

The First Heir novel Chapter 1709

Philip stared sharply at the four people who got out of the car. These people wore different clothes, and their mannerisms inadvertently made others feel the impulse to worship them. The man and woman from earlier welcomed them into the Concord Hotel very respectfully. It could be seen that the man and woman were extremely respectful to these four people.

Philip just stood at the side of the doorway. When this group of people passed by him, he saw the faces of the four people under the black hoods.

One of them had a stunningly beautiful face, fair skin, exquisite features, a pouty mouth, and almond-shaped eyes. On her neck, there was a geometric pattern of the Big Dipper. The second star of the constellation was the most dazzling. She was a tall woman, and as she walked, her hips swayed from side to side. She was flirtatious and y. She was also a cold and mature beauty.

The person closest to Philip had a face filled with cold murderous intent. He had a fierce expression, thick eyebrows, big eyes, and a very long and deep scar at the corner of his mouth. It seemed to have been caused by a sharp weapon.

This person's physique was very sturdy and burly, which made people shudder.

If one were within a three meter radius of him, one could feel this man's chilly and murderous aura.

As Philip was observing him, the other party also seemed to notice Philip's scrutiny. With a slight turn, a pair of murderous eyes stared at Philip intently!

Thump!

Instantly, Philip felt the pressure and chill all over his body! He had never experienced this kind of pressure! What a strong intensity!

How could a person produce such a strong sense of oppression?

Philip furrowed his brows, clenched his fists, and stared at the other party with the same searing gaze.

Perhaps Philip was unaware but when he was staring at the other party, the man in the black robe was also shocked!

No one had ever been able to stand so steadily under his gaze and aura, not to mention stare back at him in this way.

This guy was interesting!

For a moment, he wanted to test how much pressure Philip could withstand. Thus, he increased his aura abruptly!

This small action caused all the people around to panic!

The man and woman in the lead were already drenched in sweat, terrified by the fierce aura of the black-robed man behind them!

They stood tremblingly on one side, their legs shaking uncontrollably. Their backs were wet as well.

Looking at the other people around, except for the other three from the Nonagon, the rest of them looked as though they had fallen into icy waters at this moment. They were trembling all over, completely unable to withstand the aura emanating from the black-robed man. He was like a demon king that walked out of a sea of corpses!

He was so scary, so terrifying!

The other three people from the Nonagon turned around at this moment. They could not help being curious when their partner abruptly unleashed his aura. When they saw Philip on the opposite side, the three frowned and a sneer soon appeared at the corners of their mouths.

Interesting.

Under Venom Paine's aura, this kid could still stand steadily. This was the first time they were seeing such a scene.

At this moment, Philip was no longer calm on the inside. The other party seemed to be deliberately increasing his aura, wanting to use his power to overwhelm others.

He frowned, totally unable to figure out what the other party was doing. They just stared at each other, but Philip clearly felt the pressure on him increasing.

If this continued, he might not be able to withstand his bitter chill and murderous aura.
