

Chapter 1344

Back to Wynn. She and Lydia were in a bedroom having a girl's talk.

"Sister Wynn, let me ask you something. If I like a man but this man has someone he likes and it will always stay that way, should I give up?" Lydia asked, blinking her big soulful eyes.

Wynn sat on the bed, rubbed her stomach, and asked, "How much do you like that man?"

"I can die for him," Lydia quickly replied.

Wynn thought for a moment and said, "Liking someone is up to the individual. If you really like him, find the opportunity to express your feelings. If the other party still refuses, I'd give the other party my blessing and leave. Because if you really like someone, you won't cause trouble to the other party."

"What about love?" Lydia asked again.

Wynn raised her head, looked at the window, and a pretty smile appeared on her mouth. She said, "Love is a matter between two people. Only when you love each other can it be called love."

Lydia pouted with her hands propped on her chin, asking, "Isn't like and love the same? Isn't love also liking someone?"

Wynn smiled and said, "You're still young and don't understand. Like is like, love is love. It's not the same."

Lydia shook her head and said, "It's so difficult."

After that, she looked at Wynn enviously and said, "Sister Wynn, I really envy you for having a man like Brother Philip who loves you."

Wynn smiled at her and asked, "By the way, who is the man you like? Introduce him to me one day. How about I check him out for you?"

Hearing this, Lydia's face flushed hotly as she said coyly, "No... No need."

The person she liked was none other than Philip!

Wynn smiled. Seeing that bashful look on Lydia's face, she envied the beauty of youth.

Meanwhile in Uppercreek Hospital, Hannah's ward.

Margot Pearson was dressed in a black knee-length dress. With her flaming red lips and big wavy hair, she looked very sexy and enchanting. She was sitting in the ward.

"The boss has new orders. The situation has changed. You should withdraw from Uppercreek," Margot said.

"Why?" Hannah's pretty brows wrinkled slightly.

Margot replied, "Philip has detained Connor Clarke, Allen Clarke, and Levi Clarke of the branch family, and that has annoyed the branch family. They're now gathering forces and preparing to challenge the main family. He has gone too far this time and it's likely to trigger a big battle between the main family and the branch family. To ensure your safety, you must withdraw from Uppercreek as soon as possible."

"But if I leave, my brother will go crazy," Hannah said anxiously.

Philip had already lost her once. This time, if she disappeared again, would her brother be able to withstand the blow?

Margot frowned and said, "I couldn't care less. The boss' intention is very clear. I must bring you back with me. You've already broken the rules by coming out this time. To cover up for you, we have done a lot of work and even changed your profile information. Other lords are very dissatisfied with you and the boss."

Hannah was silent and looked toward the window, saying in a pleading tone, "Sister Margot, can you wait until the world tournament is over? I want to have another look at my brother."

Margot's elegant eyebrows wrinkled as she helplessly shook her head, but she still said with a faint smile, "Okay, I promise. But after that, we have to leave."

Hannah nodded, clenching her little hands tightly.

The following day, Tundra Villa.

Everyone was ready. After paying homage to Old Master Jensen, the urn containing his ashes was brought into the car.

Philip stood at the entrance of Tundra Villa. Behind him were the six Aces, Fulton, members of the Jensen family, and Theo and Master Bell's people.

The entourage stretched endlessly.

Philip glanced at the sunrise. The reddish horizon foretold that today would be a thrilling day!

"Young Master Clarke, everything is ready," Crawford stood next to Philip and said respectfully.

Today, all members of the Jensen family were dressed plainly with serious expressions on their faces.

"Let's go!"

At Philip's command, everyone got into the cars!

The fleet of vehicles, consisting of Mercedes-Benz, Cadillacs, and Rolls-Royces, drove out of Tundra Villa one after another.

Their destination was Uppercreek Square, the venue of the world tournament!
