on your way back from Suesville, Mr. Hull. It'd be a shame if you died in a car accident."

'Was Jasper warning me?'

Ian took a long drag of his cigarette and looked up at the sky above. The highway stretched onward to the horizon, curving from time to time like a large dragon. The unease in his chest grew.

It was like there was a sinister plan waiting to devour him somewhere under the dark night ahead.

"Motherf*cker, this b*stard! If he has no qualms playing dirty and hurting Benny and Hans, then there's no saying whether he'll let me go unharmed or not."

Ian abruptly tossed the cigarette onto the ground and looked up at the driver. "Send me to the airport instead. I'll fly back to Waterhoof City. You can drive over."

The driver was stunned. “Mr. Hull, it’ll only take two more hours to drive back. If you choose to fly, with security checks and everything, it’ll take you at least three hours. It’ll be much more expensive too—”

“Enough. Just do as I say. Am I the boss here or are you?”

Ian chided darkly. He knew how stupid his decision looked to others, but he did not dare take risks with his life.

Especially not when he had already gotten Gale’s support. The large support would arrive tomorrow, and he would get to start his revenge plan against Jasper by then.

He would rather act foolishly than risk his life on this highway.

If Jasper turned out to be crazy and attacked him while he was on the highway, then he would truly be screwed.

After being chided, the driver did not dare to comment further and turned the car around, heading to the airport instead.

At the same time, Jasper and Vita’s conversation had slowly arrived at its climax with John’s input.

“As John’s old colleague, Mr. Layne, I’d say we aren’t complete strangers. I’d like to just get this out there. I’m very interested in the piece of land opposite where your branch sits.”

Jasper pointed at the right side of Pearl Tower, on the other shore of Harpoon River, as he spoke.

From the beautiful scenic pictures in his past life of the Harpoon River, the current view lacked a symbolic skyscraper—the Waterhoof City Financial Tower.

Where Jasper pointed was precisely where the tower would be built.

Vita smiled. “The land does belong to our branch now, and John has already told me of your intention, Mr. Laine. Our branch does intend to sell, but the price... It’s a little high.”

“The price, huh? We can always negotiate.” Jasper smiled.

The ICBS Waterhoof City branch had sold it at a final price of 230 million in his past life.

However, Jasper did not expect to buy the plot of land at such a price now.

After all, it only cost 230 million because the ICBS Waterhoof City branch had been searching far and wide for buyers while the plot of land was left unsold for two years. That was the reason behind the large reduction in prices when they sold it to a state-owned real estate company.

Even if the ICBS Waterhoof City branch was willing to sell the plot of land now, there was no reason for the price to be so greatly discounted.

“The branch has already evaluated the plot of land and we’ve decided that it’s worth 500 million Somer Dollars. However, since we’re doing market trade here, we also understand that we can’t just follow the evaluated cost. As such, we’ve come to the final price of 450 million Somer Dollars,” Vita spoke after a moment of thought.

Jasper turned to John to see the man nod almost indiscernibly.

It seemed that Vita was not playing any tricks on this issue and was speaking the truth.

Life at the Top Chapter 509

“Since you’re in charge of the asset management in your branch, Mr. Layne, could you give another discount on the price? After all, this is a valuable plot of land and it’s practically impossible for your branch to get rid of it so quickly,” Jasper spoke.

A business negotiation was an art of deception.

450 million Somer Dollars had not exceeded Jasper’s price, for the plot of land would easily appreciate, amounting to over tens of billions in a decade.

Yet if its price could be reduced, then he would be an absolute moron not to reduce it.

Vita was placed in a difficult situation.

In truth, the branch had been wanting to sell the plot of land a long time ago.

Its market price evaluation had long been completed before the meeting to discuss it being sold was held.

Vita was very aware that Jasper was speaking the truth.

This was a valuable plot of land, but it was difficult to sell.

In other words, those who could afford it might not be interested in the plot of land. After all, there was no guarantee about how Waterhoof City’s economic development area would turn out.

While most of those interested in the plot of land did not have the funds to buy it. They just want to make a cheap gamble at best.

Seeing Vita's inner struggle appear on his features, Jasper smiled. "I plan to move my company's headquarters to Waterhoof City in the future, Mr. Layne. Plus... for the latter half of next year, I think I'll need to borrow an emergency loan of about eight billion Somer Dollars.

"Of course, I'll have enough strength and assets as a mortgage, but I was wondering if your branch would be interested in such a business transaction?"

Vita's head shot up at the words, and he stared at Jasper in utter shock. "Do you mean it?"

When it came to working in a bank, attracting customers to make deposits had always been their most important goal.

Fixed deposits came with interest rates.

The bank needed funds from deposits for investments and financial management. This was how they earned an unfathomable amount of profits.

Among the banking businesses, the main source of profits was through commercial loans.

A commercial loan of eight billion Somer Dollars, 20 years into the future before Jasper reincarnated, was already considered a huge transaction. It was one which countless banks would pounce and steal if they caught wind of it.

It would be a great deal for Vita's future development if he managed to secure such a transaction.

"I wouldn't joke about something like this, Mr. Layne. Should you lower the price of this plot of land to its extreme, then that loan transaction belongs to you.

“I can sign a contract with your bank as well if necessary so that you can verify my assets and capital. I’ll sign the loan for eight billion Somer Dollars first, and I promise to take it before the end of next year.”

Jasper’s words quelled all of Vita’s doubts.

By stating that Jasper’s assets would first be verified before he was given the credit to the loan would destroy any risk of Jasper speaking baselessly or going back on his words.

“300 million! That’s the lowest I can go and the lowest price the branch is willing to offer. But it has to be paid fully and in cash. If you’re willing to accept it, Mr. Laine, then I shall persuade the bank tomorrow and try to sign that contract with you as fast as possible!” Vita spoke with his jaw tight.

Jasper’s eyes shone at the words.

He had not expected a discount of 150 million at all. This way, he would manage to save the interest for the eight billion Somer Dollar loan he would be taking to host the International Capital Carnival Feast next year.

Jasper smiled and stood, reaching out an arm toward Vita. He spoke, “It’s a pleasure doing business with you.”

Life at the Top Chapter 510

After a friendly negotiation with Vita, the trio’s conversation then shifted from business-oriented into something more laidback to better acquaint themselves with each other.

While they were talking about issues of faraway lands, Jasper was very willing to put a bit of hard work into what looked like nonsensical chatter.

Within the country, business was always a game of favors.

People like Vita were not eye-catching characters, and he would be considered as someone from the lower classes among those whom Jasper dealt with on a daily basis.

However, Vita held a very important position.

Even if Jasper had called for a meeting with the chief of ICBS' Waterhoof City branch, there was no guarantee that he could haggle the price to 300 million Somer Dollars.

Yet with Vita, he could.

While the chief of the branch would certainly hold more authority than Vita, the chief had much more things to think about. Vita was only in charge of this singular aspect, so mediation became much easier.

That was why, in some ways, the lackeys held more power than the boss.

With John here helping the process, Jasper hoping to get Vita on his side, and Vita hoping to have a millionaire like Jasper supporting him, the trio had a very joyful conversation.

The night deepened, and Vita bade them farewell first. John had a study meeting to attend the next day, so he left Waterhoof City for the Southeast Province overnight as well.

Jasper did not say much about it, considering his friendship with John ran much deeper than his friendship with Vita. The two shared tacit understanding, so there was no need for unnecessary pleasantries.

“Isn't he just the office manager of a branch? Why'd you spend five whole hours entertaining him...”

Henry immediately began to complain once Jasper returned, having lost his patience due to staying in the room for a long time.

“Characters like him don’t even have the right to talk to me in Harbor City!”

Jasper hung his jacket on the clothes rack and huffed a reply. “This infinitesimal character that you look down on just saved me 150 million tonight. You still think the five hours was a waste?”

“30 million in an hour?!”

Henry’s eyes widened, and he looked at Jasper suspiciously. “What kind of profitable business did you do? You’re not conspiring to commit crimes, are you?”

Jasper smiled. “We definitely are. Want in on it?”

Henry immediately shook his head vigorously. “Forget it. My dad’s going to beat me to death if he finds out.”

“Alright, enough joking around. How did the thing I asked you to do go?” Jasper asked.

Henry grinned and replied, “Don’t worry about it. I might not be able to do much else, but there’s no one better than me when it comes to playing dirty tricks. I’ve already found everything.”

Henry then tossed over a freshly printed research document and replied, “Everything you need is here.”

Jasper took the document. His tone was pleased when he replied, “Not bad. I’ll remember your hard work when this is over.”

Flipping through the document, there was an introduction to a character right at the start.

“Derick Mallin, 48 years old. He’s the general manager of the Hull family’s G.S. Trading Export Limited Company. He’s the aforementioned company’s second-in-command with a longstanding friendship with Ian, the company’s president. He’s the only confidante there is.

“Derick’s the one who deals with all of G.S. Trading Export Limited Company’s business transactions, so if you want to know whether the company’s doing anything fishy or problematic, Derick would be the one with the most blackmail material.”

“Think you can deal with him?” Jasper asked.

Henry pursed his lips and replied, “From what I got on Harbor City’s end, the man has migrated to Harbor City permanently with his entire family. He has embezzled quite a bit from the company over the past few years and all his family’s businesses are based in Harbor City. I can deal with him with my eyes closed.”

Jasper smiled. “He shot his own foot. I’ll leave this to you, then.”

Henry snickered. “What do I get in return?”

Jasper gave it some thought and replied, “I’ll let you join me in taking over a large fortune next year.”

“Deal!”

Life at the Top Chapter 511

Jasper had his own reasons to bring Henry over from Swallow Capital.

This Young Master Law might not be proficient in much, but he was a master at picking fights and stepping over people.

While Jasper could deal with people like Derick himself, it would be a waste of time.

Jasper was short on time now.

Ian must have acquired help from Gale when he took a trip to Suesville. That was something Dawson had stressed over when he told Jasper the news.

Jasper sincerely agreed.

Which was why he had to speed things up on his end, especially when it came to contacting ICBS' Waterhoof City branch. They had to keep a closer eye on the happenings in Harbor City as well.

People like Derick were most afraid of people like Henry, trust fund babies with huge familial support who were unafraid and brash. People like him were very ready to screw someone's entire family over at the slightest offense.

Not to mention that Henry was the most powerful of all trust fund babies.

Thus, Henry was the best person Jasper could get to deal with Derick.

Henry was very excited too.

“Hell yeah! I’m always wary when I cause trouble outside in case my family gets wind of it, but it’s all different now! This time, I’m being asked to screw people over!”

...

The following morning, Ian walked out of the airport with a stuffy head and reddened eyes.

He felt his old bones were about to fall apart with how hectic the night had been.

Suesville and Waterhoof City were very close, so only special domestic airlines were willing to fly between the two cities.

The flight itself took less than half an hour, meaning before the plane reached its highest altitude, it was already time to prepare for landing.

When Ian arrived at the airport, he could only purchase the earliest flight since he had not booked a ticket beforehand.

As such, he ended up waiting three whole hours in the airport before he boarded the plane.

Then the flight got delayed.

What should have been a two-hour car ride resulted in an entire night of torment for Ian.

The sky was showing the first signs of dawn when he exited Waterhoof City’s airport.

“Motherf*cker! Just you wait, Jasper!”

Furious, Ian shifted all the blame to Jasper.

However, today was not without any good news for Ian.

It was because the three billion in funds Gale promised had already been sent to his account!

This amount would turn into one of Ian's important weapons against Jasper. The existence of this three billion had thus helped Ian temporarily ignore the problem happening in Harbor City.

As far as he was concerned, all of this was Jasper's fault. As long as he dealt with Jasper here in the Mainland, then whatever was happening over in Harbor City would resolve itself as well.

In addition, a few of his seniors under Gale had also called him and expressed their support for him.

With all the gambling chips he had asked from Gale in his hands, Ian was no longer as irritable as before.

Taking a deep breath, Ian scoffed as he stared at the sky where the sun was rising from the east.

"Just wait, Jasper! The show is about to begin in a few hours! I wonder, would your tricks be faster, or would my weapons be deadlier?"

Life at the Top Chapter 512

With all his gambling chips in hand, Ian took his seat at the figurative gambling table and began to set up his trap.

Jasper did not waste any time either.

Jasper arrived at ICBS' Waterhoof City branch early in the morning.

With Vita's help, Jasper had a very joyful negotiation with the Waterhoof City branch.

At noon, Jasper paid the 300 million in cash and signed a land transfer agreement with ICBS.

Jasper then had his capital verified by the ICBS, which received a joint guarantee agreement issued by Schuler Group in the Southeast Province. He obtained a commercial loan credit for a maximum of 12 billion right off the bat.

Walking out of the branch's doors, Jasper shot Vita a smile. "That's one hell of an ambitious bank you work at."

While he only needed eight billion funds to kickstart his plan, the ICBS seemed to have more in plan for a 'cash cow' like him. They signed him the maximum amount of commercial loan credit the Waterhoof City branch was capable of—12 billion Somer Dollars.

Vita understood what Jasper intended to say and smiled. "It's mainly because we believe that Mr. Laine has the best assets and is worthy of our trust. Not to mention that with Schuler Group's joint guarantee agreement, we would easily provide a commercial loan of 20 billion if not for the matter of our limit.

"We would need the approval from the headquarters if that's the case, and it's a waste of time."

As a person who had lived two lives, Jasper was well aware of why these people completed the procedure in record time. Jasper chuckled. "I'm pretty sure you were afraid that I'd be tempted by the other banks, no? A 12 billion Somer Dollar loan, at the lowest interest rate possible, will still cost me 150 million. Let alone a 20 billion loan."

Vita laughed loudly. "The bank doesn't have much of a choice. The competition is too strong."

Jasper smiled but did not comment on it.

That was how banks worked. They would stuff your pockets full of money when you needed funds but would turn their backs on you when you needed to borrow money for emergency's sake.

Jasper was well aware that every industry had its own unspoken rules. This was just one of the bank industry's rules.

"Oh, right, Mr. Laine. There are still a few properties on that piece of land, mainly a few old commercial buildings. According to the contract, the property rights to those commercial buildings now belong to you, but there are a few tenants there. If you want to get rid of them, I'd suggest you do it as soon as possible."

Vita's words had spoken precisely of the main reason why Jasper wanted that plot of land.

"I've done some digging and I think there's a G.S. Trading Export Limited Company there? I heard they signed a ten-year lease in one go," Jasper asked, seemingly casually.

"They did. This business is actually one of our clients too. They borrowed two billion in funds from us for business operations. Their president, Ian, is an old acquaintance of mine. Quite the gloomy man, and I wouldn't say that we're close friends," Vita explained.

Jasper furrowed his brows slightly.

It was a pleasant surprise to know that the Hull family had borrowed a two billion Somer Dollar loan from the ICBS' Waterhoof City branch.

“I consider us friends, Mr. Layne, so I’ll let you in on something I found out. Lest your branch ends up suffering a loss,” Jasper suddenly piped up.

Vita was stunned. He had been present when they verified and investigated Jasper’s capital, so Vita was well aware of the horrifying wealth Jasper held in his hands.

Any news from such a young billionaire must be thundering.

As such, Vita immediately brightened up and spoke seriously, “Do tell, Mr. Laine. If your words ring true, then this is a favor I and the branch will hold dear and remember.”

Jasper smiled and waved his hand dismissively. “You’re too kind. I’m just telling you because I can’t bear to watch a friend get dragged into such matters.

“I heard that G.S. Trading Export Limited Company had two of their cargo ships, worth a total of 600 million, get detained at Harbor City. I think they’re suspected of smuggling.”

Jasper clapped Vita’s shoulder as he spoke. The latter was dazed by the news. Jasper continued to speak intently, “Their company has been keeping quiet about this and they’re trying their hardest to mediate the situation. But you know how it is with smuggling, it’s a big deal.”

Life at the Top Chapter 513

“I’d suggest your bank be extremely cautious when it comes to giving them loans because this isn’t a small amount. You’ll get in trouble too if they end up being investigated and the loans lead back to you.”

Vita forced his erratically thumping heart to calm and replied, "And I was the one who managed this transaction too! Forget everything else you've done for me, Mr. Laine, but if what you say turns out to be true, you've just saved my life!"

This was an astronomical loan of two billion Somer Dollars.

The ICBS would track down those accountable if anything happened.

As the manager, he would be the first one to be caught and would have to take the brunt of the blame.

Vita instantly broke into a cold sweat. He was exceptionally relieved, and he was also immensely grateful to Jasper.

"If you'll excuse me, Mr. Laine, I should report this to the higher-ups right now."

Jasper smiled. "Don't worry about it. We're friends, aren't we? There's no way I'd just stand and watch you suffer a loss when I've already got wind of such news. Go do what you must, I have my work to do too."

After professing his thanks, Vita rushed back into the branch building. Evidently, this matter would pan out in the shortest amount of time.

With the ICBS' capabilities, it would not take too long before they finished investigating the situation. By then, the ICBS would be the first to cause Ian trouble.

It would save him some work.

Jasper was pleased with this surprise reward.

However, that pleasure did not last for too long.

It was because both Dawson and Jack Tanner called him one after another.

All of Schuler Group's supermarkets within the Southeast Province were facing the attacks of their competitors at the same time.

In the supermarket industry, any competition was essentially done in the form of concession sales.

Concession sales were a normal activity among supermarkets.

However, it was very strange to see all supermarkets of different brands and sizes targeting Schuler Supermarkets at the same time with the same activity.

The attack had taken Schuler Group off guard, so the turnover for Schuler Supermarkets across the province was reduced by 50% in just one morning.

Such loss would only increase as time passed.

"It's evident that the Hull family is using their link with Haddock Chamber of Commerce to oppress us. We should still be able to deal with this for the time being, but problems will arise with our capital chain in half a month at most."

Dawson's words had Jasper frowning slightly.

"Mr. Laine, the businesses our JW Capital invested in has been subjected to our competitors' malicious tactics. Partners that have already signed contracts with us are breaching them and choosing to partner with other investment companies.

"While we won't lose too much from this, our investment credit will suffer greatly should this carry on.

"Moreover, smaller partnership companies of ours have been discriminated against and it's affecting their business. Any company is targeted the moment they're related to JW in any way."

Jack's report made Jasper reestablish how powerful the businesspeople from Haddock could be as a whole. They were way beyond his imagination.

Not to mention that Jack was still in Swallow Capital to oversee Sena, and he was only managing JW Capital remotely.

Still, the fact that Jack had received notice of this meant that the investment company had met a serious issue.

Life at the Top Chapter 514

Jasper did not have to worry too much about Schuler Group.

While the capital chain was taut, the group had a large market.

As the biggest supermarket business in the country, Schuler Group was only suffering the normal amount a group would when they acquired another company. Once Schuler Group got its cash flow back on track, its true force was something Jasper could never compare to.

Not to mention that Schuler Group had Dawson watching over it.

This incident made Jasper realize that his future father-in-law was the most low-profile and crafty man.

The power he held that was hidden from the public was unimaginable.

After getting rid of the Hanks family, Dawson's prestige and ability in the Southeast Province had long surpassed what he had accomplished in Jasper's past life.

With Dawson here, Schuler Group would surely be alright.

However, Jasper still had to be more cautious at his investment company.

“Stop business in the investment company for now.”

After a moment of deep consideration, Jasper gave Jack an order.

“Maintaining the signed partnerships we have is our main priority. Put all new business transactions on hold, and I’ll bring JW Capital on a path of speedy development after I deal with the root of this problem.”

Far away in Swallow Capital, Jack suddenly asked, “So someone is indeed targeting us then, Mr. Laine?”

Jasper smiled. “Our conflict is coming to an end soon, and it’s only a matter of time before we have to go through such a difficult process. So put all our new transactions on hold first. We won’t lose anything from it anyway.”

Jack nodded. “Alright, I’ll see to it. But Mr. Laine, I’m afraid that those seeking our investment will doubt our credit and ability if we suddenly stop investing in new companies now. It won’t be easy to convince them otherwise once doubt is planted.”

Jasper replied calmly, “There are too many people with plans and ideas to start up their own businesses but are vastly lacking in funding and capital. They’ll still come looking for us in the end.

“Take this situation as a chance for JW Capital to reestablish itself. We’ve been investing in all sorts of companies before, and while there are tens of companies under our name, less than a handful of them are actually meaningful investments.

“The investment company will aim for somewhere higher after this temporary hold in business is over, and we’ll stop investing in companies without much of a future. I'd rather we have a month of no business than randomly investing in any company that crosses our path."

Jasper had long felt dissatisfied with the investment company, and while Jack was the one overseeing everything, Jasper did not blame him.

After all, Jack had been working in Weresoftware all his life until he came to work for Jasper. Jack was always looking for chances to prove his ability.

Not to mention that he had been working in a foreign business this entire time. It made sense that Jack was unfamiliar with the entrepreneur industry within the country.

So when it came to choosing companies to invest in, Jack was more focused on the short-term results.

Jasper had thought of it when he transferred Jack to help Terizone back then and stay with Sena as of now.

Jack was more suited in business management as compared to venture capital.

It was due to this understanding of the inner works that Jasper did not place the blame on Jack.

After all, Jack was not the only one at fault for the issue happening with the investment company; Jasper had been busy too and he had neglected its management.

Life at the Top Chapter 515

Moreover, while Jack had invested in many projects, most of them were profitable. There were only a few insignificant losses in comparison to the profits made.

“Alright, I understand.”

Jack replied embarrassedly when he heard the displeasure in Jasper’s tone.

Jasper sighed. “Most results aren’t caused by a single reason or person, Jack. Both you and I have our own shortcomings, and it isn’t too late for us to adjust with this opportunity.

“Don’t think too much about this. I’m well aware of how capable you are. And now that you’ve been given a platform where you can go all out and excel, I’m sure you’ll do great.”

Despite being a man in his 40s, Jack still felt his heart thrum in his chest at the words and replied sincerely, “Don’t worry, Mr. Laine. I’ll do my part well.”

Once he returned to the hotel, Jasper was met with a surprised, though expected, ‘guest’. Ian Hull.

In the same rooftop bar, Ian sat facing the river and raised his wine glass at Jasper who was walking over. He smiled sinisterly and began, “This was where you sat when you threatened me, huh, Jasper?”

Jasper plopped down on the seat opposite Ian and replied, “Threatened? I don’t think I understand what you’re saying. How could you accuse me of threatening when all I did was speak the truth?”

“Though I must say that I’m impressed, Mr. Hull. You managed to find me so quickly. I suppose your roots run deep here in Waterhoof City after doing business here for so long.”

Ian scoffed. “The Southeast Province is your territory, so I accept my defeat. But this time, you’re handing yourself over to Waterhoof City on a silver platter!”

Jasper shrugged calmly. “And you’re so certain that you’ll manage to devour everything I have?”

Ian guffawed. “You must’ve received news already, hmm? Let me tell you, I’m not the one attacking you this time. It’s the better half of the Haddock Chamber of Commerce that wants to get rid of you and your sly old man!

“Dawson should already feel the pressure by now. Did he tell you that he’s facing more than just competition from other supermarkets? Most of his customers are also buying expired goods and products without a manufacturing date, qualification certificate, and manufacturing company stated. They’re all complaining now.

“And your investment company too. You’ll receive the news very soon of someone reporting your investment company using investment as a guise when you’re actually using it to evade taxes. You’ll be investigated immediately!”

Seeing Ian’s proud and arrogant face before his eyes, Jasper replied calmly, “Schuler Supermarkets always abides by the industry regulations when it comes to the products they sell. There’s no way there would be expired goods or products without a manufacturing date, qualification certificate, and manufacturing company stated.

“As for my investment company, well that’s even more simple. Every Somer Dollar I own has its tax paid for.

“I’ve done nothing wrong, so there’s nothing I need to be afraid of. You can’t possibly think that this is all it’ll take to deal with me, can you?”

Ian scoffed. The smile still stayed on his face, but his gaze grew cold. “Are you actually stupid or are you just pretending to be stupid? Just because you didn’t do it doesn’t mean you don’t have to take responsibility here.

“After the investigations, even if the supermarkets are found to be following industry regulations and your investment company is proven not to be evading taxes, what would other people think?

“Reputation isn’t easy to build up, but it’ll only take a few days for everything to come crashing down.”

Ian tilted his head to take a sip of red wine and spoke leisurely, “I don’t need to use these tricks to end the both of you. Customers just need to know that Schuler Supermarkets have been investigated before for selling goods against industry regulations.

“And entrepreneurs seeking investments just need to know that your company has been investigated for using investment as a guise to evade taxes.

“These two rumors are enough to completely destroy your business credit.”

Ian leaned over to stare at Jasper as he spoke and smiled wretchedly, “So what if I’m blatantly framing you? What’re you going to do about it?”

Life at the Top Chapter 516

Jasper looked at Ian coldly. The man was growing more arrogant by the second. “You really do think that you can devour all my assets, don’t you?”

Ian snorted and returned to his chair. Picking up his wine glass, he laughed loudly. “You’re telling me you have another trick up your sleeve? Look around you, Jasper. This isn’t Swallow Capital, nor is it the Southeast Province. I’ll show you just how powerful the Hull family is!

“You drove my son mad! I’m going to make you kneel before him and prostrate in apology! I’m going to destroy you!”

Ian glared at Jasper through the transparent wine glass and scoffed. The latter was expressionless. “And this is only the first wave of my plan! I’m only going to continue attacking you from here on!

“So are you here to show off or are you here to mock me?” Jasper looked at Ian calmly as if whatever the man said was not enough to faze him.

“Or perhaps, you’re here to compromise?”

Ian’s expression froze.

His eyes drilled into Jasper, and at that moment, Ian wanted nothing more than to take a look at Jasper’s brain to see what was going on inside.

Jasper had got it right. Ian did not come over to boast or mock Jasper at all.

Such things were normal for youths like Ben, but for Ian who had seen his fair share of business struggles, he knew that he had to be careful until the last moment before victory was confirmed.

The only reason he would compromise was due to the importance of the two ships that were detained in Harbor City!

Ian scoffed and replied meaningfully, "It's always better to resolve conflicts than add to them. You've seen what I'm capable of, and to speak the truth, maybe I do need to put in a little more effort to completely crush you. But there's no way you'll ever be able to crush me.

"This is the difference between the both of us. We've got completely different foundations.

"You're just representing yourself, and Dawson Schuler too, at most.

"But I have the businesspeople of Haddock on my side. You screw with me, you screw with the entire Haddock Chamber of Commerce. Forget you, not even the Law family is powerful enough to counter them!"

Ian took a deep breath and stared at Jasper icily. Slowly, he began, "Leave my two ships in Harbor City alone and I'll consider not killing you."

"Why? You're scared?"

Jasper's three words had caused a drastic change in Ian's expression.

Glaring frostily at Jasper, Ian snorted. "Scared? Did you forget who's territory you're standing on right now?"

"Of course, I know that this is the Hull family's territory, but so what? I'm here anyway, aren't I?"

Jasper shifted to a more comfortable posture and looked at Ian before continuing plainly.

“Let’s be honest. These tricks you’re playing, they’re nothing grand at all but that’s because this is the best you can think of within such a short period of time, correct?”

“I can tell that you’re panicking, or you wouldn’t have come to me so hastily and tell me so much right after pulling out those small tricks of yours.”

Jasper then slightly leaned forward and chuckled, looking at Ian. “Just what are you so panicked about? Let me take a guess, shall I?”

“Could it be the two detained ships of yours in Harbor City? And the charge for smuggling goods?”

Jasper’s every word cut into Ian’s heart like daggers.

Ian felt his heart clench painfully.

Jasper’s words were the truth.

Ian was well aware that he had smuggled goods.

In those two cargo ships were a total of 100 million Somer Dollars worth of smuggled goods.

Considering the huge value, Ian was utterly screwed if it came to light.

Despite the flurry of emotions within, Ian’s expression remained indifferent.

Staring nonchalantly at Jasper, Ian scoffed. “What a vast imagination you have there. Do you think I’d be sitting here unharmed if I really smuggled goods?”

“You’re too naive, Jasper. The world is more complicated than you think. Everything you see is just the image others want you to see.”

Jasper nodded in agreement. "You're right, the world really is complicated. Or at least, your acting skills have opened a new world to me. I would've gone and turned myself in or fled long ago if I were you."

Narrowing his eyes at Jasper, Ian replied calmly, "So you're really going to fight until one of us gets completely crushed, then?!"

"I've already told you this back in the Southeast Province." Jasper's expression was still devoid of emotions.

"Then just wait and see! Even if I lose everything in the process, I'm still going to drag you under me when I fall!" Ian shot up and growled wretchedly.

"I'll increase my attacks on both yours and Dawson's businesses right away. How long do you think you'll last, hmm? One week? Two weeks?"

Jasper remained unaffected and carefree in the face of Ian's aggressive words.

Just then, Ian's phone rang.

Ian rejected it irritably but the other party only called again.

Frustrated, Ian picked up the call and growled. "I'm busy now!"

"Mr. Hull, I'm the person in charge of loan transactions in ICBS' Waterhoof City branch. I've called to tell you that our bank has found out about your company facing a severe financial and legal crisis.

"To ensure the security of our branch's loan, we'd like to officially inform you that our branch's contract with your company is to be fully terminated. You are to repay the two billion Somer Dollar loan within three business days!"

A strained voice echoed impolitely from the other end of the line.

Ian was rooted blankly in place before he suddenly roared angrily. “There’s a one-year loan repayment period stipulated in the contract! There are still a few months before the deadline! You have no right to terminate the contract now!”

“Please read through the contract carefully when you have time, Mr. Hull. The bank has the right to request repayment in advance if your company has participated in any illegal activity that could cause a problem with the bank’s loan!

“In addition to this phone call, an official letter will also be faxed to your company. We request that you treat the situation cautiously.”

Then, the person hung up on Ian.

Infuriated, Ian glared at Jasper with utmost ire. “You’re behind this too?!”

Life at the Top Chapter 517

Jasper merely chuckled when confronted with Ian’s anger. “I’m sorry, I don’t think I understand what you mean.”

Ian slammed his palm on the table with a loud bang, causing the snacks and wine on the table to splash and scatter all over the floor.

“Stop pretending to look innocent, Jasper. You were the one who leaked the news to the ICBS, right?! How else would they know about what’s happening in Harbor City if you didn’t tell them?!”

“Now they’re asking me to repay the loan immediately too! Why else would they react so quickly if you hadn’t done anything?!”

Ian glared at Jasper ruthlessly. Fury burned bright red in his chest, and he wanted to throw Jasper into the Harpoon River to feed the fishes.

Jasper shrugged and replied coolly, "I have nothing to do with the bank and your loan.

"The bank recognizes that you broke the law and they want you to repay the loan in advance. That's a matter between you and the bank. What does it have to do with me?"

Ian glared at Jasper coldly. If a look could kill, Jasper would have died thousands of times in Ian's hands by now.

"Don't be so proud, Jasper. It's just a two billion Somer Dollar loan!

"I'm Ian Hull, there's no way I'd be stopped by a mere two billion loan. If you think you can win me like this, then you can f*cking dream on!"

Jasper finally made a move in the face of Ian's words.

Ian watched Jasper arrogantly, waiting for a reaction.

He saw Jasper slowly pull out a document and place it on the table.

'Land Ownership Transfer Agreement.'

Ian's pupils contracted.

"I just bought a plot of land a few hours ago. Coincidentally, the commercial building for G.S. Trading Export Limited Company happens to sit on that plot of land."

Jasper smiled at Ian as the other's expression pulled tautly and became horrifyingly dark. "I think I just became your landlord."

At that moment, Ian's heart constricted.

The last thing he expected was for Jasper to find a way to completely uproot him.

This plot of land belonged to the ICBS, which was intending to sell it.

Ian was well aware of the fact.

A few months ago, Ian even contacted the ICBS to purchase this plot of land as he believed that this plot of land would only appreciate.

Even if it did not appreciate, it was still the plot of land his office building sat on and he would not make a loss.

However, the ICBS had yet to make a decision back then, nor had they agreed on a price yet, so the matter was left alone.

Ian had planned to talk to them about it again, but he did not expect Jasper to be a step ahead of him.

“The land is mine now, and in extension, so are all the commercial buildings atop it. There are still a few months before the lease you signed comes to an end, right, Mr. Hull? That’s okay, I’ll pay compensation according to the lease contract.”

Jasper smiled and tapped on the contract lightly. “It’s just a few hundred thousand dollars. I can easily pay you that amount.”

Ian flushed abnormally red, and his breathing turned heavy as he stared at Jasper. Clenching his jaw, he spat out the words from between his teeth.

“You’re going too far, Jasper!”

Jasper waved his hand dismissively. “Now this, I don’t understand. You’re the one who did all the horrible things. All I’m doing now is retaliate, so why are you accusing me of going too far?”

“Or are you saying it’s my fault for being bullied around by you, and I should just die because you want me to?”

Jasper flipped his palms upward. “What kind of logic is that?”

Ian glared at Jasper, the fury in his eyes bubbling over. “You’re not good enough to offend the entire Haddock Chamber of Commerce!

“This is my last warning. If you continue to act so ignorantly, you’ll be the one dying in a f*cking ditch in the end!”

“Have you gone mad or did I hear you wrong, Ian?”

Jasper looked up at Ian indifferently with a deep gaze.

“You’re the one standing on the edge of the cliff now, not me.

“I’d start thinking about how I’m supposed to defend myself if I were you, not sit here daydreaming.

“The moment your smuggling case is proven at Harbor City, your future will be set in place and there’ll be nowhere for you to run. What makes you think you’re the one winning here?”

Ian chortled and replied, “That’s why I said you’re too naive, Jasper. So what if they find out? You think that means I’ll have to pay the price?”

“It’s just 600 million, I can afford to lose it! I still have the Haddock Chamber of Commerce. I’m still a member, and I can still start all over again!”

“And as for the smuggling you’re accusing me of, I don’t know what you’re talking about. I hand every business transaction in my company to my confidant. Of course, he’ll have to go to jail for breaking the law. But what does that have to do with me?”

Ian stared at Jasper and tried to find even a shred of disappointment or frustration on his expression. However, he gave up in the end, for there was no shift in Jasper's expression after Ian's words.

"You're too naive, Jasper. What makes you think I'd do those things myself? I had already found myself a scapegoat in the very beginning. So what if they find out? It won't affect me anyway.

"Your plans... are futile!

"I am Ian Hull. I've been in the business world for decades. What makes you think a 20-year-old brat like you can compete with me, huh?"

Ian suppressed the anger within him and sneered coldly.

Jasper merely smiled and took the contract on the table before stating calmly, "Please do start thinking about moving, Mr. Hull."

Life at the Top Chapter 518

Ian's pupils contracted. He was about to say something when Jasper spoke again.

"Maybe you don't have to go through all that trouble. After all, even if you find a new place, who knows if you'll get to stay there, right?"

Ian felt a wave of unease rush over him at Jasper's subtle smile.

He could not help but feel like there was something he had forgotten, a weakness that Jasper had already gotten hold of.

Yet no matter how he thought about it, Ian still thought that everything was in his grasp.

“All you have is the ICBS’ loan, the two ships in Harbor City, and this plot of land. That’s just three axes and you think you can win me? You wish.”

Ian sneered when he was done, but his phone suddenly began to ring again.

Ian had heard no good news every time his phone rang today, and now that his phone began to ring incessantly once more, Ian did not want to pick it up at all.

However, the display on the phone stated that it was from the hospital.

Ian had no choice but to pick it up.

“Mr. Hull, I’m calling to tell you that Ben has run out of the hospital!”

A nurse’s agitated voice echoed through the speakers.

Ian was stunned for a moment before he exploded. “What do you mean he ran out?! He’s a patient, how could you let him run out? Are you stupid?”

The nurse replied indignantly, “We’re a hospital, not a detention center, Mr. Hull. The patient is in control of his own legs. Not to mention that Ben is mentally unstable and there’s no way we can watch over him every single second.

“All the more reason to watch over him if his condition is unstable! Do you think you can take the responsibility if anything happens after he has run out?!”

Ian roared.

The nurse on the other end did not dare to make a sound.

Taking heavy breaths, Ian knew that this was not the time to throw a tantrum. He clenched his jaw and ordered, "I'll be there right away. Go look at the cameras and find out where he ran off to!"

Ian then hung up the phone. Glaring sinisterly at Jasper one last time, he turned and left, leaving Jasper to simmer in his thoughts as he watched Ian leave hastily.

Although he did not hear what the hospital told Ian, Jasper could more or less guess what had happened from Ian's two replies.

'Ben ran out?'

'Where would a mentally unstable madman run to?'

Jasper did not dwell on the problem and instead called Henry.

"How's it going for you?"

In a high-end residential complex in Waterloo City, Henry was sitting with his legs crossed. He was grinning as he looked at the man kneeling in front of him. The man was having his face beaten up by two burly men. "Don't worry about me, I've got this."

Jasper smiled. "Have him turn himself over after you're done. Make him say what he has to."

Hanging up the phone, Henry snapped his fingers at Derick who was kneeling before him. "Hey, have you given it enough thought yet?"

Blood was dripping from the corner of Derick's lips, and the man looked conflicted. He did not dare to speak.

Henry pursed his lips. “Are you actually stupid or are you just pretending to be a f*cking idiot? Do you actually think that *sshole, Ian, is a good person or something?”

“I can promise you that he has already decided to use you as a scapegoat.

“I’ve already asked around in Harbor City. There’s no escaping the charge for smuggling. It’ll only be a matter of time before they issue a joint investigation with the Mainland, and by then, you can forget about walking free from this.

“They’ve also informed me that all the evidence they found points to you being the culprit behind everything. This means Ian has completely removed himself from the narrative while you’re still here putting your life on the line for him. Are you an idiot?”

Derick’s pupils contracted slightly at the words.

He did not know who this young man who suddenly came crashing at his door was, but from everything that had conspired since then, Derick knew that this was an arrogant young man who did things without caring about the consequences.

Most importantly, this young man also seemed to be very aware of what was happening in Harbor City as if he was the true mastermind behind it all.

Henry squatted in front of Derick and spoke, “I don’t like wasting my time, and my patience has always been horrible. Your wife and child are in Harbor City, right?”

“Do you think they’ll have a nice life if you went to jail for smuggling?”

Smiling, Henry patted Derick’s swollen face. “Think again. Work with me, and I’ll have Ian put behind bars. You’re just an accomplice. By turning yourself in and cooperating with the investigation, you’ll have a few years cut from your sentence.”

Henry then pulled out a check from his breast pocket and waved it in front of Derick.

“This check will be enough for your wife and kid to wait comfortably until your release.

Derick stared at the check, already enticed.

He knew that the things he did with Ian were illegal. It would be fine if they did not get caught, but a lot of trouble would come if they did get caught.

According to his understanding of Ian, it was very likely the man would make him take all the blame...

“I mean, you don’t have to agree. You could go ahead and get executed for Ian. I’ll try to send your wife and kid down to meet you as soon as possible.”

Henry’s last sentence finally made Derick speak.

“No! Don’t!

“I promise, as long as you do as you say, I’ll promise you everything!

“I’ll go turn myself in. I’ll tell them everything I know!

“Just please, don’t hurt my family. Keep them safe!”

Henry let out a sigh of relief when he watched Derick’s last defenses break down and begin to sob.

Honestly speaking, he was a trust fund baby, a son from a rich family.

His favorite pastime was to bully and oppress other trust fund babies of his same status, not ‘normal people’ like Derick as it made him seem classless.

Not to mention that he would never hurt Derick's family. Young Master Law was not a suicidal gangster. He was not that horrible.

Henry would be at a loss if Derick had still refused to speak.

Henry smiled, feeling pleased. He spoke, "Good. Don't worry. I promised you, didn't I? That's a basic ethic for high-class trust fund babies."

Henry then got up and gave the two subordinates a look. "Let's go, Mr. Mallin. We'll send you over to turn yourself in."

Life at the Top Chapter 519

It was already getting late when Ian finally found where Ben had run off to.

G.S. Trading Export Limited Company's rooftop was the last place anyone would have expected a mentally unstable Ben to appear at!

No one knew how Ben managed to walk tens of kilometers barefoot and alone to the office's rooftop.

When Ian rushed up to the rooftop, he was met with Ben sitting on the railing, dangling his feet in the air. The ground was tens of meters under his feet.

The sight had Ian's heart lurching to his throat.

"Benny! Come down from there!"

Ian yelled.

Ben turned around to see Ian and smiled dumbly. "Hey. Come and play with me, come and play."

Ian's heart hurt as he looked at Ben who was now dirty and unkempt everywhere since he had walked his way here. Ian's hatred for Jasper reached the extreme.

"Come down first, Benny. Let's go home, hmm?"

"Don't worry, Jasper, our enemy, won't get to be arrogant for much longer. He'll kneel before you and beg for forgiveness very soon!"

Ian spoke as he carefully approached Ben.

Initially somewhat calm, Ben's expression immediately turned wretched at the sound of Jasper's name. Crazy resentment and hatred flared in his eyes.

"Jasper! Jasper's the devil! I want to kill Jasper! I want him dead!"

While Ben was agitated, Ian quickly dashed forward and grabbed his son's waist tightly. He dragged him to safety.

Extremely triggered, Ben could not recognize anyone and began to scratch and claw all over Ian.

In a few minutes, after someone had finally come to pull Ben off him, Ian already had open wounds all over himself.

Ian panted and raised his hand to wipe the burning wounds on his face. He watched with anger and infuriation as a few people held Ben down as the man continued to struggle and shout.

"It's all Jasper's fault! Our family would never have to suffer like this if it weren't for him!"

The hatred Ian harbored for Jasper was indescribable.

Just then, someone came over and whispered, "Let's go downstairs first, Mr. Hull. We should send Young Master Hull to the hospital immediately considering his mental state."

Ian clenched his jaw and got up to speak. However, he frowned as if he had thought of something and asked, "Where's Derick? Why haven't I seen him at all today?"

The person shook his head. "I don't know. We haven't seen Mr. Mallin since yesterday."

Ian felt his heart thrum as an inexplicable feeling of unease appeared. He had someone call an ambulance while he dialed Derick's number.

"Sorry, the number you have dialed is unavailable right now."

The female automated intercept message fueled Ian's unease.

"What the hell are you doing, Derick?!"

Forcefully suppressing the unease in his chest, Ian was about to exit the rooftop when he saw two employees run up to him frantically.

"Mr. Hull, someone called Jasper and a person from the ICBS branch came over to ask us to repay the loan and hand over our office building!"

Ian's expression changed as he barked out with his jaw set, "So they're really working together! Where are they?!"

The rooftop doors opened just as Ian asked, with Jasper, Vita, and a few others entering together.

Ian scoffed. He was about to speak when he saw a large group of uniformed men appearing behind Jasper.

The sight of these people froze the expression on Ian's face.

One of the uniformed men walked over and asked Ian indifferently, "Are you Ian Hull, the legal personality and president of G.S. Import And Export Trading Company?"

Ian took a deep breath and forced the unease in his chest away to reply bravely, "I am."

The person waved his hand, and two of his subordinates immediately rushed over. They took one side of Ian's shoulders each and handcuffed his wrists.

Shocked, Ian struggled. "What are you doing? Who are you to arrest me?!"

The officer pulled out an arrest warrant sternly and explained, "This is your arrest warrant. We have enough reason to believe that you're involved in smuggling goods. Please cooperate with our investigation and follow us to the station."

Ian roared. "No way! Derick was the one who did everything! It has nothing to do with me! I'm a victim here!"

The officer replied coldly, "Derick Mallin is currently under investigation at the station. He has already testified against all your crimes. I suggest you stop making unnecessary struggles."

Ian was stricken, and his expression paled. He turned to glare at Jasper and roared, "This is all your fault, Jasper! Since when did you conspire with Derick, huh?!"

Jasper tucked his arms behind him and replied plainly, "This is where you're wrong. I didn't conspire with anyone at all. Derick Mallin was just enlightened and refused to be your puppet anymore. He chose to tell the truth. That has nothing to do with me.”

Ian clenched his jaw and glared hard at Jasper, shouting, “Go to hell, Jasper!”

At that moment, Ben also saw Jasper from the side. With a sudden roar, he pounced at Jasper.

Jasper arched an eyebrow slightly but did not make any other move before Julian suddenly appeared from behind him. With the flick of a hand, Julian had Ben pinned on the floor.

Then, two other police officers ran over and cuffed Ben as well.

“Let him go, he’s not mentally stable!” Ian shouted.

“We’ll decide whether he’s mentally stable or not. But with the evidence we have on hand now, your son Ben is also involved in the smuggling of goods and must be brought away as well,” the officer stated emotionlessly.

Ian felt his world go dark and crash all around him.

He stared at Jasper and laughed pitifully. “You’d go so far to destroy everything I have, but what do you think you’ll get out of this, Jasper?”

Jasper looked at Vita calmly and asked, “Mr. Layne, I’d like to know what your bank thinks of my previous suggestion?”

Vita chuckled and replied, “Sigh. Our bank loaned Ian two billion Somer Dollars, and now we can only apply to seize all his company and assets. You’re a generous man, Mr. Laine. Since you’re willing to repay this loan for Ian, then it’s only right that all his assets go to you.”

Ian was about to explode with infuriation at that.

“You’re all bloodsuckers! My company and assets have a value of at least 3.5 billion Somer Dollars! What makes you think you can steal them with just two billion, huh?! In your dreams!”

“I disagree!”

Vita stated coldly, “I’m afraid it’s not up to you anymore, Mr. Hull.”

Life at the Top Chapter 520

“There’s hard evidence of you being involved in smuggling goods! All your accounts are now frozen, so how are you going to repay our bank’s loan?”

Vita stared intently at Ian, and his tone was extremely frigid.

“Two billion Somer Dollars is a huge sum of funds to a bank, and according to the contract we signed, the bank has the right to request to seize your company and all the assets under your name if we find ourselves in such a circumstance.

“Of course, since the sum in your personal account has been seized, we have no other option but to auction all your assets to prevent a loss on our side.

“Mr. Laine took pity on you and is willing to repay your loan, so it’s only right that we transfer your assets to Mr. Laine.

“If you’re unwilling, you’re very welcome to bring this to court with Mr. Laine when you’re released.”

Vita then smiled and continued, “That is, of course, if you get released at all.”

Ian ground his molars together and glared at Vita, roaring at the man. “You were nothing more than a dog wagging its tail when you f*cking begged me to take a loan! You’d even lick my shoes if I asked but now this is how you’re talking to me?!”

Vita’s expression darkened, and his voice turned icy. “I was just doing business. You didn’t have to listen to me if you didn’t want to, Mr. Hull. What you think doesn’t really matter anymore anyway.”

“Hahaha!”

Ian looked up at the sky and scoffed self-deprecatingly. He then turned to glare at Jasper. “What a well-thought-out plan you have there, so great that you’ve managed to destroy me and the entire Hull family while swallowing all of my assets too. So this was your plan?!”

“What grandeur, Jasper Laine!”

Jasper replied plainly, “Frankly speaking, I’m not actually attacking you. I don’t even want that bit of money the Hull family owns. If I didn’t have the habit of seeking profit returns with everything I do, I wouldn’t have even wasted my time on something as worthless as you.

“Plus, I’m saving you here. You would be facing more than just your assets getting auctioned off if I don’t repay this loan for you. The bank would sue you for loan fraud, now worsened considering the immense value of two billion. Coupled with you smuggling goods, you’ll be charged for both crimes and that’ll definitely guarantee you a life sentence in prison.

“You should be thanking me here.”

Ian’s expression twisted into a crazed one at Jasper’s words, and he began to struggle maddeningly as he roared at Jasper. “Just wait, Jasper! Do you think that you’ll be safe now that you’ve gotten rid of me?”

“Let me tell you, I have the entire Haddock Chamber of Commerce supporting me here!

“And my money, that’s Gale Hurlbutt’s money! Do you dare take his money too? He’ll f*cking kill you!”

Jasper huffed a laugh. “You’re talking about that three billion Somer Dollars, right? I’m sorry, but I don’t think you understand what’s going on here. I’m not the one seizing your bank account. Regardless of who gave you that three billion, the court will still take it as money you earned from smuggling goods.

“Considering how prestigious Old Master Hurlbutt is, I’m sure he won’t be calculative with a little brat like me.

“Most importantly, so what if he decides to be calculative?

“Do you think he’d want to clash with the Law family for a doomed pawn?”

Jasper’s words froze Ian’s crazed expression.

“The Law family. I knew it was the Law family! I knew it, that’s why they attacked my ships so quickly! You conspired with them long ago. You had already decided that you’ll split my assets!”

Jasper gave a small smile and ignored Ian.

Ian had lost to him ever since the beginning, and he was never worth any of Jasper’s concern.

Instead, Jasper walked over to Ben.

Ben’s condition was still unstable. He continued to struggle wretchedly, out of control. He was barking like a mad dog.

Seeing Jasper approach him, Ben's struggles doubled.

If Ian's struggle was because he had been blinded by anger and lost all rationale, then Ben's could only be described as the suicidal struggles of a madman.

The two burly men beside him seemed to have difficulty holding him down.

Julian walked over as well and stood next to Jasper, ready to protect the latter while whispering, "Be careful, Jasper."

Life at the Top Chapter 521

Jasper smiled. "It's alright. If I wasn't afraid of him when he was conscious, why would I be now?"

Seeing how there was not a shred of logic or humanity in Ben's crazy gaze, Jasper spoke plainly, "I've been suspecting that you're just pretending to be crazy this whole time, and now when I'm looking at you, I was right."

Ben did not react. He merely glared at Jasper like a predator watching their prey.

"You know what I think? I think you're just pretending to be crazy so you don't need to suffer legal consequences. But your dad is screwed. His crimes are enough for him to get executed and shot. Or maybe an indefinite sentence if he's lucky.

"But... To him, to me, and oh, to you, it's the same, isn't it? Indefinite sentence and death, not really much of a difference there.

"And as for your uncle, Hans Hull, his time will come soon."

Jasper quirked the corner of his lips. "After all that he has done, the only reason why he's still safe and sound is because of the Hull family. But this is the end of the Hull family. All his enemies and all those family members of women he has hurt, they won't let him get away with it.

"If you look at it from a different angle, you could say his fate would be worse."

Jasper let out a light exhale and chuckled. "The Hull family is over, as I promised you before... And now you, without the Hull family's protection, it's over for you too!"

At Jasper's words, Ben suddenly stopped struggling.

He stared at Jasper with emotionless eyes.

He stood there unmovingly like a plank of wood.

The abrupt change had everyone looking over and staring at Ben. Ian even closed his mouth mid-shout.

Under everyone's gaze, Ben suddenly smiled and asked Jasper, "How did you know I was pretending?"

At that moment, everyone was stunned.

Even the hospital had diagnosed Ben to have gone mad.

No one ever expected that Ben had been pretending all along.

Everyone's gaze when they looked at Ben was now filled with fright. They did not understand how a normal person underwent professional tests by machines and managed to fool medical science.

The only calm one was Jasper. "A madman, yes, and you managed to escape despite being watched over by so many people. All the way here, tens of kilometers away.

"If that was all, then fine, but you just had to run to your own company. Now that was worth a slightly deeper thought.

"You must've seen through my goals and plans, hmm? You came here to find Derick, didn't you? What a shame then, since I had never planned for Derick to come back here."

Jasper's words had Ben bursting into laughter, to the point where tears began to bead at the corner of his eyes. He pointed at Jasper and was short of breath from laughing.

"Good, good, very good! I thought I had managed to scam everyone but you're good, Jasper. Losing to you? I accept my defeat."

Ben suddenly turned to prostrate to Ian.

No one was suspicious of this action, and the two men who had been holding him this whole time reflexively let go as well.

No matter how terrible Ben was, he still had the right to be a filial son.

However, Jasper frowned slightly because he saw the eerie smile hanging on the corner of Ben's lips.

"No!"

Jasper suddenly shouted.

At the same time, Ben had a sudden outburst and stood up. He rushed toward the edge of the rooftop before anyone could react.

"I'll admit my loss to you, Jasper. But you can dream on if you think I'll let you torture me!"

Before the words could reach everyone else, Ben had already jumped off the rooftop...

Life at the Top Chapter 522

Ben jumping off the building was something no one had expected at all.

Even Julian only managed to run to the edge of the railing where he watched Ben fall with wide eyes.

“Ah!”

Ian howled loudly and heart-wrenchingly.

As if he had gone mad, Ian was suddenly filled with unimaginable strength in such a hopeless situation. He managed to shake off the two uniformed men who were holding him down. He rushed toward the railing.

Jasper had arrived as well.

Both Jasper and Ian saw Ben’s body freefall through the air and crash harshly against the ground.

There was a loud bang upon impact!

Fresh blood sprayed everywhere, and Ben’s body splattered all over the ground like a watermelon. His organs and blood exploded everywhere, up to a five-foot radius.

No normal person could bear to see such a scene.

Watching Ben die before his eyes, Ian leaned against the railing with his mouth wide open and his complexion ashen.

At that moment, Ian felt all the energy in his body zapped away. It was as if he had aged 30 years.

“He’s dead. He’s dead...”

Ian stared at Ben’s disfigured body downstairs and the crowd that was beginning to surround it. Falling back on his butt, Ian suddenly wailed.

Ian did not say another word when he was finally dragged away in the end.

It was as if his heart had died...

Jasper did not look at him anymore.

Jasper had long talked to Henry about this, and according to Harbor City’s laws, Ian would undoubtedly be charged with a life sentence. He had smuggled too high a value of goods.

It was fortunate that Harbor City had demolished its death penalty, or 200 million worth of smuggled goods would surely end in execution by shooting.

The officers brought Ian away. Having witnessed such a huge problem arise within the company, the other employees were filled with fear. They all left to search for new ways to make a living.

However, Vita did not leave.

Instead, he walked toward Jasper and spoke in admiration, “Everything has been dealt with, Mr. Laine. Just as you said, Ian can’t fight back at all... Thank you. If not for you, our branch would’ve surely been troubled with that two billion Somer Dollar loan.”

Jasper smiled. “It’s nothing. We’re all just taking what we need here.”

Vita chuckled loudly. “You’ve saved my life. I would’ve lost my job and even got put into jail if I couldn’t get such a large loan back.

“Ignoring everything else, you can trust me with transferring Ian’s assets to you. I promise you’ll be satisfied.”

Jasper shook Vita’s hand and replied, “That’s all I request, to have all of the Hull family’s assets. As for the specifics of it all, I don’t really care.

“But, Mr. Layne, do tell me if there’s any problem with the valuation of the assets. I don’t mind paying a little more if it means my friend can have it easier.”

Vita was very content with Jasper’s words.

While he had not participated in Jasper’s plan at all, following Jasper over here allowed Vita to understand a little bit of what had happened between Jasper and Ian.

Having worked in the system for so long, Vita had to be a sensitive and detailed man for him to rise to the position of office manager in charge of asset management.

Jasper had exposed a large smuggling case involving hundreds of millions in Harbor City and destroyed the entire Hull family in the span of a conversation.

The power involved in this incident was beyond what Vita would dare to imagine.

Still, Jasper was far from cold and overbearing with Vita. Jasper’s extreme politeness had Vita respecting Jasper even more.

While it was not rare for youths to be ambitious, the fact that Jasper remained so humble and understanding after he had achieved his ambitions spoke of how limitless Jasper’s future would be!

Vita decided internally that he would treasure Jasper as the other was a valuable asset. Vita smiled. "Understood. I won't let you suffer any losses no matter what."

In tacit agreement, both of them rejoiced.

Returning to the hotel, Jasper found Henry sitting with his legs crossed. He was happily watching television while waiting for him.

"Done?" Henry immediately walked over when he saw Jasper enter the room.

Jasper nodded. "It's all done."

Henry clapped his hands together and laughed aloud. "Great. Promise me, you'll let me sell the goods on those two cargos."

Jasper replied in shock, "Sure, I already promised your dad this anyway. But will he give them to you, though?"

Henry harrumphed and replied proudly, "Of course. Giving it to my dad means giving it to me. He told me to find someone to get rid of all the goods and we'll split the profit."

Jasper smiled. "The Hulls have a total of 2.5 to 2.8 billion worth of assets in the Mainland. After paying for the loan the Hulls own, that's still 500 to 800 million. Well, at least I didn't lose anything."

Henry's eyes shone. "Would you be interested in the import and export trade?"

Jasper glanced at Henry and asked intently, "What's your idea?"

Henry snickered. "My dad promised me over in Harbor City, so I've started to look for people. But seriously though, I just realized how good it is to do import and export trade in the Mainland. A few hundred million in a year, just like that."

Jasper replied, “No thanks, I’m not interested. You can go for it if you want, but I won’t suggest going too big with it. Something tells me that this industry might only last for these two years. Profit is going to drop when the craze is over.

“By then, your profits will decrease while you’ll need to increase your capital. You’ll be making several million with a capital of several hundred million. It’s not worth it.”

With memory from his past life, Jasper was well aware of the change the import and export trade would go through as the country’s market developed. Not to mention that with competition growing every day, doing business would become more difficult as time passed.

That was why he had never decided to dabble in an industry with such a short lifespan.

However, it was fine if Henry wanted to do it. After all, there was still profit to be earned—albeit not much.

Not to mention that Henry had the Law family supporting him and enough support from all sides. If anything, he could cooperate with the Boyle family, a tycoon in Harbor City’s shipping industry who ordinary businessmen in the import and export industry could only dream of partnering with.

Henry now hung on to Jasper’s every word.

Seeing such a reaction from Jasper, Henry fell deep into thought. “Sure. I’ll do as you say. I’ll take what I can get now so that profit can still be earned. We’ll deal with the future when the time comes.”

Just as Jasper thought that the case with the Hull family had come to an end, he received a phone call.

Gale Hurlbutt wanted to meet him!

Life at the Top Chapter 523

In the same traditional-looking manor in Suesville.

After receiving Ian here as a guest a few days ago, Jasper appeared as well.

Jasper had always thought that Law Manor was huge, but it paled in comparison to Gale's manor. There were five entrances and exits each, and a courtyard that occupied hectares of land.

It was evident that Gale had put a lot of his wealth into this residence.

Arriving at the entrance of the courtyard, Jasper found servants already waiting for him there.

After clarifying Jasper's identity, the servant then ushered Jasper into the manor that had hundreds of years of history.

After seven to eight minutes of walking and passing two artificial hills, an artificial lake, and two lake pavilions, Jasper arrived at the inner courtyard.

Between beautifully decorated buildings was another lake pavilion, one that Jasper found Gale sitting in.

Though his head was full of white hair, he was a strong man.

Gale was reading when Jasper walked over.

Glancing at the cover, Jasper realized that it was a thread-bound ancient book, a rare 'History of the North and South'.

Jasper walked into the lake pavilion, and Gale shut the book before turning to smile at Jasper. "You're here."

Despite not knowing whether Gale was a friend or a foe, Jasper still held enough respect for the Haddock Chamber of Commerce's spiritual leader. He nodded and replied, "Yes, I have."

Gale hummed and looked down to read his book again. He merely pointed at the seat opposite him and spoke, "Take a seat."

Jasper sat before Gale as ushered, and there was a small round stone table between the two.

Like that, half an hour passed.

Gale continued to focus on his book throughout that half an hour while Jasper enjoyed the coffee served by the servants. He did not mind the fact that he had to wait.

Half an hour later, Gale finally put the book down and sighed. "I'm growing old now. There are times when I end up forgetting things while I'm doing something else.

"Especially when it comes to reading. Interesting plots take up all my focus. I apologize if I have made you wait, Jasper."

Jasper smiled. "You still insist on reading every day, Old Master Hurlbutt. You're a role model to youths like me. I'm honored to be able to learn from you. I don't feel like I've been made to wait at all."

Gale smiled and placed the book down. "Among this compiled 'History of the North and South' is 'The Tale of Casey Charles'. The troop of white horsemen is truly fascinating.

“Now that I think about it, you share many similarities with Casey Charles, Jasper.”

Jasper immediately replied, “You’re too kind, Old Master Hurlbutt. The white-robed General Casey Charles was a legendary general. How could I possibly compare to him?”

Gale smiled. “Historians claim that Casey Charles was a cautious man. Dressed poorly and uninterested in musical instruments, he was a horrible archer and even worse on horseback. However, he was great at uplifting soldiers and urging them to do their best.

“You, on the other hand, are humble and low-profile. You have never flaunted your ability and while you are ambitious and young, you have never held it over anyone’s head. In terms of business tricks, you are understanding of what people want and you are good with scheming.

“Would you not say that you two have much in common?”

Jasper looked at Gale and replied calmly, “I’m honored that you’ve paid so much attention to me, Old Master Hurlbutt.”

Beneath Gale’s snow-white eyebrows were a pair of wise eyes that were now filled with intent as he spoke, “I did not know much about you in the beginning and then Ian came to look for me to ask me for help.

“I became interested in this young man who managed to corner my student, so I had someone ask around for me.

“It would be fine if I had remained ignorant, but the more I heard about you, the more intrigued I became. You’re an interesting young man... The Laws value you a lot as well, correct?”

Life at the Top Chapter 524

Jasper replied calmly, "Old Master Law is very kind, he's been watching out for me a lot."

Gale nodded. "Let us get back to the topic. You should know that Ian Hull is my student and a member of the Haddock Chamber of Commerce."

Jasper gave a small smile. "This is the first time I've heard that he's your student, but I do know that the both of you hold a close relationship. I knew about his identity as one of the business people from Haddock right at the start as well."

"Yet you wish to fight to the death?" Gale's eyebrow twitched as he asked.

Jasper looked at Gale, the older expressionless, and stood his ground. "He crossed my boundaries! He touched what he never should have!"

"The Hull family has to die!"

"If not the Hulls this time, then there would only be other families in the future."

Gale replied calmly, "Young man, both of you made names for yourselves in youth. But Casey Charles had only come into power when he was in his middle-ages while you came into power the moment you made a name for yourself. There is too much hostility within you."

Jasper shook his head. "I wouldn't say that I'm a hostile person, but it does depend on the situation. Are you perhaps planning to take justice for your student, Old Master Hurlbutt?"

At that, Gale looked at Jasper intently but did not reply right away.

As Jasper waited silently and without a word for Gale to reply.

The early winter air was slightly chilly as it swirled through the small lake pavilion. The sound of running water and fishes swimming drifted over from a distance not too far away, breaking the silence between them. The scenery around them was splendid but the atmosphere in the pavilion was far from relaxed.

It was as if the relationship between Jasper and Gale, or rather Jasper and the entire Haddock Chamber of Commerce, was to be confirmed in this short span of silence.

“I am not.”

After a long while, Gale shook his head. There was a tint of disappointment in his calm expressions when he continued to speak, “I do not like Ian’s sinister and cruel methods. Much of the way he does business is against the rules of Haddock’s Chamber of Commerce.”

“However, his father had done something for me and I owe the Hull family two favors. For the first favor, Ian’s father had begged me to take Ian as my student. I have accomplished that.”

“The second favor, Ian had begged me to help him. I have accomplished that as well.”

“Whatever relationship I have with Ian has ended.”

The atmosphere lightened with Gale’s words.

Jasper let out a slow sigh. To be absolutely honest, if possible, Jasper did not want to make an enemy of the powerful Haddock Chamber of Commerce at such a point in time.

After all, business people from Haddock were involved in a broad range of business and they were all over the world. Members of this Chamber of Commerce in influential positions in almost every industry.

It was very unbeneficial for a rift to appear between Jasper and the spiritual leader of businesspeople from Haddock while he was still developing his business.

“If that’s the case, then I’ll have a lot less to worry about. From what I heard, you were the one who gave Ian that 3 billion, Old Master Hurlbutt?” Jasper asked.

Gale smiled subtly and looked at Jasper. “Why? Do you wish to pay me back?”

Jasper was stunned. Before he could reply, Gale then waved his hand dismissively, “Forget it. I am but an old man, I have no need for such money. Not that I can bring it with me in death anyway.”

“I’ve never expected to get that 3 billion back after giving it to Ian. Let the money sign an end to this incident.”

Jasper nodded. “You’re a generous man, Old Master Hurlbutt.”

Gale chuckled and spoke meaningfully, “Still, you have gotten rid of the Haddock Chamber of Commerce’s Waterhoof City Branch’s leading figure. Countless people have their eyes on the incident and they will focus on what happens to you ever since the moment you walked through my doors.”

“So promise me one thing, whether it is to placate the Chamber of Commerce, or to let an old man like me preserve my dignity.”

Life at the Top Chapter 525

“Please tell,” Jasper replied, sounding neither arrogant nor inferior.

In truth, Jasper had given Old Master Law a call when he made his way over to Suesville to meet Gale. He had also asked Old Master Law something, and instead of forbidding Jasper to go, Old Master Law said something intriguing.

“I don’t see a problem with you going to meet Gale Hurlbutt, Jasper. While that old man has a short temper, he sees his dignity as more important than anything else. There’s no way he would push that aside and do anything to you.

“Not to mention that you’ve really offended the businesspeople from Haddock this time. If you could get a positive reaction from Gale, then you’ll at least be safe from open attacks from the Haddock Chamber of Commerce.

“But be extremely cautious when dealing with Gale, Jasper. This man is very sly, and there’s more to him than his facade of being uncaring and retired.”

With those words still echoing in his ear, Jasper thought back to everything that had happened since he met Gale.

Jasper did indeed feel that Gale had more in mind for him, but there was no confirming whether they were good or bad plans.

Gale’s white eyebrows twitched slightly, and he smiled at Jasper. “Do not worry, young man. I am not the kind who would hold the fact that I am your elder over your head. If anything, I would propose a win-win bargain.

“I am sure that you are aware of Waterhoof City being our country’s financial center even without me telling you. There will only be more use for Waterhoof

City in the future and policies would only begin to favor the city more. It is a treasurable plot of land.

“Our chamber of commerce had initially planned the speed up development in Waterhoof City, but we had not expected a young man like you to appear mid-way and almost overpower our Waterhoof City branch’s forces in one go.

“Since this is a loss you caused, it is only right that you fix the issue.”

Gale’s eyes were filled with intent when he spoke. He looked at Jasper meaningfully. “I have decided to have you take the role of Waterhoof City branch’s vice president. You will be required to preside over the Haddock Chamber of Commerce as it integrates into Waterhoof City.”

Jasper was stunned.

He had prepared himself for Gale stating a large price to pay or that there would be a sinister plan in store for him.

The last thing Jasper imagined was for this old man to welcome him into the Haddock Chamber of Commerce while also giving him the position of Waterhoof City branch’s vice president.

As this position was out of his scope, Jasper frowned and shook his head. “I’m sorry. I’m not even a member of the Haddock Chamber of Commerce to begin with, nor do I have any plans to enter any chambers of commerce for the time being. Especially not as the vice president of a city as important as Waterhoof City... I don’t think that’s a good idea.”

Unsurprised by Jasper’s reaction, Gale chuckled and replied, “We call it a chamber of commerce, but it is more of a loose community than anything else. There are no limitations when it comes to the members. Of course...

“I could give you a formal promise if you require. The chamber will not force you to do anything you are unwilling to do.

“However, no matter how loose this community is, it is still an organization with centuries of history. I do not wish to see the Haddock Chamber of Commerce come to an end in my hands.”

“Waterhoof City is important, but there are too few people within the chamber suitable for such a job... You, however, are the best fit for the role.”

Gale turned to Jasper seriously before continuing, “Three years. I just need you to take the role for three years. Then you may leave if you wish.”

Jasper frowned. “What if I become the vice president in name only, Old Master Hurlbutt? What if I spend those three years lazing about and make no contributions at all?”

Gale smiled. “As I said, the chamber will not force you to do anything. If you do not wish to do anything for those three years, that is fine as well.”

The nicer Gale was being, the more Jasper wary Jasper felt.

Yet no matter how he mulled over it, Jasper could not find any obvious issues with the proposal.

Life at the Top Chapter 526

After a short moment of thought, Jasper decided that he would not start a rift with Gale, whose stand was still uncertain. He would be slightly kind to the old man unless absolutely necessary.

“Old Master Hurlbutt, I’d like to ask for some time to think about this,” Jasper requested.

Gale gave a smile and replied, “Of course. I must ask that you do not take too long to think, but I shall await your reply.”

“Three days, then,” Jasper promised, “I’ll give you a clear response in three days.”

Gale nodded as if he was certain that Jasper would agree.

Now that they had finished negotiating, Jasper stood up. “I’ve bothered you for too long, Old Master Hurlbutt. I shall take my leave now.”

Gale reached out gently to gesture Jasper to stop and handed the ‘History of the North and South’ to him. “I am gifting this book to you.

“Do take a read should you find yourself some free time. The history of the north and south was an important time for our country. It would do you good to understand more.”

Jasper took over the priceless and long out of print ‘History of the North and South’ and replied, “Thank you for your gift, Old Master Hurlbutt. I’ll make sure to treasure it.”

Gale smiled and waved him off. "You are free to leave then. I will not hold you here anymore."

Jasper bade Gale farewell and turned to leave.

Gale was calm as he watched Jasper's figure vanish into the corridor. One could not tell if he was angry or happy.

Suddenly, an old servant appeared by his side.

"Master, many of your students are greatly displeased with his cruel methods this time. Yet instead of teaching him a lesson, you gave him the branch's vice president's seat. I fear that many of them will be in an uproar," the old servant replied softly.

Gale replied slowly, "The ones complaining the most are the ones who saw an easy gain and decided to support Ian, only to lose the most. Correct?"

The old servant smiled. "Businessmen. They're known to seek quick benefits."

"There is nothing wrong with businessmen seeking quick benefits, but one must be aware of who their opponent is as well. If you have not the slightest understanding of risks, then there is no one to blame but yourself."

Gale replied calmly, "Ignore those who groan and howl in complaint. I am too old to listen to their cries anymore."

The old servant nodded and asked curiously, "What do you have in mind, Master? According to our information, Jasper is not a saint."

Gale smiled. "It is precisely because he is not a saint. How will an innocent lamb find their footing in Waterhoof City? I need an ambitious and ruthless predator for the job."

“Something tells me that this young man will surprise us all.”

The old servant fell deep in thought for a moment before he asked quietly, “What about the chamber’s opinions?”

“Press them down,” Gale replied, “I still have use for this young man. Without my permission, no one is allowed to act rashly.”

Gale sighed. “The chamber would not be so lacking in elites now if they were more hardworking. And an old man like me would not have to worry so much.

“If they are unwilling to fight for themselves, then they should just be content with what they have instead of pining for a spot they are incapable of filling. The vice president of the Waterhoof City branch is indeed a great position, but if the one sitting there is lacking, then they would only be signing a death wish for themselves. Ian’s situation is testament to that.”

Life at the Top Chapter 527

Once he returned from Suesville, Jasper immediately called Old Master Law and told him of the entire conversation he had with Gale.

“I think Gale wants to make me into his weapon, Old Master Law,” Jasper stated as he sat in the car, rubbing his temples.

Old Master Law’s bright laughter echoed through the speakers. “Don’t think too much about it. There’s a duality to everything. While it does seem like he intends to use you, this may also be an opportunity for you.”

Jasper frowned slightly. “What do you mean, Old Master Law?”

Old Master Law chuckled but did not explain further. Instead, he spoke deeply, "People as old as us don't make decisions with our own gains in mind anymore. We make decisions for the people after us.

"I, for example, make decisions with the Law family in mind. Gale doesn't have any family left, he's all alone. So the most important thing to him now is who to pass the Haddock Chamber of Commerce to.

"That's why he's doing everything he can to pave the rest of the way for the chamber. He might be using you in the process, but he could also use anyone else as well. His main goal is to lead the chamber to develop in the direction he wishes. He couldn't care less who sits atop it.

"The businesspeople from Haddock are a business organization. If the Hull family and Gale can use them as they wish, then why can't you?"

Jasper did not reply as he fell deep into thought.

Old Master Law knew that Jasper needed some time to digest and think it through, so he spoke gently, "Whether you think of this as a big deal or not is up to you. It depends on how you want to see it.

"Take your time to think clearly about it and plan well. Go for it if you think it's worth it, and reject him if you think it isn't.

"Instead of him using you, think of this as a transaction. As to how much you can gain from this, well, that will be up to you."

Old Master Law then hung up the phone.

Jasper calmly watched the highway flit by through the window.

The memory of his past life had given Jasper a huge advantage, and he was well aware that the current success he had was because he had been reincarnated.

No one was more certain of the future than he was.

However, his memory did not make him omnipotent. The Haddock Chamber of Commerce, for example. There was nothing of it in his memory.

All he knew was that there was a chamber of commerce in both his past and current lives.

There were similar chambers but were from different places and with different names.

It was up to him to dig up more intel on his own.

...

Returning from Suesville, Jasper arrived at Waterhoof City.

Both Dawson and Wendy had arrived as well.

They had not come for any special reason, but rather because Jasper had bought that plot of land. If he planned to develop it, it would surely be done by JW Real Estate. As such, Jasper decided to ask Dawson and Wendy for their opinions.

As the trio walked toward his plot of land by Harpoon River, Jasper asked, "Uncle Schuler, has the situation with the supermarkets calmed down yet?"

Dawson smiled. "It was never anything big to begin with. Those people can't do much damage. There's a small loss, but it's not a big deal."

Jasper nodded. "In comparison to the supermarkets, their attacks exposed quite a few problems with my investment company. I've got to put some effort there after this and reform it."

Life at the Top Chapter 528

“It’s expected that all sorts of problems will arise during a company’s inception. It’s a good thing that they’ve been exposed so soon. It’d be even more difficult to correct mistakes once they’ve become bad habits within the company and grow to a certain scale,” Dawson replied solemnly.

Jasper nodded in agreement. “That’s the idea... We’re almost there.”

The plot of land Jasper bought was within a few hundred-meter radii of Pearl Tower. It was two streets away from the Harpoon River and could be considered a golden territory.

When the trio arrived, what was once G.S. Limited Company’s commercial office now had its entrance closed and sealed.

The once busy office now fell into deep silence.

“I plan to get rid of everything on the land next year and build a skyscraper in its place!”

Jasper spoke in high spirits as the exterior of the Waterhoof City Financial Tower from his previous life appeared in his mind.

“The skyscraper will be Waterhoof City’s newest landmark, and it’ll stand right next to the Pearl Tower.

“If the Southface River project is said to make a name for JW Real Estate within the country, then this building will make JW Real Estate into one of the best modern and high-end real estate companies in the country that integrates property management.”

“It’s going to cost a lot, isn’t it?” Wendy was in charge of finances, so it was only normal she was sensitive to matters relating to money.

The great Miss Schuler had already been unhappy when she found out that Jasper spent a whopping 300 million just to buy a plot of land that could either appreciate or amortize.

She began to worry about the cost again when she heard Jasper’s expensive idea.

“The project hasn’t been planned or budgeted yet, but I’d say total investment would amount to at least six billion,” Jasper stated.

The Waterhoof City Financial Tower had cost 8.7 billion for its entire construction in his past life.

If Jasper was going to construct it, he would only construct one that was even better.

“I don’t mind spending money, since there are a lot of things that money can’t buy. The country’s real estate market will fully start in a few years and not even the rich would be able to buy such a high-rise building in Waterhoof City by then.”

Despite being prepared for an astronomical amount, both Dawson and his daughter were shocked when they heard such a monumental amount coming from Jasper.

“Six billion.” Dawson seemed to have envisioned a thundering skyscraper sitting on the plain plot of land before him. He asked, “Do you have that much money?”

“It won’t be wise for you to pour in all your liquid funds just to build a high-rise,” Dawson persuaded.

“The Southface River project covers a much larger ground and it only costs around two billion. It’s a large risk to invest triple of the Southface River project just for a building.”

Jasper smiled. “I get what you mean, that’s why I plan to start this project next year. I’m not planning to invest everything in one go either. It’ll be much easier on my shoulders if I split the investments in installments, and the time in between will be enough for me to earn what I invested back.”

Jasper’s eyes shone confidently.

An earth-shattering terrorist attack was due next year.

This was an attack on the United States, the strongest country in the world. It would lead to war in the Middle East.

Jasper did not concern himself with the terrorist attack or war overseas, but behind the incident came the skyrocketing prices of gold and international oil. Therefore, there were plenty of benefits to be reaped.

Jasper was now in need of money to develop this plot of land in Waterhoof City, so there was no way he would throw away the chance to earn big bucks.

Seeing how confident Jasper was, Dawson did not comment any further and merely smiled. “Alright then. Leave a few levels for Schuler Group when you’re done building this skyscraper, would you? Schuler Group’s headquarters won’t move, but it’d be nice to have such an office as well.”

Life at the Top Chapter 529

There was still a year until the development of the land in Waterhoof City.

As such, Jasper and the other two did not dwell in Waterhoof City for too long.

Vita would follow up with the Hull family's assets, so Jasper just needed to wait for the money to roll in.

As a result, the three of them returned to the Southeast Province after lunch.

While there was no longer any crisis with the supermarkets, Dawson still needed to be there to deal with the many issues that arose because of it. As such, he directly returned to the provincial capital.

Meanwhile, Jasper had been summoned back to Tefa City by his mom Sally.

Back in the villa in Tefa City, Jasper found both his mom Sally and his dad Charlie waiting for him in the living room.

"Did something happen? You sounded rushed on the phone," Jasper asked.

Sally turned to look at Charlie only to see her husband staring at her. Sally then spoke in displeasure, "You were the one who wanted to do this. But instead of calling your son and telling him yourself, you make me the one to do it."

Jasper sat on the sofa and took a few large gulps of water before he smiled. "Just tell me what's going on, Mom, Dad. Why are you hesitating in front of me?"

Sally then replied, "It's nothing, really. Do you remember that uncle of yours? Your cousin Darrel's dad."

Jasper gave it some thought. He did not have that many relatives, and there did seem to be such a person.

Be it his past or present life, there had not been many changes in his relatives.

Needless to say, he had lived horribly in his past life. Ignoring how people looked down on him, he was certainly prime material for people to talk and laugh about after meals.

Everyone essentially just lived their plain, boring lives without any large ups or downs.

“I do, why?” Jasper asked.

Sally explained, “Your uncle and cousin are coming over this afternoon. They said there’s something they want to talk about. But something tells me they’re here for you, so I called to see if you were free to take a trip down.”

Jasper frowned.

No one cared when you were broke, but everyone seemed to suddenly be friends when you were rich.

He was the epitome of a good-for-nothing in his past life, and there was no way any of his relatives would entertain him.

Yet now that he had brought his parents over to the villa, all his relatives seemed to have gotten wind of such news.

Jasper had long prepared himself to deal with relatives who would come and fawn over him now that he was rich.

Still, despite being prepared, Jasper could not help but feel uncomfortable by the idea of it. "I'm here already anyway, so we might as well just invite them over for dinner. We'll see how it goes from there."

"But I want to make it clear that regardless of whether I'm rich or not, or however successful my business is, them being my relatives has nothing to do with it."

"If they're really in trouble and they're here to borrow money, I don't have problems helping out. But if they're here to leech off me because I'm rich now, then I'm sorry, but no."

Charlie frowned and finally spoke after having stayed silent this entire time, "I wouldn't agree either if that was the case. But they're relatives, and since they've already come all the way here, it's only polite to invite them over."

Sally commented distastefully, "Look at you two, father and son. They haven't even said anything yet and you two are already defensive. What kind of relatives are you?"

"You two need to have a better attitude when they get here. Or do you want everyone to talk behind our backs saying that we're looking down on poorer relatives now that we're making money?"

Sally spoke as she got up to make the call.

The other family must have arrived at Tefa City in advance, for it only took them half an hour before they arrived at the villa.

Life at the Top Chapter 530

It was a family of three that arrived, including Darrel who Jasper had a slight memory of.

The moment they arrived, Sally immediately went over to greet them.

It was evident that the three of them felt nervous and cautious when they stood in the magnificent villa, for they did not even dare to speak too loudly.

The three of them would glance at Jasper from time to time, wanting to say something only to swallow their words back down.

“Sigh. I heard that Jasper has become an outstanding man and is earning so much money he’s making our ancestors proud, but this is way greater than what we expected. This villa couldn’t have been cheap, right?”

Darrel’s mom, Aunt Honey, spoke enviously.

Sally sat by the side, her expression filled with pride. Jasper being praised made her happier than when people praised her.

“Sigh, Jasper must’ve suffered quite a bit to earn the money he’s got today.”

“What’s the point with having too much money anyway? How can you even spend it all when you’ve made such a fortune?”

Sitting beside Jasper, Darrel carefully pulled out a box of cigarettes from his pants pocket. It was an unopened box of premium grade CW hard cigarettes.

It was evident that they had gone out of their way to buy it.

“A cigarette, Jasper,” Darrel courteously passed the cigarette to Jasper and spoke embarrassedly.

While Jasper did smoke, he did not do it daily. Seeing how polite and careful Darrel was being, Jasper took the cigarette and smiled. “What do you do now, Darrel?”

Darrel quickly replied, “I did two years of temporary work with the county government after I graduated college, but I resigned in the second half of the year.”

Jasper nodded. He was about to speak when Honey interrupted him, “Darrel just doesn’t know how to take it easy, Jasper. He has his mind set on doing business.

“He said he has his eyes on a shop in the county a while ago and now he wants to open a hotpot restaurant. Not everyone can open a hotpot restaurant, okay? But he’s just too stubborn to listen, and he even resigned without telling any of us. Now he’s saying he wants to open a hotpot restaurant or he won’t do anything else.’

Darrel looked determined. “You guys just don’t understand. I don’t just want to open any sort of hotpot restaurant, this is a special kind.”

Jasper was intrigued and asked, “Oh? What kind of hotpot restaurant do you have in mind?”

Darrel’s eyes shone at Jasper’s question. He pulled out a deck of pictures he had prepared from his pocket. Handing them to Jasper, he spoke, “This is what I saw in the large cities when I was in college. Look at them, they’re very different, aren’t they?”

Jasper took a look at the pictures and immediately had an idea.

While the hotpot restaurants in the pictures were not as systematic or standardized as they were in his past life, its trend toward becoming the country's number one hotpot brand was already visible.

This was Hello Hotpot.

It was a brand that truly introduced the F&B industry to the concept of service first.

“You want to open this hotpot restaurant? If I'm not wrong, I don't think they accept franchising,” Jasper asked intriguingly.

Ignoring everything else, the fact that Darrel was interested in Hello Hotpot right now had proven his eye for business.

Darrel was shocked. “You know about them too? They opened four outlets in Elden City. Have you been there?”

“Not myself, but I heard about it from a friend.”

Jasper gave a smile.

“Tell me how you plan on opening this. Will you completely copy their scale?”

Life at the Top Chapter 531

“I plan to persuade the boss of Hello Company to open a hotpot restaurant in our Faith County!”

Darrel’s eyes shone as he spoke.

“He has already agreed and promised to sponsor half the money. But following his requests, it’s very expensive to invest in one Hello Hotpot restaurant and I don’t have that kind of money.”

Darrel’s eyes burned into Jasper as he asked sincerely, “Jasper, I came here today to ask you for help.”

The elders must have stopped talking some time ago, for they were all listening to Jasper and Darrel’s conversation.

After Darrel had spoken, both Honey and her husband looked at Jasper pleadingly.

Jasper tapped his fingers on the pictures but did not speak.

Honestly speaking, Darrel could have just decided to open a normal hotpot restaurant or any other normal business.

In which case, Jasper would give him an amount he never expected to be repaid and that was that.

However, Darrel was interested in Hello Hotpot and even planned to open a shop here in the Southeast Province. Now that was interesting.

“How about this? I’ll give you two options to choose from.”

After a long while, Jasper spoke.

“Option one, as long as the money you require is under 200,000 dollars, I’ll lend you however much you need. You’ll have to pay me back someday but I won’t charge you for interest.

“Or option two, I’ll invest the money and you talk to the boss of Hello Company and tell him to directly do his business here in the Southeast Province. Scale-wise, my only requirement is that there be at least one in every prefecture-level city. I’ll deal with all the investment costs, and I can give you 10% of the shares.”

Darrel then fell deep in thought for a moment after Jasper listed his options.

“I’ll take option two!” Darrel looked up at Jasper with determination.

Jasper chuckled, his satisfaction with Darrel increasing.

People more concerned with immediate benefits would tend to choose the first option. After all, that was a solid 200,000 cash on hand.

However, while the second option only came with 10% of all the shares, any deeper thought would have the person realizing how much better this option was. One restaurant in every prefecture-level city in the province.

With such a large scale, 10% was much more valuable than 200,000.

Not to mention that once this project was completed, Hello Hotpot would become a large chain of catering brands in the province. It was much more sophisticated than opening a small restaurant in Faith County.

“A very wise choice.” Jasper nodded. “Take some time to talk it out with the boss of Hello Hotpot first. The only thing I’m contributing is the funding, and you’ll have to do the rest yourself. Prepare a whole proposal and send it over early next year.

“As long as I approve of it, then you’ll get the funds right away.”

Darrel flushed in excitement and nodded. “Okay! Thank you, Jasper, I’ll do my best.”

Jasper clapped Darrel’s shoulder and spoke, “You’re not doing anything for me. You’re doing it for yourself.”

Just then, Honey asked with difficulty, “How much would it cost to open so many restaurants, Jasper?”

Jasper gave it some thought and replied, “Including Nauritius City, the provincial capital, the seven prefecture-level cities in the Southeast Province... and personally, I think that there should be at least two restaurants in the provincial capital, so it’s a total of eight restaurants. Then including the construction fee and fixture expenses, I’d say no less than one million per restaurant.”

Thank goodness that this was the year 2000 when the cost for both rent and manpower was still cheap.

Had it been before he reincarnated, he would need at least five million per Hello Hotpot outlet.

Life at the Top Chapter 532

Such a vast amount shocked Honey and her family.

Even Darrel had not expected that this plan would need so much money.

“Wow! That’s more than eight million. How much money even is that? What if it all ends up in a loss?” Honey asked.

Jasper smiled. “That’s how business works, everything comes with a risk. Planning for the worst, then working to achieve the best is the only thing we can do.”

“Eight million. 10% of shareholder rights, that means I get 800,000 right off the bat?” Darrel gasped in disbelief.

Jasper replied calmly, “That’s only the beginning. Not to mention that we’re using the brand and skills from the boss of Hello Hotpot. He’ll still be the one in charge of training the employees, so his percentage of shares won’t be very low. This is something you need to talk to him about.”

Darrel scratched his head in embarrassment. “I don’t know how to do anything. What if I screw this negotiation up... This is way too much money.”

“How much money is involved here won’t change the outcome. I’ve heard of Hello Hoptpot’s boss. He’s an ambitious man. There’s something about you that he admires, or he wouldn’t have agreed to open an outlet all the way in one of the Southeast Province’s small counties.

“The most important thing is that he already has the desire to expand Hello Hotpot, he just doesn’t have enough funds. What you’re doing now is negotiating with him on my behalf. You have the funds he needs, so you're the one with the initiative here. Don't forget that."

Jasper did not mind guiding his cousin a little more, or Darrel would only be picked apart until nothing was left if he ran up to negotiate with someone blankly.

While the final say in the project was still in his hand, Jasper had predicted that he would be very busy after the new year. He might not have much time to spend on 'small projects' like this.

Jasper sounded very professional when he spoke, with a few words here and there that made Honey and the rest confused.

While they did not understand, they found Jasper very capable. Respect filled their eyes when they looked at him.

After everything was said and done, the two families were relieved.

Sally said that she would prepare dinner, but Honey and her family made an excuse to leave, afraid that they would be intruding.

As such, Jasper decided for everyone and brought them all to a hotel for dinner.

After booking a private room in one of Tefa City's five-star hotels, Jasper brought them over.

Both Honey and her husband were immensely grateful for Jasper the entire way while Jasper merely smiled. He taught Darrel things he had learned from his business experiences. The latter absorbed the information like a sponge.

Upon arriving at the hotel, Honey's entire family was filled with admiration for Jasper.

Midway through dinner, Jasper received a call from John.

“John? What’s up?” Jasper asked with a smile.

The situation at Waterhoof City would not have gone so smoothly had John not been there to bridge the conversation with Vita. As such, Jasper was extremely grateful to John as well.

John’s chuckles sounded through the speakers. “I’m here at Clivia Hotel and I just saw your Bentley. You didn’t tell me you were back.”

Jasper glanced at his parents and replied, “I’m having dinner with my family. Are you at the hotel too? You can come join us if you want.”

John smiled. “I don’t think I’ll bother you for dinner, but could you come over to the room I’m in for a moment after you’re done?”

Hearing the heavy tone in John’s voice, Jasper asked, “Sure, I can. Did something happen?”

John sighed and replied, “Do you still remember Kai? The president of Ascendas Investment. We met him at Royce Villa, remember?”

“Something happened to him and he’s a step away from taking his own life at this point. We’re all old friends here and I can’t bear to see him so troubled, so I’m trying to persuade him not to do anything rash right now.”

Life at the Top Chapter 533

Kai, the president of Ascendas Investment.

Jasper did find this person slightly familiar.

From what Jasper remembered, he was a kind man who always smiled when he talked.

Jasper did not ask too much, for there were some things better said in person than on the phone. As such, he directly accepted the suggestion.

After eating with his aunt's family for a moment, Jasper then got up and excused himself.

Everyone understood that he was busy, so they let him leave.

Exiting the private room, Jasper followed the directions John sent him and arrived at a small private room upstairs.

Thick smoke was seen in the air of the small private room, and John could be seen drinking with Kai.

The scent of cigarette smoke and alcohol was heavy in the air. Jasper waved his hand before his face and spoke, "Are you guys trying to ascend to heaven?"

Seeing Jasper, Kai immediately shot up before John could say anything and greeted him carefully, "Mister... Mr. Laine, it's nice to see you."

Kai and Jasper were not close. If anything, they were acquaintances who had only met once before.

Jasper had a good impression of Kai for he and John had taken the risk of offending someone and stood up for him in Royce Villa.

Had it not been for that, Jasper would not be here today.

Looking at Kai's cautious behavior, Jasper knew that John must have said something before he came over. Disagreeing, Jasper smiled to say, "Relax, we're all friends."

Jasper then walked over to the table and sat down.

Kai immediately called a waiter over.

"Give us an extra set of cutleries and bring over your best dishes. Have your manager arrange everything. I have an important guest with me, so do your best."

Jasper looked at John with a subtle smile at Kai's arrangement and spoke, "You don't have to be so polite. I already ate downstairs."

John knew that Jasper had seen through him, so he went straight to the point instead of hiding from him though he was a little embarrassed. "Basically, Kai's investment company lost a lot in the stock market last month, Jasper.

"You know how it is with investments. Most companies tend to take the clients' money and put them in riskier shares. If they earn, fine. But if they lose, then the clients riot.

"Kai lost more than six million, four million of which are his clients' money. It should've been fine, but a large client suddenly wants to take their money back. They promised to put the money there for a year but the client now wants it back next week. This puts Kai in a lot of trouble."

Kai looked remorseful and regretful as John described his situation. He sighed, saying, "It's all my fault for being so greedy. I was making profits in the beginning, but I thought that I could earn another five points, so I wasn't willing to take them out.

"Who would've thought that a few of them started dropping to limit downs in the end? I couldn't even pull out if I wanted to, and by the time I sold all my stocks, I'd already lost my capital's worth as well."

Jasper frowned. "That's just how investing in stock markets works. A slight mistake and you end up sucked dry.

"The problem isn't that you're greedy. You wouldn't have dared to invest in high-risk stocks if you were greedy, would you? You wouldn't make a loss if you had invested in something else.

"The problem here lies in the mind and the pattern of the stocks. You should know when to pull out and when to invest. If you get to the predetermined point, you should know to cash out and leave regardless of whether you earned a profit or a loss."

Jasper's nickname as the stock god back then was still a myth spread at the provincial capital. The man had now grown to be so much more and surpassed the person he used to be.

From John, Kai had found out that Jasper's net worth was now in the billions. He was of a much more sophisticated level than the two of them.

Therefore, Kai did not feel upset by Jasper's words and merely sighed again.

Life at the Top Chapter 534

“It’s too late to think about what we should’ve done now. But Jasper, we were thinking if you could lend a helping hand? It’d be fine if it was just Kai, but his family shouldn’t have to suffer because of it as well,” John spoke hesitantly.

Jasper smiled subtly at John and replied, “You’re too good of a friend, John.”

John waved him off. “Kai and I have been friends for more than a decade. There’s no way I can just stand aside and watch him kill himself.”

Jasper asked, “Then how do you want me to help?”

Kai and John’s eyes shone at Jasper’s question. Especially Kai, for he did not expect Jasper to be willing to help. Kai quickly replied, “I need an extra 3.5 million in funds, and I was wondering if you could lend me that amount? I promise I’ll pay you back once this whole incident is over, Mr. Laine.

“Honestly, 3.5 million isn’t a lot at all,” Jasper replied. Seeing the elation on Kai’s expression, Jasper quickly continued, “But I have a series of investments after New Year’s, so I don’t plan on lending the money.”

At that, both Kai and John’s expressions changed.

John quickly spoke, “But Jasper…”

“John,” Kai interrupted him, smiling bitterly as he spoke, “Mr. Laine has his own difficulties and reasons. I wouldn’t lend someone money if they asked for 3.5 million out of the blue either. Don’t make it difficult for Mr. Laine.”

John’s words were on the tip of his tongue when he sighed and swallowed them back, opting to say something else. “I went too far.”

Then, John raised a wine glass to Jasper. “Don’t say anything, Jasper. I’m sorry, I shouldn’t have forced this on you. I’ll down a glass as punishment.”

John then tipped his head back and finished it.

Jasper could not even stop him in time and smiled bitterly. “Calm down, let me finish talking first.”

His words instantly sparked hope in the two other despondent men who both immediately looked at Jasper.

Jasper turned to speak to Kai, “How many liquid funds do you have at hand now?”

Kai did not hide at all and replied, “I still have 800,000, but that’s all the funds I have. The client wants to take four million out next week, so I’ve only got the 800,000 until next Monday.”

Jasper gave it some thought and replied, “It’s only Wednesday today. Two business days until then, that should be enough.”

John quickly replied, “What do you have in mind, Jasper? Tell us, we’re really curious.”

Jasper smiled. “I think I can help Kai, but it’s a huge risk. A short-swing trade in the futures market.”

“If we’re lucky, we’ll manage to fill that four million gap you need. But of course, there’s also no absolute guarantee that the investment will work and you could potentially lose that 800,000 dollars you have as well. It’s up to you to decide.”

At that, John immediately stopped talking and turned to Kai.

This was an option of life and death. No matter how close they were, John was in no position to make the decision for Kai.

Kai struggled outwardly for a moment before clenching his jaw to reply, "That client is someone with an exceptional background. I'll be screwed if I can't pay him back anyway, so I might as well take a gamble with this 800,000 dollars then! I trust you, Mr. Laine!

"But I have to call someone to inform them first, Mr. Laine," Kai suddenly said.

Jasper furrowed his brows slightly. "Oh? Go ahead, then."

Kai took a look at Jasper's displeasure and quickly explained himself, "Don't misunderstand me, Mr. Laine. I trust you, I do, but we also didn't think you'd help us. That's why I contacted Mr. Ray, the best investor in the province, and asked him for help.

"Now that I've chosen to accept help from you, then it's only right I turn Mr. Ray down."

Life at the Top Chapter 535

'Mr. Ray?'

Jasper looked at John with confusion.

John quickly explained, "Samuel Ray. Remember Hugh? That man had some beef with you before. Hugh was crushed in the end, remember? So it was Samuel Ray who ended up taking his place in the end.

“I don’t think you know him, considering how he happened to be outstation when we went to Royce Villa that one time. His power was just slightly less that of Hugh’s, so he’s the top dog now that Hugh has fallen.”

John’s displeased tone told Jasper that this Mr. Ray was hardly an easy person to deal with.

At the same time, Kai’s call with Samuel was connected.

Kai first relayed his stand, which was met with Samuel’s chiding from the other end of the line. Samuel was so loud that both Jasper and John could hear him clearly.

“Look, Jones, logically speaking, this is your money. Whether you want to die with it or not is not my problem. But we’ve already come to an agreement, and I also counted your funds into this. We’re entering the market tomorrow and you’re telling me that you want out now?”

“Why, huh? Are you looking down on me or something? What, do you think I’m going to run away with your money?”

Kai looked angry, but under the pressure, he could only reply politely, “I, uh, Mr. Ray, it’s my fault for not thinking this whole thing through. But I’ve found another friend and we’ve also decided everything, so I won’t be giving you my money to invest.”

“How about this, I’ll treat you to an apology meal?”

Samuel scoffed. “Apology meal your f*cking ass. Do I look like I need a meal from you?”

“I’ve already planned everything and you’re just going to take that 800,000 dollars out of the equation at the last minute? Who the hell am I supposed to ask for compensation? Are you offering to pay?”

Kai harrumphed silently. There was always a limit to a person's temper no matter how good it was. Kai replied grimly, "All I did was discuss the possibility with you. Nothing had been set in stone yet. Not to mention that I was never told of whatever this plan of yours is. How could you ask me to compensate for your loss? Why are you putting the blame on me?"

"F*ck you, Kai! That loss last month should've f*cking killed you. Just go kill yourself, you stupid c*nt.

"And who's the f*cker who's helping you, huh? Tell me who he is. I'll f*cking kill that b*stard!"

Kai's expression darkened as he replied coldly, "I'm only calling to inform you, not to ask you for your opinion. I don't care whether you agree or not."

Kai then ignored Samuel's rage on the other end and hung up on the man.

Exhaling, Kai then turned to Jasper bitterly. "My apologies, Mr. Laine. I've made a fool of myself."

Jasper shook his head and stood. "Since we've already decided, then John and I will take a trip to your company at 8:00 a.m. tomorrow. We'll trade there."

Kai replied in excitement, "Okay! We'll follow your plan!"

Jasper smiled and shook Kai's hand before he turned to leave.

Kai's smile fell as the room to the private door closed. He sighed deeply and faced John, saying "I pray that you haven't found someone to brush me off, John. Here's hoping that Jasper's a capable man.

"Forget losing a fortune, I've even offended Samuel. I'm really going to be screwed if this goes wrong."

John clapped Kai's shoulders and replied, "Don't worry. As long as he's willing to do it, I've never seen the man lose."

Kai nodded. "I hope you're right."

By the time Jasper returned to his private room, dinner was almost over. The sky was dark, and it was also time for everyone to go home.

Darrel's family insisted on returning home for the night, so Jasper did not force them to stay. After giving a few extra words on what to do next, Jasper hailed them a taxi and sent them straight to Faith County.

...

Life at the Top Chapter 536

John came to fetch Jasper the following day, and the two arrived at Ascendas Investment.

Ascendas Investment took up the entire top floor of an ordinary commercial building.

“Kai’s Ascendas Investment sure looks professional.”

Jasper told John as he took a glance at the pretty lady at the front desk.

John pursed his lips. “Kai doesn’t like being looked down on, so he tends to waste his money on formalities like this.”

Kai then walked out of his office to greet the both of them.

“Mr. Laine, John. Everything’s ready, should we go?”

Jasper glanced at the time, realizing that it was currently 7:40 a.m. There was still 20 minutes until the market opened, so he nodded and followed Kai into his office.

In the office, everything unnecessary had already been put away. All that was left was a large office desk with a few computers on it. The corresponding software had already been launched.

“Do you have the funds?” Jasper sat before the computer and asked.

Kai immediately replied, “All 800,000 dollars is in the account.”

Jasper was just about to speak when the office door was kicked open from outside with a bang.

Everyone in the quiet room was stunned, and Jasper's eyes flitted over to see a sinister-looking middle-aged man enter the room.

"Samuel!" Kai shouted in shock.

Samuel entered the room and scoffed at Kai. "Never thought I'd come and look for you myself, huh, Jones?"

Kai took a deep breath and calmed himself down. "This is my office, what are you doing here?"

Samuel merely sneered. "You f*cking went back on your word and now I have to cancel my entire f*cking plan. Of course, I'm going to ask you for compensation!

"Plus..."

Samuel glared at Jasper. "I'd like to know what kind of help you've got here. Someone even better than me, huh? Someone who has got you begging like a f*cking dog, huh?"

"A young man? Kai, you have sh*t for brains. You're going to get scammed before you know it, you idiot!" Samuel gave Jasper a once-over and turned to sneer at Kai.

Jasper frowned. "Could you get rid of unnecessary people, Kai?"

Samuel's expression changed as he pointed at Jasper. "I don't care where the f*ck you came from, you little brat, but I'm going to kill you if you dare to help Kai today!"

Jasper leaned back on the chair and spoke with interest, “Now you’ve got me curious. How exactly do you plan to kill me?”

Samuel scoffed. “At least ask around before you start doing business here. Do you even know who I am? I’m Samuel Ray! How dare you steal my business from me?”

Kai’s expression darkened. “Samuel! You’ve been taking advantage of my need for help, wanting to take a 30% commission regardless of whether I make a profit or a loss. Since I’ve already decided against working with you, I’d appreciate it if you were more polite!”

Jasper finally understood why Samuel was so infuriated. He piped up calmly, “30% commission. Are your hands made of gold, Mr. Ray? What’s with the high charge?”

Samuel’s expression darkened. “Has no one ever taught you the rules, young man? How much I charge for commission is my issue. But you’ve got to at least consider your own skills before you dare steal my clients.”

Jasper looked at Samuel meaningfully and spoke calmly, “I might not be very capable, but I’m definitely more skilled than you.”

Life at the Top Chapter 537

“You’ve sure got quite the galls for a young man!”

Samuel scoffed at Jasper’s claim.

“How much do you think you can help Jones earn with 800,000 dollars in funds, you brat? Don’t talk big if you don’t have the ability to back you up. You’ll have to pay the consequences for bluffing.”

Jasper looked at Samuel and chuckled. “You seem so certain that I’m unable to help Kai get his capital back.”

Samuel scoffed and pointed at the ashtray with more than ten cigarette buds in it. “I’ll eat the ashtray if you can do it.”

Jasper spoke calmly, “I don’t need you to eat this ashtray. How much did you lose last month in total, Kai?”

Kai replied embarrassedly, “Here and there, I’d say a total of more than six million.”

“Would you like to gamble, Mr. Ray?” Jasper slightly squinted his eyes at Samuel’s dark expression. “Kai lost six million and I have the remaining 800,000 dollars of his capital in hand.

“If I manage to earn this six million back for him today, you’ll pay me the amount I managed to earn. How’s that?”

Samuel could not help but chortle. “Who do you think you are, you brat? Do you think you can predict the future? Earning six million with a capital of 800,000 dollars, do I look like an idiot or are you telling me you print money for a living? You can’t even earn that much and that quickly from printing money!”

Jasper replied calmly, “Stop giving me all that nonsense. The more impossible it is, the more this benefits you, doesn’t it?”

Samuel scoffed. “Fine. I’ll bet, then. But what if you can’t do it?”

“Then I’ll come up with six million myself,” Jasper replied calmly.

Samuel's expression turned cold as he stared at Jasper. "Where the hell are you going to get that six million from? How do I know that you're not just pretending to be rich, huh?"

Jasper was speechless.

Ever since his reincarnation, he had fought with trust fund babies and stepped over wealthy businessmen. He had been on the receiving end of cold sneers and harsh words, but no one had ever accused him of pretending to be rich.

"I can swear on it."

John suddenly spoke.

John turned to Samuel calmly. "As the vice president of ICBS' Tefa City branch, I can testify that Jasper is able to pay six million Somer Dollars. Should an issue arise, you are welcome to take the money from me. Does this relieve you?"

Samuel pursed his lips disdainfully and replied, "Since when do you have a say in this, Jackson? You're just someone living on a salary. I could sell your entire family and I still wouldn't earn a fortune. Who do you think you are?"

John flushed in humiliation. "I still have quite the contacts here in Tefa City. Six million isn't a difficult amount to borrow considering my status here! Do not look down on me, Samuel Ray!"

Samuel scoffed and looked at Jasper. "These are the people you hang out with? How outstanding can you be?"

"Say what you guys want, but you're going to think that I'm too scared if I say no. Fine, then. We'll bet. It's just six million. I'll take it as your sign of respect to me."

John's expression darkened, and he almost asked Kai to throw Samuel out the door. However, seeing how Jasper had placed a bet with Samuel, he had no other choice but to push his anger down and watch the scene unfold.

“This is getting out of hand, John,” Kai nudged John and whispered.

John chuckled and whispered back, “What are you afraid of? Did you forget how Jasper had made a name for himself with a gamble the first time you met him back at Royce Villa?”

Kai was dazed for a moment, thinking back to how Jasper had turned the tables as the underdog and won Hugh. That had been the beginning of Jasper’s fame.

Life at the Top Chapter 538

With history testifying Jasper’s ability, Kai immediately nodded and relaxed. He replied with a grin, “Alright. Let’s just sit and watch, then.”

Not knowing what Kai and John were murmuring about between themselves, Samuel scoffed and growled. “What are you two f*cking idiots so happy about? You’re already screwed.”

“Watch your mouth.”

Jasper looked up from behind the computer and glanced at Samuel, speaking calmly, “What kind of bet will this be if you’re so noisy and affect me earning money, hmm?”

“Motherf*cker!” Samuel roared, his expression terrifyingly dark. He forced himself to calm down as it truly was not the time to say anything. He forced the words out with a huff, “Fine. I won’t say anything, then. I’d like to see how you’re going to screw yourself over. I’ll be waiting for that six million from you!”

At that point, Jasper no longer had the mood to entertain Samuel.

His focus was entirely on the screen before his eyes.

The display currently showed the official website of the Ministry of Agriculture.

The official website had the latest news released less than 20 minutes ago.

It stated that due to weather reasons, domestic cotton production was expected to shrink substantially with a 40% decrease in output than the same period last year.

When Jasper first reincarnated, he had written all the financial incidents that he remembered from his past life in a small notebook.

The cotton incident was among them, but it was only a small incident.

The only reason Jasper called it small was that the benefits from this incident were less exaggerated in comparison to the other opportunities.

Jasper might never have involved himself with this incident if Kai's affair had not happened at such a coincidental timing.

Seeing how things were now, winning this gamble against Samuel did not seem like a difficult feat.

In the year 2000, much had happened with the country's futures market. The cotton pricing incident before the new year would be the last monumental incident for the year.

The country's cotton production would shrink greatly, triggering the rise in prices for cotton's futures market. That afternoon, the official website would announce that import trade had been agreed on with a few other countries.

These two news announcements would cause the price of cotton to rise steeply and then crash down once arriving at the peak like a roller coaster.

“You operate it, Kai,” Jasper glanced at Kai and spoke.

Kai was excited as he ran over.

“Huh?! The price of cotton dropped?!” Kai shouted in surprise at the sight of the screen in front of Jasper.

Both John and Samuel were surprised by the news.

John laughed loudly and freely.

Meanwhile, Samuel’s expression darkened in anger. “You’re just lucky, you brat. But so what, news has already gotten out. The price will only rise if you enter the market now.”

Jasper did not seem to hear him for he turned to Kai calmly. “Don’t look at my screen. Keep an eye on your account. How much is the price for cotton?”

Kai quickly stared at the market and saw the frightening inflating line. “The market’s already reacting. It’s been ten minutes since the market started and the price has already risen by 2,000 Somer Dollars. It costs 14,500 now.”

Without much thought, Jasper immediately instructed, “Buy the entire position. Don’t leave a single cent.”

Life at the Top Chapter 539

At that, the three other men present were dazed.

Even John, who trusted Jasper the most, was shocked. He knew that Jasper was someone who would never hesitate once he found an opening, but he had not expected Jasper to be so brave.

“Won’t you give it a deeper thought, Jasper? After all, the bar for the futures market is too high. We only have 800,000 dollars. I’m afraid we’ll hit liquidation right away with the slightest pullback in price if we buy in the entire position.”

“That’s right, Mr. Laine. The prices have already risen by 2,000 Some Dollars. That’s a 16% increase. While it is exciting, the market price is bound to return to normal once it reaches a high enough amount,” Kai spoke carefully.

Samuel could not help but guffaw. “I can’t believe I actually got startled when you talked so big and surely just now. You’re just a useless nobody, after all. Hahaha!

“You’re f*cking stupid. Do you think you can just rush in because it’s good news? What do you take the futures market for, a taxi? Do you think the prices will spike just because it’s raining?”

“Do you even know what a pullback is? It’s rare for idiots like you to continue trading in the market when prices reach a certain high. There are people who’ve been holding futures stocks for a long time and if they see that there’s a profit, some of them will choose to sell. Most people tend to look at the trend first and then the price will of course drop back to normal. That’s called a pullback.

“Do you even f*cking understand me? A slight drop of 1,000 bucks will have your capital of 800,000 dollars hitting liquidation. It’ll be too late for you to cry then.”

Samuel then sneered at Kai. “You’ve wasted 40 years of your life, Jones. It’s still not too late for you to regret it now since you haven’t bought in. But I’ll be charging 40% for commission and procedures this time if you want me to help!”

Kai clenched his jaw quietly and turned to Jasper.

Jasper sighed and spoke, "If you trust me, then do as I say. If you don't want to trust me, then I'll get up and leave."

Kai fell silent for two seconds before he clenched his jaw and spoke, "I'll listen to you!"

"Then buy in."

Jasper shook his head when he looked at the market. There had been a 400 dollars increase in the price of cotton during the one to two minutes Kai hesitated.

People tended to speak of legends about the wealthy with envy, claiming that they only grew rich because they were lucky.

However, what they did not know was that luck had never played a part in becoming rich when it came to the financial market.

Even if you stood right where the wind blew and a chance had found its way to you, you still needed the courage to risk your entire wealth and life to catch it.

Or you would still be the plain, ordinary person you were.

Kai was not someone with that sort of bravery, so there was a limit to his success.

Seeing how Kai had begun to buy in, Samuel's expression turned colder as he sneered sinisterly. "Go ahead, then. Buy in, it's just 800,000 dollars anyway. I'd like to see if you're going to jump out from this window when you hit liquidation."

"Shut up!"

Under immense psychological stress, Kai no longer feared Samuel's power and shouted at him darkly, "This is my office. I can and will call someone to throw you out!"

Samuel took a deep breath and pointed at Kai angrily, "What the f*ck did you say? How dare you talk to me like that?!"

Kai's expression was dark as he ignored Samuel and turned to Jasper. "It's done."

Jasper spoke plainly, "People like to call the financial market a legal gambling table and they're not wrong. Especially the futures market that comes with the biggest risk.

"This gambling table has a daily cash flow of trillions of Somer Dollars. Money and lives aren't worth anything here.

"If you want to win, then these are the most important traits you need. You need to be crazy enough to sacrifice everything and the sensitivity of a monster. And perhaps a little bit of luck as well.

"If you want to be careful and risk-free, then you might as well deposit your money into the bank and wait for interest."

Kai was a good man at heart, so Jasper decided that he was worth a few reminders here and there. As to how much Kai understood, well that would be up to him. Jasper would not concern himself with it.

Kai seemed slightly confused while John fell deep in thought.

Life at the Top Chapter 540

Samuel, who heard Jasper's words, immediately scoffed. "So pretentious. Do you think you're the only one who knows how to bluff? We might as well ignore everything and throw all our money in one direction in that case, then! Do you think that'll secure your victory? F*cking hilarious!"

Jasper glanced at Samuel calmly and spoke, "That explains why you can only be all high and mighty within the county. I suppose there's a reason why you can't make it in the cities."

As if he had his tail stepped on, Samuel immediately shot up and roared, "You f*cking brat! What did you just say?!"

It was Samuel's biggest regret that he could not be a part of the city's circle of wealthy people.

The last thing he could tolerate was people telling him he was a county tyrant. He dreamed of nothing more than to enter an even more sophisticated social circle, but they all looked down on him.

At the same time, Kai suddenly shouted, interrupting Samuel's exploding anger.

"It's a pullback! The prices are pulling back!"

The crowd all turned to look, only to see the price of cotton on the screen make an abrupt turn at the peak of the market and begin to drop.

It was a 500 Somer Dollar drop right at the beginning.

Kai immediately lost 400,000 of the 800,000 capital that just entered the market!

This was what made the capitalization game so thrilling.

“Hahaha. I already told you two idiots that you’ll be screwed if you follow this f*cking idiot. You lost half your capital with a 500 pullback. Another 500 and you’ll hit liquidation!” Samuel chortled.

Even John, who trusted Jasper the most, felt his heart thump nervously as he sneaked glimpses at Jasper—what more Kai?

However, Jasper remained calm. “It’s going to be okay.”

Jasper had already expected all of this.

There would indeed be a pullback in the price of cotton, but Jasper could not remember when the pullback stopped.

However, Jasper was certain that the pullback was a minor one, and the prices would then skyrocket afterward.

The risk was not huge to begin with, but Kai’s previous hesitation had him entering the market after a 400 Somer Dollar increase. As such, the risk now seemed more dangerous.

Kai took a deep breath. It was too late for him to turn back now, so he clenched his jaw and spoke, “It’s alright, Mr. Laine. This was my choice and I can’t blame you even if I end up hitting liquidation.”

Kai’s words had Jasper reestablishing his impression of the other.

“Don’t worry.” Jasper chuckled and replied.

There was another sharp drop in the price of cotton once Jasper finished speaking.

This time, it was a drop of 480 Somer Dollars!

Kai's account showed a loss of 780,000, leaving 20,000 dollars left.

At the same time, Kai's phone rang as well.

It was a call from the trading center informing him that he was about to hit liquidation and they asked if Kai wanted to add more funds.

Kai was despondent as he did not have any more money to add in, so he hung up the phone amidst Samuel's mocking chortles.

"Mr. Laine, I'm afraid this time I'm really..."

Before Kai could finish talking, the screen showed a sudden spike in the price of cotton!

Life at the Top Chapter 541

The futures for the price of cotton suddenly began to increase after it had fallen from the peak.

The rise in trend was even steeper than its drop.

In a quick moment, the price had already increased by 1,800 Someer Dollars. Not only did it surpass the previous peak, but it seemed to be going strong as it continued to rise.

“It’s rising! It’s rising!” John shouted in surprise.

Kai stared at the market. Not only had all his losses returned to his account, but he had earned a few hundred thousand dollars as well.

If he sold his futures now, his 800,000 capital would become 1.48 million excluding procedural costs.

“It’s been less than an hour since the market opened. In only a few minutes, less than 20 since I entered the market...”

Kai stared at Jasper with disbelief.

As a man who worked in finance, he was no stranger to the stock market and futures.

However, despite working in it for so long, this was the first time he found out how much fun the futures market could be.

In less than 20 minutes, he now had almost twice his capital.

Not even by printing money could he earn so much so quickly!

“How... How are you so certain that it'll rise?” Kai was stunned and truly impressed with Jasper. His tone when he asked the question was humble and polite as if he was asking his teacher for help.

“Domestic cotton production has been expanding these years, and this year's output has accounted for 23% of the world's total cotton production.”

Jasper clicked on the statistics on the authoritative statistics website. Pointing at a report, Jasper spoke coolly, “So a 40% decrease in cotton production this year would directly cause a shrink in worldwide cotton production.

“The previous increase was a reaction within the domestic market, but the international market hadn't reacted yet.

“So we just needed to wait for the prices in the international stock market to rise. The funds and hot money will then flow toward the source of this entire incident, that is our domestic futures market.”

Jasper chuckled before continuing calmly, “If the country has enough funds to raise the price of cotton by 16% in around 20 minutes, how much do you think it'll rise when the international funds enter?”

Jasper's words stunned the entire office.

After a long while, Samuel ground his molars and broke the silence in a dark voice, “You're just lucky this time!”

“He managed to turn a 98% loss in the account to a profit of twice the amount lost in an instant. I'm pretty sure this is more than just luck,” John sneered at Samuel and spoke.

Samuel harrumphed silently, but he was internally stunned by Jasper's ability to turn the tables around. However, he still put on a stubborn front. "Don't forget that Jasper is supposed to earn six million today, or he'll still be the one losing."

Samuel glared at Jasper and scoffed. "Don't look so happy so quickly. Do you think prices can grow seven times from what they started as? What a joke!"

Jasper ignored Samuel and stared at the market changes on the screen before him. He was trying to recall everything he could about this incident from his past life.

From what he remembered of his past life, the domestic futures had reached a peak of 23,800 for the price of cotton. Later that afternoon, after the country came to an agreement with a few others about cotton import trade, the prices began to drop in retaliation."

If this were shares, then such a huge amplitude in a day would surely earn a lot of money.

After all, shares bought today could only be sold tomorrow. It was the only procedure.

Yet the futures market was different. Purchase and selling could be done at any time, regardless of its precedence.

As a result, huge amplitudes in price would generate a huge profit margin.

Life at the Top Chapter 542

"Keep increasing your positions. Use the funds you just earned to form a pyramid chain of positions," Jasper suddenly spoke.

The futures market had a very unique trading rule, which was investors were allowed to buy futures with the profit they earned—if any—even though they had not closed their positions yet.

In one way, this greatly increased their profits. Yet at the same time, it also added to their risks.

For example, after a revenue total of 1.48 million with his capital of 800,000, Kai had earned a profit of 680,000. He could use his profits to buy more futures.

However, doing so meant that Kai was putting himself at a higher risk.

After all, the moment the prices dropped beyond the position line, then Kai would end up having to liquidate as well.

Jasper's instruction had Kai's heart lurching in his chest.

While he was afraid of risks, Jasper had also just displayed his skills. As such, Kai stopped hesitating and clenched his jaw, doing as Jasper instructed.

Beside them, Samuel scoffed. "What kind of f*cking idiotic tactic is this? I've never seen anyone so unafraid of death like you. You're going to have to liquidate the moment the prices drop by 500 Somer Dollars if you buy in now.

"Listen to my advice, Jones. Just close your position. Leave now and you'll still have your 680,000 profit. Or you'll end up losing that 800,000 capital in a bit."

Already high-strung, Kai was easily pissed. He coldly replied, "I don't need your opinions about how I'm supposed to use my money."

Kai had already completed the buy-in by the time he finished speaking.

After that came Samuel's sarcastic comments while Kai and John watched in fear as the cotton futures price continued to rise steadily.

There were slight jumps and drops, but the price remained at around 16,000 Somer Dollars the entire time.

It was around noon when Jasper stood to stretch. "Time for the market to take a break. Everything else will continue in the afternoon. Let's eat first."

Samuel scoffed. "I'd like to see how you're going to die later!

"I can't help but feel excited thinking about how you're going to pay me six million Somer Dollars this afternoon."

Kai glared at Samuel coldly and turned to Jasper. "Should we eat lunch in a nearby hotel, Mr. Laine?"

Jasper shook his head with a smile. "It's alright. I don't have the habit of leaving the area when I'm trading, so let's just order food in the office. Have someone send three portions of food in, please."

Kai was stunned. He had planned to treat Jasper to something nice, so he was a little lost now.

Take-out food seemed too sorry a meal.

However, John interrupted with a smile, "Just listen to Jasper, Kai. Take-out food for three."

Kai glanced at Samuel who was flushing bright red at the moment and understood. Laughing aloud, he agreed. "Alright. I'll have someone get it done."

Still, there was no way Kai would actually order take-out, so he had an employee head over to the booked hotel and order the dishes from there.

In no time, delicious dishes were placed all over a table that had been put together in the office.

However, there were only three sets of cutleries even though there were four people in the room!

Seeing how Jasper, Kai, and John had each found a seat for themselves and began to happily chat with one another while eating, Samuel paled in envy and anger. He had been purposely left behind!

“How dare you humiliate me like this?!” Samuel roared with his jaw tight.

Life at the Top Chapter 543

Jasper picked up a piece of fish and placed it into his mouth. He looked at Samuel who was furious and spoke in a shocked tone, “Why are you still here, Mr. Ray? Did you want to eat with us too? Oh, why didn’t you say so earlier, Mr. Ray? We would’ve prepared a set of utensils for you too.”

Kai almost laughed aloud. Although he was joyful, he pretended to look sad. “That’s right. I would’ve brought you to a large hotel for a meal if I knew you were eating with us, Mr. Ray.

“How could someone as formidable as Mr. Ray eat take-out with people like us?”

John asked Samuel mirthfully, “Are you hungry from watching us eat, Mr. Ray? While I do want to let you sit, we don’t have another chair or another set of cutleries. If you don’t mind, Mr. Ray, you could wait until I’m done to use my chair and cutleries?”

Bang!

Samuel slammed a palm on the table and glared at the three of them furiously. He was seething, and he spat out the words from the gaps in his teeth. "Have your fun now, but I'd like to see if you three can still smile this afternoon!"

"There's no way you can earn six million. I've been investing for more than a decade and there has never been a time since I started working in this line of business that I've seen a seven-fold increase in prices! You're going to screw yourselves over, just you wait!"

"If you don't welcome me here, fine! I can leave. But I will be back when the market reopens in the afternoon. I'm gonna claim that six million Somer Dollars from you!"

With a furious expression, Samuel turned to leave.

"Hold on, Mr. Ray."

Jasper's voice sounded.

Samuel halted and turned his head to sneer at Jasper. "What's this, begging for mercy now? Sure, it's not too late yet. Kneel before me and beg and then hand me the six million. I can consider leaving you alone if you do that."

Jasper took a sip of his drink and spoke calmly, "You've misunderstood, Mr. Ray. I wanted to remind you to bring your checkbook when you come back in the afternoon. Six million and not a cent less."

The corner of Samuel's lips twitched as his gaze grew cold. His furious expression was slowly darkening as well.

"How about you worry about yourself first?! You'd better be able to take that money out later or I won't be blamed for f*cking you over!"

Samuel then turned and walked out the door.

Kai quietly asked Jasper after Samuel left, “Mr. Laine, are you certain about later?”

Jasper asked calmly as he ate, “Why, are you scared?”

Kai replied solemnly, “Of course, I’m scared. I’m putting my entire net worth and my life on the line here, but I won’t doubt you anymore, Mr. Laine. This is just pure nerves.”

Jasper smiled. “Before today, you two probably thought that it’d be impossible to earn six million with 800,000 in a day, right?”

Kai shared a look with John and replied in embarrassment, “Indeed. After all, I’ve never heard of such a thing.”

Turning 800,000 into six million was nothing. In two years, a venerable master would appear in the futures market, turning 1.2 million into 40 million in the short span of half a month. This was a record no one managed to break even until Jasper reincarnated.

Not that Jasper would tell the two of them that, of course. The man merely smiled and replied, “But you have hope now, don’t you? I’d say it’s worth the gamble if you’re hopeful. Miracles won’t happen to you if you’re not willing to take the risk or pay the price.

“Taking a step back, let’s ignore your 800,000 dollars for a moment. I have six million Somer Dollars and my dignity on the line here, so I’ve got this.”

Kai exhaled deeply at Jasper’s words and replied firmly, “Alright then, Mr. Laine. I’ll do whatever you say later in the afternoon. I won’t hesitate anymore.

“I know that I lost out on a few hundred thousand this morning when I hesitated for two minutes, but it definitely won’t happen again later.”

Jasper nodded. “It’s good that you know.”

The market had a lunch break of two and a half hours. Lunch took up about half the time, leaving more than an hour left before the market reopened.

Jasper lay on the sofa and spoke, "I'm taking a small nap. Wake me up when it's time."

Jasper then closed his eyes to rest.

Life at the Top Chapter 544

Looking at this scene, Kai pursed his lips slightly and asked John, "Is... is Mr. Laine always this laid-back?"

John gave a wry chuckle. "Perhaps extraordinary people have extraordinary traits."

As he spoke, John lay down on another sofa and advised, "You should also rest for a little. We still have business to handle in the afternoon."

Kai grimaced and replied, "I'm not in the mood for taking a nap. Both of you go ahead and rest; I'm going to look up some news on the internet."

Kai sat down in front of the computer as he said this. He began checking through and scrutinizing every bit of news related to the poor cotton harvest.

When the groggy Jasper was woken up by Kai, it was already 1.29 pm, just one minute away from the markets opening.

At practically the same time that Jasper woke up, the office door was pushed open, and Samuel walked in with a sneering face.

He took out a cheque from his breast pocket and slapped it down onto the table noisily, saying with lofty arrogance, “Open your sorry eyes wide and take a good look at this. It’s a cheque worth 6 million dollars. Take it if you think you have the chops.”

As he spoke, Samuel then sneered at Jasper. “It’s not too late right now for you to admit defeat and beg for mercy. If not, when you lose everything in just a little while, I won’t let you off so easily!”

Jasper did not even spare Samuel a glance. He turned to look at Kai and asked, “Has the market opened? What’s the price?”

Kai began eyeing the screen nervously. When he heard Jasper’s questions, he immediately responded, “The market’s open. It’s gone up by 20 bucks. It’s not that big of a margin.”

Compared to 16000 dollars, an increase of 20 bucks increase was, in truth, rather mediocre.

Jasper was about to say something when Kai suddenly shrieked, “There’s a long green line—it’s rising. A large buy order just came in—it’s still rising! It’s 17000 now!”

Jasper furrowed his brows. He walked over to the computer and saw that at present, the price of cotton futures had surged to 17050 dollars for every tonne and it was still going up.

In his previous life, the cotton futures had finally stopped at a price of 18980 dollars. It was then followed by an announcement and a sudden drop. The closing price that day had ended up being 12600 dollars.

Firmly remembering these crucial numbers, Jasper ordered, “Use the profits to keep buying in and adding to the position.”

They had already pyramided once that morning. If they were to do it again, the risk would be extremely high.

This time, however, Kai did not hesitate at all and used the profit they made from the surge in price to buy in again.

Samuel eyed Jasper coldly. He did not say anything this time; he merely bided his time patiently and waited to see when this young brat would lose everything.

This was such a high-risk venture that even a veritable god of stocks and shares would not dare play in the market. Did a callow youngster like Jasper think that he could?

Right after that, the price continued going up, from 17000 dollars to 17500 dollars, and then to 18000 dollars. It was like a slap in Samuel's face.

With one resistance point after another being broken, it was as if the flow of capital had gone mad, and everyone was beginning to rush into the futures market to get a piece of the pie.

Samuel stared at the 18800 dollar price and felt his heart race with trepidation and alarm.

In disbelief, he looked at Jasper, who had been calm and composed since the very beginning. His own heart was beating wildly.

At this moment, Samuel was not the only one—Kai and John were also about to lose their minds.

An hour into opening and their initial capital of 800,000 had grown to 3.9 million!

While Kai and John were trying to find words to express how much they worshipped Jasper, Jasper himself still maintained a tense expression.

“Now, close the position and sell it all off. Then, start shorting it..”

Jasper’s words hit all three people present like a lightning bolt from the blue.

Life at the Top Chapter 545

In Jasper’s previous life, the ceiling price of the cotton market this time was locked at 18,980 dollars then.

However, the price now was 18,800 dollars.

It seemed that there was still about a 200-dollar profit margin, but Jasper had never been an overly self-assured person.

This was because he found that his influence in the present time and space was becoming increasingly greater as he made use of his memory from his past life.

He had no way of guaranteeing that the price of cotton would be locked at 18,980 dollars this time around. If they missed the opportunity, leading to a monumental crash in the price, it would be difficult even if they wanted to sell it off by that time.

Regardless if it were his own investment or if he were helping Kai to ride out his difficult time, he would not rely on his past memories anymore.

When it came to profits, it was enough to be able to gain the most of it. One should never become too greedy for the leftovers.

At this moment, however, Jasper’s decision had stunned the three of them including Samuel.

Seeing the price suddenly spiking exponentially, Jasper informed them that they should close their position.

They could take it as safekeeping by taking the profits into their pockets.

Going against the trend and short selling, however, what the heck was this move?

Samuel's heart was drumming at first, afraid that he would lose his say, but when he heard what Jasper said, he could hardly resist the frenzy he felt. He let out a hearty laugh.

"Have you gone mad? You want to short sell at a time like this? Hahaha, what a joke! You really think you can predict the future?"

Samuel's expression was taunting and showed his delight. "Don't tell me you're afraid that you're unable to earn six million and will lose the bet, hence why you're now deciding to take a wild risk? Hahaha, young man, I may not like you but I have to say that you're courageous."

Taking in a deep breath, Kai looked at Jasper with a questioning gaze.

Jasper furrowed his brows and said out loud, "Did you forget what you told me before?"

Kai was filled with excitement from head to toe. He had indeed made up his mind back then that he would do whatever Jasper asked of him.

In this present situation, however, anyone with a discerning eye could tell that there would be an increasing trend. Jasper, on the other hand, wanted to act against the trend. Kai was in a dilemma.

"Kai, listen to him!" John said eagerly.

He was the one who had the most faith in Jasper, given he had seen Jasper perform miracles with his own eyes before. He could very well make it happen again.

With a sigh, Kai cursed before immediately doing as Jasper said.

“You’re mad, you’re all mad!”

Samuel looked at Kai as he closed their position before quickly selling it short. At last, he let out a hysterical laugh. “Though it’s good that you’ve gone mad. How would I win otherwise? This is so ridiculous, to actually be selling short at a time like this. Hahahaha!”

Regardless of what Samuel said, Kai had already completed the entire transaction.

Meanwhile, the entirety of the futures market had not fluctuated at all despite Kai’s entry of millions of dollars. It was like a drop of water in the ocean, there was not even a splash.

The transaction had been successful, but at this moment, the price of cotton was still rising.

Even though the increase was no longer exponential, people with discerning eyes would be able to tell that a rising trend like this would continue for a period of time.

Kai looked at the backend of his account. The numbers were red and in the losses. His complexion was pale.

In just a short moment after he closed his position, he had lost 400,000 dollars from his 3.9 million capital.

Although they were all profits, Kai still felt his heart bleed.

So much so that his thoughts were constantly churning. If he had not forcibly liquidated the position and held onto the remaining 3.5 million, he could have sustained himself through any of the imminent difficulties.

However, these were all just thoughts. If he had really done that, John, the only friend he had left, would definitely be the first to turn against him.

Life at the Top Chapter 546

Jasper, who was willing to lend him a hand during his most critical time, would never look at him again.

Taking a deep breath, all Kai could do now was to pray for the price to drop quickly.

However, things did not turn out as he wished. The price of the cotton futures continued to rise, slowly but surely.

As though to deliberately provoke Kai and Jasper, Samuel had gotten someone to send in a few luxurious meals at some point.

Samuel clicked his tongue and sighed as he sat on the sofa, eating caviar. "Ah, this is delicious, but it's a little expensive. You two could still afford to eat it before this, but after today, I'm not sure."

Kai gritted his teeth and stared fixedly at Samuel. He hated that he was unable to pounce at Samuel and beat him up.

Jasper, on the other hand, had been looking at the computer screen. He could not be distracted no matter what Samuel did.

When it was 2:30 p.m., the business department of the authority website that Jasper had been paying attention to finally published an information message.

[Half an hour ago, our country successfully signed a series of trade treaties with three neighboring countries, which includes the bulk cotton trade. It is predicted that after obtaining this batch of imported cotton, the future domestic cotton market will not suffer a major impact due to the lack of harvest.]

Kai almost leaped up with just a few words.

“Oh my God! This announcement!” Kai exclaimed, his voice cracking. His sudden yell surprised Samuel so much that the caviar in the latter’s hand fell to the ground.

No longer caring about the caviar, Samuel got up from the sofa and hurried to the computer.

One should never look down on the extent of the capitalists’ interest in the news. When Samuel ran over after the news was published, there was already a response in the capital in the futures market.

It fell!

It dipped off the edge of a cliff!

The price of cotton that had been steadily rising saw a reverse in the direction of its arrow and went into a precipitous decline as though someone had stepped on it mid-air.

The price of cotton had collapsed rapidly in a short period of time. A straight, downward line formed on the stock market chart.

Who knew just how many who planned to take advantage of the wave of the current market trend to make a big profit were now crying in anguish after having their accounts emptied in a snap?

Countless individuals were going bankrupt with every single second.

At the same time, there were also a very small number of people like Jasper who were earning abundantly with every single second.

Jasper noticed that although the trend of the cotton market was the same as that in his previous life this time, the final price was not 18,980 dollars. Instead, it had begun falling from 18,977 dollars.

Although the difference of only three dollars was innocuous, it was a good wake-up call for Jasper.

He could not be emboldened by his memories of his past life all the time. Many things had already changed in this life.

The impact of these changes would become greater as he grew his wealth and influence.

The price of cotton fell below 14,000 dollars from 18,877 dollars in just half an hour.

It was as if Kai and the others were able to feel the devastation and cries of countless people across the screen.

However, Kai had no other thoughts now. He could only look at Jasper as if he were a god.

“Mr. Laine, I’m thoroughly impressed. if anyone could foresee the future in this world, it would definitely be you,” Kai murmured.

Jasper chuckled. Seeing that the book capital had already reached 6.2 million, he said coolly, “You can be filthy rich in the previous second and penniless the next. You can be in high spirits in one moment before the world comes crashing down the next. This is the futures market—the riskiest, most thrilling game.”

Looking up at Samuel who was completely stunned, Jasper got up and picked up the check on the table. He said indifferently, “Thank you, Mr. Ray, for the gift.”

Life at the Top Chapter 547

Samuel stared at the garish numbers on the computer screen blankly. He felt like a mouthful of blood was rushing from his stomach straight to his throat.

“How is it possible? How is this possible!?” Samuel yelled in disbelief.

“How could 800,000 possibly turn into six million in a day? This is impossible! It’s a ruse, it must be a ruse!

“Did you deliberately use fake software to deceive me?” Samuel glared at Jasper fiercely and roared madly.

“Your imagination isn’t bad,” Jasper praised.

Kai, on the other hand, was not so good-tempered. He decided to close the position of the futures quickly before immediately withdrawing the money.

He pressed into the text message on his phone notifying him that 6.8 million had been credited into his account and then threw the phone in front of Samuel.

“Open your eyes and take a good look. Could this text message be faked?”

Samuel looked at the genuine text message on the phone and was completely dumbfounded.

“No way!”

Samuel thought of something and suddenly exploded. He stared at Jasper and growled, “Give me my money back!”

Samuel was rich compared to ordinary people, but it was not to the point where he could throw six million away like this.

Otherwise, he would not have gone to great lengths to try taking a 30% commission from Kai, much less stay in the office all day just for this bet with Jasper.

Samuel was worth a little more than ten million at best. Taking six million away from him at once was tantamount to taking away half his life.

In a fit of rage, Samuel completely tossed his dignity aside and reached out to grab the check from Jasper's pants pocket.

However, John stepped in and stopped in front of Jasper. John, who was tall and strong, looked very intimidating. He glared at Samuel and said, "What's the matter? You were willing to gamble but are now unwilling to admit defeat? You still wish to commit robbery in broad daylight?"

Samuel's face turned red with anger. He roared, "This is clearly a damned trap that the two of you had deliberately set up to trick me into the game! I won't accept it!"

"Mr. Ray."

Jasper spoke coolly.

"You seem to not understand something.

"No one dragged you into this bet. It was you who wanted to join in. Besides, until half an hour ago, you had been very sure that you would win and even fantasized about how you would spend the six million that you thought I'd lose to you, right?"

Samuel gritted his teeth so hard it creaked. He stared at Jasper coldly and said, "Kid, it's easy for you to take my money but it won't be easy for you to spend it. Since you dare take my money, beware of not being alive to spend it."

“Oh? It looks like Mr. Ray is planning to play some tricks?” Jasper chuckled and said coolly.

“Back then when Hugh lost the bet with me, even he didn’t dare owe me the bargaining chip he lost to me, let alone you?”

Samuel’s eyelids jerked upon hearing these words.

Samuel knew all too well the kind of person Hugh was.

It was Hugh who had held him down and made him forever the second-best in Faith County.

It was not that Samuel did not think of forcibly taking over the leading position. He had even tried several times but was oppressed by Hugh every time, making him suffer heavy losses.

Later on, Samuel became too afraid of Hugh, and only then did he give up his idea of fighting against Hugh.

However, Hugh had suddenly lost one day. It was an unexpected opportunity for Samuel. Not only did he take over most of Hugh’s businesses, but his own business had also flourished.

Samuel once thought he was the chosen one. Even though he did not make a move against Hugh, Hugh still dropped from the top of the ladder on his own.

Yet now, when he suddenly heard Hugh’s name from Jasper’s mouth, Samuel was a little confused.

“Who exactly are you?” Samuel stared at Jasper and spat out the words through gritted teeth.

“Samuel Ray, you’ve been too proud and unbridled all this while, which has made you supercilious. You don’t put anyone in your eyes at all.”

John said to Samuel coolly, a playful smile on the corner of his mouth.

Life at the Top Chapter 548

“He’s called Jasper Laine. Why don’t you go back to Faith County and find out who screwed Hugh Lewis over? That’s why merely for you, it’s still a little too soon.”

Samuel heard this and felt as if he had been struck by lightning.

Jasper Laine... He had heard of this name.

Faith County’s most famous stock god of the year. He heard that Jasper had even clashed with Hugh Lewis back then.

However, who the hell was Jasper Laine? He had never met him before.

That was because Jasper had already set off for the province when he returned from somewhere else. Later on, Jasper had been in Harbor City and Swallow Capital for some time before only returning recently.

There were rumors that Hugh had been taken down by Jasper, but Samuel only turned his nose at it.

He had fought Hugh for so many years when he was at Faith County and never once won.

Yet, some guy who had crawled out of God knew where could?

The truth was right in front of his eyes now, however, and Samuel had no choice but to believe it.

Immense shock and fear shrouded him. When Samuel raised his head to look at Jasper again, there was no longer the overweening attitude from half a minute ago.

“Mister... Mr. Laine, I... I didn't know you were...”

Samuel was even fumbling over his words.

He really could not muster up the courage to offend the person who could easily bring down Hugh Lewis.

“It doesn't matter who I am.”

Jasper glanced at Samuel and said faintly, “I had no interest in you, yet you were the one who kept looking for me for trouble.”

Samuel was almost in tears. He stooped down, apologized to Jasper with all his might, and said, “I'm sorry, Mr. Laine. I was truly blinded by anger just now. I didn't expect you to be Kai's patron. Otherwise, I wouldn't have dared to trouble you even if I were given three shots of liquid courage.”

Jasper said indifferently, “I'm nobody's patron. It just so happened that John asked me for help this time. Not to mention, Kai has quite a good character and is unlikely to be beyond redemption for just a single mistake.”

“Yes, yes, it's as Mr. Laine has said.” Samuel did not dare refute him and continued pandering.

Jasper stood up. He walked toward Samuel and said with a smile, “Do you still want to take back the six million dollar check?”

Samuel's expression was bitter. He had really messed up this time, and there was no chance for him to even say that he felt wronged.

"No, no, I dare not. I was willing to bet, so I'll admit defeat."

"That's great. I would like to thank Mr. Ray for his generosity. Coincidentally, I will pass this money to a relative of mine to invest in a hotpot business. Once it's successful, you have to come support it."

Samuel's face went taut. He did not know what Jasper meant but still replied carefully and respectfully, "Of course, I'll definitely be there."

"Alright, the matter here is resolved. I have to head back first." Jasper stretched his waist and bade farewell to Kai and John.

Kai hesitated before saying, "Mr. Laine, I only need six million. The 800,000..."

"Just keep it. With this personality of yours, you will still suffer plenty of losses in the future. I don't care about the 800,000." After saying this, Jasper left.

Kai was stunned. He did not know whether to cry or laugh.

Turning his head away, Kai said to John, "What should we do with the 800,000 dollars? I can't possibly keep it. Mr. Laine has already helped me so much. It's the same as him saving my entire family's lives."

"Isn't it simple? It's going to be New Year's soon. You could find an excuse to give a New Year's greeting and deliver the money to his door. It would be a gesture of good faith and thoughtfulness," John patted Kai on the shoulder and said with a smile.

Kai nodded in agreement and then said with a sigh, "It's so amazing. If I hadn't seen it with my own eyes, I would never have believed in Mr. Laine's ability. Not even in my dreams. It's such a shame that I doubted him before. I was such a... snob."

As soon as Jasper walked out of Kai's company, his phone rang. It was Wendy calling.

"Jasp, where are you? I'm at your place."

"Where are you? I'll come pick you up now!"

Life at the Top Chapter 549

After Jasper had picked Wendy up, she sat in the Bentley's passenger seat and blushed as she said, "Jasp, my dad said he would like to invite your parents to dinner after Christmas."

Jasper smiled as he said, "That's a good thing. When?"

"There are only four or five days before Christmas, so probably three days after that. Do you have any relatives you need to visit then? We can make further arrangements regarding the date," Wendy answered gently.

Jasper thought for a moment before saying, "No, we don't have any relatives to visit this year. My family has already discussed it among themselves. They were worried I wouldn't have time, so my relatives will be coming over instead."

Wendy blinked. "Is it because you're rich now?"

"If you're either powerful or rich, you'll get special treatment as long as you check off one of these boxes," Jasper said gleefully.

Wendy huffed and asked confusedly, "But my family home is always silent during Christmas, and my relatives rarely come visit. I used to be so jealous of the other kids because they got so much money during Christmas."

“Didn’t your parents give you any?” Jasper asked.

“Of course, they did. Never anything less than 10,000 Somer Dollars,” Wendy answered naturally.

Jasper, “...”

Back in the 90s, one was considered rich if they had more than 10,000 dollars in their account. Yet, the amount of Christmas money Wendy’s family gave was equivalent to an entire family’s savings?!

“I used to get ten or 20 Somer Dollars when I was younger. Then, when my family’s financial situation improved, I got around 50 to 100 Somer Dollars. You get 10,000 Somer Dollars in one go and you’re still jealous of other people?” Jasper asked gloomily.

Wendy replied confidently, “I meant that other people received money from many relatives, unlike me. I only ever received money from two people, my mom and my dad. After I lost my mom, my dad would give me 100,000 dollars every year to make up for it.”

“I don’t understand how you rich people live your lives,” Jasper said gloomily.

Both Sally and Charlie were extremely happy to see Wendy. Even Charlie, who was usually sullen, smiled happily at her.

“Wendy, why didn’t you let me know you were coming over in advance? I would have prepared you some food in advance. Have you eaten yet?” Sally took Wendy’s hand in hers and smiled as she talked to her.

It was not their first time meeting, so Wendy had long since become close to Jasper’s parents. Back when Jasper was in Harbor City, she had often come over to accompany them.

“I’ve already eaten.”

Wendy sat down and glanced meaningfully at Jasper.

Jasper then told his parents about how Dawson wanted to treat them to dinner.

“Ah, your dad was just nagging me about this two days ago. He said we should find a chance where we can all sit down and have dinner together. At least the parents on both sides could get to know each other better,” Sally said excitedly.

“I didn’t expect Wendy’s father to bring this up so soon. Charlie, shall we travel to the province three days after Christmas?” Sally turned and looked at Charlie.

Charlie was the head of the family, so they needed to get his approval.

After a moment’s thought, Charlie replied, “I’m fine with the date. Nothing else is more important than this. But Jasper, you should book the hotel we’ll eat at. I’ll pay for the meal.”

Wendy blinked and was just about to speak when Jasper tugged on her arm, saying, “It’s how we do things here. It doesn’t matter where we go. Besides, it’s a must for the man’s parents to pay. It wouldn’t make sense for the woman’s parents to make the arrangements.”

Finally realizing what was going on, Wendy said angrily, “What do you mean by the man and the woman?! My dad just wants to get to know your parents!”

As they chatted, Wendy heard from Sally that she was planning on going Christmas shopping. Thus, she readily volunteered to accompany Sally.

Life at the Top Chapter 550

“Sally, I heard that a supermarket on the west side of town is having a huge sale now. Everything is at least 75% off, and there’ll be lucky draws too. Let’s go together!”

Jasper was startled when he heard that and glanced suspiciously at Wendy. “The supermarket on the west side of town? That’s where Tefa City is. The only supermarket there besides the one your family owns is Walmart, right? Not only are you not going to shop at the supermarket you own, but you’re going to fund your competition’s supermarket instead?”

Wendy huffed and said, “I’ll go wherever the cheaper options are. Isn’t that right, Sally?”

Sally was tempted as well. “75% discounts, and there’ll be lucky draws too. What a bargain!”

Jasper sighed as he watched the two women excitedly plan their day.

Wendy was born with a silver spoon in her mouth. Back in the days where few families had savings up to 100,000 dollars, she was already receiving 10,000 dollars as presents.

As for his mother, he transferred around 50,000 to 60,000 dollars to her bank account as an allowance every month. She should have at least 500,000 to 600,000 dollars under her name now.

Yet, these two women were still attracted by discounts.

However, Jasper still felt grateful. He knew Wendy was doing this to please his mother, who had been born in a rural area and had to be frugal her entire life.

Jasper merely reminded them to be careful before he let the two women set off excitedly.

The issues that his mother previously had with her daughter-in-law, which had plagued Jasper in his past life, did not seem to exist this time around.

Julian naturally trailed after Wendy when they arrived at the front door.

Ever since what had happened the last time, Jasper would arrange for Julian to protect Wendy unless there were any special circumstances.

Sally also knew Julian as the silent but sincere bodyguard. She smiled at him as she said, "Jul, pick out anything you need later. I'll pay."

Julian blushed as he said, "Mrs. Laine, Jasper pays me quite a high salary. I can't even finish spending it."

As Sally dragged Wendy toward the door, she said, "Get your sister to come and celebrate Christmas with us. The two of you don't even have any other family members to spend it with. It must be lonely."

Julian said awkwardly, "Mrs. Laine, it's fine. We've always celebrated Christmas this way."

"Alright now, just go along with my plans." Sally was insistent.

Julian seemed like a reliable person to her, and both her son and future daughter-in-law's safety were in his hands. It only made sense for her to treat him well.

Besides, the two siblings did have quite a pitiful life...

Just then, Charlie beckoned for Jasper to sit down beside him on the couch.

“I have something to discuss with you,” Charlie said as he frowned.

When he saw the solemn expression on his father’s face, Jasper hurriedly asked, “What’s wrong? Did something happen?”

Charlie seemed to be having difficulty bringing it up.

Jasper grew uneasy as he hurriedly asked, “Dad, there’s nothing you can’t tell me. No matter what happens, you should always let me know about it.”

Charlie grunted for the longest time before he finally muttered, “Wendy’s from a rich family, and I even heard that her dad’s a tycoon. Should we prepare anything when we meet him? Should I get a new outfit? I’m worried I might embarrass you.”

Life at the Top Chapter 551

Jasper did not expect that this was what had caused Charlie to frown and stammer for such a long time.

Jasper did not know how he should react to that.

“Uncle Schuler is very easy-going, and he doesn’t have much of a temper. He’s a very nice person, so we can be more relaxed. Else, we’ll appear to be overly formal.”

However, Jasper did not think that Charlie would glare at him when he said that.

“Nonsense! We must be polite. Although we aren’t going to ask for her father’s blessing this time, it’s still the first time both side’s parents are meeting. How can we treat this casually?”

Upon realizing that Charlie was going to take this extremely seriously, Jasper said helplessly, “Perhaps we could prepare some gifts?”

Charlie pinched his chin and raised an eyebrow before saying, “He’s a tycoon and has probably received all kinds of expensive presents before. If we gave him wine and tobacco as we usually do, he would probably just laugh at us... Never mind, I’ll consult the elders and see what I should do in such situations.”

Jasper sighed and said, “Dad, what are you so nervous about? Uncle Schuler might be one of the richest people in the province, but I’m not that far behind either. We’re not trying to claim connections with him. There’s no need to be so nervous.”

“What? He’s the richest person in the province?!” Charlie immediately ignored everything else when he heard that, and his eyes widened as he spoke.

Charlie, who had been a farmer for most of his life until Jasper made it big, had rarely even seen a large stack of cash with his own eyes. The richest man in the province was on the same level as a king to him... They were all legends he had never heard of before.

“That was in the past. Right now, it’s probably me, your son.” Jasper grinned as he spoke and tried to ease Charlie’s stress and nerves.

However, Charlie glared at Jasper and said, “You’re still young, so don’t become cocky after a few accomplishments. He has been working hard all his life, do you think he’ll be easily defeated by you?”

Jasper had no way of convincing Charlie if he did not believe him.

If he combined the cash he had in both his personal property and real estate, Jasper felt that not only could he be named the richest man in the Southeast Province, but he could even be listed as the top three richest men in the country.

However, one should not reveal their wealth. It would be better for him to keep a low profile.

“Dad, I’m serious. There’s no need to be this formal. Just act as if I were introducing you to a friend. There’s no way he’ll look down on you because you’re a farmer, and you don’t have to restrain yourself just because he’s the richest man in the province. Do whatever you’re supposed to do,” Jasper advised.

Charlie did not say anything, but there was a stony expression on his face. Finally, he said, “You make it sound simple... Never mind, I can’t come to any conclusions with you. I should talk about it with your mom and then consult the elders back home.”

“Does my mom and the elders have experience befriending the richest man in the province and becoming family with them?” Jasper grinned as he asked.

Charlie took out a box of cigarettes and tossed one over to Jasper with natural movements. "I'll call your uncle and have him bring over the 100-year-old ginseng from home. You can't just buy stuff like this on the market, so it should be suitable."

"That's a family heirloom of theirs. Is Uncle willing to give it up?" Jasper asked cheerfully.

"Why wouldn't he be willing?" Charlie glared at him as he said, "You single-handedly helped his son's career. It's just some mountain ginseng, and it's not like we won't be paying for it. What is there to be unwilling about? I'll take care of this. You don't need to worry."

"Dad, who was the one who taught me to never expect anything in return when we do good deeds when I was younger?" Jasper asked as he crossed one leg over the other.

The expression on Charlie's face darkened as he raised his voice and said, "How is that the same? We're going to meet your future in-law! We have to adapt to such matters. Time is of the essence, and we can't consider that now."

Life at the Top Chapter 552

While Jasper and Charlie were talking, at the west of Tefa City in Walmart.

Wendy and Sally talked and laughed as they picked out items while Julian stood near them and stared at everyone who got close to them.

The second time he managed to scare a little girl to tears, Wendy turned and said helplessly to Julian, "Julian, can't you have a kinder expression on your face? Look at how scared that little girl was."

Julian said innocently, "I didn't mean to scare her on purpose. I just took another look at her because she seemed cute."

"You have no idea how scary you appear when you look at people," Sally said as she laughed. She picked up a foam pillow, which had just started gaining popularity in a small part of the country in recent years.

"Wendy, do you think these pillows are useful? Jasper's dad has some neck problems, and the normal pillows don't allow him to get a restful sleep. I heard that these pillows are quite useful in allowing restful sleep."

Wendy asked in surprise, "Charlie has neck problems? Has he gotten it checked out at the hospital?"

Sally smiled as she said, "There's no need to have it checked. He's had that problem for many years now because of his work. Back then, we had to plant several hectares worth of rice in a day, and we spent all that time hunched over working in the fields. It's not odd that we have problems with our necks and backs. It can't be cured."

Wendy picked out the best foam pillow and placed it in the cart. "Let's just buy one for the time being. I have a friend overseas, and I can get her to send one that was manufactured there to me."

"No need to go to such trouble," Sally hurriedly said.

Wendy smiled and said, "It's just a small matter. There's no need to be so formal with me."

As Sally gazed at the racks of goods in the supermarket, she asked naturally, "Do you need anything back home? Let's buy some for you to bring back home."

Wendy smiled as she said, "No need, Sally. I have everything. I don't need anything else."

Sally disagreed as she said, "I heard from Jasper that your mom passed when you were young, and your dad raised you alone. He's a man, and you're a girl who hasn't done any household chores in her life. There's no way the two of you would know if anything is lacking from the cupboards.

"I'll buy some things for you two. Both Christmas and New Year's are approaching. You should take this opportunity to replace some things."

Startled and touched, Wendy took Sally's hand in hers as she said, "Thank you."

After so many years, Wendy had already grown used to life without her mother taking care of her. However, she now got to feel the love and care her father could not provide from Sally.

It was the kind of gentleness only a mother possessed.

This sort of tenderness toward the smallest detail was the most touching to Wendy, who had lost the love of her mother more than ten years ago.

Sally patted Wendy's palm gently as she said softly, "From today onward, I'll be your mom. There's no need for us to be so polite ever again."

"Alright!" Wendy nodded and smiled happily as she answered.

When the two pushed their trolley to the check-out counter and stood in line, Wendy realized that a man in the other line was staring at her.

"Are you... Wendy Schuler? Is it really you? I didn't dare say hi!" the young, handsome man said excitedly to Wendy.

Life at the Top Chapter 553

In contrast to the surprise and excitement on the man's face, Wendy only had confusion written across hers.

The man did seem familiar to her, but she had forgotten who he was.

When the man saw that Wendy was not going to say anything else, he pointed to himself and said, "It's me, Jeremy Morris! I was a couple of months your senior back when you first started work at Commercial Bank. I taught you most of the ropes."

Not even in his wildest dreams would Jeremy have imagined he could meet the woman he had yearned for day and night again.

He had been doing well in his career lately, having secured a large project in the province. Now that he had been reunited with the girl of his dreams, Jeremy's eyes shone as he took pride in his success in both his career and relationship.

Wendy exclaimed, "Oh, it's you, Jeremy! Fancy meeting you here. It's such a small world."

Jeremy chuckled and gave up his spot in line. As he walked toward Wendy, he said, "Wendy, so many of your colleagues were sad when you resigned. I resigned as well a week after you left."

Wendy said courteously, "You're a highly competent man, Jeremy. I'm sure you'll do well wherever you go."

Jeremy chuckled and said gleefully, "It's not much, but I'm doing alright. My family is in engineering, and we managed to secure a huge deal in the province through some connections and contacts. I'm currently in charge of that project.

“Wendy, I’m not sure if you’ve heard of it or not, but it’s the Southface River project back in the province. The company where I work as a general manager is in charge of constructing a pedestrian greenway. It’s an investment requiring tens of millions of dollars. We’ll be able to earn quite a bit of money from it.”

When Wendy heard that Jeremy was one of the many contractors involved in the Southface River project, her liking toward Jeremy increased a notch. After all, he was working for her man.

“I heard that the outlook on the Southface River project is quite good,” Sally said as she smiled.

Jeremy pretended to smile humbly, but he then said with unmasked glee, “Yeah, did you know that the largest project in the province is currently the Southface River project? Whoever gets involved even the slightest with the project will be guaranteed an earning.

“So many people were fighting for the chance to build that pedestrian greenway. Thankfully, my family had some connections to one of the managers at the real estate agency. It’s how we managed to nab that deal.”

Jeremy did not mean anything by what he said, but those listening heard a deeper meaning in his words.

Wendy knew that Jasper placed a strong focus on the company’s integrity. He had emphasized in multiple meetings that no one was allowed to pull any strings.

All the company’s projects would be subjected to public bidding before they could proceed to the next stage.

However, from what Jeremy had said, he seemed to have gotten the project through the backdoor because of his relations?

That was unusual.

The expression on Wendy's face darkened slightly. She was about to try and find out who Jeremy was in contact with when Sally spoke first.

"You got this project through the backdoor?"

Sally knew that her son was in charge of the Southface River project, but she did not know how important this particular project was.

When she first heard from Jeremy that he was a contractor for a sub-project within the Southface River project, her liking for this person who was working under her son had increased, just like Wendy. However, she immediately became unhappy the minute she heard he had gotten the project through the backdoor.

Life at the Top Chapter 554

Any project that was obtained through the backdoor was not a good project to her. She might not know anything about buildings, but she knew that jerry-built building projects would only harm her son.

The expression on Jeremy's face darkened when he heard what Sally said. Frowning, he turned to Sally and said, "Who are you, old woman? What gives you the right to ask about how and where I got my project?"

An angry expression appeared on Wendy's face. "Jeremy Morris, watch your words! She's my friend's mom!"

"Friend?" Jeremy narrowed his eyes slightly.

It was nearing the end of the year now. Most people would be shopping for Christmas presents now if they were out.

The contents of Wendy's shopping cart proved that.

“Boyfriend or girlfriend?” Jeremy asked, his jealousy apparent.

Wendy replied coldly, “That’s none of your business.”

Wendy’s attitude proved Jeremy’s suspicions to be true. He had just been feeling euphoric and thought that his days of being successful in both his career and his relationship had started. Jealousy coursed through him when he learned that Wendy already had a boyfriend.

“Wendy, you know how I’ve always liked you since the day you joined Commercial Bank and we got to know each other. I still like you to this day. How could you have just found yourself a boyfriend like that?”

Jeremy frowned. His voice was filled with obvious contempt as he said, “I’ve taken up a project in the Southface River project. I’ll earn millions of dollars through this project. Where does your boyfriend work? Can he even earn a million dollars in his entire lifetime?”

“Wendy, times are different now. Only the rich can survive in today’s society. You’re so pretty, why should you find yourself a random man and suffer for the rest of your life with him? Why don’t you get together with me? Ignoring other things, at least you can enjoy a life that’s a cut above others.”

Wendy was shocked by how shameless Jeremy was. She scoffed and said, “A cut above others? How is it a cut above others? Is money that important to you?”

“Of course, money is important.” Jeremy pursed his lips and said earnestly, “You haven’t gotten to know the harsh realities of the world’s evils yet. I’m older than you by two years, and I’ve seen more things than you. You have to trust me. You’re no one if you’re poor, and you’re king of the world if you’re rich.

“Especially for a beautiful girl like you. If you don’t get a rich boyfriend like me, who else could possibly be a match for you?”

Then, Jeremy pointed at Sally and snickered as he said, "Look at your boyfriend's mom. Look at how she acts and dresses. She's no different from the farmer wives in the country. How could a family like that produce any riches?"

"Shut up!" Wendy was raging when she interrupted Jeremy and said, "Don't think you can humiliate anyone you like just because you've scored some wins! Do you think you're such a big deal just because you've got some money in your bank account? I don't care for it at all!"

Jeremy laughed as he said, "That's why I said you've never been out in the real world and don't understand just how cruel it is out there. But never mind, you'll slowly understand that in the future. But now, I can't stand to see you get fooled by the sweet nothings of another man."

As he spoke, Jeremy glared coldly at Sally and said, "Hey, old hag, go back and tell your son that he's an idiot to take Jeremy Morris' girl from him."

"Have him go take a stroll and learn about me. I, Jeremy Morris, have gotten to know many people through my projects in the province. I can quash your entire family by just calling up a few of my contacts. You'd better f*ck off while you still can!"

"You!" Sally was shaking from anger. Although she had been born on a farm and spent more than half her life in a shabby shack, she did not have the typical shrewdness of a farm woman. Conversely, she rarely got into a fight with anyone.

Sally had been alive for almost 50 years, but she had never been humiliated this way. She was so angry that she nearly passed out on the spot and could not even form a sentence.

Life at the Top Chapter 555

“What about me?”

Jeremy scoffed and said leisurely to Sally, “You’d better be careful, you old hag. Don’t make me angry. It’s almost Christmas now. I would consider myself unlucky even if you don’t think it’ll dampen your spirits.”

“Or do you want to squander my money? That’s fine too. If you get your son to f*ck off, I can give him tens of thousands if I’m in a good mood. That would be much better than him working his socks off and earning so little, right?”

Wendy gritted her teeth in anger as she looked at the gleeful expression on Jeremy’s face.

“Julian!” Wendy called out.

Julian, who had long since been unable to stand him, immediately appeared. He stared unblinkingly at Jeremy.

Jeremy, who had been wild with glee, sensed the unmasked hostility from Julian when he appeared. Jeremy frowned.

“Where did this idiot come from? F*ck off, can’t you see I’m talking?”

Jeremy had just finished speaking when Julian picked him up by the collar. He was raised several feet off the ground.

His shocking strength caused everyone who was watching to cry out in surprise.

“I’ll make you shut up forever if you say another word. Do you believe me?”

That one sentence was enough to shut Jeremy up.

Julian had already proven that he had the strength to do what he said he would do. The look in his eyes proved to Jeremy that this man, who had appeared out of nowhere, had the guts to do so as well.

“Julian, I don’t want to see him anymore,” Wendy frowned as she spoke.

Wendy might have an intense hatred toward Jeremy, but she did not get Julian to do anything extreme. After all, they were in a supermarket, and there were lots of eyes on them. Things would become difficult if any accidents happened.

Julian seemed to understand that too. Huffing, he tossed Jeremy aside. He landed sprawled on the ground.

“It’s best you f*ck off now, or I won’t let you be sprawled out so comfortably the next time,” Julian said coldly.

Jeremy scrambled to his feet and adjusted his collar. The fall had him grimacing in pain.

“Alright, just wait and see!” Jeremy glared evilly at Wendy and Julian before he turned and left.

“Sally, are you alright?” Wendy grasped Sally’s hand as she asked.

Sally waved a hand and sighed. “One can really meet all sorts of people these days. I’m fine, don’t worry. I was just so angry I couldn’t catch my breath just now. I feel much better now that I’m not so angry anymore.”

“Don’t worry Sally, people like him won’t remain gleeful for long,” Wendy said.

“Ms. Schuler, Mrs. Laine, I’ve already contacted Jasper. He should be here soon,” Julian said as he walked over.

Wendy said in surprise, “When did that happen? What did you call him for? It was nothing.”

Julian scratched his head and said, “I messaged Jasper when I saw him speaking rudely to Mrs. Laine... Did I do something wrong?”

Wendy shook her head. “You didn’t do anything wrong. You were just carrying out your responsibilities, and you were worried about us. I just think that we might be making a big deal out of nothing.”

Julian chuckled naively but did not say anything else.

Either way, he would still let Jasper know immediately if anything similar happened in the future.

As Jeremy grumbled and walked out of the supermarket, he thought about the incident and could not stand what had just happened to him. Fishing his phone out of his pocket, he began calling the people he knew.

Taking Julian’s terrifying ability into consideration, Jeremy made a couple of extra phone calls. When he finished his calls, Wendy and Sally were walking out of the supermarket. Julian was behind them, a large bag in his hands.

When Jeremy remembered that his men were almost there, he became gleeful again. Walking over to Wendy, he gritted his teeth and said, “Stop!”

Wendy frowned at Jeremy and said impatiently, “Why won’t you leave us alone?”

Jeremy gave a twisted smile and said, “Did you think you could beat me up and be done with me? How would I, Jeremy Morris, continue doing business if that was the case?”

Julian was just about to speak when a car’s headlights shone in their direction.

The bright light caused everyone to squint and look toward where the light was coming from.

Jeremy watched a car drive toward him and stop right in front of him.

Life at the Top Chapter 556

It stopped less than an inch away from his feet.

Jeremy was so shocked he took several steps backward before he roared, "Can't you see that there's someone here? Are you trying to kill me?"

Then, he saw the make of the car. It was a Bentley!

Only the richest of the rich could drive such luxurious cars worth several million Somer Dollars.

Cowardice immediately took over Jeremy as he took several instinctive steps backward.

When everyone who was with Wendy saw the Bentley, a smile appeared on their faces.

They knew that Jasper had arrived.

When the Bentley pulled to a stop, Jasper got out of the car and walked straight toward Jeremy with a nonchalant expression. He turned to Julian and asked, "Julian, is he the one who insulted my mom and Wendy?"

Julian nodded.

Jeremy had a confused expression on his face and was just about to speak when he got slapped.

Jasper's calm voice rang out after he slapped him. "So, you insulted my mom?"

Slap!

A second slap.

“You want to take my woman away from me?”

Slap!

A third slap.

“You said you would give me tens of thousands if I f*cked off?”

Slap!

A fourth slap.

“You think that you’re invincible after you managed to get a sub-project in the Southface River project through the backdoor?”

Four consecutive slaps were enough to slap Jeremy silly. As he backed away, he tried to use his hand to shield himself, but he could not stop Jasper from slapping him again and again.

Jeremy’s face swelled like a pig’s face after getting slapped four times in a row.

He no longer cared if Jasper had gotten out of a Bentley.

“What the f*ck, how dare you slap me?! Do you know who I am?!”

Jeremy roared as blood dribbled from his mouth. His eyes were bloodshot, and he seemed ready to eat Jasper alive.

“Slap you? That’s child’s play.”

Jasper laughed coolly and took out his phone. He dialed a number.

The call was answered after a second.

“Mr. Laine, it’s so late. What do you—”

Sean thought Jasper needed him to do something upon receiving such a sudden call. However, he did not have time to finish speaking before Jasper yelled, “Sean Tucker, are you having too much fun being the vice president? Would you like to move your ass a little? If that’s the case, you can go stand guard for me at the construction site tomorrow!”

Sean, who was back at the province, was so shocked he immediately sat upright on his bed and said humbly, “Mr. Laine, I don’t understand what you mean?”

“The project for the pedestrian greenway. Who’s in charge of it? How did those people become in charge of it?” Jasper asked.

Sean had a confused expression on his face. He was an executive who was in charge of the larger issues. How would he be able to pay attention to the tiny details? Thus, he could only say nervously, “Well, I’ll have to make some inquiries...”

“No need for that. I don’t care who’s in charge. We’re terminating our contract. Besides, whoever was in charge of sealing the deal will have to be fired tomorrow. From tomorrow onward, your most important task will be to conduct an office-wide investigation to see if anyone received bribes or kept the benefits of the contract for themselves!”

As he spoke, Jasper narrowed his eyes and looked at Jeremy who had already lost all color from his face. He said, “I don’t care who it is. If they’re discovered, throw them into jail using the evidence. I’ll throw you into jail too if you dare step out of line!”

Life at the Top Chapter 557

That one phone call was enough to knock Jeremy into an abyss.

He could not figure out how someone who had appeared out of nowhere could tear apart the project he had gotten for himself.

Such a person was either a lunatic who was really good at acting, or they were actually legit.

Jeremy glanced at the Bentley parked behind Jasper and gulped. He felt chills running across his entire body.

Could a lunatic afford to drive a Bentley?

Moreover, based on what had just happened, it was clear that this man was Wendy's current boyfriend and the son of the farmer woman he had just laughed at!

Jeremy was incredibly decisive when he realized he was in deep trouble. He immediately knelt before Jasper and said, "I'm sorry, I failed to recognize your talent. I looked down on you because of my own twisted views!

"I have a mouth too big for my own appetite!

"But that project is our family's lifeline. None of us went through any backdoors, everything was done properly through bidding. Please forgive me this one time..."

Jeremy spoke desperately, the sincerity and look of apology on his face were not faked at all.

Jasper watched Jeremy's performance calmly and waited for him to finish before he said, "Very well. I shall investigate if you got this project legally through a bid or not.

"If you did get this project through a bid, I won't hold anything against you. However, if bribery was involved, not only will the person who accepted the bribe face time in jail, but you will also suffer consequences as the person who initiated the bribe."

The expression on Jeremy's face changed when he heard what Jasper said.

"Who the hell are you?" Jeremy asked dazedly as he raised his head to gaze at Jasper.

"You have no right to know who I am yet." When Jasper finished that sentence, he ignored Jeremy and turned to walk to Sally. He asked, "Mom, are you alright?"

Sally shook her head and said, "I'm alright."

Jasper took Wendy's hand and escorted Sally back to the car. Julian, who was behind them, stood in front of Jeremy with a stony expression on his face as he said, "Didn't you say it was an impressive feat that you had managed to secure a contract in the Southface River project?"

"He's in charge of the Southface River project."

Julian did not give Jeremy's colorless face another look before he turned and left.

Jeremy could not stand even after the Bentley had driven off. He had a sullen expression on his face when he thought about how his world was going to collapse around him.

Soon, two vans pulled to a stop in front of Jeremy and several men jumped out from them. The leader ran over to Jeremy and was shocked when he saw the state Jeremy was in.

“Mr. Morris, what happened to you? Where’s the person who hit you? Don’t worry, I’ve brought all my men along with me. I’ll make sure justice is on your side.”

Jeremy was not in the mood to explain anything to these thugs and could only mumble, “Sh*t, I’m done for. My entire family is done for. What should I do?”

The man who was the leader of the thugs was confused, but he could more or less guess what had happened from what Jeremy said.

Could it be that Jeremy had angered the wrong person today?

This immediately caused the man to go on high alert. The way he looked at Jeremy immediately became less friendly as he asked probingly, “Young Master Morris, should we also leave now that they’ve left too?”

“Look, my men all abandoned whatever they were working on to come here. Do you think we can get some compensation?”

Jeremy shuddered and seemed to come back to his senses as he glared at the man. He roared, “What compensation? I let you eat and drink all you f*cking want but you’re asking me for payment now even though you didn’t do anything when I was in trouble? Do you think my money grows on trees?”

“F*ck all of you freeloaders! Would I be in this mess today if you weren’t circling me and dragging me into messes? F*ck off! All of you f*ck off!”

The expression on the man’s face grew ugly as he was berated in front of his men. He glared at Jeremy as he said, “Morris, I’m showing you respect by calling you Mr. Morris today. If I don’t feel like doing so, will you believe me if I say I’ll cut you to death?”

“You have to pay for us traveling out here today whether you want to or not! Or else, don’t blame me for not being courteous.”

Jeremy stared at the man in front of him and at his men who were staring greedily at him. He felt his vision go black.

...

Jeremy's issue was insignificant to Jasper.

However, this prompted him to sense that there was a major hidden problem in the real estate agency.

Just like how a problem had been discovered in the investment company back when he was battling the Hull family. However, the problem that was discovered in the real estate agency seemed to be even more serious.

"Jasp, what are you thinking about?" Wendy was sitting on a chair after she returned home, and she saw Jasper sitting at his desk with a dark expression on his face.

He had been maintaining that posture for almost half an hour ever since they returned from the supermarket.

"I'm thinking if the problem in the real estate agency is a major one or not," Jasper replied.

Wendy frowned when she heard that. "You mean Jeremy's case of bribing employees and getting hold of projects through the backdoor might not be an isolated one?"

"Isolated case?"

Jasper smiled.

Jasper had been reincarnated with his memories from his past life. He had seen too many cases of people taking advantage of loopholes and cases of corruption within a company.

When corruption happened, it was probably a whole nest of cases—the kind where you only needed to discover one case before you discovered the rest of them.

“The real estate agency might be a brand new company, but most of the middle and top managers were transferred over from Schuler Group. This brand new company would be the perfect place for these experienced people to get up to no good.”

Jasper said calmly, “After all, your dad has run Schuler Group for more than ten years. There’ll be far fewer loopholes there. But the real estate agency is different. A new business requires a new set of rules. The sly ones would easily be able to spot loopholes that benefit them.”

Wendy frowned as she said angrily, “My father only transferred those he trusted over to the real estate agency. They...”

Jasper replied calmly, “Take higher-ups like Sean Tucker, for example. He wouldn’t get involved in such matters for such measly benefits, but what about those in the middle level of management? You need to understand that mid-level management is what truly makes up the foundation of a company.

“If anything goes wrong there, it would be much more difficult to deal with than if one or two higher-ups got into trouble.”

“So what do you plan to do?” Wendy asked.

“We can’t be soft when dealing with corruption within the company. No compromising or indecisiveness is allowed. We have to deal with matters the way they present themselves.” Jasper massaged his temples as he smiled at Wendy and said, “But tomorrow’s the last day of work. Everyone will be on winter break starting tomorrow. Let’s talk about this after New Year’s.”

Life at the Top Chapter 558

The end of the year was soon approaching. Jasper’s family had three important meals that they would always have at this time of the year.

The first one was on the 24th, Christmas Eve dinner.

Another one was on the 25th, Christmas lunch.

The last one was on the 26th, Boxing Day breakfast.

The south had just about the same traditions, but they just had the meals at different times of the day.

There were only a few days left before Christmas. Wendy had to return to the province to accompany Dawson. After all, even though he had not said anything about being left alone in the province, everyone knew he hoped his daughter would accompany him during this special day.

Jasper began preparing this year’s Christmas Eve dinner after he said goodbye to Wendy.

Although the Laine family wasn’t huge, as they were from the village, there were relatives who moved around and they all still kept close contact with each other.

Moreover, because they knew he had made it big this year, the majority of Jasper’s relatives suggested having this year’s Christmas Eve dinner at Tefa City for a multitude of reasons.

Sally and Charlie would not let go of this opportunity to have bragging rights in front of their relatives. Thus, they immediately agreed and expressed that they would pay for everyone's room and board.

Jasper did not mind. It did not matter if they were his relatives or tribespeople. Men could not survive in the world alone.

Jasper was willing to keep in touch with them too, but on the condition that they did not treat him as a cash cow just because he was rich now. If they did that, he would ignore them.

In his past life, he had seen plenty of people who held grudges because their relatives did not share their earnings with them after making it big in the world.

When faced with such relatives, Jasper's only reaction was to ask them to get as far away from him as possible.

"Dad, I know you and Mom want to look good in front of them. I've already booked three tables at Shangri-La Hotel. All you have to do is go over. Moreover, I've arranged for several cars to pick everyone up because there are so many of you guys. Someone will get in touch with you once you're there. I'll arrive slightly later."

Jasper sat in John's office and crossed one of his legs over the other as he talked to his mom, Sally, over the phone.

It was bustling and noisy on Sally's end of the line. A bunch of his relatives must have already arrived at his family's villa.

Once in a while, Jasper could also hear the sounds of a relative marveling and being blown away.

Even Sally's eyes were smiling as she said, "Alright, we'll get going right now. Hey, where did you get those cars from?"

Jasper smiled as he glanced at John and said, "I borrowed them from a friend. You don't need to worry about that. That's all for now."

After he hung up the phone, Jasper said to John, "Thank you so much for your help, John. Else I would never have been able to book that private room at Shangri-La Hotel. And thank you for those six BMWs as well. I would never have been able to procure them myself."

John smiled as he said, "I dare not take credit for this. I turned to Kai after you told me about this last night. That man is a social butterfly and has friends everywhere."

"His social circle has expanded since what happened the last time. He's extremely popular now and is the leader of the circle in Faith County."

Jasper said teasingly, "What about Samuel?"

John said happily, "Do you think Samuel would dare make an appearance while you're here? I heard from someone that he's planning to move to Dusk County."

"I don't have the time for him. He can move wherever he likes," Jasper said calmly.

John's voice was lowered as he said, "Jasper, Kai has been looking for the chance to thank you personally."

"Take this time, for example. The end of the year is right around the corner, and most people have already booked their rooms at hotels several months in advance. He went straight to those people with several million dollars in cash and half-bribed, half-fought them to get these rooms for you."

"The same goes for the cars. He spent the whole night running around before he got them all."

Life at the Top Chapter 559

“These are all insignificant, though. You’re a busy man with no time for these things. It doesn’t matter if we, your friends, help you take care of matters like these.

“But he still put quite a lot of thought into it, so how about we go visit him after Christmas?”

Jasper gave John a meaningful look and smiled as he said, “John, you’re playing mind games with me as well now. Kai doesn’t have such a simple purpose behind wanting to meet me, does he?”

John knew he could not fool Jasper and decided to say honestly, “Well, his main reason is to thank you. His other reason is that he would like to take Faith County’s resources once Samuel is gone.”

Jasper thought to himself for a moment. No matter how he advanced, Faith County and Tefa City would be his home base for a long time.

At the very least, his parents would retire here. They would not go anywhere else.

The company’s headquarters was in Waterhoof City. The amount of time they needed to spend there would be calculated in years. They would not be able to move away anytime soon.

