

My Wife is a beautiful Officer Chapter 325 - Chapter 325: Do As Mrs. Mu Said

Chapter 325: Chapter 325: Do As Mrs. Mu Said

Although Daisy asked the sales clerks in the mall to ignore her and Edward and go back to their normal work, the clerks wouldn't leave them alone. They were Edward's employees, so it was his thoughts and orders that mattered most to them.

"Do as Mrs. Mu said. Get back to work, " Edward said softly. He understood that since he scarcely ever turned up in the mall, the employees got nervous to see him there. So he didn't act bossy today. He almost never insulted his employees, because he thought that would mean that he was a lousy manager.

"Yes, Mr. Mu." As the CEO of FX International Group, Edward was extremely well-mannered, but overbearing as well. Few people dared look him in the eye, let alone his employees. With Edward's permission, the sales clerks went back to work. They felt overwhelmed by his bearing.

Daisy stood there quietly, tender eyes fixed on Edward. Just as she had surprised Edward, she had found her husband had many surprising sides as well. She had always thought that the rich and famous tended to look down on ordinary people. She discovered that Edward wasn't one of them. He treated everybody equally and thought of himself as nothing but a commoner. He didn't discriminate against anyone. These were his merits and they appealed to her strongly. Looking at the fashionable clothes that she designed herself, Leena couldn't help smiling.

LN was a fashion brand Leena created. As a rising new star in the fashion world, it had enjoyed global popularity in two years' time, standing alongside other popular brands. It was lauded for its originality and keen insight in fashion, enjoying a high reputation among European aristocrats. It had been taken as a great example of the brands which were all the rage at the time in fashion industry.

One thing that made Leena stand out as a designer was that besides ladies' wear, she also designed menswear for cultivated tastes, suitable for many different occasions. Leena was confident in her designs and decided to pick a dress of her own design for the party tonight. There were several styles of menswear that fitted Kevin perfectly. With his outstanding appearance, he would look smart and dashing in them.

"Leena, are you picking out suits for Kevin?" Seeing her wandering about in the menswear zone, Daisy came over. She was curious.

"Yes, sis. But don't you want to know about something else? My lightning marriage, for example." From the way Daisy had asked her, Leena sensed that she knew about their marriage. A bright red flush spread over Leena's face, making her more charming than ever.

I just want to say that Kevin is a man of not only good looks but also integrity. You've made the right decision, and you won't regret it." Daisy knew Kevin well. Once he made the choice, he wouldn't back down, no matter what.

"Thank you, sis. You're the second person to support me in this matter, " It was true. Before Daisy, no one agreed with Leena's decision except for her father. So she had started to have doubts about her marriage, although she pretended to be calm. She had thought that she might have made a mistake. Daisy's opinion reassured her and strengthened her confidence in her marriage.

"Are there many people who disapprove of your decision?" Daisy smiled faintly. Leena had been spoiled since she was a baby girl. Naturally her marriage would arouse a great deal of concern. And it was quite normal for the people around her to be angry when she didn't ask their permission. Sometimes this concern was annoying, but mostly, it was envious. Daisy, for one, wished there had been someone that cared about her so much growing up.

"That's it. Let's talk about something else. Sis, would you like to choose some clothes for Edward? I designed quite a few clothes according to his style, " Leena said. She hadn't intended to brag. She just blurted it out. It was too late when she realized it.

"What? You designed all these?" Daisy asked. She had gotten a weird feeling about these clothes, but hadn't known why. It all made sense now. What a surprise! Who would expect a muddled girl like Leena to become the designer of a global brand? Like they say, the better you feel about yourself, the less you need to show off.

"Haha, I don't think my designs are good enough, so I was too embarrassed to tell you guys. But, me and my big mouth..." Leena gave an embarrassed smile. Leena didn't think she was qualified to be ranked among the best designers, so she felt bashful in front of Daisy, who was sort of a relative to her.

"No way! Aunt Leena, did you really design all these clothes yourself? Promise you aren't just taking the credit for someone else's work?" Justin happened to hear Leena talking as he got closer. He looked at the ornately designed fashionable clothing around him and didn't believe careless Leena was the designer. He wouldn't have called her aunt if his mom hadn't asked.

"Well, didn't you refuse to call me aunt just a short time ago? Why have you changed your mind? What trick are you up to?" Leena didn't believe Justin had changed his mind for no reason. He might be planning to start his sarcasm the next minute.

"Huh! Do you have a persecution complex? I just heard that you said you designed these clothes yourself. Maybe there is really something wrong with my ears. Just think about how active you are. Designing is boring. How could you possibly focus on such dull work?" Pretending there was really something wrong with his ears, Justin rubbed them with a cute facial expression. Leena would have loved him if he hadn't despised her so much.

"It's a pity that it is really me who designed them. I'm sorry to disappoint you." Provoked by the little boy, Leena answered back sarcastically without thinking and forgot her intention to keep a low profile.

Watching Justin and Leena, Daisy touched her forehead resignedly and wondered why they were fighting all the time. Was it so difficult to tolerate each other for them?

"Duke told me that you created your own brand. So it's LN. It seems that we underestimated you. It took up a lot of time and energy for us to become your brand's agent. It would have been much easier if I just went through you, "

Edward said approvingly, leaning on the counter and looking enchanting. He had engaged in the negotiation for the agency himself. He had been curious about the designer. He had wondered who could be so important as to make him put everything aside for his or her luxury brand. Because of either its high quality or the good materials it used, LN's price was rather high, higher than its like products. Hence, it was considered a luxury brand.

"Oh. How did Duke know? I didn't tell a soul." Leena frowned in confusion. She had been happy that she had done a good job hiding it from everybody. But now it seemed Duke had already known about her secret for some time.

He knows that you created your own fashion brand, but he doesn't know it is LN. He will be thrilled if he knows its such a well known brand. He's always proud of you.

Edward could imagine how happy Duke would be if he knew about it. He always took pride in Leena. He was more of a father to her than a big brother. He spoiled her so much that he became a different person around her. If Leena hadn't gone abroad to study fashion design, he would still be her overprotective brother.

I was considering giving him a surprise in a few days. Leena patted her chest as she was saying this. Seeing her movement, Justin rolled his eyes at her and thought it childish and stupid. God, how could you let a befuddled and evil woman like Leena become fashion designer? Maybe you are just as muddled as she is, thought Justin.

Chapter 326: Chapter 326: I Have Better Things To Do

The Mu's changed plans because Leena suddenly joined them. Daisy had a fever last night, and Edward didn't want to wear her out by doing too much walking. After Leena had picked up a suit for Kevin, instead of continuing their shopping excursion, they found a cafe to rest, which was exactly what Justin wanted.

"How do you feel? Are you tired?" As soon as they sat down, Edward asked worriedly, face full of concern. It looked like he really cared about Daisy.

"I'm okay. I'm not a fragile doll. I am a soldier, okay?" Daisy wouldn't be a fearless colonel in the army if she was easily beaten by a small fever. Everyone in the army was iron-blooded, including Daisy herself.

"What's wrong, sis? Are you sick? Did you get Tom to have a look? Tell you what, Tom is a genius doctor!" Leena noticed Daisy's pale face right after she saw her, but she thought it might be due to the lighting in the mall. It turned out Daisy was not feeling well!

"Yes. I'm fine now, thanks to Tom." When she mentioned Tom's name, Daisy suddenly blushed. Memories of seducing Edward that morning flashed through her mind. She became a little nervous as if everyone knew what she had done.

Edward immediately picked up on what Daisy was thinking about as he saw her rosy cheeks. It was the very first time that Daisy had ever tried to seduce him! Damn Tom, barging in on them! And Daisy wouldn't let him continue even if he had driven Tom away. Edward swore that he would make Tom pay for that.

"Right? Tom is famous for his excellent medical skills. You can trust him! But geniuses are always unpredictable; he chooses his own patients rather than the other way around." Leena complained to Daisy with a frown. Tom wouldn't care if his patient was the mayor as long as he didn't feel like treating anyone. But Leena guessed Tom acted like this because he could! However, Leena was surprised that Tom had never turned down Edward, and he almost showed up instantly after Edward called him. How peculiar!

"Really? I'm flattered." Daisy had only met Tom twice, including last night. So she had no idea how brilliant a doctor Tom was. She used to think he was just one of Edward's friends who happened to be a doctor. But he seemed so gentle and approachable. Was he really unpredictable like Leena said?

"He should be flattered. He got the chance to meet a colonel. Not something that happens every day," snorted Edward coldly. He hadn't forgiven Tom for interrupting his romantic moment with Daisy, how could he ever admit that Tom was a genius doctor at this point? The only thing he could do was to try not to trash him too much, for he did cure Daisy after all.

"Wow! Edward, are you jealous?" Upon hearing Edward's sour comment, Leena couldn't help snickering. She had never seen Edward green with jealousy like this. She made a point of mentioning it in front of Daisy.

"Jealous? Me? He's not that brilliant, okay? He's just some ordinary doctor!" Although Edward was impressed by Tom's medical skills, he would never admit it in front of Daisy. He wouldn't allow her to think that there were other men who were as brilliant or even more brilliant than him.

Daisy cast a curious look at Edward, wondering since when Edward started to trash talk his friend? Why would a mature man like him act so childish? Daisy was puzzled, having no inkling what Edward was thinking.

"Humph! It's just sour grape! Why did you let him treat sis if you think he's merely average?" Leena seemed to pick on Edward's words today, which confused Edward. 'Did something happen? Leena seems strange.' pondered Edward.

"Because he's the only doctor I know. Who else could I call? You? I'd better stick with Tom. We're talking about saving lives! You may kill somebody if I call you instead." Edward sipped in his coffee while gazing at Leena. The smirk on his face annoyed Leena. 'He must be making fun of me on purpose!' Leena felt like punching Edward all of a sudden.

But instead she banged the table and pouted, "You are bullying me as well! Humph! I'm going home!" Leena stood up abruptly. Not just little Justin, but Edward as well! Edward used to be fond of her! Leena felt so heartbroken and decided to leave first.

Leena, ignore them. They're crazy. Please stay." Daisy rolled her eyes at Edward and hastily grabbed Leena's hand, trying to make her stay for a while longer. 'What's wrong with Edward? Doesn't he adore Leena? Why is he so mean to her today?' Daisy was confused. Surprised, Edward and Justin looked at each other with their eyes wide open. Did Daisy just blame them for bullying Leena? And she said they were crazy? It was just a small joke on Leena! Did she really have to turn against her husband and son?

"Never mind. I'm too generous to hold a grudge against them. I'll see you tonight, sis. I'll need a spa first!" Leena smiled sweetly at Daisy and said goodbye to them. Her words puzzled Daisy. 'Again? What's it so special about tonight? Why everyone keeps telling me that they'll see me tonight?' Daisy thought to herself as she saw Leena leave cheerfully.

Let's go. We should get back as well. There are a lot of preparations to be done before it gets dark." Edward noticed Daisy's perplexed look; but he simply smiled and said nothing. He would save the answer for later.

Preparations? What do you mean? Are you keeping something from me? Why is everybody acting strange and saying they'll see me tonight? What day is it today?" Daisy looked right into Edward's eyes, as if she wanted to find the answer on his handsome face.

"Don't stare at me like that, honey. You have no idea what that means. We couldn't be that bold even if you really want me here. We're not in our bedroom after all." Edward leaned forward to whisper in Daisy's ear, his breath brushing her earlobe. Daisy shuddered all over and blushed. When she realized what Edward had just said, she immediately kicked him on his calf. Damn it! Did he just flirt with her in public? How shameless!

"Ouch! Daisy! Are you trying to kill me?" Daisy caught him off-guard again! How could he forget about this? She had done this to him before! And she kicked him really hard this time. 'It must be bruised now, ' Edward thought gloomily.

Justin glared at his father and said nothing. Although Edward had leaned forward to make sure only Daisy could hear him, sitting right next to them, Justin heard him too. And he felt no sympathy for his father.

"I don't break laws and commit murders. Besides, I have better things to do than kill you." Daisy shrugged with a sneer. However, when she saw the agony on Edward's face, she became worried, 'Does it really hurt that much? I didn't kick him that hard.' Daisy just wanted to give him some punishment for flirting with her in public; she didn't mean to injure him.

Edward froze as he heard Daisy's words. Why did his wife constantly pick on him today? Was she bored of him? That probably explained her strange behavior.

"Woman, are you trashing me?" Edward narrowed his eyes, which was a sign of danger; his eyes glowed with a spark of rage. Maybe he was too good to Daisy lately, and she seemed to forget who she was!

"I'm not trashing you. I'm just ignoring you. Come on, aren't we leaving? Or do you want me to kick you again?" Ignoring Edward's warning, Daisy retorted with a smirk and walked away without any hesitation. She would have been intimidated by his devilish look; however, he didn't scare her anymore! She knew he wouldn't do anything to her no matter how angry he got. And the reason was simple: Because he loved her.

"Haha!" Justin snickered while casting a sensitive look at his father. 'Don't blame me, daddy. If I side with you, mommy will definitely punish me and have me do 100 push-ups! Sorry!' Justin stuck his tongue out and hurried to follow Daisy.

Edward finally understood that he had been abandoned by both his wife and his son. Seeing them walk towards the front gate without even looking back at him, Edward felt distressed. Were they so sure that he would follow without any complaint? And yes, of course he would. But that was not the point! Eventually, Edward smiled while shaking his head, and quickly strode forward to keep up with them. He had no choice but to give in, because he loved them too much.

1

Chapter 327: Chapter 327: It's You Mary

It was bound to be a remarkable night in S City tonight. All the senior executives from different companies gathered in the most luxurious Kate Hotel to attend the anniversary ceremony of the FX International Group. The exceptionally grand occasion was unprecedented in S City. It was the most important business party wherein businessmen could seize the opportunity to create numerous hidden business opportunities. Many people felt lucky and excited about attending the ceremony, because in the next second, the chance of being a millionaire could fall for them.

The Kate Hotel belonged to the FX International Group and was the only six-star hotel in S City. It occupied a land of 300 acres, adjacent to a diversified virgin forest park. The surrounding area was a variety of shops and commercial office buildings. The transportation in the vicinity was very convenient. The hotel boasted of spacious and brightly lit hotel rooms, along with the unique combination of European concept and Chinese style in interior design. The hotel left a deep impression on its guests with its grandeur, while simultaneously making them feel at home. The guests could also enjoy the convenient communication, audio-visual entertainment system, and wireless broadband network.

Beautiful ladies and luxurious cars were typical for any party. When the sunset gradually faded from the horizon and the street lights began to light up the sky, luxurious cars swarmed in. As the acting CEO of the Lin Group, Jessica was among the guest list. In the past, she always walked haughtily in her high heels while holding Edward's arm as they entered the hotel. But this time, she came alone and kept a low profile.

Due to the pregnancy, her waist had become a little round. But it hadn't affected her overall attractive image. She intentionally chose a strapless evening dress that made her figure look more impressive, especially her plump breasts. Her alluring breasts danced along with her pace, as if they would fall out any time. Jessica triggered all the men's imagination with her slip skirt. Glimpses of her legs underneath gave a hint of sexy appeal with her every step. It was unquestionable that such a gorgeous woman would be a stunner in the eyes of men. Standing at the entrance of Kate Hotel, she had to take a deep breath to conceal her abjection. What a ridiculous turn of events! At the same time last year, she swaggered past all the women that Edward had abandoned before. But now, she was the one thrown out of the game. She couldn't accept this fact.

Oh! Who might this be? It turns out to be the famous Jessica Lin! " As soon as Jessica paused at the entrance, someone's mocking voice rang loudly. Jessica inadvertently frowned and wondered who would be so bold as to intentionally add insult to injury.

"Oh, it's you, Mary." Jessica felt reluctant to keep company with people like Mary who had humble origins. So when she saw Mary's ostentatious attire, she wasn't inclined to chat with her.

"Yes, it's me. Why do you seem so surprised? As far as I know, you've become the woman of Edward's past. I wonder what gives you the courage to attend such a grand party? Don't you fear losing face in public?" Mary stroked her hair coquettishly and narrowed her eyes at Jessica. She could feel the contempt in Jessica's eyes towards her. Jessica was just another woman whom Edward had abandoned. How could she still be so arrogant?

"Don't be ridiculous. Why should I fear losing face? No one knows who the final winner is. While you, Mary, you can't even get a chance to touch Edward's sleeves. Don't deny that you have feelings for Edward," Jessica sneered. Beneath her delicate face covered with heavy makeup, her heart was filled with the intense desire to tear Mary's foul mouth apart.

"Ha! Jessica, don't tell me that you still have an ace up your sleeve. You can't get Edward back even with the child in your womb. What else do you have?" Mary raised her chin smugly. If the Lin Group hadn't suffered the financial crisis, Jessica might have the nerve to challenge Mary. Since the Lin Group was on the verge of bankruptcy, Mary wondered what Jessica could use against her.

"Mary, don't you find yourself ridiculous? We've never interacted before. Why do you keep pestering me?" Jessica raised her head and received curious gazes from other guests. She bit her lip, her face turning red with anger. Mary's words hit home, and she was heartbroken with this fact. Edward refused to get back with her despite her pregnancy. Even worse, he had become more indifferent to her. She didn't know what else she could do to win him back.

Huh! Yes, you're right, we've never interacted, but your haughty behavior in the past has been a constant eyesore. The sight of you is offending." Mary detested it when other people intentionally displayed their superiority in front of her. She always felt insecure in the face of Jessica's arrogance. Most importantly, she felt extremely jealous that Jessica had enjoyed Edward's affections for so many years.

"You're crazy, Mary. I'm warning you, you'd better not provoke me tonight. I think you don't need me to remind you, you know how I deal with things. You and I are the same kind, so you can imagine what to expect if you dare anger me." Jessica was a woman with not just beautiful looks. She was more clever than Mary. She could easily figure out what was on Mary's mind.

"You're fucking crazy. Jessica, if we weren't at this place, I would make you pay for your insults. As you've said, you and I are the same kind. I would never do anything that would make me lose." Although Mary was usually oblivious, she didn't dare to make a scene on the land that belonged to the FX International Group. She decided to remain silent in the face of Jessica's challenge.

The unpleasant confrontation didn't affect the ambiance of the party that was about to begin. But it definitely planted deeper hostility between the two women. Nevertheless, they got into contact frequently since then, leading to a partnership between the two. They would eventually regret this because their partnership would lead to a bigger mistake. Compared to the two antagonistic women, Brian looked carefree in his seat.

He attended the party for the purpose of seeing Daisy. Since he heard that Daisy had gotten married to the CEO of the FX International Group, he had been looking for a chance to find out why Daisy refused to recognize him. He also wanted to know if Daisy was happy with her current life. As long as Daisy was happy, he didn't care if Daisy still remembered him or not.

Because he lived overseas and he didn't have many acquaintances in the country, few people in the party knew him. He sat alone in a corner, carefree and unnoticed by anyone. His solitude allowed him to overhear conversations he shouldn't have heard.

"Have you heard? Apparently, Mr. Mu has become a faithful man from a womanizing playboy! He has lavished his affections on the mother of their lovechild. There's also word that he will introduce the mysterious woman to the public tonight." Women were always purveyors of gossips, but at the same time, they were also the victims of gossips.

"Oh no, that's impossible! I heard that that woman looks shabby and is of humble origins. Is it suitable for her to appear at such a grand occasion? Apparently, she's not as beautiful as Mr. Mu's ex-girlfriend Jessica." As several noble ladies heatedly discussed among themselves, Brian started to look concerned. His eyebrows furrowed in disapproval and he became furious at the news.

Edward, how dare you hurt my sister and bring your lover to such an important occasion? This is a big insult to her. Do you really think that she has no one to back her in her family, that you can willfully break her heart? Don't forget that I'm here to support her. No matter what happens, I will never let you hurt her, ' Brian thought in rage.

"Who knows? This is only hearsay. But one thing's for sure, Mr. Mu really loves the woman. Otherwise, how could he change to a completely different person? Besides, it's been a long time since the last time there was news about him with a woman. Maybe this woman will become his wife because they have a son." The gossip continued, while Brian had completely lost his cool. His handsome and bright face was flaming with rage.

That bastard. It seemed that Edward was treating his sister as if she was invisible. How dare he keep such a dirty affair with another woman! He's gone too far. Besides, wasn't Daisy a female soldier? Why would she keep silent at such a vicious man's insult? Wasn't sabotaging a military marriage a criminal offense? Why would Daisy let Edward bring his lover and his lovechild into their home and not do anything about it?

Brian smiled painfully at the thought. It seemed that god didn't bless good people. Otherwise, why would he make his sister endure so much sadness and pain? No wonder she was reluctant to recognize him that day. She probably didn't want him to know about her painful life. That was why she had firmly stated that she didn't know him.

Brian closed his eyes in agony. When he open them again, there was firm determination in his eyes. He couldn't help Daisy to get out of her distressful life in the past, but from now on, Brian would officially declare war against Edward. He'd better not die soon, Brian would definitely make his life full of surprises.

Chapter 328: Chapter 328: Soul Of Tears

As night fell, the Kate Hotel started being filled with celebrities. The upper-class ladies were all dressed to kill and constantly evaluating each other's luxurious attire. After glancing around the large crowd of elite men present, the rich girls instantly knew their backgrounds and assets quite well. Keen on finding the perfect match for themselves, they desperately wanted to earn the favor of the certain rich men who were known for their handsome looks and financial status. But none of them had shown up yet, even when the party started. No wonder the women were a bit disappointed.

While the women hunted for the perfect husband, the men were glancing around to check the female party guests. They were all dazzled at the sight of Jessica who wore a long revealing gown. Her big breasts aroused their wildest fantasies. They had been longing to get an eyeful of her curvy figure for a long time. But with Edward at her side, they dared not stare at her. Today, they could finally feast their eyes on her. Despite how attracted they were, no man stepped forward to flirt with her. After all, Edward hadn't announced their break-up. They didn't want to cross Edward and risk their company for a woman. So they remained in place and continued fantasizing without taking any action.

Seeing Jessica in the limelight made Mary huff angrily. She intentionally chose an elegant and conservative dress to impress Edward, but every man's eyes were glued on Jessica's captivating figure. Not even the slightest bit of attention shifted to her. It seemed her orthodox outfit was her biggest mistake tonight.

In contrast to Mary's regret, Jessica was quite delighted with all the attention. As if on purpose, she stroked the precious 'Soul of Tears' necklace several times around her neck. It was a present from Edward. She wanted to wear the necklace as a reminder of her place in Edward's heart. She smiled and moved gracefully, exhibiting her charm and allure. She was determined to win over Daisy tonight, then Edward would see who was the perfect woman to stand by him.

The story behind the 'Soul of Tears' necklace had widely circulated in the upper-class society. It was difficult to forget indeed. After all, Edward paid ten times the original price for the necklace, just to make Jessica happy. His generous purchase made the headlines in S City, bringing quite a lot of readers to outlets and plenty of pride for Jessica. But things had changed. A lot had disappeared, including Edward's affections for her.

Jessica strode through the hall and glanced around, but didn't find the figure she was looking for. A trace of displeasure crept up her face. But she remembered that Edward usually came to these events late. Of course, he wouldn't be here yet. As she roamed the room, she felt a pair of harsh eyes boring into her. But when looking around, she didn't find anything amiss.

Jessica's senses were right. Someone was glaring at her figure the whole time, more precisely, at her stomach. It was as if the observer was trying to check if she was really carrying a baby. The observer didn't even blink her eyes, she didn't want to miss a thing. Then, she started wondering if Jessica's shoes were a bit too high for a pregnant woman.

"You're not even looking at where you're going, " Duke complained. Belinda was too busy staring at Jessica to pay any attention to herself. She didn't take back her gaze until she almost tripped over her dress. But luckily, Duke caught her in his arms. In her lavender trailing gown, Belinda looked noble and elegant. She emanated strength, beauty, and innocence as she walked through the crowd.

"Thank you!" Belinda immediately pulled out of Duke's arms. She was still mad at him. With her problem with Duke in mind, she wasn't in the mood to ask Daisy how she was doing after her return from the military exercises. This was why she arrived at the party so early, to see Daisy as soon as possible. She wanted to check if the tension between her and Edward had diminished. But her goal was stalled once again.

"Belinda, do you have to act so indifferent towards me? You should at least tell me what I did wrong before you shut me off." With Rachel's harassment and Belinda's anger, things had been tough for Duke recently. Now, Belinda even stopped preparing for the wedding that they had been planning together, and he couldn't figure out why.

"You did nothing wrong. It's me. I'm just not in a good mood." Belinda answered hesitantly. Her tone showed her reluctance. She was mad at him and Rachel. She knew about their history. Although she didn't mind their romantic past, it didn't mean that she could just accept this self-important woman waltzing into her life. She couldn't believe that Duke was over Rachel. If he didn't have feelings for her anymore, he would've deleted her number. But he still kept her number in his phone. It could only mean that he still liked her. Why else would he put up with her harassment? She really hated the way his phone rang endlessly in the past several days. Every time it rang, Duke purposefully hung up in front of her. What was he trying to prove?

"Have I ever told you that you're a terrible liar?" Duke fixed his cold eyes on her. He had enough of her surly and odd behavior in the past several days. He wanted to discuss their problems, instead of pushing them aside.

"You have to let me go first." Noticing that they were gaining some attention, Belinda was embarrassed to stay in Duke's arms. After all, only close friends knew about their marriage. She didn't want to make their relationship public and become the topic of gossip in S City.

"What if I say no?" Duke looked up, meeting the women's shocked eyes. They should be surprised. After all, he never flirted with or approached any woman, let alone display his affections in public.

"If you want to be tomorrow's headline, then hold me as long as you want." Knowing how much Duke hated exposure, Belinda used it against him.

"I wouldn't care about being on the news if you're with me." Duke curled his lips into a mischievous smile, winning the hearts of all the women present. Duke was no less popular than Edward, but nobody ever flirted with him due to his indifference. No matter how many woman wanted him, his cold eyes instantly extinguished any idea about approaching him. They wouldn't even dare to talk to him.

Chapter 329: Chapter 329: Are You Jealous (part one)

"Yo! I was wondering who are engaging in a public display of affection here. Edward and Daisy aren't here yet; isn't it too early to steal the spotlight?" Rain casually approached Duke and Belinda and teased them with his eyebrows raised. He was wearing a gray suit, exquisitely tailored.

Rain had been calling Annie ever since she disappeared after that night. He felt distressed when her family told him that she wanted to be left alone for a while. He finally stopped trying to track her down. He believed that Annie would come back to him if she really loved him! And he would wait patiently until she did. The earth is round. Even though they parted here and headed different ways, they would eventually meet again someday somewhere if they were meant to be together. If Annie didn't love him, there would be no point in finding her. We can't force people to love us. And there would only be endless sorrow and pain for people who were thrown together in a loveless relationship.

"What? Are you jealous?" Duke retorted sourly, rolling his eyes. 'What's wrong with him? Can't he see that I'm in the middle of a conversation with my wife? What's he doing here?' Duke was annoyed.

"Yes! I'm jealous to death! Okay, I'll leave you two alone and spread my charm over there. Go back to whatever you were doing." Rain put on a devil-may-care smile in front of everyone, but he was breaking down inside. It seemed every one of his friends had someone to love, someone who loved them, except for him!

"Fuck off! No wonder Annie left you! Look at yourself, fluttering around like a butterfly!" Duke was pissed. He was in the middle of something really romantic and intimate with Belinda. And Rain had ruined everything! How could they continue after being interrupted?

"Don't you know? I'm helping them out! Look at all those pretty girls. They'll wither without my love!" Rain folded his arms in front of his chest and leaned against the pillar.

He wore his signature smirk; his amethyst ear studs flickered as he turned his head toward a gaggle of girls standing nearby. With the complete package, he looked dangerously irresistible. Almost every girl around forgot to breathe and could only stare blankly into his charming face.

"That's bullshit! You'll only hurt them in the end. Stop bragging, you jerk!" Belinda had realized that she and Duke drew too much attention; now that Rain joined the party and made things even worse! This man didn't know how to spell the word 'low-key' -- he only knew how to call attention to himself! Almost every woman's gaze was riveted where they stood.

"Belinda! You wound me! Hurt them? Nonsense! You should worry more about me. I'm the one who has to attend to the needs of all these lovely women!" Rain pretentiously brushed his hair with his fingers and winked at Belinda, who shuddered all over and wanted to throw up all of a sudden. No wonder they said Rain never played by the rules! They were arguing and he was suddenly being flirtatious? Belinda was in shock.

"Oh cut the crap! Look! there's a...um...larger lady over there, and she's been checking you out since you got here. Why don't you go after her?" Belinda raised her eyebrows and gestured towards the woman in question with her head.

Rain had just taken a glass of champagne from the waiter with the tray; he spurted out the liquid and coughed violently as he heard Belinda, his eyes full of disbelief. He had underestimated her! How could she even make such a disgusting proposal no matter how much she hated him?

"What the hell are you doing? I swear I'll kill you right now!" Duke furrowed his brows as he glared at the beads of champagne on his suit, and then Rain's face. Why on earth was he always the one to get run into, or have a drink spilled on? So unlucky! Why did Rain spurt liquid like this? Did he think himself a sprinkler?

"Hey, it's not my fault! Blame your wife! She wants me to sleep with that woman! Have you even seen her face? I'd rather die!" Rain shuddered. Come on! If he really slept with that woman, he wouldn't be able to recover from that for the rest of his life. He might even become impotent and lose interest in all women.

Duke was curious and looked in the direction Rain was pointing. His face twitched at the sight. 'Damn it! Why should I care what he saw?' Duke knew he should have just ignored Rain. The woman misunderstood them, and she even winked at Duke as he turned around. Duke felt like he was going to have a heart attack!

"Do you two have to act like this? She is just a tiny bit plus-sized, with heavy make-up, and a unique style. Everything else seems fine!" Belinda held back the urge to burst into laughter and blurted out random sentences with a serious tone. The corners of her lips were twitching because she really wanted to laugh out loud.

"Belinda, are you serious? Do you even know what you are saying? Plus-sized? She's twice as big as I am! Just imagine how much pressure she's putting on the earth. And look at her make-up! We're at a party, not the theater! And what else? Oh, a unique style? Listen to yourself! I didn't say fat is ugly, but she have to wear a skin tight dress like that? You know what? I'm terrified by the thought that her dress will pop open any second!

Rain blurted out without stopping, in the end, he even shivered violently.

Duke felt exactly the same. He cast a curious look at Belinda, wondering what was wrong with her. She sounded calm and sincere as she described the woman just now, as if the woman was just some plain and ordinary female rather than a hideous monster.