

The First Heir – Chapter 1813

Hearing Philip's name, Winston nearly blew his top. He turned around and shouted, "How dare he come here? He's a brat who doesn't know his limits! I want to see how amazing he is to dare challenge the Dunley family!"

After saying that, Winston quickly led a dozen people to the conference hall on the first floor of the building!

At this moment, Philip was sitting leisurely on the sofa, sipping the coffee brewed by the receptionist.

Maia Harp, the woman with a glamorous figure, stood respectfully beside him. This woman was the focus wherever she went. Her straight and slender legs, coupled with her curvy waist and hips, made many male employees drool.

Winston brought a large group of people with him and soon came to the front.

His gaze was instantly locked on Philip who was sitting on the sofa while sipping coffee. Then, his eyes shifted to Maia who was next to him.

Maia Harp?

Why was this woman here too?

Winston knew Maia. She was a strong career woman in Hampton, Charbury!

She had a lot of tricks up her sleeve and a scheming mind. Plus, the capital and power behind her were also very terrifying.

With the influence of the Dunley family in Charbury, they should be able to easily recruit a woman like Maia. Indeed, the Dunley family had tried recruiting her before but was rejected. Later, the Dunley family wanted to target Maia and make things difficult for her.

However, this order was very quickly dismissed by the patriarch. He said that Maia could not be touched. As for the reason, no one knew. Since then, Maia's strength and status in Hampton rose to an unprecedented high.

At this moment, such a woman was standing respectfully beside this young man.

This made Winston a little apprehensive, and his face grew tense.

He angrily walked over, stared at Philip coldly, and asked solemnly, "Are you Philip Clarke?"

Philip raised his eyebrows and looked at the group of people who had just arrived. The person taking the lead was an old man in his 60s. He was high-spirited, looking majestic and imposing.

This must be Winston Dunley.

"Yes," Philip said flatly.

Winston sneered when he heard that and said, "Hehe, I thought you were an amazing person with supernatural abilities. Now it seems that you're just an ordinary person. Young man, I'm giving you a formal warning. Stop what you're doing immediately and return the 20 billion dollars that the Dunley family lost! Otherwise, I'll definitely let you know the consequences of offending the Dunley family!"

Winston was full of anger and showed a ferocious sneer.

This young man dared to trespass into the tiger's den without permission. He was simply in over his head! Where did he think this was?

This was the tallest building in Hampton, the landmark of Dunley Group!

Since he had come here, it would not be that easy for him to get out.

However, Philip just looked at Winston calmly. Then, he slowly put down the coffee cup, got up, and put his hands in his trouser pockets. He looked at Winston indifferently before saying with a smile, "Winston Dunley, these words of yours are just enough to scare a three year old kid. I'm not afraid of you. You should take the 20 billion dollars as a warning. Now, it's my turn to give you a piece of advice. Forget about standing up for Homer Dunley and Milo Dunley. Otherwise, I'll be the first to pull you down from your current position! Don't doubt my strength. Even if this huge Dunley family offends me today, I can make all of you collapse and turn into ashes within one day!"

Hiss!

The crowd gasped. What an arrogant tone!

How dare he say such disrespectful words?!

Not only did he want to deal with Winston but he also wanted to destroy the Dunley family within one day.

This was simply wishful thinking!
