Chapter 85: Chapter 85: Till Death Do Us Part

Daisy found Justin asleep when she walked in. She sat beside the bed, looking at Justin with a loving smile on her face. She had always thought that her little boy had never asked about his dad because it didn't matter to him. But when she saw how excited, and eager Justin got to spend time with Edward tonight, she realized how wrong she had been.

She realized that Justin had always wanted his dad. But he hid his desire for a father deep inside his heart to avoid letting her down. Being so considerate at such a young age truly moved Daisy. Justin was the only and most precious gift that God had sent to her. Daisy extended her hand to stroke his peacefully sleeping face. Her heart filled with a flood of emotions. She was glad to have Justin's company in the lonely life she had been leading for many years.

Daisy bent down to kiss his forehead. She adjusted the temperature of the air conditioner before leaving the room. As she quietly closed the door, she ran into a pair of dark deep-set eyes.

Daisy felt disconcerted for a second, and she quickly turned away to avoid the enquiring eyes.

Edward was shocked to see her ignoring him and bypassing him like he didn't even exist. He found her growingly unpredictable. Was she playing hard-to-get with him again?

The truth is, Daisy wasn't as aloof as she appeared. She ignored him only because she didn't want him to see the melancholy in her heart.

Edward frowned and headed to the study. His face lit up when he saw the new furniture in the study. He didn't expect that a new desk would make the room look so warm.

Edward went to the desk and looked through the books lying on it. They were all based on military themes. There were comments and suggestions written on every page. He discerned that Daisy had strong opinions when it came to military matters.

As Daisy walked out of the bathroom with wet hair, she was surprised to see Edward in the study. She thought he was downstairs having his dinner. What was he doing here? Edward looked at her hair and frowned; then he left the room without saying anything.

Daisy wondered what mistake had she made now to offend him again. Shaking her head, she decided not to be bothered and sat down to look into the books.

Suddenly, she sensed a soft towel covered her head, and her long wet hair were being gently rubbed. Daisy turned around and looked at Edward in surprise.

"Don't move." Edward continued and turned her head back.

Daisy could feel the warmth of him when his fingers penetrated through her hair. Being loved by someone felt good.

"Why are you doing this?" Daisy asked in a low voice, wondering why was he so considerate towards her tonight.

"Why do you ask?" Edward frowned but he didn't stop rubbing her hair.

"These days you are treating me so lovingly that I'm afraid I'll get used to your kindness and become dependent on you. So, if you don't love me, please leave me alone." Daisy said calmly. She loved the warmth he brought, but she was afraid that he would leave her one day.

"You can depend on me. I want to have you on my side." Normally, Edward wasn't a sweet talker. But today, was an exception. Daisy wondered could she believe his words. The closer he got, the more panic she experienced as she felt all of this was quite unreal.

"Edward, can I trust you?" Daisy asked him and then felt it was actually a rhetorical question.

Edward put down the towel and gently and turned her head around. His blue eyes were full of sincere emotions. "You are special to me. I am willing to give my promise to a woman like you."

Daisy stared at him in disbelief and became speechless.

Edward kissed her gently on the lips and slowly perfected her unique beauty.

Daisy didn't expect the sudden kiss as she was still shocked by his words. She came back to her senses when his hand swiftly sneaked into her clothes.

"Edward... No..." Daisy held back his hand that had lit a fire in her body. She was panting and begging him to stop. They were still in the study, what if someone opened the door.

"Fine." Edward picked her up without warning and hurried to their bedroom. He knew she's shy, so he respected her request.

When the bedroom door closed, the hot kisses fell on her body like rain. Daisy found it hard to embrace his neck as she was savoring the waves of passion he brought. The moonlight outside the window was flushed by the heat of their room, and it secretly hid behind the dark clouds. The passion in the room went on as if only death could do them apart.

Chapter 86: Chapter 86: Who Am I Supposed To Be

Leena found the constant nagging by his brother very annoying. He had been lecturing her all night, and Leena still had a chafed feeling in her ears as she recalled. She wondered why his behavior was so different from his appearance. No wonder he was single for all these years. No one could bear his constant nagging.

Leena sighed, everyone believed she had great potential as she was studying fashion designing in Paris. But her brother Mr. Cold always saw her as a naive little girl. She looked down at her bosom proudly. Maybe she was not in shape for a D-cup, but she was at least a B.

Leena quietly opened the door and looked outside. When she saw the bodyguard standing at the door with a poker face, she rolled her eyes and felt speechless about her brother's actions. Imprisonment was for convicts, and she is his sister. Why would he do this?

Leena complained about the inappropriate time her father had chosen to visit his colleagues. Because that left no ally to help her out.

Leena helplessly threw herself into the queen-sized bed while scouring through her bag. She was lucky that he did not confiscate her phone as she couldn't imagine how bored she would be without it. Leena picked up the piece of paper that came out with her phone. She wondered where the paper came from, as she saw what was written on it, she jumped out of panic. How could she forget about Kevin? She would be doomed if Mr. Cold saw this note.

However, Leena calmed down soon. She decided to ignore what Kevin had written in the note. He wanted to be responsible for Leena, but this thought never crossed her mind. She scratched her hair and began to regret what had happened. It was stupid of her to have a one-night-stand with a stranger.

Just as she was about to throw the note in the dustbin, Lenna noticed the phone number scribbled on it. Being grounded in the room for so long bored her out of her mind, she thought pursuing him might make her day enjoyable.

Without further ado, Leena picked up her phone and called the number on the note. She remembered that the man had a deep voice and dashing looks. She wanted to test whether he also had a real sense of responsibility.

Many things were going on in Kevin's head when his phone rang. He wanted to know how Daisy was doing. Because last night when he saw her, she was with Edward, and Edward seemed furious.

He was surprised that Edward was Daisy's husband. As for many years, Daisy was raising Justin by herself, and there were no traces of any man. He had thought that Justin's father was either working abroad or being irresponsible.

Kevin knew that Edward had a high intellect and came from a prominent family. As Edward discovered his deep feelings towards Daisy, he didn't try to deny them. Having a crush on someone was uncommon for him, but Daisy failed to notice his intention.

The phone ring suddenly pulled him back to reality. As Kevin picked up his phone, he found that the number was unfamiliar.

"Hi, this is Kevin speaking. May I know who's calling?" Leena applauded her excellent memory because the voice she heard that day was as deep as the one on the phone.

"Ahh... Who am I supposed to be? The woman who had sex with you all night or the poor woman whom you left behind in the club? I thought someone wrote me a note saying he would take responsibility for his actions. But what is the definition of 'being responsible'? Marriage? Leena pretended to be serious about the 'marriage'.

"Oh! I sincerely apologize for leaving you like that yesterday. There was an urgent matter that I had to sort out. And I can marry you if you want me to." Yes. He could marry any woman. As long as Daisy was not the bride, the marriage would be meaningless to him.

"Emm... Are you serious?" Leena was just joking with him. She didn't want to marry a stranger.

"Does it sound like I'm kidding?" Kevin still remembered that his father had given him an ultimatum to come back to Beijing. He didn't want to do so because Daisy was here.

He'd marry her if it meant he could escape the fate of being dog-tired dating different women. Moreover, they had shared the most intimate connection that night.

"Emm... Well... You certainly sound serious. But I was kidding. Take it easy." Leena replied in a low voice. She'd be out of her mind to marry a stranger, not to mention that she was in the prime of her life. It wouldn't be wise for her to get hitched with a one-night stand.

"But I'm not joking. You can think over my proposal and call me if you change your mind." Kevin thought that if he were born in a typical family, he would never marry because of his deep love for Daisy. However, he had responsibilities and a duty to fulfill his family's wishes.

"No thanks. This topic is not fitting for me. I don't need any further consideration. Please ignore my call. Bye!" Leena quickly hung up the phone. And she wasn't happy with the outcome. It wasn't as enjoyable as she had thought! Leena could not imagine what punishment she would receive from Mr. Cold if she married a stranger.

" Hello.... Are you there?... Kevin shook his head while he heard Leena hung up the so quickly. She must have freak out of his proposal. He wanted an end to his obsession with Daisy, so that he won't care about Daisy's whereabouts anymore.

Leena tried to calm down after she hung up the phone. She thought, the joke had gone too far, whether he was serious or not. But she was surprised that he would agree to such a ludicrous request. Love at first sight was unreal. She didn't believe it.

Kevin fiddled with his phone and wondered why she behaved like the this. He thought that the phone call was to force him into marriage, and he didn't mind to have her as a bride. However, he didn't expect that she would be the one to freak out.

Chapter 87: Chapter 87: Honey, What Are You Doing

Today, Edward was delighted because of the wonderful time he had spent with Daisy yesterday night. He couldn't help smiling the whole morning, thinking about last night.

"Aaron, our CEO seems very happy today. Look, he is constantly smiling in the office. Do you have any clue what's making him so happy? Did something special happen yesterday night?" Rain elbowed Aaron who was sitting beside him and whispered to him.

Aaron turned his head and stared at Rain in contempt. 'If you want to know the answer, why don't you ask for yourself? 'How could I know what the CEO did yesterday night? I don't live with him. Besides, I'm not a Peeping Tom who likes to poke his nose into other people's private lives.' Aaron thought.

Aaron's stare embarrassed Rain, and he touched his handsome nose in regret. 'I am being despised by Aaron yet again. But Edward is acting very suspicious. I have never seen him in such a good mood as today, especially during a meeting. He even ignored the blunders made by the planning department! He is always in an aggressive and daunting mood just like a tiger. It's unusual that he is acting as easygoing as a cat today.' Rain thought.

'Mr. Rain, please let us know about your proposal for the C Financial Group." Asked Edward. Edward noticed that Rain was prying into his private affairs during the meeting. He could make out from Rain's dubious expression that he was lost in his thoughts.

Rain felt flustered! He suddenly remembered the saying "what goes around comes around". It applied to him now. And he knew his boss wouldn't let it pass. He realized that he has already earned his punishment for his blabbering.

Rain shot an intrusive look to Edward and reluctantly opened the report in front of him. He began to discuss the plan. He immediately conceded that Edward was still a tiger in the disguise of a cat. He considered himself stupid. He had fooled himself into believing that Edward would not catch his words. Other colleagues in the meeting were wise to keep silent. Only he was dumb enough to bring up this sensitive topic. No wonder that Aaron overlooked him moments ago.

Edward was still smiling coolly, in a playful way. He ignored Rain's worried look and laid back in his chair, smiling cunningly at him.

'Ha! I was trying to help you with your work. You need to plan what has to be done by you in the next stage of this program. You will be too stressed if you are not well prepared. But you seem ungrateful towards my benevolence, and you dared to stare at me.' Edward thought about Rain.

'Huh! Edward, you are extremely good at finding excuses for your lewd behavior. You are a cunning man! But you pretend that you are good to me. Your brazenness is second to none! Too bad your plan was not successful. I can very well handle the report.' thought Rain.

When Rain finished his report, he felt that his throat went dry. He sighed and said in his heart, 'I finally know how it feels to abuse the help! I'm experiencing it, now that Edward is abusing me! It's clear that I was set up by him. Sly Edward!'

If Edward had know what was in Rain's mind now, he would have become angry and defended himself, 'What? How shameless you call yourself cheap labor? Will anyone believe what you said? Who can imagine cheap labors have a monthly salary of 1 million? And which cheap labor could enjoy the abundant year-end share dividend?

' In fact, Edward was doing it on purpose. Since Rain had a big mouth, Edward liked to give him a chance to speak as long as he wanted. It was an effective way to prevent him from gossiping about his private life next time during the meeting.

"Edward, how about asking Miss Daisy out tonight? And we can bring Duke as well. We'll have a lot of fun together." As soon as the meeting was over, Rain approached

Edward and leaned towards him. With eager eyes Rain smiled broadly at him, waiting for a reply. He seemed to have forgotten his spite towards Edward during the meeting.

"Tonight? I will call her later to check with her." Edward paused and replied. He picked up the files from the table and gracefully stood up. He thought it was a good idea to introduce Daisy to his friends. She went too quiet when she was alone.

"No, she must come. I have heard that Leena is back. Ask Duke to bring her. I haven't seen her for many years; she must have changed a lot!" Rain suggested. When Edward heard him talking about Leena, he remembered that yesterday Daisy was pissed off because of her. He was worried that he might lose Daisy because of this.

"Okay! Share the address of the place when you've decided where we are going to meet." After he finished his words, he walked out of the meeting room. He thought that this was an excellent opportunity to let Daisy understand how she had wronged him yesterday. So she wouldn't leave him next time without realizing what had transpired.

"Perfect! I will find a place now." Rain was delighted. He had been curious to know more about Daisy. He wondered why such a beautiful and elegant woman was present in that messy place that day. And why she was wearing such flashy clothes and heavy makeup.

Daisy's thoughts were suddenly interrupted by the ringtone of her cellphone. She was in the middle of writing a report on the arms dealer. If she discontinued writing it, she would miss the deadline. She was supposed to submit it to the commander in a few days. Although she knew that the commander was very nice to her. But this has also attracted envy from some vicious people. She tried her best to do everything in order and on time so that no one could find fault with her. She didn't want others to get the wrong idea about her. She worried that they'd assume that all her achievements were a result of a personal relationship.

"Hello, this is Daisy." Daisy connected the call without noticing who was calling. She replied while placing the phone between her ear and shoulder. She was still gazing at the screen of the computer, her hands continually tapping the keyboard.

"Honey, what are you doing?" asked Edward. He was standing by the window, overlooking the hustle and bustle on the street. As he in the high-rise building, the cars and people on the road seemed like little dots to him.

"Um! I am writing a report. What's up?" Daisy didn't expect that Edward would call her. She was a little surprised. She paused and lifted her hands from the keyboard to hold the phone.

"Well, Rain suggested that we hang out together tonight, and he wants you to come. What do you say?" asked Edward. He could imagine that she must be feeling confused because he knew that she didn't like the idea of so many people buzzing with excitement.

"How many people are coming?" Daisy frowned and asked. Just as Edward had expected, she was a little annoyed.

"Not too many, just some intimate friends." Edward didn't tell him that Leena would also join in, he feared that she would feel abashed.

"Okay, you decide. I'm fine either way." Since she had decided that she would become a good wife, she thought that it was necessary for her to fit in his life and his social circle.

"Okay... I will pick you up after work. Edward said with a gentle smile. He wondered how she would react when she meet Leena there. It would be interesting to see what would happen tonight.

Chapter 88: Chapter 88: Dare You To Touch Her

The scorching sun was setting down, and the sky looked beautiful with the soft evening glow. The whole city looked gorgeous in the bright glow of the sun. Daisy looked at herself in the mirror, a little depressed. 'Why is that every dress which Edward chooses for me is so grand and exorbitant? Why couldn't I find any regular clothes in the wardrobe? Daisy wondered. Usually, Daisy wore uniforms. She had a few informal suits, but they're all too casual if she wore them to go to someplace fancy. But the place Edward would bring her to must be some opulent restaurant or hotel, so she planned to wear the dress Edward had laid out for her.

The dress she planned to wear tonight looked good on her. The chiffon fabric was very light. It billowed with the wind, adding a touch of softness and gentleness to her calm personality. The frill sleeves softened her firm demeanor, making her look more attractive with femininity.

Edward continually turned around to look at Daisy when they were in the car. He smiled gently, making his thin lips look sexier.

"Dad, what are you looking at?" Justin had noticed his father's unusual movement, he raised his head and asked Edward doubtfully.

"I'm looking at you!" Edward didn't feel embarrassed when his son caught him. His broad smile looked more attractive now. While Daisy was in a state of bewilderment, she was not naive. Edward's intentions were too obvious when he frequently turned around and gazed at them. The reason why she ignored his gaze was that she didn't want to make everyone feel embarrassed. But Justin's innocent question made her blush.

"Oh! I got it! Dad, you're looking at mom!" Justin teased Edward and exclaimed as if he had found a new lease of life. He rolled his eyes slyly and made fun of Edward.

"Justin, that's nonsense." Daisy pulled a long face. She didn't expect Justin to say this out. She became more bewildered. She looked around with her bright eyes and didn't know where to look.

"Justin, you're my clever son! Don't you think that your mom is looking gorgeous today!" Edward didn't have the slightest feeling of embarrassment. He acknowledged it forthrightly.

Justin looked at Daisy earnestly and nodded in agreement, "Yes! My mom is looking lovely today."

It was rare for Justin to see Daisy dress up like this. He got used to seeing Daisy's usual appearance in uniforms. He felt she also looked good in such a soft and tender style.

This time, Daisy finally noticed that the Edward and Justin were mimicking each other. The father and the son were doing it on purpose in front of her.

Rain chose a classy restaurant. As Edward was about to introduce Daisy and Justin to his friends, he arrived earlier than he did on such occasions. He was always the latecomer! He was always the most important person to come last after everyone had arrived!

When he pushed the door open, everyone in the room focused their attention on the couple. Edward was charming with a grand demeanor, and Daisy was beautiful and graceful, they were a perfect match. Rain was the first one to come out from the state of trance. He stood up and walked towards Daisy with a warm smile.

"Dear Daisy, nice to meet you. We have been looking forward to seeing you for the longest time. We used to joke that you might have been locked up in the house by someone." While saying this, Rain extended his hand to shake hands with Daisy. But before he could hold Daisy's tender hand, he heard Edward saying, "Dare you touch her!" Edward did not pat his hand, but his stern voice shocked Rain. Rain felt frightened and took his hand back. 'Shit! When did Edward become so jealous? I was just about to shake hands with her! Is it required to be so wary?' Rain complained in his heart.

"Sorry for keeping you waiting." Daisy looked at Edward in embarrassment. Then she turned to Rain and apologized.

"Hello, sister-in-law, I'm Duke Leng. Nice to meet you again." Duke stood up and walked towards them to introduce himself. As Edward was the oldest among them, they all took him as their elder brother.

"Hi, I'm Daisy Ouyang. Have we met each other before?" Daisy felt strange when she heard Duke say "nice to meet you again." She didn't remember meeting him before. She turned around to look at Edward, flabbergasted.

Edward smiled and whispered something in her ear. Daisy's face instantly blushed after she heard Edward's explanation. She regretted that she had behaved so strangely, that night in the bar.

"And me, Sis, I'm Leena." Finally, her turn came. She didn't expect that Miss Daisy would be so beautiful and graceful. As a matter of fact, she was more interested in the attractive boy standing between them.

"Uh... Leena, nice to meet you." Daisy replied in embarrassment. She wanted to dig a hole and bury herself right at this moment. She felt humiliated, thinking about the fuss she had made yesterday. Thank goodness Leena didn't know what had happened yesterday. Otherwise, Daisy would have had no courage to stand here and face her.

"Leena, you should call her sister-in-law." Edward poked on her forehead in a loving manner and reminded her seriously. "Ouch! That hurt. Edward, why did you poke my head? I don't want to call her sister-in-law. I think 'sis' sounds more friendly." She always had the longing for a sister. Now this dream finally came true. Leena smiled happily and extended her hand to hold Daisy's arm. She seemed very determined.

Daisy was accustomed to being alone and indifferent. She was overwhelmed by Leena's warm hospitality.

"Okay, suit yourself." Daisy smiled and said. She quite like Leena's quality of being frank and upright. It seemed that she was the apple of the eye of her family, like a princess under proper security.

Thinking of princesses, Daisy got lost in her thoughts. She remembered that once she was also the apple of the eye of her parents. But an incident stripped her off all the love she had enjoyed and her longing for a bright future. All of a sudden she had fallen from heaven to hell.

When she was Leena's age, she was living on her own, managing different critical task, while Leena was lucky enough to maintain her innocence and stay unaffected by worldly affairs.

"Okay" thank you sis. Now tell me, who is this cute boy? Leena noticed Justin standing beside Daisy. She ask while pinching Justin's handsome face, something she simply couldn't resist.

Hello Miss, I'm Justin Mu. Justin volunteered to introduce himself to Leena before Daisy could answer. He felt ignored by everyone present. Their gaze was focused on Daisy.

Finally, there is a beautiful lady who had ask about him, opportunity to leave a good impression on them.

Chapter 89: Chapter 89: You Are Too Thin

"Oh! You're Justin!" Hi! You're really sweet. Why don't you call me sister?" Leena said while taking the opportunity to kiss his cheeks. He was such a handsome boy. Another Edward when he grew up!

Leena's words made Rain laugh. He said, "Leena, you're too old to be his sister! Do you still consider yourself young? If it had been the olden times, you would have already mothered a bunch of children!" Leena stared at Rain but chose to ignore him. She knew how much he enjoyed making fun of her. She had become immune to his mockery. Her focus was on Justin now. He was such a lovely boy! Justin moved Leena's hands from his face; he looked at Edward helplessly. He desperately hoped that Edward would save him from Leena's warm welcome. He regretted that he had drawn this on himself! He was tasting his own bitter fruit now. He didn't expect that Leena would be so obsessed with him.

Edward chose to ignore Justin's signal. He held Daisy's hand and helped her sit down, leaving Justin in Leena's hands. 'Poor Justin. Hope he realizes that it's unwise to reveal oneself to anyone without understanding that person's true character. It is a good lesson for him. It's one of the biggest mistakes that one can make, especially in the business world. As my son, if he can't manage the mess that he caused himself, he's probably unfit to take over my business in the future.' Edward thought.

"Justin, let's sit down. You can sit next to me!" Leena asked, she had finally found someone she could play with. She felt that she made the right decision to come back. Many exciting things had transpired since she had been back. Edward suddenly got married and had a son too. It seemed there would be more fun in coming days!

"Eh! Well... Miss Leena. Sorry, But I'd rather sit next to Mr. Rain. I need to discuss something with him.

'Oh my God! She seemed obstinate! Her cunning looks are scary! Seems like she's plotting an attack on someone. I wonder who is her prey. Sitting next to her would mean walking right into her trap.' Justin thought.

"Hey, Justin, what do you want to discuss with me?" Rain asked. Rain looked at Justin who had eagerly fled to his side and asked. He was wondering whether Justin was about to bring up the old topic of asking him to go on a date with Daisy. Oh! No! If that were the case, he would be beaten to death by Edward. Since last time Edward had talked to him, his workload has doubled. He didn't even have the time to date anyone now.

Edward smiled. He knew that Rain was just an excuse for Justin to get away from Lenna. Although it sounded lame, it may help Justin out.

"Mr. Rain, you look very handsome today!" Justin said casually. He was talking rubbish of course! Nobody needed to tell Rain that he looked handsome. But he had nothing else to say to Rain.

"Okay! You are only using me. I know." Justin was such a clever boy. Rain had already seen through him. No one gives out complements to others without any reason.

"Mr. Rain, you are overthinking. I really do think you look very handsome today. There is no other reason." Justin flashed a lovely smile to him and said. Acting adorable was a useful technique in some circumstances. But this technique didn't work if one wasn't adorable, to begin with.

Rain looked at Justin with doubt. Really? He didn't believe Justin's words. Justin was supposed to be just as cunning as his father, who was a shrewd businessman.

"Sis, I can't help but wonder, why haven't we met you before." Leena transferred her attention from the adorable boy to the gorgeous woman.

"Um... Well.." Daisy faltered in her words, feeling helpless. She was wondering what to say to Leena. Was she going to say that earlier she was just a wife-in-name wife for Edward? Or she didn't appear in Edward's social circle before because he didn't love her when they got married?

"Leena, can't you just enjoy your food? There's so much of delicious food to fill up your mouth." While Daisy was caught in the dilemma of embarrassment, Edward said this to Leena to help her out.

"Huh! Edward, you're so mean! I was just curious!" Leena pouted. But what she said was true. She was quite curious about Daisy.

"If you have any questions, you can ask me. Don't bother Daisy. Let her have her meal. God knows she needs it!" Edward felt that Leena was too self-assured. She didn't seem overwhelmed by Daisy's calm demeanor at all.

Leena stared at Edward. She decided to let the question pass. Edward was a cunning man indeed! It would be impossible for her to get any answers from him.

"Come on, enjoy your food. You're too thin!" Edward said to Daisy while constantly serving food in her plate. As Justin was not sitting beside him, he was spared from looking after him. He was only taking care of Daisy now.

Rain didn't expect that the responsibility of looking after Justin would fall on him! He was speechless.

Upon hearing Edward's words, Daisy raised her head and stared at him. She was not thin at all. Was he expecting her to turn into a fat pig? Her figure was ideal, and she was quite sure of that. She would not make any assertions on other things, but she certainly knew that her figure was the best.

"Isn't it? I don't feel anything when I touch you. So you'd better try to become plumper." Edward suddenly leaned towards her and murmured into her ears with a sensuous smile.

"Daisy was shocked, hearing what Edward said to her. The chopsticks slipped from her hands and fell to the ground. The clink immediately attracted everyone's attention. Daisy's face reddened instantly.

"Daisy, what happened?" Rain asked. He observed Edward's sinister smile and Daisy's crimsoned face. He felt that they were a suspicious couple. He wondered what Edward had said to Daisy to prompt such a reaction.

"Oh! Nothing. The chopsticks just slipped." Daisy replied. She was really embarrassed. She felt that now her image had been ruined for good. She didn't expect Edward to say something like this to her suddenly. He was such a crude man. He was flirting with her with so many people present. Although his voice was low, Daisy was really mad about this!

"Mom, your face is red. Are you feeling hot?" Justin asked Daisy with concern.

"Yes! Sis, are you all right?" Leena noticed Daisy's odd behavior and asked curiously. "... Daisy was very embarrassed. It was all because of Edward. She stared bitterly at Edward. But Edward felt at ease, and it seemed that he was not going to help her out.

"Why are you looking at me? Is it because you suddenly realize your husband is looking very handsome today?" Everybody felt sick to hear his words. The man was too self-absorbed!

Duke didn't say anything. He had been watching Edward all this time. He wanted to find out whether Edward was serious about this relationship. It surprised him that the proud Mr. Edward would be considerate enough to serve food for Daisy. And his gaze upon her was filled with intense love.
