

Deep Affection: Honey, Come Back To Me Chapter 101

/ Deep Affection: Honey, Come Back To Me
Chapter 101 I Don't Like Vivian

A smile appeared on Helen's face when Nina said she liked the dog. "Mrs. Shi, Nine likes you very much. Do you want to touch its head? Mr. Shi said that wherever you go, you have to take Nine with you. It can help you drive away the bad guys."

Bad guys?

But John was the bad guy. Could Nine drive him away?

Obviously not, because he was the one who bought Nine.

Besides, no one had the power to drive John away.

From Helen's words, Nina got the message John was implying. Nine would be a reminder of John's threat. The thought of having to stay with what she feared the most made her feel uneasy. It would be hard for her to get close to Nine,

– Chapter 101 I Don't Like Vivian because as soon as it opened its mouth, she instantly became afraid. 2

Therefore, she tried her best to keep a distance of half a meter from the dog.

With a sigh, Helen said, "I've never seen Mr. Shi treat others so well. He knew that you liked Tibetan Mastiffs So he ordered someone to buy a beautiful one for you. He knew that you took a lemon last night so he ordered someone to bring a lot of lemons this morning."

Her eyes widened in shock with what Helen said. "Lemons?" Misfortunes never really came singly! As if on cue, she heard footsteps drawing near them. "Mrs. Shi, here are your lemons."

Nina blinked a few times as she stared at the boxes of lemons. At this point, she already knew that something terrible was going to happen.

The two maids carried two boxes of lemons in their hands and placed them in the living room. There were at least a hundred

– Chapter 1011 Don't Like Vivian lemons, which were all still light yellow and green. 2

These were obviously not ripe, and eating these lemons might make her teeth sour.

"Mrs. Shi, you may enjoy the lemons now. Mr. Shi said that you would eat two lemons every morning. Please wait for a moment. I'll cut them and bring them to you."

What Helen said was like a thunderbolt that struck Nina. She felt bitter and annoyed at the same time.

She didn't like dogs or lemons! In fact, she hated them the most.

in

Therefore, she grabbed Helen's arm refusal. "No, Helen!"

It felt like Nina carried the whole world on her shoulders. She looked calm but she was crying on the inside.14

"Mrs. Shi, Mr. Shi said you would like it if you think about twenty million."
"20

When she heard this, Nina turned to Richard who signaled to her to look somewhere.

– Chapter 101 I Don't Like Vivian Following his gaze, Nina found a camera rotating in the corner of the wall. 4

It was then that Nina realized that John had installed a surveillance camera at home to watch over her. If it wasn't for the people with her right now, Nina would've screamed in frustration. How could he do this to her! 18

Left without a choice, she calmed herself down and nodded. She faked a smile and slowly loosened her grip on Helen's hand

d. "Yes, I like lemons the most." Her resentful eyes tried to penetrate through the camera, heading straight to John, who was watching the video. 2

But it didn't frighten John at all. Instead, it aroused his desire to conquer her more. The corners of his lips rose slightly, adding a bit of spirit to his now slightly pale face. On the screen, he saw Nina sitting on the sofa, with two plates of lemons in front of her. She stretched out her hand hesitantly to get a slice of lemon. Through the screen, he could feel that she didn't want to eat the lemons at all.

– Chapter 1011 Don't Like Vivian – As she watched Nina eat the lemons, Helen couldn't help but sigh. "No wonder your skin is so good."

After eating a few slices of lemon, Nina couldn't help but spit some of it. Her helpless expression made John laugh, but of course, Nina couldn't see it. Without him noticing, his sister, Jessica, entered his office. It was rare for her to see John absent-minded. Not to mention, see him laughing as he watched a video.

So she walked over without making a sound until she got close to him, and tried to peep on the screen. "Hey, what's making you so happy?" "Jessica, why are you here?" John's chuckle was replaced by indifference. He put down the iPad on his desk, not wanting Jessica to see it.

This action made her a little displeased. John had never hidden anything from her before. What was wrong with him? Why was he beginning to guard against her?

– Chapter 1011 Don't Like Vivian "I came here to see you. I heard from Helen that you didn't look well this morning so I came to see if you are sick. You have been like this since we were young. You always keep everything to yourself and don't tell me what's wrong as long as it's not life-threatening." Among the four siblings, only Jessica and John were about the same age. They grew up together and had a deep affection towards each other, so she cared about John very much.

To avoid any more questions, John simply replied, "I'm fine." However, his slightly pale lips caught Jessica's attention.

"I'll call the doctor." One thing that they had in common was, they were both straightforward and liked to make decisions for other people. Therefore, Jessica didn't wait for his reply and took out her phone to call her driver. "Yvonne, go to KL Hospital and pick up Dr. Brian. Bring him to the top floor of the Time Group." Yvonne Zhan was Jessica's personal bodyguard. She was one of the professional guards of the Shi family. Brian was an – Chapter 101 I Don't Like Vivian internationally renowned talented doctor.

As his sister, Jessica had always believed that John must enjoy the best treatment and that he deserved the best things in the world.

"Jessica..."

"And now you don't even want to listen to me?"

Although he felt like she was making a mountain out of a molehill, she had always cared about him since he was a child so he had no choice but to let her go.

"That's good. Just have a check. I'll be relieved if everything goes well." Then she glanced at the iPad on the desk again.

She didn't get a full view, but she saw a figure which seemed to be a woman. John noticed how Jessica's gaze swept across the iPad, so he automatically reached out his hand to cover it. For the time being, he didn't want her to know about Nina because she would definitely investigate her.

– Chapter 101 I Don't Like Vivian This would only disturb Nina's life.

Being with Nina for the past few days made him realize that she wanted to live a peaceful and low-key life and didn't want to be involved with too many people.

It was enough for her to be involved with him, and John respected that. "Jessica, if you don't have anything else to do, I have to work." Afraid that she would find out about Nina, John indirectly asked her to leave.

Jessica was smart enough to know what John meant, but she wouldn't leave unless she knew what was wrong with him.

"I won't leave until Brian says you are fine." It was worrisome to know that he was sick but he chose to ignore it because of his pride. She knew that if she didn't force him to, he would never see a doctor.

No matter how strong he was, he couldn't ignore his health

"John, you need a considerate person to take care of you. I can't take care of you

– Chapter 101 I Don't Like Vivian forever. You should get married. I think Vivi is good, gentle and considerate. You can get engaged to her on her birthday. She has been waiting for you for so many years. How rare that kind of love is!" Her eyes were full of admiration when she mentioned Vivian's name. 7

It was obvious that Jessica was fond of her by the way she talked about her. On the contrary, John didn't like her. That was why he easily got annoyed when

Jessica mentioned her. "Stop it. I don't like her."

First, Nina mistakenly believed that Vivian was his fiancée and now Jessica hoped that he would be engaged to Vivian.

How could he not be irritated when people kept interfering with his marriage?

For God's sake, he already had a wife!

"Helen, please go upstairs and bring my lollipops. It's too sour." The emotionless voice of Nina came clearly from the iPad. 2

To say that Jessica was shocked was an

– Chapter 101 I Don't Like Vivian forever. You should get married. I think Vivi is good, gentle and considerate. You can get engaged to her on her birthday. She has been waiting for you for so many years. How rare that kind of love is!" Her eyes were full of admiration when she mentioned Vivian's name.

It was obvious that Jessica was fond of her by the way she talked about her. On the contrary, John didn't like her. That was why he easily got annoyed when Jessica mentioned her. "Stop it. I don't like her."

First, Nina mistakenly believed that Vivian was his fiancée and now Jessica hoped that he would be engaged to Vivian.

How could he not be irritated when people kept interfering with his marriage? For God's sake, he already had a wife!

"Helen, please go upstairs and bring my lollipops. It's too sour." The emotionless voice of Nina came clearly from the iPad. 2

To say that Jessica was shocked was an

— Chapter 1011 Don't Like Vivian understatement when she heard this.

'Is there a woman in the North Yard?'

Deep Affection: Honey, Come Back To Me Chapter 102

/ Deep Affection: Honey, Come Back To Me
Deep Affection: Honey, Come Back To Me

Chapter 102 Nina Doesn't Deserve

John

"Yes, Mrs. Shi. Please wait for a moment." This time, it was Helen's voice that came from the iPad. The way she addressed Nina made it clear that Nina was highly respected in the North Yard.

"Mrs. Shi?" Hearing this title shocked Jessica. It was unbelievable that a woman was living in the North Yard, let alone be called Mrs. Shi by Helen. Her questioning eyes turned to John, waiting for an explanation. There was no point in denying it anymore, so John calmly looked at her and said, "That's exactly what you heard."

At this moment, Jessica felt mixed emotions. It could be figured out by looking at how she blinked multiple times and at her slightly parted lips that she was confused.

– Chapter 102 Nina Doesn't Deserve John Her brother, who was not interested in women, finally had a woman. She was naturally happy, because it had proven that there was nothing wrong with his sexual orientation.

But she didn't know what kind of woman Nina was. Was her family background better than Vivian's? What was with her that John didn't see in Vivian?

These things mattered to Jessica the most, so she must make a thorough investigation.

Her mind was full of questions when Yvonne arrived with Brian. Jessica for motioned them to come in first.

Standing in front of them was Yvonne, who was full of heroic spirit, but there was no hint of emotion on her face. Beside her was Brian who was remarkably tall. He was wearing a suit and his blue eyes shined like gems.

With a kind smile, Brian greeted, "Mr. and Ms. Shi."

"Brian, check on my brother."

– Chapter 102 Nina Doesn't Deserve John "Alright." Without further ado, Brian came over to John with a medical kit. "Mr. Shi, this way please."

John stood up and lazily sat on the sofa in the lounge. Brian examined him and came to a conclusion after a few minutes. "Mr. Shi, did you eat anything unclean last night? You seem to be a little dehydrated now. I suggest you go home and have a rest. I will prescribe some antidiarrheal for you."

"Antidiarrheal? You mean he ate something wrong?" With a puzzled look, John shook his head. "It's impossible. All the food in the North Yard is being strictly checked. Helen is very careful and has never made any mistake."

As smart as she was, Jessica thought of a possibility, so she looked at him inquisitively. "Was it the woman in the North Yard?" 3

Without a second thought, John denied it. "No."
It was indeed because of Nina, but he couldn't admit it to Jessica. Otherwise, she would be furious. He looked at Brian and ordered, "Prescribe some medicine and – Chapter 102 Nina Doesn't Deserve John – then you can leave."

Then John turned to Jessica's bodyguard. "Yvonne, take Jessica home."

Since John wanted her to leave, Jessica turned around and left without saying anything.

After leaving the Time Group, Jessica ordered angrily, "Investigate the woman in the North Yard. I want to know everything about her in an hour!"²

"Yes, Ms. Shi."

It only took less than half an hour for Yvonne to collect information about Nina. However, there was only half page of paper, which was the same as the information John had collected.

Glancing at the document, Jessica's face darkened. "Married? A married woman doesn't deserve John at all. The information isn't helpful enough. Let's go to L University. I'd like to know what's so special about this woman that John let her stay in the North Yard.", – Chapter 102 Nina Doesn't Deserve John – Soon, they had arrived at L University and Jessica headed straight to the principal's office.

Right after she handed the piece of paper to the principal, she asked straightforwardly, "How much do you know about Nina?" "Nina?" The principal was a middle-aged fat man, who was already bald but was still in high spirits. He looked tall and powerful, but not enough to intimidate Jessica.

Of course he knew Nina. She was personally recommended by Sam. 3

"Why do you want to see Nina?" Judging from the expression on Jessica's face, it was obvious th at she didn't know that Nina was recommended by her father, so he was cautious.

Even Sam didn't tell his own daughter about this. How could he not be careful?

"There are tens of thousands of students in L University, and as the principal, you probably have met so many students. But it looks like you don't only remember this student's name, but you also seem to know her well. What's so special about her that you can remember her?" Jessica asked tentatively.

– Chapter 102 Nina Doesn't Deserve John

What she had said was true, but the principal was quick to think of a response that wouldn't sound suspicious. "You must be joking. I can remember her only because she is Professor Gu's disciple." "Professor Gu? Who is Professor Gu?" Being born in a rich family, Jessica lived a carefree life and never paid attention to insignificant people. After all, she was used to being the center of attention.

So how could she know Professor Gu, the most powerful man in the criminal psychology? Although the principal was a little angry, he could only respect Jessica because she was part of the Shi family. "Ms. Shi, Professor Gu is a leading figure in criminal psychology and has trained a lot of talents for our country. His disciples are now working in the police station of various cities – Chapter 102 Nina Doesn't Deserve John – and have a lot of deeds. As for Nina, she assisted the criminal investigation team to report a series of killings last week. This matter was not reported by the media, so no one knew."

Upon hearing this, Jessica slowly straightened her back. Her disdainful look was gone, and she felt a little ashamed.

Jessica had always held respect for the soldiers and police who maintained the safety of the country and the law.

Moreover, her best friend Kristina's nephew was a policeman in the criminal investigation team of Spring City. He had to face different types of murderous devils every day, which meant he was always in danger.

That was why Kristina was always worried and kept nagging in her ears.

"Do you mean, Nina has assisted the police in solving the case?" There was a hint of admiration in Jessica's eyes. The voice she had just heard from the iPad sounded like it came from a weak girl.

– Chapter 102 Nina Doesn't Deserve John –

But it turned out that the girl was brave enough to face such a dangerous job.

A series of murders was not a joke. Only those who were brave enough could handle it. "Yes."

"A girl should live a well behaved life. Why did she do such a dangerous thing?" Remembering how Kristina feared for Noah's safety every day, Jessica's face darkened again.

If her brother would live with such a woman, how was his life going to be? Would he even be able to fall asleep soundly, knowing that this girl was always in danger?

"Well... We all have our own interests." In his point of view, there was nothing wrong with Nina choosing this job. Besides, he liked Nina very much. The police had sent people to praise him several times because Nina cracked that criminal case.

Jessica didn't want to argue with him about this, so she shrugged it off. This wasn't what she came here for, anyway.

– Chapter 102 Nina Doesn't Deserve John "Which family is Nina from? How about her family background?"

The principal's eyes narrowed as he thought about Sam's words. "Nina is just a villager in a fishing village near Spring City. She has no parents and she is an orphan."

“What? A country girl from a fishing village? I thought she was from a rich family. I didn’t expect her to be a country girl.”

If that was the case, then Nina didn’t deserve John at all!

Before knowing this information, she had thought that if Nina was from a good family, then she would consider her despite her dangerous job.

Now it seemed like it was Vivian who was more deserving. 15

“Do you know that she got married? And who her husband is? I can’t find it out.”

“It’s impossible for me to know something that you don’t.” The truth was, he was even shocked to know that Nina was married.

– Chapter 102 Nina Doesn’t Deserve John – But then again, there was no rule in the university that marriage was not allowed, so he shrugged it off.

Unable to get the answer she wanted, Jessica stood up angrily and left without saying a word.

Since she couldn’t get the answer she wanted from others, she would see Nina in person. 18

Deep Affection: Honey, Come Back To Me Chapter 103

/ Deep Affection: Honey, Come Back To Me
Deep Affection: Honey, Come Back To Me

Chapter 103 Take One Million And

Leave Him

As soon as she got Nina’s schedule and found out that she had a class this afternoon, Jessica left right away to see her. At the same time, she asked Yvonne to investigate Nina’s reputation and report to her immediately.

Meanwhile, Nina looked listless the whole day since she had suffered a lot because of the Tibetan Mastiff and lemons John had given her this morning.

Unexpectedly, it was also the dog which she feared that helped her feel better.

Nine barked, and Nina got so frightened that she automatically took a small step back. Nine was indeed a beautiful white dog. That was why it easily attracted people who were fond of dogs. "Wow, it's so cute. May I touch it?"

– Chapter 103 Take

One Million And Leave Him "Help yourself, please." In fact, Nina was hoping that the dog would be taken away from her. If only she could give it to someone else, she would. In that way, her heart would finally calm down. 7

Nine barked aggressively at the stranger, as if it would bite her if she touched it. Left without a choice, the girl withdrew her hand.

With an awkward smile, Nina said, "It barks at everyone." Nine quietly came to Nina's feet and crouched down obediently. Its fluffy tail wagged gently as if it was trying to please her.

Nina felt uncomfortable, so she took two steps aside.

When Nine followed her again, she said, "Nine, could you stay away from me?" The dog was docile to her, but Nina still couldn't help but be scared when it was near. After all, no matter how agile she was, she couldn't dodge it if it suddenly bit her at this distance.

– Chapter 103 Take One Million And Leave Him Nine stood up and walked away like an obedient dog. It stopped a few steps away and sat down in front of her. Its mouth was slightly opened as it gently breathed while looking at her.

It looked pitiful with its drooping ears, and Nina somehow saw herself in it.

With a sigh, Nina called,

"Nine..."

Nine stood up excitedly, as if being called by Nina gave it energy.

“Are you happy that I called you?” Nine barked twice and wagged its floppy tail harder as a response to her.

At this moment, Nina admitted that her dog was really cute.

Therefore, she tried her best to accept it.

The truth was, she was scared as she walked closer to Nine, so she stopped when she was only half a meter away from it. Then she took a few steps more until she was already standing right beside it.

– Chapter 103 Take One Million And Leave Him She didn’t realize that she was holding her breath until she felt the need to breathe. It took her a lot of courage to get this close to Nine, so she felt proud of herself.

This was enough for now. Next time, she would try to touch its head. Nine was so excited that it barked again. On the contrary, Nina felt scared so she jumped aside.

But when its ears drooped, she stood beside it again and then they slowly walked out of the campus.

A woman in a high ponytail and leather clothes stood in front of Nina as soon as they got outside the campus. “Miss Lu, this way please.”

Following her gaze, Nina found a woman sitting in a luxury car and looking at her.

‘John’s sister?’

This was actually not the first time she had seen Jessica. When she first encountered her, Vivian and Jessica were together, which made her assume that the two were very close to each other.

– Chapter 103 Take One Million And Leave Him

The longer she stared at her, the more she realized how beautiful Jessica was. Maybe because they shared the same genes that Jessica looked like the female version of John.

Since it was John’s elder sister who had invited her, Nina didn’t mind meeting her. “Nine, let’s go.” In the end, they went to a nearby cafe. The two women sat opposite to each other. Looking at Jessica, Nina remembered the scene where John was sitting in front of her, taking a drag on his cigarette. Her train of thought was cut when the waiter served two cups of hot coffee on the table. "Nina, let me introduce myself. My name is Jessica Shi and I'm John's sister." As she spoke, Jessica took her coffee and put two spoons of sugar in it. While she was doing this, Nina took the opportunity to observe the way she dressed and the way she drank her coffee. It seemed – Chapter 103 Take One Million And Leave Him like she was a woman of high standards and loved only good things in life.

She had good taste and didn't like ordinary things.

Based on her observation, Nina concluded that Jessica looked down upon her. "Ms. Shi, what can I do for you?" Since Jessica looked down upon Nina, Nina didn't pay much respect to her either.

Moreover, Nina guessed that Jessica came here to pay her in exchange of leaving John. "Cut the crap. Take this one million and stay away from John." As if on cue, Yvonne slid a check in front of Nina.

'Look, she's really here to give me money.' In her mind, Nina was already laughing. She didn't even bother to look at the check and just stared straight into Jessica's eyes. After all, she casually bought a car worth about two million. One million was nothing to her. 7

If she accepted the money, John would think that she was only worth one million

– Chapter 103 Take One Million And Leave Him and make her compensate twenty million.

"One million is not enough. Give me twenty million." Nina's eyes sparkled with expectation.

If Jessica paid her twenty million, she would move out of North Yard and then compensate her secret husband with the twenty million. Finally, she could divorce her husband and regain her freedom. What a splendid plan it was! However, the excitement in her eyes disappeared when a scornful smile appeared on Jessica's face. She took a sip on her coffee and looked at her in disgust. "Sure enough, you only stay with John for money."

In the past two years, Nina had learned to face this kind of misunderstanding and insult with an indifferent attitude.

Because if she took it seriously, she would be living a miserable life.

After a short pause, Nina said, "You can say that." There was nothing wrong with what – Chapter 103 Take One Million And Leave Him Jessica said. She was indeed staying with John because of money. However, it was not like how Jessica thought it was. It was because John was threatening her about the twenty million dollars compensation. "You are honest. But you're asking for an exorbitant price. One million is enough. It's ridiculous to ask for twenty million." There was a knife hidden in Jessica's smile. She tightened her grip on the cup and snorted in contempt. "You are a married woman and you even sell your body to earn money. Ten thousand is enough for you, but I'm giving you much more. You should be grateful."

After she learned about what happened on the campus forum, Jessica now looked at Nina as if she was a woman who was no longer pure.

Hearing these words made Nina angry. She had been trying to be patient with John's sister, but what she had said really provoked her.

In a clear and domineering voice she said,

– Chapter 103 Take One Million And Leave Him "Ms. Shi, please be careful with your words. You are a well-educated lady from a noble family. At least you should have the ability to make a basic judgment and distinguish what is right and what is wrong."

"How dare you lecture me?" In an instant, Jessica lost her poise and got furious. No one dared to lecture her since she was a child. Even her famous brother was obedient to her. 7

How dare a girl from the countryside teach her how to be a person?!13

“How dare you!”

Out of rage, Jessica picked up the cup of coffee and poured it on Nina. But Nina was quick to react, so she perfectly avoided it.

Therefore, the coffee spilt on the floor. Looking at the shocked expressions of Jessica and Yvonne, she stood up with a smile on her face.

Standing two meters away from Jessica, Nina deliberately said, “Even if you give me twenty million, I won’t leave. What I want is

– Chapter 103 Take One Million And Leave Him

all his assets.”⁵⁶

Deep Affection: Honey, Come Back To Me Chapter 104

/ Deep Affection: Honey, Come Back To Me

Deep Affection: Honey, Come Back To Me

Chapter 104 Get Upset

Jessica cursed in her head, ‘How dare this woman want to take away all the assets of the Shi family?!

As long as I’m alive, she won’t succeed.’ “It’s just a wishful thinking. I’ve recorded what you said. Once I give it to John, you’ll have to get out of the North Yard.” With a smug look on her face, Jessica showed her the phone which as still recording.

This was not enough to scare Nina. Her expression didn’t change at all.

But in Jessica’s eyes, Nina was afraid. She arrogantly leaned closer to Nina and mocked her. “John only like you because of your beauty, but it won’t last long. He will soon be engaged to Vivian. She’s from the Ye family. You’re just a country girl, married and have lost your virginity. You don’t deserve him.

Besides, they have known each other since – Chapter 104 Get Upset childhood. Vivian knows what he likes and what he dislikes. She has been the only woman who stays by his side all these years. You have just known him for a short time. What do you know about him? Do you know his preferences? I think you know nothing about him.

I know him well. He'll dump you sooner or later."

Then she threw the check on Nina and turned around to leave. Nina stood there in a daze, not knowing which part of Jessica's speech made her feel dejected.

Maybe it was the part when Jessica said that they had only known each other for just a short time.

As if she was shrouded in a huge shadow, Nina felt really downhearted. Someone pushed the door open and walked out of the cafe, so Nine took this opportunity to get inside.

– Chapter 104 Get Upset When it passed by Jessica, Nine showed its fangs and aggressively barked at her. Instinctively, Yvonne kicked Nine to protect Jessica. 14

Poor Nine fell on the floor, and whined indicating it was hurt.

As soon as she heard it, Nina turned her head to its direction and saw her dog stand up and open its mouth to bite Yvonne. 2 "Whose dog is it?" Jessica roared.

"Nine..." Nina had forgotten her fear of dogs and ran towards her dog. She squatted in front of it, held it in her arms and rubbed its head.

It was given to her by John.

In a cold voice, Jessica said, "The two of you are both ungrateful!" Nina turned a deaf ear and checked Nine's body instead. "Nine, are you okay? Does it hurt?" When she made sure that it was not badly hurt, she breathed a sigh of relief. "You kicked Nine, didn't you?" Casting a cold glance at Yvonne, Nina stood up and gave her a side kick.

– Chapter 104 Get Upset

In the blink of an eye, Yvonne raised her arm to block Nina's foot. However, Yvonne didn't expect that she had used so much force that her arm ached.

After withdrawing her right foot, Nina deliberately looked at Yvonne's belly to mislead her and then kicked the back of her knee.

Groaning in pain, Yvonne knelt down on her left knee. 2

Her furious eyes turned to Nina. Nina sneered.

"You..."

Before she could finish her words, Nina interrupted her angrily. "What? You didn't expect that?" Her gaze slowly left Yvonne's body and landed on Jessica's slightly pale face.

Shock was written all over Jessica's face. She trembled in fear when she saw how Nina easily made a skilled bodyguard kneel – Chapter 104 Get Upset on the floor.

"Nine, let's go." Afraid that Nina would attack her too, Jessica unconsciously took a step back when Nina brushed past her.

It was not until they left that Jessica recovered from the shock. She let go of the breath she didn't know she was holding. That woman was pretty barbaric! 2

Coincidentally, Richard came to look for Nina as soon as she left the cafe.

So, he didn't see Nina and met Jessica and Yvonne instead.

"Richard?" Yvonne was surprised to meet Richard. The two of them and the other bodyguards had been guarding different members of the Shi family, which made it impossible for them to meet.

They were all orphans saved by the Shi family and had been given the surname Zhan. They practiced martial arts to protect the members of the Shi family and worked as their bodyguards.

"Ms. Shi," Richard greeted Jessica politely.

– Chapter 104 Get Upset "Why are you here?"

“We...”

In a hurry, Jessica stopped Yvonne. “We came here to have coffee.” If they told him the truth, it would surely reach John, and Jessica didn’t want that to happen. “Why are you here without John?”

“Mr. Shi asked me to take Mrs. Shi back to the North Yard.” Without any intention to hide the truth, he looked around the cafe.

This was the location shown on the tracker, but he couldn’t see Nina.

So, he took out his phone and looked at it, only to find that the red dot was moving again. Meaning to say, Nina had gone somewhere else.

After giving the two a nod, Richard turned around and left.

The tracker hung around Nine’s neck, so he just needed to follow it.

Nina was walking on the street with the dog, and she looked particularly lonely among the crowd.

– Chapter 104 Get Upset

She didn’t know what was wrong with her.

Nevertheless, she was bothered by what Jessica had said, especially the fact that John had grown up with Vivian and that she was the only woman by his side.

It felt like someone took away her belonging. With a sigh, she stopped in front of a clothing shop, not knowing where to go.

“If only Mimi was here now...” Nina murmured. If Michelle were here, she would be able to cheer her up.

She missed Michelle and the food she made.

Unfortunately, she couldn’t get in touch with Michelle now.

"Aunt Nina?" To her surprise, James appeared with his hands in his pockets.

"Holy moly!" Nina was frightened by James' sudden appearance.

– Chapter 104 Get Upset Just a while ago, she felt so boring. Now James, the one who always made her laugh, was already standing in front of her. "Aunt Nina, did I scare you? I'm sorry!" James apologized, scratching the back of his head.

Seeing his reaction, Nina burst into laughter. Although Michelle was not here, James was also quite interesting and could cheer her up. "Don't worry! I'm okay." Holding back her laughter, Nina felt less gloomy.

'What's wrong?'

James felt there was something wrong with

Nina.

'Forget about it.' "What are you doing here alone?" When he looked around and didn't see John, he was surprised.

'Since Michelle wasn't here, shouldn't Uncle

John stay with Aunt Nina all the time?' Nine barked as if it was protesting. It was – Chapter 104 Get Upset like it was saying Nina was not alone.

"Oh! Where did you get this dog? It scares me!" James jumped aside when he saw a Tibetan Mastiff behind Nina. The first thing he noticed was its snow-white fur which looked comfortable.

"It has a name. It's Nine." Although it seemed like she was not too afraid of dogs anymore, she still didn't dare to get too close. 1 Back in the cafe, she impulsively hugged the dog, afraid it was hurt. But now that she thought about it, she couldn't help be a little scared.

"Okay, okay, Nine." However, James didn't care about the Tibetan Mastiff at all. Instead, he looked at Nina's depressed face and asked, "Aunt Nina, did you quarrel with Uncle John?"

“No. I’m just in a bad mood.” Shaking her head, Nina pursed her lips before she asked, “Do you know how to become happy? I used to beat people up when I was in a bad mood, but you don’t look like you

10

Deep Affection: Honey, Come Back To Me Chapter 105

/ Deep Affection: Honey, Come Back To Me

Chapter 105 1 Like John

The corners of James’ mouth twitched and his eyes widened in shock. He thought Nina was too violent, and he instinctively took a step back.

How did John win Nina’s heart?

With his hands raised in the air, James pleaded, “Don’t beat me. Uncle John is cruel enough to me. Please have mercy on me.” A sudden idea came up in his mind so he dropped his hands and smiled. ‘

As he thought about bringing her to his secret base, James wiggled his eyebrows at her. “Aunt Nina, I really know a way to make you happy. ”

Flickering lights and deafening music welcomed them when they entered a small bar which was open day and night.

There were five men and two women in the bar. They were all James’ friends. Yes. This was the idea James had thought of.

When Nina appeared, the noisy bar instantly

Chapter 105 1 Like John

quieted down. All of them turned their heads to look at the door, as if they had found something very important.@

"Isn't she the campus belle?"

"When did James win the heart of campus belle?"

"No, no, no. That's not the point. The point is what James said before."

1 1 Yes.

He said that if he brings a girl to our secret base one day, it means that he has made a proposal!" Everyone was in disbelief.

They knew James as a guy who always changed girlfriends.

But now, James had finally proposed to a woman!(i)

'Oh my God!'

There was a commotion in the bar. A boy in a black hat squeezed out of the crowd and asked,

Chapter 105 1 Like John

"Nina, did you say yes to James' proposal?" 'What?'

Confused, Nina turned to look at James; silently asking for an explanation. Otherwise, she would beat him up.

"Go away! Haley, what are you talking about? She's my... Ah..."

Seeing the uncertainty on his face, Nina stepped on his foot and continued, "Senior. I'm his senior schoolmate."

As soon as he got Nina's warning, James immediately corrected himself. "Yes, yes, my senior schoolmate. We're kind of close."

Obviously not believing it, Haley He clicked his tongue. After all, they all noticed the warning look from the campus belle just now.

"James, don't try to conceal the fact. You said that the woman you will bring here is your fiancée. All of us have promised that we will only bring our beloved here."@

"You are right. I think so too," another girl echoed.

Chapter 105 1 Like John

“Nina, did you say yes to James’ proposal?” ‘What?’

Confused, Nina turned to look at James; silently asking for an explanation. Otherwise, she would beat him up.

‘I GO away! Haley, what are you talking about? She’s my... Ah...’

Seeing the uncertainty on his face, Nina stepped on his foot and continued, “Senior. I’m his senior schoolmate.”

As soon as he got Nina’s warning, James immediately corrected himself. “Yes, yes, my senior schoolmate. We’re kind of close.”

Obviously not believing it, Haley He clicked his tongue. After all, they all noticed the warning look from the campus belle just now.

“James, don’t try to conceal the fact. You said that the woman you will bring here is your fiancée. All of us have promised that we will only bring our beloved here.”@

“You are right. I think so too,” another girl echoed.

Chapter 105 1 Like John

Everyone nodded their head and looked at one another. “We all think so.”

But James didn’t bother to explain and just waved his hand. “Believe whatever you want to believe in. Go and get some bottles of wine. The strongest ones I’ve collected.”

Soon enough, there were already a lot of liquors on the table. In addition to the bottles that James had asked to be taken out, there were several more bottles on the table. A group of people sat on the sofa, and Nina sat in the middle next to James.

“Is this how you make people feel better?” It was hard for Nina to believe it.

"Campus belle, I know you've never tried drinking but alcohol can dispel sorrow. Come on, let me open a bottle for you." Haley He smiled brightly and opened a bottle of wine.@

Then he poured Nina a glass of wine and pushed it in front of her. "Come on, have a drink. James cherished this wine very much. This is the first time he took this out. We can only smell it in normal times."

"Well, you can only smell it now." The reason why James took it out was to please Nina. In this way, he could please John too. Then he could have whatever good wine he wanted in the future.

Chapter 105 1 Like John

No sacrifice, no gain.

These bottles of wine might be exchanged by boxes of wine. 14

In his mind, he was already calculating the number of wine he would get one day. So, he opened the remaining bottles and poured them into the glasses. "Drink them slowly. I promise you will be in a good mood after drinking them."

On her first sip, Nina thought it was indeed a good wine. It tasted spicy first and then sweet after sliding into her throat.

She had already tried various types of wine, so she knew it was the best.

In the past, she hadn't drunk much. She had been drunk once in C Island, but because of the terrible situation after, she didn't drink too much again.

The first time she drank too much in Lexingport City was for three hundred million project funds. When she woke up the next day, she was indeed in a better mood. It seemed that the wine was useful.(j)

Chapter 105 1 Like John

Upon remembering this, Nina decided to enjoy. "Let's drink together. Where's the fun in drinking alone?"

This made the people in the bar excited. Haley He was the first one to pick up a glass. "That's right. Come on, let's drink together. The campus belle said

Since it was Nina who urged them to drink, James had no complaints at all.

"Come on, cheers!" Everyone raised their glass to celebrate.

The people were singing and dancing with glasses in their hands. They laughed as they clinked their glasses, and wine bottles were everywhere.

Nine obediently lay on Nina's feet, guarding its master who was lying on the sofa in a daze.

Despite her flushed face, the sadness was still evident on Nina's face.

1 Like John

While James was drinking and having fun with the others, she was pouting in the corner.

Haley He, who was sitting aside and watching them play, inadvertently saw the sadness on her face. He scooted closer and clinked his glass on Nina's. "What's wrong, campus belle?"

After a few seconds of thinking, Nina sat up straight. "I don't know what's wrong with me, but I'm very sad."

"There must be a reason for your sadness,

"I don't know the exact reason. But someone told me that this particular man is going to be engaged to another woman. She pointed out that I had just known him for a short time, and our relationship was not as good as the woman who was going to be engaged to him. That woman is his childhood friend, and the only woman around him."

Obviously, the man he was talking about was John. She didn't know why, but what Jessica had said bothered her so much.

As she spoke, Nina's eyes became moist.@

Chapter 105 1 Like John

Seeing the melancholy in her eyes, Haley understood it immediately. "So you are dumped?"

Did James get engaged to other woman?

Nina looked so sad.(S)

"What? No! I'm not even in love." With a suspicious look on Nina's face, she turned to look at Haley. "I don't love anyone."

"You say you don't love anyone?" What Nina said almost took Haley by surprise. How come she didn't have anyone she liked when she looked so jealous?

"Don't you know what love is?" At this moment, Haley wanted to slap himself. No one didn't know what love was.(6)

However, Nina really didn't understand the meaning of it.

"What's the meaning of love?"

Stunned, Haley stared at her for a few seconds before he carefully explained, "You love someone now. And because you love him, you got jealous of the woman you've mentioned. You are also sad because that woman isn't you."

1 Like John

With these words, Nina narrowed her eyes. It was as if she could see John and Vivian standing side by side.

Yes!

She was jealous.

As soon as she heard that he would be engaged to Vivian, she felt downhearted. Thinking that Vivian had always been with John, she felt jealous and sad.

“Hmm. It turns out that I love John.” Under the influence of alcohol, Nina finally understood what she was thinking and admitted that she loved John. @

Deep Affection: Honey, Come Back To Me Chapter 106

/ Deep Affection: Honey, Come Back To Me
Deep Affection: Honey, Come Back To Me

Chapter 106 You Are Cuckolded

What did she just say?

Who did she love?

John?

Gosh! Nina loved John!

Surprised with this sudden news, Haley slipped down from the sofa and the wine in his throat choked him.

“Ahem...” He was banging his chest as he coughed. To say he was shocked was an understatement. How could Nina like John? Wiping the wine from the corner of his mouth, Haley got up quickly. “James! James, come here quickly. Something serious has happened!”

Terrified, he ran towards James and pointed at Nina who just picked up the third glass of wine. “James, you are cuckolded!”

“What the hell are you talking about?” James gave Haley a slap on his head, making his hat fall and reveal his new haircut.

“It’s true! I just heard it with my own ears. Nina doesn’t love you but your uncle John!” Until now, Haley still thought that Nina was James’ girlfriend.

Everyone in the bar thought so. They seemed to have heard something shocking and stopped what they had been doing.

It was so quiet that only the sound of the slow music could be heard.

When he heard Haley's panicking voice, James thought that something bad had happened. He rolled his eyes and slapped Haley again on the head. Haley staggered, but fortunately, someone helped him up.

"Of course, she loves Uncle John. She is my aunt."

The others stared at James in disbelief and then looked at Nina, who was sitting on the sofa.

"What did I just hear? She is James' aunt?" Sheila raised her hand to touch her forehead. She was so surprised that she fainted.

Another girl immediately held Sheila, whose body was slightly trembling too. "Nina is really a brave girl. Two years ago, my uncle told me that someone sent a woman to John, and that woman lost one of her hands, while the person who sent her lost one of his feet."

The boys felt sorry for the woman. They thought John had been too cruel to her.

"What are you talking about? Uncle John is very kind to Aunt Nina." If it wasn't for John's sake, James would have told them what Nina had done to John.

He could go talk about it for days, and his friends would probably be amazed.

While they were arguing, Nina was still drinking.

After drinking up the third glass of wine, she was completely drunk.

"Stop talking. Nina is already drunk. What should we do?" Everyone looked at the drunk Nina.

"How much did she drink?" They all looked at the bottles of wine on the table.

Most of them were drunk by then, and two thirds of the wine was unconsumed.

Haley stretched out his hand and showed a number. "Three glasses. I saw Nina drink three glasses of wine."

Once again, they turned to look at each other when they heard what Haley said. They were speechless.

None of them had been drunk after having just three glasses of wine.

"It's not good for her to be drunk here. I'd better send her home."

The boys nodded at him in agreement. "I think that's a great idea."

Nine stood up in front of Nina, glaring at them.

The moment Sheila came back to her senses, the first thing she had noticed was Nine's hostility. "Hey, hey, wait a minute. Look at that dog. You guys deal with it first!"

It was a Tibetan Mastiff, not a docile pet dog.

Everyone looked worried and afraid that they would get bitten by this dog.

Unexpectedly, James tried to charm Nine by showing his handsomeness. "Nine, we have to bring her home. Can you go away first? You can play with her later."

Haley said, "It's male."

In the end, Sheila and another girl tried to coax Nine. It took them great efforts to make Nine take a few steps away.

At this moment, Nina felt a buzzing sound in her ears and her head ached because of the noise.

"Aunt Nina, let me bring you to Uncle John's house." Then James reached out his hands to help her up.

As soon as he put his hand on her shoulder, Nina's eyes snapped open with a terrifying look. She stared at him, making his heart tremble. If it wasn't for her red face, he would have suspected that she wasn't drunk.

It seemed that she was on guard against a bad guy.

It was so scary!

“Aunt Nina, l...”

Before he could even finish his words, Nina stood up and grabbed both of his arms. Her knee was against the back of his, which weakened his legs and made him get down on his knees. He was caught and tightly clamped with his hands on his back.

His knees hurt and his arms felt as they were being torn apart.

It was too painful that he cried out of pain.

“What are you doing? It’s me! James!”

“Shut up!” However, Nina seemed not to understand him. She pressed down on him, making him lie on his stomach.

“Aunt Nina! Let go of me! It really hurts. Help me!” No matter how furious James was, he couldn’t get rid of Nina. He could only try hard not to let his face touch the floor.

“Oh my God! What’s going on?” The boys were frightened and they stayed away from Nina. The girls who had just coaxed Nine into going to the door turned around and saw what was happening. They were so scared that they walked out at once.

They didn’t expect that Nina would hit someone when she was drunk.

“James, are you okay?”

“Not good at all. Come and help me! Help me get rid of her.”

“You’re right. Hurry up and take some tools.” Haley took an empty bottle but he didn’t dare to hit Nina.

The others got a trash can, a wine glass, a broom and so on.

“Humph!” Nina’s sharp eyes looked around and she shook off James’ hands hard when she saw them holding weapons.

“It hurts!” It took a while for James to get up.

Before he knew it, his friends had already started to control Nina.

With his one hand on his waist, James patted the dust off and warned without looking at them, “Be careful. If you hurt my aunt, my uncle will take revenge.”

Silence filled the room. James thought they had beaten Nina so he turned around in panic, only to be dumbfounded.

The five boys all fell on the floor, with their swollen faces and teary eyes.

All Of them were defeated.

“James...” The miserable cry of help made James unable to look straight at them.

Compared to what happened to them, James realized that Nina had showed mercy on him.

On the other hand, Nina was sitting on the floor safe and sound, with her left leg straightened and her right leg bent in the shape of a bow. Her upper body was slightly tilted and her head was resting on her knee. Although her messy hair covered almost her whole face, it could be seen that she was half asleep.

This was the scene that John witnessed. She had been drunk and hit some people.

It was so funny.

Deep Affection: Honey, Come Back To Me Chapter 107

/ Deep Affection: Honey, Come Back To Me
Deep Affection: Honey, Come Back To Me

Chapter 107 A Good Girl

“Uncle John, thank God! You are finally James said with relief. Holding his aching body, he slowly limped over.

The boys had all been beaten by Nina. To make matters worse, they were not even able to fight back.

Before this incident, he had suspected that John was too weak.

But now, he realized that John was not weak at all. The last time when Nina was drunk, he saw that John was safe and sound on the second day.

“Uncle John, please take Aunt Nina back with you as soon as possible. Look at what she has done to us. And don’t forget to pay for our medical fees,” James whined, feeling that his right arm had been dislocated. Even a slight swing of his arm would cause him immense pain.

John looked at the forlorn girl on the floor. Finally, he felt relaxed, and the cold stone in his heart slowly melted.

Since the last kidnapping incident, whenever Nina went to a place aside from the university and the North Yard, he would incessantly worry about her safety. He feared something terrible might happen to her.

Therefore, he sent Nine to follow her wherever she went. He specially placed a tracker on its collar in order to track Nina’s location with ease and convenience.

On the way here, John had been constantly worried about her safety. To his surprise, he didn’t expect that the boys would be beaten up by Nina instead.

Out of the five, three of them couldn’t move and were lying on the floor in pain. Most probably, their arms and legs had been injured or broken. The other remaining two curled up in pain with their hands on their stomach. It seemed that they suffered a hard kick on their stomach.

“She is a good girl when she is drunk. She never hit others,” John said calmly, with tenderness flowing in his eyes, just like the light yellow light on the ceiling. A warm light shone on Nina, making her beautiful face look flushed.

The corners of James’ mouth twitched in disbelief and he thought, ‘How could Uncle John say that Aunt Nina is a good girl when she gets drunk? And that she has never hit others?’

Even if John wanted to protect Nina, he should not tell an outright lie to cover up for her.

After all, his friends were still lying on the floor!

Even Richard, who had always been indifferent, couldn't help but turn his head with awe. A trace of surprise flashed across his eyes.

In fact, John really didn't say anything wrong. Last time when Nina got drunk, she was indeed very obedient and docile. She hid herself in his arms, purring like a sweet cat, and even cried her heart out.

It seemed that the little girl treated him differently than how she normally treated others.

This realization made John exceedingly delighted. He turned his head heedlessly, and said without hesitation, "You guys just tripped and fell on the floor by yourselves. How can you blame it on my wife?"

Just a while ago, James was beaten by Nina. Right after, he watched his friends being beaten up. And now, his uncle still had the guts to talk nonsense in a serious manner.

James seemed to be a little unsteady in his steps. A cold sneer came out of his nose. "Humph."

"You seem to be dissatisfied with my words," John challenged.

"No, no, I'm not," James denied as he shook his head.

"Good. Richard, send them to the hospital," John ordered.

It turned out that John still had a heart and was not inhuman after all.

"All the expenses incurred today will be deducted from James' living expenses."

Upon hearing John's spiteful words, James silently cursed John in his heart.

He was truly so heartless!

With one man on his shoulder, another one under his armpit, and the last one in his hand, the three unconscious men were carried by Richard effortlessly. The one who didn't faint was supported by James, and the other one was held by the two girls. Together, they all left the bar.

After everyone had left, the bar did not become empty and quiet as expected. Rather, a soothing and romantic song entitled "I l-over" could be heard in the background.

John carefully approached Nina step by step. He squatted down before her, and tenderly gazed at her in silence. She became very obedient after getting herself drunk.

A faint smell of alcohol could be smelled on Nina's body. Orange warm light was falling on the floor, and the whole bar was enveloped in an atmosphere of sweet warmth and tranquility.

"Little girl," John softly called out. He had always called her little girl. This name was how he had pictured Nina to be.

He fervently hoped that she could be more lively and witty like a normal girl. He prayed that she could be as obedient as a child, and willingly stay with him in the North Yard.

However, this little girl always went against him and contradicted his every move.

But in a way, it was also quite good. He would not find being with her so boring.

"Urn..." Nina mumbled. Not only was she particularly sensitive to the voice of John, but she was also attuned to the unique fragrance mixed with the smell of tobacco from his body. Furthermore, she found it alluring especially when he called her little Whenever Nina heard it, she instantly knew without an ounce of doubt who was calling her.

Nina had not yet opened her eyes and only moved her lips. As a result of the alcohol, only a handsome face registered in her dazed, drunken mind. The gaze of John was alternately cold and gentle at times.

In a trance, Nina felt something cold touching her lips tenderly.

"John," she muttered. The sound of her voice was somewhat intermittent. The grievance and emotion she had kept hidden at the bottom of her heart finally seemed to drown Nina.

"John Shi."

She called him in a soft voice. John's finger, which was gently caressing the corner of her mouth, paused and slowly retracted his hand.

John had heard somewhere that when someone called a person's full name, it was as if the person wanted to get to know the other person wholly.

He didn't know if Nina had the same thought, but he clearly knew that he had every intention of possessing her.

"Nina Lu." This was the second time that John had called her by her full name. The first time he called her full name was when she was about to be insulted. This time, he had called her gently and lovingly while she was drunk and sleepy.

When Nina heard John calling her softly, she tried to open her eyes. Her blurred eyes stared at John, and she thought she was seeing an illusion.

John longingly stared at Nina and was deeply lost in thought. He couldn't help but to tuck her hair behind her ear tenderly.

Nina subconsciously moved her head and faintly rubbed her small face in the broad palm of John.

Thinking of what Jessica had said today, Nina pursed her lips with annoyance and looked at John in an aggrieved manner. She kept her mouth shut and did not say anything.

John's heart softened at Nina's appearance.

He wondered if he had gone too far this morning. He knew that she was scared of dogs, so he sent Nina to follow her around. She was so scared when she saw Nina earlier, and jumped up and down in fear at the North Yard.

Added to that, he even threatened her to eat two plates of lemons, which made her face wrinkle in sour.

Thinking about how he had shamelessly punished Nina, he felt a little regretful for what he had done.

"Have I known you 20 seconds or 20 years?" Nina randomly blurted out an English sentence. Hearing her charming voice, John's throat tightened involuntarily.

After listening carefully, he realized that this sentence was part of the lyrics of the song "Lover."

Before John could open his mouth, Nina continued, "Have I known you 20 seconds or 20 years? How long have we really known each other?"

Nina was still mad at Jessica's words. She told Nina that John and Nina had known each other for a very short period of time, whereas John and Jessica had known each other since they were little. She leaned over and kissed the corner of John's mouth.

"John, I'm jealous." 48

Deep Affection: Honey, Come Back To Me Chapter 108

/ Deep Affection: Honey, Come Back To Me
Deep Affection: Honey, Come Back To Me

Chapter 108 Why Are You Jealous

John could feel the warmth of Nina's sweet lips and clearly see himself in her tantalizing eyes. He pursed his lips with admiration and thought how enchanting she was.

Previously, he had secretly kissed her several times already.

However, when he did so, he didn't have the same feelings he had for Nina as he did now. At the moment, his heart was beating erratically, and his ears turned red.

It turned out that the feeling of being kissed by Nina could make him feel better.

In the future, it seemed to be a good idea to make Nina take the initiative.

"You are jealous? Why?" John inquired knowingly, with expectation in his eyes. Once again, he dotingly pinched Nina on her face.

Her face was still soft and tender like that of a baby, and it made him love pinching her face so much.

“Hey, don’t pinch me!” Every time Nina was drunk, she would become a completely different person. In her sober state, she was usually arrogant, but right now, she was extremely cute and adoring.

Her soft voice, bulging red cheeks and pouting lips were showing her feminine, coquettish side.

“Tell me, why are you jealous?” John prodded as he let go of her small face and patiently waited for her answer.

Nina sat cross-legged on the floor like an insolent child, and angrily turned her head away. She refused to say anything and kept her mouth shut.

Her stubborn look made John annoyed and amused at the same time. Was it really so difficult for her to admit that she loved him?

She had sent him 5200 dollars, but she was still pretending to be aloof and indifferent.

Lately, she had learned how to lie to him, and now she had also learned not to answer his question.

He thought he should do something to this 108 little liar.

get going now,” John threatened. He stood up and looked very serious. He glanced at Nina intentionally, and pretended to be distant. He feared that he would miss one of her expressions unintentionally.

“No way! You can’t leave!” Nina shouted. Still sitting on the floor, she leaned forward and held onto his leg with all her strength. Like an adorable puppy, she slowly rubbed her head against his leg.

“Vivian is your childhood sweetheart. I’m jealous. She even called you Brother John. I’m jealous. To top it all, your sister said that you are going to get engaged to Vivian. I am so jealous.”

She was so eaten up with bitter jealousy.

John couldn’t help but smile with accomplishment. The enchanting light of the colorful lights hanging on the ceiling sprinkled on the two of them like glitters.

Nina hugged his leg tighter, and uttered a threat out of her drunken stupor.

"You have said before that you don't like her. You told me that she isn't your fiancée."

"Why are you jealous?" John continued to question Nina. He wouldn't stop until he got the answer that he wanted. Since she was drunk, he would make her say what he wanted at all costs.

Nina frowned in reverie and kept silent.

John didn't believe that an extraordinary man like him wouldn't be able to handle his wife.

His sharp eyes fell on the wine glass on the table. He slowly dragged his feet, and pulled her a little away, as if she was a small encumbrance on his leg.

He put his hand on his forehead helplessly, and couldn't help laughing at their posture. He could only bend down a little, and stretch his long arm to the table. Then, he poured another glass of wine and handed it to Nina with mischief on his mind.

"Here, drink some water." The glass came close to Nina's luscious red lips.

Nina's head was a little dizzy from her alcohol intake, and her body was feeling slightly hot. The coldness from the corner of the glass made her feel a little comfortable. With the attractive voice of John coaxing her to drink, she was fooled in a second.

108

She opened her mouth a little, and he poured the wine slowly but surely. His action was very light, afraid of choking her. Through and through, he was gentle and cunning like a fox.

After slowly drinking half a glass of wine, Nina raised her head with slightly narrowed eyes. She frowned in annoyance and protested, "This is not water."

"Really? Is it not?" Feigning a slight surprise, John picked up the glass, and took a small sip. "I really thought it was water," he said as if nothing had happened.

Nina groaned feebly. Now, she was even more drunk than before, and she wanted to do nothing but get a good sleep.

But how could John let her go to sleep before he heard what he wanted to hear? He squatted down and held Nina's lithe body, coaxing her into admittance.

"Tell me honestly, why are you jealous? You have been loving me for a long time now, haven't you?"

John's eyes and voice were really seductive. Nina couldn't help herself but give in to his seduction. She nodded obediently, and truthfully answered, "If love is the reason for my jealousy, then I love you, John."

When she spoke out his name, Nina felt a trace of calming sweetness in her heart. It was as if a beam of light shone on her boring everyday life, and a pair of powerful hands pulled her out of the lonely, melancholic world.

"What a brave girl!" John said triumphantly. With a dotting smile, he gently lifted up Nina and held her in his arms.

His chest was comfortably warm. Nina rubbed herself in and assuredly rested her head on his shoulder.

"Let's go home." She bashfully moved her body a little, and her eyes were half closed and half opened.

Nina snugly nestled herself in John's arms, and she looked like a little girl, indeed, No wonder, he always liked to call her little girl.

He really loved her.

The bar was strategically located in a remote and quiet secluded place, with its back against a small park. There was a narrow path in front of it and it was about ten meters away from the other buildings. It was a small house separated from other houses, and was only over a hundred square meters, but it housed the youth of James and his friends.

When John walked out carrying Nina in his arms, it began to rain. Richard opened an umbrella with haste and walked over. Nina followed them obediently.

“Hold on, wait a minute.” John had barely taken two steps when Nina suddenly spoke. She turned around, and mischievously stared at the small bar. While biting her red lips in contemplation, she smirked dangerously.

“Put me down. Put me down now. I want to have fun,” Nina mumbled coquettishly, while swinging her long, slender and straight legs.

John was left with no choice but to put her down.

After putting her down, Nina’s footsteps became unsteady and she could not stand upright. She help his arm with one hand, and clumsily fumbled in his pocket with the other. She only smiled after she took out the lighter from John’s pocket.

However, her smile did not only look dangerous, but it was also indescribably weird at the same time.

The next morning, it was still raining.

When Nina opened her eyes, she saw thousands of thin droplets rippling in the air outside the window. Some of them slid through the glass window, and it was just like the scene of meteor shower at night.

“It’s raining,” Nina softly murmured with her head sideways, her eyes soft and her voice lazy.

“Yes, it began to rain yesterday evening.”

A hoarse voice came from somewhere below her body. John’s voice was several octaves lower than usual, with an evident trace of fatigue.

Nina had kept him awake the whole night. He had a lot of stubble on his chin, and it made him look like a mature man.

“What? What happened?” Nina uttered with shock. She turned her head, and found that she had used John as a human cushion. Embarrassed, she quickly turned over from his body.

In one fluid motion, she had rolled out of the bed quickly without any hesitation, and she was instantly filled with surprise and panic.

“What did I do last night?” she asked.

“You were drunk beyond oblivion,” John explained. He knew with certainty that she would definitely forget what had happened last night after waking up, so he kindly reminded her.

Nina pondered in silence for a while, and believed that was what really happened. Yesterday afternoon, she had indeed followed James to his secret base and drank a little wine.

She glanced at John, and saw that he hadn't slept well all night. Consequently, she looked at the pajamas she was wearing, and remembered her sleeping posture just a while ago.

She screamed in panic! Her face flushed with agitation.

Did they have sex again last night?

If so, John must have definitely forced her without her consent. It must be so.

Vexed and annoyed, Nina abruptly turned around and ran away as fast as she could.

As soon as she went downstairs, she heard the morning news broadcast. “At around six o'clock yesterday evening, a small bar in a remote area within the city caught fire. The cause of the fire is still under investigation...”

Deep Affection: Honey, Come Back To Me Chapter 109

/ Deep Affection: Honey, Come Back To Me

Deep Affection: Honey, Come Back To Me

Chapter 109 You Beat Me All The Way

A fire?

Nina stopped. She turned around and looked at the TV screen that showed James' secret base.

The small bar had been burned into a charred ruin, and the broken bottles scattered on the ground were black. The sound equipment looked like it exploded.

“Did I cause that fire?” Nina pressed her lips tightly. She was completely aware of what kind of person she could be when she got drunk.

When she had too much to drink, she went crazy and picked fights and set fires.

There was a fire.

Perhaps she had also beaten some people.

Obviously, John was not one of those people because he was in the room now and sleeping in one piece. There was only one other possibility.

James and his friends...

Nina panicked. How could they have withstood her fists?

“My phone. Where is my phone?” Nina was wearing a night robe, and her phone was not in her pocket. She began to look for it in the hall.

Nine barked in the distance, picked up Nina’s phone, and trotted to her.

Nina was still a little afraid of Nine. She just held Nine in her arms yesterday in an emergency. She stepped back a little and reached out for her phone.

“Thank you, Nine.” Taking the phone, Nina smiled sincerely at Nine.

Nine immediately grinned, his long tongue hanging down his mouth. He was panting lightly, his ears were standing up, and his tail was wagging wildly.

He took two steps toward Nina and craned his neck like a child seeking a reward from his parents.

Nina understood the expectation in Nine’s eyes. She remembered that she refused him yesterday, and Nine looked very disappointed and pitiful.

“Good dog, Nine.” Nina slowly squatted down and gently patted Nine in the head. As soon as she made contact with Nine’s head, she withdrew her hand, fearing that Nine would bite her.

Even with a gentle touch, Nine was already very satisfied. He happily jumped around Nina.

Seeing the dog so enthusiastic, Nina felt happy as well as a little scared.

She still smiled gently at Nine, but there was something more important she needed to do now. She quickly dialed James’s number.

“Hello, who is this?” It seemed that James just woke up.

“It’s Nina. Is everything okay with you, James?” Nina listened carefully to James’ background noise, which seemed to be calm.

“Aunt Nina?” James suddenly became alert.

What happened yesterday flashed through his mind. He got so scared that he rolled down from the bed.

Bang!

‘Ahhh...’

James’s muffled grunt made Nina nervous.

What was going on?

“Hello, James? What happened? Are you okay? ‘1

“Ahhh! It hurts!” Upon hitting the floor, James lost grip of his phone that tumbled a few feet away from him. He could not hear Nina clearly from the other end of the line. When he tried moving his arm, he screamed in pain. It seemed to be dislocated again.

“Doctor! Doctor, help!” James cried. Soon, he heard the doctor’s hurried footsteps rushing toward his room.

The noise from James’ line became urgent and tense.

“I sent him to the hospital.” With a stunned look on her face, Nina loosened her grip on her phone, and her phone fell down. Nine immediately caught the phone with his mouth, preventing it from breaking against the floor.

"NO. I have to go to the hospital now." Nina then turned around and ran upstairs. She rushed into the master bedroom and opened the cloakroom. Helen had hung all her clothes there.

John was stirred awake when Nina slid out of bed. Just as he was about to close his eyes, Nina rushed in again.

John had no choice but to just sit up and lean against the headboard. Nina left the cloakroom door slightly ajar, so he saw her change her clothes.

He had been sleepy, but now he was wide

"Where are you going?" John's sharp eyes fell on Nina who was now emerging from the cloakroom.

"I TO the hospital. I beat James and sent him there. I have to go," Nina replied. Their conversation felt so natural, like that of a couple who had been together for a long time.

After replying, Nina realized that she did not completely close the door to the cloakroom.

She turned around and met John's gaze.

From where he was sitting, did he see everything just now?

"Did you see me changing in there?" Color rushed to Nina's cheeks as she covered her body.

"It's too late to be covering yourself up now, don't you think?" John said jokingly.

Nina blushed even more furiously.

"I'm going to the hospital." Nina marched toward the bedroom door without throwing another glance at John.

"Stop," John said. "They have doctors at the hospital to take care of them. What are you going to do there?"

His woman was going to take care of those boys?

Forget it.

“Don’t go,” John ordered.

Nina did not understand why John had to take care of everything for her. She was not his wife.

“I started the fire. I have to deal with it. I beat them. I have to take care of them.” 20

“The matter has been handled.” Last night, he saw Nina ignite a lighter and chuck it casually. The lighter fell on the floor of the bar, and the spilled wine immediately caught fire.

At that time, he could not believe what he was seeing. After Nina got drunk, she not only beat young men twice her size but also started a fire.

Even Richard had gone back to Stone Road to lick his wounds.

It was not that Richard could not defeat Nina but that John had threatened him. John told him that if he touched Nina, he would kill him.

Nina beat Richard all the way back to the North Yard without him landing a single punch. John just watched on the sidelines with great interest. After the fight was over, he pulled Nina into his arms.

When Nina got drunk, she fought everyone except John. When she saw John, she hurled herself into his arms like a docile cat.

Every time John thought of it, he felt pleased, and his cold, handsome face turned gentle and tender.

“You don’t have to go. My assistant is on it,” John added. He did not want her to take care of others.

She should be taken care of. He could not let her take care of others.

It was humiliating for him.

“No, I have to go. It was all my fault. I have to take care of those I hurt,” Nina insisted. A deep sense of responsibility and accountability flashed in her beautiful eyes.

Seeing that she was so persistent, John came up with an alternate plan.

“You have to take care of those you beat?” His lips spread in a sly smile, and mischief flashed in his eyes. John moved his legs, which felt a little numb.

Nina fell asleep on him the entire night, making him unable to move. A slight movement would have woken her up. He was frozen in one position for nine straight hours. That was why his legs were numb.

“Yes. That’s what I’ve been telling you. I won’t pass the buck.”

“Great.” John looked straight into Nina’s eyes and spoke in a serious tone. “You beat me all the way last night, too, and I can’t move my legs now. Since you hurt me, you’re responsible for taking care of me. At least until I can walk again.” 34

Deep Affection: Honey, Come Back To Me Chapter 110

/ Deep Affection: Honey, Come Back To Me
Deep Affection: Honey, Come Back To Me

Chapter 110 John Fools His Wife

“I beat you all the way last night?” Nina was flabbergasted. She stared in doubt at the man before her. John exuded so much confidence that it didn’t even cross her mind that he could be lying.

John was always the picture of composure. His eyes seemed to see straight through anything he looked at and Nina was no exception. She never dared to look at him, fearing that her subconscious love would be exposed.

Nina was sensitive and she wouldn’t be able to handle any aspects of John that would upset her.

That was why she never applied the psychology of micro expressions to the people around her.

“Yes.” John didn’t want to admit it, but if Nina could stay to take care of him, he didn’t care about his pride.

With a look of disbelief, Nina stood in a stunned silence.

"I think about it carefully. Do you remember attacking someone last night?" John was talking about Richard.

John and Richard didn't have similar facial features but their figures were remarkably similar. Nina was completely drunk last night so there was no possible way that she could have made out who it was.

John realized this and he could maintain his calm expression, knowing that Nina would believe that he was the one she attacked.

Freud once divided the human's mental activities into three levels: consciousness, premonition and subconsciousness. In fact, what we think we may forget is not really forgotten, but stored in the subconsciousness.

As long as Nina thought carefully, she could remember what had happened after she was drunk, however not very clearly.

Nina vaguely recollected some scenes. She remembered hitting a tall man. It seemed that she had really hit him around quite violently.

"But I remember that there was another man," Nina murmured in confusion.

"Richard," John explained to Nina.

Nina felt confused. "Why didn't he help you when he saw you being attacked by me?"

John was rendered speechless. Seeing that John kept silence,

Nina said, "You must have bullied Richard so many times that he didn't want to save you." She looked at John in disgust.

"I hope you keep this attitude in the coming days." John sneered.

Nina was stunned.

'Oh my God! He is going to exact his revenge again.

I shouldn't have said anything. I need to keep these things to myself.'

"Well, let me call a doctor for you." Nina grinned, trying to please him.

"It's too late to try and get on my good side." John picked up his phone and called Brian, asking him to come over and bring a wheelchair. He then told Brian to keep from telling anyone else about this.

Hearing this, Nina realized what she had done.

She couldn't help but glance at John's legs, with regret and worry in her eyes. When Brian arrived, he was sure that John's legs had been injured and that he would have to spend several days in a wheelchair. Nina was incredibly worried about him.

'Doctor, when will his legs recover?' Nina was not only worried, but also a little anxious when she spoke.

John was already in a wheelchair, how could she not be anxious?

People don't just sit in a wheelchair for no reason. The only reason he would be in the wheelchair is if there was a genuine problem.

"Now you care about me?" John leaned against the wheelchair, with one hand supporting his head and the other hanging on the edge of the chair. He tapped his fingers in a somewhat jovial way.

"Cut the crap. Where would I find my husband if you had an accident?" What she meant was that she wouldn't be able to get the information about her husband if something happened to John.

It was an ambiguous sentence though so it seemed to be misinterpreted as quite a loving gesture.

Helen wiped her tears and said, "Mrs. Shi you and Mr. Shi love each other very much. Don't worry, he will be fine. He will always be by your side and accompany you. He won't let you become a widow at such a young age."

"Are you saying he is my husband?" Helen's words seemed to be understood in this way, but it was not the case.

"A widow?" John gritted his teeth. The first few words were quite pleasant to hear, but what did the last sentence mean?

Was she cursing his death?

“Sorry, forget I said anything. I’ll leave now.” Realizing that she had said something out of line, Helen abruptly left.

Everyone stood quietly as if they were all of the same belief as Helen. Nina assumed that they were just joking or they were all too keen to find a wife for John.

After all, John was already thirty years old.

“Mrs. Shi, please take good care of Mr. Shi for these next few days. I’ll bring the medicine here in the afternoon.” Brian carried the medicine cabinet and left.

He was afraid that the truth would slip out if he didn’t leave quickly.

As a doctor, it was immoral to deceive the family of a patient.

However, John wasn’t really a patient. The only problem was that his legs were numb.

Why were they numb though?

This remained to be discussed. Either he didn’t move enough, or he had exercised too much recently.

Brian thought that with such a beautiful wife,

John must be exercising all the time to impress her.

Before leaving, he looked back at the two people in the living room. Nina clearly felt guilty, and John had to be feeling so proud at this point.

John really did all of this to fool his wife.

After the doctor left, Nina squatted in front of John and reached out to pinch his shin. She asked worriedly, “Does it hurt? Can you feel anything?”

John really didn’t know whether he should feel lucky or sad. He was glad that Nina wanted to take care of him, but he was also sad about what she had said.

‘I just got hurt. I’m not a cripple.’ Why was she asking about any pain? Why did she ask him if he could feel anything?

He recalled that Nina called him a disabled person back when he didn't know that she was his wife.

John felt the rage boiling in his blood.

His anger sky-rocketed as his whole body heated up with it.

Nina realized that she had said something wrong, but it was only because she cared about him.

It was her fault that he was hurt after all and seeing this once incredible figure sitting in a wheelchair was so disheartening to her.

Hurting him on the outside seemed to hurt her on the inside.

"John. I'm sorry." This was the first time that Nina had apologized to John. It was rare for her to obediently lower her head in front of him.

Nina hardly ever gave into John. She was always more partial to a soft approach and she hated brute force. Look at her relationship with Michelle, Nina always gave in to her softer nature and kind words.

On the other hand, John only ever wanted to suppress Nina.

With John's eyes gleaming, he reached out and pulled Nina squatting in front of him into his arms. Nina staggered forward and sat on John's lap.

110

"John. What are you doing?" Nina's heart skipped a beat. She panicked and tried to get up from his legs.

As soon as she got up, John pulled Nina into his arms again and sat her down. He leaned over and smiled maniacally.

"Little girl, you should call me honey from now on."